

Rep. Rodino Pledges Bi-Partisan Action In Victory Interview

PETER W. RODINO

10th District Congressman Charges Unsuccessful GOP Opponent With Dirty Campaign Tactics

One of the very few Democratic survivors in New Jersey in the Eisenhower landslide, Rep. Peter W. Rodino, Jr., returned to Congress by the 10th District for a third term with the largest vote ever attained in his career, pledged, in a special interview with The Times-News, last night, that as a Democrat in a Republican Congress he will represent the district and its electors, regardless of party affiliation, race, creed or color.

Rodino played the bitterness of Republican attacks upon him, particularly by his opponent, Alexander Maturri, who was particularly bitter about the use, by Maturri, of a reprint from a column by Drew Pearson in which the columnist accused Rodino of seeking to whitewash Democratic office holders in the Congressional investigation of the Justice Department.

Pearson corrected himself, twice, in subsequent columns, but a handbill widely distributed in the district 48 hours before the election contained only the original Pearson accusation, and made no mention of the corrections.

For the duration of the 81st Congress, Rodino expects to represent the 10th District of New Jersey, which has been investigating the Justice Department. Rodino expects the sub-committee to speed up its report before the expiration of the session.

COMMUNITY CHEST AT 51% OF GOAL

Increased Reported In House To House Over Last Year's Total; More From Industry

With returns from the Residential Division of the Community Chest Campaign nearly completed and already $1,600 ahead of last year, Kenneth D. Smith, campaign chairman of the Chest announced that the campaign is now 51 per cent subscribed. Many of the other divisions are about half reported and prospects are that the drive when completed will exceed last year's in almost every division as well as in the grand total. The bulk of the expected improvement is expected from Industrial Corporation gifts and from Industrial Employees, who for the first time are giving on a bench to bench basis. The latest reports of the various divisions follow:

So What?

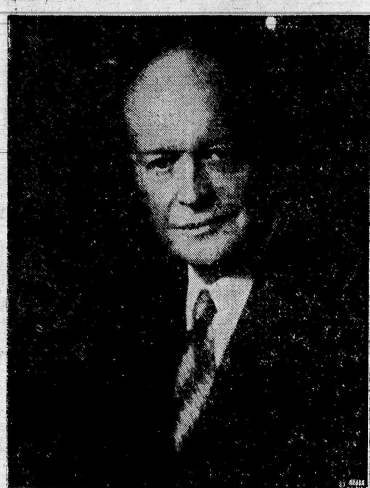

A typographical error in last week's story incorrectly gave the impression that Belleville Police and Firemen received a $1200 raise last year. The "1" was an extra. What they did receive, along with all other town employees, including school teachers, was $200. We sincerely regret the error, and publish this retraction in justice to the men. We wouldn't want their wives to think someone was holding out a thousand bucks, someplace along the line.

Last week's Times-News, through a typographical error, added a mere one million dollars to the prospective cost of construction of the new Belleville High School. The actual amount is $2,600,000.

Miss Marion Malcolm, secretary in the office of the public works department was enthusiastically greeted upon her arrival at work on Monday morning. There standing her in the face was a nice little mouse, trapped in her waste basket. Miss Malcolm bravely climbed on top of her desk and rang the police department. Lieutenant Don (Call-me-Bringing-back) Smith rounded and cooped up friend mouse in a handy jar. Later he put a lollipop in the jar, for the mouse to lick at and to climb on during his incarceration.

Belleville came off well over the Halloween weekend and very little vandalism was reported to the police. Two merchants, Lester C. Greengrove of The Glass and Harry P. Simon, who operates a liquor store at 547 Washington Avenue, each reported that his store was not damaged.

Chosen As Our Next President

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

Will Represent Town At Airport Reopening Confab

Norman Lauterette Reports That Experts Say Projection of Straight Line From Runway Is Proof That Flights Will Avoid Town

Norman Lauterette will represent Belleville at a meeting of the M'ayors' Committee in the Elizabeth Court House tonight, where a further discussion of Newark Airport's reopening will be held. Mr. Lauterette was appointed to represent Belleville by Commissioner Patrick A. Waters, when he was acting mayor, and since he is familiar with the situation, no change has been made now that Mayor James J. Tully is back in business. The committee was formed by State Senator Hand of Union County after the second disastrous crash in Elizabeth, last year, and Mayor Kirk of Elizabeth and Commissioner Elstein of Newark, have taken the lead in promoting and steering the discussions.

Mr. Lauterette has attended four meetings of the committee strictly as an observer, for Belleville, like other municipalities Northeast of Newark, was never invited to participate in a member, and does not share in the cost of the committee's operation. Belleville became interested in the committee's activities when the new north-south runway was proposed by the Port of New York Authority.

A straight line drawn from the end of the runway would bisect Belleville. Flight experts representing the Air Transport Coordinating Committee point out that such a line is proof that no flights will pass over Belleville, regardless of weather. The established practice for both takeoffs and landings is for planes to veer right or left at the end of the runway to keep the landing strip open for other flights.

