Adult Education Planned For Fall

Board Of Education Sponsoring First Such Program Here; Forms To Help Select Courses Being Sent Townwide; H. D. Knuppel Director

The first adult education program will be held here in the fall.

It will be held probably in the high school, under the direction of Herman D. Knuppel, and under the sponsorship of the Board of Education.

This week, Knuppel announced, forms are being sent townwide to residents in order to get a selection of the subjects which will be offered.

And a 15-member citizens' group is being formed to plan specific dates and data of the adult schools. It will hold its first meeting June 14.

Under the tentative plans, the adult school will begin in the fall and also have a spring term, with each term lasting 10 weeks, each course one night a week. The course cost will be from $4 to $8.

In the form sent out this week, Knuppel said: "In order to place the most desirable courses in the curriculum, we would appreciate a completion of this form."

Residents are then asked to place a check according to their first, second and third choices among 42 subjects, or to list any other courses they might like to take.

According to the director, the Adult Education group will round out the course selection this summer and obtain the necessary funds for such courses for the fall.

With the program, Belleville follows the lead of other municipalities in Essex in adult education programs.

Programs are now in effect in:

NAMED TO TRY FOR AIR FORCE EUROPEAN LIFT

Frank Costenbader May Get Month's Trip To Five Countries This Summer

Health Officer Eugene Berry and Schools Superintendent Evan Thomas this week called off Salk vaccine inoculations until the fall.

Berry acted after a conference with Thomas and talks with ten doctors here, all of whom, he said, advised postponement of the program until September.

The postponement was the last action in a series of confused and mixed-up announcements and commentaries on a state and national level. Last week, Dr. Daniel Bergsma, state health commissioner put the town health authorities and school administrators on a stand-by basis, until Washington cleared the vaccine.

Berry said the program was postponed here due to misunderstandings and statements which were resulting in adverse publicity for the vaccine.

He said the vaccine was not a child and did not get into the blood, and that Newark officials had called off their insinuations for that reason.

He said it was also, by coincidence, there might be an uproar, and a child did get polio, by coincidence, there might be an uproar.

He said the health of the town was not in jeopardy except for an outbreak of measles.

Commission Meets Monday On Board's School Site

Will Decide Whether To Use Town-Owned Land On West Side Of Stadium For School Location

Whether the Board of Education gets permission to use the west side of the municipal stadium as a school site for the proposed high school is in the hands of the Town Commission.

The board this week sought Commission permission to use the town-owned land, in a letter from Board Attorney Max Schwartz.

The Commission is expected to come up with its answer next week, after deciding on the matter, at the end of the joint Board-Commission conference Tuesday night.

The Commission will meet Monday at 8 P.M.

At the joint meeting, the board turned back the deed to the old bog site property, on formal request by Town Attorney Laurence A. Hildebrand, who said he was acting on instruction of the commission.

The bog site property, will remain in the recreation department under Commissioner Elmer S. Hyde.

A good part of the newly-proposed site is also under the ownership of the recreation department.

Board Attorney Schwartz, in his letter to commissioners, asked for the best site for the proposed new high school.

LOOKS LIKE BOARD MUST FIND OTHER HIGH SCHOOL SITE

King, Sullivan Appear Willing To Grant Deed But Third Vote Seems Hard Come By

It appears that the Board of Education will have to look elsewhere than the bog site for the location of the proposed new high school.

If indications by commissioners at the meeting between the Board and the Commission this week can be taken at value, it looks like a 3-2 vote against granting the deed of the new property under consideration (the west side of the stadium) to the board.

The issue is expected to be decided at a meeting of the Commission, then the formal opinion is to be sent to the board in a letter.

17 YEAR OLD DRAWS 20-30 YEAR TERM FOR PECORA DEATH

Elvie Forney Cites "Eye For Eye" Bible Phrase, But Is Shaken; Another Gets Life

A 17-year-old Belleville boy drew a 20-30 year prison term in the fatal beating of Joseph Pecora of 71 Honiss Street, during a robbery attempt.

Another 17-year-old from East Orange got life imprisonment for the crime; and still another youth from Newark drew 15 to 30 years.

Before being sentenced, Elvie Forney, 40 Home Street, quoted from the Bible, "eye for an eye," stating he was thankful for any sentence because the court had spared his life in accepting his defense of not wishing to make a dilemma.

However, Forney was visibly shaken when County Judge Edward Gaskin pronounced sentence. Gaskin said he was receiving a lesser sentence than life because he did not have the East Orange boy's record, nor mental maladjustment, nor was as guilty of the murder.

Pecora was beaten in his room on the night of December 23, and died in a hospital seven days later. The prosecutor conceded that.

