Rift In King's Department

Golden's Proposals To Ease Taxes Brings Out Differences Between Commissioner, Bldg. Inspector

An 11-point program to reduce taxes here was broached to the Commission this week by James R. Golden, former candidate.

The program resulted in an open exchange between Golden and Commissioners Joseph King and Elmer Hyde, and brought out an apparent rift between King and Building Inspector Thomas Greco.

It also resulted in an announcement by King that he will name a new secretary at the end of this month.

The Commission took no action on Golden's proposals.

The rift between King and Greco resulted when Golden asked questions of the Commissioner on the services of Campbell McCall, his secretary.

When asked King whether McCall had been working daily for the Commissioner replying to him, McCall had been sick and had not been in at all, so he had not worked out of his home.

Golden asked if McCall had been working since March 1954, and answered to his drawing salary. King replied McCall had been carrying out his duties.

"Even if I was you, I'd give you a fair chance to get better," the Commissioner replied at one point.

When Greco was brought into the picture when Golden asked King why the Building Inspector didn't have a secretary, King replying that McCall sometimes helped Greco out, for instance, when Greco went on vacation.

Here Golden spoke directly to Greco, sitting in Council chambers with other town employees.

"When you were on vacation, did he (McCall) take over your duties?"

"No sir," Greco replied.

Golden's run-in with Commissioner Hyde resulted from his criticism of some phases of recreational activity, especially those poorly attended or of interest "to only a select few." It should not be the object of any recreating department of the community," he said, "to indulge special minority interests when you are in a position of winning political supporters for individual department heads."

Hyde broke in to say it was the policy of the recreation department to hang on to programs with long-standing popularity.

"Any activity we start that is not successful, we immediately discontinue it," he said.

"Does that go for the swimming pool?" a spectator remarked.

"Yes," King answered. "I have seen to an outdoor public swimming pool now being studied by the recreation department."

"We haven't adopted it, yet," Hyde answered. "Do you have a contribution?"

Golden's suggestion that the Town adopt an all-night parking plan whereby residents would be charged a fee, for instance, also brought a remark from still a third commissioner, Commissioner Harry Sullivan. The commissioner said such a program was now being studied.

Golden's 11-point program recommended:

1. Elimination of car allowances and parking permits by the town in private homes of town officials or employees.

2. Elimination and reassignment of personnel in the engineering department, "the town engineer admits it is difficult to find work for employees in his department," he said.

3. Elimination of unnecessary allowances.

4. Discontinuance of some phases of recreational activity.

5. Use of town surplus and accrued interest, and surplus and profits of town revenue to offset the rising tax rate.

6. Revision in the budget for a pay-as-you-go basis for projects for the ensuing year.

7. Elimination, or cancellation of, tax delinquencies.

8. Enforcement of parking laws, ordinances or repeal of sections where enforcement is not needed or desirable.

9. A voluntary control of all-night parking as a revenue-producing measure, if needed or desirable.

10. Institution of a business profits tax.

In prefacing his program, Golden also referred to the Charter proposal, passed here last year.

"Here the electorate," he said, "having failed to avail themselves of the advantages America has offered, being gullibly influenced by false political propaganda that change would be a 'tax trap,' rejected the opportunity of im-

In addition to the extension of the telephone system, the company also plans to extend the Long Island Sound area, a country dialing 13 more exchange areas in the state before the end of 1955.

High School Parent-Teacher Meetings Demand A Success

Parents From 484 Families Confer In Half-Hour Sessions In Effort For Better Education

A teacher-workshop program which three years ago studied the theory of bringing parents of school children together with their teachers to provide better education, was climaxed here last week when parent representatives from 484 families conferred with 53 high school teachers in a full day of conferences.

It was the first time any school had been closed a full day for such conferences, although the program has been held in elementary schools the past two years. The high school staff said it was particularly proud that it successfully has begun a program of organized conferences on school time.

From 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. teachers had consecutive half-hour scheduled meetings with parents. Some were unable to keep their scheduled meetings but others came without appointments, making a total greater than the number expected.

One of the most impressive items, the staff said, were the individual profiles for freshmen students, which showed, graphically, achievement scores on a battery of standardized tests in reading, punctuation, language usage and vocabulary.

In the nine elementary schools, there were 3,158 conferences with parents in the Fall, and 1,238 parent conferences February 4. In both elementary schools and the high schools, there have been 5,036 parent-teacher sessions.

As a result of such conferences, teachers and principals said, there have been many tangible results in the work of the students.

Members of high school principal Hugh Kille's staff planned and developed the high school program are Samuel Shiffrin, director of Guidance, and Babb, chairman of the parent-relationships committee; Raymond Schultz, Dr. Samuel Fack, John Hoffman, Herman Wiche, James Chiara, Miss Helen Holberg, Miss George Gordon, Mrs. Regina Deglin, John Hyde, Austin MacArthur and Michael Roitman.

Gaining from experience in the past two years, a parent-teacher conference of teachers and principals is now developing a new conference guide, in hopes of making the conference program even better.

From individual citizen pledges, organization pledges and special foundation pledges; and $250,000 from "industrial" and special donors about to close commitments.

The committee said an additional $150,000 to be shared equally by Bellefield, Nutley and Bloomfield, will bring the total to $4,000,000 needed for construction.

The committee emphasized also that it would like to answer the question of delays and uncertainties which some people were asking about.

"The amount to be raised, was large," it said, "The board of directors was bound to examine varied proposals, each of which held out hope for easing the burden. Considerable time and thoughtful planning was involved in contacting foundation trustees and large independent donors for financial help."

The committee also emphasized that a headquarters was established in Washington, Avenue, and that four phones had been installed to answer any questions which residents might want to ask.

It urged residents to call campaign headquarters, urged residents to re-pledge and to pay off the old pledge made four years ago.

The Belleville Committee also thanked those who consented to participate in the drive.

"What we are doing," the committee said, "is contributing directly to bringing to our back yard the finest medical institution that can be built. It will be an asset to our community and will make our town a better place in which to live."

Women's Club Offers Members Varied Interests

By Regina Smardige

Whether it's art, music, drama, politics, literature or timely tips on homemaking, the Belleville Women's Club provides a congenial atmosphere in which to pursue favorite hobbies and make new friends.

The clubhouse, purchased in 1928, is a roomy, 75-year-old home located at 81 Rosmore Place and decorated in soft pastels. The large meeting room seats 100 guests; the kitchen makes it possible to prepare dinners for 125 and the music room mounts a concert grand piano. The house is available for rentals and the Girl Scouts Women's Republican Club and Daughters of America occupy part of the second floor.

The present club began in 1916 as the Belleville Improvement Association and as it developed and attracted more members, became a Federated Women's Club in 1922.