Mr. Lauterette will make a report on his observations at the meeting of the Board of Commissioners on Monday night, either James J. Tully.

Eisenhower, Smith And Rodino Are Chosen by Voters

Elwood P. Russell and Three Public Questions Also Approved By 89% of Belleville's Record Registration

With 89 per cent of the registered voters turning in the greatest vote ever recorded in Belleville, President Dwight D. Eisenhower carried the town by 2354 votes. Altogether there were 15,248 votes cast out of a registration of 17,090. Eisenhower received 8,553 votes to 6,199 for Stevenson. Except for the congressional race the Republicans swept everything here, to go along with their success throughout the country. Congressman Peter Rodino however carried Belleville with 8,991 votes to 5,769. His plurality was 3,222.

PLAN PARADE AND MEMORIAL SERVICE MARK ARMISTICE

Father Carey, Former Army Chaplain Speaks Sunday; Drum Corps, Vets In March

The Armistice Day committee, is all set for the observance of the end of the World Wars, with a memorial service at St. Anthony's R.C. Church on Sunday at 8 p.m. and a parade on Tuesday night, also at 8 o'clock.

The memorial services at St. Anthony's will be open to Veterans of all religious faiths. The St. Anthony's Choir will give a recital of religious music. Rev. Carey, a former Army Chaplain and now a professor at Seton Hall, will be the speaker. The parade will include the High School band and a drum corps, has been invited to march along with veteran, paternal and civic organizations. A prize will go to the group with the largest delegation. Patrolman James Lee, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be the Grand Marshal, assisted by a staff chosen from the membership of the parade committee. The parade will be along Washington Avenue, forming at Greylock Parkway and dispersing at Wilkes-Barre. It will be reviewed at the Town Hall.

Whether it was a mistake on the part of the election board, that the machine failed to register, or people failed to vote, but in the 1948 presidential election, the District three of the first ward, where 650 votes were cast, (467 of them for Rodino), a complete blank was shown on the institutions referendum and the park referendum, although a vote in 1948 was shown on the park referendum. LOCAL CLUB HAS OFFICIAL VISIT OF ROTARY GOVERNOR

Raymond C. Goodfellow Confers With John P. Dailey On Administration Activities

Elwood P. Russell, Belleville's candidate for the Board of Freeholders, received a plurality of 600 votes in town, 745 votes in his favor and 6071 for Loftus, the top man on the Democratic State.

Rudolph P. Zoeller, Republican Town Chairman, was jubilant over the victory. Zoeller said thanks were due to many outside the ranks of the regular organizations. He said that, as the new car dealers and the Vee-Bee Esso Servicenter, who placed cars at the disposal of those voters who needed rides to the polls, to the High School students who showed up to lend a hand at the polls, a non-partisan basis, as to Karl's Sales and Service, which loaned a television set to the GOP committee, and other voters who visited the headquarters could watch the return-pouring-in for the General.

Town Engineer Matty Sheehan, an avid reader of all the polls and opinion magazines, was at the Town Hall on Tuesday night, predicting that from his study of the dope sheets, Stevenson would carry 400 electors. His prediction was in both a Democratic Congress and Senate. By now he knows that ever since 1948 the polls have been wrong. Their predictions of close votes in many states went sky high a half hour after the voting stopped, and their predictions on the makeup of the next Senate and Congress were almost 400 per cent wrong. Matty has to show up at the Town Hall some, and then he is in for a real ribbing.

Just in case you are a "Figure Filled" and want to see how the Belleville election turned out, made out in comparison with the total vote, the returns are tabulated on the next page. The figures will show any way you wish and come to your own conclusion. Our best wishes to Mr. Russell, Mr. Smith and Mr. Rodino.

Her Home is Doll House and Delight of Children from 3 to 93

Boy And Girl Doll Teams Her Favorites; Raggedy Ann And Andy Do Acrobatic Tricks

By Betty Steiner

The home of Mrs. Violet O'Connor is literally a doll house. Sitting, standing, and posing decoratively about the living room are a series of brightly-eyed, colorfully garbed cloth dolls, with outstretched arms. Each has a personality of its own that it displays casually to the world. There are Raggedy Ann and Andy dolls, Hansel and Gretel dolls, Topsy and Eva dolls, and other boy and girl teams.

These are Mrs. O'Connor's, a modest woman who disclaims any creative talent, but her three counties second place awards for her dolls at the Middlesex County Fair in East New Brunswick belie her words.

Begin 5 Years Ago It all began five years ago when Mrs. O'Connor lived in Stamford, Connecticut. She and a group of other women worked in various ways for the underprivileged of the area, donating clothes, etc. Mrs. O'Connor conceived the idea of fashioning dolls for needy children, thus brightening their drab lives with colorful playthings.

receiving orders from neighbors who were willing to pay her for her fine, detailed work. When she and her husband, Francis, moved to Belleville three years ago and located themselves in a cosy home at 17 Ogden Road, her work increased. By this time it had developed into an engrossing hobby that occupied most of Mrs. O'Connor's spare time. She fashioned sets of dolls for both limited sale within the area and also for bestowing gifts and favors to friends and relatives.