LIQUOR STORE, GAS STATION ROBBED

Crooks Hold Up White Oaks Shoppe; Burglarize Esso Station In Franklin Street

A liquor store was robbed and a gas station burglarized in two thefts here late last week.

Two young men escaped with $280 from the White Oaks Liquor Shoppe at 528 Union Avenue, after holding up Donald Gilchrist, Jr., of Nutley.

A burglar or burglars got $290 from Steffanelli's Esso Station, 113 Franklin Street, after breaking a grate and getting in through a rear window. The station was wired with a burglar alarm, but had gone out of order the night before the burglary.

The liquor store robbery, Gilchrist said the two men, described in their early 20's, came in and asked for beer. Because they appeared nervous, he asked for identification.

One then whipped out a gun, forced Gilchrist to fork up the register's receipts, locked the proprietor in a men's room and escaped.

The two also were believed the pair of burglars who pulled off a successful Irvington robbery the same night.

Steffanelli said station robbery was discovered by John Malozzi of Newark when he reported for work in the morning. The tumbler and handle of the safe door was broken and $260 taken. The receipts included those of Mrs. Edward Reichenbach, 100 Franklin Street, who had just closed her business next door. Another $40 was taken from the register.

Dutch Church Tombstones Could Tell History

Revolutionary War, Powder Mills Blast Symbolized In Old Graveyard

By Regina Smardige

Many streets here bear the names of the early Dutch and English settlers who worshipped in the Dutch Reformed Church and who are buried in the tranquil, grass-covered slopes of the old churchyard.

The sanctuary, which still stands on Main and Rutgers Streets, was built in 1720 after the land was purchased from Francis Speer and his wife Catharine according to a deed in the Essex County records.

A simple brown headstone commemorates Josiah Hornblower, who brought the first steam engine to this country in 1754 from his native Staffordshire, England.

Similar chaste headstones mark the graves of three young men, killed in the explosion of the Belleville Powder Mills, on April 20, 1814. The mill, built in 1812 by Captain Decatur on Washington Avenue and Mill Street, blew up one Spring day with a mighty roar. Many were killed but no existing records list the exact number.

Many of the workers may have been Irish immigrants, according to stones in the Dutch churchyard. One reads:

William Cooney
A native of Ireland
& County Donegal
Who departed this life
April 20 1814
by explosion of the Belleville Powder Mills.

The second stone indicates there was some doubt among the stone cutters about the spelling of the town's name.

My wife and children

Yet another spelling is found on the third stone.

Here lies the remains of

MOVING OUT?
MUST HAVE PERMIT
A crack-down is being held against residents who move out of town without obtaining moving permits to do so.

A reminder to all police in police headquarters is that they should be on the watch for people moving, to check permits, because some moving out are getting away with it.

Eugene Barnett, license chairman, said a moving license doesn't out, but that people should obtain them are checked to see if they have paid their taxes including a personal tax.

Dual Control
Committee Questions Adequacy Of Provisions For Supervision And Improvement Of Instruction

(Twelfth and last in a series of articles on the evaluation survey of the high school, as presented by Earl Master Reading (PA) high school principal and head of the survey group.)

Provisions for leaves appear to be inadequate. The appointment of a school psychologist would seem to be advantageous. A salary guide for professional personnel other than teachers would appear to have merit.

The committee was somewhat disturbed by the system of dual control rather than the centralization of all executive authority in the superintendent but understands that the present system has worked well in Belleville.

Finally, the committee questions the adequacy of provisions for supervision and the improvement of instruction. Observation and study indicate that the relatively new position of curriculum coordinator has been a forward-looking move. Much that is being done in the area of curriculum development can be traced to this innovation. Other areas, too, have felt the impact of this service agency.

However, the elimination of the supervisory function of the department head is, in our opinion, open to question. The task of the department head is to include close, sympathetic supervision of the classroom work. It appears to the committee that both functions are desirable and that under the co-ordinating leadership of the superintendent, and the principal, they could be made to

Memorial Mystery

Burglar Gets Away, Using Cop As Shield, After Being Trapped In High School

In police headquarters it was quiet, for a Memorial Day morning.

The desk sergeant heard his calls come in, plucked another cigarette, leaned back. So far, thank heaven, there was none of the high speed violence and traffic deaths which of times marked the holiday . . . at least not here in town. Wonder who'd win over at Indianapolis?

Over in the high school, it was quiet too. Bill O'Neill night watchman, made his way down the hall. Another holiday weekend. Well, the kids wouldn't be using the cafeteria today.

O'Neill went over to a phone, called the cops.

Anybody in the offices at 4:20 in the morning, Memorial Day morning, must be up to no good. O'Neill went over to a phone, called the cops.

