New Inoculation Date Set
For Wednesday Provided
Serum Is Shipped

Whether or not school children here begin the series of anti-polio vaccine inoculations depends upon whether the town gets the vaccine.

The mayor said people should take the failure to get the vaccine in stride and that panic or impatience will not help.

Berry said two medical teams would travel throughout the schools for the inoculations. Under the plan, children of the first and second grade will be vaccinated.

TWO GROUPS RAP COMMISSION ON GRECO DISMISSAL

RPCA, Middletown Say
All Five Must Have Had
Knowledge Of Firing Intent

Charges that real reason for the recent dismissal of Building Inspector Thomas Greco was "resentment on the part of the Town Commissioners for Greco's courageous stand in several recent controversial civil issues," were made this week by the RPCA, Middletown.

The charges were in a resolution unanimously adopted at an open meeting Wednesday night. The resolution also asserted that the "economy" reason given by Commissioner Kenneth B. Smith for Greco's dismissal was "deliberately misleading, inasmuch as numerous employees have been dismissed from the staff of the Public Works Director since the firing of Greco."

HERE'S HOW...

MAKE FLOWER BOXES

Attractive flower boxes are easy to make.
For the window-box type (A) make the ends first, add the bottom board, allowing it to extend beyond the edges of the ends and then plane off the excess to the sides of the ends. Add the sides, allowing them to extend slightly above and beneath the ends; plane to produce an even top and bottom surface.
For both A and B use 6-penny non-rusting nails for fastening and deep-resistance or preservative treated lumber. 1-inch-thick flower decorations are drawn as shown, using 1.

The Dutch for centuries have known the meaning of hospitality

Calling at — in fact, opening — many of the principal ports around the world, the Dutch early learned the travelled art of hospitality.

That is the chief reason why you find so many people, famed internationally, aboard the magnificent Nieuw Amsterdam. Not only are the Dutch families with far-flung customs but appreciate the flavor nuances of dishes famous in many places.

Coupled with the immaculate cleanliness of Dutch ship-keeping and the traditional reliability of Dutch seamanship, it makes a Holland-America crossing or cruise something to be remembered and treasured.

Spring Stars

Now down the west the mighty Bull goes plunging.

Aldebaran the great jewel of his eye.
The Hunter clambers over the wall of mountains searching the westward pastures of the sky.

Up the east the springtime stars come climbing:

Arcturus who will watch our summer night,
and trembling Spica, and as midnight passes,
once again the glittering Swan in flight.

In snow-damp woods, on rocky thawing hillsides, arbutus opens delicate pink stars.

Hepatica lifts small pale-purple planets in upland meadows by fallen-pasture bars.
And which are lovelier I cannot tell:
the low sweet stars of earth or the high of heaven.

When I see Altair or a sudden wind-flower blowing,
I am seized by spring, by those two white stars riven.

The Expansion Question

The board of education has come up with a school expansion program which will be decided by the voters Tuesday in the special election.

And despite the flood of arguments on bomb-shelters, sites, and costs the one big fact remains is the extreme shortage of school space in Belleville.

It stands to reason that the building and population boom everywhere in North Jersey had to catch up with Belleville sometime—particularly since the last school structure was built here in 1928. This is the time.

To meet that expansion and to better the weak educational program here, the board of education has come up with a program of a six-grade, junior and senior high school system, a program recommended by the Columbia Survey, a school survey group which studied the growingly desperate school situation in 1950.

The Survey stressed that the junior-senior high system was not only the best EDUCATIONALLY but the CHEAPEST way to handle the problem.

The School Board, tired of the knocks and criticisms concerning the program, has come up with the recommended solution. It has put forth an honest attempt to get the story to all the people. It sent letters to every town organization its members could think of, asking for a chance to appear, and sent out a brochure which presented a fairly true financial picture.

It also in the latter stages of the controversy, put up the architect to answer for any and all to questions, at the meeting in the high school this week.

As further proof of its sincerity, it adopted a resolution permitting economy changes in the plans, if the referendum passed. This would permit William A. Boyd, the people's choice to eliminate any gingerbreaders of architecture. Mr. Boyd knows his onions. He's not going to permit the architect to steal us blind. From his comments and stand in board meetings, Boyd intends to press for economies in construction.

