Group Headed By Robert Daddis Presents Proceeds to E. G. Barnett At Get-Together

A young group of amateur entertainers presented a Red Cross benefit show at the home of Robert Daddis, 110 Passaic Avenue, last week. The proceeds, totaling $5.00, were presented to E. G. Barnett, General Fund Chairman, by young Daddis, as a part of the program at the Red Cross Fund Workers Get-Together at the Elks' Club last night.

According to Robert, who served as production manager, Carol Jacobson presented a dance routine. A skit, based on "My Friend Irma," with apologies to Irma, was produced by Theresa Finelli, Robert Daddis and Theresa Finelli.

Teresa Delpreto was featured in a Hawaiian number and Ronal Finelli, a young tenor, sang two popular numbers. The entire cast sang as a finale, "Once a Month with Amy," with their own lyrics.

Papcom and other refreshments were sold and several carnival games of "skill" were operated at "special concessions." According to Bob, the show was very well received by the neighborhood children and many parents were included in the audience.

"Gene" Barnett, General Red Cross Fund Chairman, in accepting the gift, thanked Robert Daddis and the members of his troupe, for their interest in the Red Cross. He suggested that group Daddis announce the start of his show at the Isolation Hospital for the benefit of the children who are patients there, as part of the Red Cross Entertainment program.

On Champ Air Force Grid Team

Bob Plunkett, airman third class with the 36th Fighter-Bomber Wing, stationed at Fürstenfeldbruck Air Base, Germany, played halfback for the Fighter-Bomber Eagles when they won the football championship of the 12th Air Force in a game at Wembley Stadium, London, before 30,000 fans, recently. Plunkett's team moved down ten straight opponents on their way to the championship of the United States Air Forces in Europe. "Plunk" is assigned to the 36th Air Police Squadron at Fürstenfeldbruck Air Base.

Signs With Milwaukee Hawks

Paul (Bucky) McConnell, former Belleville High star basketball player, who has been the mainstay of the Newark Iron Dukes in semi-pro circles has signed a contract to play with the Milwaukee Hawks of the National Basketball Association. He joined the team in time for their game with the New York Knickerbockers, Madison Square Garden, last week. Paul's brother, Jim, now playing for Niagara University, also starred at Belleville High. With their parents they moved to North Arlington, last year. Bucky played basketball as a junior at the High School but did not compete in his senior year.

Technically Right

Ed Sadowski, who was Seton Hall's first great basketball player, and who kicked around the big league in basketball for a long time has agreed to speak at the Varsity Club's basketball dinner at the Elks Club on March 28. Big Ed, at six-six and 260 pounds, was "Mr. Bucket Himself," both at Seton and with any number of pro teams.

Now in personnel relations work, with the Cities Service Oil Company, Sadowski is a liveliest couple of years ago when he played for the Philadelphia Warriors. His ability to stay in a game, meant the difference between continuing as a player or seeking another occupation. So it was that little Ed O'Brien, a five-foot tall referee in the Basketball Association of America, seemed to be haunting him when he put him out of four games in a row on personnel fouls. Playing as a coach, Sadowski said himself, "four personnel in a row, I'll kill you!"

Two or three plays later, why Sadowski was in the middle of a pile under the basket, there came a toot from the other end of the court. "Personal on Sadowski for hacking," yelled O'Brien. Sadowski put down his head and roared down the court. O'Brien saw him coming and started to run, but before he got off the court, he tripped and fell on all fours. While in that position, he looked up from the floor and said, "Sadowski, before you kill me, I want you to know that's a technical foul."

Co-Captain at Montclair State

Joe Crosso, former Belleville High player, is co-captain of the Montclair State basketball team which is now enjoying a 15 and 4 record for the season. Joe works at the eyehole and had his best game recently when he scored 17 points in Montclair's 63 to 55 victory over Bloomfield College. Most of Joe's points came on a two-hand shot.

Joe, whose brother is on the Bellboy sub-varsity squad, was a varsity man for two years at Belleville high and in his junior year was a member of the basketball team. He won 20 and lost 5 and won the Essex County Tournament. The Montclair ace played javve ball in his freshman year there and has been a fixture on the varsity for the last three years.

Joe has been practice-teaching at Belleville High since early in February. He majors in business and intends to become a teacher. His minor is physical education and he hopes someday to coach high school basketball.