Minutes later, four radio patrolmen and two beatmen sped out at the high school. One was Patrolman David Waddell, who accompanied O'Neill in his search for the burglar.

But behind a partition at the southeast rear entrance of the building, a crowd of kids was spotted. He jumped up, got the drop on Waddell and disarmed him, then he fired six quick shots from his service revolver into the chain lock holding the high street door.

Looks Bad

It was Hyde who was the prime mover in urging Town Attorney Lawrence Keenan to get the first site, (that proposed in the referendum) back from the board.

The question now appears to be whether or not the board will study the proposed school during the referendum as to both cost and size.

That he might yield to the new site was seen in Hugh Wadell's statement his week in the meeting that the public works department had struck gravel at the west side of the stadium at seven feet, thus precluding the need and expense for piling.

However, Smith was openly unhappy at learning that the board had not advised the architect to study the Washington Avenue site, and that the board's plans for expansion included more than the proposed high school.

Mrs. Rochau said the board had discussed it and didn't feel Washington Avenue was the site.

Crab's Suggestion

Robert C. Grubin, past Commission candidate, said that any site of the bog site vicinity was poor. He urged a central location such as raising School 3 and rebuilding, and using School 9 for redistricting.

King pointed out that there were at least nine properties the board would have to acquire, Grubin replying that any bog site structure would be much more expensive. William A. Boyd pointed out that using private property was removing it forever from the tax rolls.

doing, they would like to be accused of playing politics.

The commission is for a new high school, even though the press may get it all wrong," he said.

Padula said the new site would require five houses to be torn down and the Washington Avenue site only one.

Mrs. Rochau mentioned that if the board ever decided to build on the Washington Avenue site, a lay advisory committee member for one, would resign immediately.

James R. Golden, past commissioner, said it was significant that the high school evaluation report here said the building was not without merit.

Golden also said that St. Mary's school, in Nutley was planning to convert a chapel to house 40 students in a class, and said the board's building program hinged on the number of students in a classroom.

Golden also lashed out at discussion on education matters by Commissioners, stating the Commission's business only was to decide whether to give up the deed.

He also urged a five per cent increase in a six per cent fee for the architect. Harris replied that if Schindlin started bargaining, he would be rebuked by fellow architects. Mrs. Rochau said the board interviewed four architects and then decided upon Schindlin.

Cuba's Side Of Story
Editor, Belleville Times-News:
Relations between Cuba and the United States have been close. The development of Cuba has been advanced by investors from this region. This area is a large consumer of Cuba's sugar and Cuba is a big customer for the manufactured goods and farm products of the southern states.
In 1953, Cuba purchased American goods of all kinds valued at $45,000,000. More than one third of this amount was for products originating in New England, New York and New Jersey, including several Nutley firms, among them Hoffman-La Roche, Inc., and Edward R. Robinson, Inc.
Cuba likes the goods it purchases from New England, New York, and New Jersey. However, all trade must flow two ways.
Cuba cannot buy United States products unless the United States buys Cuban products. In years past, Cuba has exported significant quantities of fruit, tobacco, lumber, and alcohol to the United States. Cuban exports of these products have fallen off. The basic product which Cuba must export to earn its way in the world is sugar.
Cuba, like many Latin American countries, has basically a one-crop economy. Sugar is the mainstay of the Cuban economy, supplying 75 percent of its national income and 85 percent of its export earnings. Cuba's prosperity necessarily depends upon the markets it can find for its sugar production.
In the period from 1948 to date, Cuba has bought more from the United States than it has been able to sell to this country. Therefore, upon the downward swings in the amount of sugar purchased by the United States, Cuba's economy has been greatly affected. Cuba's economy has been greatly affected by the fluctuations in the amount of sugar purchased by the United States. St. Mary's Cadets To Perform Before Maplewood Game; Nutley Splits Pair

The Nutley Colonels, continued to hold down fifth place in the Essex County League as the semi-pro nine divided a pair of loop games over the holiday weekend. The split came about when manager Ernie Lantz' squad blew a 9-5 lead against Montclair in the ninth inning last Sunday and went on to lose the game, 10-9. The winning effort came on Memorial Day when Ted Gaillard went the distance and defeated the East Orange Browns, 5-1.
On Sunday the Colonels will play its first home game at Park Oval after seven successive away contests. The home opener will find Nutley playing host to Maplewood which is tied for first place with the South Orange Glens. Game time is slated for 8 p. m., with Mayor Harry W. Chenoweth throwing out the first ball.
Prior to the fray, pre-game ceremonies have been arranged with St. Mary's Cadets performing before the contest starting at 2:30 p. m. The Cadets, 60 strong, will present its regular drill which is used in championship events throughout the eastern states. This will be the Cadets' first public appearance of the season.
In the game against the East Orange Browns the league decision was decided in the second inning as Nutley came up with four runs which was more than enough for Gaillard who won his second victory.
Nutley tallied its first run in the opening inning when Bill Deroker and Rod Cocetti hit doubles. In the fourth, Lou Puma hit a single, Willie Downey slammed a triple to right field, Gaillard was safe on a fielder's choice, Jim San Giacomo walked and Cocetti knocked out a single.
At Montclair, Nutley opened up a six-run lead by the third inning but the host slowly got to starting pitcher Tony Suddler, who was relieved to be relieved in the eighth with the Colonels ahead, 9-5.
Dick Manning came into the game but he was followed by Sal Ruffo, who had control trouble with five runs being aided by six bases on balls. Deroker was the only bright light for Nutley as he collected four hits in five times at bat including a double.

