Asks Cooperation of All In Speeding Construction Plans For High School Building

Months of Discussion Were Brought To Head Last Week By Signing of Architect, Eugene Kelly Declares

Eugene J. Kelly, president of the Board of Education, yesterday, made a public appeal for co-operation from all members of the Board, the Lay Committee and Parent Teacher's Association, in an effort to speed plans for the construction of the proposed new High School building here. The Board's plans call for the expenditure of more than $2,500,000 for purchase of land and construction of the building.

Mr. Kelly declared that after months of discussion, the first concrete step in that direction was taken last week when the Board entered into a contract with Emil A. Schmidlin, of East Orange, to prepare preliminary plans and specifications.

Mr. Schmidlin's first duty will be to assist the Board in the selection of the site for the new building, Mr. Kelly said. Two sites are still under consideration. One is located by Teachers College, Columbia University, in its detailed report on the site, it recommended the purchase of the site, which was made several years ago. The other is the site adjacent to the existing high school, by the Lay Advisory Committee.

After an exhaustive survey, all existing factors will be enumerated, and the maximum effort, and in turn the Board will decide upon the best possible location. The preliminary plans will be then set underway immediately. Conferences between the Board, its executive personnel, the Superintendent of Schools and Mr. Schmidlin, will be followed by a study of all recommendations of various department heads. Every effort will be made to determine the educational needs, present and future, and that the building will most efficiently serve our modern, progressive educational program.

MRS. LIDA E. BAKER HEADS RED CROSS' COMMERCIAL DIV.

Chairman Has Been Red Cross Worker For 11 Yrs., 6 in Fund Raising From Local Merchants

Mrs. Lida E. Baker, 6 Bellevue avenue, has been selected to head the Commercial Division, 1953 Red Cross Fund Drive in Belleville.

Mrs. Baker, employed as secretary in office of Superintendent of Schools, has been a Belleville resident for the past 32 years, and has been in the employ of the Board of Education for 19 years.

Mrs. Baker has been active in Red Cross work in Belleville for the past 11 years, and is a member of the Board of Directors, and the Executive Committee. She has served on the Commercial Division Committee of the Fund Drive, either as a member or as chairman, for the past six years. As a result Mrs. Baker has become a familiar figure to practically every business man in Belleville.

One merchant, in praising Mrs. Baker and her Red Cross efforts, likened her annual visit to the perennial return of the robin. "When Mrs. Baker comes in our store about the same time late in February, or early in March, we know it is Red Cross Fund time again in Belleville, and that we should start 'digging down' for our contribution. We know a gift in Belleville helps the community and the people who are

Washington Historian Speaks At Belleville Lions Meeting

Melvin J. Weig, historian of the Morrisstown National Historical Park, which includes Washington's Headquarters at the Ford Mansion in Morrisstown and the Jockey Hollow Reservation where Washington's soldiers encamped for two winters during the Revolutionary War, was the speaker at the luncheon of the Belleville Lions Club, yesterday, at the Fox Hills Restaurant. On the eve of Washington's birthday his talk "Two Winters with Washington at Morrisstown" was timely as well as exceedingly interesting. His talk was illustrated with colored slides. At Morrisstown Mr. Weig is in charge of museum development and preservation work, preparation of exhibits, preparation of park literature, visitor information and guide service.

our customers. We give our contribution gladly, secure in the knowledge that many other Red Cross volunteers like Mrs. Baker are giving so much of their time to help others through Red Cross service in "this community."

What Price Politics and Its Relationship to the Belleville School System

An open letter to all taxpayers from Raymond McCann, member of the Belleville Board of Education

During my term as a member of the Belleville Board of Education, I have tried -- with little avail -- to evoke policies and practices that would result in or provide the best education possible for our school children. The suggestions or resolutions I made have been predicated on either improving the education result for the children or giving the taxpayers the maximum value for his school dollar. For this endeavor aimed at constructive, sensible and business-like policies in our schools, I have been vilified and bitterly castigated by politically controlled persons who have shown poor judgment and a lack of responsibility in their control of school matters.

ney for the majority of the Belleville Board of Education, at a cost of $2,500.00 per year or $208.33 per month (and many months it amounts to $208.33 per hour), delayed the final draft of the contract from December until February and during this period changed or modified items, originally agreed upon with the architect, in favor of the architect. In my opinion the interests of the taxpayer were secondary with Mr. Schwartz.

