recommended by Recreation authorities. The hard surface presents a constant hazard, making any fall a serious one. School Number Ten was criticized and yet it is completely covered with a special cork-asphalt surfacing material. Inasmuch as School Number Seven is merely across the street from the Stadium it is not considered necessary to put a complete play area at this school. The Stadium contains playground equipment, a track, softball diamonds, baseball diamonds, weightlifting room, rifle range, and bicycle training room. This should fill the needs of children in the Number Seven area.

Not Recreation Property
"Mention is made of a half-fence at School Number Three being in need of repairs. This half-fence is neither anywhere near the area used by the Recreation Department, nor is it the property of the Recreation Department."
"Inasmuch as all of our playgrounds are either fenced in sufficiently removed from the street or above street level, it doesn't seem probable that there is serious worry about 'sex offenders, mad dogs, and runaway automobiles.'"
"The Recreation Department fully realizes that there is no end to recreation. It is moving constantly forward and will continue to do so."

was confirmed by the Commissioners. At the time of the sale Mrs. Hahn's bid of $400 was the only one submitted. At the last commission meeting Mr. O'Toole asked the Commissioners to reopen the bidding, and since a question was raised about the town's right to sell the land because it was listed on the tax map as a proposed street, the matter was left to an investigation by Town Attorney Lawrence Keenan. Mr. Keenan reported that the town obtained the property by foreclosure in 1946 and that the title was good. As for the street designation, no record of this proposal was ever placed on file with the county clerk, so it is not binding on the property. There also was no action of previous commissions by resolution or ordinance setting the property aside as described on the tax map.

Walk In A Weed Patch

Walk with me through these bright
Patches of weeds, through seasons
Of the weeds' blossoming. Walk
Through Beebalm and Bottle-brush,
Past Cotton-pads and Corn Parsley,
Desert-holly, Dusty Miller and Joe-pye-weed,
And I will show you growing past Job's
Tears,
Pearly-everlasting and Pepper-berries,
The Tree-of-Heaven,
Tall in Rye-grass and Scotch Broom,
Beyond Privet-berries and Sea Oats.
Oh, let us walk together
Through the bright anonymous dust and sun
Of this simple place. Let us
Feel the naked sunlight on our lifted
Faces, and if we stand quite silent here
Perhaps we may hear the Trellis-of-Heaven
Whispering through Trumpet-vine
Into Elephant's-ear and Unicorn-pod
A secret that has to do with something lost
From the minds of men, some lost
Humility and grace. If we walk
Together here with banded heads
In these Holly-weeds bright with rain
Perhaps we shall find it again
In the Queen-Anne's Lace and the St. John's
Bread. Katharine Kennedy

Hey, Glickenhaus,

Belleville's Still In Essex County

The Essex County Board of Freeholders suddenly awoke, this week, to the fact that the New Jersey Highway Authority is twisting and torturing the law of 1952 which set it up, to gain an advantage in the financing — and in selling bonds — of the Garden State Parkway. Freehold Director Glickenhaus sounded off strenuously that he will not tolerate any infringement of the law which might forbid toll-free use of the Parkway between Belleville Avenue, in Bloomfield, and Springfield Avenue, in Irvington.

Hey, Glickenhaus, as far as we know, Belleville is in Essex County, too!

The law of 1952 says specifically that it is the duty of the Authority to permit the largest possible toll-free use of the new highway by intra-county and short-haul traffic. By building a toll-gate across the Parkway at Belleville Avenue and charging Belleville motorists 25 cents toll, the Authority is breaking the law.

The Essex County Board of Freeholders seems to forget that Belleville Avenue is not the northern limits of the county. Most of Belleville, half of Bloomfield and all of Brookside lie north of that proposed tollgate. As far as the Freeholders are concerned, however, their interest lies in insuring that Essex motorists may travel in the high speed lanes between Bloomfield and Irvington and not be shunted to parallel roads.

It is time that the Essex Freeholders wake up to the fact that a Parkway is being built on valuable land across a congested county, and to wake up, too, to the fact that the Authority is breaking a law.

It is insufficient for the Freeholders to concern themselves with high-speed, toll-free traffic between Bloomfield and Irvington. The Freeholders were not elected to act for half a county. They have the responsibility to represent a whole county. So long as Belleville is within Essex County, the Essex Freeholders have the responsibility to represent Belleville energetically.

Preserving A Heritage

There was a time when the Passaic river valley was one of the beauty spots of the American colonies. It was so beautiful, in fact, that views of the valley, at Belleville and at Passaic Falls, were immortalized on the blue Staffordshire ware made a century and more ago by English potters. It was so beautiful that when Captain Treat's Puritans sailed across from New Haven to settle Newark, the choice tracts were those between the Second and the Third rivers where the English found our Dutch ancestors already established on the lush meadows of the tidal river.

Then, in more recent times, there was an era when the Passaic river was a stench, an open sewer and the acids and industrial wastes of encroaching factories killed off the shad and destroyed the riverine families from living close to the stream.