A Living Page Of History:
When A Slap In Anger Cost Algeria Its Freedom

Arab Dey Fished French Consul With Fly-Swatter In Dispute Over Wheat

By Ralph Heinzen
To most Americans, perhaps, the Kasbah is something associated with Charles Boyer who stirred millions of feminine hearts by breathing deeply and intoning in a hoarse whisper: "Come with me to the Kasbah."
Slap With A Sting
To the French and to the millions of Berbers who spread across the three states which make up the one-time Barbary Coast, a fair of Mediterranean pirates, the Kasbah is famous as the setting for an incident which provoked a war and which substituted a century and a quarter of French rule for centuries of absentee Turkish rule by the Califs of the Ottoman Empire.
It was in the Kasbah, then the residence of the Dey, or ruler of Algeria under the regency, that Hussein, the Dey, struck the French Consul, Deval, with a fly-whisk and provoked a war which cost him his throne.
That historic slap happened on April 30, 1827, in the Dey's palace during a dispute over the quality of wheat supplied to France of the post-Napoleonic Directorate by two Algerian traders, Bakri and Bousnah. The French Consul had gone to the palace to carry an official complaint. His attitude provoked the proud Berber who could not restrain his anger and flicked the Frenchman's face with the tassels of a fan-like fly swatter.
Nation's Pride Rude
Duval went back to his Consulate and sent off a letter to Paris. He had been insulted in the name of France and the insult was felt in Paris for the whole of France. The French Consul had gone to the palace to carry an official complaint. His attitude provoked the proud Berber who could not restrain his anger and flicked the Frenchman's face with the tassels of a fan-like fly swatter.
The French sent a squadron of frigates and blockaded Algiers but after three years of cutting off Algeria's commerce by sea, the French were getting nowhere so Paris decided to send an expedition. An army of 37,000 men, commanded by General de Bourmont, was landed at Sidi-Ferrouch under cover of the guns of the French fleet, commanded by Admiral Duperre, on June 14, 1830. Algiers capitulated on July 5.
The French found, however, that although they had a signed surrender, and although all the Turkish officials had fled, they still had to conquer the country and wrest it from the Arabs and Berbers who populated it along with a smattering of Spaniards, Italians, Maltese and Moors.
Causes Today's Troubles
It is that conquering of a proud but impoverished people which has been almost continuous problem for France since 125 years. It is the reason for France's new trouble which required her to pull a division out of Germany where it was assigned to NATO under the supreme command of General Alfred M. Gruenther, and send it to Algeria.
The Arabs and the Berbers of Algeria are in revolt again. This time against the French, as Arabs and Berbers since thirty centuries have revolted against a long line of would-be conquerors bent on conquest and plunder, since the invasions by Carthage, by the Romans, the Vandals, the Byzantines, and the Turks before the French.
And, strangely enough, the Kasbah is more than the symbol, it is the center of the intrigues of this new Arab and Berber revolt.
Kasbah Smells High
The Kasbah is a hilltop in the native quarter of Algiers, a city which prides itself on its bay and the sea and calls itself "The White." It is an Algerian city in which the white Europeans outnumber the native Algerians three to one. It is a French city in which the natives are "foreigners."
I keep a memory of the Kasbah as a torment of smells.
The Kasbah rises straight up from sea level, near the port, to a height of 387 feet. All the way through the Kasbah there is but one "street." If you stretch out your arms you could touch the buildings on both sides. It is paved with cobblestones and boulders and each step forward is a step up.
Picturesque Kasbah
Beggars sit at open doors. Merchants peddle olive oil or dates from counters set up in their doorways. Butchers display their wares in their doorways, too. Meat hangs from nails or lies on a plank wholly disappearing under a coating of blue bottle flies. The meat is more than ripe. The odor of that decaying flesh permeates the Kasbah and the smell of the putrid meat mixing with the sour smells emanating from the open doorways gives the Kasbah a bad name, even in daylight.
At night, the Kasbah is unsafe, even for Arabs. I went there once at night with a native policeman and I escaped with my life only by leaping into a handy doorway when a will-o'-the-wisp act in an Arab stallion raced down the cobble "street," his decorated brass stirrups banging against the buildings on either side.
From the Kasbah, once again, has spread the word to free Algeria from the yoke — the invader in this case being the French.
The fight for freedom takes the form of sabotage and resistance. Telephone wires are cut at night, farms of French planters are burned, and villages are uprooted or the vines put off at the roots. Arson and bombings are part of the battle. French civil administrators have been assassinated.
The French government has retaliated by force. Mobile guards and troops have been brought in to Algeria from metropolitan France and have begun an all-out offensive against the terrorists. Plans are used for observation and strafing. The rebellious natives have only their knives and their guns.
Parliament Hampers Cabinet
But the French government is paralyzed by Parliament and by the situation in Indochina. France still has 60,000 to 70,000 troops in Indochina who could be used to advantage in Algeria, but the government is hesitant to remove those troops because the political situation in South Vietnam becomes more settled.
Parliament has refused to declare a law in Algeria, which would suppress all civil administration. Instead, the Parliament in Paris has set a deadline of October for the "state of emergency" in Algeria. The government must settle the rebellion by that time or face a difficult debate.
Algeria has known such disorders before. It was in Algeria in 1926, reporting the riot for United Press, when the natives applied direct pressure for reforms which came only six years later when Senator Violette went there as government representative.
Status Of Frenchmen
This is not the case of a colony revolting against its motherland. Algeria is not a colony; since 1830 it has been a component part of the French Republic and is divided into three departments, Oran, Algiers and Constantine. It elects Deputies to the Chamber in Paris, just as does any department in continental France. Any child born in Algeria, whether to Arab or white, is French.
Except for France, however, all of Algeria's conquerors gave it only colonial status, although the Romans did establish it as twin Roman provinces of Numidia and Mauretania and there was broken peace for the two centuries of Roman rule until the Vandals invasion.
Algeria's history goes much farther back, for in the 12th Century B.C. there is a record of the Phoenicians, the hardy

