Approximately 300 Belleville folks are expected to pay tribute to the Belleville High School gridgers, tonight, at Donahue's Restaurant, Route 23, Mountainview. Construction Refuses To Be Slow Down by Weather

Development of Hornblower
And Rutgers Corner Gets
Month Off to Fast Start

Building Inspector Thomas P. Greco continues to be amazed with the amount of building going on in town, in what is usually the slack period of the year. Along about September of each year, building activity usually tapers off and by December things are pretty dull. But this year was an exception. October was the third best month of the year, with more than a quarter-million dollars of construction work started. November followed through with another heavy building total and December came in like a lion with more than $100,000 for the first week.

The development of the corner of Rutgers Street and Hornblower Avenue, by Karl Zimmerer, who took out permits for six of the nine one family houses is constructing there, got December off to its flying start. Each of the new dwellings will represent an investment of $11,000. They will be built at 46, 48, 56, 42 Hornblower Avenue and 150 Rutgers Street. Another $11,000 dwelling will be erected by Vincent Pepitone at 90 Frederick Street, while Mark Grady was issued a permit for a dwelling valued at $10,000 for 76 Nolton Street. Right Car But Wrong Firm Listed in Advertisement

The Belleville Times-News is exceedingly sorry that due to an error on the part of one of its employees the wrong signature appeared in the advertisement announcing the showing of the 1953 Pontiac Cars at the Arrowhead Pontiac, Inc., of 845 Washington Avenue. Arrowhead Pontiac is the authorized dealer for Belleville and Nutley, and it is the only firm selling the Pontiac line and having the new cars on display.

Make First Call on New Dial System

Freeholder Elwood P. Russell congratulates Mayor James Tully upon successfully completing the first telephone call on Belleville's new dial system. C. Robert Horsfield, local New Jersey Bell manager, looks on.

Plymouth-9 Dial Phone Exchange Handles Record Volume With Ease

Belleville's new dial system has functioned smoothly in its first four days of operation. C. Robert Horsfield, local New Jersey Bell manager reported today.

Horsfield stated that a new peak load of 65,000 calls was hit on Monday as Belleville residents got the swing of using their new telephone system. A record Sunday traffic of over 41,000 calls was reported. Many of these were to New York City as local customers tried out the direct dialing into the five boroughs of New York.

The telephone manager stated that a load of 50,000 was a heavy day for the old manual board, but that the new system handled the 65,000 with ease. There were no delays and what errors there were resulted from customer unfamiliarity with the dial.

Few Dialing Errors

In commenting on the small amount of dialing errors, Horsfield stated, "It's amazing how easily our people have adapted themselves to the dial telephone." He stated that those errors that are being made fall into two general groups: those who still dial Belleville 2 instead of Plymouth 9, and those that dial the red "0" instead of the black "0" and vice-versa.

The new dial system came to life at ceremonies last Saturday night when Bell telephone splicers cut away the cables leading into the old manual office and, a few seconds later, another telephone team pulled the blocking tools free from the thousands of dial mechanism switches in the new building and left the new system free to operate.

Mayor James Tully made the first call. He dialed Freeholder Elwood P. Russell, who was also present at the midnight ceremonies. In his conversation with Freeholder Russell, Mayor Tully thanked the telephone company for bringing the most modern of dial telephone systems to Belleville.

Many Early Morning Calls

Many Belleville subscribers must have waited for the changeover as soon as it was accomplished, the dialing mechanism in the new building started clicking with hundreds of calls being made far beyond the usual number of calls after midnight on a Sunday morning.

The cutover was made under the direction of Herman Redden, plant cutover coordinator. A staff of about 100 telephone and Western Electric men assisted in the cutover ceremonies at the new building. At the time of the cutover a number of people who had come out to the Eddie Heinrich show at the High School, were invited inside the new exchange building to see and hear what was going on.

800 Phones Next Week

Mr. Horsfield announced that some 800 new telephones, installed in homes and listed in the special directory delivered last week, have not as yet been connected to the dialing apparatus, but the work is being done with all speed so that they can be put into service during the four day period from Tuesday to Friday of next week.

Soldiers in the Park Plan Children's Christmas Party

The personnel of "A" Battery, 98th A.A. Gun Battalion, stationed at the anti-aircraft position in Belleville Park, are planning a Christmas party for the benefit of needy children of the area in and around Belleville. The Battery is working in co-operation with the Belleville Chapter American Red Cross, which will contact the families of the children. At the time of the party, the Battery plans to provide a turkey dinner for the children and with the co-operation of local merchants hopes to have enough toys on hand to see that each child has a well filled stocking to go with the meal.

