that an X-ray was held in each town, and the next year saw the initiation of a third annual X-ray project in Soho and Silver Lake. This is the tenth year of the Belleville-Nutley Association's free X-ray services; eighteen separate X-rays have been held at which over 14,000 townsmen have availed themselves of the opportunity afforded. In 1950, 2,002 residents and workers were X-rayed within the space of two weeks.

The first Industrial X-ray, directed by Edward P. Russell, sponsored by the Belleville-Nutley Tuberculosis Association, Inc. and done for them by the State's mobile equipment, was given in Belleville in July, 1945. Four years later, Mr. Russell's committee in a four-day tour of industries X-rayed almost three thousand employees. Until the State discontinued that service, the total number of Industrial X-rays arranged by the Belleville-Nutley Association topped 10,000.

Wilfred Yudin was president in January 1947 when we were threatened with an epidemic of influenza. The Tuberculosis Association with the cooperation of 14 Belleville and Nutley doctors immunized almost 1800 residents and employees in the two towns. This project, financed by the Association, evidently scared away the epidemic.

During the residence of two Belleville children in the Prevention Hospital in Belleville, the Belleville-Nutley Tuberculosis Association began an annual contribution to this worthy work in 1946. Last year, the Association supplied materials for rehabilitation work in both the Essex County Institution Hospital in Belleville and the Essex County Sanatorium in Verona. This has been adopted as another avenue of cooperation in tuberculosis work. Every Christmas, gifts are provided for the residents of Belleville and Nutley who are in tuberculosis hospitals, and at Easter, a plant is given to each one.

The "presidency" of the Belleville-Nutley Tuberculosis Association alternates between the towns, including the present incumbent, Mr. Harry Di Giovanni, there have been fourteen presidents:

AFTER DECEMBER 6

New dial service, starting at midnight, December 6, will enable Belleville (PLymouth 9) users of individual and two-party service to dial directly to telephones in most of northern New Jersey and all of New York City—4,500,000 telephones will be at your fingertips.

Calls to New Jersey telephones in this extended area will be made the same as local calls, by dialing the number. For New York City, first dial 1-1 and then the New York number. To reach Plaza 5-9970, for example, dial 1-1 and then PL 5 and 9970.

Four-party and coin box users will dial "O" (Operator) for points outside their local dialing areas.

Complete dialing information is given in an instruction card being mailed this week and is also listed in the front pages of the Special Telephone Directory being delivered this week. If you have any questions about dial service or do not receive the Special Directory by December 5, please call our Business Office.

Joseph C. Paul, Deputy Commissioner of Election Registration, and Deputy Superintendent of Elections, will deliver an address to the Belleville Junior Woman's Club this evening at 8:30 o'clock at the clubhouse. The topic of his talk will be the absentee vote. Interesting figures on the past election will be presented.

The senior woman's Club will also be present. Mrs. Mary Thompson, head of the United Nations Department will be in charge for the evening. The public is invited to attend.

The Belleville Woman's Republican Club will hold its Annual Christmas party on Thursday, December 11, at the Woman's Club, 51 Rossmore Place. All who wish to attend may contact Mrs. Lillian Winfield, Mrs. Florence Riegler, or Mrs. Helena Salishbury. All reservations must be made on or before December 4.

Mrs. Beas Horman, of 481 De Witt Avenue, will entertain The Helen V. Davis Circle of Grace Baptist Church at her home at its first meeting on Monday evening, December 1. Mrs. Betty Marks will assist her as co-hostess. A devotional program will be presented.

Mrs. and Mrs. Norris Embury, of 200 Passaic Avenue, gave a birthday party on Saturday for their two sons, Leon 5, and Steven 1. Eight of the boys' friends attended.

Catholic Daughters of America, Court Gratin 751, will sponsor a showing of "The Miracle of Fatima" at the Franklin Theatre, on Franklin Avenue in Nutley, on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, November 30, December 1 and 2.

