Vinnie Farrell, who gave such an entertaining talk at the Belleville Varsity Club's dinner to the Belleville basketball team in March, will share officiating chores with nine other foreign whistle tooters when the Olympic Games get underway at Helsinki this summer.

Louis Wilke and Willard Griem, members of the International Olympic Committee on Basketball, made the announcement over the week end.

Farrell, who learned the game at St. Benedict's Prep, and who played with Coach Jitty Wische at Panzer College, has worked in more than 2450 athletic events in this country and in several Latin-American countries. He has whistled in some 55 different tournaments such as the National A.A.U. at Denver, Col., the Eastern Catholic at Newport, R. I., the Greater New York College tourney; New Jersey, Massachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire; the World Wide Army Tournament; New Jersey, Metropolitan and Middle Atlantic A. A. U. Tourneys, the Reno, Nevada, Invitation, the Pan-American Games and the Central American and Caribbean Olympic Games.

The Hare and Hound Race
So successful was the Hare and Hound Race sponsored by the Alpine Wheelmen of Belleville on Sunday that another and harder chase is planned for later in the year. The Hares started out from 326 Washington Avenue, turned down Joramelon Street to the River Road, where they left the first circle, then went on to Route 5-3 where the second circle was hidden in a junk yard and thence to Nichols Field, Nutley, where the final paper was hidden under a bridge, and thence back to the starting place. Altogether it was a ride of about 15 miles.

One of the riders, not understanding the rules picked up all the clues at the first stop, so the Hares, Neil Murphy and Joe DeBacco had to go back and get the pack off on a new start. The first rider lost the trail somewhere in Nutley and the eventual winner Robert Geddis of the Alpines later got so far ahead of the pack that he thought he was lost, too. Gloria Pizella, the only girl in the chase finished in second place, followed by Angelo DeBacco and Jack Launovon of the Century Road Club. They were the only riders who found all of the clues.

Another Baseball League
In an effort to have the use of the municipal Stadium used to the fullest extent, Commissioner Elmer S. Hyde has announced plans for the creation of a league for boys from 13 to 17 years of age to play there. This league will carry baseball from the Farm League and Grammar School Leagues for the younger boys through the Little League and up to the Intermediate state. Boys interested in playing in this circuit should register at the Recreation House, 407 Joramelon Street, immediately.

Rotarian Now
William N. Bennett, otherwise known as Bill, and as coach of the Belleville and Nutley High School crews, was inducted into the Belleville Rotary Club yesterday with the usual ceremony that goes with such an induction. Rev. Peter Deckerbach gave Bill a few pointers on the meaning and aims of Rotary stressing "service above self" something Bill is already giving in extra measure. He is entered under the classification of "machine tools" as a result of his business. His advocacy carries no classification in Rotary.

Busy Day For Nick Nicolette
About 750 members of the PAL witnessed the stock car races held at Roosevelt Stadium, Jersey City, Sunday. Twelve buses were used to transport the children. Nick Nicolette, of Passaic Avenue who drives his own car in stock car races, gave the PAL's plenty to cheer about when he qualified for the finals in the first heat by placing third.

The Hustlers lead the Atom Smashers, the Belknap Cleaners and the Belleville Pleasure and Social Club. The other four teams are out of the running. In the Monday night game Schliffenhause leads by five games with five weeks bowling remaining to be reported. Again half the teams are out of contention and the fifth is on the ragged edge. Answers Questions
At the public hearing on nine ordinances, which will come up for second reading on Friday, the following questions were asked and answered by Mr. Walsh, Commissioner Harry J. Sullivan and Russell Sargent.

Mr. Golden's question as to the heating system in the town hall brought forth the fact that although the boiler is the same one that was installed in 1914 it might be converted to oil, as it was to the use of the stoker in 1942, but that its replacement will provide 700 square feet of much needed space.

The building. The installation will cost $14,500, and will include two oil furnaces, one of which will heat the police station and other portions of the building open 24 hours a day, seven days a week, while the other will heat the rest of the building only when it is open for business. This should eventually save the town money in fuel bills.