Always active in civic projects, the club assisted in founding the Future Nurses' Club at the high school and has made a $500 pledge to the Clara Maxwell Hospital. Besides these community activities, the club provides many social functions during the year, the most popular of which is the monthly dessert bridge.

There are nine active departments within the club and each offers a variety of activities to its members.

For anyone who has ever struggled with a gladiola and a sprig of fern, or who bemoans the lack of a "green thumb," the Garden department, under the chairmanship of Mrs. William T. Bryan, beckons.

This month members are studying flower arrangement and will hear a florist explain the subject. In the past, the department has supervised memorial plantings on the clubhouse grounds in honor of past members; participated in flower exhibits and prepared holiday messages for hospitalized patients. They also send "seeds for democracy" to the Philippines.

The drama and literature departments, directed respectively by Mrs. W. Douglas Clark and Mrs. Dwight M. Streeter, conduct meetings on the third Mondays of the month.

The literature group has organized a free circulating library for the club members, with the best in current fiction and non-fiction available. The bookcase was donated by Mrs. William V. Irvine, Sr.

This popular department features book reviews; capsule comments on Broadway hits, annual theater parties; and a spring program on public speaking will be included in the drama department. Mrs. Clark points out that the drama department is not concerned exclusively with acting, but also with giving its members peace whenever called upon to speak in public.

The Art department, directed by Mrs. Arthur G. White, currently features a painting class, conducted Wednesday mornings by Mrs. Lorena Clark. Its members also enjoy trips to museums and courses in art appreciation.

The Music and International Relations groups are directed by Mrs. Willard Y. Strange and Mrs. R. Clifford Whitfield.

New members are always welcome and the club sponsors the Junior Women's and Sub-Junior's Club for younger age levels.

Women's Club officers include Mrs. Arthur E. Mayer, president; Mrs. Floyd M. Haring, 1st vice president; Mrs. H. Irving Russell, 2nd vice president; Mrs. Robert C. Gardiner, recording secretary; Mrs. Maurice Welch, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Frank H. Bridge, assistant corresponding secretary; Mrs. William V. Irvine, Sr., treasurer; Mrs. Everett B. Smith, assistant treasurer and Mrs. Harvey Thompson, federation secretary.

UNDER THEIR DIRECTION . . . the Women's Club offers a wide variety of activities to its members.

Little League Meeting Next Friday

The Belleville Little League has scheduled a meeting for next Friday at 7 p. m. at the Recreation House in Joramolen Street. Adult volunteers to participate in the local program are being sought to supplement the existing organization, due to a ruling from the national headquarters of Little League. Anyone desiring to take part in the popular youth program is invited to attend the meeting.

At the inaugural meeting held last week, a tentative date of March 27 was set for the annual one-day campaign to raise funds for the operation of the loop, through the sale of license plate tags, labeled "Belleville Little League". League officials still have under consideration a plan to establish a Little League field, and several sites are under examination.

One of the big tasks facing the loop this year is a replacement for the late Dick Dolan, paraplegic World War II veteran who served as secretary for the organization since it was founded four years ago, until his death early this year.

The league will also seek a replacement for one of its sponsors, the Scott Ship Post, VFW, which has dropped out of the youth program. Other sponsors include Viking Tool Company, Walter Kilde Company, Wallace and Terman, Elks, Rotary, Lions and Craftsman's clubs.

Montclair And The Story Of Success

It has been my policy to devote sports items that were strictly of townwide interest to readers of this column but this week I am going to deviate from the usual format and devote a part of today's column to the "Montclair Story".

For the last decade the name Montclair has been the most feared name in athletics, be it football, basketball, baseball or track. With Clary Anderson and Angelo "Butch" Fortunato teaming up to give the Mounties the top one-two coaching punch in the state, Montclair has been almost unbeatable.

I was prompted to devote this column to the "Montclair Success Story" following the upset victory of the Blue and White registered over once-beaten Orange in a three-point "basketball" decision last week. The popular choice in the game of the season was Orange, and I was one of the most avid supporters in the Tornadoes' corner. Montclair was going into the game undefeated but this wasn't considered as strong as other Montie teams in recent seasons. Fortunato had another good squad but Orange, which was beaten only by Belleville, was felt to have a better balanced team with more scoring punch.

But up Montclair was the athletes, no matter what sport, don't "freeze" when the going gets tough. When the chips are down that seems to be the time Montclair reaches new heights. The best tonic Fortunato and Anderson can hope for is to be publicized as the underdog. Orange found out what that means and last Fall Nutley was the pre-game favorite to trim the Mounties in football, but the scrip didn't hold true to form.

The "Montclair Success Story" is a fabulous tale. The football team was unbeaten and went on to gain recognition as the mythical state champ. The Blue and White hasn't been beaten since East Orange turned the trick in 1953. Since Anderson took over and built the Mounties into a powerhouse his teams have won 86 and dropped only six for a brilliant 93.4 average. Only 512 points have been scored by the opposition compared to Montclair's 2,477.

In basketball the record is just as impressive. Since Fortunato took over the reigns, formerly held by Anderson, Montclair has won 33 and lost only three. For the last four years Montclair has been seeded No. 1 in the Essex tournament.

The success story doesn't end there, either. In the hoop sport the junior variety went on to capture the county title thus making it a clean sweep in the dribbling sport. During the spring semester the success story is just as amazing. The track team, coached by Norm Mansfield, won the state championship, and the baseball team took top honors in the Greater Newark Tournament.

That overall record is one to be proud of. It has gotten so that Montclair fans are so used to rooting and watching a winner in action, they now take success for granted.

Hats off to Montclair and the outstanding "Success Story" in New Jersey scholastic sports history.

Is There A Lawyer In The House?

It seems as though every time you turn around on a basketball court there's been a legislative change while you weren't looking. Coach and players alike have to be score-book lawyers to keep up with the constant revisions and additions. The latest law laid down for court deportment is the bonus baby or the one and one. Originally designed to cut down on the tactics of the deliberate foul, instead it has made hoop followers more and more "foul conscious".

Referees are constantly harassed "What about that ref"? As a result the players spend more time keeping out of the way of the other players. Despite the rise in scores the foul rules have slowed down the offensive styles.

Shooting has fallen off. Only the boys with natural ability in certain styles have shown any consistent ability to make two pointers. The kids that have to work to develop their scoring punch feel that it's not worth all the trouble. Foul bangers will eventually become as unpopular as the "goons" were in the days of the center jump.