Mrs. O'Connor Creates Dolls To Make Children Happy; Has Won Prizes At County Fair

compactly with cotton, and they dressed in costume made of such fabrics as cotton, chintz, corduroy, wool, etc., all designed to harmonize with the character of the doll. Mrs. O'Connor creates the faces with cotton or wool yarn, fashioning eyes, nose, mouth, and hair in heavily adorned ways.

The dolls' coiffures are particularly interesting. Mrs. O'Connor sets fashion on its ear with her variety of styles, including long, curly, short, and even a few of the various textures, ranging from thin wavy hair to heavy cotton yarn, but all can be yanked vigorously without fear of separating the doll from its coiffure.

Fashion Plates The dolls' faces are so striking to behold if Mrs. O'Connor did not enter the field of doll making she could have made a name for herself in the profession of dress designing. Her color schemes, clever styling, and detailed workmanship result in a perfectly fashioned, boy and girl dolls.

Raggedy Ann and Andy dolls are the epitome of versatility, for they are capable of doing all types of acrobatic stunts, from splits to head stands. Achieving these feats calls for the use of scientific principles, since the dolls must be perfectly balanced in terms of relative proportions of body and limbs. They stand 26 inches high and, with a little aid, can even walk.

These dolls were originally limp, but when more and more thought for the hard wear and rough treatment usually accorded dolls by exuberant children. However, at the same time they are so attractive as to be eye-catching.

With long drawn face, cheer up kids do not let those chemistry tests get you down. That's two down, only seven to go.

Mr. Brown, when are you going to have locker 23 fixed? What is this? Not enough fellows going out for basketball? This cannot be Belleville High School. Seriously, not enough gets out getting out for the basketball trouts. If we want a good team we will surely need more representation.

Pizza? Pizza! And who do you think the best fish is? It is the "Boys With Iel Hair!" Some pain!

The class of '53 did it again. The floor of the boy's gym was packed while the Dovesbats gave out with some real hot music.

Ge, Roland can jiggerbug too? Just think we will soon be deprived of that little voice saying "number please." That is what they told us in the assembly. We hope you all know how to dial your phones now. Don't get your finger jammed!

All good things come in '53. Just like the three boxes of Christmas cards which all of the seniors received. Let's get out and get rid of this job. Huh?

Do you know what Oscar Tap gave backwads? It is Pat Casuso.

Our most ambitious political minded students got out to work for the "People's Eisenhower" Tuesday at the polls. Of course you all know our new president is!

As the Elephant and the Donkey wind this so do we. P.S. The freshmen and sophomores really made a big success of Parents' Night so come on juniors and seniors let's make ours a success too. Remember there will be refreshments served.

LETTERS To The Editor

Sullivan Expresses Thanks To The Editor:

"The vote of confidence extended our great Congressman, Peter W. Rodino, Jr., is an overwhelming tribute to a man who has performed an outstanding service to the interests of all the citizens of the 10th Congressional District.

May I take this opportunity to express my personal thanks to the voters of our community who recognized by their resounding vote his outstanding record on the part of a great American.

The large vote tendered Congressman Rodino by the voters of Belleville brings a great feeling of pride to all public officials with the knowledge that citizens are responsive to outstanding services rendered by one during his term of office.

All of the citizens of our District can feel confident that Congressman-elect Rodino will continue his policy of "service above self" and that he will devote his every energy to the many problems confronting our beloved country. Our citizens can also rest assured that whatever the problem confronting any individual of our District will when brought to the attention of our Congressman receive his every attention until brought to a proper conclusion.

The people of our country have spoken and chosen a great American as their 33rd President. May I ask that all our citizens in Belleville unite behind President Eisenhower for the benefit of our great country. During these troubled times all of us, as Americans, must join hands and together courage to hold our place as the greatest country the world has ever known."

"I myself did not escape the calumnies and falsehoods in which this campaign excelled as no other before. My record in Congress was attacked, even though I prided myself on having given the kind of honest and unbiased federal service which the voters of the 10th District expected from me.

Her Home

At this moment I dedicate myself to the ideal of service which I have set for myself as the goal of all my endeavors—"Service Above Self."

A psychologist would find ample explanation of Mrs. O'Connor's penchant for making dolls. One of eleven children in an impoverished home, her parents could not afford to buy her a doll. The youngster would visit fully with her dolls, her parents at play with their dolls, and would only participate by helping them stitch doll clothes.

Mrs. O'Connor's deep-seated longing comment was "I had to become 50 years of age before owning any dolls."

ingeniously devised methods that resulted in acrobatic dolls.

