

Clearman Seems Sure Of Recreation Title

With only one week of competition remaining before the close of the town recreation department's playground softball league season, Clearman Field remained the favorite to take the league title. A prize will be awarded to the winning team by Commissioner Elmer S. Hyde, director of parks and public property.

Clearman has won seven games and has lost one. In the first game, driving in the winning run in the final inning with a single. He also batted a homer in the course of the game. Tom Cullen added another homer.

Noonan struck strong in the pinches, bearing down particularly in the fifth inning when he struck out Leibley, who had escaped in to bat for Elmer Hanz, the losing pitcher. Recreation's top hitter was Tom Joyce, who got 4 out of 5.

In the game against Stadium, Tommy Cullen, a first-class shortstop, belted a grand slam home run. DeFazio started the ball rolling in the first with a homer.

Perfetti by No. 10, No. 7, and Stadium helped to add up some league points for Recreation House, but the Rec's dropped another game to No. 9 by a 4-0 score. No. 9's big inning was the third, when 5 runners crossed the plate on two hits. The leading attack was led by George Lidow, Denny Wells, Ping Eng, and Joe Chin.

Giovannucci and Savare each got two solid hits for the losers. No. 9 took another game from No. 10, 15-5, with Tom D'Antonio, Fred Reid, and George Lidow all contributing home runs. Wells, the winning pitcher, got 4 hits in 5 trials.

Louis Long, No. 10's regular pitcher, proved his hurling ability in a 7-4 victory over No. 1. Roy Sargent and Doug Aughenbaugh belted round trippers for No. 10, each with men on. No. 1's don't Kirk pitched for the valley team.

No. 10 took another by defeating Stadium, 6-4. Starting later for 10 was Ralph Cetrulo, who gave way to Long, who completed the game in good style. Danny Lafore took the mound for the Stadium. Bob Sargent continued his plugging by bolting a home run for 10. Bob Bleemke, Richard Fordecast, Doug Aughenbaugh, Ralph Cetrulo, Lou Iannelli, Ed Sepp, Al Enke, were in the win-

BAVARIAN SOCIETY FESTIVAL TO BE HELD IN BERGEN

Belleville residents of Bavarian descent will attend the 31st annual Bavarian Folk festival to be held at Schutzen Park in North Bergen, N. J., this Sunday at 2 p.m. The park is at 32nd Street and Hudson Boulevard. More than 400 persons are expected to attend from New Jersey and New York.

The event is sponsored by the Bavarian Folk Festival Society of 1874, one of the country's oldest German-American societies organized by a group of Bavarian emigrants in the "Little Germany" section of lower Manhattan, which now has more than 40 branches and affiliated groups in both states.

The program will be featured by an exhibition of Bavarian folk dances, the performers clad in picturesque and colorful old country costumes, given by the United Bavarian Folk Dance Societies of New York and New Jersey.

The Flushing Choral Society, a Long Island group, will be heard in a special concert of folk songs and German "Lieder." A military band concert will be directed by Fred Ekel, veteran band leader and former New York State assemblyman. In addition there will be prize bowling, games for the children, the reception and parade of visiting New York and New Jersey societies, "worst booth" where famed Bavarian root beer will be distributed, and other forms of entertainment including dancing.

Braves Beat Giants, Cards In PAL League

The Braves forged ahead in PAL Babe Ruth League standings by taking two games, winning from the Giants, 5-4, and beating the Cardinals, 6-1.

Bartell, who started on the mound for the Braves, was sent to the showers when he handed out four walks, dusting two players with the ball. Blase, who succeeded him, shut out the Giants in the remaining 5 innings.

In the second game, the Cards scored their lone run against the Braves in the first inning when Cobers, who has played outstanding ball all season, smashed a triple, then scored on an error. The Braves evaded things up with a run in the same inning, and added another three in the third to put the game on ice. The Cards came back against the Dodgers with a 30 win, inez handout only two hits. Hanz drove in 2 runs, and scored another to lead at bat.

The Phillies and the Cubs battled to a 22 tie, with neither team scoring until the 6th, when each marked up a run. Both added another run apiece in the 7th, when the game was called on account of darkness. Bartell for the Cubs, and Cullen for the Phillies, had a pitcher's battle, with Bartell permitting 2 safe blows, and Cullen handing out 3. The teams will play off the time tonight at 6:15 at the Municipal Stadium.