Bill Krug Goes Tonight In Jersey Golden Gloves

Belleville Takes On Irvington Tech In County Tourney

Team Splits Last Two Games To End Season With 8-7 Mark

By Mal Condon

The Bellboys play a fourth seeded Irvington Tech five in the county tournament of the Essex County Athletic Union bill tomorrow night at Seton Hall's South Orange gym. Irvington Tech is one of the county's highest scoring quintets, racking between 70 and 80 points every game. Fred Hopke, the county's leading scorer, is Tech's big gun. The 6-2 left-handed shooting forward is currently averaging 29.4 points per game. He scores mostly with jumpshots from the corner and with accurate foul-shooting.

Another fearsome member of the team is center forward, Ed Zeldner. A good rebounder, he is also a top scorer, averaging 20.6 per cent. Despite this offensive array, the Bellboys have beaten Irvington Tech.

Irvington Tech is unequal to the caliber of some of the teams from the Bellboys have beaten. Veith and company could spill trouble for the favored squad from Irvington.

Team Splits

The high school wound up its regular season this week with a victory over Columbia and a loss to South Side.

Last Friday night the Bellboys edged Columbia in a real thriller, 55-53. Columbia won the first half of the final quarter. Richie Veith and Ted Nichols teamed up at this point to give the Blue and Gold a 14-53 lead with two minutes and 47 seconds remaining. Belleville fought the ball until the final twenty seconds. Veith then dropped in two free tosses to tie the win.

Tuesday, on the home court, the Belleville boys dropped a close, high scoring tilt to South Side, 75-71. The Bellboys played by Veith, Frank Casar and Tom Cullen held onto a slim margin that never exceeded six points through the first three quarters.

The lead was still secure until the final three minutes when the Siders scored five straight points to insure their victory. Veith led the Blue and Gold with 23 followed by Casar and Cullen with 12 and 10 respectively.

Jayvees

The Belleville Jayvees ended their regular season with a record victory over the Varsity, 87, Coach Ray Smith's squad is in the Essex County Jayvee Tournament.

WEIGHT LIFTING EVENT POSTPONED TO FEBRUARY 21, 25

Scouts Will Cap Week Of Activity With Display In High School Gymnasium

Because many lifters were unable to compete, the Belleville Barbell Club voted to hold the contest Monday, February 21, and Friday February 25 this week.

Bob Castelli, the team lightweight, had a sprained ankle from last week's ice skating; another lifter was unable to attend because of school, and Bert Castelli, the heavyweight, was in the hospital for a tonsilectomy.

Belleville resident may compete in the championship contest. The lifting will be conducted by weight classes in accordance with Olympic rules. Prizes will be awarded to the winners and runners-up in each weight class. Lifters may register at the Gymnasium at the Municipal Stadium any time up until February 21.

A special prize has been posted to be awarded to the lifter who has the most improved since last year. This prize is a beautiful wrist-watch with back engraved "Weightlifter of the Year, 1955", which is the title that goes with the 24-hour Times-News window to his winning.

All lifters may compete in the Championships but only those who lifted in last year's contest will be eligible to compete for the special "Lifter of the Year" prize.

Robert Cook, superintendent of recreation, reports that he has received notice from Philadelphia that a recount on the recent lifting contest there showed that Joe Serritella, Belleville's middle-heavyweight, placed fourth there rather than sixth, as previously announced.

Mignon To Run Saturday

Belleville High Sprinter Faces Tough Competition In Eleventh North Jersey CYO Meet

Joe Mignon, tiny Belleville sprinter, is entered in the eleventh annual North Jersey meet conducted by the Hudson County CYO at the Jersey City Armory Saturday night.

A 10-second man in the 100, Mignon is the lone Bellboy entry this Saturday when top talent from 36 North Jersey high schools comes together in a final preparation for next week's national championships.

Joe sent in his own entry, with a pair of quarters posted to it, after first getting the necessary signatures from athletic director and principal. He immediately became one of the favorites in the 60-yard dash.

It won't be easy going for Mignon, since the entry list also includes Al Phillips and Ivy McDuffie of Montclair, Major Smith of Snyder (Jersey City), Al Peace of Lincoln (Jersey City), Minner Williams of Englewood and John Moon of Linden. But none of these boys has ever hit 10 flat for 100 and Joe's small size makes him a natural for the 60.

In some ways, Mignon reminds you of Jack O'Connell of Hackensack, who starred on the great Manhattan relay teams three or four years ago. Joe comes by his running talents naturally, his dad having been a runner in the last generation.

Kindergarten Project

Kindergarten children at School 10 under Miss Ellen Jenkins are going to make a scrapbook. Two or three times each week samples of their work in original drawings, directed art work, etc., are saved, dated, and placed in individual folders. Sometime in May the children will make scrapbooks of all this work. By this time most of the children will be able to print their own names on the covers.

These scrapbooks will serve a triple purpose. Each child will have, first of all, a memento of his year in kindergarten. Second, he will have a good chance to see his own individual improvement over the months. Third, the books will also give the parents an opportunity to see what their children have been doing in kindergarten and how they have progressed in muscular coordination and skill.

Speaks To Teachers

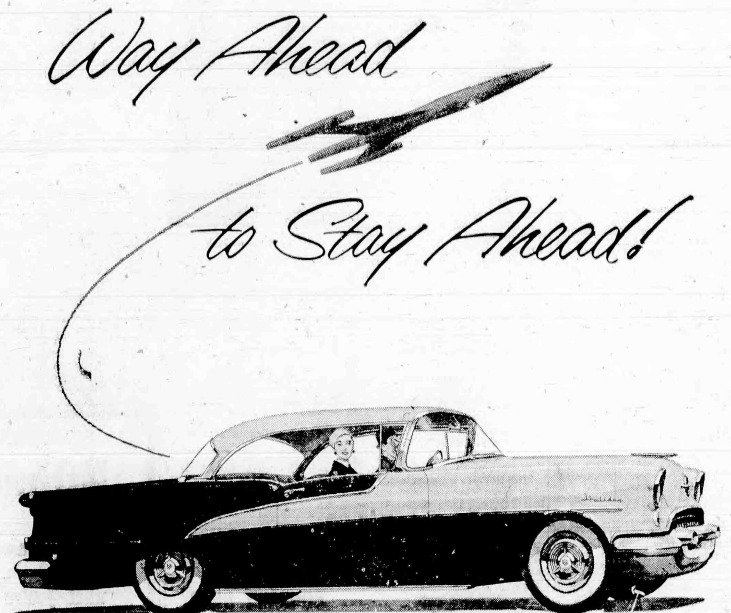

At the Superintendent's meeting of the School's staff held in School Eight, Dr. John Weber Gordon of the State Department of Education spoke. Dr. Gordon is the chairman in Child and Youth study programs for the state of New Jersey.