Mr. Golden also asked a number of questions about the proposed new ambulance, principally why it is not a budget item and why the town was issuing bonds for such an insignificant amount. Mr. Walsh said that the ambulance will cost $9,525, that if the Commission can pick up the temporary notes in next year's budget and that even if bonded for five years, the interest charges at about one percent would not amount to a great deal.

O Give Me Hills
A Hoosier till he lie upon in spring
And limbs to stretch upon a rustling grass,
An hour at noon that's not for anything
But ears to glean the drowsy winds that pass;
Dark hills that rise in summer's purple night
Beyond the cow and sheep-bell's distant chime;
A love that comes to meet me by the light
Of pumpkin-colored moons in harvest-time.
(Give me a hill to dream upon the past;
The cock's-comb dress of Mohawks by the fire,
The westward glow of sturdy men who cast
Historic molds from rugged swamp and mire.
O put me on a hill where autumn's squal
And winter skies draw phantom herds of sheep,
Where drifting snows erect a silent wall
Between brief dreams and waking from warm sleep,
Garland Fisher

It's Your Life To Save.
All non-essential activity will cease for 10 minutes across New Jersey at some surprise zero-hour between next Sunday and the following Sunday, May 3. The occasion will be "Operation New Jersey", the first all-out test of the state's air raid alarm system when sirens will sound here and in every town and hamlet from High Point to Cape May.
When that happens don't grumble if your car is ordered to the curb, if your bus pulls to one side and waits, if aircraft stay grounded, if traffic coming into the state is halted at the state line.
The statewide test is a test of your own defense.
If everything goes off all right, you can be assured that Civil Defense precautions have been carefully taken. If there are any "bugs" in the air raid alarm system, they will show up.
Since your life would depend, in a real raid, upon the successful working of the air raid alarm system, you should be interested, vitally so, in "Operation New Jersey" even if it means inconvenience for you. Ten minutes out of your life today may mean the rest of your life to you if a real air attack should ever follow this test "raid".

Rev. Struyk To Celebrate 25th Anniversary As Pastor
A reception for Rev. John A. Struyk, in honor of his 25th anniversary as pastor of the Belleville Reformed Church, will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. All friends are invited to the celebration. Rev. Struyk came here in April of 1927 from the Providence Reformed Church of Troy, New York.
The Belleville Reformed Church is in its 250th year. Much money has been expended for the repair of this old church, liberally contributed by the people of the town. All are invited to view it.

Householders have their role in the CD test. You are instructed to turn off gas or electricity at your cook stove. You are to turn on full blast your radios and you are to take cover. The radios won't annoy your neighbors if they, too, take cover and by radio you will be kept informed of the progress of the "raid", what to do and when to come out of cover.

Perhaps you never have thought of the safest place around your home to take cover in a real raid. Since it might be an atom-bomb attack, you should have prepared in advance a safe hideout in your basement where you would be more likely to escape the effects of radiation or the blinding light. If you have been negligent, look around you now. Instead of grumbling during the 10-minute CD test, play along with the authorities and take cover. By experience you can tell whether you have chosen wisely. You may want to do better the next time.

And remember, if an enemy does strike, you may not have time to look for a place to hide. Better for your own health, and for the safety of your family, to do it now. If you cooperate, you will be helping the authorities save your own life; if you merely grumble, you will gamble on your life. It's up to you.

A New Hat In The Ring.
A new hat has been tossed into the Democratic ring, a millionaire's Stetson hat which, alas, bears the label "Yalta".

Little has been said, thus far, about W. Averell Harriman's role in shaping the Yalta Agreement but he was there and he was one of the participants in all the decisions, secret and open, which made up that most infamous of all diplomatic documents which sold out Eastern Europe to Joe Stalin.

Harriman was F. D. Roosevelt's Ambassador to Moscow at the time of the Yalta Agreement and it was in that capacity that he participated. Admiral William D. Leahy, who was at Roosevelt's side there, left a very articulate report of happenings written with the cynicism of a career naval officer for all-striped-pants diplomacy.

From Admiral Leahy's report we know that Harriman was responsible for that phase of Yalta which concerned bringing Russia into the war in the Pacific. The concessions which Harriman negotiated were those concerning Sakhalin, the Kuriles, Dairen and Port Arthur—all concessions which have plagued us ever since and which are the cause of most of our present troubles in Korea and the Far East.