Pvt. Frank Adams, of 80 Franklin Avenue, has been assigned to Battery "C" 10th AAA Bn, Fairchild Air Force Base, Washington.

OPEN HOUSE FOR 25TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Smith of 284 Cortlandt Street, who will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary next Tuesday, are holding open house at their home Saturday from 4 to 7 p.m., and have invited all of their friends to attend.

Guests will include friends and relatives from Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, Ashbury Park, Clinton, Hanover, Lammite, Westfield, and Nutley, as well as Belleville.

Mrs. Smith, who is the former Margaret Wilson, also celebrates her birthday on the wedding anniversary date. The couple were married in the Little Church Around the Corner in New York City.

Mr. Smith, an optician, is one of the most active figures in Belleville's civic life, and long has been prominent in organizational activities and philanthropic campaigns.

The Smiths have two children—Mrs. Carolyn Truina of Hanover, and William C. Smith, Jr., of Belleville.

Robert E. Morrall

Robert E. Morrall of 35 Van Rensselaer Street, died Sunday in St. Barnabas Hospital, Newark, after a long illness. He was 70.

A lifelong resident of Belleville, Mr. Morrall was employed by Hanlon & Goodman Co., Belleville, for 45 years and was foreman of the vacuumizing department when he retired a year ago. He was a member of Belleville Council 163, Jr. O.U.A.M.

He is survived only by his wife, Mrs. Bessie S. Cherry Morrall. Junior Order services were held Tuesday at the William V. Irvine & Son Funeral Home. Religious services were held Wednesday at the funeral home, with Rev. Peter R. Deckenbach of Christ Episcopal Church, Belleville, officiating. Burial was in East Gleditsia Cemetery, Delawanna.

Rec's Win From CYO League Leader, 6-2 But Lose To Legion

Belleville's Recreation nine split two games over the weekend, beating St. Stanislaus, the Essex County CYO League leaders, by a 6-2 score, but dropping one to the Union Legion team, 4-2.

Harry Payton turned in one of his best pitching jobs in winning from the Saints, with his mates joining in with their bats to collect seven hits.

Little Joe Ganteaume came off the bench to collect 2 for 2, one being a triple. The Saints scored on two hits back to back, plus some fast base running. Vinnie Parillo, who has an arm like a rocket, knocked off a potential run when he caught a runner going home on a hit to right field. That makes two throws to home base from his right field stand for Vinnie this season.

The Union game was no fun, with Union getting 4 unearned runs without trying in the first inning. First, Johnny Bartell loaded the bases with no outs, and then a wild throw to first base handed the game to the Legion team in one 6-15 basket.

After that Bartell tightened up and allowed only 3 hits in the next 8 innings, but though Belleville got 88 hits, they were too late and too scattered. The only pay-off was Paul Jernat's double in the 8th which scored two runs.

Next week Belleville will be host here to the Newark Red Wings on Saturday, and Sunday the Rec's travel to Morrisstown to play the Legion team there.

Raw Cabbage Salads

Raw cabbage salads are refreshing. Here's one that's as colorful as it is tasty: Toss shredded cabbage, minced onion, diced celery, sliced green pepper, grated raw carrot and sliced radishes with your favorite sour cream dressing. Serve the salad well chilled.

Griddle Cakes

If you like griddle cakes or waffles and syrup on a chilly day, heat the griddle. A flame-proof jug suspended over a candle in a wire or wrought iron holder does the trick nicely.

sin of the bride, and the Misses Lenore Farnigiano, Josephine Gervetto, and Dorothy Mascali. The strapless bodices of their gowns were of ribbonette, and the skirts were of nylon tulle. Two of the gowns were pink, two were orchid, and two blue. They wore stoles and large picture hats.

Jennine Iovino, Linda Oliverie, and Judith Oliverie, nieces of the bride, wore the flower girls. The styling of their gowns was the same as those worn by the bridesmaids. Two were in yellow, and one in aqua.