PUPILS LEARN TO TELL TIME

Second Graders Make Clocks Of Boxes; Present Play On Clocks; Give Recitations

The second grade class at School No. 3, under the supervision of Mrs. Dorothy M. Huber, just completed a unit on telling time.

The children built a clock and then made many kinds of clocks from boxes brought in from the classroom. These clocks were sold in the store. A play called "Around the Clock With Sally" was given at the end of the unit.

The children taking part were: Barbara Gray, Judy Serafin, Joseph Grinnell, Edward Boyce, Charles Haler, Dick Lovell, John Rubin, Ralph Saccantonio, Thomas Schilling, John Schuch, Billy Baker, Harry Smith, James Wade, Thomas Terzo and Harold Baccantonio.

Other recitations included "Days of the Week" by Beverly Newing, Jane Malacki, Cheryl Weiss, James Hensinger, Robert Vallance, Richard Tietjen and Clifford Brown. "The Faithful Clock" was recited by Elmer D'Angelo, and Lynn Shresnel presented "What the Clock Says" with the assistance of George Zarro and Peggy Flanagan. George Worthington recited "The Clock Shop."

Walter Kiddle Office Workers Choose IAW Representation

Office workers in the Walter Kiddle & Co. Inc. manufacturing division voted on Friday to have the United Automobile Workers, CIO, represent them in negotiations with the company.

According to Edward G. Wilms, eastern representative of the UAW, the vote was 81 for the union, 49 for no union, and one void ballot. Walter Kiddle is a regional office of the National Labor Relations Board supervised the election.

Prior to this election, the office workers were not represented by any union. Production workers at Walter Kiddle are represented by UAW's Local 146.

Varsity Bows To Bloomfield In Beautifully Played Overtime Game; Lose To West Orange

Belleville High is still represented in the Essex County basketball tournament, on the final night of play, tomorrow at Seton Hall. But its varsity team bowed out of the competition in an overtime game on Friday, when it lost to Bloomfield 58 to 53. But it is Belleville's Jayvees who are in the middle game of tonight's program. Coach Ray Smith's team, the Little West Side in the final of the Jayvee tournament. In the first game Bloomfield meets Nutley in the consolation, and Montclair and Orange play the final.

The varsity closed out its campaign Tuesday afternoon when it bowed to West Orange in a postponed game at West Orange 74 to 64. The defeat put the season's record, including tournament games, at 11 victories and five defeats.

No one connected with the game at Seton Hall on Friday need have worried about this one. Both teams played superb ball and among the coaching fraternity was hailed as the best played ball game in the seven years of tournament competition. Even though the score was close all the way, the boys on both teams remained calm and carried out the orders of their coaches to the letter. The teams were evenly matched and both took percentage shots with a result that every coach would have been proud of. Three baskets on high passes when Bloomfield's Hal-Nash made a foul, but practically broke Belleville's back.

Bloomfield's Nardone scored 23 points and their Tony Mack, who got six in the overtime, finished with 15. Gordon Galter was high for Belleville with 16 points. In the overtime, the boys on both teams played superb ball and among the coaching fraternity was hailed as the best played ball game in the seven years of tournament competition. Three baskets on high passes when Bloomfield's Hal-Nash made a foul, but practically broke Belleville's back.

Belleville's Jayvees beat Seton Hall 53 to 41 in the semi-final game on Saturday, to earn their way to the finals. Leyble had 23 points for the Jayvees, against West Orange Coach Smith says his tournament players, and had little interest in West Orange's 22 point victory over the Jayvees.

SPORTS

Reflections

By AL OUTCALT

In the basement of Madison Square Gardens, where the circus elephants usually munch their pie, a collection of automobiles is currently on display. They range from an orange-yellow Spanish "Pegaso" which sells for $17,000 to a little little one which can be seen in showrooms in the metropolitan area.

The automobiles are part of the World Motor Sports Show which opened last Saturday and closes this Sunday in the Eighth Avenue Armory. Although there are some unique cars in the show — some so fabulous that they make you gasp — the majority of them can be seen in showrooms in the metropolitan area.

Besides the "Pegaso," which can cruise easily at 125 m.p.h., there is the new Alfa Romeo "Lancia" — a 200 horsepower job that looks more like a flying saucer than a car. When you consider that it is capable of 160 m.p.h., that's closer to flying than most of us ever get.