PIANO PUPILS GIVE RECITALS

Adell Williams Students Present Program Of Bach Music Tonight; Guest Artist

Piano pupils of Adell Williams are being presented in two recitals this month at her studio. Tonight one group will give an entire program of music by Bach with Patricia and Susan Druckert, Michael Conlon, Mary Jo Rosen, Douglas and Jean McGilvray, Ellen Chapin, Barbara Underwood, William Lyndon and Norman Post playing solos.

Daisy Anne Sibilla and Thelma Miller will play a two-piano composition and Alice Williams, cellist of Bloomfield, will be the guest artist, accompanied by Mrs. Williams. David Williams will play the Organ Fugue in A minor, arranged for piano by Lind.

Last Sunday afternoon two musical stories were featured when Michael Conlon and Russell McTague played the "Covered Wagon" and "Thompson's" and Rachel Richardson and Claire Clint performed "The Treasure Island" Suite by Foy. Other solo players solo and duets were Diane and Ellen Chapin, Pamela Allison, Ellen Elmer, Phillip Perchomoff, Anne Green, Arlene Izzi, Joyce Baldwin, Donna Ratti Jones, and Margaret Kelly.

MISS CLAIRE NEES BECOMES BRIDE OF ALBERT J. MARRON

Wedding Takes Place In East Orange On Saturday; Groom Is Senior At Upsala College

The wedding of Miss Claire Nees, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Nees of 20 Eleona Place, to Albert James Marron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marron of 112 Maybaum Avenue, Newark, took place Saturday in the Sacred Heart Church, East Orange.

Serving as maid of honor was Mrs. Robert Bartlett, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were the Misses Selma and Dorothea Hokeness, cousins of the bride; and the Misses Donna Walsh and Gloria Adams. Edwina Marron was junior bridesmaid.

Best man was Robert Marron, brother of the groom. Ushers included Richard Stolt, Ernest Spital, George Marron, and brother of the groom; and Stephan Marron, uncle of the groom.

The bride wore a white tulle gown with a two tiered illusion veil, and carried white orchids and Hebeaphotis on a white prayer book.

Mrs. Marron was graduated from Belleville High School and attended Upsala College. She is presently attending Berkeley School for Secretaries. Her husband is a senior at Upsala College.

After a one-week honeymoon the couple will reside in Belleville.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Nees of 20 Eleona Place, Newark.

The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marron of 112 Maybaum Avenue, Newark.

The wedding was officiated by the Rev. Father J. J. O'Connell, pastor of the Sacred Heart Church, East Orange.

Learn Budgeting By Planning Thanksgiving Dinner Menus

Seventh and eighth grade students in School No. 8 are busy at their budgeting this week. In their mathematics classes they have planned typical Thanksgiving menus and now they are figuring the cost of the dinner. For convenience, the students are visiting neighborhood supermarkets and vegetable stores, as well as referring to cookbooks or mothers for information on pounds per person, the number of pieces in a dish, and many other culinary problems. It is expected that the total cost of these dinners may be revealed to some of the students.

TAKE PART IN CONFERENCE ON CURRICULUM

Educators Carl Hensinger And Dr. Frank Durkee Engage In Columbia U. Sessions

Attending the Annual Conference for Leaders in Supervision and Curriculum Improvement at Teachers College, Columbia University, last week were Carl Hensinger, assistant to the high school principal, chairman of the committee for planning professional meetings, and member of the Workshop Council; and Dr. Frank Durkee, director of the Workshop Program and General Supervisor of the Belleville Schools.

"How do we move the curriculum forward?" was the topic of the workshop in which Dr. Durkee participated and served as interpretive recorder. "How do we find time to work together on curriculum?" engaged the interest of Carl Hensinger.

In the general meetings, which included leaders in supervision and curriculum from all parts of the United States, Dr. Durkee spoke on "Curriculum Makers and Their Critics: A Perennial Problem?" Dr. Stephen M. Corey on "Action Research," Dr. Robert Graham Staines on "The Challenge of the UN to the Educator;" and Dr. Hollis L. Caswell, Dean of Teachers College, on "Creative Approaches to Perennial Curriculum Problems."