Gerald Siccone was the ring bearer.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and Cataldo Cocuzzo was best man for his brother. The ushers were Jerry, Lewis, and Rocco Oliverie, brothers of the bride, and Salvatore Ciccone, Anthony Salerno, and Peter Kroeker.

The bride is a graduate of Barrengier High School, and the bridegroom is employed by a Hillside concern.

Dog Eat Dog

Apparently there is no place for those New Jersey Republicans to go who would bolt Clifford Case because of his very pronounced views about the junior senator from Wisconsin. If Clifford Case would cast his vote to prevent Senator McCarthy from ever again becoming chairman of his investigating committee, Rep. Clarence R. Howell, Case's Democratic opponent, and Governor Meyner are much more bloodthirsty. In speeches, this week, which dismayed the intelligent wing of their party, they out-cased Case when it came to McCarthy. The Wisconsin Senator's ears must have rung from the tongue-lashing the two Democrats gave him.

At any rate, the air has been cleared. Both the Republican and Democratic candidates for the U.S. Senate have McCarthy well beyond the bounds of reason. Neither Republicans nor Democrats, therefore, can hurdle the party barriers and expect to find one whit of reasonable understanding in the other camp.
Now that the matter has been disposed of, 2-to-0, perhaps there could be some other issues more pertinent to questions of national policy and world affairs upon which Messrs. Case and Howell might discourse, without frothing at the mouth, and which might serve to give us a line on their true merits as candidates to become our representative for the next six years in the upper house on Capitol Hill.
McCarthy's fate is in the hands of the Senate Committee and all that Messrs. Case and Howell can say or do cannot change the verdict. It is unfortunate, only, that neither candidate showed a modicum of restraint and a willingness to leave the solution to the committee of six to whom the Senate, as a whole, entrusted the problem.
As it is, hundreds of thousands of Republicans and Democrats have been so thoroughly disgusted with the sorry demonstration of cheap political knavery that they may abstain, in November, and by their electoral silence castigate both candidates who, as the Senate inquiry proceeds, seem to have forgotten the basic American principle of justice that anyone is innocent until he has been proven guilty.

Russia Stands To Win Long Battle To Prevent Supranational Armies In Europe And In Far East

By RALPH E. HEINZEN

The Communists, preaching co-existence and holding out the olive branch by offering negotiations, are on the point of winning a double-barreled political victory, the greatest Kremlin victory since Germany's collapse.
In the West, the watered-down version of the European Defense Community Treaty which France seeks to impose on her allies, need not cause Red Russia any loss of sleep. In the Far East, the latest draft of the SEATO plan has eliminated all military commitments and now concentrates on building up moral barriers against Communist expansion.
Thus far in the era of Communist expansion by aggression, moral barriers have not stood up very long against Red tanks. Yet, experience has been forgotten and when the United States sits down with seven other nations on September 6, at Baguio in the Philippines, to draft an agreement creating a Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO), similar to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) in Europe, the best they can hope for is another unarmed coalition which will at most, lay an egg in the form of a joint declaration by the free powers of Asia "against sin."
Today's meeting of EDC powers in Brussels to study the French revisions proposed by M. Mendes-France can do little else but concede all along the line. When they have conceded Russia's efforts to destroy the European Army system will have succeeded. If Molotov or Malenkov had written the French revisions, instead of Mendes-France, they could not have done a more effective job of killing the European Army.

Neutrality Afloat

SEATO appeared doomed chiefly because Indonesia, the sixth most populous country in the world, which is now celebrating its ninth year of independence from the Dutch, is unwilling to abandon its neutrality policy. The so-called Colombo states, which include India, Ceylon and Burma, have also turned thumbs down on the bid to Baguio. They were frightened off by the prospect of being compelled to provide military bases under SEATO's mutual defense plan.
Ever since Australia is standing aloof, its Liberal government pronouncing itself opposed to the commitment of Australian armed forces to the defense of Southeast Asia until the small nations of that area do something to protect themselves, at home, against Communist infiltration, Australia does not fear outright Chinese or other Communist aggression so much as it believes Communism will bore from within.