Also on display is the new Mercedes-Benz, the just-announced and the 300SL sports model that came in one-two in the recent Indianapolis 500. And there are some cars in the basement of the Armory that are the Buick Skylark, the Cadillac Eldorado, the Packard Pan-American and the new Hudson Jet. Though the American manufacturers pull them sports cars, the real automobile fan will look long and hard before he finds any of the features he recognizes in genuine sports cars.

The only jet boat in the world — the powerful Jet Hydrofoil built by Frank and Stella Hanning-Lev of London — is also being shown and will be driven solo by Mr. Hanning-Lev in an effort to set a new record for speed boats. Guy Lombardo's Tempo VI and his new jet speed boat, the Tempo Jr., look like midgeets next to the big jet job.

One feature of the show that is due to the fantastic is a color-changing car top, installed for the show on a Muntz Jet, the top has been made of a material which looks like something out of a Jules Verne novel. It is made of a material which changes color or clear or gold. It is made of a material which changes color or clear or gold. It is made of a material which changes color or clear or gold.

Lay Committee Issues Full Statement on Its Dismissal

Edward J. Ackerman, Public Relations Chairman, Cites Recent Events, Actions of Both Committee and Board of Education During Year

While Eugene J. Kelly, president of the Board of Education, was requesting the Lay School Advisory Committee's cooperation in speeding plans for the new high school, as reported in last week's Belleville Times, he had already dispatched letters to each member of the Committee advising them that he had dissolved the Lay Committee and that he was appointing a new Committee for the "specific" purpose of aiding in the erection of the new school.

The Lay Advisory Committee, at its last regular meeting Thursday, February 19, strongly resented the action of the Board in dissolving this Committee, in view of the many ways it had assisted the Board and saved the Town money during its one year of existence. The Committee, also, on record that the Board of Education had no moral right to disband the Committee, regardless of any legal expedients, which it might invoke.

Constitution Accepted

To the Lay Committee, according to the chairman of its Public Relations Committee, Edward J. Ackerman, was functioning under a Constitution which had been reviewed by the Board and accepted by it after some minor modifications were made to its suggestion. The Board Counsel, Max N. Schwartz, advised the Lay Committee that the Board would not formally approve the Constitution due to a statute technically, but that the Committee should consider it a document acceptable to the Board. This Constitution specifically precluded giving the Board of Education any right to dissolve it without the members of the original Lay Committee would never have agreed to serve under such an arrangement.

The Lay Committee called a special meeting for Monday evening to enable them to discuss with the Board, after its regular meeting, the reason behind the dismissal. The full Board, with the exception of Raymond McCann met with the Committee, as did Mr. Schwartz. Contrary to the statement by the Board, this meeting was to be open to the public and press. The Lay Committee would have welcomed both.

Eugene J. Kelly told the Committee that it had been their intention, from the inception of the Lay Committee, that it serve for one year only and then be subject to dismissal to enable a new Committee to be formed. He admitted, however, that the Committee had never been informed of this intention. The Committee, further stressed the point, that although correspondence pertaining to the Committee Constitution was exchanged between Board Counsel Max Schwartz and the Committee, no exception was ever taken to the membership clause therein, which certainly did not limit membership to one year.

Kelly's Reasons

Mr. Kelly stated that the underlying reason for choosing a new Lay Committee each year was the Board's desire to avoid the imposition of a "hangover" Committee of their choosing on the new Board of Education in the event this Board was not subsequently re-elected.

Life at BHS As We See It

Here's your chance to get your two cents in on happenings in our school. The group is called the BHS Club. It is a group of students who are interested in the school and its activities. They are a group of students who are interested in the school and its activities. They are a group of students who are interested in the school and its activities.

Perky Kelly and Evelyn Hannon

We guess the girls are not quite as interested in "rolling for the pins" as they are in shooting for the hoop. Due to lack of enough participation the girls' bowling tournament has been done away with. However, for those who are interested there will be free bowling on a "first come, first serve" basis since there are only a few alleys. By the way, we mean you don't have to be a member of a team; any group can do it.

Minutemen, snail the "fragrant odor" in that bag, Fred! Nothing like a good, smelly fish sandwich we always say, especially when you don't even have to make it yourself.

The senior class' big production of the year has actually got under way. Two weeks ago we told you the names of the play, "Reserve Two For Murder", and a little about it. This week we can give you the names of our first-class actors which are: Connie Farnon, Ken King, Joe Ann Mohler, Johnny Boyer, and Don Clark. Extra! Extra! Sheila Orlick, Bill Lane, Keith McElligott, Paula Thaler, Bob Pealoe, Jeanne Lewis, Marie DeGallo, and Connie Kimble.