Frank M. Brazitis, Paul W. Wille, and Lew Earl, New Jersey Bell splicers, are shown severing the cable which will, until midnight Saturday served the Belleville manual office.

Veteran telephone employee Charles F. Kline, of 33 Maier St., Belleville, pulls the main switch in the old Belleville manual office. Kline has worked at the Belleville office since 1934.

Ordinance Sets-up Licensing of Food, Drink Dispensers

Health Measure Provides for $5 Fee
Regardless of Unit Cost of Food or Drink; Discuss St. Mary's Guarantee

An ordinance was adopted on first reading by the Board of Commissioners Tuesday night, providing for the licensing of soft drink and other food vending machines and setting a fee of $5 per year for the license. The ordinance was proposed by Commissioner Joseph King, director of the public affairs, as head of the health department. The measure provides that all food dispensing machines, regardless of the unit price of the merchandise, be so licensed. It is designed as a health measure, not a revenue producing act.

Although no action was taken, the Board, in caucus, had a lengthy discussion on the possibility of entering into a contract with St. Mary's Hospital of Passaic, to guarantee the hospital for care given accident patients brought into the hospital by any authorized employee of the Town of Belleville. The care of injured patients is already provided for in a separate contract. Recently the hospital was unable to collect a bill of $3,200 for services rendered to an accident victim in Belleville.

Santa's Mail Pouring In; He Asks Inclusion of Addresses

Santa Claus has notified Commissioner Elmer S. Hyde that the letters from Belleville's children have been pouring in at Santa's Mail Box in front of Town Hall. However, Santa notes, many of the children are including the address. It is requested, by Old Santa, that children writing him be sure to include their home addresses so that he can answer each one of them.

TEACHERS PETITION BOARD TO CHANGE GUIDE, HIKE PAY

Claim Belleville's Salary
Guide is Lowest in County;
Ask Pre-Christmas Bonus

The Belleville Teachers' Association representing all the teachers and some of the administrators in the Belleville School System through its officers has asked the Board of Education to grant the following changes in the salary policy for the year 1953-54.

Increase by $150 the minimum in each category, making the B.A. starting salary $2,800, the M.A., $2,900, and the 6th year level $3,000.

Eliminate the super-maximum provision of the present guide, and make these steps part of the regular schedule. This change would raise the maximums at $4,400 for the B.A., $5,800 for the M.A., and $6,200 for the 6th year level.

Shorten the steps in the salary guide in each category making the steps 14, 15, and 16 years to attain the top level in each group. This provision changes the increments from $150 per year to $200 per year.

These requests, if granted, would place the salary schedule of the Belleville teachers on par with the guides in Essex County. At present Belleville holds an unfavorable position at the bottom of the list in this respect.

In addition, the teachers are asking for cost of living bonus to be paid prior to the Christmas holidays. This bonus would be contingent upon existing balances in the current budget. The salary requests amount to a $300 "across the board" increase, part of which has already been committed in last year's budget which provided for regular increments of $150 a year. Consideration of the requests, which were submitted at a special conference recently, will take place at the regular meeting of the Board of Education on Monday night at School No. 8.

Cameo Social Club Arranges Silver Anniversary Dinner

Group One of First to Meet At Recreation House; History Of Social And Welfare Work

The Cameo Social Club, an organization meeting monthly at the Recreation House here, will soon celebrate its Silver Anniversary with a gala dinner to be held at the Robin Hood in Clinton in the near future.

One of the first groups to hold regular meetings at the Recreation House, the Cameo Club is devoted not only to social functions, but to welfare and charitable work as well. During World War II, the club engaged in Red Cross work and other welfare endeavors. Last year the members staged a card party for the benefit of the tubercular children in Soho Hospital.

One of its members, Mrs. Elsie Simpson is still active in the Red Cross as a Grey Lady. Mrs. Thelma Miller, club secretary, reports that one of the annual highlights of the Cameo Club is a Christmas Party for the children of the members, with games and gifts for all. George Barnett plays the role of Santa Claus. With the members now grown and parents themselves, the club looks forward to next year when their first grandchildren

WOMAN'S CLUB MARKS 30TH YEAR OF VARIED WORK

Recalls History Of Group Devoted To Social Welfare And Cultural Activities

The 30th anniversary of the founding of the Belleville Woman's Club is being observed this year with numerous events built around this theme. Marking the years of constructive work since its founding in 1916 as the Belleville Improvement Association, the Club's primary aim has always been "to render the members helpful to one another and useful to society, and to cooperate for the betterment of social conditions."