The more said about Yalta during the Harriman boom by New York Democrats the better, because Yalta was one of the major mistakes, among many, which were made, diplomatically, during World War II.

ONE MAN'S OPINION . . .
Our Only Excuse For Refusing To Hear The Tunisians' Cry For Freedom Is "Expediency", To Avoid Angering France.
By RALPH E. HEINZEN

Risking the alienation of 600,000,000 people of colonized lands to whom colonialism is an anathema, the United Nations, with American support, has refused to take up the case of Tunisia which would like a free and open discussion of France's "Protectorate" and of the Tunisians' desires for the right of self determination.

In itself, the Tunisian problem would be of no great magnitude, even less important than was the problem of Indonesia which the Dutch settled with their one-time colony. But Tunisia is a ward of the Pan-Arab bloc and that extends throughout the Islamic lands into faraway India and up and down Africa wherever the minarets rise.

As a foreign correspondent for United Press, I was in Tunisia in 1939 when French Premier Edouard Daladier inspected the Mareth Line, the desert fortifications between the Protectorate and Mussolini's Libya, and earlier in April 1938 when France swung a heavy club, arresting 200 Tunisian nationalists and dissolving their independence movement. As an eye-witness, I was in favor of the Tunisians then, and am now.

On grounds of expediency, the U. S. Government refused to bring the Tunisian problem before the Security Council because France would be angry and might sink in her role of North Atlantic Treaty partner. In this "One Man's Opinion", this is one move distasteful to Dean Acheson, as distasteful and as deceitful as his abandonment of Nationalist China to the Red wolves. In the Arab world, America, which long ago gave up its "colonies" in the Philippines and Puerto Rico, is now branded with the same stamp of colonialism as France and Britain. Our loss of prestige has been as great as the shame many Americans feel that any expediency should have such a high value.

Once Great Carthage
France's role in Tunisia's long history began only yesterday, comparatively. In the time of the Romans, Tunisia was a dependence of the Caesars but even before that it was thriving under the Phoenicians, who laid out Carthage and the coast with trading posts. It was from Tunisia that Caesar took the name of Africa for the continent, a Latinizing of the native Berber word "Ifriqia".
During the Roman Empire Carthage was a second city, the busiest market and the most corrupt city under the Caesars. It was there that the Romans later planned Christianity on the Continent. There are still ruins of Carthage in the sands of the Barbary coast, and when there were Arabs grew rich by robbing relics from the ruins. I mean a magnificent Roman oil lamp in baked clay and was really taken in until I turned it over and scraped off the mud and read: "Made in Japan".

We Shelled Coast
The Vandals took Tunisia from the Romans in the fifth century, but it took them a century to get it back to where a century later and, finally, in the middle of the seventh century the Arabs conquered the land from the declining Roman empire. The Berbers and the Turks tried to grab it, but they failed.

Concessions at Stress
Things went on in Mediterranean manner until 1935. I attended the Stress Conference, in Easter Week, 1935, when Mussolini and Pierre Laval met at the British at the northern Italy lake resort. Hitler was just rising to power and the three nations met to try and align their front against him. Mussolini, who then was the protector of Austria and Hungary, feared Hitler's rivalry in the Balkans and wanted to talk with the French and British about pooling their interests.

It was a productive conference and Laval gave away to Mussolini a vast area in the African desert south of Libya in exchange for Mussolini's consent to terminate Italy's special privileges in Tunisia including the troublesome problem of Italian nationals keeping their nationality.

It is no secret that in private talks when Laval and Mussolini met, Laval gave away to Mussolini, safe from prying reporters, the French Premier gave his consent to the Duke's empire plan to pry an empire for himself out of Ethiopia. The Ethiopian war started within a few months.

After Mussolini backed out of Tunisia, the French developed it rapidly against him. The Mareth Line was built from Tripoli to protect Tunisia from the South. Italians in Tunisia were drafted into the French army.

When, in June, 1940, France was reeling from Hitler's blows and on the verge of collapse, Mussolini entered the war. He denounced the Stress accord and announced that the acquisition of Tunisia from France was one of his war aims. Mussolini did not want to take over, but his Italian troops had to move defensively against the Allies in the final phase of the African campaign and were of little help to Rome. The "dross" of the Stress accord was treated up the peninsula to have his army trapped and beaten.