It will no doubt be a very good play judging from the people in the cast and the class that's putting it on. Don't miss it!

Here's to Stella! With the way she does the Hula-Hoop! Belleville High has it even better. And if you don't take our word for it, we'll all hope you feel better and we're glad you're back, Miss Weidman!

Brother, this freshman class is really on its way! The veteran Johnny Bartell already on the J.V. Basketball Team had won many as of two weeks ago. Joe Prieto, Joe Brown, Bill D'Amboia, and Joe Long are the team that extra spark. Congratulations, fellows, keep up the good work!

Speaking of the J.V. under the superb coaching of Mr. Smith, the boys have really been doing alright in the J.V. Tournament. Lots of luck fellows! Hope you bring back a trophy!

"We won't go home until we win!" This is the motto of the team that's finally had their party, and what a party! Everyone was sick on Thursday especially a certain glutton whom we do not wish to incriminate. But, then, what do you expect from twelve people with twenty dollars worth of food. As two guests all we have to say is "Vive le president!"

Brother, the third and final part of the Talent Show was given last Wednesday for freshmen. First prize for the upper classmen, Bob Doyle did a fresh bit at M.C. The acts appeared in the following order: Rosalind Parlatiano sang, "Why Don't You Believe Me," Marlene Tencher and Connie Manno did a soft show to the sweet strains of "You for Two" played by Harry Valente and his Combo. Rex Spotts sang, "I'm a Fool for You," with a "Sinner in My Heart." Nick Tentorrelli showed his skill with the accordion. "Lady."

South American neighbor, gave that Latin American atmosphere with a "zone" and the end of the show. Frank Permetti played a "zone" trumpet with Harry Valente's Combo. What a show!

Several weeks later, that the Budget Committee of the Day Committee was permitted to see it. It was too late to make recommendations.

Mr. Ackerman speculated on the possibility that the initiative might be by the Lay Committee, instead of being a "rubber-stamp" group for the Board, is what the Board may have resented and which resulted in the purging of the Lay Committee.

The Lay Committee was composed of the following members: Edward J. Ackerman, Mechanical Engineer; John Boyd, Supervisor; W. Allison Boyer, Architect; Nicholas J. Colaninno, Attorney; Barton W. Mohler, Purchasing Agent; William H. Gullen, Personnel Manager; Joseph C. D'Angelo, M.D.; Joseph Goodenough, Management Consultant; John H. Greulich, Gear Manufacturer; Alan G. Love, Civil Engineer; Albert F. Mory, Contractor; Herbert L. Niemi, Industrial Engineer; Raymond J. O'Brien, Pigment Sales; Nunzio B. Pico, Electrical Engineer; A. Alia Babin, M.D.; F. Douglas Walsworth, Funeral Director; Theodore Wells, U.S. Post Office; Ralph Vesco, U.S. A.P. and Evan H. Thomas, Esq.

The Lay Committee first requested the Board to permit it to study and make recommendations on the proposed school budget on December 8, 1953. It was not until December 15, 1953, that it was invited to do so.

The Lay Committee first requested the Board to permit it to study and make recommendations on the proposed school budget on December 8, 1953. It was not until December 15, 1953, that it was invited to do so.

BOARD PROMISES FULL INFORMATION ON SCHOOL COSTS

President Kelly Informs James R. Golden That All Figures Will Be Available

James R. Golden asked the Board of Education on Monday night to be explicit as to how the proposed new High School will affect the taxpayers in interest charges, amortization, and additional instruction costs, before submitting the proposal for the building to be voted upon at the next meeting. Mr. Golden expressed the opinion that the new building will cost taxpayers at least an additional point on their tax rate, unless aid of some kind is forthcoming from another source than real estate taxes.

President Eugene J. Kelly declared that it is the intention of the Board to put all the cards on the table before the referendum, and the information asked for by Mr. Golden would be made available at that time.

On recommendation of Charles Young, the Jewish Community Center of Essex County was given permission to use a school classroom to be assigned, each Thursday night for a modern dance class.

A. M. Hart, Auditor

Mr. Young also recommended that the firm of A. M. Hart & Co. be engaged to make the annual school audit, at a fee of $1,500 per year. The motion to this effect passed 4 to 1 with Raymond McCann in opposition.