Scuttling EDC

Today's meeting in Brussels, which is now closed, that France proposed sweeping revision of the EDC treaty, which fill 16 type-written pages, have gone far beyond what the British or ourselves had expected. Mendes-France has aimed, particularly, at whittling down the supranational features of EDC to the vanishing point.
It is one of those strange paradoxes of politics that it was France, in the days of Robert Schuman, as foreign minister, who conceived the principles of a supranational army and it is again France, under Mendes-France, who is scuttling EDC. Going back over the history of a century, it was the French of Aristide Briand who first proposed the United States of Europe which would include both a supranational parliament and a supranational army.
Our sources in Washington indicated yesterday that in high places there, as well as in London and some of the other capitals of Europe concerned, including Bonn and Rome, there is a feeling that outright rejection of EDC by the French Parliament would be preferable to the crisis provoked by

GLEASON NAMED FTL SALES MGR.

Federal Telecommunications Laboratories has announced the appointment of I. W. Gleason as sales manager for Systems and Commercial Research and Development.
Gleason, who has been transferred to the Laboratories from Federal Telephone & Radio Company, has been associated with International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation for approximately 14 years.
He worked for the parent organization from 1927, following his graduation from M. L. T., until 1933 and was on the staff of Federal Telephone & Radio Company from 1946 until his recent transfer.
During the intervening years, Gleason was associated with the General Electric Service Corporation and with the New Jersey Power & Light Company.

via conference" to deal with European issues. Until EDC is accepted, the West cannot afford a repetition of the Geneva pattern as applied to Germany, it is felt here.
The situation has changed radically since last February, when the Berlin conference registered no gains. Geneva raised Communist prestige and helped eradicate memories of East German riots still fresh last February.
Thus Moscow now may be prepared to make genuine concessions in order to prevent further growth of West German power.
EDC is essentially the West's best formula for settling the German question as long as Germany is divided. If EDC fails, British circles point out the Communists opportunity for a German settlement with the new German people improves.

Britain, in many respects, has reasons for fearing a rearmament Germany that are as historically justified and emotional as those cited by France. Yet the most enlightened opinion in England is that the dispute raging over German rearmament is academic now. The prospect of being compelled to provide military bases under SEATO's mutual defense plan.

Which Stand

To Britons, the more important question is whether West Germany finally stand with the West or with the Soviet bloc. Antirearmament sentiment does exist in Britain, backed by powerful newspapers and political factions. The issue is argued loudly, and it has popular appeal. But the argument nevertheless appears to be about something over which Britain has little or no control.
Meanwhile, Communist emphasis on the "peaceful co-existence" concept seems aimed directly at undermining opinion in both France and Britain. West German theory is that if the Communist, or non-Communist, world can coexist, then Germany need not only unnecessary but dangerous to other Western European nations.
Denying this theory is the Western View. It holds that if Western Germany is not permitted by the West to rearm, sovereignty and peace in Europe will become difficult for Bonn to remain neutral in the East-West power struggle.
If Paris sabotages EDC, the Communists then would have better territorial holdings to offer West Germany, and the loss of Germany to the East would become a greater eventual possibility than before.
Reluctant To Accept
This is why Western statesmen reportedly are reluctant to accept Moscow's call for "another Gen-

Our Roving Reporter:

You Have To Gargle Your Way Through Wales

By Edward W. T. Gray III

LYANFAIRPWLLGWYNGYLLGOERYCHWYND-ROBWLANTYSILIOGOG-OGCHO, Wales, Tuesday (By Air Mail) — You probably won't believe me but there is such a place on the map and I'm here.

I rode into town today on a bicycle tour of the British Isles and I was so fascinated by the sight and the sound of the name of this place that I am asking until I can recite it by heart.

Shortening it to Wose — Happily the townsfolk here shortened it, for everyday use, to "Llanfairpwll," which is enough with its preponderance of consonants.

The name of this town is not so accident. It really means something, just as do "Pleasanton" or "Spring Valley" there at home. In the native Welsh it tells quite a story, and translated, means "from the Church of Mary, to a hollow where there is a chapel, to the Church of a Saint's Name to a cave which is red." It really describes the length of the town's boundaries.
I asked a native to pronounce it and listened attentively the whole duration of his long-winded outburst. About an hour later I left with guttural sounds ringing in my ears. When I got to Holyhead, on the tip of Anglesey, and my last stop in Wales before taking the boat to Ireland, I carefully avoided the subject of the story of that town. I bite only once.

