

Mobilizes For Fight Against 'Parental Home'

Will Apply Political Pressure;
Get Ready For Battle in Court

This town was mobilizing today for an all-out fight against the decision of the County Board of Freeholders to build a parental home in Belleville, and if public opinion and political pressures fails to sway the Freeholders, it appeared likely that the battle would end in the courts.

The Freeholders have decided to the Board of Trustees of the Parental School 4 1/2 acres of land on the grounds of the County (Soho) Isolation Hospital on Franklin Avenue as the site for the $1,300,000 building.

Orchard Explains County Viewpoint On Parental Home

Summarizing what he called the position of the board of trustees of the Parental School, which plans to build its new Youth Home in Belleville over the protests of the town's residents, William J. Orchard, a member of the board, declared yesterday that if he thought the home was really injurious to Belleville, he would never have voted for the plan. Orchard, a Belleville industrialist, lives in Morrisville.

"This is a vital social problem with which we are dealing, and I have to take into consideration when we consider both sides of the question," Mr. Orchard said. "I somehow have the feeling that there are many residents of Belleville who have not yet expressed their views who realize someone must take the responsibility."

"We have to locate the home somewhere, and the Soho Hospital grounds appear to be the best site. It is the most centrally located, has the proper atmosphere for a psy-

Louis Noll Files Candidacy Pledges Tax Reduction Plan

Pledging himself to a 100-point reduction in Belleville's tax rate with no reduction in service to the people, Louis Noll, former commissioner, filed yesterday as a candidate for the Town Commission in the coming election. Noll, who lost the 1950 election, served on the commission for 12 years—eight as director of parks and public protection and four as public safety director.

Newark District Church Group To Meet At Fewsmith

Fewsmith Memorial Presbyterian Church will be host next Tuesday to the spring meeting of the Newark Presbytery, with 100 ministers and elders of 48 churches in attendance. The meeting, which was announced yesterday, will be the first such gathering here at the church in eight years. James K. Morse, its pastor, said.

Included on the agenda will be consideration of the recommendations of the Executive Committee of the General Assembly, and the pending state legislation. Action taken at the meeting will be reported to the assembly, and to those who introduced the bills.

The schedule includes reports on foreign missions, and on stewardship and promotion, which will be discussed by Dr. John C. Corbett, secretary of the Foreign Missions Board. The workshop period will be addressed by the Rev. Delbert Rayson, who will analyze "Evangelism in the Modern World." The luncheon recess will be served by members of the Fewsmith Memorial Church.

Mr. Arthur Leytham is chairman. A report submitted by a committee headed by the Rev. George R. Cox of the First Presbyterian Church of Bloomfield, will recommend that the Presbytery express its disapproval of a state assembly resolution which would amend the New Jersey constitution to permit the legislature to authorize state lotteries for the benefit of state institutions and education.

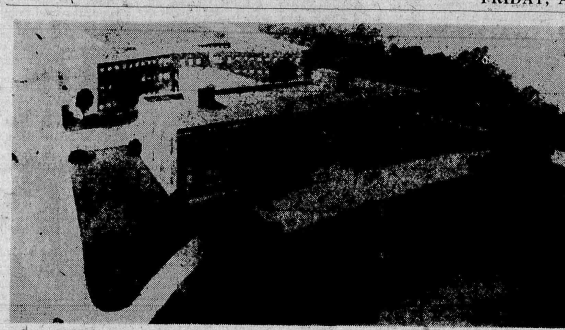

The mayor will also oppose tax exemption bill for parsonages. He would remove the present $5,000 limitation on exemption of church parsonages from property taxes; and the night harness racing bill "which would greatly increase pressure for additional harness race tracks." The committee will report that it is divided on another bill which would provide for a 2% increase in the state's share of pari-mutuel pools at all flat and harness racing tracks.

Refreshment will be served at 10 in the cafeteria by a committee consisting of Mrs. Frank Durkin, Mrs. Evan Thompson, Mrs. N. Pastore, Miss Olga Nelson, Mrs. Charles Travers, Mrs. Arthur Monroque, and Mrs. Frances Kelly.

Playing will proceed without interruption from 8 p.m. until midnight. Tickets for the game are still available and players are requested to bring their own cards.

STORM CENTER—This is an architect's sketch of the $1,300,000 Youth Home the county says it intends to build on the northern grounds of the Soho Isolation Hospital. The Town Commission has refused to grant a building permit, and property owners in the area, together with many civic organizations, are bitterly opposed to the plan. As part of the design, a high ivy-covered wall would encircle the building. The architect is W. O. Bartlett of Bloomfield.

Young Delegates Plan Visit To National Capital

History will come alive for the 7th and 8th graders of School No. 1, 9 and 10 this Wednesday when they head for the nation's capital and a grand tour of the White House, the Washington Monument, the Lincoln Memorial and all the other spots of interest they've read about in their text books.

The 125 Belleville "delegates" will be accompanied by Thomas Gryszka, principal, and Mrs. Louise Franklin of No. 9 school. Mrs. Ellen Angus and Mrs. Marie Doy of No. 1 school and Miss Frances Williamson of No. 10 school.

They will be up at the crack of dawn to board the luxurious "Morning Congressional" at 6:44 from Penn Station, Newark, and will arrive in Washington at 10 a.m. as a special treat, the 8th graders of the Lincoln Memorial and all the other spots of interest they've read about in their text books.