"Upside Down Dolls Popular"

The upside down dolls, Eva and Toney, are the most popular ones in her group, says Mrs. O'Connor. Their fascination for children is understandable for they are fashioned with two heads, one at either end, thereby serving as two dolls in one. Even the dress is reversible, depending on which side is up.

Mrs. O'Connor's husband, a glass blower with Air Reduction Co., of Jersey City, also derives enjoyment from his wife's hobby and can be found at leisurely intervals playing with Raggedy Andy. He recently celebrated his 30th anniversary with the company, being feted at a dinner in Jersey City and receiving a watch, billfold and Spelled hand.

STUDENTS PLANT SPRING FLOWERS AT SCHOOL NO. 9

Learn Soil Preparation And Planting Methods; Flowers To Bloom In May On Grounds

The eighth grade boys planted tulips and daffodils on the grounds of Number Nine School, recently under the direction of Thomas C. Gryczka, Principal. Instructions were given the boys in soil preparation, which demonstrated how to treat the soil with bone meal and animal manures. An unusual technique was followed in the actual plant- ing in that six inches of soil were skinned off the floor and the tulips were set on the base of the area.

After the bulbs were set out they were buried with soil that had been removed in the pre- liminary preparation. The bed was dusted with fertilizer and covered with straw so that the ground will not be subject to temperature variations during the winter.

The students of the first, sec- ond and third grades planted crocus on the front lawn of the school. The tulips, daffodils and crocus are expected to bloom sometime in May.

These planting procedures teach the students good citizen- ship, respect for public property, and the proper way to plant flower bulbs.

BELLBOYS

By PIERSON

Making a Good Record

It has been a long time since Belleville High's gridders have compiled a record as good as the one being turned in by the present combine, and the truth of the matter is, if the boys play as a team and not individuals, and have a desire to win, they can win the rest of their games. Off-hand, we would say that both Kearny and Orange should be favored over the Bellboys, Saturday and Thanksgiving Day, but it's in the cards for Belleville to win both.

We saw the Bellboys play Saturday and there was a difference of day and night between the first and second half. In the first half it looked like some Belleville teams of old, with everyone for himself. There was absolutely no effort made to get any field blocking, and Hillside's forwards sifted through the line on pass plays as if they knew the right combination.

We couldn't hear what Eddie Berlinski and Jitty Wische said between the halves, but a few ears must be burned, because things looked up soon after the second half started. On the first two plays, we saw some half hearted efforts to get the secondary, without making contact, but once that goal line was in sight the boys began to go. And particularly important in the touchdown march was the blocking of Ronnie Worthington. And it was because the Coach knows he can count on Ronnie in a pinch, that Worthington carried the ball through the line to register the seventh point to put Belleville ahead.

In that second touchdown march, Worthington's run was a good one, but again, one sharp block to set the safety man on his bottom, was all that was needed to convert it into a touchdown. Instead, someone tried a brush block and let the safetyman get away to make the tackle.

On the next play, it was Worthington who threw the key block to help Gahr get off on a 13 yard run around end. Worthington held off two Comet players long enough to keep them out of the play. And then came the play of the game when Gahr raced that punt back. Most folks saw the beautiful block that Bill Rock made, to enable Terry to get up to the line of scrimmage, but missed the block that Applegate made to get him further down field. There were several other good blocks and screens on the play and Gahr managed to outrun the only Comet not otherwise accounted for.

If you have not guessed it, we believe in the fundamentals of football. If a coach can produce a team versed in blocking, tackling and work in a little team play, he don't need many plays. Belleville's gridders have taught the fundamentals.

Belleville has done swell. But we know that Kearny is well versed in the fundamentals, that the Kardis have just about recovered from their physical beating at the hands of Montclair, and that Belleville will have to display its best brand of ball, the kind of ball it played against Bloomfield, to win on Saturday.

On the records, Kearny is just a little better than Belleville, but such was also the case last year. Then Kearny was supposed to be much better than Belleville, and yet barely won. Belleville has to go out and get at least a couple of touchdowns for Kearny has the habit of winning the close ones.

Star for Cartier School

Pete Spera and Gerry Skidmore of Belleville are two of the main reasons why the Cartier School eleven seems on its way to the best season since 1946. That year the Cavaliers lost all seven engagements.

Hope of an unbeaten season were shattered in a tough 14-6 loss to the powerful Hofstra College Frosh. However, the West Orange boys are expected to cop their last two frays, at B. M. I. Saturday and at home with Pennington on November 15th. That would mean a 5 to 1 mark.

Coach Garry Clark is very high on both Belleville lads and feels they are among the best prep players in the state. Spera, whose broken ankle, sent Belleville High into the doldrums last year, handled the team at quarterback the first three games and did a fine job. Now, however, he is being used at halfback and not because of any fault of his own.

"Pete is just too good a ball carrier to keep at quarterback. In fact, he's our best runner, both for bucking and breaking away. Therefore I'm going to put him at half-back." Coach Clark stated yesterday.