Kindergarten Children Take Part In Jr. Red Cross Parade

The kindergarten boys and girls at No. 5 School marched in a Junior Red Cross parade last week. It was held as the opening campaign of the membership roll call. The children made Red Cross banners and flags to carry in the parade. The girls made and wore Red Cross nurses' hats and caps. The parade was led by members of the Kindergarten Band.

PLAN CHRISTMAS BAZAAR AT CHURCH

All Organizations To Take Part In Affair At Christ Church; Dinner To Be Served

Plans are going forward for the Annual Christmas Bazaar to take place at Christ Church Parish House on Wednesday, December 3. All organizations of the church will take part in the affair. Frederick Idenden, Jr., and Mrs. John H. Edwards are co-chairmen. A dinner will be served from 5 to 7 p.m. and Mrs. Harold Crane heads the committee in charge. Come out and do your Christmas shopping.

Chairmen and booths are as follows: Aprons and Kitchen, Mrs. Florence Smith, Mrs. Edward Nelson and Miss Edith Kunkel; Doll Booth, Mrs. Elmer Gibbs; Baby Booth, Mrs. Alfred Van Dusen; Grab bag, Mrs. Vincent Garcia and Mrs. Richard Taggart; Handkerchiefs, Christmas cards, wrappings, and novelties, Mrs. David L. Boyd and Mrs. Frederick Idenden; Gift booth, Mrs. George Hildebrand; Food and Candy, Mrs. George W. DeMarre and Mrs. Mary McCoy; White Elephant, Mrs. Ernest Day and Mrs. Fred Williams; Men's toiletries and ties, George E. Miller, C. R. Erickson and Eric Sheard; Cider and Doughnuts, Mrs. Charles Westschneider and Mrs. John G. Westcott.

The program, as set up by Bob Kimple, Belleville dancing instructor, will include three more professional acts. Skip Randall, one of the leading choreographers in the East, will display his nimble footed talent; and Madame Hilena, recently of Poland with a record of outstanding ballet performances throughout Europe, will also perform.

The Johnny Del Trio, now performing at Frank Dally's Tavern, is scheduled to offer a tuncful earful. An entertaining comedy show will be presented by members of the Petrean Club.

Highlights of the amateur performances are the Men's Corps de Ballet, a group of 14 members of the Elks Club, and 161 members of the Elks Ladies Auxiliary doing the "Can Can." A novelty "Andrew Sisters" act will be a stand-out laugh getter, Kimple assures.

Immediately following the stage performance at the High School, dancing will take place at the Elks' auditorium. The variety show and dance are both offered for the single admission fee.

Thanksgiving, 1952
On this Thanksgiving, America has real purpose to give thanks to God for the favors He has bestowed.

So recently as to be still a current topic, we saw our Democracy at work when the voice of the nation upended a regime that had grown soft and corrupt from too long possession of power and authority.
Although hundreds of thousands of our sons are doing battle with the Communists on the icy hills of Korea, we should be thankful that against the Russian and Chinese hordes we have held our own. The effort has been great and the cost in lives and in other casualties and prisoners seems at time to be more than we should bear. But we realize that this is not a war for possession of a few miles of wasted mountains. It is a war of moral and political religion, a holy war against an atheist force that would destroy us to seize our patrimony.
This year has been a year of production. Men have known to bury their grievances and join in a common effort to gird our loins while there yet is time. For that industrial peace, for our unemployment, for our comparative prosperity, for the smoke which pours from our humming mills and furnaces, for our rich harvests, we should be thankful.

Too often is Thanksgiving merely an excuse for a dinner of gluttons, a football classic or a day off. We in America are almost alone among the peoples of this world to take a day out of our busy lives to give thanks to God for His blessings. Perhaps that is understandable; to no other peoples has God been so generous. Be glad you are an American, be thankful. Observe Thanksgiving with the heart, as well as the stomach.