The three-fold purposes of the organization have always been upheld since its inception, namely, the promotion of the health and beauty of the town, and the improvement of moral conditions of the community. These objects began to take form when the first World War broke out and the membership responded with assistance in the Red Cross and in other areas of endeavor.

"Through the Club's efforts, the first Community Christmas Tree and the first Recreation Center became realities. First president of the organization was Mrs. Herbert R. Vail, and first treasurer was Mrs. William Jacobson, who is still an active member."

In 1922 the Association joined the State Federation of Women's Clubs, and changed its name to the Woman's Club of Belleville. Mrs. Frederick E. Dodd was first president of the newly federated club.

With the growing interest of women everywhere in matters of government and culture, the activities of the club have expanded rapidly within the past few years.

The organization now is comprised of 145 members, three honorary members.

A Junior Woman's Club was formed in 1933, operated in conjunction with the senior club in many activities. Miss Ellen Schurr serves as president. During the past year, a Sub-Junior Club has also been established. Miss Jean McNish is president.

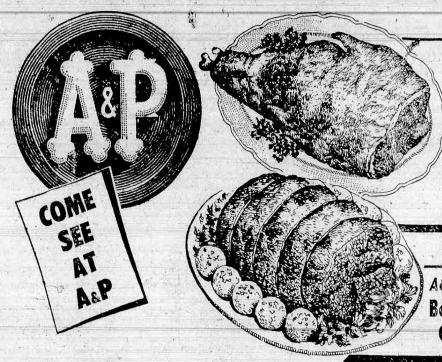

The center of all the Club's activities is the Woman's Clubhouse, located on Rossmore Place. Besides the activities of the various departments, the Cancer Dressing Committee, under the supervision of Miss Esther H. Adams, also functions there.

Present officers of the Club are: Mrs. Harvey B. Thompson, president; Mrs. Arthur E. Mayer, first vice-president; Mrs. E. J. Daniels, second vice-president; Mrs. Maurice Welch, recording secretary; Mrs. Lee Richardson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. James D. Apple, assistant corresponding secretary; Mrs. William Irvine, Sr., treasurer; Mrs. Charles Gebhardt, assistant treasurer; and Mrs. William T. Bryan, federation secretary.

Miss Hazel Ellsworth New Fews Smith Church Organist

A new organist and choir director has been announced at Fews Smith Memorial Presbyterian Church in the selection of Miss Hazel Ellsworth of Belleville. She will begin her duties, replacing P. Mack Siebert, on the first Sunday in January. Miss Ellsworth is at present organist at the United Presbyterian Church of Bloomfield, and before that for a number of years at the United Methodist Church. She is also organist at the Unit Church in Newark. She has been accompanied for a number of years by her husband, Mr. Ellsworth, who is a pupil of the organ at Grace Church, Newark. Mr. Walter Warlick, chairman of the Fews Smith Session Music Committee reported the unanimous selection.

Hold, Holly Tree!

You glistening sharp-pointed and matted leaves and bright vermilion lacquered berries, sturdy in an east wind harsh with salt, an east wind blowing off the Narrows; hold, oh hold, bright symbol against this wind; hold against wave, against time this little while.

Flower of England and of New England, stranger to this stranger newer soil, flame in this hour and this western air, and light, oh light this darker end of year.

Frederick Ebright

The Lodges, the League and the UN

In a quarter century as a foreign and political correspondent for United Press, it was my fortune to sit in at the birth of both the League of Nations, at Versailles in June, 1919, and the United Nations, at San Francisco, in July, 1945. In that, in a manner, I share something with the Lodge family, of Massachusetts.

The covenant and the text of the Versailles Treaty bore the germ which blossomed into the League of Nations. It had been conceived in months of arduous labor by Woodrow Wilson, George Clemenceau, David Lloyd George and Vittorio Emanuele Orlando—the "Big Four"—in almost endless sessions at the Hotel Crillon.

I was young in years and in experience; I had just been demobilized in France from the U.S. Army with the rank of captain to resume my career as a reporter in Paris. I already had seen three wars and I believed that World War I was truly "a war to end all wars." I had watched, from day to day, the Covenant and the treaty take form. I firmly believed in the League of Nations.

The shock was great when, after President Wilson signed the Versailles Treaty in the historic hall of mirrors in the palace of the Bourbon kings, I learned that a Republican opposition, led by Senators Henry Cabot Lodge and William Borah, was out to defeat the treaty and to scuttle the League of Nations.