In the meantime, Tunisian nationalism slowly developed. It had its start shortly before World War I when young natives who had gone to Europe for their education organized the "Young Tunisians" movement. Strength spread and was gradually changed into a Constitutional movement, called "Destour". In 1936, the Tunisians won a nine-point program having as its objective a democratic form of government to replace the colonial status.

The French moved against the nationalists in 1925, banning the "Destour" movement but when Tunisia fell on hard times after 1929, while we in this country were experiencing our worst depression, the nationalist campaign was revived, this time under the title of "Neo-Destour". When the Tunisians resorted to violence, the French police retaliated and arrested 200 Destourian leaders, including both the old and the new movements dissolved.

A few months later, World War I began and Tunis did little to aid France or her Allies. After victory, when French authority was restored, Moncef Bey, the wartime ruler, was deposed and Lamine Bey, a friend and protégé of the French, took over. Under Lamine Bey and General Charles Mast, French Resident General, a series of reforms has begun. Old men in adult Tunisia to higher civil service jobs. Another is to settle the Tunisian Arabs on their own land by a distribution of acreage. It is on the grounds that these reforms have begun but are not yet fully outside interference, particularly within the UN. And it is U. S. policy to support France on that stand.

The Man Responsible
For the record, the man responsible for the U. S. decision to refuse the Tunisians a hearing is David K. Bruce, Under Secretary of State who recently returned from France where he was our Ambassador.

Until Bruce's intervention, there was substantial support in the State Department for the Arab-Asian movement to peace the dispute on the agenda of the United Nations. Bruce's intervention for public review. But Bruce persuaded officials that the French domestic situation is so unstable that it was against American interests to move against the wishes of France at this time.

Rebuilding of French stability is a paramount policy of the United States. Bruce reminded his colleagues, and he argued it should come first despite American sympathies for the aspirations and difficulties of a colony. Thus the United States was influenced not to encourage the uprising of the Tunisian case before the world at this moment.

It was a productive conference and Laval gave away to Mussolini a vast area in the African desert south of Libya in exchange for Mussolini's consent to terminate Italy's special privileges in Tunisia including the troublesome problem of Italian nationals keeping their nationality.

It is no secret that in private talks when Laval and Mussolini met, Laval gave away to Mussolini, safe from prying reporters, the French Premier gave his consent to the Duke's empire plan to pry an empire for himself out of Ethiopia. The Ethiopian war started within a few months.

When, in June, 1940, France was reeling from Hitler's blows and on the verge of collapse, Mussolini entered the war. He denounced the Stress accord and announced that the acquisition of Tunisia from France was one of his war aims. Mussolini did not want to take over, but his Italian troops had to move defensively against the Allies in the final phase of the African campaign and were of little help to Rome. The "dross" of the Stress accord was treated up the peninsula to have his army trapped and beaten.

In the meantime, Tunisian nationalism slowly developed. It had its start shortly before World War I when young natives who had gone to Europe for their education organized the "Young Tunisians" movement. Strength spread and was gradually changed into a Constitutional movement, called "Destour". In 1936, the Tunisians won a nine-point program having as its objective a democratic form of government to replace the colonial status.

The French moved against the nationalists in 1925, banning the "Destour" movement but when Tunisia fell on hard times after 1929, while we in this country were experiencing our worst depression, the nationalist campaign was revived, this time under the title of "Neo-Destour". When the Tunisians resorted to violence, the French police retaliated and arrested 200 Destourian leaders, including both the old and the new movements dissolved.

A few months later, World War I began and Tunis did little to aid France or her Allies. After victory, when French authority was restored, Moncef Bey, the wartime ruler, was deposed and Lamine Bey, a friend and protégé of the French, took over. Under Lamine Bey and General Charles Mast, French Resident General, a series of reforms has begun. Old men in adult Tunisia to higher civil service jobs. Another is to settle the Tunisian Arabs on their own land by a distribution of acreage. It is on the grounds that these reforms have begun but are not yet fully outside interference, particularly within the UN. And it is U. S. policy to support France on that stand.