America Takes A Turn To The Right

President-elect Dwight Eisenhower's cabinet making has proceeded far enough that we can be assured that the era of the New Deal and the Fair Deal is ended. In his first selections, General Eisenhower has turned very squarely to the right. There is not a whisper of a suspicion of state socialism in the choice of John Foster Dulles, Charles E. Wilson, Governor Douglas McKay, George H. Humphrey, Harold E. Stassen and Herbert Brownell, Jr. Like the cough-proof cigarette, there's not a Liberal in a carload.
No fault can be found either with the quality of the material General Eisenhower has used nor with its dosage. Geographically it is spread across the whole country, from Oregon through Minnesota and Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania to New York. To say the least, every cabinet member thus far chosen is a Conservative and a Constitutionalist. They reflect the policies of the Southern Democrats just as ably as they represent the opinion of the Republican majority with the single exception of ex-Republican Senator Wayne Morse.

Never before in our history has the selection of a cabinet been so important. General Eisenhower is completely unversed in the details of any phase of government, except perhaps foreign affairs and military affairs. For the rest, he is going to be dependent upon the counsel and guidance of his cabinet. That is in the tradition of a great military commander who never tries personally to train his troops, feed them or actually lead them in battle. He depends upon his general staff which handles in detail those problems.

It is a matter of our history that George Washington ruled more or less as a despot even though he did ask the advice in writing of the Secretaries of the executive departments which Congress created. Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln all looked upon their Cabinets as necessary evils and overruled their Secretaries most of the time. At one phase of the Civil War, Lincoln's cabinet stood seven-to-one against him.

In more modern times, Teddy and Franklin Roosevelt each set up a private set of counselors independent of the cabinet. Teddy called his, the "tennis cabinet" because it met on the White House tennis courts every morning when the President, a rugged fellow, took his daily exercise before breakfast. His partners talked politics as they served the tennis balls and much of Teddy's policy was settled in that way. One of his favorite partners was Jules Jusserand, the French Ambassador at that time, and Jusserand, who remained at his post in Washington for more than 20 years, greatly influenced Teddy's policies towards Spain, Germany and Britain — as well as France.

On the basis of General Eisenhower's first six Cabinet appointments, this is how the probable character and temper of the new Administration looks today to us:

The top people advising Eisenhower are conservatives, but not necessarily reactionaries. Governor McKay, for example, is an exponent of Federal aid for the development of public power, but he is opposed to development of the Columbia River Valley on T.V.A. lines; and believes that the states should have a larger voice in developing natural resources.

Secondly, practical industrialists, business men, bankers, corporation lawyers, men who have made their fortunes by their own abilities, not unproven, crackpot theorists, will have a major voice in determining policy. It is now certain that General Eisenhower will not make use of the university economists and "planners" who shaped the New Deal and the Fair Deal. General Eisenhower has called on the "business brains" of the nation to run the Government.

Finally, in the realm of foreign affairs the Administration will adhere to the basic collective security policy. Both Mr. Dulles and Mr. Stassen are in the internationalist wing of the party. On the other hand, changes in emphasis are expected. Mr. Dulles during the campaign charged that our containment policy was essentially "negative," urged that the United States adopt policies which would put Russia on the defensive, and advocated more emphasis on Asia. As a result, many European diplomats have regarded Dulles as a "war risk" and privately they expressed their unhappiness over his appointment last week. But what may be bad for Europe, may be good for Asia and, after all, America's problems are global, not hemispheric.

Once Again, on Sunday, the Saarlanders Will Go to the Polls in the Centuries-Old Struggle of the Germans and the French

BY RALPH E. HEINZEN

World War II was barely a week old when at dawn of September 6, 1939, I was an eye-witness, as United Press war correspondent accredited to the French armies, of the first battle of the war—the battle of the Forest of Warndt on the borderline between France and Germany at that curve in the river which is the fateful Saar.