Henry Cabot Lodge was both a bitter isolationist and chairman of the powerful Senate Foreign Affairs Committee. His fight centered on Article 10, which guaranteed the territorial integrity and the political independence of member states. That, said Mr. Lodge, was an infringement upon the right of Congress to declare war. It is now a matter of historical record that an ailing Wilson was unable to carry out a whistle-stop campaign in defense of the treaty and when he collapsed while on his crusade in the West, the cause he espoused was lost. The League of Nations came into being at Geneva two years later, but it was still-born, doomed by the absence of its principal creator.

Twenty-five years later, at San Francisco, the lesson of Versailles was remembered. There is an Article 10 in the UN Charter but there is no guarantee of the territorial integrity and the political independence of member states. If there had been such a clause, there could not have been the rape of Republican China, nor could the red flag of aggression fly over half of the northern hemisphere.

Now the grandson of the Republican in-reconcilable, bearing, by tradition, the very same name, is to be, after January 10, our chief delegate to the United Nations with the rank of Ambassador. Surely the compass has swung fully around. It is a commentary on the change that has come over America's role as the most powerful nation in the world that the grandson should be an "Internationalist," equally as fervent in his views as was the die-hard "isolationist" Senator.

It is interesting to contrast the outlook on collective security, from the record, of the Lodges, grandfather and grandson. For instance:

Grandfather: "The less we undertake to play the part of umpire and thrust ourselves into European conflicts, the better for the United States and the world. We would not have our country's vigor exhausted or her moral force abated by every quarrel great and small which afflicts the world."

Grandson: "The United Nations Charter is very important. In it is bound up our hope of preventing a wave of destruction in the next generation."

What the contrasting positions of grandfather and grandson does show is just how far the American people have come in their outlook on world affairs in two generations. In Woodrow Wilson's day, the idealist and the realist were far apart.

Some of this change has shown up in the Lodge family itself. Grandfather Lodge hoped that the United States, just out of World War I, would never again be affected by the quarrels of the old world. Two decades later his grandson resigned from the United States Senate to go on active duty with the Army in the Mediterranean and European Theaters. When he took his seat again in 1946, he voted for the Marshall Plan, Greek-Turkish relief, and other United States foreign commitments.

Just the two Lodges standing alone could be made a basis for quite a saga on the growth of American international outlook.

One Man's Opinion

His Korean Inspection Trip Must Have Convincing Eisenhower He Has Little Choice Except to Shorten Line and Turn it Over to South Koreans To Defend

By RALPH E. HEINZEN

Whatever else he may have learned by his swift inspection of the Korean front, General Eisenhower has given clear indication, in his press interviews, that he is adamantly opposed to widening operations to an all-out war and, secondly, that he considers the South Koreans eminently capable of holding their own if we help them train and equip their own army. Otherwise, General Eisenhower insists, there is no easy way out, no cheap panacea.

Today as when he flew to Korea, General Eisenhower has only four possible solutions to consider: 1. He could order an all-out war, blockading the China coast, bombing the Manchurian air bases and cutting Russia's lines of supply; 2. He could order a limited offensive, pushing the Communists back to the narrow waist of the peninsula, but not attempting to reach the Yalu River; 3. He could turn over the defense of the 155-mile frontline battlefront to the Republic of Korea and pull out our troops out to secondary defense positions, or, 4. he could order the "armistice" negotiations to continue, prolonging the stalemate, while a war of attrition on the present line might weaken the Communists to the point they will ask a truce.

General Eisenhower, himself, has ruled out the extension of the war to China and Manchuria. He inspected the ROK army and praised its effectiveness. Surely he saw, however, that it was too weak to hold a 155-mile front against massed Communists.

There appears to be, more and more, a belief that a limited offensive might solve our problem. It could shorten our lines because the Korean peninsula is barely 100 miles wide at its wasp-like waist. The ROK armies might be able to take over and hold such a shortened line. Then, however, the U.S. would have to turn over the defense of the Yalu River to the Chinese but did bring Peiping's intervention.

What Would Russia Do? Nor is there assurance that an attack on Manchuria itself would not bring Russian intervention into the fray. A similar situation was sadly mis-calculated once before when General MacArthur assumed that a thrust to the Yalu River would not bring the Chinese but did bring Peiping's intervention.

Obviously there are risks in even a limited offensive: It would be costly in casualties. It might fail. It might bring Russia openly into the war.

Purely Military Problem In taking his decision, General Eisenhower must, of course, be guided primarily by the military aspects, rather than the political. As a great soldier, he knows that an all-out offensive against a combination of the Russian air force and armies and Chinese manpower would require a total mobilization of the United Nations forces. It would be folly to take on Russia on the far-off Asiatic shores unless we intended to wage all-out war against her on every front in Europe as well as Asia.