Skidmore has been a tower of strength on defense as he continues to shine at end. His post has been one of the toes have not run at. Offensively he blocks very hard and is one of the best pass receivers around. His two touchdowns brought victory in the opener with Valley Forge M. A.

REC. DEPARTMENT HALLOWEEN FETES WELL ATTENDED

Many Turned Away From Event At Elks Club; Announce Winners Of Window Painting

The Halloween Celebration in town, sponsored by the Recreation Department was a huge success. First of all more than 100 children attended the two parties held at the Elks Club. In the afternoon Sandra Eigelsheuser won a prize for the prettiest costume, Katherine Van Wickel for the most original and Antoinette Guarnaccia for the funniest.

The evening party attracted a full house and many were turned away because they failed to come in costume or did not have a dancing partner. Prizes were won by Mrs. Leon Golson and Leonora Golson as the prettiest costumed couple; Rhoda Maslowitz and Vincent Bonararo for the most original and Stanley Auk and Fred Lindly for the funniest.

Elementary Winners By Store

In the window painting contest, the High School winners were Warren Kimble, first prize, Jean Demark, second prize and Joan Phillips and Joan Zawadzki, third prize. In the elementary school contest, the winners were awarded to Ron and Joan of School No. 5, who painted the Boston Store window. Second prize goes to the youngster responsible for the south window of the Williamson Plumbing & Heating store at 472 Washington Avenue and third prize for the picture on the store at 220 Joramian Street. All winners are awarded the prettiest prizes at the Recreation House, 407 Joramian Street.

Little Vandalism Here

Whether efforts of the Recreation Department were entirely responsible, Belleville was one of few communities in this vicinity that could report that except for soaping of store windows, there was very little vandalism in town. A number of windows were broken around town, but whether they were the work of so-called mischief makers, or part of a continuing problem cannot be determined.

With DePaw Orchestra

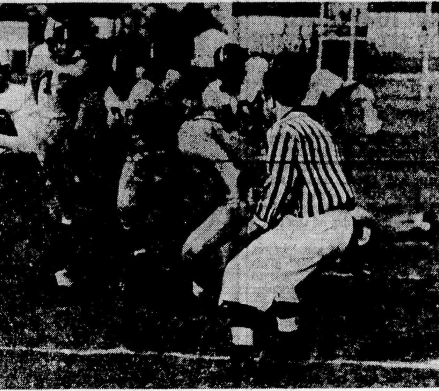

Robert Seiler, of 73 Liberty Avenue, a member of the DePaw Symphony Orchestra at DePaw University, last week played under the direction of Dr. Fabian Seitzky, director of the Indianapolis Symphony, as part of the festivities preceding the inauguration of DePaw President Russell J. Humbert.

Wins Window Painting Prize

Spooks, goblins, pumpkins and cats dominated the window painting themes for the Belleville High School artists in the contest sponsored by the Recreation Department. The above picture included several of these features on one pane of glass at the E. W. Woolworth Five and Ten Cent Store. The window by Warren Kimble took first prize in the contest. Second prize was won by Jean Demark for her window at Sears Roebuck Co., while June Phillips and Joan Zawadzki combined on the third prize winner, painted on Yudin's Paint Store.

Tallies Important Touchdown Against Grey Invaders

Rocky Cafone scoring the touchdown which counted against Hillside on Saturday had more than half the Comet team after his hit as he makes for the final line (straddled by Umpire John Tomasbo), at the end of an off-tackle sweep in the third period of the game. The touchdown tied the score at 6 all and paved the way for Ron Worthington's dash through the center of the line for the extra point. The rest of the touchdowns were of more or less minor importance. The picture was snapped by John Denisler, a BHHS student.

LITTIG'S ROLLER RACERS APPEAR AT LINCOLN PARK PAL

One Race Stopped In Time To Prevent Disastrous Spill; At Lions Club Affair, Next

Ed Littig and his gang of roller riders put on an exhibition of roller riding on "Halloween" at the Lincoln Park Grammar School for the benefit of the Lincoln Park P.A.L.

Littig and Logan on a tandem rode against Barney on a single wheel, but the race came to a sudden end owing to a tire strip on the tandem coming off, which might have resulted in a tire blow and a spectacular spill if the race had continued.

Clark Albee duplicated Littig's difficult strip act on the rollers which consists of removing all clothing down to jersey and riding trunks while, riding the rollers.

An added feature was a half mile sprint on the rollers by Marylene Albee, (Mrs. Clark Albee)

Address on Student Growth Highlights Faculty Meeting

Columbia University Prof.
Stresses Need For Unity
Of Schools And Community

Alert to the implications of modern education, the entire educational staff of the Belleville Schools, including principals, held a general workshop meeting, Wednesday, October 22, at 2 p.m., in the high school auditorium.