It is perhaps fitting that once again the first great test strength between France and Germany should take place in the Saar. On Sunday, the electorate of that heavily industrialized state will go to the polls to elect a parliament; the Landtag. In reality, the Saarlanders will, once again, be taking part in a plebiscite because by their vote, or even by their abstentions, they will be expressing a preference for a continuation of the economic union with France which has brought unprecedented wealth or for cutting ties with France in favor of reunion with Germany. At stake are the vital coal mines and steel mills of a region second only to the German Ruhr and French Lorraine in importance in the rivalry of arsenals.

Just seventeen years ago, in 1935, I was in the Saar, for United Press, to report an other plebiscite. Then, as now, France and Germany both coveted the area which had been ceded to France as a ward of the Versailles Peace Treaty. Adolf Hitler had just risen to power in Berlin. He wanted the Saar to build up his own prestige. All night, preceding the Sunday plebiscite, I saw special trains from all parts of Germany dump "former Saarlanders" at the Saarland railroad stations. Nazi storm-troopers harassed their might. German flags flew everywhere. That Sunday, the Saar voted by more than 97 per cent for union with Germany. It was Hitler's first great victory, a spur to his ego.

Price of An Advance
To get back to that September dawn in the first week of the war. On my return to Paris, a few days later, happily disturbed by what I had seen, I made my inquiry and I learned that, in truth, the order had come from Paris. The Saar was to be French anyhow, so the French government wanted it intact. In those days, France still believed that her Maginot Line underground fortresses were impregnable and she believed in victory. She was so sure of taking the Saar that the losses I had seen pile up in the Warndt Forest were written off to experience.
Alas for France, Hitler whipped her armies. He completed the Siegfried Line and waited on our attack. The Saar was his second greatest arsenal. When, finally, General Patton's III Army raced its way across Europe, he threw his big guns against the Saar. The industrial city was a mass of smoking ruins when Patton's tanks rolled into the place. The French, who followed Patton to the Saar. Finally, by an American victory, France had accomplished what the uncrowned King of the Saar.

Grandval had been a French businessman in nearby Lorraine, the French industrial area which fits with the Saar and the Luxembourg and Belgian Briey basin into a neat coal-and-steel whole.

Every foot of progress through the forest had to be made by painstaking search for and removal of the mines. Cattle were driven ahead of the troops to set off the mines. Finally, by night, we cleared the forest and we arrived at a level. Down below, lay the Saarbrücken and Voerlinden a-midst of the Saar River.

All that night, from my perch on the hill, I could look down into the German towns. In the factory yards, men came and went, busy at their forges and anvils. Work was never interrupted for one minute in that arsenal which was building Hitler's tanks, even though the French army was deployed in the forest at the top of the hill.

Why A Battle Ended
All the next day we stood there. Down below in the valley, people came and went. Cars ran normally on the roads. The factories belched smoke from their stacks. Life went on as usual, with a war at the very door. On the third day, the French army withdrew and marched back to the frontier. The Battle of the Forest of Warndt was over.

I couldn't understand at first that I had seen. I knew the French had taken heavy losses from the hidden mines. I knew that from our hilltop position, a dozen guns could have levelled Saarbrücken. I knew that there was no German army on the great bank of the Saar to stand between us and capture of that vital arsenal.

The only answer that was im-

He rose to command the French underground in Lorraine and Champagne during the German occupation. The day that Patton swept through Saarbrücken, Grandval took over as Military Governor.

France's Strong Man
He has been there ever since, as military governor, high commissioner and, in recent months, as French Ambassador. On a small scale, he was the Douglas MacArthur of the Saar. He dictated a new Saar Constitution. He drew up plans, a la French style, for rebuilding the destroyed city. He tied the Saar up economically, politically and morally with France. Saarlanders were given the status of Frenchmen in France, but they were not given the status of Frenchmen in the Saar. They were not given the status of Frenchmen in the Saar.