It was brought out by the speaker that the program in child study, of which the Belleville Public Schools are a part, is a three year program in which classes of teachers meet once, every two weeks. Teachers must learn what data is significant, and then learn how to use the data, and finally the testing to see if all the facts are valid.

All elementary school principals met with Dr. Alice Miel, Superintendent of Schools, Columbia University, in School 4 recently.

Nutley "Wonder Drug" Wins Confirmation After 3 Years

The synthetic chemical compound isoniazid, Nutley's contribution to the relief of human ills, has come of age. Discussion at the fourteenth annual Veterans Administration-Navy conference on the chemotherapy of tuberculosis, held this week, in Atlanta, Ga., made it clear that isoniazid had proved as valid as claims made in its behalf. It was first reported by Hoffmann-LaRoche, Inc., as effective against the tubercle bacillus three years ago this month.

Sufficient data now have been assembled on the drug's effectiveness, the tuberculosis experts said, to insure it front rank in the battle against tuberculosis. Isoniazid is the generic name for the compound of hydrazide of isonicotinic acid which the Nutley firm markets under the trade name of "Rimfon" and which was perfected and tested by Dr. Robert Schmitzer and his staff of chemotherapists.

Used in combination with streptomycin or PAS (para-aminosalicylic acid), it has surpassed in effectiveness the streptomycin-PAS program introduced about eight years ago, a specialist asserted.

Dr. Walsh McDermott, associate professor of medicine at Cornell Medical College, a leader in the field, said it was plain that the latter combination "did not show up quite as well as any multiple drug treatment that contained isoniazid."

Dr. William H. Tucker, chief of pulmonary diseases at the Durham (N. C.) Veterans Administration Hospital, supported Tucker's contention that enough evidence now had been gathered to make a reappraisal of the worth of administering isoniazid alone in certain type of cases.

The employment of single drug therapy heretofore has been viewed skeptically, because the first major drug, streptomycin, had proved of only limited value when used alone.

Since early reports on the success of isoniazid at Sea View Hospital, Staten Island, prevailing medical opinion has been that it should not be used alone. It was considered that tubercle bacilli would grow resistant to it.

Residents Talked More By Telephone Than Year Ago

16,825,000 Calls Handled By Franklin Avenue Office; Annual Report Reveals December To Be Busiest Month Of Year

Nutley's citizens are a very talkative group according to an annual report released yesterday by the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company. Figures show that for the 12-month period ending on December 31, a total of 16,825,000 calls were handled by the branch office in Franklin Avenue.

The residents did a lot more talking than they did in 1952 when 16,105,000 calls were put through for a difference of 720,000 in a comparison of the two years.

Additional figures reveal that citizens converse more in December than any other month. During the holiday month 2,162,000 calls were made for an average of 72,722. A further breakdown shows that every resident made at least two telephone calls only one day in the busiest month of the year.

As for the slowest month of 1953, the Telephone Company states that in July, Nutley residents did less talking than during any other time of the year.

There is a good number of new homes to be repaired, the company stated that Nutley phones need service only once every six years.

More Construction

The 1954 construction program of $85,000,000 topped 1953 by $14,000,000. Another year of heavy construction is planned for 1955.

Despite the progress made in building more and better telephone service to New Jersey, the company said that its earnings picture failed to match the pace of its overall operations.

Even with an increase in net income from $16,564,610 in 1953 to $20,635,948 in 1954, the company said that with an increase in the number of shares of stock, its surplus per share had been reduced to $4.20, a drop of 69 cents from 1953, and the lowest since 1938.

The company said that during the past year it issued an additional $55,000,000 in common stock and $25,000,000 in bonds in order to help meet the cost of its expansion and service improvement program which has exceeded a half billion dollars since the end of World War II. The overall rate of return on total net invested was 5.8% the company stated.

In commenting on its financial picture, the company said that it had not been able to recover from the effect of rates tied to pre-inflation costs. "With the cost of doing business having increased far more than telephone rates, present rates continue to be too low," the report stated.

Tract Purchased

The Town Commission this week adopted a resolution accepting a $225 bid by Edward J. O'Connor of Nutley for a 50 by 40 foot parcel on Greylock Avenue between Ralph and Stephen Streets.

CLARA MAASS MEMORIAL HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN

140-142 WASHINGTON AVENUEBELLEVILLE, NEW JERSEY*PLYMOUTH 1-0200*NUTLEY 2-4740*February 11, 1955

To all Belleville Contributors to Clara Maass Hospital Building Campaign and Residents of Belleville:

You perhaps have read of the Rippel Foundation gift of one million dollars to be applied to construction costs of our Clara Maass Hospital in Belleville. At long last, what began as almost a dream is now a reality — Belleville is to have a 325-bed hospital on its grounds bordering on our beautiful county park lands. Ground will be broken this Spring.

You can be sure that before authorizing the million dollar grant the Rippel Foundation trustees analyzed carefully the wisdom of this building project, its urgent need, and the significance of its contribution to better medical care in this metropolitan area. The grant further attests to the high estimate placed by the Rippel trustees on the leadership in business, finance, and professional life represented by the Clara Maass Hospital officers and board of directors.

Four years have passed since the Hospital Building Campaign was initially launched. At that time, Belleville magnificently topped by $6000 its $100,000 goal. But as is so true in any drive seeking to raise four millions of dollars, the campaign was long, arduous, and went through many periods of doubt, of despair, and of changing plans. But the leadership never completely lost hope and that confidence has brought us to where we find ourselves today — ready to build.

From the R.F.C., a federal agency, the Clara Maass Hospital board has a two million dollar commitment; from the Rippel Foundation, a million dollars; from individual citizen pledges, organization pledges, and special foundation pledges, six hundred thousand dollars. Special gifts of two hundred fifty thousand dollars are in the offing. Mention should be made too of the recent donation of $25,000 from the Federal Leather Company that stands as an expression of real faith in the building project — this in addition to a generous contribution made by Federal Leather four years ago.

Thus there is outstanding to be raised about one hundred fifty thousand dollars which Belleville, Nutley and Bloomfield citizens will be asked to share equally, in addition to the generous contributions and pledges already made and being held in trust to be used for the sole purpose for which given.

Belleville citizens, we your committee solicit your wholehearted co-operation again. We urge the re-activating of your unpaid pledges and your re-pledging an additional gift. The hospital will be built we are assured, and we know you share our feeling that this four million dollar hospital will add immeasurably to making Belleville a finer community in which to live and prosper.

The week of February 13th you will be contacted again by fellow-townpeople dedicated to the cause. Will you graciously receive them as you did four years ago and respond as generously as then.