Now here are the facts. Mr. Homeowner in the $4,390,000 expansion program. No mistake about it, it's going to cost money. Anything constructive does.

First the board intends to float bonds for the high school and one addition on a 30-year basis and on another addition for 20 years.

The program's entire cost will result at first in a 75 point tax rate increase, an increase expected to dip some as the loan is paid off.

The 75 points will include not only the schools and the furniture, (with the schools estimated at 65 points) but any new teachers, heating, maintenance as well.

A resident with a home assessed at $5,000, now is paying on the new town $7.02 tax rate, $551 a year.

The building program would raise that 75 points to $7.77. Then Mr. Homeowner will be paying $888 a year or $37 a year more than he did before the school expansion program.

In other words, the long-sought better educational system will cost $37 a year, complete.

So far as arguments about mortgaging the town is concerned, they do not stand up under scrutiny. As a matter of fact, Belleville is one of the minority of towns in New Jersey which can still put in a school system without exceeding the town's debt limit.

The need for better education can no better be indicated than in the repeated references to "lack of facilities" in the high school evaluation report and the Columbia Survey.

Take a look at the schools themselves, particularly the high school with an area pitifully small for the numbers attending. Another schools has its third floor stairway marked with "condemned" signs; while others long have used every extra facility for classroom space.

As for increasing the numbers in the classes, it's axiomatic that the more kids there are, the less chance of getting anything across—the teacher has to spend too much time just trying to keep order.

Perhaps some people may be irritated at certain aspects of the program, feel this or that is unnecessary, prefer concrete to cinder blocks, prefer one site to another.

But it would be sorry to knock down the entire program for a comparatively minor reason. No board of five individuals is going to come up with a solution satisfying to everybody.

The big factor is the need for better education. Belleville, the seventh largest system in the county stands twentieth of twenty-one municipalities in what it spends per pupil cost.

Why should the people, children or school system continue to be the floor mat of Essex County? It's about time Belleville started raising its head as high as any other.

A Victory That Contains The Germ Of Defeat

Senator Mark Anton and Assemblyman William O. Barnes, who for the past weeks have said just about everything anyone can say about another and stay out of the libel courts, are sitting down with Republican State Chairman Sam Bodine to a steak dinner, at noon today, at the Stacy-Trent in Trenton and out of that crossing of the knives and forks Bodine hopes to bring peace and a Republican victory in November.

It will take far more than that to keep Essex in the GOP column come November. If it had been a difference of political opinion which one steak could settle, there would have been no primary fight. The basic faults, deep within the Republican party in Essex County, have not been corrected. Having inspired the creation of an independent ticket of regular Republicans who battled the entrenched forces of the county machine right down to a $3,330-to-30,168 vote, those faults have not been dissipated by such a "near-victory" victory.

Senator Anton's weak legislative record was only a secondary reason for the opposition to his slate. The fundamental reason was the leadership of the county committee, and the lack of confidence of a great many Essex Republicans in the motives and the political wisdom of John E. Cash, the incumbent at the levers of the county machine.

The near defeat of the Anton ticket has written the end of Cash as county chairman. Doomed, he is almost certain to go when the new county committee is organized on Tuesday. If the entrenched forces have their way, his successor will be 46-year-old William Yeomans, of Newark, who is an Anton favorite. There may be trouble over Yeomans, but there is almost total agreement that anyone would be better than Cash.

There remains the major need for bringing about party peace before the winter winds blow. Much will depend upon the personality of the county chairman to be named on Tuesday. If it would happen to be Cash, the Republican party in Essex would be a dead duck; if it is Yeomans, it will be a lame duck, but one with some life left which careful nursing in the months ahead might bring back to health in time.

This one-time foremost citadel of Republicanism has been shaken to its foundations, however, and it will take a total reversal of thinking and acting, on a county level, to restore the former strength. Essex Republicanism has a long way to go to earn again the toga of Clean Government. County control of the party must be truly clean, not only in name but in motives. A powerfully entrenched GOP political machine which aims all at holding fat-paying jobs for the faithful is as good as defeated in November. Tuesday's primary results show that the party is split and in camps of almost even strength and the half seeking reforms must not be overlooked.