Grandval gave the Saar almost total autonomy. He kept a sort of censorship over affairs, but he allowed the population to elect. In open elections, 50 members of the Landtag, that legislative body had complete control over police, schools and every phase of life, except foreign relations and defense. Those were in Grandval's French hands.

The whole Saar basin is not as big as Essex County, yet it holds the industrial balance of power in Europe. Its population is just under a million. It knows but two industries—coal and steel. Under the Warndt Forest and all the other wooded hills along the Saar River lies rich deposits of coal.

Balance Of Power
The Saar produces 18,000,000 tons of coal a year. The tiny Saar produces 26 per cent as much coal as all of France and makes 27 per cent as much steel as France. Saar coal and coke are vital to French steel plants in Lorraine. The Saar's production of coal and steel added to France's own production gives the French a tremendous bulge over all the rest of Europe. The Saar's production added to the Ruhr's and German industry would hopelessly outmatch France.

That's the reason behind it all. No one can claim that France has any racial or moral claim on the Saar. It is as German as Bavaria or Saxony or Prussia. Its population is German, its language, its customs, its morals are all German. Yet France needs the Saar and wants it.

Under the Schuman plan, the Saar was made a sort of ward of the European community, feeding its coal and coke, its iron and steel to all of the western nations. In 1947, at a time when all the rest of Germany was rising from the ruins, the Saar was prosperous. That October the Saar held another plebiscite. In the plebiscite, 96.7 per cent of the Saar population voted for a Grandval project—political autonomy, separation from Germany, economic union with France. The choice was not hard to make. On one side was defeat and hunger; on the other victory and plenty. More than 90 per cent voted for the Grandval solution; only 5 per cent stayed loyal to Germany.

Since 1947 things have changed. Germany has risen anew and, not obliged to fight a war in Indochina, is comparatively tax-free. Industrially, Germany is more prosperous than France. A spirit of nationalism has re-awakened. The call of the blood is heard again. On Sunday, the Saar will go to the polls once again. In electing the 50 members of the Landtag, the Saar will be taking an indirect plebiscite. If enough pro-French dep-

Life at BHS As We See It

blow up the school? Kelly? Better count your fingers! Whoops, here comes that man again!

The first big turmoil was caused by a bit (or bit?) of sulfuric acid. It seems the bottom fell out of a bottle of the compound and the acid ran over the floor. Fortunately no one was hurt. All those who were present at this christening service received a practical lesson in how to neutralize the potent acid.

Lead by Charlie McGuire Friday's assembly on B.H.S. activities got under way in order to enlighten the student body on the happenings in the high school. Every club in our "dear alma mater" participated, each having a speaker and a short skit in pantomime style. Oh, Franchise! Oh, Oui, Marie!!

Swish! For a change the girls have chance to watch the parade of legs. The fellows started their Intermediate Basketball League last Wednesday night at the high school. It is quite evident that from now until March there will be a lot less teenagers at home on Wednesday nights.

The grapevine has it that the Debating Club will hold its first debate on Wednesday. The topic was "Resolved: That the high school year-olds be allowed to vote." The answer is yes, of course, but that is beside the point. There is also some news that Irvington has challenged our inexperienced crew to a debate. Lots of luck in both of your endeavors!

Well, gutter balls, strikes, and spurs, look what's coming! Last Thursday a girls' bowling league composed of six women teams was formed under the direction of Mr. Lees. Come on, girls, now it's your turn to keep up Belleville's bowling reputation!

Kathryn? Kathryn? Kathryn McKilgot? Coming, teacher! Lo, in your face reel! We wonder why?

The football players really made good use of their open date Saturday. All were taken into the lab. Hurray! A bottle in the lab (Mr. Correll's form of a touch-down). As you all must know by now the plumbers have done their duties and the lab has been finished. Who will be the first to touch?