June Day
And what is so rare as a day in June?
Then, if ever, come perfect days;
Then Heaven tries earth if it be in tune,
And over it softly her warm ear lays;
Whether we look, or whether we listen,
We hear life murmur, or see it glisten;
Every cloud feels a stir of might,
An instinct within it that reaches and towers,
And, groping blindly above it for light,
Climbs to a soul in grass and flowers;
The flush of life may well be seen
Thrilling back over hills and valleys;
The cowslip startles in meadows green,
The buttercup catches the sun in its chain,
And there's never a leaf nor a blade too mean
To be some happy creature's pake;
The little bird sits at his door in the sun,
As if he blossomed among the leaves,
And lets his illumined being o'er-run
With the deluge of summer it receives;
His mate feels the eggs beneath her wings,
And the heart in her dumb breast flutters
and sings;
He sings to the wide world, and she to her nest,—
In the nice ear of Nature which song is the best?

James Russell Lowell

Humble Pie
If the joint meetings being held between the board of education and the town commission bring out one thing, it's the complete dependence of the board on the commission in matters of town-owned property.

Here we have an instance of the board eating humble pie and returning the original site, (that in which the proposed high school originally was planned) to the commission, and then practically begging for the deed to the new property, (to the west side of the stadium).

The commissioners, whether they admit it or not, hold the whip hand and the board members know it. If the Commission denies the deed to the new site, next week, and there's every indication that this may be the case, the Board will have to go scouting around for still another site for the proposed school.

From the indication given at the last meeting, two Commissioners, Joseph King and Harry Sullivan probably will vote to grant the new site deed to the board. But from there on out, it is anybody's guess.

Mayor Isadore Padula has slammed the hog site so hard in the last school referendum it is wishful thinking that he will change. Commissioner Kenneth Smith concentrated mainly at the costs and pupil-size of the proposed new building. But he was openly disgruntled last week when Board president Mrs. Edward Rochau commented that the proposed high school was not the end of the school expansion program. Commended "his" property, (the property at the missioner Elmer S. Hyde zealously has old site and new is largely under the department of recreation) and it is doubtful whether he would vote to give up the new deed. Meantime, despite all the maneuvering, the school situation in Belleville gets progressively worse, with more and more children coming into the system. J. J. H.

The Polio Fog Persists
The further delay, this week, in Trenton, in releasing the Salk polio vaccine which was cleared for use, a week ago, by the bunglers of Washington, is inexcusable.

Because of all of the false starts and stops, these past six weeks, Belleville school they should have.