United Hospital Council Up For Consideration

Harry Specht, president of the Belleville Foundation, will meet with 17 hospital officials to consider the formation of an Essex County United Hospital Council on Thursday in the Division of Education, 755 Broad Street, at 4 p.m.

The group Thursday will lay plans for a study of county hospital needs.

Mayor Tully yesterday afternoon filed as a candidate for his third term as a member of the Town Commission, announcing that he would run on a record of "performance, not merely promises," and outlining an improvement program for the town.

The religious of political, however, may twist and distort, but they can't change my record, and I am proud of it," Mayor Tully declared in his statement.

The mayor said that if he is returned to office he will continue to press for an off-street parking program, for the reduction of aid and tax re-imbursements from both the state and county.

He also declared that he would bend every effort toward establishing safeguards against such county "encroachments" as the proposed parental home.

Structure of Government Helps or Hinders Citizens

During the past three weeks we have discussed the three forms of municipal government available for adoption by the voters of Belleville. They are the Mayor-Council Form, the City-Manager Form, and the existing Commission Form.

The machinery of government will not of itself solve any problems or automatically provide "good government." It is, and always will be, the responsibility of the voters to elect honest, able and sincere men to public office. However, the machinery of government can and should help, not hinder, their efforts.

Modern municipal government has developed, largely through trial and error, because of attempts by the citizen to arrive at a form of self-government which would be free of waste and inefficiency, yet flexible enough to be responsive to the wishes of the people. Tyranny was banished by the structure of government, certain checks and balances developed by our politically inventive forefathers. Some devices, such as frequent free elections with secret balloting and the process of law according to published laws and judicial precedent, are common to all levels and all forms of government in the United States. However, there are some functions of government which are handled differently in the various forms of government.

There are three fundamental jobs to be performed by all governments. They are determination of policy, administration of management, and the carrying out of operations.

The policy of government is the plan by which the results to be achieved by government. It is frequently very broad in concept and may mean vague. Some policies of government are:

"I know that Belleville cannot and will not fall the Red Cross, and I feel sure that before the campaign is over, we will be able to say that the drive has been a success," Chairman Padula said. "But everyone in this town—and by that I mean every resident, and not just the other fellow—must do his or her share."

"Donation of a single dollar enrolls the contributor as a member of the Red Cross, and helps support the kind of work that not only directly benefits the community but also supports the finest traditions of humanity. Please give—and give now. We need your help. If you have not yet made your contribution, please do so at once."

Public Safety Commissioner Sullivan had said previously that if Smith ran for the office, he would be forced to dismiss the deputy chief from the police department and refuse him his pension. Until late yesterday he had not yet taken this step.

Smith's campaign for office holds a number of interesting angles. He is not only going to

An Editorial:

No Time or Place for Prison Walls

Belleville is no place for prison walls and in this enlightened era it should, long ago, have been firmly established that juvenile delinquents are not criminals and that their redemption should take place in the vast open green fields, under blue skies, and not behind stone walls—even ivy covered.

A parental home in Belleville, on 4 1/2 acres of the Soho Isolation Hospital grounds, would be a terrible error, a scar on Essex County—bad for Belleville and bad for the boys and girls whose redemption the home would, supposedly, facilitate. It helps none that the Freeholders, in affirming their choice, explained that "it will be a pleasant looking building," with ivy camouflaging its true purpose, and would be isolated by a stone wall.

The unfortunate juveniles who are sent to a parental home deserve far better under-

Cost Estimates For New School Sharply Reduced

Belleville's Board of Education now has before it revised plans for a new high school which would cost "hundreds of thousands of dollars" less than the last set of plans brought before the board, it was learned yesterday.

The original building design included many requests from various school department heads for additional facilities, including a swimming pool which alone would cost approximately $250,000. One of the new sets of plans submitted by the board, however, included a swimming pool which alone would cost approximately $250,000. One of the new sets of plans submitted by the board, however, included a swimming pool which alone would cost approximately $250,000.

Neither details of the design nor the board's plans were available. Board members explained that they had not yet concluded their study of the blue-prints, and could not discuss their efforts.

No Fight In GOP Committee Race; Dems Slightly Split

Incumbent Belleville Clean Government Republicans will be opposed in the April 20 primary for county committee and committeewomen, but a fight looms in three ward districts in the Democratic race.

In the first district of the first ward, Joseph Natale, Regular Democrat, is opposed by Frank Simeone, and in the second district of the fourth ward, Joseph Natale, Regular Democrat, is opposed by Frank Simeone, and in the third district of the fourth ward will see a race between Barton Risoli, the incumbent, and Peter Biase.

Anthony F. Moro had originally announced his intention of running against Nicholas Rainone, in the second district of the fourth ward, but has since withdrawn. There are no candidates for the first district of the second ward.

Some changes have been made in the Clean Government lineup because one of the incumbents has moved from Belleville, and two others decided not to make the race. In the second district of the first ward, Harold F. Brand has succeeded Andrew Scale as the party candidate; in the fourth district, Joseph Natale, Regular Democrat, is opposed by Frank Simeone, and in the fifth district, Joseph Natale, Regular Democrat, is opposed by Frank Simeone.