In his portion of the meeting Mr. McCann asked if any program would have any effect on the morale of the teachers. Mr. Thomas answered that in every school system there are a few teachers, who resist efforts to improve programs. These same teachers, usually near retirement, may rebel without the morale of the entire teaching staff being affected.

And to lengthen the first period of each day to create an additional period, at which time all students in the school can take part in some school club or committee.

Sea-Gull Driven Inland

Voyager over the cold wastes of ocean, taster of peril, lover of the keen driving wind,
How are you here
Circling so listlessly over the uneventful grass?
How are we here . . . Has the vision paled, has the wing faltered, the mist-piercing eye grown dim?
Stunning against hard rocks still breaks the foaming water?

Out in the rush, in the white thunder, in the wild beauty, seals are barking and crying, taking the sharp ascent, moving with the old magical ease into the flood.
It devours them: they are gone upon some chill invisible adventure.
Why are we here . . . child of the spray, the cold wastes of ocean—Circling so listlessly over the uneventful
grass,
But the height beckons as light quickens:
What can ground, unwing Us the sky-sailing, the sea-faring, cleavers of the spin-drift, the keen air: the outward bound?

Things Have Changed

When the United Nations Assembly sat down for its first meeting of the new season, this week, there was a difference. Always in the past, as newspaper photographers flashbulbs popped, the United States and the Russian chief delegates smiled and shook hands. The next day, the Communist let loose his customary invectives. We were "war-mongering capitalists." It was all very phony and smacked of its false fellowship.

This week the photographers prepared their flashbulbs, but there was no handshake.
Aides rushed madly about as tradition was bending and breaking. Other delegates stood in awe as Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., new United States chief delegate, took his seat an arm's length away from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky without either looking in his direction or shaking hands.

To startled secretaries and aides, Lodge replied in a tone of finality: "Don't you know, there's been a change of administration in Washington." It can only be hoped that there will be a change of method within the halls of the UN, too. The Communists have enjoyed a monopoly of vilification, with impunity, too long.

The Korean debate is being given priority before this Assembly. Too long has this tragi-comedy endured — a Soviet delegation playing a leading role in the UN while Red Russia arms the Chinese and Korean Communists in their war against the forces of the United Nations.

It is time to say calmly and coldly what most Americans want said — that Russia must be made to fulfill its obligations to the UN, or be kicked out, and her satellites along with her. Will those things be said? It is to be doubted because there is a powerful Latin and Arab minority which would oppose any positive drawing of the lines. They fear that the UN will suffer the fate of the League of Nations if affairs are allowed to come to the stage of a showdown.

As a political writer in Geneva, I saw Communist Russia thrown out of the League of Nations for her unprovoked aggression against Finland. I watched the election of Hitler's Germany and Mussolini's Italy for their aggressions. The League did not survive, but, at least, its honor was safe.

We are faced with exactly the same situation today. Red Russia is guilty of fomenting aggression if not actually participating in armed aggression. It is as guilty today as it was in 1936. If things came to a showdown over Korea, The Nutley Sun doubts that the Kremlin would take a stand that would cause Russia's ejection from UN membership. The UN is too valuable a sounding-board for Communist propagandists.

It is The Sun's contention that there should be a showdown over Korea. If it comes and if Russia leaves or is kicked out of the UN, the world organization might or might not survive the shock. If it did survive, it would be all the stronger. If it did not survive, that might be for the best because it would prove that the organization is not structurally sound. There will arise, in such a case, another universal assembly and it can be all the stronger by having corrected the mistakes of San Francisco, as the charter builders sought to eliminate the mistakes of the League Covenant.

A United Nations Assembly in which Russia sits as an equal, demanding all of the advantages of her preferred membership status, while arming the Chinese and the North Koreans is a farce. Better no UN than a two-faced UN.

It is our hope that the "change in administration" which Lodge pointed out, in refusing the traditional handshake, will have the courage to force an issue. Better to know now where we stand than to find ourselves facing a crisis, some day in the future, with our foreign policy based upon a respect of the UN charter and with our enemy bound no more by any such ties at that time than she feels herself bound today.