Good For Sheep

If you want to see some rugged country, you should come to North Wales. The mountains are not particularly high, the highest being Mt. Snowden at 5,560 feet, but they are steeply rising, jagged cliffs and piles of sliding stone. They are not like the mountains in the eastern part of the United States; rather like the never Rocky Mountains of the West.

I left Shrewsbury, in Shropshire, early one morning and made fairly good time through a country filled with wild fields and cattle grazing. As I came nearer the Welsh border, the country stiffened a bit and I saw many sheep; some grazing and others picking their way down hill tracks.

It was just about that time that I came to one of the steepest hills I had encountered on my journey. As I was pushing my cycle up the hill, I saw a sign reading "Welcome to Wales" and I knew that the people meant when they said in Wales I'd be carrying my bike more than it would carry me.

Romans Were Here

Off to my left, I saw a monstrous Roman-built viaduct which was bridging the gap I was crossing. As a passerby said, it was quite a structure even in these modern days. The top road was built by the Romans. The viaduct and the bottom road by the local inhabitants.

There are many signs of Roman conquest in England. Besides several viaducts, I had also seen the remains of a Roman amphitheater at Verulamium, about thirty miles outside of London. The crumbled stones formed a perfect circle with a diameter of 300 feet. It was strange to think that outdoor plays used to be performed there many centuries ago after it was built in the year 1180 A.D.

At the top of the steep hill I came to a small village. This proved to be one of the exceptions to most of the Welsh towns, being at the top of a hill. I could usually tell when I was hearing a town in Wales because I could coast for about five miles down a sharp grade. There at the bottom of the hill, snuggled in between several mountains, I would be the next village. I was always hesitant about leaving a town, not only because the people were very hospitable, but also because I knew that I had a good climb ahead of me.

Like Burma Road

I was particularly put out when leaving the village of Llanfollen, for a young clerk had warned me of the steep Horse Shoe Pass which was between Llanfollen and Tlwyners ten miles away. I soon found out that the name of the pass is very misleading. In those ten miles I cycled enough horsehoes to fit a herd of horses. It reminded me of pictures I have seen of the Burma Road.

I cycled about seventy miles that day and stopped at a youth hostel under the shadow of Mt. Snowden. In the United States there are only 110 youth hostels since American Youth Hostels, Inc., is a relatively new arm of the movement.

Throughout the world, though, there are a total of 5,000 youth hostels. The International Youth Hostels Federation is an excellent organization since it cuts the expense of overnight stays and meals by about 70%. Also, the hikers and cyclists who use these facilities have the opportunity to meet other young people from all over the world. In one of the hostels I stayed at, I even met a young Chinese boy.

Speeding Down Hill

The next day I had easy going. I coasted most of the day down the slopes of the mountains. The slippery peaks where many hikers have lost their lives in landslides and from strong winds blowing them off the ridges. All along the slopes one could see tiny white specks where the sheep were grazing.

At Bangor I crossed the Menai Strait which isolates Anglesey, one of the thirteen counties of Wales. Out in the middle of the narrow strait was an old, half-sunk sailing vessel which had been used for training purposes. They use similar old boats at Annapolis. It seems that while they were towing it to Liverpool last winter, it got stuck on a sand bar and has been resting there ever since. The tides in the Menai Strait are very tricky. There is only about a half hour of safe passage in a day.

Last Of Druids

Back in the early days of history the Romans crossed to Anglesey by those sand bars and defeated the Druids who had made their last stand on the island. The Druids were a tribe of people who lived in tree huts and were far too primitive to give much of a battle to the solidly armed Roman legions.

Compared to the rest of Wales, Anglesey is as flat as a pancake. The only mountains in the whole country are far to the west coast near Holyhead. Even they are diminutive in comparison. This country is sometimes called "the granary of Wales," since, on its fertile soil, plants can grow straight and not at 90° angles as in the rest of mountainous Wales.