Vara To Head Public Works; Waters Resigns

Ralph Vara, assistant superintendent of the town's public works department, has been named to succeed James L. Waters as superintendent, effective immediately, it was learned yesterday.

Waters, who became superintendent of the department in 1950, resigned earlier in the week without giving any reason in his letter of notice. It is known that he has been suffering from bad health, and a reporter who phoned his home in an effort to obtain a fuller statement was told that he has been ill in bed for the past four days.

His resignation followed by only a few days the withdrawal of his brother, Patrick A. Waters, from the Town Commission race. Waters' resignation would not seek re-election after 28 years as a commissioner, explaining his doctor had warned him that he would endanger his life if he subjected himself to the strain of another campaign.

James Waters, who is 64, will receive approximately $15,000 of his $5,400 annual salary as his retirement pension, it was estimated. He was employed by the department since 1928. He started as a laborer, and worked his way up to his present position.

Elective School Board Chances Good, Says Group

Though the executive committee of the organization for the elective school board, the Newark Citizens' Association, has reported to Raymond J. O'Brien, president, that there is no apparent organized opposition to its proposal for an elective school board instead of the present appointive system, the Belleville Citizens' Association will continue to press its campaign on this issue, it was announced yesterday.

The question will be determined in a special referendum vote in May 11 election.

O'Brien warned members of the Association against any let-up in acquainting public opinion with the proposed elective system, which he termed the optimistic outlook.

"The fact is that members who have spoken to organized groups and smaller informal gatherings have been overwhelmingly in favor of replacing the present system of appointment of members of the board," O'Brien said.

Edward J. Ackerman, chairman of the group's public relations committee, said that the group's committee was scheduled to speak last V.F.W. Post and its Ladies Auxiliary, and Nuncio Pico, member of the executive committee, will address Amvets Post No. 25 tomorrow.

The organizations already addressed by speakers representing the organization are the Young Men in Government, Belleville Lions Club, Home Association, and the Fewsmith Memorial Presbyterian Church Mothers' Club.

O'Brien said that any organization interested in hearing representatives of the organization discuss the issue should contact with W. Allison Boyd, vice-president of the Citizens' Association, at 52 Rossmore Place.

Mansol Ceramics Co. Will Open New Plant April 15

Opening of its new factory and offices at 140 Little Street has been set for April 15, the Mansol Ceramics Company, manufacturers of industrial ceramic products, announced yesterday. The company will hold open house this Saturday, beginning at 2:30 p. m., for town officials, members of the police and fire departments, industrial executives of other plants, and its employees and friends.

The company, which is presently located at 13 Valley Street, is moving into its new $110,000 plant because of its expanding business, officials said.

The plant will house three separate operations. One is the ceramics division. A second, known as the Mansol Service, is in the heating, ventilation, air conditioning, and refrigeration department, supplying candy and other products to motion picture houses in cities and on army locations along the East coast. The third, the Stereo Vending Company, manufactures "3-D" picture setups for various advertising uses.

Three partners operate the business. They are Law Solomon of Nutley, Sol Feldman of West Essex, and Manny Brucker of West Orange.

The one-story, all-steel building is 100 by 150 feet, and is located on four acres. Its 15,000 square feet of space is completely air-conditioned. Construction was begun last July by Angelo Ruffalo, local contractor. The architect is Michael Trotter of Belleville.

Mrs. George Warhurst

Mrs. Grace Weber Warhurst of 120 Rutgers Street, widow of George Warhurst, died Monday in Presbyterian Hospital. She was 61. Mrs. Warhurst was born in Detroit and lived in Newark before moving to Belleville 50 years ago. She was employed for many years by the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co. and by Wallace & Tierman Co., Inc. of Belleville. Since her husband had been employed by the Seaside Hotel, Ocean Grove.

She leaves a sister, Mrs. William Sandford, at home and two nieces, Miss Lois Weber of Springfield and Mrs. Shirley Halma at home.

Services were held Wednesday at the William V. P. Irvine & Son Funeral Home, with Rev. Peter Schenck officiating. Burial was in East Ridgeland Cemetery, Delawanna.

Pioneer Recalls When Shad Swarmed the Passaic River

By M. C. Albey

This is the second week of Spring and if this was another Spring, not so terribly many years ago, Spring would mean shad on many Belleville tables.

The Passaic River, in those days before it became a handy sewer, was teeming with fish. Spring brought the shad and the smelts, and if you permit a handy pun, the Passaic smelt good in those days. Smelts were caught by the wagonload, furnishing the Newark and part of the New York market.

Salting Shad Down

During the season of the shad run, as the fish swam up as far as the Passaic falls to spawn, there were twenty hauling places here and up and down stream. At each hauling place, where the nets were brought ashore, the catch was a thousand or more.

Farmers from Cranetown (Montclair, today) and Bloomfield, and as far away as Caldwell, drove to Nutley bringing their own barrels and their salt. Along the river, they would buy the shad at an average price of $8 per hundred, clean them and lay them neatly, salted, in the barrels.

Coming up the river at the same time as the shad were sturgeon, which Belleville folk called "Allany" or "Allany". As they fed on the shad, the sturgeon leaped three or four feet out of the water, and hundreds of them were taken here every Spring, but they had to be cut up and eaten pronto. They ran from three to seven feet in length.