One Man's Opinion

In the Yellow Sea and Around the Red Sea, Stalin Moves To Counter Our Efforts
As Eisenhower Goes Into Action

BY RALPH E. HEINZEN

American dynamism, under the stimulus of General Eisenhower's positive directives, has run head on into Soviet Russian dynamism in both the Yellow Sea of China and in and around the Red Sea of the Arab world. Proving that there is nothing dormant in our fight against further Communist aggression, General Eisenhower has gone on the offensive in the Far East. His next logical step would be to throw a blockade around Red China, but unless we are prepared to prove, too, that his role is not static moved against us in the Middle East. The Kremlin's rupture of diplomatic relations with the new state of Israel was its first act in that troubled corner of the Levantine coast.

The unhappy consequence of this dead-on diplomatic collision is that we may already have gone as far as we can go in the Far East. Our next logical step would be to throw a blockade around Red China, but unless we are prepared to sustain an argument to close the Russian and the British loopholes, a blockade would be a bothersome nuisance more likely to expand the war than to end it.

The unhappy consequence of the collision, also, is that in the Middle East, Stalin has maneuvered better than we have. By his breaking of the truce with Israel, he finds a receptive audience in the Arab lands of the one-time Ottoman Empire which is more anxious to take revenge on Israel than it is fearful of Russian expansion. Only Britain's timely deal with Egypt, arranged for a future plebiscite in the Sudan to decide its fate, has served to counter Stalin's drive for Arab understanding and support. With Egypt in the Western camp, Stalin's maneuvers among the Arabs will be much more difficult.

Loopholes in Blockades

Blockades, at best, are only partially effective. I recall, particularly, how the Germans ran the British blockade while I was stationed in Vichy, deep behind the German lines, in the middle of the war.

Germany's stocks of raw rubber were very low when, early in 1942, she brought it right through the British blockade—by Japanese submarines. Japan then controlled Malaya and Indonesia, had most of the sources of raw rubber—tin, lead and wolfram in her control. Hitler needed rubber for two Japanese subs: the African cape and the Atlantic into Lorient. Only the last few miles were spent under water. It was hardly a practical way of carrying rubber, because the storage space on a sub is small, but I recall that the Japanese were carried around in triumph to Paris, Berlin, Vienna, as the Nazis gloried.

Running A Blockade

I recall, too, that the British fleet, after having sunk the Birmarck, had two of Hitler's best cruisers, the Gneisenau and the Scharnhorst bottled up in Brest at the northwest tip of France, where the RAF peppered them each night with blockbusters.
Hitler needed the cruisers to be ordered them home and in broad daylight they ran the British blockade, right up the coast of France, just the nose of British coastal gunners, into the safety of a German port.

They gave them such a heavy str umbrella from his French airfields that the British could not even get a torpedo plane through.
It is the same way in China.
We could declare an embargo on oil, but what could we do to prevent Russian ships from the Gulf of Vladivostok, at the end of the Transiberian railroad, moving north out direct into Tientsin, Tsingtau or Dairen with their cargoes for China? Or, for that matter, what could we do about Hong Kong, the gateway to which Red China now brings most of everything she needs from abroad? The blockade would agree to respect our blockade?

Could Be Effective

Blockading Chinese ports undoubtedly would be a highly effective weapon against the Chinese Communists in the long run, but whether it would be feasible is another matter. To begin with, National China is not capable of enforcing a blockade. It would have to be done with United States assistance and preferably with United Nations support.

The Chinese coastline is some 1,800 miles long. The National ships have a tiny fleet of 70 or 80 small ships, most of them gunboats. And for a blockade to be respected in the legal sense it must be effective. There can be no loopholes in a blockade shipping access to a single Chinese port.

Thus, so long as Tientsin, Tsingtau or Dairen remained open, for example, nations now trading directly with Communist China would be entitled to continue doing so, according to a rather more international law on the subject.

On the other hand, the United States certainly has means of enforcing a blockade. Modern aircraft carriers can travel 500 miles a day and their area of coverage is doubled by planes that fly from their decks. Presumably two carriers with divisions of small, speedy intercepting vessels on call could cover the entire coastline.

For the purposes of a blockade, some decision would have to be taken on the status of the Manchurian ports of Port Arthur and Dairen. Probably they would be reopened by Chinese ports, and though when the Russians last year withdrew from a joint communist arrangement that had existed since the end of World War II they were careful to get an agreement from the Chinese Communists that they could continue to use Dairen under certain conditions.