The most unhappy aspect of all the official bungling is that the public has lost confidence in Dr. Salk's great discovery. Gossip and rumor have replaced fact, because of the vagueness of the official announcements from Washington.

Because of a policy of virtual secrecy, public confidence in the Salk vaccine has slackened, despite the wholehearted endorsement of the U. S. Public Health Service and the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Because of its failure to give out information which must be published in the end, and because it has administered its program of production and distribution so ineptly, the Public Health Service must assume responsibility for the confusion that prevails.

From the beginning the Public Health Service has hugged its procedures as if they were deadly secrets that should not be revealed. The recent effort to tighten production and testing methods arouses the suspicion that something must have happened that needs correction. But what was it? The Public Health Service talks vaguely of "strong presumptive evidence" that something was wrong with the Cutter vaccine.

Ever since the Cutter vaccine was withdrawn it has become more and more apparent that we need to know far more about polio than we do. A wide gap yawns between our knowledge and efficient prevention. Scientists still do not know how long immunity lasts after inoculation with the Salk vaccine. Then there is the great expense that must be incurred in preparing the present vaccine.

Polio virus must be grown on monkey-kidney tissue and to get the tissue the monkey must be killed. Last year transportation of monkeys by air from abroad cost the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis several hundred thousand dollars. A cheaper and simpler method of growing the virus must be found.

Also wanted is a simple, rapid diagnostic test for polio. By the time known tests are completed there may be infection, after which vaccination can do no good.

Again, present knowledge of the way the polio virus enters the system is wanted. The subject is being studied in the laboratories of New York and Baltimore.

Lastly there is the virus itself. Not much is known about it. At the University of California methods are being developed to obtain a strain purer than any known. With a pure strain it should be possible to determine the composition of the virus, and with the determination of the composition it is reasonable to hope that some day it may be possible to do away with vaccines entirely. Who knows but what some antibiotic may yet be discovered that will kill the virus in the body? Or perhaps some chemical?

One Man's Opinion
Tito's Bargaining Position Is Stronger Than Ever, For He Appears Not To Have Sold Out To The Kremlin

By Ralph Eric Heinzen

In Belgrade this week and on the Island of Brioni, the Kremlin planted a paradox.

If Yugoslav diplomatic despatches are to be believed, Marshall Tito has retained his full political and ideological independence. Tito's Yugoslavia has not been committed to the Communist fold, nor has it been the Kremlin's ideologic or political orbit. Instead, Yugoslavia's status is unchanged. In Tito's own words, Yugoslavia was not, is not and never will be neutral nor neutral. It is as the Yugoslav despatches would have us believe, Khrushchev and Bulganin accepted that view which is tantamount to consenting to political nery, the strangest paradox in the history of Communism would have been established.

Hitherto, political heresy has been punishable by death. We saw it in the recent executions of Trotsky and of Beria, two of the 1934-1936 purges of hundreds of thousands of old Bolsheviks when the late and unlamented Vishinsky was the vindictive Public Prosecutor. We saw it, too, when the great Communist leaders of the satellites were, one after another, shot because they deviated from the Kremlin's pronounced ideological line—Rajak, in Hungary; Gomułka, in Poland; Slansky and Clementis, in Czechoslovakia; Kestov, in Bulgaria.

Since Communism, notoriously hide far more than they tell, it is useless to try and ferret out the truth from the Belgrade communiques. The United States government, faced with early Big Four talks "at the summit," must know exactly what Tito gave away and what he didn't surrender. This is all the more timely and necessary because the U. S. Senate will debate soon credits for more deliveries of American goods to Tito.

Look For More Trade
By a process of elimination, we arrive at the conclusion that the only Russian accomplishment was to lay the groundwork for an expansion of trade with Russia, her satellites and Yugoslavia. To the United States any such development of trade means a loss of military materials. Nor must Yugoslavia trade away any surplus in fields where we were supplying.

Trade between Russia and Yugoslavia had dwindled to a mere trickle when the Soviet negotiation took its military hands and went to Belgrade. Before trade could be restored, good relations with Tito had to be restored. That was the prime mission of the Red delegation.

As recently as five years ago, the same Premier Bulganin was saying of his present host, "Tito and his abettors... malevolent deserters from the camp of Socialism to the camp of Imperialism and Fascism... have transformed Yugoslavia into a Gestapo prison."

Break With Tito
It was only in June, 1948, just seven years ago, that the Cominform rode Tito out of World Communism on a rail. Declaring ideological war on Tito because he refused, as a puppet, to obey Stalin's orders, the Cominform called upon Yugoslav Communists to get out of him and pick a new leader. The Cominform 1948 communique reads:

"The Cominform finds that the leadership of the Yugoslav Communist party under Tito created a hateful policy in relation to the Soviet Union... The Cominform calls on Yugoslav Communists to raise from within a new international leadership."