The Man Responsible
For the record, the man responsible for the U. S. decision to refuse the Tunisians a hearing is David K. Bruce, Under Secretary of State who recently returned from France where he was our Ambassador.

Until Bruce's intervention, there was substantial support in the State Department for the Arab-Asian movement to peace the dispute on the agenda of the United Nations. Bruce's intervention for public review. But Bruce persuaded officials that the French domestic situation is so unstable that it was against American interests to move against the wishes of France at this time.

Rebuilding of French stability is a paramount policy of the United States. Bruce reminded his colleagues, and he argued it should come first despite American sympathies for the aspirations and difficulties of a colony. Thus the United States was influenced not to encourage the uprising of the Tunisian case before the world at this moment.

GIRLS' FINALS HELD AT SCHOOL

Championship Games In Intramural Basketball Give Nonames And Hot Shots Wins

The final games for the championships in the girls' intramural basketball leagues were held April 2. The first game between the Nonames and the Emanons for the championship of the Junior-Senior League proved to be a real thriller. The game was close all the way and with only a few minutes to play the score was tied at eight all. A freak play by the forwards on the Nonames' squad gave the team an easy lay-up and the winning basket. The game ended showing the Nonames' champions with a 10-8 victory.

The winning team was captained by Evelyn Hannon and Rose Shreiber. Other members who brought the team to victory were Phyllis Di Meo, Arlene Whyche, Virginia Calagno, Maria Santiago, Lillian Guttler, Eileen Fitzgerald, Mary Lou Sandura, and Evelyn Niederer.

In the second game, the Hot Shots trounced the Kelmas 18-1 and copped the championship of the Freshman-Sophomore League. At first the game looked as though it also would be a little tight when the Kelmas sunk a foul shot and scored the first point of the game, and the Hot Shots quickly returned to tie the score from the free throw line. That was the end for the Kelmas, though, as the Hot

Now Enjoying DeCAMP BUS SERVICE

WITH 5 NEW BUSES

One man said, "Still can't get over how much time I save going by DeCamp buses." Another said, "The comfort of a DeCamp bus is a relief after a tiring day in the city."

These new buses are the largest, roomiest, most modern on the road... the very finest General Motors produces... smoother, faster, safer, better ventilated and so much more comfortable.

If you're not a regular DeCamp commuter, you have a real treat awaiting you. Save time, save money, eliminate changes... go to New York the DeCamp way!

Six Belleville Women Are Captains In Ticket Drive For Exposition June 10-15

Belleville women team captains for the Veterans of Foreign Wars' Essex County Home Show at the 113th Infantry Armory, Newark, June 10-15, were told yesterday that the heavy advance sales of tickets already guarantees the success of the show.

Mrs. Elsie Lundy of Belleville, chairman of the women's division, predicted that more than 100,000 persons will buy admission tickets and attend the exposition, in a progress report to the local captains, Clara Daw, Elizabeth Greenwald, Elsie Lundy of the P. A. Youngling VFW Auxiliary; Mrs. Rose Grillo, Miss Sally McDonald, Mrs. Virginia Escherich of the P. A. Youngling VFW Auxiliary.

The Belleville women head a ticket-selling force of 120 members of P. A. Youngling Post No. 275 and Jos. C. Taibi Post No. 626 of Belleville. The veterans are sponsoring the show to raise funds for their blood bank and welfare program. As the show's grand prize they will award a $40,000 furnished seven-room home at Chancellor and Elizabeth avenues in the Weequahic Park residential section of Newark. An almost continuous stream of visitors daily visit the home for a free inspection of it. "Many thousands of tickets have been sold in the past two weeks, and with eight more weeks to go all doubt of the show's success has vanished," Mrs. Lundy declared. "At the exposition there will be a complete display of products and services for the home, plus many scientific demonstrations of developments of the atomic age which foster better living. We are selecting exhibitors carefully; there will be no cheap pitch stands. We are determined that this show will be a credit to the entire county of Essex."

Brazilian Dean Will Speak At Christ Church

Head Of Trinity Cathedral
At Porto Alegre Is On Speaking Tour Of U.S.