Earlier this week, Chiang Kai-shek denounced the clauses of the Yalta Treaty upon which Russia bases her claims. The United States, in the interest of unity, might hesitate to enforce a blockade without some measure of United Nations support. And because of British trade ties with China and other considerations such support would not be obtained easily.

Case of Hong Kong Britain might face disaster in Hong Kong, with possible loss of the colony, if the United Nations should decide to throw a blockade against China. And, should it happen, this also would mean the loss of another 2,000,000 "free people to communism."

These dangers, rather than concern over the less than 1 percent of British foreign trade which goes through Hong Kong, are the key factors in present British anxiety. The British blockade would deal Britain a more serious economic blow than this figure indicates, however, because British goods, imported from the Far East, would be cut off from the Malay and other striding trade through Hong Kong.

For Hong Kong, a China blockade would mean the closing down of British establishments, heavy unemployment, and perhaps even starvation, London insists. Hong Kong's population depends on food supplies from China, particularly vegetables and fruit, which it could not import from elsewhere. If its trade with China were cut off, it would be these supplies.

There also is the danger that once Hong Kong had lost all value to Communist China as a trading post, a source of foreign currency and the restricted products which China now can buy there, Peking might decide to take the colony by force.

Short of this, the possible disorders in Hong Kong due to economic difficulties would be an invitation to Chinese Communist infiltration, and internal action.
If Hong Kong was lost, it would be a considerable setback to the western defense community, British officials feel.
The colony provides a "show window" for democracy at work in the Far East, somewhat as West Berlin does in Europe. It is a good listening post in the Far East for western powers, too.

Meanwhile, there is no doubt that a blockade would hit the Chinese Communists hard although its effects could not be felt immediately. Heavily committed in Korea and with a large-scale industrialization program just begun the Chinese Communists will be leaning heavily on maritime deliveries for a long while to come.

It is estimated that at least 30 per cent of the strategic materials China now is importing come by sea. Such materials are supply route it will be years before their plans will be completed.

Trans-Siberian, of course, can carry only so much freight, and most of this goes straight to Korea or to Manchurian air bases.
In the main, cargoes that arrive by ship are providing the window for the industry-building program.

Only one month ago, within a few weeks after the opening of Communist China's first five-year plan, it was announced officially that plans for 1953 had to be curtailed by 30 per cent because of a shortage of materials and skilled labor. A blockade would certainly would force further curtailment.

It is generally recognized that 1953 is the year during which the Chinese Communists will be most susceptible to any pressures that can be exerted from the outside. If the stated difficulties with the British can be overcome, and the risk of war in stopping vessels can be cleared up UN action, the blockade would certainly serve that purpose.

TEA TALK

MARY: "There were only the four of us."

MARCIA: "What did you give them?"

MARY: "Lamb chops dressed up with pear halves and stuffed mushrooms—and my specialty—orange chiffon pie. Tom wanted to know what I had spent for food. I figured it out and it was $4.70 for the four of us."

"The next evening Tom announced that he had done a bit of research and came up with the cost of that meal in 1939. It was only $1.86. What's more—he discovered this—the gas to cook that meal cost about the same today as in 1939."

What Mary said is true. The cost for gas for cooking a meal today is very little more than it was in 1939.

Teachers To Select Books For Classroom Libraries

On January 7, a committee appointed by Superintendent Thomas, consisting of Mrs. Mary E. Gilroy, Chairman; Walter Watmuff, Mrs. Jean Daitley, Mrs. Emma B. Miller, and Mrs. Bernadette Colaneri, began the study of means of obtaining books for classroom libraries for the school year of 1952-53. After much study and work the committee has planned a book fair to be held in School 8 during the week of March 2. The books will be delivered to School 8 prior to March 2, and an evaluation committee consisting of Mr. Watmuff, Mrs. Watmuff, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Gilroy, and Miss Stacy Yaskel, will examine the books to determine their grade level.

School School Employees... Forty Belleville teachers and janitors, under the direction of Defense Chairman Frank A. Spotts, have been taking first aid instruction at Belleville High School. They must complete nine weeks of study and pass an examination to qualify for their standard first aid card.

New methods of applying artificial respiration are being demonstrated by two of the instructors, Herman Knuppel of Belleville High School and William Chapman, Principal of School 8. Other faculty members serving as instructors are: Pauline Lochner of Belleville High School; Margaret Leahy, Director of physical education; Rose Marie Burke of School 10; Doris Rosenblum of School 9; Pearl Nelson of School 4; Kathryn Conklin of School 8; and Frances Williamson of School 1.