"Houses in Belleville" Depicts Local Panorama

The beauty of a Belleville residential scene is ably captured in this oil painting entitled "Houses in Belleville," for which Louis Spindler of Newark won a $25 award in the 22nd Annual N. J. State Exhibition currently being held at the Montclair Art Museum. An award ceremony will be held Sunday afternoon at the museum. Mr. Spindler, artist and teacher, has exhibited locally and abroad on many previous occasions.

Bike Club Leaders And Recreation Join Forces

The first meeting of the Belleville Bicycle Club was held at the Recreation House on Thursday evening. Present at this meeting were: Alf Goulet, a cyclist of international stature, Joe De Bacco, Bill Murphy and Bob Cook, Supt. of Recreation.

This new activity is sponsored by the Recreation Department, Commissioner Elmer S. Hyde, Director. It will bring another excellent supervised activity to the children of Belleville, and the plan is that this will be a Saturday program to held at the Belleville Stadium.

Rec. Basketball Loop Gets Off To Fast Start

The Belleville Recreation Department's basketball season got off to a flying start last week when Commissioner Elmer S. Hyde threw the first ball for the game between St. Peter's and the Bruins in the Intermediate League. Four games were played in this circuit with the Bruins beating St. Peter's 36 to 25, Silver Lake nosing out the Resters 27 to 25, the Bruins beating the Continentals 22 to 17 and the Bruins edging the Hill tops 31 to 30. High scorers were Spert and Terrieri of the Bruins. Children of the Hilltops and Pocheato of the Condors, all of whom hit double figures. Mullaugh of St. Peter's, Graziano of Silver Lake and Gough of the Hilltops also scored well.

Play in the Senior League started this week and the Junior and elementary school leagues get under way on Saturday.

100 P.A.L. Members Attend Shriner's Circus In Newark

The Belleville P.A.L. arranged the transportation and supervision of 100 P.A.L. Junior members to the Shriner's Circus at the Newark Armory Sunday. Lou Anderson, local garage proprietor, purchased the tickets and also provided some of the refreshments that were given to the children.

Farmers Regain Lead In Fewsmit Bowling Loop

The Farmers regained the lead in the Fewsmit Men's Club Bowling League by sweeping their series with the Spoilers and now lead the Old-Timers by one game.

In matches during the week the Muffins took the odd game from the Cubs, despite Ochener's fine 56th series. The Old-Timers took two from the Hilltops led by Hornum's 561 set and the Aces won two from the Busters.

Two hundred games rolled during the week were by Taylor, Jr. 201, Ochener 208, Hornum 208, Baldwin 210, Miccilli 211 and Gandy 217.

Hornum still leads the pack in individual averages, picking up one pin for 179 with Ochener right after him with 178, Taylor Jr. dropped 14 173.

Blackhawks Take Lead In P.A.L. Soccer League

The Rangers played to a draw with the Eagles in the Belleville P.A.L. Midget soccer league at Belleville Park Sunday afternoon. Braves scored for the Eagles, the first half and Janancelli tied the game, for the Rangers, mid way in the last half on a shot from 10 yards out. In the second game, the Blackhawks defeated the Cardinals 2 to 0. Re-

Reasons

wrote editorials agitating for the war. She also wrote letters to presidents and governors until the idea germinated in Lincoln's proclamation.

Reveals State of Nation

The various proclamations down through the years are interesting and significant because they reveal the state of the nation in various eras, for each statement includes what the nation should be thankful for. The most famous one, besides those of Washington and Lincoln, is Wilson's proclamation.

The holiday, surrounded by religious tradition, is marked by church services featuring the appropriate scripture, readings, hymns, and the reading of the proclamation of president and governor. In early days it was the custom for pastors to include in their thanksgiving sermon a fiery partisan political speech.

In this connection, a story is told about Massachusetts of the early 19th century when Elbridge Gerry was governor. It was well known that the majority of clergymen were violently anti-Jefferson but Governor was an ardent Jeffersonian. At Thanksgiving services one year, Governor Gerry's proclamation (which was customarily read first at services) occupied a period of more than two hours, thereby causing the congregations to grow restless, anxious to get home to their Thanksgiving dinners. At the conclusion of the speech, most of the people left the churches, so that the pastors were left to rant and rave, denouncing Jefferson to empty pews!