Very sincerely,

Your Belleville Committee:

Independent Order Of Odd Fellows Was A Page In History In Town's Early Days

One hundred and thirteen years ago this month, John Taylor had become president succeeding Ben Harrison, who died in office. Texas was yet to be a part of the United States.

Belleville was a small village with a 1,500 population who worked in the fell mills in nearby woodlands, and who fished in the Passaic and sold their catch in neighboring villages.

Two lanes led out of town, now Belleville Avenue and Jerusalem Street, the latter a direct route to the grist mill where grain was ground and power derived from the water in the Second River.

This is the page from history as depicted from minutes and beginnings of one of the oldest town organizations, Harmony Lodge 25, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, whose members received their charter in February, 1842.

And much of this early history of Belleville, according to Chester Chinnock, now finance chairman, can be traced to the lodge, with its rosters sprinkled with the names of many of the early settlers.

"We are proud of having the oldest living Odd Fellow, also," Chinnock said this week, John Keegan, now living in Marion, Ohio, who will be 94.

Chinnock attributed to Keegan's good health to his membership in the I.O.O.F., an independent organization, and his wisdom in selecting the L.O.O.F. and its man.

"We never know what the future holds for us," he said. "Protect your future; join the L.O.O.F.; every new member means a new brother."

The Lodge now has an enrollment of 50 from its once 300-strong roll, because few members were taken in during the war years and death has cut the membership list.

It meets the first and third Mondays of each month in Grace Church. Years ago, recalled Chinnock, the lodge met in a crude little hall on Main Street and held its banquets at the old Belleville Inn.

The minutes were probably written with quill pens and lighting was provided by candles and oil lamps.

Heating was provided by a wood-burning pot stove. Water had to be carried from a pump in Academy Street, and visiting brothers arrived by stage or the old passenger boat navigating the river.

Clara Maass Guild Plans Gay Spring Dinner Dance

At a meeting held at the home of Mrs. Leo Mattia, of 18 Myrtle Avenue, Ways and Means chairman of the Clara Maass Hospital Guild, plans were outlined for a spring dinner dance to be held April 23 at the Military Park Hotel, Newark.

Belleville committee members include Miss Angela DeNoia and Mrs. Henry Lewis.

AHAVATH HOLDS SERVICE HONORING SCOUTING TONIGHT

"Scout Week" will be commemorated at Congregation Ahavath Achim tonight at 8:30 with special services and program. The theme of the service is: "Scouting and the Youth."

Nathan A. Reuben, well-known Newark lawyer and past District Commissioner of the Westchester District of the Robert Treat Council, will speak. Reuben has been active in the Boy Scout movement.

Dr. Albert L. Raab, rabbi, will conduct the services. Dr. Sy Fischer will chant the liturgy and will be accompanied by the Synagogue choir, led by Miss Doris Cohen.

Scout Troop No. 389, meeting in the Synagogue, and other scouts of the Jewish faith, will participate in a special program.

Alfred Harris, scoutmaster; I. S. Goodman, cubmaster; and Bernard Holzman, who served as scoutmaster for the Synagogue Troop for 17 years, will be honored by the Progress Club of the Synagogue, which sponsors the Troop.

Refreshments will follow the services in the vestry room of the Synagogue.

DIMES DRIVE MAY EQUAL '54 TOTAL

Incomplete tabulations indicate the 1955 March of Dimes here may equal total contributions in 1954, former Mayor James J. Tully municipal chairman, said this week.

While the drive for funds to fight polio ended officially on January 31, some phases of it have continued active, in the hope that last-minute donations will be made," Tully said.

"Dime Cards, mailed to local families early in the campaign, are still trickling in and more than welcome. Tavern cards and store canisters have not yet been picked up and a few fundraising functions are still to be held."

Belleville residents gave $10,433.56 a year ago. If delayed dimes and dollars keep coming in, final figures may show that they are equally generous in this critical year."

Bigelow Gets License

James E. Bigelow of 121 Harmon Street was granted a restaurant and mercantile license; and St. Anthony's Church, a raffle license, by the Town Commission this week.

THE JOLLY NINE... was the name of this group of men who met in front of Moegel's Tavern in days gone by. Those boys were really duded up for an outing.

ly gang of men celebrating in the usual manner.

The saloon keeper administered stimulants to her as best he knew how; then he got a horse and sleigh and with the help of several others managed to get her to where she boarded. Then they had to carry her up to her room on the top floor, where she slept the clock around until the effect of the stimulants had worn off.

Another saloon of note was White Bridge Inn on Main St. just as one crossed the Belleville bridge over Passaic River. This was quite a pang out for many of the Civil War veterans who would walk the way over from the veteran's home in Arlington each month when they received their pension check. There they would stay until their funds were exhausted, then start back across the river where some of them would be so "sleazy" that they "would lay down along the river bank and sleep" until morning.

One night in the '90's there was an argument in the White Bridge Inn and a while man, attacked a colored man, who to defend himself drew a stiletto and stabbed his opponent, resulting in the death of the white man. This made a great sensation in the town and the colored man had to stand trial, but before the trial could start it was necessary to have the stiletto that was used in the affair, but which could not be found.

Then, one day 'Pop' Mulligan the old bridge tender found the stiletto in a mud puddle alongside the road and the trial started, while 'Pop' became famous for finding it.

Old 'Pop' was a noted character in the town and could hold a considerable quantity of liquid refreshment. He also had a vocabulary that was sulphurous when the occasion required it, and would sometimes bluster the paint on the white bridge.

The colored man was acquitted as the act was in self defense.

Grace Of The Bough

Etched on the silver leaf of sky
Branches, now bare,
Pencil a scene never changing
While light is there.

Slender upreach of maple and birch,
The elm's multi-line,
Locust and sycamore — each one imprints
Its own design.

Always in summer my heart will recall
The strength of this Now —
Always beneath the glory of leaves,
The grace of the bough.

What The Vote Meant

A record number of 2,953 people voted in the Board of Education's first member election here Tuesday, the biggest vote in any Board Election in 54 years. People who voted — there are a little more than 15,000 registered voters here — are to be congratulated for having gone to the polls.

The vote brought out the people's preference clearly for one man, William Allison Boyd, who won by almost 550 votes over his nearest rival. And behind that margin can be seen the power of a new type of organization here, the Belleville Conference, formed admittedly to sift the best possible candidates for the Board, and comprising a goodly cross-section of town organizations.

The Belleville Conference can do a lot of good for Town Boards... provided the good continues its honest attempt to represent the many organizations... and select its candidates through democratic process. The pitfalls ahead are its being pompous, its selection of candidates by a few, while broadcasting by the many, and its being infiltrated and taken over by political groups who can make it just another political warhead. This has happened in other municipalities; indeed in some there is more than just one "Conference," which kills the purpose of the organization.