Throughout the Episcopal Church of the United States thousands of people are making a study of Brazil, and the Church's missionary work there. To assist in this study, the Very Rev. James K. Appel, native Brazilian clergyman, has come to the United States to fill a chain of speaking engagements that will take him from New York to Arizona. He plans to be at Christ Church on Sunday morning, at 11 o'clock.

Dean Appel completed his theological education in this country, and speaks English fluently. He is said to be a speaker of unusual ability, and brings first-hand information about the fast developing work of the Church in his native country. He is Dean of Trinity Cathedral, Porto Alegre, a leading parish in the Brazilian Church. In his 15 years at the Cathedral, its budget has increased 12 times, and construction of a new parish house is under way at the present time. In addition to his parish duties, Dean Appel teaches Greek in the Theological Seminary, which is located in Porto Alegre, one of the leading cities of Brazil, with a population of half a million. The Woman's Auxiliary of which Mrs. Florence Smith is President, and sponsoring the Dean's appearance, will welcome anyone interested at this service.

ACCEPTS POSTS IN CANCER CAMPAIGN

F. Douglas Wadsworth Will Be General Chairman; Sidney Hollander, Industrial Head

Appointment of F. Douglas Wadsworth as chairman and Sidney Hollander as industrial chairman of the 1952 Cancer Crusade in Belleville was announced today by Col. Tall E. Waters of East Orange, campaign chairman for the American Cancer Society. Volunteers on the local committee will work toward a goal of $7,500 in contributions for cancer control.

The local effort is part of the campaign of the Essex County Chapter, which has a total quota of $186,500. The drive will continue throughout April, which has been designated "Cancer Control Month" by act of Congress.

In the past five years, great progress has been made in the fight against cancer in New Jersey," Mr. Wadsworth said. "This has been made possible through the generous contributions of our citizens. We still face a great challenge — the saving of lives and we are confident that our program will receive continued support."

Explaining what happens to the contributed dollar, the local chairman declared that 60 percent of the funds contributed in Essex County remain available at state and county levels for purchase of clinic equipment, providing of nursing care and medications for indigent patients, and the education of the public that cancer can be cured, if caught in time. The remaining 40 percent goes to the American Cancer Society for research, education and administration programs. Through this national program, outstanding scientists are working to find the cause and cure of cancer.

Mr. Wadsworth, who also served as chairman of the cancer campaign in Belleville last year, is district commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America. He served on the executive committee for the Lutheran Memorial Hospital drive and is a past president of the Belleville Lions Club. Mr. Wadsworth also is president of the Lay Advisory Committee to the Belleville Board of Education and a trustee and first vice president of the Family Service Bureau in Belleville. His home is at 74 Rossmore place.

Time

The other night I finished my third reading of James Hilton's "Lost Horizon." There might be some raised eyebrows at that. The same book read over three times? I can give you an answer — do you sing a song only once? Do you visit a good friend only once? Do you inhale the fragrance of a rose only once?

The story of "Lost Horizon" is familiar to many people — you recall the Englishman who thought a chain of circumstances was taken to a fertile valley in the mountains of Tibet. There he is introduced to a made-of-living that is completely alien, but curiously acceptable, to him.

The emphasis is placed on meditation, on matters of the spirit. That favorite pastime of Western civilization, the pursuit of the elusive buck — the cause of our wars, our sickness, our disillusion — does not matter to these people.

In addition they have conquered the element of time. Many of the lamas with which our Englishman is staying have lived a century or more while retaining the health and agility of men half the age or less.

It was this last that set into motion the creaky machinery of my head. I remember one of the pastimes of my childhood — thinking up ways of spending a million dollars. But now that my childhood is history, money, while not to be sneeringly dismissed, is not the alpha and omega of my life. In direct proportion to the shrinking importance of money has been the rise in the importance of time.

When I think of all there is to do, I grow limp at the realization that there isn't the time in which to do it all. Perhaps because of this I find myself aware of the savor each thing — each person, experience, book, piece of music — slowly and deeply. I know that if I took the reins off myself I would try to read all the books, hear all the music, meet all the people, do all the things — all by tomorrow afternoon.

At times I indulge the childish segment of my nature, and daydream. After finishing the book I walked Toby, and as it wasn't too cold, I sat on the porch steps for a last smoke before bed. The street was still. Without distractions, I tossed an idea into the arena of my mind and let the lions of thought pounce on it.