WILLIAM MCGLYNN VISITS EISENHOWER FOR INFORMAL TALKS

As one of sixteen Congressional candidates sponsored by the National Citizens For Eisenhower Committee, William McGlynn, Kearny lawyer, who is seeking to unseat Democratic incumbent Congressman Peter W. Rodino, Jr., in the 19th District, met with President Eisenhower, informally, in the rose garden on the south lawn of the White House on Monday. The 19th District candidate was photographed with the President as part of an administrative campaign to lend moral support to Republican contenders in key areas.

McGlynn and the other candidates also conferred with Vice President Richard Nixon, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, Secretary of Treasury George M. Humphrey, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson and Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby. The cabinet officers asked about economic, social and political conditions in the 19th District and also discussed with McGlynn affairs of their own departments.

Stressing that since McGlynn started his campaign he has been pledged to support the President elected to Congress, James E. Murphy, chairman of the National Citizens for Eisenhower Committee, explained the purpose of the White House visit.

"Our committee has picked a number of Republican candidates in certain key Congressional districts where we believe there is a good chance of regaining seats previously lost to the Democrats and we are seeking to elect them. We have as our program the election of a Republican Congress that will back, essentially, the Eisenhower administration and its legislative aims."

ELKS DISCONTINUE ANNUAL PAGEANT OF CHARITY AID

The Nutley Lodge of Elks, which sponsored the annual Pageant of Charity, has announced that it is temporarily discontinuing the activity because, "The raffle law, as presently interpreted, raised a question as to its propriety."

Originated in 1949, the Elks in five years of conducting the charitable project, had turned over $12,500 to more than 50 different Nutley organizations.

The activity was started under the leadership of former Mayor William J. Jernick. Now Grand Exalted Ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, Jernick headed the committee every year until March. He stepped down because of the added responsibility of being a Grand Lodge officer. Succeeding him was Matthew Boyle.

The Elks had depended on raising the necessary funds by conducting a raffle but suspended the operation until the law "is clarified or amended." The way the law has been set up, raffles may only be sold on the premises of the sponsoring organization.

MARKS 40TH YEAR IN PHONE SERVICE

Leonard E. Stanton of 469 DeWitt Avenue this month marked his 40th year of telephone company service. He is presently staff supervisor with New Jersey Bell Telephone company's metropolitan division plant office at Newark.

Stanton's telephone career began with the New York Telephone company's New Jersey area. He transferred to the newly organized New Jersey Bell in 1927. His assignments have included posts as chief switchman, maintenance engineer, engineering assistant, supervisor of maintenance methods, staff assistant and wire chief.

A Belleville resident for 30 years, he is a member of the Orange American Legion Post, No. 190.

LETTERS To The Editor

A Cheery Welcome Back To the Editor,

The absence of editorialized comment and the interesting column "One Man's Opinion," occasioned by the recent indisposition of the publisher, was noticeable and much missed. The return of these editing commentaries by the informative and authoritative R. E. H. is most gratifying. I anxiously look forward to reading his copy each succeeding week.

To me R. E. H. symbolizes Reliable, Enlightening and Healthy editorial comment of timely and important nature. The revealing information and thought-provoking material incorporated in his articles in themselves make the price of the paper inexpensive.

With every best wish that Mr. Heinzen's health may continue to improve, to insure the long continued resumption of his splendid newspaper workmanship, I beg to remain,

James K. Golden
62 Tappan Avenue.

To The Editor, Times-News:

Many Belleville residents have been taken in by fly-by-night photographers who have offered them various kinds of inducements to have portraits taken of their children.

Some of these operators claim they are going to open a studio in Belleville, and would like to take a photograph to display in the studio window, at no charge. But somehow there always is a charge.

In another variation of the same idea, a salesman proposes that the prospective customer buy a five-year-plan, which includes a picture of the baby and an album to paste it in, to begin with, and coupons which they represent may be taken to a local photographer for photographs during each of the remaining years. A down payment is usually taken to close the deal. The album and initial photograph—both of uncertain quality—are then mailed C.O.D. to the customer, who then often realizes she made a mistake but accepts delivery anyway because of the heavy down payment she already made.

I would like to collect the names of all Belleville residents who have been victims of this sort of salesmanship, so that I may present the list to the Town Commission for action. I would very much appreciate hearing from such persons.