As a result of the exclusion of the gratuity clause the following situation arose.

I have in my possession a photo-static copy of a letter from Emil A. Schmidlin, the architect retained by the Tully majority of the board (Kelly Loesner and Kochau), to one of our school officials. It was also acknowledged that others received the same letter. It reads as follows:

Emil A. Schmidlin
Architect

586 Central Ave.
East Orange, N. J.
February 5, 1953

Dear Mr. Daniels:

It would give me pleasure to have you join us for late evening refreshments on Monday, February 16th, from nine to twelve p.m., at my suite in the Claridge Hotel, Atlantic City, N. J.

Sincerely Yours,
signed Emil A. Schmidlin typed Emil A. Schmidlin typed Henry Kentopp

Mr. Daniels is not interested in this type of association and advised me of his intent to decline the invitation; he wants to remain completely independent of any type of this entertainment or activity.

My point in revealing this situation is simple. How far does the architect intend to carry this type of entertainment? If continued, at what point do these gratuities or entertainment tend to influence the judgment of our school officials? Does this type of board policy give promise of improved education for our school children (including my four all in Belleville Public Schools)? Do the people of Belleville want the politicians running the school system, with puppet appointees dancing on strings at the whim of the Mayor? Is Henry Kentopp whose name is typed on the letter Superintendent of Schools in East Orange? If he is, what is his relationship to the firm of Emil A. Schmidlin? If he is, what part did he play in the final appointment of Emil A. Schmidlin as architect in Belleville? If he is, does he have any financial connection with Emil A. Schmidlin in this project? These questions must be fully answered before any constructive result can be obtained in Belleville, we are dealing with a large financial project 2 1/2 million dollars.

I would feel remiss in my civic obligation if I permitted this situation to pass without appraising the public of its ramifications. I shall plan my future actions on the public reaction to this mess.

Those who have opposed me on the board of education and this controversy have only one argument -- they claim my actions are politically inspired -- that I cherish aspirations to become a town commissioner. Just for the public record, I have no intentions of running for any public town office, now or in the future. However, I do cherish hopes for an improved school system in Belleville, for the benefit of my four children, and all school children, and I shall always oppose any political action that places the children's educational future in a position of second best.

Respectfully yours,
(signed) Raymond McCann

The Little Years

Let them model the clay of their little years With a free and mellow touch With a firmness and contour that holds no tears
With a hand that will wipe away their tears.

And the little years will grow toward the Sun

And Man is the dream that the Child has

Look Out For The Draft

What a strange lot of political mummery is going on, behind the scenes, in the non-selection of the Republican nominee for Governor. It is as though the politicians had stepped out and had allowed the Boys State to step in and find a candidate. If the Republican state and county leadership will have anything to do with it, New Jersey may have a Democratic Governor next November!

The decision of Clean Government to throw all the votes of Essex County behind Senator Clapp for the candidacy served perfectly the purpose of confusing the issue. The Primary will be held on April 21.
Forty days before that date the nominee must be named. In other words, in the three weeks that remain before the filing deadline, the Republican leadership must accomplish what it has been unable to do since Governor Driscoll announced, late last November, that he was not going to be a candidate to succeed himself.

Clapp is a native son, and nothing more.
It must be apparent to the Essex Senator, as it must be to George Becker and others of Clean Government, that it takes much more than Essex County's votes to win a nomination. The Times-News has stated its preference for Rev. Lester Cleo, but Dr. Cleo has not been able to rally the support that is needed for nomination. He is out.

The Newark News has gone all out for Rep. Clifford Case. In fact some of the Newark News' editorials and front page "news" stories, in support of Congressman Case, read more like fiction than fact. The News has been very unfair to Clean Government's Becker. In its frenzy to nominate Case, the Newark rag has been using Becker as its whipping boy. At times, in the past, especially in the selection of Congressional candidates, The Times-News has not agreed with Becker, but always we have respected his integrity, his fundamental honesty and the fairness of his motives. If Becker did not jump on the Case bandwagon, it is because in his honest judgment it was not the thing to do.