Pan-American

A Pan-American celebration of Thanksgiving was begun in 1909 in St. Patrick's Church, Washington, D.C., at the request of Cardinal Gibbons. This service has continued annually since that time, serving to bring together representatives of all the republics of the western hemisphere.

England had its first experience of an American Thanksgiving when, in 1942, the churches were turned over to the U.S. Army for Thanksgiving services. Particularly in Westminster Abbey was this a novel circumstance, for it was the first time in 900 years that the mice was in the hands of outsiders. The American flag was carried through the church and placed on the altar. Attending the services were officers, soldiers, army nurses, and Red Cross workers. The U.S. Ambassador read President Roosevelt's Thanksgiving Proclamation and the Army chaplains conducted non-sectarian services.

With a review of the historical circumstances surrounding our

Thanksgiving celebration, we come to conceive of it as an awareness of both our past accomplishments and our hope for the future.

Andrew Ippolito

Funeral services were held Saturday for Andrew Ippolito of 94 Franklin Street, who died at the age of 81 on Tuesday of last week. Mr. Ippolito was born in Italy and came to Belleville 61 years ago. He retired as a worker in the former Belleville-Hendrick's Copper Mill after 48 years of employment. A solemn high mass of requiem was held at St. Anthony's Church and interment was in Holy Sepulcher Cemetery. Services were conducted by the Zarro Funeral Home.

Mr. Ippolito is survived by three sons, Anthony and Clement of Belleville and John Ippolito of Pittsburgh; two daughters, Mrs. Louise Venditti of Kearny and Mrs. Rose Poliska of Clifton; 18 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren of 81 on Tuesday of last week. Mr. Ippolito is survived by children.

ADMINISTRATION STUDY MEETING HELD IN HOBOKEN

Evan Thomas And Dr. Durkee
Participate In Cooperative
School Administrative Meet

In the first meeting of the New Jersey Cooperative Program in Education Administration, Superintendent of Schools, Evan H. Thomas, General Supervisor Frank M. Durkee, and member of the Board of Education Mrs. Edward A. Rochau, engaged in an all day program in the Administration Building at Hoboken, last Tuesday.

The first meeting in the CPEA program was held in Belleville on October 29, with Superintendent Rowland of the New Brunswick schools as chairman; the second meeting, October 29, at New Brunswick, with Superintendent Thomas as chairman; and the third meeting, November 18, at Hoboken, with Superintendent McFeely.

Administrators from school districts of relatively similar size engaged in the cooperative study, and at various stages those interested in school administration participate. In Belleville, for example, Eugene J. Kelly, President of the Board of Education; Hugh Kittle, principal of the high school; Douglas Wadsworth, of Citizens Lay Committee; and Ruel Daniels, District Clerk, took part.

Under the sponsorship of the Kellogg Foundation, the CPEA programs are being carried out all over the United States for two purposes: (1) to find ways of improving administrative practices and for the improvement of education, and (2) to find what is needed to secure the best kind of administration for public schools.

The administrative center for the Middle Atlantic Region is Teachers College, Columbia University, with Dr. Daniel R. Davies as CPEA Coordinator.

Rev. Deckenbach Will Give Rotary Thanksgiving Message

The Belleville Rotary Club at its meeting Wednesday noon will receive its traditional Thanksgiving message from Rev. Peter Deckenbach, pastor of Christ Episcopal Church. Rev. Deckenbach was president of the Rotary Club in 1951 and is a Past District Governor.

P.S. Declares Dividend

The Board of Directors of Public Service Electric and Gas Company today (November 18) declared a dividend of 40 cents a share on the common stock for the fourth quarter of this year, payable on or before December 22, 1952 to stockholders of record November 28, 1952.