One Man's Opinion

Washington Is Convinced That Moscow Has Plenty Of Ulterior Motives In Making Separate Peace With Vienna

By Ralph Eric Heinzen

By the Moscow agreement which, this week, assured Austria of a peace settlement much less painful than the most optimistic Austrians could have hoped for—provided the Western Powers do not block it—the Kremlin appears, on the surface, to be rolling back the iron curtain of its own volition. The truth is that by the feat of Vienna the Kremlin is, if anything, trying to drop its iron curtain around the whole of Germany and move the western frontiers of its continental empire to the Rhine and the Danube.

The sense of the bargain conceded to the Austrians, is that the Germans can have equally easy terms and a union of the two zones if they want it. The only catch is that such a Germany would have to be neutral. In other words, Germany can have an advantage of peace if Bonn breaks away from its Western alliances and abandons the Paris pact which binds it, militarily, to the West.

To say that Washington is uneasy is an understatement.

Unlike the Yalta era, Washington now is leary of anything that the Kremlin diplomats do. I found no support in Washington for the belief that Moscow might possibly be sincere in wanting to seek an Austrian settlement.

Washington is convinced that the whole Austrian affair serves a useful purpose—useful, of course, to Moscow. It could be doubly useful if Moscow's generosity to Vienna could cause trouble in Bonn for the Adenauer government by stiffening the opposition which has opposed the Paris pacts and their military clauses without, first, having tried to make peace directly with Russia.

Prospect Of Roll-back

There is one aspect of this Soviet diplomatic play that is particularly beguiling. If the treaty is implemented now, it will produce the first withdrawal of Soviet troops from any territory they occupied at the end of World War II since the withdrawal from northern Iran in 1946, after the UN Security Council, sitting at Hunter College in a special session which I reported for the United Press, forced Russia to evacuate her troops.

It was in that historic session, incidentally, that Gromyko walked out the first Russian walkout of the UN, although I had seen Litvinov walk out of the League of Nations at Geneva, over the Finnish war affair.

Provisions For Evacuation

It is recalled, however, that under the peace treaties with Eastern European countries the U.S.S.R. was allowed to station troops in them only as long as it was necessary to keep communication lines open to its occupation troops in Austria.

With an Austrian treaty and withdrawal of Soviet troops, Moscow automatically would be expected to withdraw troops from its Eastern European satellite also.

Not long ago, however, the Soviets formed a "NATO" of their own, the implications of which were not grasped fully at the time. But now it is becoming clear that at least one purpose of such a treaty was to give Moscow the legal basis to keep Soviet Army troops in the satellite states.

First, a guarantee of independence could be a euphemism for guaranteeing neutrality. And while the United States does not object to Austria being neutral, it does not approve of any agreement that forces it to be neutral or that would give Moscow the legal basis for reoccupying Austria.

Second, if the Soviets can get such a guarantee written into an Austrian treaty, they have laid the groundwork for putting such a guarantee into a German peace treaty.

Molotov The Fox

Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov will argue effectively that what the big powers have done for Austria they should do for Germany. And a guaranteed or "neutralized" Germany would knock the underpinnings out from the recently ratified Paris pacts that take West Germany into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and arranged for its contribution of a half million men to western security.

The impression is growing in Washington that Mr. Molotov has pulled a fast one on the Austrians and the West that pays tribute to its astuteness and ability. This is the reason that the Soviet Union's Secretary of State John Dulles to dub Mr. Molotov one of the smartest diplomats either side of the Iron Curtain.

Austrian independence would be a small price to pay if with it the Soviets could block Germany's path to the West. But the man association with the West and Germany's rearmament, and particularly if there were some thing attached to Austria's independence that made it more apparent than real.

Advantages Of Initiative

The headlines are all on Austria, but the eyes of the diplomats are all on Germany. For if Austria can buy its independence by an agreement to stay neutral in the East-West tug of war, then the same price may be given to Germany.

It should be noted that most of what Moscow has agreed to in this Austro-Soviet pact could have been worked out with the western powers in normal big four talks on Austria. But by dealing directly with Vienna, by rolling out the red carpet for Austrian Chancellor Julius Raab and his colleagues, the Kremlin put itself in the role of being the good friend and bestowing independence on Austria by itself.

It also established the dangerous precedent, from the West's point of view, of direct dealing between a four-power occupied country and Moscow. The temptation to do likewise could become irresistible with the Germans—given enough encouragement by Moscow and faced with the military burdens of NATO membership.