The first action in an all-out war would be a combined operation: a naval blockade of the China coast at the same time that our bombers knock out the Communist arsenals and airfields in Manchuria and, moreover, the great cities of China itself.

Red Masters of Air That pre-supposes UN mastery of the air. The sorry truth is that we do not have it today. The Red Air force today is stronger than at any time during the Korean war, its total strength more than 2,000 aircraft, of which more than half are the Soviet designed Mig-15 jets. Based in its sanctuary of Manchuria, this air force must be reckoned with in planning any new strategy in Korea.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, United States Air Force Chief of Staff, indicated recently in an interview in Korea that the Air Force could, if ordered, fulfil a bombing mission over China. But critics point out the Air Force has been unable even in Korea

These would be no such arguments against a limited offensive. The reasoning behind that proposal is that since, apparently, the Communists want to continue the stalemate it would be easier for us to hold a shorter than a longer defense line at a semi-permanent defensive frontier.

Outside of General Eisenhower's own brief statements in the press interviews last week which followed his departure from Korea, nothing that has been said about "forcing a decision" makes half as much sense as the very detailed survey by General Vandenberg which failed to make many headlines last week but is worthy of examination.

General Vandenberg, like Ike, recently returned from Korea. He has shown throughout his career that he is not an "arm-chair" general. He is aggressive and able. Yet he is convinced that the United States does not have the reserve air power to "force a decision" swiftly. He said clearly that, if after his quick inspection, General Eisenhower decides on expanding the war, it could be done in one of two ways, equally costly:

1. If the war should be expanded immediately, the Air Force would have to strip its reserves throughout the world and put all of its aircraft either in Korea or in the supporting area of Japan, Okinawa, and the Philippines.

2. If the war should be expanded after more preparation, there would be a delay of many months while the Air Force, as well as the Army and Navy, increased its production of aircraft and its training programs of crews.

"Expand the war" has become a slogan similar to "the second front" cry in World War II. General Vandenberg's statement is a warning that it is far easier to say than to do.

Moreover, expanding the war in Korea is not just a question of expansion. It directly affects the military and diplomatic policy of the United States, which is substantially greater than the war in Korea. If the Korean war is the one question above all else to be considered, if nothing else is of concern but that, the war can be expanded at once. The United States can throw in its reserves of aircraft and manpower into one mighty blow in Korea. If it should be successful, and the Chinese Communists should be defeated, the Korean war would be ended.

But if it should not, if there should be a heavy loss of aircraft and manpower, with no decision forced, the United States then would face a situation not unlike that of the British Isles in 1940.

General Vandenberg undoubtedly had all this in mind when he told newspapermen that "when you stick your head into a hornet's nest, you must have something to back it up."

What General Vandenberg was saying, actually, was this: The foreign policy of the United States, since about the time the Korean war began 2½ years ago, has been built upon a triangular base:

1. To deter aggression and global war. The stand against aggression in Korea is one of the factors coming under this heading.

2. To defend the continental United States.

3. To share in the defense of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization area, largely Western Europe.

If the Korean war is a bigger issue than all others, then the decision to expand the war is a relatively simple matter. If it is not, then the decision to expand becomes complex, and the answer has to be found in relation to the main direction of the policy.

Would expanding the Korean war deter a general war? General Vandenberg does not believe that expanding the Korean war would deter a general war. Why would a quick expansion of the Korean war not deter a general war? Why, if the United States carried an atomic bombing attack to China proper, would not a settlement be forced?

Because, briefly, there are not many targets in China that are really suitable for atomic bombing. China has not many industrial complexes as compared to the United States or the Soviet Union and China does not primarily sustain its military machinery to China proper, the cry of "expanding the war" has not embraced ending war with Russia.

Atomic bombing of China, therefore, really means population bombing.

Would expanding the Korean war help the defense of continental United States?

It would, if it were to bring a quick settlement, but there is no assurance that that would be achieved. There is the possibility that the United States would be sucked into a struggle in continental China proper, involving Soviet forces as well as Chinese.

Would expanding the Korean war assist in the defense of Western Europe?

Only if it succeeded, and succeeded quickly. Otherwise the NATO countries would be stripped of what support they now have, in being, from the United States Air Force and from the Army.

Obviously, these are the briefest remarks about fundamental questions, each of which deserves separate analytical review. But they do express the attitude underlying General Vandenberg's statement, and his concern that expanding the war in Korea is a question that has to be answered with the care that can be given.