In this "One Man's Opinion" the break seven years ago between Tito and the Communism of Stalin was due entirely to ideologic interpretations. Tito always was and is, even now, a Marxian Communist. Stalin and those in power today, Bulganin and Khrushchev, are Leninist Communists. Tito is a follower of Lenin, and is not a follower of Lenin. Since the Kremlin is of the Leninist taint, it considers any Marxian or non-Leninist Communist to be heretical.

Many Roads To Socialism
Khrushchev sought, in his speech at the Belgrade airport, on his arrival, to restore harmony with Tito by treating the row as a quarrel within one big Communist family, but Soviet Communism is monolithic and does not tolerate opposition. Nobody knows this better than Tito himself.

Therefore, in the talks at Belgrade and on Brioni, the Yugoslavs were insistent that Socialism can be approached by more than one route; that Moscow should pretend to dictate either methods or goals to other Communist parties.

Khrushchev to admit this would seem intolerable. Although, as Tito has proven in his own highly heretical communiques, he is indeed a fact. The head of the Bolshevik party cannot lightly acknowledge that heresies are officially condoned.

It would be equivalent to Vatican approval of Protestantism and admission that Luther, Calvin and the other reformers were justified, and that their religious descendants are as orthodox as those of Rome.

Tito's Methods Differ
Tito has every wish to improve political and economic relations with Moscow, but none to rejoin the stifling Bolshevik fold.

Yugoslavia's interpretation of Communism cannot but bewilder the visiting Russians. Tito's ideologic opponents, Khrushchev, Bulganin, alive and healthy, reside undisturbed a mile from the palace where Tito heard and excused about the dead Beria.

General Dvornik, Greece's Chief of Staff, is now touring the country inspecting arrangements under which Greek troops would enter Yugoslavia to help against an aggression under the Balkan Treaty, which allies Tito with Greece and Turkey in a common mutual defense pact.

FBI RED HUNTER NOW HEADS FT&R LABOR RELATIONS

Robert Chasen, Who Worked On Rosenberg Case, Named To Succeed Sinclair

A former FBI agent who specialized in running down Communists in government service, Robert E. Chasen has been appointed as director of industrial relations of Federal Telephone and Radio Corporation, Nutley in succession to Sinclair, who resigned recently.

R. S. Perry, president of F. T. & R., announced the appointment of Chasen who, after 12 years of service with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, had joined the F. T. & R. Corporation as assistant to plant security and assistant to the vice president in charge of industrial relations.

In his new functions, Chasen will have charge for the company, of all labor contract and wage negotiations. Sinclair had negotiated all of the existing labor contracts and wage schedules.

A fingerprint expert in the FBI, Chasen, before leaving that service, had specialized in investigations including the Julius Rosenberg, Harry Gold and Judy Coplin, Communist espionage investigations.

Loesner 35 Years With Prudential

Arthur H. Loesner, of 58 Street, celebrated his 35th anniversary with the Prudential Insurance Co. on Tuesday.

He was presented with a set of matched luggage and an honorary scroll signed by Prudential President Carol M. Shanks. Loesner was educated in Newark and Belleville schools. He has been associated with various divisions of the Home Office throughout his career and at present is with the employee insurance records section.

He is a member of the Hacheler's Club in Belleville, and formerly served as club treasurer.

Weekend Weather

Temperatures will drop slightly over the weekend, with a chance of showers late tonight or early tomorrow.

on tap. Sweden maintains the world's fourth-largest air force. And implicitly both are protected by Western military power.

Can Tito afford the price of armed independence when Russia puts the pressure on? In this "One Man's Opinion" his Yugoslav political position is analyzed, and it is suggested that he should be allied with one side or the other, and preferably ours.

Red Trickery
Cyrus Sulzberger, who once worked on my United Press staff in Paris is, in my opinion, one of the best informed American writers on Tito. He writes in his latest issue of the Russian "I found interesting his warning this week that the Russians are perfectly aware that if they can produce an impression abroad that Tito is back in the fold of Bolshevism, they will be able to alter world affairs may be forcibly altered whether he desires it or not."

Congress, about to vote on further Yugoslav aid, is likely to be influenced by such impressions even if they are based on fact. The suspicious American terminates assistance, Yugoslavia would be pushed toward Moscow.

What appears to the subtle Yugoslavs as clumsy Byzantine maneuvering in Khrushchev's new approach may prove more dangerous than they believed. The sheer power of Soviet diplomacy sometimes overcomes its absence of force. What Tito would like to become an independent diplomatic force in Europe.

Cannot Be Neutral
The West has always shown tolerance for the neutrality of smaller nations. This has been true in the instances of Sweden, Switzerland, Finland and now Austria. And it has been particularly true in the instance of Yugoslavia, where no political pressures were applied during Tito's dark days.