Fisherman's Paradise

Besides those salt water fish which came up every Spring to their Nature's spawning cycle, the Passaic river had plenty of fresh water fish in the river which, in those happy days, was clear as crystal. Early reports tell of plenty of surfish, bass, perch and catfish, and one of the earliest historians whose book has come down to us in a single copy today the possession of Howard Doolittle, of Nutley - H. Holmes wrote that you could fill your basket, with rod and line, in one hour.

Holmes, for whom a street in Belleville was named to commemorate him as a regional historian and as a river steamboat captain, tells, too, of a favorite winter sport here - ice fishing.

"There were plenty of fishermen but the fish seemed always to keep ahead of the fishermen," Holmes writes in his book entitled "Reminiscences of 75 Years

Local Scouts Take Part In "Ike's" Conservation Plan

Belleville Cubs, Scouts and Explorers will comply with president "Ike's" request that the Boy Scouts of America devote their 1954 efforts toward conservation and forest-fire prevention.

Poster urging the boys to protect wildlife and natural resources will be displayed in the windows of 200 business firms on Main Street, and 804 cards, signed by chief scout executive, Dr. J. Schack, will be distributed by Douglas Wadsworth, district commissioner for the Belleville Boy Scouts, indicating participation by the holder in the project.

As some of their projects, the local Scouts, Cubs, and Explorers will plant saplings in Essex County park and in scout camps in the Robert Frost council to prevent erosion gullies, build bird houses and feeding station, erect fire lines in wooded areas and plant grass seed in bare areas.

On Thursday, scout masters, cub and explorer advisors will meet at the recreation house to plan a spring and summer conservation and recreation program.

Big Ten Adopts Point System

Belleville High School was well represented at a meeting of the Big Ten Conference Tuesday afternoon at Montclair High School. Attending from Belleville were Superintendent of Schools Evan Thomas, principal Hugh Kittinger, faculty manager Harold Dufford, baseball coach Ed Berlinki and basketball coach Jitty Wisne. Berlinki is rounding out his term as secretary-treasurer of the strong aggregation of Group 4 schools which banded together last year.

During the session which attracted administrators and coaches from all 10 member schools, Kittinger was selected to head a nominating committee for the purpose of presenting a slate of officers at the next scheduled confab to be at Nutley High School on May 3.

Unanimous approval was given at the meeting for the awarding of a plaque in memory of famed Irvington baseball coach "Doc" Gantz, who died suddenly of a heart attack on Sunday. One of the most noted scholastic coaches in the state, Gantz guided the Campers to 15 state titles and five Greater Newark Tournament championships in his 25 years as head coach at Irvington.

Falling in line with the trend of other collegiate and independent baseball leagues, Big Ten members adopted a point system for determining team placement in loop standings. This season game winners will be awarded a total of two points, with each team receiving one point if the fray ends in a deadlock. Following the Big League and Junior American Legion baseball set-up, the new point system will overcome the problem of ties games being called by darkness.

Practice Games On Tap

With only two and one-half weeks to go before the season opener, baseball coach Ed Berlinki will get an excellent indication of just how his charges will operate under fire this season as he puts the candidates through their paces in four practice games within the next week. Belleville opens its regular 14-game campaign, April 21, playing a Big Ten Conference game at Municipal Stadium against always powerful Columbia.

The series of practice games actually was to have started yesterday with a tune-up tilt at North Arlington. Belleville baseball supporters will be able to get their first look at this season's squad in action tomorrow morning starting at 10 a. m. when a practice game is played against Seton Hall Prep on Municipal Stadium's second diamond. Games for next week are being negotiated with Glen Ridge and Clifton Scott. In the meantime, Berlinki plans to get a look at as many of the diamond candidates as possible.

The veteran pilot moved his gigantic squad outdoors for the first time on Monday. Greeted by 70 candidates, the largest turnout since taking over the coaching reigns, Berlinki has trimmed the squad down to 50.

Bellemoids Entered In Essex Softball Loop

The Belle-Maid Milk Bar, of Joralemon Street, will be one of 14 class "A" teams making up the strong Essex County Amateur Softball Association. Scheduled to open on May 24, the season will continue through the summer with each team meeting the remaining 14 teams twice for a rugged 26-game schedule. All games will be twilight and night affairs with action slated for three days a week at Rupert, Unterman and City Stadiums in Newark.

Manager of the Bellemoids is Ed Strat. This will mark the seventh season of operation for the Bellemoids. Last years the softball combine went on to capture the Commissioner Elmer Hyde trophy in recognition of defeating Federal Leather for the town championship.

Passaic "Flooded" With 78 Crew Candidates

Crew Coaches Bill Bennett and Ray Smith were greeted by 78 candidates at the initial day of practice on the Passaic River last week. Using five, eight-oared shells and a four at daily crew practices, Bennett is slowly rounding the Belleville squad into shape for the season opener on April 10. In the curtain raiser Belleville will play host to Columbia University's lightweight varsity. Aiding Bennett for the second year is co-coach Ray Smith, who is also JV baseball and football coach.

Bennett is taking it easy with the huge squad as they toughen their hands from the oars and stop getting blisters. A unique feature of the program set up by Bennett, who works on a gratis basis, is that no boy is ever cut from the squad. With the big Belleville group, and an additional 72 candidates from Nutley, Bennett divides the 150 member aggregation into three shifts, with 50 oarsmen on the Passaic at one time. The varsity starts off the action after dark and the final shell doesn't arrive back at the boat house until almost 7 o'clock.