By now it must be obvious, even to the ambitious News, that Case has spent too many years in Washington and forgot, in the meantime, about patching his political fences back home. He is the real forgotten man in this campaign.

Paul L. Troast, of Passaic County, chairman of the New Jersey Turnpike Authority, is still a candidate on the theory that one good turn-pike deserves another. If one candidate can be said to be a step out in front of the platoon of hopefuls, it is Troast.
There is no doubt that Troast is popular with quite a few GOP leaders in Essex County. Perhaps, now that Clean Government has done its duty and come out for Clapp, it can soon get off the Clapp bandwagon, gracefully, and head for the turnpike.

It is our belief that there are but three real contenders in the field of nine—Troast, Senator Forbes and Webster Todd, a millionaire builder. As a potential compromise candidate, State Treasurer Walter Margates, our Passaic County neighbor, has excellent support of heavy industry and of labor although he lacks the direct backing of any county committee.

Three weeks is an awfully short time for all this to jell. And that is why The Times-News is looking for a machiavelic hand behind the curtain, stirring up all this confusion. It is obvious that the longer the confusion lasts and the more of it there is, the better are the chances of a "Draft Driscoll" movement. If within the next three weeks, order does not come out of chaos, don't write off the draft. It's the only way Driscoll can get back to Trenton this time.

How Wrong Can A Politician Be?

The failings of Americans who heard Adlai Stevenson quip and slur his way through a speech at the Jackson-Jefferson Day dinner last Saturday night must have been glad that America elected Dwight D.
Eisenhower to the Presidency. The speech, by its asides and its innuendos and by its sly references to General Motors and to car dealers taking the place of New Dealers, won plenty of laughs. Even so, as a comedian we still prefer Milton Berle or Red Skelton to Adlai Stevenson. At least, they don't make a pretense of knowing anything about world affairs.

What is wrong with selling cars, Adlai?
Is it a crime for a business man to enter the government? I'll admit there have not been many businessmen in the Truman or the Roosevelt cabinets these past twenty years, but then look at the results! Is it wrong for a millionaire to take a $12,000 salary with the government? If it is, how would you explain the Averell Harrimans and the Bill Bullets of the past administrations?

As far as we are concerned, we will stack any of our Belleville "car dealers" up against Brigadier General Harry S. Vaughn, and we'll give you as odds all those medals which adorn his manly bosom, including the latest, the award given him by Argentine's arch America-hating Peron. By the way, what's Harry doing these days? Has he found a job? Is he selling his deep freezers?

The sad part about the Stevenson speech is the man's black ignorance of world affairs. How profound it sounded when Stevenson, stentoriously, warned the new government that you cannot coerce our allies or bluff the Communists into submission. Adlai must have been reading Ives-tina or Pravda! It took the Democratic New York Times to set him right. Under the by-line of its excellent Washington political writer, James Reston, The Times said of Stevenson's folly:

"Stevenson proved that his sense of humor has survived his defeat in the late Presidential election. But in the course of his address he said one or two things that showed a lack of knowledge of what has been happening.

"In the first place, Mr. Stevenson chided Mr. Dulles for saying publicly that unless the Europeans moved toward unity a little faster the United States would have to re-examine its policy toward them.

"In the second place, he implied that the Eisenhower Administration was merely engaged in a psychological offensive against the Communists, and that this psychological offensive is about the only new thing in the nation's foreign policy.

"The background of the Dulles warning to the Allies and of the psychological offensive against the Communists, however, is important, and if the former Governor of Illinois had known what it was, it is doubtful that he would have said some of the things he did.

"Mr. Dulles did not warn the Allies to unite because he was playing domestic politics or because he wanted to play the bully.
He warned them, and did so publicly, because he believed that such a public warning was necessary to stop the drift toward disunity.

"As a matter of fact, there is reason for saying that Chancellor Adenauer, and one or two of the French leaders, actually requested Mr. Dulles to say what he did. It was their judgment that the trend in the German and French parliaments was setting in against ratification of the European Defense Community treaty, and they felt that the Eisenhower Administration must threaten to re-examine its policy unless this trend was reversed."