What if each of us had as many lifetimes as we could use? I don't mean have them simply to have and to idle away timelessly standing on corners, like the teenagers of our time, but have to use wisely.

The field immediately opened up to me like the unfolding of a spring-enchanted flower. How many lifetimes could I use. Well, to start with, I'd need one just to enjoy myself — to savor all the experiences of this varied life of ours, and to seek out the people who have tried some I never even heard of. If that sounds like hedonism, then so is it.

I'd need several lifetimes to understand the inner workings of my fellow man. One lifetime would be necessary to study myself, because without knowing myself, how can I pretend to know you? There is such a plantude of complications, contradictions, submerged desires, powers, hidden and exposed evils, in the make-up of a man that I think several lifetimes would not be too much.

Then I'd want to devote one to the study of a question which is important to me, although I'm sure there are some who aren't even even aware that such a question exists. What is my relation to God? Why was I put on this earth? Is there an intelligence responsible for the unbalance of happiness and misery? Why do we have wars? Is sickness visited upon mankind by God, or has man, by his methods, created the illnesses which destroy him?

I would take twenty years just to study the writings of the great minds of the past who have found this subject worthy of thought. Then it would require the remaining years of this hypothetical lifetime to arrive, with the guidance of these writings, at a conclusion that would satisfy me. But would I? Has there ever been a man who has thought about God who has been satisfied with his own conclusions? One man's conclusions on a subject as mysterious and as vast are apt to be small and unsatisfactory.

I'd need a lifetime to read all the books I want to read. I'd need a whole one to write. One would go to the study of music. Another to the study of nature — the science of the earth, of insects, of plant life. An entire one would go, with little left over, to the study of one of the most baffling mysteries you can name — the universe. Is it off our earth is but a spot of dust. If everything has limits — as it has, according to the contraction of our understanding — then our universe must have limits. But what lies beyond those limits? The concept of absolute nothingness is hard to visualize. What does nothing consist of? Empty air? Eternal night?

Much the same result comes from dwelling too long on the thought of Eternity. How long is forever?

One lifetime would have to be given over to travel — the slow absorption of their customs. And I suppose a lifetime or two could easily be utilized in the study of subjects such as photo-cygnus — the process by which plants convert sunlight and air into growing energy and food; the study of world politics, to learn why war has become so necessary a part of modern civilization; a study of —

Well, the thought is interesting, and I suppose you have your own list of lifetimes. The idea is tantalizing, although tinged with a little regret and a little terror, because as I casually toss around a dozen or so lifetimes, I cannot entirely forget that I am here only briefly and that having passed once this way, I will never pass again.

Give the little lady a hand

THIS ad is addressed to husbands — husbands who've yearned for the thrill of sitting behind a broad hood packed with horsepower—and the pride of rolling down the street in a car that tells the world, "Here's a man who knows the finest thing on wheels."

But husbands have wives. And wives have been known to say, "No big cars for me. They're too hard to handle."

Well, we have an answer for that one. It's a ROADMASTER with Buick's new Power Steering. And Power Steering takes over any time the steering gets tough—works like a helping hand—reduces the effort of turning the wheel of a car at a standstill to about the same effort it takes to pick up a milk coat.

BUT on the open highway—with a clear straight stretch before you—your hands still have command of the wheel—you can feel that sure, firm, easy and eager responsiveness that's a part of the fun of driving.

The rest of the fun is in something else that's new this year—the highest horsepower that a Buick Fireball Engine has ever delivered — and an Airpower carburetor that lets loose an extra reserve of power when needed, and still adds extra miles to your cruising range on each tankful of gas.

So we suggest a family demonstration. You'll both like the hushed and restful silence of this superbly able traveler. You'll like the harmonious beauty of its interior, and the deep and luxurious softness of its seats.

You'll like the velvet-gloved grip of its Wide-Band brakes, and the most capacious trunk in Buick history.

You'll like the smooth surge of Dynaflow Drive, and you'll like—but why waste time talking when you could be finding out more than we can ever tell you? How about making a date to do that right now?

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. While mileage optional at extra cost when available. *Optional at extra cost on Roadmaster only.