Missing from last year's varsity eight are five rowers who were lost through graduation. Vacancies will have to be found for coxswain Jim Kant, stroke Bill Hall, Nick Christos who is now at Columbia, Ron Worthington, at Dartmouth; Harold Sutphen, at Brown; and Bill Dunleavy. Returning for the 1954 campaign will be veterans Ed Gray, Bob Taylor and Bob Anten. Expected to battle for the remaining spots are Joe Zipf, Howie Taubin, Harry Glass, Bob Paganelli and Bill Chapman. Holding the inside track for the coxswain position is Don Caroselli.

Colonels Seek Belleville Players

Manager Ernie Lantz, of the Nutley Colonels, issued a plea for former Belleville scholastic and college players to try out for the Nutley semi-pro team. Last year the Nutley diamond team captured the pennant in the eight-team Essex County League. All games are played on weekends with the season beginning in early May and continuing through the summer. Nine Sunday games are slated for Nutley's Park Oval, home of the Maroon Raiders. The Colonels, in addition to defending its Essex County togo, may also join the North Jersey League, a twilight organization.

Belleville candidates interested in playing with the Nutley Colonels this year can try out for the squad at Brookdale Park tomorrow afternoon at 3 p. m. and on Sunday at 1 p. m.

A year ago when the Colonels went on to capture the Essex crown a fixture in the outfield was Mike Del Turfo, of Belleville. Expected to return to his regular out garden berth in the summer, Del Turfo is now attending Muhlenberg College in Pennsylvania where he is a member of the diamond team.

Gay After - Theatre Party For Cast of Senior Play

Sandra Hoch, of 32 Elmwood Avenue, gave a wonderful "after-theatre" party last Saturday night for the whole cast of the high school senior play, "Curse of an Aching Heart." About 50 seniors, including the principals in the play, stage hands, make-up crew and their dates, took over for a gay climax to their successful production. Between dancing and singing and nibbling on refreshments, they did plenty of talking about the play. The teen-age "grease-paint" artists agreed that Sandra's party was one of the high lights of the season.

Parties seem to be in the air, and it was a gay one they had at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Riegler, of 214 Ralph Street, last Saturday evening. More than 30 guests from Connecticut, Maryland, New York and New Jersey were invited to celebrate the recent engagement of the Riegler's daughter Madge to John S. Phillips, a lieutenant (J.G.) in the U.S. Army. Phillips was home on a short leave from the Brooklyn Navy Yard and it was a happy event. Phillips was surrounded by his family and friends. Miss Riegler's fiancé is from Weatherfield, Connecticut.

Anthony Iannone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Iannone of 19 Trenton Avenue, was home with arrangements for the annual spring dance and variety show, to be the poster display in the window of the new Bronx University School of Law. Anthony is a junior at N.Y.U., a graduate of Belleville high school, and a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

Be sure and make a point of strolling past the Red Cross headquarters, 260 Washington Avenue, to see the poster display in the window. They're original designs by the students of Schools No. 1, 3 and 5, entered in the annual poster contest under the supervision of Helen Simpson, art director. The posters are designed and illustrated, signed and dated. Sixth, seventh and eighth grade artists thought them up.

All the friends and neighbors of John Goble, of 384 Stephen Street, wish him a speedy recovery from that fractured shoulder blade which resulted from a fall in his home. Mr. Goble, a resident of Belleville since 1929, is hospitalized in the Essex County Isolation (Soho) Hospital. Since mail time is the bright spot in the day, you might like to drop him a line to let him know you're thinking of him.

Easter bonnets and "bushes and bows" are uppermost in the minds of all the ladies around town and last week, when Mrs. James H. Schaeffer entertained at her home, 78 Prospect Place, it's for sure that the topic of the day. It was a cocktail luncheon for some of Mrs. Schaeffer's friends who had been in the recent Catholic Daughters' fashion show, and among her guests were Mrs. John Sheridan, Mrs. William Falvey, Mrs. George Mess, Mrs. Alan Conklin and Mrs. Harry Walsh. Since they had all taken part in the show, they were well up on spring styles.

Mrs. John Gallagher of 274 Greylock Parkway, adult councilor of the new Onus Dei group of St. Mary's C.Y.O., was delighted with the huge turnout at their first meeting. Plenty of Belleville took to this lively new group which will compete in Essex county C.Y.O. one-day play contest later this month. Any of you teen-agers between 17 and 19 who are interested in drama might like to sign up for membership in the club. Plans are in progress for a musical variety show sometime in May.

Mrs. Leonora Willette spoke at the recent meeting of the Women's League discussion group. Her topic, "Migrant Workers in New Jersey" is one in which she is deeply interested. She will address the Business and Professional Women of Little Falls on the same subject April 23.

When old-timer Herman Schaeffer, former resident of Belleville, dropped in unexpectedly on Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Griffin of 106 Holmes Street Saturday, they spent the afternoon chatting about friends and neighbors. Mr. Schaeffer, now living in Clonster, drove all the way down to wish Mrs. Griffin success in her campaign.

PARENTS TO MEET SCHOOL OFFICIALS ON OVERCROWDING

Residents in the School No. 7 area will continue to press for a new building addition to relieve over-crowding at the school instead of accepting any plan for a school 120 pupils now attending the school to School No. 3 and 5. The announcement was made by John Zepka, representing a group of parents who declared that every effort would be made to avoid acrimonious debate with members of the board.