Superintendent of Schools Evan H. Thomas opened the program with a talk on the meaning of a good curriculum in the schools, and remarked "the day with the textbook as the whole curriculum has passed, so far as good modern education is concerned. The good school tries to create the whole child and to build a curriculum that will meet the needs of children at every stage of development."

Dr. Marcella Lawler of Columbia University discussed the means that educational staff can use to produce improvement in the curriculum. Dr. Lawler, the first of a number of curriculum consultants from Columbia University hired by the Board of Education, said, "A program of curriculum improvement involves the use of a series of gauges. People in the problem workshops must be willing to study, to experiment, and above all to use the findings of educational research to bring solutions to problems in Belleville Schools."

Chairman of the Program, Dr. Frank M. Durkee, general supervisor and director of the workshop program, commented that educational staff can use to produce improvement in the curriculum. RED CROSS OFFERS AID TO FAMILIES OF ALL SERVICEMEN

Workers Can Expedite 'O'
Forms; Give Advice

"Families of servicemen do not realize the extent to which the Belleville Chapter, American Red Cross stands ready to help them," declares Mrs. D. L. Stickle, chairman of social welfare aides of the chapter.

"Dependents of servicemen, who have received 'O' allotment forms to be filled out and returned, can find a volunteer worker at Red Cross Headquarters, 260 Washington Avenue, who is familiar with the forms and can help fill them out. Her assistance will insure that the forms are complete and properly processed to avoid unnecessary delay."

"If you need help with any of the allotment forms, or have any other problems, as a dependent of a serviceman," Mrs. Stickle says, "call the Red Cross, Belleville 2-4610 and someone there will try to help you. If we cannot answer your questions, or solve your problems, we will refer you to the proper agency or individual, so that the help and assistance will be obtained promptly, with a minimum of 'red tape' and delay."

America Drops The Pilot.

The election of General Dwight D. Eisenhower to the Presidency of the United States was both a victory of national hopes and a defeat of a morally corrupt regime. The extent of the landslide, dipping deep into the hitherto untouchable and solid South, can only prove that more than any other impermissible personality of General Eisenhower and the hopes of an early peace in Korea, of a return of decency and dignity to national affairs and the curbing of Communism, brought victory.

No American, except the most biased of partisans, could have wanted a continuation of the regime which had sunk into moral decay and sterility. It was time for a change, time for a restoration of honesty in government, time for us to tighten our shields against Communism. To bring decency back to government and to start off our foreign relations on a new foot, it was necessary for a complete change. That, apparently, is what a vast majority of Americans wanted and that is what they expect of General Eisenhower.

There will be a furious scurrying of the rats between now and January 10. Just like the rodents that flee a sinking ship, the rats of graft and corruption, of double deals and deals off the bottom of the deck, will desert the sinking ship of Trumanism. They will take with them all they can, but there will be both a need and plenty of time for serious investigation into the corruption which, alas, has been rampant in almost every government department. When the sorry story is finally written, Harry Truman will go down in history as one of our worst presidents—a president who violated the Constitution in the recent steel strike, a president whose intimate cronies are still at his side in the White House even though their corruption was shown up years before, a president who has refused to use a law of the land, to settle costly labor disputes, merely because a Congress with a Democratic majority voted the law over his personal veto, a president who tolerated the presence in high office of known Communists even longer after their presence had been denounced.

General Eisenhower will start off afresh. The country needs new leaders, a new program of action, new thinking, a new code of moral ethics. By his record, an open book under the critical spotlight of world opinion, General Eisenhower will be able to provide that fresh start. The Democratic party has failed to make peace. It now behooves the Republicans to find the formula. No one has had the experience in world affairs that General Eisenhower has had. Of all Americans, he is best fitted for the tremendous task ahead.

R.E.H.

An Able Congressman Returns To Washington.

Rep. Peter W. Rodino's success in carrying Belleville in an Eisenhower landslide can be attributed to the Newark lawyer's personality and to his clean record in Congress. Many thousands of Republicans, here and throughout the 10th District, crossed party lines to re-elect Rodino over his Clean Government Republican opponent, Alexander Maturri.

In a Republican Congress, Rep. Rodino will fit perfectly. Never denying his Democratic affiliation, Rodino has been the Congressman of all the electors in this 10th District. He has served both Republicans and Democrats, and he has served them well, with understanding, with feeling and with a very evident desire to be of service. He can go along with General Eisenhower on almost the whole of the President-elect's program and, like Eisenhower, he will support a revision or the scrapping of the wicked McCarran bill.

In one respect, in the opinion of The Times-News, Rep. Rodino will have to revamp his position in the light of the views of the majority which gave him his plurality. During the campaign, Rep. Rodino said, in speaking before labor groups, that the Taft-Hartley law was bad and would have to be rewritten.

It is the opinion of The Times-News that there is no such mandate in Rep. Rodino's re-election. He was not given the majority he obtained here to do any such thing. To most of us, the Taft-Hartley law, while harsh, is fair. Those who feel its binding restraint were those whose methods and tactics made it necessary for Congress to enact restraining legislation.