All that was eliminated by sorely needed restrictions and, once again, the river valley is green and comparatively sweet-smelling. Alas, the development of this metropolitan area is so swift that it is inevitable that choice riverfront property is coveted by industry. A Newark boatbuilder wants to buy a strip of Nutley frontage and build a shipyard here for the repair of boats.

The last thing we want is another industry. We prefer to keep the few green-spots left to us. Our river front is comparatively open, except for several private homes and a new laboratory for the I.T. & T. The latter, however, went silently about its way and bought up about one-third of the green acres, from the Passaic County line to Highfield Lane. Unless the county, some day, condemns that land for park purposes, the I.T. & T. will hold it and promises to preserve its natural beauty by judicious landscaping.

The Essex County Park Commission now has in hand a master plan prepared by Olmsted Brothers, of Brookline, Mass., hired as consultants to help the Commission plan a complete park system while there still is open land left. The Olmsted Brothers have recommended that the remaining land between the Avondale Bridge and the Passaic County line be bought and developed as a continuation of the existing riverbank park.

In Extending Rent Controls

The Town Commission performed a duty to the town, Tuesday night, when it decided to enact the legislation necessary to bring to Belleville the advantages of the new state legislation permitting a continuation of rent control after the expiration tomorrow night of Federal controls. Unlike many towns in this metropolitan area, Belleville has no excess of rentable homes or apartments.

The Commission was compelled to choose between the protection of renters in a market bare of rentable properties and the proprietors of renting properties. There is no doubt that the landlords, in many instances, are deserving of the right to increase rents, legally. Most of the wartime controls have disappeared; rent controls undoubtedly will disappear, too, within several years.

In deciding the enactment of the state extension legislation here, the Commissioners were careful to emphasize that they took their action on the basis of Belleville's peculiar situation. There are not five homes or apartments to rent in all of Belleville, today, at any price. Everything that is for rent is already rented. The Commissioners felt that such a situation would breed trouble if all controls were suddenly withdrawn. The state law allows the Commission, next year or the year following, to rescind the new controls. It was evident from Tuesday's debate that if the renting market changes and homes once again become available to renters, the Commission will reexamine its action.

One Man's Opinion

A Truce In Korea Is Not The End, Merely The Beginning Of Troubles Because Of Red China's Demand For Seating In The UN.

BY RALPH E. HEINZEN

There can be no dancing in the streets across America over the signing of the Korean truce.

The truth is that we have been fought to a standstill by the Chinese Communists. Our great American potential, our mass production methods have been of no avail against a people who possess no heavy industry and who have been cut off from most of their foreign sources of oil, rubber, steel and foodstuffs.

From the day the Chinese joined the North Koreans against us, they have held the initiative in the war. We have been on the defensive and any defensive fight is a steady drain because the enemy, not ourselves, dictates where and when a battle will occur. He takes advantage of time and makes a major expansion of his own casualties while inflicting the heaviest possible losses. That is exactly what the Chinese did to us in the Korean mountains.

The Korean truce was wanted and is welcome. Any war, even such a "police action" as Harry Truman called it, is a danger because overnight it could expand, for any little incident, into a third world war.

Yet this truce, like any truce, is a fragile thing which could readily be broken by the Chinese or, for that matter, by our South Korean allies who are not of a mind to agree to the permanent severance of their country.

An imposed six months lull in the fighting is supposed to give the diplomats a chance to work out a peace-giving settlement. But how far are we willing to go when they demand as her first condition, that she be seated in the United Nations and as a permanent member of the Security Council, with Russia and her satellites and India backing her demand? How long will the British and the French stand by our refusal if Britain can obtain a reopened export market and the French can buy peace in Indochina by backing the Chinese Communist demand?

Advantages Of Truce
True, a truce which will disengage the American army, navy and air force from active battle is doubly welcome, firstly, because it will end our heavy casualties and secondly because it will strengthen our ability to ward off aggression on other fronts. But our own American continent. But it would be wrong, just as soon as a truce is signed, to evacuate our armed forces and come home.

This would be an armed truce, to continue the same permanent settlement is reached. In other words, fighting could, theoretically, break out again later this year or next if the permanent settlement negotiations collapse. In the meantime, our troops will stay put and merely rest on their arms. They will pull back only a few miles to allow the narrow neutral zone between the two lines.

Difficulties Of Truce
A frank look at the situation shows these difficulties:
1. The truce as drawn up covers only the fighting in Korea.

There is an article in this month's Readers Digest about "Bait" advertising. This article is a must for everybody to read who ever entertained a thought to try one of those unbelievably cheap offers which you read in the papers and hear on radio and TV. Only 3 weeks ago we wrote about the same topic in this column.

An ad typical of this order appeared during the last 2 weeks in this newspaper. Since TV servicing has been the source of the most frequent complaints to the Better Business Bureaus all over the country, it is regrettable that such an ad is allowed to appear. In one ad is an offer for a 19" picture tube for $18.50, but nothing is said that these picture tubes are not new, but rebuilt. Also a home call is offered for $1.50. The established time to be spent during a home call is 1/2 hour, in the above case the charge for work performed up to 1/2 hour should be $1.50. It takes usually about that time to replace a picture tube. Inquiry at the telephone number registered in the ad revealed that the charge for replacing a 19" picture tube would be $6.