"All we are interested in is the protection of our children," Mr. Zepka said. "I am sure we can do that amicably, and I hope we can help the Board of Education in settling this problem."

Marine Pfc. John Goldacker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Goldacker of 124 Rutgers Street, reported to the Marine Corps Air Station at Cherry Point, N. C., for duty with the 2d Marine Aircraft Wing.

Pfc. Pete Clarizio of Belleville, a rifleman in Company K of the 188th Airborne Infantry Regiment, is at Camp Hale, Colo., for Exercise Ski Jump. The Army's 1954 cold weather and mountain training maneuver.

Clarizio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Clarizio, 19 Mt. Pleasant Avenue, entered the Army last April. He formerly attended Rutgers University.

School Happenings

Looking to the day when Belleville will create a junior high school to include grades 7, 8, and 9, 35 teachers met at school No. 3 in a workshop session with Dr. Gordon N. Mackenzie, chairman, department of curriculum and teaching, Teachers College, Columbia University. Dr. Mackenzie discussed the philosophy of the junior high school and the place of the junior high school in a modern program of education, and answered the questions of the teachers.

A thirteenth workshop will meet with Dr. Arno Bellack, curriculum specialist, to discuss junior high school programs on April 27, and with Dr. Phil Lange, specialist in teaching, for a consideration of methods of teaching in the junior high school on May 18.

Spring conferences of parents and teachers will be held on the afternoons of April 1 and April 6, beginning at 2:10 p.m. Parents who can not attend on these days because of work will have conferences on the evening of April 13, beginning at 7 p.m. This program, of 250 operating on the elementary schools, aims to provide every parent with a private conference with the teacher of each child. In a recent survey by the work of their children, the workshop of parents and teachers on the student and pointed out that politics is "everybody's business". The candidate enumerated a 9-point program which revolved around two basic ideas: "First, it is time for a change and second, sound business principals must be brought into the operation of the town government."

The meeting concluded with a pledge by its supporters to make the municipal government "clean by voting for Albertain."

Mr. and Mrs. Clement J. Rankin of 10 Van Ness Avenue, Pompton Plains, are the parents of a son, Scott David, born March 21 at St. Barnabas Hospital, Newark. It is the couple's first child. Mrs. Rankin is the former Jean Lane of Belleville.

quests but not only from New Jersey but from all over the nation including Lake Charles, La., Santa Rosa and Chremont College of California, and the University of the Philippines.

The painting of classroom windows of all grades from eight through one was one of the major art projects at Passaic Avenue School during the past month. This project afforded children an opportunity to express their ideas of paint over large areas, something they really enjoyed.

Long hauled brushes and gallons of multicolored tempera paints completed the job, turning the windows into harbingers of Spring. More than 75 children participated in this project.

The Sixth Grade Class of School No. 10 under the supervision of their teacher, Miss Rose Simon, presented a citizenship program in the school auditorium which integrated classroom curriculum interests and school activity group interests. Three history skills emphasized citizenship ideals of the Greeks and the Romans. Representatives of the Student Government Organization, the Junior Red Cross Council, and the School Safety Patrol reviewed some of their goals, and their accomplishments. The program closed with a humorous play titled, "Make Him Smile."

Students participating in the history skills were George Dadda, Roger Ellis, Robert Harvey, Barry Marder, Robert Reilly, Dennis Velardi, Arlene Salerno, Carol Ann Tule, Elaine Vallance, and Richard Ray. Participants in the play were Patricia Inguazuita, Barbara Kroycher, Carol Minasian, Francine Milano, Arlene Novik, Marlene Vissoli, Edward Chelie, Vincent Matrux, Richard Jordan, and Carol Sargent.

Although the Calendar

What does it matter if the clock chimes noon Or if the calendar denies it's spring? I do not mark the seasons by the moon. But by the sudden flashing of a wing. The first tight buds along the maple bough. A butterfly with wings of molten glass—I need no other proof that spring is now. Than violets half hidden in the grass.

What if the robin has been premature Or grass has rushed the season just a bit? There is one thing of which we may be sure: That beauty is the one prerequisite—When waxwings take the apple tree, we know It's spring, although the calendar spells snow.

Mae Winkler Goodman

A Fool Must Be A Wise Fellow

The first of April, some do say, Is set apart for All Fools' Day But why the people call it so Nor I, nor they themselves do know.

In virtually every corner of the earth and back to remote antiquity, some form of April Fool's Day has been celebrated by the playing of harmless pranks on friends and neighbors, indulging in mild practical jokes, and inveigling the unwary into ludicrous situations.

When on April 1 the mischievous youngster of modern times disconnects the television aerial and waits for an unsuspecting victim to fall neatly into his trap, he is forging, even though unaware of it, another link in the centuries-old chain that binds him in foolhood to his brothers of ancient Rome, who celebrated a Feast of Fools on the seventh of February; to the pagans who held festivals of a similar character to mark the Vernal Equinox; and to the ancient Hindus, whose principal amusement at the Feast of Huli on the thirty-first day of March was dispatching their friends on humorous errands.