As a whole, the Taft-Hartley law serves its purpose. Harry Truman would have nothing to do with it, even after it was written into the statutes over his veto, but there will be a new President in January and the law will, finally, prove its real merits. If experience shows need of that but there is no mandate to kill the law. A Democratic victory would have interfered it; a Republican victory will give the disputed legislation its proper place among our statutes. R.E.H.

A Vote For Decency and Dignity In Government

Trumanism and its by-products of crime, corruption and communism is dead—killed by an aroused people who voted overwhelmingly for a return of decency and dignity to government.

The victorious crusade of General Dwight D. Eisenhower can be interpreted only as a disavowal of Trumanism and of its failures and its follies. Never has the disavowal of a President's been more total. The states won by Governor Adlai Stevenson were those die-hard states of the Southern bloc which stood not on a basis of merit but of party tradition. Not one of those eight states can stomach Harry Truman. They voted for a Democratic candidate because they are still fighting the Civil War down there.

The disavowal of Trumanism is all the more marked because the Democratic candidate did not carry Truman's home state of Missouri nor a single one of the states where Harry Truman waged a war of "gutter politics" in his whistle-stop campaign. Truman should know by now that he is allergic to the rear end of trains.

The overwhelming victory of a great and gallant General, ending a continuous reign of 20 years, was a pleasant surprise to millions of Americans who would have settled for a victory even by a single electoral vote. But your surprise and mine must have been nothing compared to the surprise of the man from Independence.

As the voters went to the polls on Tuesday, Harry Truman, a Pendegast-type politician to the last, issued a statement intended to sway the electorate. He said that he had made his whistle-stop campaign to make people think about the issues of the election, and he added that if the people voted right, the country would be safe.

The people did vote right. They understood the issues and, above all, they judged Harry Truman for what he is worth. The country is safe. To any usual statesman, the condemnation of a regime and its record by the electorate in such a clear mandate, would bring oblivion. But to a Pendegast politician, the tactics call for a period of lying low after which the ghost of Independence will try to rise again. But in the meantime the sordid graft, the mink-coat collectors, the deep-freeze influence peddlars, the ten per centers, the corrupt tax collectors, the White House "generals" with their chests loaded with unearned baubles, will go.

By the riddance of Harry Truman and all that he stands for, his cronies and his chiselers, decency and dignity will return to the White House. The nation can only gain.

R.E.H.

One Man's Opinion

The Honorable Conclusion of the Korean War Dominates a Heavy Agenda of World Problems Which Truman Will Pass On To Eisenhower.

By RALPH E. HEINZEN

Just as Korea was the dominant issue of the campaign, it remains the outstanding problem of a terribly complex network of interlocked world problems which face the new President immediately. Long before Harry Truman moves out of the White House to make room for his successor, early in January, President-elect Eisenhower will have months, even years, of a sorely needed vacation, to pick up the threads where the Truman-Acheson regime left them, fall early in the campaign. The promised flight to Korea, for a first-hand study of the situation with a view to pressing the 2½-year-old "police action" to a victorious conclusion, comes first.

There will be, of necessity, early consultations of General Eisenhower with Churchill and Winston Churchill. For the Truman foreign policy must be revamped. For the General, those are old contacts. He will be negotiating with old friends, with statesmen whose foibles he knows from experience. Then there is the question of the Russian statesmen. Russians always have respected strength. Eisenhower is the strongest man we could have elected to our Presidency. Relations with the Russians will not be easy, but they will be on a new basis of wary respect.

NATO is bound to be stronger with its creator in the White House. No one knows better than General Eisenhower the strength and the weaknesses of NATO. His experience in Paris makes it possible for him to see the possibilities for a more vigorous enactment of its military clauses. France, for its example, to contribute twelve divisions to the European defense army. France needs her divisions in the White House. No one knows better than General Eisenhower the strength and the weaknesses of NATO. His experience in Paris makes it possible for him to see the possibilities for a more vigorous enactment of its military clauses. France, for its example, to contribute twelve divisions to the European defense army. France needs her divisions in the White House. No one knows better than General Eisenhower the strength and the weaknesses of NATO. His experience in Paris makes it possible for him to see the possibilities for a more vigorous enactment of its military clauses. France, for its example, to contribute twelve divisions to the European defense army. France needs her divisions in the White House.

Many grave issues have accumulated while we took time out to elect a President. Even the "cold war" has not been removed. It was evident that the Kremlin was not disposed to draw any issues until it knew for sure with whom it would have to deal.

It will be January before the new administration takes over. In the meantime only decisions which cannot be delayed will be taken. We have had situations like this before and never has any nation, friend or foe, taken advantage of our inactivity. There is no reason to believe that Red Russia will try to take advantage of our changes. In its action in Korea, the Kremlin could, had it wanted, swing our election either way.