Letters To The Editor

Reader Says What Is Best For Children Should Decide Vote; Another Plays Dirty Politics; Another, "Practical Approach" Needed

Says Good Investment

Editor, Belleville Times-News:

As a reader of the Belleville Times for many years, I feel I am entitled to at least this first 'Letter to the Editor'.

April 26th is going to be a most important day for us in Belleville. It seems to me, that we need to get all viewpoints in order to vote intelligently on the new High School issue. It also seems that the same people are always writing letters to the Editor, and some people might get the impression that their feeling is the majority feeling.

BUILDING—yes, stop a moment and think what the word MEANS. BUILDING—Be it a new High School, a Church, a Synagogue, or even a home. There are wheels that go against it. The reason it costs TOO much. THIS is NOT the time to build...the present one is good enough for me...all run along the same vein. This season the pessimists have come up with a brand new atomic one...NO BOMB PROOF SHELTER in these buildings?

Of all the millions of dollars spent in buildings the past few years, can they point to ONE building that has been a success? And yet this is the reason why they ask us to stop a program that has been years in developing. Think of the people whom you remember. Does Mr. Holland mean anything to you? Was his name put on a tunnel because he was AGAINST building? No! Do you remember the people who were against building your present Church or Synagogue? No! We do remember the BUILDERS. The people with VISION. The men and women who had the guts and worked and slaved to BUILD. They too had opposition, but with courage and conviction they overcame it. Each and everyone of us benefits from their efforts.

Sure, buildings cost money. A new high school will mean more taxes. Piano lessons cost money too. Or a movie once a week. Or an apple pie. Education costs money too. But look what we will get for it. A building all of us will be proud of and something that will live on and benefit children for years to come. It's an investment. And like any GOOD investment it will pay dividends that will come back to us many times over.

Every penny that goes into this program should be zealously watched. If we can have anything without impairing the net result, we must do it. But let us go forward. Let us build with confidence, not FEAR. Let us build with CO-operation from ALL Civic organizations in Belleville, including our Commissioners. Because when all is said and done, this building will reflect credit on the ENTIRE community. Let it be said WE did our part to make it a reality.

Having seen the long hours our Board of Education has put in on this program and watched our Superintendent of Schools in his many tasks, I feel we should be thankful to them. We should put our collective shoulders to the wheel and PROVE to them that we appreciate their efforts.

Yes, we the mothers and fathers and citizens of Belleville, who usually don't write letters to the editor, WE CAN do this...by voting YES.

Harry G. Fellman
Belleville, N. J.

Practical Approach Needed

Editor, Belleville Times-News:

Certainly public schools are vitally essential and most necessary. Society indeed is obligated to provide each budding generation of American children their basic birthright of adequate free public education. Belleville today, as most communities of this area, is confronted with a plagues school expansion problem. There is no room for controversy on this point. There is, however, divergence of thought as to the most practicable approach to be followed in providing the answer to our immediate vexatious school congestion.

Education should unquestionably be the best possible, but it should, likewise, be within our financial means. The prudent housewife hardly lives beyond the earning power of her spouse. The factory worker depending upon his car for transportation settles for "fixing up the old barge" when he can't see his way clear to buy a new car at the "fancy prices of the present." The same sane philosophy should prevail in resolving the question of constructing a new high school.

PAYS FINE FOR EGG-BREAKING VIOLATIONS

The state department of health said this week that Henry August, of Belleville, has paid a financial penalty to the Department of Law and Public Safety for operating an unlicensed egg-breaking establishment in First Avenue, Harrison.

August apparently paid the penalty, said the health department, rather than face prosecution in court for violating the law which requires a license for operation of establishments breaking out shell eggs.

The operation was first uncovered by Harrison Police and referred to the State Health Department which placed the plant under surveillance for several nights.

After sufficient evidence was gathered, representatives of the Illinois state health department, and the Food and Drug Administration entered the establishment and seized over 1,500 pounds of Bantams and about 2,500 dozen shell eggs which were suspected of being adulterated. These were subsequently destroyed by the owner under state health department supervision.

Agents of the state health department also seized several lots of frozen eggs in Newark and Paterson, N. J., which were said to have been packed and sold by Henry August.