"Sleeveless" errands, the English called them about two centuries ago, and a unique theory was advanced as to their origin. The London Public Advertiser of March 13, 1769, published the unusual theory that the April Fool custom arose from "the mistake of Noah sending the dove out of the ark before the water had abated, on the first day of the month among the Hebrews which answers to our First of April, and to perpetuate the memory of this deliverance it was thought proper, whoever forgot so remarkable a circumstance, to be punished by sending him upon some sleeveless errand similar to that infelicitous message upon which the bird was sent by the patriarch."

The English were latecomers on the field of April foolery, however, for the custom had long been accepted in France where an April fool was called a "poisson d'avril," or April fish, perhaps because an April fish is a young one and easily caught. If we draw the net tight, we find King Charles IX of France at the bottom of it; this monarch who was not averse to change, for in 1564 he approved the reformed calendar, and France became the first nation to adopt it.

Until that time, April 1 rather than the first day of January was New Year's Day, and was observed by the exchange of gifts and visits. It is not to be supposed that so radical a change met with no opposition, for, happily then, as now, society had its measure of conservatives and nonconformists, and it may be that we owe our day of April foolery to them. Their objections to the new calendar made them the object of jokes, and thus it came about that April 1 was marked by pretended calls of ceremony upon these rugged individualists, mock gifts were sent to their homes, as well as invitations to New Year celebrations which failed to materialize. So entrenched did this custom become that only the most venturesome would start an enterprise or even get married on that day. Napoleon never showed his boldness more clearly than in getting married on All Fools' Day.

One Man's Opinion

Red China Continues To Knock Insistently On Door Of UN — With New Supporters Taking Her Side

BY RALPH E. HEINZ

With singular persistence, Red China and her well-placed friends are maneuvering to force her way into the United Nations. Can they succeed? China, anxious to accomplish it at Geneva late this month. If they fail at Geneva, they are certain to try it at the Fall meeting of the UN General Assembly. The United States stands by its guns. "Over my dead body," Secretary of State Dulles said, dramatically, when the issue was last raised. The subject is one of the few, along with Senator McCarthy's feud with the Army, which can cause President Eisenhower to anger.

Soviet Russia has made Red China's admission to the UN the No. 1 project on its diplomatic agenda. The annulment of the European Defense Community and the European Army, combined, are agenda item No. 2. Alone, Russia has failed on every try. Now, however, she has found her allies. Sir Gladwyn Jebb, who recently returned to London to become British Ambassador to France after having served excellently as British delegate to the UN, and Dag Hammarskjöld, Secretary General of the UN, both expressed the view in speeches before the "Big Six" in London, last week, that once Communist China is purged of the sin of aggression it should be admitted to the UN.

Sir Gladwyn, in proposing the substitution of Red China for Nationalist China, urged the United States to accept the principle of "universality" in making the United Nations a true world forum in which peace "could be won." Here at UN headquarters, Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., the U. S. delegate who worked closely and well with Sir Gladwyn, said he would not shrink from using the veto, if necessary, to keep Peking out.

Driving Hard Bargain

The question of Red Chinese UN membership is sure to come up at the Geneva conference on Korea due to begin April 26. Either it will be part of the price Peking will demand for an agreement on Korea and Indo-China, or it will be the recognized reward for Peking's cooperation in bringing peace to Asia.

If the Communists ran true to form, and as they have in the past, they would rather conciliate the West, the issue may be temporarily sidestepped. For UN membership would have been handed Red China for having broken up the conference and deadlocked the Korean and Indo-Chinese issues.

Consequence of Trade

As long as the Korean war was on, Peking had no real chance of getting into the UN, despite Soviet propaganda in its behalf. But with the truce, and with or without Korean political agreement, the pressure for Red Chinese membership in the UN among non-Communist states has been mounting.

Thus either this spring in Geneva or this fall in New York, Secretary of State Dulles is going to have to face up to this issue. That may explain why the word came out of Washington this week that the State Department is trying to soft-pedal the Geneva meeting. The question is complicated because the United States is not only itself able to keep the Red Chinese out of the UN. It has said very recently that it would use its veto to keep Peking out of the Security Council. But the Council is the only UN body where Washington has a veto.

Chances Of Confusion

In the General Assembly and in every other body of the UN, the United States has no veto. It may have influence, but it cannot block. Thus it is quite possible for Red China to be voted into every UN body except the Security Council over American opposition.

The claim to a Security Council veto on this question of Red Chinese membership, it should be noted, reverses the position of the previous administration. Secretary Acheson had argued that there was a fine but important distinction between whether China had a right to UN membership and whether China was to speak for China's 400,000,000 before the UN. The first question was substantive and voteable; the second procedural and nonvoteable, he maintained.

The Charter of the UN had established UN membership and a Security Council seat for China, but when it came to deciding whether Nationalist China or Communist China had a right to that seat and representation, that was another question. The question thus became whether Peking or Peking represented the people of China.

Troublesome Alternatives

Of the various solutions to this dilemma, none is going to be pleasing or be agreeable to all concerned. If the Eisenhower administration votes Red China's membership on the Security Council, it is going to buck both Moscow and many of its Western Allies. If it approves Red Chinese membership in the Council, it is going to bring the wrath of the Peking bloc in the Security Council down on its head.

If Peking does not get a seat on the Council but gets admitted to the Assembly, you have this predicament, either two Chinas in the Assembly both claiming to talk for 400,000,000 Chinese, or the Nationalist regime thrown out of the Assembly but still representing China in the Security Council.