As to the theory that selection by Conference is tantamount to election, it certainly worked out in this election. However we cannot subscribe to this theory, because the election should be decided at the polls on Election Day, not by any group or groups. The strength in the Conference is a screening strength, picking good men as candidates. On Election Day, let the people decide.

Nomination of a candidate by the Conference certainly indicates that such a candidate has strength behind him. But it should not discourage other independents from running. Any man who is sincere in his outlook for better education and who thinks can do the town good by his election, is privileged to run for the Board.

The 2-1 margin vote for increase in the size of the Board from five to seven members also augurs well for Belleville. An increase will permit more Board members to handle the terrific research jobs and policy-making decisions the Board must make.

The close vote on all three phases of the Budget can only be interpreted as a slap on the wrist to the present Board. Too many people are dissatisfied with financial matters on the Board. Indeed, if it were not for voters in the Third Ward, at least two budget items would have to be placed on the ballot.

As to post-mortems on the election, the Associated P-T-As in Belleville should be congratulated for sponsoring an open forum in the high school, where all candidates could appear. It was the only open forum held in town, and had more effect than many realize.

It is a shame that there isn't an organization — a League of Women Voters, here for instance — which can take up the challenge of permitting all candidates to speak their piece.

The Kremlin Turns A Somersault

A quick conclusion, after reading between the lines of Tuesday's despatches from Moscow, is that the Communists' discomfiture is all to our advantage. We are convinced that Russia's bad crop-year combined with the failure of her scheduled production of consumer goods created conditions which brought about Malenkov's compulsory resignation. In that weakness, we believe, lies hope that despite the boasts and bragging of Molotov that Russia has taken the H-bomb lead from us, the Soviet Union is not in a position to wage war on a world scale.

Fundamentally, Malenkov's fall and the rise of Khrushchev and Bulganin leaves Red Russia's political motives and purposes unchanged. The Kremlin is still for world revolution; the Kremlin is still intent upon holding its gains in Europe while attempting, through its satellites, to probe for weaknesses and to expand its grip on Asia.

One aspect is clear: the Russian Army and the Communist party secretariat have pooled their power to crush the secret police and the administrative machine. Russia, once again, has rule by coalition and in that "collective leadership," we believe, the Army dominates. Bulganin, as Premier, still has to deal with Khrushchev, the Communist party boss, however, and, in our opinion, the struggle over Stalin's succession is far from over. The cracks in the Kremlin wall that were so apparent when Deputy Premier Lavrenti P. Beria was done in, are still there.

Of the two, Bulganin is truly the tougher, even though he, a marshal, has never won a battle or led troops. He is a political general and a political killer. His first party assignment, in 1918, a year after the Bolshevik revolution, was with the secret police, imprisoning and executing the Czarists who opposed the revolution. For a general, he had a strange career. He headed the electrical equipment industry; he became Mayor of Moscow. When Hitler struck at Stalin, Bulganin finally went to the front but not as a general. He became one of the top political commissars in the army and for that won his marshal's baton.

Khrushchev, squat, bald and garrulous is a heavy drinker and the life of the party. Foreign diplomats in Moscow call him "the amiable chatterbox," but we also know him to be the tough, relentless party boss, impatient with mistakes and demanding the kind of results that Malenkov confessed he could not furnish. An illiterate coal miner, a son of serfs, when he joined the party, Khrushchev is responsible for the great amalgamation of collective farms. By and large, however, his role was as a tough guy within the walls of the Kremlin. When Malenkov wanted to send someone to line up the Chinese Communists in a military alliance, he sent Khrushchev. As one of the architects of the Sino-Russian alliance, he has been loudly demanding full collaboration with Red China and in the Formosan crisis, he has given Peking his full backing.

With two killers entrenched in power, Malenkov was lucky to have escaped with his life — if his safety is permanent. Russia has had six Premiers since the revolution and only one is still alive — Molotov whom we might tend to forget was Premier for 11 years from 1930 to 1941 when he had to resign to make room for Joe Stalin. Of the other five Premiers, two died in office, three resigned and one, Alexei Rykov was taken out and shot for treason.

Mrs. Berger Goes To Bat

The Bloomfield town council, this week, protested the action of the State Highway Authority in collecting tolls at the Belleville Avenue tollgate on an incomplete Parkway and before the parallel road that is to carry Essex County traffic around the tollgate is completed.

Mrs. Ellen Berger, Nutley Assemblywoman, went to Trenton yesterday and ordered a bill drafted which will make the collection of tolls at Belleville Avenue, from Essex County motorists, illegal.

The protests pile up, but the Authority continues to take its illicit toll at the wickets. Nutley, being without an entrance or an exit to the Parkway anywhere within our town limits, is deprived of the right of resistance, such as East Orange and Bloomfield enjoy. We can do nothing but cooperate in the Authority's illegality.

Now, if ever, is the time for Clean Government and for the Essex County Board of Freeholders to give, swiftly, their support to Mrs. Berger's initiative. The entire Essex delegation in the State Legislature must support her with their votes. There will be resistance from South Jersey, which enjoys virtual toll-free Parkway travel but only a bill hammered into a law in the Legislature can bring this Authority to a realization of right and wrong.

Mrs. Berger's continuous action in the interests of Nutley motorists points up our contention that Nutley must have representation on a state and county level. We had no representation in either Trenton or Newark when the misconceived bill providing for the erection of the tollgate became law. For our own good we must never again be without a voice.

Mrs. Berger has earned the appreciation of the town for her effective defense of our common interests. The Town Commission, the Essex Board of Freeholders and the Republican and Democratic county organizations owe it to us to give her wholehearted support.

One Man's Opinion

With Peking's Snarling Denunciation Of United Nations "Cease Fire" Plea, It Becomes Clear War In Far East Depends On Red China

By Ralph E. Heinzen

How close are we to war with Communist China?

Close, certainly, but no closer than we were last March when we toyed with the idea of throwing the French air force into the struggle in Indochina to relieve the French fortress of Dienbiemph. No closer, either, than we were last September when the Chinese Reds began shelling Quemoy, a Nationalist China fortress on an island in the lee of the Asiatic mainland, and we moved units of the Seventh Fleet towards the hot island. Happily, the Communists ran out of ammunition before our warships arrived, so the test never came. No closer, either, than we were last November when Senator William F. Knowland, then the Republican majority leader in the Senate, urged President Eisenhower to blockade the coast and the ports of Red China to force the liberation of the 11 imprisoned American airmen.

But we are too close to war for comfort because there is no more reason to believe that the Chinese Communists will back down any more over Formosa than they backed down in North Korea. We may be able to keep the peace, but it will be a severe test of America's Pacific defense strategy.