If a nationally operating service organization like the RCE Service Co. charges $4.95 for the first 1/2 hour of service, you can be sure that this figure is right and has been established under observance of good business practices. There may be slight differences in charges from one service organization to another, but if some one offers to make a call for less than 1/2 of the price which everybody else charges, you may be sure that there is a catch somewhere. Next week we are going to give you a breakdown of the cost of a service call and you will readily see that it is impossible to make a call for $1.50, unless one has money to give away or make up in some way for losses.

It is admitted to membership. The only alternative is to buy unit by tremendous trade concessions to the Communist to recognize their regime or to concede their aggressive demands. Earlier hopes of winning Mao Tse-tung away from Moscow have been so thoroughly blasted that we must continue to rely on a Communist front against us in the Far East, which changes the whole picture of Japan. There was a time when our own State Department believed, after the death of Stalin, that Mao would not continue to recognize the leadership of Stalin. Now, however, there is not the slightest hint of a Chinese Titoist movement and Mao is a thoroughly convinced Marxist, unwaveringly dedicated to carrying out the Kremlin's master plan for a Communist Asia under Moscow's leadership.

5. If we insist upon keeping our own American troops in Korea, how can we demand that Red China pull its million soldiers out of North Korea? Yet Rhee has served formal notice that if, after the 180 day cooling off period, Chinese troops have not been evacuated from Korean soil, South Korea will "follow its own course of action." Rhee has consented only to the opening of a political conference 90 days after the truce is signed, and a subsequent 90 day period for the conference to reach its decisions. These can be depended upon to hold us and to hold the Chinese to that time table.

6. Has the UN suffered a blow to its prestige? After a tense debate in June, 1950, the UN failed to vote upon a resolution to repel aggression by military force. Has it succeeded in that, or has it stopped half-way? Has collective security been proven impracticable? Will it bring any change in American attitude towards the UN and toward collective security? Practically, the UN has proven in this case that it is no more powerful in halting an aggression than was the defunct League of Nations in preventing Mussolini's invasion of Ethiopia. Stalin's aggression against Finland, Japan's aggression against Manchuria and China and Germany's aggression against Czechoslovakia.

Turns On China
The whole knotty problem of China lies ahead. Early dispatches from Peking indicate that the UN has given in this case that it is no more powerful in halting an aggression than was the defunct League of Nations in preventing Mussolini's invasion of Ethiopia. Stalin's aggression against Finland, Japan's aggression against Manchuria and China and Germany's aggression against Czechoslovakia.

That followed the signing of the truce at Pannunjom reported from New Delhi that India will press her campaign for Communist China's admission to membership in the UN, and from London that Selwyn Lloyd, Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, promised the British Parliament that the British Government would soon press for discussions on the admission of Red China. We obviously would be the object of that British pressure.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has stated firmly that the United States will not consent to the question of China's membership in the UN going on the agenda of the forthcoming political conference on the permanent Korean settlement. The United States has the power of veto in the Security Council, he said, and would use it to prevent the seating of Red China as one of the five major powers.

Britain Wants Market
There are 55 non-Communist nations in the UN, but Britain and India, between them, can swing one-third of that number. It probably is a defensive measure by India, but Britain's attitude is clearly dictated by her desire to resume, as rapidly as possible, trade with China. The Chinese market, however, is a great British market and Britain needs to export. She also wants Peking's goodwill because of Hong Kong, the crown colony which has been Britain's last open door into China.

Despatches from New Delhi indicate that only an act of Chinese Communist aggression such as direct intervention in Indo-China would now alter India's favorable view of Peking's fitness to sit with peace-loving powers in international councils.

Although it is recognized that China undoubtedly supplies Communist-led Vietnam with the means of war, the long conflict in Indo-China is regarded by predominant Indian official opinion as essentially a civil affair and to two powers.

It may be mentioned that the Communist Chinese Embassy in New Delhi privately supports the Indian view that China will never be Russia's enthusiastic partner or at least not long countenance being a subordinate one.

India never accepted China's role in Korea as one of aggression. New Delhi privately supports the Indian view that China will never be Russia's enthusiastic partner or at least not long countenance being a subordinate one.

Neighborhood Party Held At School 1 Playground

Under the guidance of playground directors Harold Brand and Madge Conway and a group of community spirited "volunteers" the youngsters and the adults were treated to a really fine neighborhood party at No. One Playground, Wednesday of last week. The affair consisted of some strenuous activity on the part of the youngsters in the form of a basketball game while the "olders" engaged in a not so strenuous volleyball game. Needless to say the crowd of almost two hundred enjoyed both contests. A goodly number of ice cold watermelons were supplied to add zest to the affair, and it is rumored that some of the youngsters did away with some mighty enormous portions. Commissioner Hyde and Commissioner Sullivan took part in the festivities and were lavish in their praise of this group of citizens and the fine community spirit they displayed.