SHAWGER SCHOOL HAS PROGRAM OF THANKSGIVING

Present Play Emphasizing Moral Values; Recitations And Piano Solo On Program

The upper grade classes of the James G. Sawyer School recently enjoyed a Thanksgiving program presented by the pupils of the eighth grade classes under the guidance of Mrs. Emma Miller. Thanksgiving recitations were given by Mildred Vazzano, Anita DeVito, Judy Richardson, and Ann Marie Scotti. As part of a social studies project, Mary Ann Ranne, Judy Oliverio and William Freeman had written excellent paragraphs entitled "What I Have to be Thankful For", and shared their ideas with the audience.

A piano solo was played by Kathleen Valco, and Miss Margaret Bunce, Music Supervisor, led the group in singing. A play, "A Day of Thanks" had a worthwhile message for the students. In this play Dorothy Holmes, played by Jo Ann Giordano, and her brother Phil, played by Ralph Salento, take their home and family for granted and believe that the really important things in life can be purchased with money.

Their little brother Bobby, played by Benny Alexander, and their parents, played by Connie Wynn and Frank Maffatto, help them to realize they have a wrong sense of values. The other characters in the play are Mr. Grant, a wealthy man, played by James De Frisco, and his two children, played by Kathleen Castiglia and Joe Messina.

Life at BHS As We See It

Peggy Kelly and Evelyn Hannon

Here come those two fighting Irishmen again. You better duck into an alley if you can't take it because we call them as we see them!

To a minority—We Saw It! This year's super "Jockers" made their debut last Tuesday night as they met the team for the opening game of the Belleville High School Basketball Season. It was held before the usual jam-packed audience at B.H.S. Every yardline enjoyed it!

Speaking of "Jockers" you should see the girls. And you will, of course, in a few weeks. At present they are organizing their teams, but after Christmas they begin their intramural play. Each team with its co-captains, members, and "original" name had to be handed to one of the gym teachers by no later than 3:20 yesterday afternoon.

North Arlington's Girls' Leaders' Club extended a cordial invitation for 10 of our Leaders' Club members to participate in a volleyball play-day tomorrow December 12. Our 10 volleyball experts picked out of a hat are: Vera Miller, Ezzelle Deener, Joan Cavanaugh, Jo Ann Mohr, Rennee Lempert, Sheila Orlinsky, Carol Crisp, Jeanne Lewis, and last to hold up the ranks are those 2 fighting Irishmen Kelly and Hannon.

That's life! We hope no one missed the picture of our boy Roy Hansen, in last week's Life. Nothing can be considered impossible for a Belleville High grad. Something new has been added! A dress dance! Our little from now coming through with what they hope will be the best dance of the year.

Miss Phillips will furnish the music for the annual Christmas Dance. It should be a pretty classy affair so we'll see you tomorrow night in the Dodge Gym all decked out in your best duds!

Tonight is the big night for the boys who made our Saturday afternoon so enjoyable. Every year about this time the Varsity Club of Belleville sponsors a football banquet in honor of our hard fighting teams. The players allowed free admittance while the Student Council pays for the senior band members, cheerleaders, and cheerleaders. William Tallica, a scout from the University of Pennsylvania will be the principal speaker at this occasion.

A very enlightening show, sponsored by the Belleville Elks Club and directed by Bobby Kimble, was held on Belleville High's stage Saturday night. The show was presented on behalf of Eddie Heimrich, a blinded Korean Veteran and an alumnus of "good old" B.H.S. The highlights of the evening showed that we have a very talented faculty. Miss Pettillo, our new physical education instructor, stepped out in one act and proved that she can "can-can" while Mr. "Sugar-voice" Knappell took the part of one of the Andrews Sisters in another skit. However, the student body was well represented also. "Cook" Kimble was master of ceremonies while John Love and Ken Kroth assisted with the lighting and sound system.

After having tryouts all last week Mr. Brown with the assistance of his judges picked the mem-

Another Driver Loses License For 30 Days for Careless Driving on Washington Ave.

James C. Lynn of Newark, found out it pays to obey a signal of a police officer, when he was fined $18 by Magistrate Edward J. Abramson, in police court last week. Lynn was given a ticket on November 15 at Washington Avenue and Greylock Parkway by Officer Kenneth Place.

James J. Carragher of 172 Verona Avenue, Newark, paid $23 and had his driver's license suspended for 30 days, on a charge made by Patrolman John Metzler, that he was driving carelessly on November 15 at Washington Avenue and Greylock Parkway on November 21. Carragher was fined $28 for driving without a license. Anthony DeSantis of Kearny was assessed $13 for an improper turn at the bridge and Carl Washer of Arlington paid the fine for disregarding a stop-sign.