The Communists' occupation of the Tachen Islands is only a matter of hours. They can capture them without firing a shot, so why should Peking risk a war. The Communists' demand for the evacuation of Quemoy and Matsu is another thing. Those islands are directly across the Straits from Formosa, far more easy to defend and not as far flung as are the Tachens.

Quemoy's Strategic Value
Our commitment is to fight to preserve Formosa and the Pescadores. We have not said that we would fight to preserve Quemoy and Matsu — but we have not said that we would not fight, either. In this "One Man's Opinion," we will help Chiang Kai-shek hold the two Nationalist strongholds as long as possible, without risking war, but if Peking continues to provoke the Nationalists' evacuation of the Tachens, then there is no reason to believe the Communists cannot work their way slowly through all the islands.

If and when the Communists do take Quemoy, they will be able to open the port of Amoy which is now useless — Chiang Kai-shek would be the base of any future Communist operation against Formosa. So, indefensible as it is, being surrounded on three sides by the mainland, Quemoy is worth a fight to, Chiang's nationalists.

Another "Munich" Appeasement?
If the United States declines to undertake defense of the desolate Quemoy island outpost actually inside the Communist perimeter, it is obvious that the Chinese Nationalists, within the near future may be forced to pull back, as in the case of the Tachens. To the Nationalists this smacks of "Munich."

Already more than a third of the entire windup treeless Quemoy islet is within range of Communist mainland artillery. This means that if the Communists should attempt an amphibious landing, they could cover the intended beachheads with artillery fire even if they did not use their air force. From nearby jet bases on the mainland, the Communists could cut off the supply line to the island.

And then the entire operation would turn into a military problem similar to that of Dienbiemph, in Vietnam, with a similar outcome almost certainly assured.

Planes Only Defense
The Quemoy garrison commander, tough Gen. Liu Yuchang, who also commands the Matsu defenses farther north, states that the only means of defending Quemoy would be with United States air cover.

Should the Communists attack Quemoy, military observers believe the United States would make the same decision as that made regarding the Tachens. Effective defense of either would require bombing of Chinese Communist mainland bases. And the United States apparently is not prepared to extend the conflict to that extent at this time.

The Eisenhower administration is now following what is, in effect, a development of the "containment policy." It has dropped earlier proposals for massive retaliation. It will not push the trial by arms, if it comes, to any attempt to conquer the mainland. This is like the limited war policy followed by President Truman save in two important particulars.

Use Chinese Soldiers
These two exceptions are: President Eisenhower has no intention of using American ground troops. Air and naval contingents will fight, if war occurs. If there is need of ground forces these will come from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's army.

Secondly, President Eisenhower rejects the "privileged sanctuary" policy of the Korean conflict, whereby Communist airplanes were not followed over the Yalu River. Instead, he favors a policy of "hot pursuit" in which attackers would be followed to their bases on the mainland. But there is a limitation on this policy, too. So-called "massive retaliation," including use of atomic weapons, is not contemplated.

"Hot Pursuit" But No War
If war occurs, every enemy action will bring a United States reaction of approximately equal weight and strength, but not substantially greater. Thus the "limited war" theory is in the ascendant again, in a new form. The administration believes its present policy is less likely to lead to war than a policy of drift and indecision.

The American bargaining position consists in part of President Eisenhower's somewhat ambiguous authority — granted by Congress January 28 — to "secure and protect" positions "related" to the defense of Formosa, and the Pescadores, and indeed, to take "other measures" such as bombing the mainland if in his judgment an emergency demanded such action.

Under this authority, Mr. Eisenhower could reinforce the Quemoy and Matsu positions "related" against Chinese Communist assault if this were adjudged necessary to the defense of Formosa. The President clearly does not wish to get into any such difficult position, but he reserves the right to do so.

By taking a stand in advance of its own actual desires, the United States has left itself some room for maneuver in a process of bargaining. As a "concession," it could fall back on the (Continued From Page 3 - 2nd Section)

Readers Praises Detective Work For Solutions To Crimes — Another Hits Lack Of Lighting

Editor, Belleville Times-News:

Amid the sensational headlines and the accompanying aftermath of conversational discussion which surrounds any spectacular arrest, there is apt to be an oblivious forgetfulness of the methodical and difficult modern methods of detection utilized by law enforcement authorities to track down criminals and the long tedious task of ferreting out clues and detection utilized by law enforcement which make such apprehension of felons possible.

The task, while facilitated by modern approaches and practices, still depends largely upon the individual detective and his endless experience in the never ending war against crime.

We of Belleville have every right to be both proud and secure in the knowledge that our local detective bureau possesses in its personnel such competent men as Detectives Mallick and Marino. This of course mentions but a few who equally qualify in sharing honors for the splendid job which has recently been achieved in solving many local crimes. It is a tribute to newly designated Deputy Chief McGinnis' leadership as head of the detective branch of the local police department.

Much controversy may from time to time arise concerning the administration of the Public Safety Department. One often wonders if much of it is not politically inspired, but be that as it may, it is reassuring to know that the men of the detective staff continue their unexcelled pursuit of their assigned duties in the service of the citizens of Belleville. Their record is a proud one. We all owe them recognition and a debt of gratitude.

Muggings?

Commissioner Sullivan has promised the people of Belleville better lighting for our streets. He stated that he had requested Public Service for this lighting and they in turn made a survey of this situation and found that Belleville is still being lighted by antique candles.

When the people of Belleville went to the polls to vote for their representatives, they did not vote for Sullivan for this.

Junior Achievers Gain Business Know How

Students Here Prepare For Varied Careers - By Actual Experience

Do you know what it takes to organize a business? Are you familiar with the mysteries of capitalization, corporate leases, production schedules, sales, campaigns and dividends? Can you solve production bottlenecks, problems of management and labor, and the many other details that go into running a successful business?

Early last October, thirty-one miniature enterprises were organized in the Essex-West Hudson area under the auspices of Junior Achievement of Essex and West Hudson, with more than six hundred young men and women from the high schools in the area applying for participation in the nationally known program.

Junior Achievement is a "learn by doing" program financed by leading business and industrial firms and interested individuals. It is modern business in miniature through which young people of high school age discover how to utilize modern business methods in their own small-scale enterprises and gain actual experience and understanding of the importance of initiative, dependability and integrity. It is in no way intended as an organization to combat juvenile delinquency, but it is doing its share in the building of good citizens by inspiring character and ambition in thousands of young people each year. It is non-profit, non-political and non-sectarian organization of businessmen dedicated to the purpose of providing American youth between the ages of 15 and 21 with experience in the ways and methods of the American business system. The mechanics of the program have been designed over years of experience, have been improved from time to time and today, they are not only practical but intensely interesting to all who come under their influence.

