

Smith's "Surprise" Party Surprises

County And State Candidates Attend; Commissioner Comes Out Only For Ronco; Congressmen Rodino And Aspirant Addonizio Show

The upcoming general election reached home this week when candidates on county and state levels convened at the Franklin Casino.

The ostensible reason for the gathering was a routine meeting by the Smith Association which had planned refreshments as a surprise for the Commissioner's birthday.

But the big surprise turned out to be the size of the crowd and the political nature of the occasion.

More than 300—generally considered the capstone of the Casino—attended, and many more came and went.

Political candidates, their senses sharpened now that election is so close, didn't miss a trick.

Floral tributes were sent by many, honoring the commissioner's birthday. The senders included Senator Mark Anton, running for re-election, and Anthony Guiliano.

Among those attending were Donald Fox, Anton's Democratic candidate for state assembly; Congressman Peter Rodino, and his congressional buddy Hugh Addonizio, and George Addonizio, candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress to succeed the re-election of the Democratic incumbent, Rodino. Addonizio recently moved here from Nutley.

Starting in November, the draft board said, the draft total will be increased, the Navy seeking additional personnel.

For the first time since the war, the Navy will use the selective service system for new men.

About the only candidate who wasn't there or sent flowers was the town's James R. Golden, running as an independent for State Senator in opposition to Anton and Fox.

RED CROSS ASKS FLOOD AID AGAIN

Points Out Some Families Doubly Hit; Denies Rumor Of Sales Of Coffee

The Belleville Red Cross Chapter this week came out in a second appeal in this year for aid to victims of the floods.

At the same time, the Chapter gave an angry denial to rumors that it had sold coffee to flood victims in the Shoreham area.

"No charge is ever made for food, clothing or other aid given to flood victims," said Miss Marjorie Lenny, executive secretary. "Red Cross disaster assistance is always free."

Some Double Victims

Miss Lenny estimated that the Red Cross assistance, "some of these same families who suffered loss in August and are just getting back on their feet."

The executive secretary gave this story:

"Some Pupils Can Boast Parts Of Buildings Older Than Grandparents"; Describe Finances, Facilities

The Better Schools Committee this week issued the first of its findings on school and educational matters in Belleville.

In a report which will be continued in this paper next week, the Committee, a new group here, came out solidly urging all eligible residents to vote for transfer of town-owned land to the Board of Education.

"There has been no capital improvements or additions made on schools 1, 2, 3, 4 in a generation," the committee said.

"Pupils in several of these schools can boast that portions of their buildings are older than their grandparents."

"With the exception of a minor addition to the high school in 1935, no classroom building has been built in the Belleville School system in 26 years."

"The state school tax on finances and tax rate here the Committee said:

"Thin Air"

"Several Committee members observed that the school expansion program which was defeated at the polls last spring would have raised the tax rate only 64 points, an amount the opportunity of education declared prohibitive at the time. For these same opponents of education did not hesitate to raise our taxes 67 points, and the money raised seems to have vanished into thin air."

"The bond issue for a high school was defeated and how does Belleville stand today in the economy issue? Our total tax rate in 1929 was 70 cents which is a rise in the departments of our commissioners."

"In a statement on the value of a junior high school the Committee said:

"The inclusion of a junior high school in the school system would be of untold benefit to our boys and girls."

"Perhaps some people think of a junior high school as simply another building to house a certain number of classrooms. Nothing is farther from the truth. The housing of additional classrooms is the least of its functions."

DRUMS BEATING FOR GRUHN

Runner-Up To Commissioners Supported; Urees Hold-Off On Schools Till February

Robert C. Gruhn, who ran sixth in the last Commissioner election race here, last week heard the drums beating for his candidacy for the next election.

Gruhn Association members at a Fall meeting discussed his candidacy and issues were the main topics. "Considerable interest was evinced by the membership to insure his election," in a statement of John Gualtieri, Association president.