A similar course was given two years ago for other school employees, all of whom took refresher courses recently. With the completion of the present course, 98% of the school employees will be qualified in first aid work and equipped for any emergency.

MORE GRAY LADIES NEEDED BY RED CROSS CHAPTER

Acting Chairman Tells Of Local Course To Be Given At Soho And Red Cross Hqs.

Red Cross Gray Ladies last year gave nearly four million hours of volunteer service, most of it to bring extra cheer and comfort to patients in military, veterans, and civilian hospitals throughout the country.

According to Mrs. Lillian Metcalf, acting chairman of the Gray Ladies, Belleville Chapter, American Red Cross, the group of volunteer Gray Ladies here in town gave 2813 hours of their time in helping the patients at the Isolation Hospital and at the new Veterans Hospital at East Orange.

Members of the group included Mrs. Alice Hittman of 219 Holmes Street, Mrs. Catherine King of 104 Overlook Avenue, Mrs. Florence Levin of 24 Branch Brook Drive, Mrs. Lillian Metcalf of 186 Overlook Avenue, Mrs. Nancy Patterson of 81 Adeline Street, Miss Harriet Eyer of 42 Tappan Avenue, Mrs. Elsie Simpson of 188 Floyd Street, Mrs. Stella Sodok of 980 Little Street, Mrs. Joan P. White of 105 Belleville Avenue, Mrs. Lois Yocum of 19 Walnut Street, Mrs. F. Richlan of 282 Division Avenue, Mrs. Doris Orshansky of 28 Branch Brook Drive, Mrs. Lillian Lemmet of 493 Jerusalem Street, Mrs. Elsie Carter of 193 Franklin Avenue, Mrs. Carol Yudin of 131 DeWitt Avenue, Mrs. Mary T. Gerard of 149 Cedar Hill Avenue, Mrs. Lillian France of 292 Holmes Street, Mrs. Margaret Rowe of 12 Carpenter Terrace and Mrs. Emil Serio of 279 Division Avenue.

According to Mrs. Metcalf, more volunteer Gray Ladies are needed, and a course of training and Red Cross orientation will be given at Soho Hospital and local Red Cross headquarters. Our Gray Ladies at the present time are working both at Soho and at the new East Orange Veterans Hospital. Projects already in progress, and requiring more volunteer assistance, particularly at Soho, include the work with the convalescent children, expanding the library project, and working with the patients in an arts and crafts instruction program, which spare two or three hours once a week to help the patients at Soho and East Orange Veterans Hospitals occupy their minds and their hands, should call Belleville Red Cross, PL 9-4610 and volunteer as a Gray Lady.

Afternoon Classes For Young Weightlifting Enthusiasts

Because of the increased demand for instruction in weightlifting by younger enthusiasts, Bob Cook, Recreation Supervisor, is offering guidance three afternoons a week from 3:30 P.M. to 5 P.M. Many of the young lads can't get out to the evening classes so this will afford them an opportunity to learn lifting at a convenient time. After the young embryo strongmen have become sufficiently proficient they will then be permitted to train by themselves.

Bob Cook has appointed George Waters as assistant instructor to help train the lifters. It is planned to appoint several others of the best qualified lifters as instructors in the near future. Phil Samaro has resigned as assistant instructor to the Barbell Club. Phil has loaned the club much valuable equipment for which all have been grateful. Fortunately, thru the efforts of Ed L. George, the Waters, Don Garland, Cy Amato, and Bob Cook, the equipment was immediately replaced so that all classes may continue without interruption.

Principal and Teacher At Teachers College Program

Mrs. Catherine Hardwick, principal of Passaic Avenue School, and Miss Jane Pichirrallo, cooperating teacher, attended an afternoon program and tea at the Newark State Teachers College recently. Mrs. Dorothy Waldo Phillips spoke on "The Other Side of the Child." During Miss Pichirrallo's absence from her second grade class, Miss Marie Cesario, student teacher, was in charge.

Soldier Completes Course In Radio Communication At Dix

Private G. A. Leonard, son of Mrs. L. B. Leonard of 260 Belmont Avenue completed basic training recently at the Medical Replacement Training Center at Camp Pickett, Virginia.

At MTTC, the Army's basic training school for medical-related men, he has received eight weeks of basic infantry training and eight weeks of medical training.