Students Invited To Join

Shortly after the opening of each school, the students are given an opportunity to hear about Junior Achievement and those who are interested are invited to make application for participation. As the applications are received by the local Junior Achievement headquarters, they are processed and put into groups of fifteen young men and women with each group representing several different high schools. Each group is placed under the guidance of three experts from local business and industry. One of these is experienced in the field of production, another in sales and the third in accounting. Under the leadership of these adults the young people form their own companies, elect their own officers, select a name for their enterprise and determine to produce a specific item or render a recognized service.

The young people raise capital to launch their business through the sale of shares of stock, at 50 cents per share with a limit of five shares to each investor. With this capital they purchase supplies, pay rent and other necessary items of expenditure encountered in their through the sale of their products or services they pay salaries, commissions and bonuses as well as dividends to their stockholders.

Through every step of the way the Achievers, as they are known, are given the true business picture, with its difficulties, its responsibilities and its opportunities for success or failure.

Learn Problems Of Business

They learn that employees sometimes have to contend with situations which are not always to their liking. They discover that there are difficult problems to be solved in production and sales. They learn of the headaches that crop up in managerial circles and which must be corrected if the firm is to prosper and through it all they gain an appreciation of the fundamental need for cooperation and teamwork between management and labor, without which no enterprise can achieve success.

Junior Achievement goes still further in encouraging the development of valuable qualities of citizenship and leadership in the young men and women who come under its influence. Recognition is given to those who do outstanding jobs in the program, through a system of awards. For the companies there are national and local trophies and other incentives, for which they must compete. Scholarships, travel opportunities and other awards are given for individual qualities.

This valuable character building, leadership training program is provided for the Achievers at no cost to them, other than the minor expenses encountered in their social activities. The meeting place, the equipment and other basic materials needed to organize their companies are provided for them by interested business firms and industries who provide the funds needed to carry on the program.

Demonstrates American Way

Junior Achievement is a working, practical demonstration of the American way of life and the opportunities it offers to every one. It is decidedly not anti-labor nor discriminatory. It is in no way a pressure group with an axe to grind and offers no competition with individual industry or service in the community or on the national level. Its primary purpose is to give American youth, through the guidance of the volunteer advisers from business and industry, a complete understanding of management and labor so that when they take their places in the nation's leadership tomorrow they will do so with intelligence and as enlightened and responsible citizens and businessmen. Thus, the thirty-four men and women who represent Nutley High School in the program today are helping to insure that America will continue to be a leader among all nations and a bulwark of freedom to all people.

Jehovah's Witnesses Plan 3-Day Session

Arrangements have now been completed for the semi-annual Bible assembly of the New Jersey Circuit No. 1 of Jehovah's Witnesses at the Teaneck Armory, Teaneck and Liberty Rd., in Teaneck on February 11th, 12th, and 13th. MUSEUM HONORS ABE'S BIRTHDAY

Will Display John Rogers' Sculpture Of "Council of War" To Honor Lincoln Sunday

The Nutley Museum will honor the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, on Sunday, by placing on exhibit the famous John Rogers sculpture known as "The Council of War". This piece, dated 1862, is one of the eighty-seven known groups which were popular in American homes during the Victorian era.

John Rogers, described as a "folk artist", was born in 1829 and died in 1904. In 1858 he went to Europe to study sculpture under the English sculptor, Spence. Here he learned to reproduce clay groups in plaster form.

Over 100,000 copies of his known groups were produced by means of a gelatin mold and bronze master cast.

The New York Historical Society possesses a large collection of the works of this popular artist.

reason that he will give us a survey. We don't want a survey, Mr. Commissioner, we want action. This is another reflection of "Sullivan mis-management."

In a recent issue of the Belleville Times-News it stated that the people of Silver Lake and Sono are fighting for better street lighting and more police protection. This occurred in 1910. I will not sit idly by and permit this situation to continue until the year 2000. This fight should not be restricted only to two sections of Belleville when it prevails all over town. Our immediate surrounding towns have excellent lighting. Belleville has not. Why?

Why have the people of Belleville not been informed of the recent muggings, one on Smith Street, one on Clinton Street? Why has this been placed on the books as something other than a mugging? Why? Why?

Only Sullivan knows the answers and he won't tell us about it.

Poor street lighting and inadequate police protection due to Sullivan's mis-management work to the advantage of muggers.

Thomas B. Sciarillo

(Editor's Note)—A check with police headquarters resulted in the information that there were no muggings here. In one instance, police said, a girl was injured in a private fight between juveniles, including other girls and boys.

TOWN RAISES $1,139 IN ONE- DAY PALSY DRIVE

A total of $1,139 was raised in the Cerebral Palsy campaign here last Sunday, according to an announcement this week by Mayor Isadore J. Fannin, Belleville chairman. He emphasized that the final figure is expected to be much larger, since Sunday's inclement weather may have hampered collections and reporting by canvassers.

"We are deeply grateful to all those who contributed to this worthy cause," the local chairman said. "Everyone who gave is helping to provide much-needed care and treatment for the children and adults in our area who are crippled by cerebral palsy."

It was stressed that the returns are not complete yet, as there are still many envelopes containing contributions which have to be opened and tabulated.

Many volunteers participated in the one-day appeal.

"We tried to reach every home," Paddia stated, "but by chance we missed anyone, we hope that he will mail in his gift to headquarters of Essex-West Hudson United Cerebral Palsy, 355 Main Street, East Orange."

Funds raised in the campaign will be used to support the varied program of the Essex-West Hudson UCP. This program includes maintenance of a treatment center for cerebral palsy boys and girls, organization of recreational programs for cerebral palsied teenagers and adults, contribution toward the research program conducted by national United Cerebral Palsy organization, and partial support of the Essex County Vocational Center in Maplewood, a sheltered workshop for handicapped adults.

line it really wants defended — namely, Formosa and the Pescadores — and in the process, hope to wring from Communist China the very real concession of abstaining from assault on that nation.

This advanced bargaining position, however, has placed the United States in a vulnerable posture from the propaganda point of view. It is a stand which might be made to look provocative — indeed, which some of the United States' allies think is, in fact, unnecessarily provocative.

The Chinese Communists' bargaining position has long been clear. They demand American "evacuation" of Formosa and Formosa Strait, opportunity freely to seize all the territory they consider Chinese, and a seat in the UN.

This, too, is an extreme bargaining position in the eyes of the West, but many Asians do not so consider it and the propaganda battle is aimed in large part at Asian opinion. Whether Peking, too, would be prepared to fall back on a compromise position remains to be seen.