Hit by Car Near St. Peter's Church on Sunday Morning

Miss Carol Nixon of 10 Bridge Street was treated for abrasions of the face and legs, and had six stitches taken over her right eye at St. Mary's Hospital, Passaic, on Sunday morning after she was struck by a car at William and Bridge Streets. The car was driven by James D. Rovenigo of 21 Meriville Avenue. Miss Nixon was taken to the hospital by Eymore Cafano and Spillane.

Finds Home Entered

Walter C. Kelly of 463 Washington Avenue, notified police early Monday morning that his house had been entered Sunday and that a clock had been taken. Mr. Kelly said he left the house Sunday at 2:30 p.m. and had carefully locked all the doors. When he returned at 2:55 o'clock Monday morning he found the front door open and the back door unlocked. Officer Hanley and O'Reilly aided him in a search of his home.

bers for the Talent Show. This assembly should be one of the best, going on past records. How could it be anything less, after all it is our "Show of Shows."

After a heated debate among the members the Student Council voted to make another investment. The new bill will mark the payment on a new dark room and enlarger since the old one was inadequate. The purchase should assist the students in many of their enterprises by lowering much of the present costs for pictures. We hope it works out as well as it is expected.

Seniors! Christmas will be over before you get those cards sold. By the way only 10 more shopping days remain for Christmas so don't get caught in the last minute rush, especially for those cards.

PTA Meeting To Feature Glee Club and Instrumental Music

A meeting of the PTA of School No. 3 will take place Tuesday afternoon at 1:45 o'clock in the auditorium of School No. 3. The music departments of the school will provide Christmas music. Featured will be instrumental renditions and Glee Club selections, as well as songs by members. Gifts will be accepted for the patients in East Orange Veterans Hospital and soldiers stationed in Belleville Park.

Buccelli was arrested by Captain Charles McGinnis and Detective Jack Mariano at the Fuda Radio plant in Main Street, after Freda complained that his pay voucher had been stolen from his workbench drawer. The Meeting Place

Edgar Jean Bracco

Some time ago Jack Gould, the radio and television editor of the New York Times, solicited on the sorry state of television. I've been tempted to add to his comments by a card I received some weeks ago from Mrs. A. Celestine. One of us gave me permission to use her name.

After a flattering postscript: "I just wanted to tell you how much we have enjoyed your column," she adds: "We have been having a friendly argument. One of us says television is great. The other says the programs are mostly terrible. What do you think?"

I consider myself a minor authority on television. We've had a set since 1947, when TV was so new that even watching an endless series of cartoons was a thrill. I remember the days when Milton Berle was a comedian, when producers and directors were not afraid to sink their artistic teeth into a good subject and deal it up in a manner gratifying to adult intelligence. I have seen TV in entertainment change from a pioneer trying to do really good things to a stereotyped medium serving up a different wrapping time after time, shaving embers of greatness only at rare, rare intervals. One could undoubtedly come up with several reasons for this. I wouldn't pretend to know. The people in the industry probably could, but I am not in the industry. I'm simply a viewer, one of the many who at times bemoans the invention of the cathode tube.

I must be fair, however. It is easy to malign wholesale. It must be admitted that TV has its moments. There are shows like the new "Omnibus" which, if it lives up to its promise, might easily become one of the finest programs in TV history. The Kraft program on Wednesday night, while it occasionally turns out its clinkers, is good more often than it is bad. The Philco playhouse on Sunday night often comes up with a memorable show.

The NBC telecasts—all too infrequent—of the Toscanini concerts are beyond words, and the same network's pioneering into TV opera is a wonderful sign. And presently it signed a contract with Robert Sherwood, the Pulitzer Prize playwright, for a series of original dramas. Even here, however, the fact that one of America's top dramatists has been engaged is the fact that he has been given virtual carte blanche in his subjects. He is restricted in one field only—religiosity. And, almost as an equal importance is that into his contract has been written a clause stipulating that he will have to deal with only one network official at a time, instead of the legion of timorous pantywaist representatives of chicken advertising agencies and sponsors.

There are several other pinpoints in the TV profile. But I think that even the industry's warmest friend would have to admit that the shows, were the good entertainment, weighed against the mediocre, would be dimly out of balance. Hollywood, which has made an industry out of mediocrity, has poked its cheesy little finger into the TV pie. The stations are being with half-hour filmed "dramas"—thus has the word deteriorated—into Hollywood expressly for TV. These are sold to a sponsor who should know better.

Shows like the Robert Cummings radio show, which is a horror, the Gene Autry foolery, are no more than insults. No one would deny their place. Some people like Gene Autry and Joan Davis. With personal preferences, no one can quarrel. But one can quarrel with the overwhelming number of poor shows like these and the few really good ones like "The Bob Hope Show" and Edward Murrow's "See It Now."