But Soviet diplomacy has traditionally displayed mistrust for neutrality and failure to comprehend what it means. Until recently, when Russia was still trying to force neutral Finland into its orbit, the neutrality forced on Austria by Moscow was merely a move to prevent Vienna lining up with the West. The present past was to try and force Yugoslavia to join the bloc.

Real neutrality is expensive. Switzerland keeps a trained militia of a quarter of a million.

Reader Speaks Up For The Parents, On Child Education; Another Tsk, Tsk's Town Garage On Lack Of Atom Bomb Shelter

Editor, Belleville Times-News:

I have read numerous magazine articles and newspaper columns lately discussing child education. Eventually most of the noted educators blame today's parent for laziness or lack of interest in the child's progress. We stand accused of interfering with progressive education, and are treated quite like the imbecile who is incapable of thinking, working or speaking in the accepted manner. This conclusion is not rash. For the past few years I have joined the many concerned parents at PTA meetings, conferences with teachers and lately with a group on report card problems.

To those well-educated speakers, may I call to your attention these few facts: Although my four children were conceived due to their parents' love for one another those nine months of anxiety were just the start of the concern for their future. In one year they were taught how to sit, stand, walk, eat and sleep regularly. By the end of the second year, they had mastered speaking, good toilet habits, small amounts of courtesy. By the third year, they were able to take care of themselves, responsible people—able to keep their rooms tidy, write the alphabet and simple words and numbers, read a very few words, interpret picture stories, recite poems, sing a few melodies and play simple games. They were at church by one educated to give it.

We did not send them to school to be "fed" of them for a few hours or because we felt incapable in the matter of their cultural or social problems. They were to learn to read, write, think, to think for themselves, to learn the history of our great country and other countries and civilizations which contributed to our heritage. The field trips they take are wonderful for opening new horizons and to teach them that there are further fields to investigate in their lives.

Being in favor of trips, conferences with teachers and reading ever-increasing thesis on child education I feel that I am not hampering the specialists. We are too old-fashioned to wait them to learn to read and write? As is, as Elizabeth Pope (McCall's magazine) claims—"too silent and confused"—holding back the "experts"? If your child needs medical care you call a doctor. If he needs psychoanalysis, why not take him to a psychiatrist? Teachers do not spend enough time in the field to be qualified to judge the child's development. Why not let the children read and write books the experts have written for their grades, test them occasionally to be sure they have absorbed something and mark

Cheaper Solution
Editor, Belleville Times-News:

Gad! What can Commissioners Hyde, King, Sullivan, and Mayor Padula be thinking of? They unanimously approved Commissioner Smith's grandiose plans for a new garage and office building without a single voice raised in protest because, in his zeal for economy he did not include a bomb shelter. Don't these gentlemen realize that it could mean the complete obliteration of Commissioner Smith, and his whole department? We taxpayers have quite a stake in this matter, too. We can easily afford to lose a few politicians, but how about adequate protection for that expensive machine Commissioner Smith bought with our money?

I have a feeling about the site, too. I think there may be a subterranean cavern under it where water flows, and someday when the building is heavily loaded with dead wood the whole structure may slide bodily into the Passaic River, and our whole investment will be lost. Have any of the Commissioners checked this possibility?

This is not the time for us to undertake an expansion program of this nature. The town can't afford it. Besides, there is a cheaper solution. Put the employees of the Public Works Department on half salaries, at half salary, of course. The inconvenience will be only temporary, as when the taxpayers get mad enough they will throw out a lot of parasites and there will be plenty of room for essential services.

There's danger lurking in that old, discarded ice box or refrigerator that you may have in your back yard.

Every year children die from suffocation because they love to play in these dangerous cabinets. Here's what you should do if you see a discarded box in your neighborhood or in the junk yard:

Remove the door. It's the best way to make such a cabinet safe.

Remove the latch on the door by taking out the screws on the door plate.

Drill holes in the door and remove the rubber gasket.

OR
Tell the policeman in your neighborhood about this dangerous menace.

Merger Jailed Three Months By Nutley Judge

Louis Lambi, 28, of Plengas Farm, was sentenced to three months in the county penitentiary by Nutley Magistrate Edwin J. C. Joerg last Wednesday for loitering on private property.

Lambi was arrested on May 23 and originally charged with attempting to break into a home at 116 Bloomfield Avenue, Nutley. He was held in lieu of $500 bail.

Police were called when Frank Eulo, owner of the home, heard someone try to enter by forcing a window. A search by Eulo and his three sons however, failed to produce the prowler. Detectives said they traced Lambi through the taxi he used for transportation.