Finally, the question of foreign credits and of lowering our tariffs to make it possible for our foreign allies to sell their supplies here and to lower our tariffs to make it possible for our foreign allies to sell their supplies here and to lower our tariffs to make it possible for our foreign allies to sell their supplies here.

France is angry with us but her right is not merely a question of sensitivity. France is liable to break wide open our carefully nurtured alignment of Western European powers. Including Bonn Germany, by her insistence upon more controls on German rearmament. She also feels that we underestimate the burden of her war against the Communists in Indochina, and she is upset over the likelihood of a debate in the UN of her colonial policies in the protectorates of Tunisia and Morocco.

It is France's contention that she cannot fight a major war in Indochina and still mobilize men in NATO's European army to wage war in Asia to pay for the war. She wants more financial aid to her European mobilization. It is not unlikely that at the top of the agenda of the new President, in January, will be the visit of French Premier Pinay, coming over to explain all of France's desires—and to try and get more cash from us. For France's 1953 defense budget.

Behind France's delay in enacting the NATO obligations is a hesitancy in Paris to go through with all the earlier promises to treat West Germany as an equal. Part of this is military, due to France's experience with three past German invasions in eighty years, and part of it is economic. They whole trouble is that under our protection West Germany has recovered too fast.

German's Great Effort The reopening of German mines and industry enabled the German people of the West to lift themselves up by their bootstraps. There is almost no unemployment there today. The cost of living has climbed only a very little. Savings in Germany are growing. The Bonn Government has to its credit a large gold dollar credit in the European Payments Union.

write the budgets of a dozen European nations, and yet if we withdraw our dollar support we must open our markets and let our allies get their dollars by trading with us.

We are already under fire from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Denmark and the Netherlands for having raised our tariffs on farm produce. Those allies accuse us of violating our solemn trade agreements by raising our duties on cheese and other dairy products. At the same time, American dairymen are demanding even higher duties.

It stands to reason that either we must tax our own people to the hilt and donate hundreds of millions of dollars to our European allies to help them finance their share of NATO, or we must open our doors to foreign commerce. We cannot have our cake and eat it, and there is one of the toughest problems we will be held this morning at our taxes, and in the same breath, to protect our farmers by high tariffs.

The Meeting Place

Edgar Jean Bracco

It seems that when Fate places her finger on someone, she continues to play her role in removing it again.

Tom and Betty are two reasonably good souls who deserve better than the way they are being treated. They were together the other night, and their act of continued love was pitiful to hear. Tom told it, because Tom didn't and the iron rule, so he decided to use the bamboo lawn chair. He reached down under the porch for it, then straightened.

After breakfast this past Saturday, Tom walked briskly out in the yard, whistling cheerfully. He tied the dog to a tree and placed him not far away, safely enclosed in a pile of leaves. There were a lot of things to be done, and the leaves were first. Tom didn't and the iron rule, so he decided to use the bamboo lawn chair. He reached down under the porch for it, then straightened.

As he began taking the leaves, he wondered idly what water had happened to the other side. He remembered using it not so long ago to—

BOINGGGG! He found the rake. As he stepped backward, he felt the handle flying up, and he felt the handle flying up, and he felt the handle flying up.

He felt the handle flying up, and he felt the handle flying up, and he felt the handle flying up.

shingles he put with the precision and ease of a master craftsman. Suddenly, as he was swinging the heavy hammer, he was particularly stubborn, and Junior called to him. He turned, forgetting to halt the swing of the hammer.

The quiet air was split by an agonized shriek as the hammer felled his thumb a perfect blow. He danced wildly, clutching his throbbing thumb and swearing—softly, of course, so as not to offend the boss. The little sawyer, he noticed, was smiling proudly. He wondered if the runt hadn't planned it just this way.

Deciding that there was plenty of time before winter to touch up those shingles, he searched for the next chore. He thought of the evergreens—he remembered Betty saying they would look better out-front near the fence. In no time at all he had the trees out, the new hole dug, and the evergreens planted. He whistled again as he went for the watering can. From the cover of his eye he sized up Junior. The little Apache was sitting quietly in the sun. Well, Tom thought, he had a little mischief in his system. Now that it's out he'll behave.

As he waited for the watering can to fill, he re-lit his pipe and looked around at the golden morning. Good to be alive, he thought. Then, when the can was full, he sauntered back to the transplanted evergreen. He pulled up short and the pipe dropped from his trembling mouth.

The high-spirited cannibal was solemnly watering the evergreens with the remaining green paint and smiling in villainous glee. With a low, pitiful moan Tom staggered into the house, snarled at Betty, and looked at the devil in the attic, where he vowed that the next time he tried to do any work while Junior was within a hundred miles, he would voluntarily give himself up to the witch's spells.

Tom is all right now, but I sometimes think that when he is a small boy, he still twitches at the thought of the next time he tried to do any work while Junior was within a hundred miles, he would voluntarily give himself up to the witch's spells.