Such a situation could be a ceaseless source of strife and would certainly be a constant cause of friction and irritation in both Assembly and Council. But the only other alternative to this

"No Regard For Belleville"

To The Editor, The Times-News:

I have addressed the following letter to Freeholder Elwood Russell:

It has been brought to my attention through the public press that the Board of Freeholders of Essex County has voted unanimously to locate the new Essex County Parental Home in the Belwood Park section of Belleville, adjacent to the Essex County Isolation Hospital.

I wish to place with you my most strenuous objection to this arbitrary action of the Board of Freeholders. Once again, in my opinion, the Freeholders have acted with little or no regard for the town of Belleville, its citizens and its property owners, and I certainly feel that it is about time that some consideration be given.

It is a matter of record that approximately one-fifth of the total population of Belleville is now County-owned and controlled, viz., Hendricks Field Golf Course, Isolation Hospital and surrounding grounds, Branch Brook Park Extension, Belleville Park, and the park development along the Passaic River. This, of course, is exclusive of the County roads and highways running through the town.

For all of this land, Belleville receives no remuneration from the County in the form of taxes. Yet Belleville must supply all services and utilities which it normally supplies to tax paying properties.

Certainly, under these circumstances, Belleville is now overburdened with County property and institutions, and should not have forced upon it another institution, especially of the type which is objectionable, not only to the property owners, but to the immediate vicinity, but to the entire town.

The location of town in which the proposed Parental Home is to be located is a highly desirable and beautiful residential section of the town, and its location will have a serious effect upon the surrounding property values, the peace of mind and tranquility of the town's citizenry.

While I hesitate to bring politics or party affiliation into matter of this type, I can certainly assure you that if it is the case of the Essex County Board of Freeholders to locate Belleville from the solid Republican suburban bloc, they are doing so, by forcing this institution upon Belleville over the solid objections of its citizenry.

It is my considered opinion that there are many locations throughout the county where it would be more advantageous to locate this institution, especially in some municipality which is not now overburdened with County tax free property.

The Board's statement that the Belleville site was chosen from the standpoint of being near the center of the county population density is a weak and indefensible argument, when taking into consideration modern transportation facilities and the main and

"Communists Are Not Communist"
To The Editor, The Times-News:
Your editorial in the March 26 Times-News, "Why Is a Communist?" leads me to ask why are the citizens of the United States, Socialists, Republicans, Communists when the political system of Russia is really state capitalism?
Everyone knows that after Lenin's death the Communists under Trotsky came to blows with Stalin and his hard-bitten state capitalists, and the scholarly Trotsky made a break for Switzerland, leaving his followers to their fate. Later in Mexico he used death at the hand of an assassin.
There are several true communist capitalists here in America, the Hutterites in the Dakotas and Alberta and a small colony of Scotch people in Nova Scotia, but their political system bears no resemblance whatsoever to the so-called communistic system in Soviet Russia, with its unscrupulous leaders.
Perhaps you can give me some light on why the citizens of Malenkoff's Russia are called Communists.
B. B. Bingham
(Editor's note: Reader Bingham is absolutely right. The use of the term "Communist" to denote the inhabitants of Soviet Russia is wrong. Today's "Communists" can only pretend to the glory of the First Commune of 1871 which was a political, rather than a moral consequence of Napoleon III's defeat in the Franco-Prussian War. The Prussians had overrun Paris and surrounded it. All national French government having been rendered impossible, each town fended for itself and there were "communes" in Paris, Lyons, Marseilles, Narbonne and St. Etienne, each governing itself. The inhabitants were called "communists." George Clemenceau was one such Paris "communist" and he would turn over in his grave if he thought he was identified with today's Moscow gang.
Reader Bingham is right also in citing numerous American efforts at communist living—aiming at common possession of all property and at the equal distribution of wealth and income. Beside those he lists, I remember such a commune in Ohio, at Zoar, where the inhabitants called themselves "Zoarites." Also well known were other such communes at New Harmony, Ind., and Brook Farm at West Roxbury, Mass.
In Russia, the 1917 revolution was the work of the Bolsheviks (the Russian word means merely "majority") and the Mensheviks (the "minority"). It was only in Stalin's time that the word Bolshevik—by then covered with opprobrium—was abandoned in favor of Communist and Stalin pretended that he took it from Karl Marx. There is a historical record of a "Communist Manifesto," dated in 1848, signed by Marx and Friedrich Engels, in which they explained that the term was identical with socialism. (R.E.H.)

I look forward to reading your weekly articles entitled "A Living Page of History" each week with keen anticipation. Your articles are wonderfully written and filled with many valuable historical facts. Many of the facts you mention never did get into the newspapers during the days of World Wars I and II... at least I did not see them.
These articles, therefore, provide me and countless others of your readers with new facts. These stories, like Laurence Paduan, have earned my praise.

Shower... Not Sprinklings!

Just as April rains bring Spring Flowers, visits to A&P bring showers of values.

That's because A&P has storewide low prices... not just a sprinkling of marked-down "leaders"...

Since 1859, your A&P has been pioneering in new ways to bring more good food to more people for less money. If you have any suggestions as to how we can improve our service to you, please pass them along to your friendly A&P Manager.