He did not know why Mr. Dulles said what he did to the Europeans and he did not know the political and military plans that lay behind the psychological offensive, but had a commitment to make a speech, so he made one.

If he had known the line-up in the German and French Parliaments, the request of Chancellor Adenauer, and the Eisenhower plan for East Asia, he might have taken a different line. Fortunately, he combined criticism with an offer of cooperation, and President Eisenhower was quick to offer better bi-partisan understanding when he invited him to the White House this week—before he has the occasion to make another speech.

One Man's Opinion

In Denouncing Past "Secret Agreements" of Yalta and Potsdam, Eisenhower Disassociates Himself From Seeds of Future Wars

By RALPH E. HEINZEN

In the thirty or more centuries of civilization there have been thousands of wars. And there have been thousands of reasons why men went to war. There has, however, been only one reason why wars ended—the defeat of one side or the other. Wars that ended, as a few did, in any other way merely served to prolong the issue until one side or the other felt able to pick up its arms again and settle the issue by force.

In setting the pattern of his administration's diplomacy, General Eisenhower is interested as much in defeating Communist aggression on a world scale as he is in settling the immediate issue in Korea. His repudiation of all past "secret agreements" is a step in that direction, involving as it does some of the lesser known decisions of Yalta and Potsdam. Directly involved are Red Russia's holdings in the Far East and the revision of frontiers in Eastern Europe where Moscow shoved its own borders westward into Poland and then agreed to allow Poland to carve new frontiers out of Germany.

The seeds of several future wars were sown if those Yalta and Potsdam agreements because neither the Japanese nor the Germans are ever going to consent for long to the grab of their lands.

That explains why Eisenhower, looking well into the future to the time when Japan and Germany will again be united, strong and well-armed nations, is directing his strategy towards bringing them both into our orbit. His vision also englobes China and the only reason why he does not clamp down an immediate national blockade of the China coast is that such a blockade can only bring great suffering to the Chinese people and, in the end, a hatred of America.
You can depend upon the Communists to sow the seeds of that hate if a blockade brings hunger and economic starvation.

Whole Tragedy of Yalta

There should be no distinction made between its "secret clause" and the whole of the Yalta treaty. The published clauses were laid, but, for the most part, they concerned the war in Germany or plans for creating the United Nations, then a bee in the Roosevelt bonnet. The Yalta secret agreement, on the other hand, was a diplomatic tragedy, disseminating as it did both China and Japan in favor of Soviet Russia.

Most of what I know about Yalta I learned from Admiral William D. Leahy, who was top military adviser to both Roosevelt and Truman. I had known Admiral Leahy as U.S. Ambassador to the White House after the fall of France. In fact, Admiral Leahy mentions our relations in his book "I Was There." My administration for the wonderful old sailor is total. It dates to the day Japan sank our ships at Pearl Harbor.

I shall never forget that Sunday afternoon, in Vichy. Dispatches had just told of the "big move" of the Japanese sneak attack. We gathered at the emba-sy in the watering resort where France had moved her government in exile from Paris.

Leahy's True Picture

Leahy laid his maps out on a table and worked on them from the dispatches which the White House had relayed to him. I recall particularly that when Douglas MacArthur, an Embassy secretary and a nephew of General MacArthur, said his anger getting the better of his diplomatic patience and good judgment—"We'll have those yellow monkeys climbing trees in six weeks."

ber states of the Soviet Union, to be exact.

The clauses governing the war in the Far East were wholly secret and in his book Leahy explains that Stalin and Roosevelt decided to keep them secret because they were military. Decisions said the Japanese were not to know their nature, if it is those secret clauses that General Eisenhower has just denounced, and it is time to do it.

Japan Needs Room

Among the clauses which General Eisenhower has denounced "in toto," one of them gave back to Russia the vital chain of Sakhalin, the southern half of Sakhalin with its oil and coal resources and restored the flanking points that allow Russian planes and ships to sneak into Japanese waters. The President's action is of tremendous importance now and will be, in the decades to come because we have not heard the end of the Kur-iles or Sakhalin.