Somewhere along the line something has gone wrong. It is inconceivable that TV imagines the country peopled entirely by morons who enjoy such fare and more, who will go out and buy the products of the sponsor.

There was a time when a viewer could sit down on Monday or Wednesday night and be reasonably sure of entertainment and of real theater. The CBS show and the old Studio One, since the time when the man who made Studio One and has not been heard of since, have been the place of hour nothing. The program, with just him, has been typical TV—just plain bad.

The slickness is still there, of course. TV has accomplished one thing—mechanically it is close to perfection. But artistically, in the matter of moving the viewer, giving him a clench at the throat, it leaves much to be desired.

And yet, despite this flaying, I have hopes for television, as have many others who may be temporarily disillusioned. As an art form, it could be good. As a medium of entertainment, it could be good. All it needs is less artistic interference from the advertiser agencies, the sponsors, and the Hollywood story-machines.

There are many capable people in television. They have to learn to exercise their talents. Give them a chance to prove that as an art medium television need not take a back seat. The result will be many-fold—primarily it will create happier viewers, and sponsors even happier in the line of sales.

Television treat —
the BUICK CIRCUS HOUR —
every fourth Tuesday

How would you like the fun of Christmastime to last all the year through?

That's the way it seems to be when you call this Buick beauty your own—what with the constant cheer it brings to you week after week, month after month.

The cheer of traveling in style that's bright and gay as a holiday wrapping.

The cheer of having rich and spacious comfort—plus the cheery thought that nowhere else can you get as much room for the money.

The cheer of knowing abundant and mighty able power is on call, with all the solid thrift of a Fireball 8 Engine that's valve-in-head—and also high-compression.

The cheer of riding wonderfully buoyant, level and steady—with a ride that feels like the million dollars it cost to perfect.

The cheer of taking your travel free and easy—with Dynaflo Drive* doing the chores in letter-perfect smoothness—with Power Steering assisting to make parking and slow-motion maneuvers no task at all.

Even the price is a cheerful note here—low enough, you'll find, to crowd the so-named "low-price three."

That means action is called for this very week, to make the most of this good deal while it lasts.

Why not drop in today or tomorrow and see how much cheer is to be found in a Buick showroom right now?

Conversion of Playroom Into Kindergarten At School 7

Overcrowded conditions in the kindergarten at Passaic Avenue School have resulted in the conversion of the girls' playroom into a kindergarten activity room which all kindergarten pupils share and enjoy.

A new oak floor, brightly painted walls and bulletin boards together with a gay yellow piano contribute to make it a cheerful and attractive room. New chairs have been added and three new tables are expected. The Parent-Teacher Association plans, as its project for this school year, to provide special equipment for the children.

PTA Sponsors Home Nursing Course Under Red Cross Here

The Parent-Teacher Association of School No. 1 is sponsoring a Red Cross Home Nursing Class for the benefit of parents whose children attend the school. Organized through the efforts of Mrs. Tucker, Acting President of the No. 1 PTA, the course is being conducted by Mrs. Winston H. Ross, a Registered Nurse affiliated with the Volunteer Home Nursing Service of the Belleville Red Cross Chapter.

The Belleville Chapter of the Red Cross welcomes this opportunity to conduct its Home Nursing Class for local organizations, and hopes that other groups will follow the example set by the Parent-Teacher Association of School No. 1. Further information on Home Nursing instruction can be obtained by calling Red Cross Headquarters, Plymouth 9-4610.

PTA Executive Meeting Will Be Held Monday At Rec House

The executive committee meeting of the Passaic Avenue School Parent-Teacher Association will be held Monday at 8 p.m. at the Recreation House. President Nunzio Pico will conduct the meeting at which each committee member will submit his report.

The Christmas meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association will take place on Monday, December 22, at 1:30 p.m. in the school auditorium. Because of the holiday season, the regular business meeting will be brief, after which there will be a program presented by the children and the P.T.A. carolers.

PTA Pre-School Group Plans Discussion On Television

The Pre-School Group of the Parent Teachers Association of School No. 2 will hold its next meeting on Wednesday evening, at the home of Mrs. Rose Di Fazio of 260 Hornblower Avenue.

The discussion for the evening will be entitled, "Your Child and Television". The round table discussion will be followed by recordings which are suitable for the pre-school child.

Concert Features Pianist Beethoven's D minor "Tempest" Sonata and the Prokofiev Toccata, Opus 11, will be among the numbers presented by the brilliant American pianist, Byron Janis, in his appearance Sunday at the Mosque Theater, Newark, in the Griffith Music Foundation's piano series of concerts.