Japan, with 85,000,000 population crowded into the four humble islands instead of spreading across the Asiatic mainland and the adjoining islands, is looking for room for expansion.
The millions of Japanese who settled in Manchuria are now wards of the government at Yokohama. They must be allowed to migrate again or Japan never can produce enough to feed and clothe her excess millions.

It is a problem of life or death for the Japanese. You can realize that problem if you can picture half of the population of the United States being crowded into four mountainous islands smaller, in their whole, than the State of California. Until General Eisenhower's announcement of a "roll back" policy, Japan had little hope of getting Sakhalin and the Kuriles back short of a military defeat of Russia. Indeed, most Japanese had turned their eyes to the south, towards the Ryukyu Islands, particularly toward Okinawa, believing that there was a better chance of finding room for expansion there than in the Soviet-held and more barren northern islands.

Many Secret Clauses

Chapter four provided for the creation of the United Nations, agreeing that Nationalist China and France were to join the Big Three in issuing the invitations.
Leahy said frankly that one of the secret clauses in that connection provided that the Soviet Union was to have more votes than either the United States or Great Britain—two additional votes in the assembly for member states of the Soviet Union, to

be exact.

From Leahy I learned the scope of these secret clauses.
They involved eventual Russian participation in the war in the Far East, but they also contained political provisions. One of them was that Russia was to get back the territories and the privileges that had been taken from them by the Japanese after the Russo-Japanese war, which was ended by the peace-making efforts of President Teddy Roosevelt.

Japan, with 85,000,000 popula-
humble islands instead of spreading across the Asiatic mainland
and the adjoining islands, is
looking for room for expansion.
The millions of Japanese who
wards of the government at Yokohama. They must be allowed
clothe her excess millions.

It is a problem of life or death
for the Japanese. You can realize that problem if you can pic-
the United States being crowded
smaller, in their whole, than the
State of California. Until General Eisenhower's announcement of a "roll back" policy,
Japan had little hope of getting
had turned their eyes to the
south, towards the Ryukyu Islands,
particularly toward Okinawa,
chance of finding room for ex-
islands.

Japan knows that from the Kremlin's viewpoint the Kurile islands afford a useful base for sword-rattling pressure on Japan not to cooperate too fully with the West—Japan prefers, therefore, to concentrate her efforts on other former territories.

The Ryukyu Island chain, of which Okinawa is part, would give Japan almost as much additional breathing space as would the Kuriles and with less prospect for friction.

The United States, however, has poured hundreds of millions of dollars into building Okinawa into a mighty air and naval base war of 1904, however, Japan re-had had indicated reluctance to entered Southern Sakhalin.

Many Japanese meanwhile, feel the Kuriles rightfully belong to Japan because they were obtained under the Japanese-Russian treaty of 1875 with Japan trading Sakhalin for the island chain. After the Russo-Japanese Putting Public Service gas main under the Raritan River

UNDER THE RIVER TO SERVE YOU

GAS service, such as you obtain from Public Service, requires tremendous facilities for its manufacture and distribution.

We are furnishing gas to more than 1,000,000 customers in 226 municipalities in the state. These customers use upwards of 50 billion cubic feet of gas annually.

To produce this gas, there are eight plants . . . and to distribute it, more than six thousand miles of main are necessary—many of which are laid in terrains of marshes, rivers, and mountains. Such extensive facilities require the investment of many millions of dollars, and annual expenditures of more millions for maintenance.

Yes, money in large amounts are spent

Pabst Unveils New Label

New label and packaging design for Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer has been announced by Forest L. Fraser, vice-president of Pabst Brewing Company. National distribution for the full line of bottled and canned beer bearing the new design has been completed.

The distinctive new Pabst Blue Ribbon packages are the result of careful study and research to determine public preferences and eye-appeal. Noteworthy in the re-designing program is the new gold foil bottle label and neck band. The new design is almost classic in its simplicity. The famous Blue Ribbon seal stands out in cameo sharpness against a white enamel background bordered by a band of gold foil.

Artists working on the design were instructed that the packaging must reflect the quality and prestige of the Pabst product and that all packages be harmonized in color and design so that the entire family could be displayed together.

The new Pabst cans carry the new label on both sides. The Blue Ribbon seal standing out sharply against a gold background and trim. A modern touch is gained by cross-hatching white lines over the gold background.