Gruhn, speaking on the school issue, said, according to Gualtieri, that the real issue was not whether we need a new high school.

"It is whether the building should be deferred until the Board of Education is in office that has not been criticized by a Grand Jury."

Gruhn pointed out that three new members will be elected this Fall, "and then we can decide on the building of a high school at a reasonable cost within the budget means of the taxpayers."

New members were: Frank W. Bonis, Walter Stokowski, Frank Manno, Louis Rega, Stanley Viscari, James Ricca, John R. Alessi, William Riskey, Jr., Mrs. Jean Riskey, Anthony, Mrs. Ernest Jannarone, A. Branca, Anthony Polkuda, A. Scordo, Joseph Costa and George Moynihan.

Advisory Committee Urges "Yes" Vote

The Lay School Advisory Committee of the Board of Education reported this week that it had adopted the following resolution:

"On the proposed site for a new high school is the best available and has been so recommended by leading educators; and because it will reduce the cost of building by many thousands of dollars, the Lay School Committee highly recommends a 'yes' vote on the high school site referendum which will be on the ballot on November 8."

Beat West Side 20-0
Play Irvington Tomorrow

McCabe, Soph Guard, Runs Fumble
Back 22 Yards For Score; Worley's
Play Highlights Top-Notch Defense

By Tom Cullen

Rebounding after the loss to Nutley, Belleville high fought its way back to the win column Saturday, defeating West Side 20-0 at Municipal Stadium.

Tomorrow the Bellboys are decided favorites against Irvington in another home game here.

It was a case of a top defensive effort which spelled West Side's defeat.

Wayne Worley, for one, picked off a West Side pass which resulted in turn for a Belleville touchdown; and on another occasion tackled a back with such a bracing tackle, it caused him to fumble with Pat McCabe, Belleville tackle, recovering and running the ball 22 yards for a score.

The first quarter was pretty evenly played, with most of the action in the slippery muddy field. Between the two 30-yard runs, the ball was so maddeningly slippery that it was difficult to handle. The boys were sliding and slipping almost every time they had the ball.

Quarterback Frank Pales paved the way for the first touchdown early in the second quarter, heavily, an 18-yard pass to Bob Castelli, who caught the ball on the West Side 31 and ran it six yards before being brought down. Pales then landed off to Chicky Malfatto, who carried to the 14. Pales hit the right side for nine yards, then pitched out to Nick ends, and Joe Casale came in repeatedly to plug up the middle spot in the line.

Wes Willie Martell also got his share of tackles in the line. Bob Largino played well too.

The score: West Side 0 0 0 0 0 0 Belleville 0 6 7 7 20

Belleville Touchdowns: Apple, five yard run; McCabe, 22 yard run of fumble; Malfatto, 22 yard plunge; Conversions, Malfatto, place; Apple, (placement).

Joseph Hungardner

Joseph Hungardner of 284 Ralph Street, died October 16 in St. Ann's hospital after a short illness. He was 82.

Mr. Hungardner was born in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and lived in East Hanover for many years before going to Belleville about seven years ago. Before retiring about 15 years ago, he had been employed as a painter with the former Hammaker Cutlery Works of Newark.

school last Friday. Was it because they enjoy school so much? Why does it always start raining after we get in school?

In spite of the weather everyone enjoyed last week's game against WEST SIDE. How'd you like those crazy band and twirler uniforms? Inclement weather prevented them from putting on their scheduled show, but the great showing made by the Bellboys made up for it. We hope to see everyone at the Belleville-Irvington game at Municipal Stadium.

Wednesday was report card day. No comment!!

Mr. Corvelli was describing a chemical compound in class the other day . . . hydrogen peroxide. It seems some of the girls knew about it already. Just a STREAK of luck we guess.

RAILROAD PROPERTY
...Hudson River Style!

Assessed at $87,000 an acre, the land under these finny habitants supports one of the most expensive fish-runs in history.

You can't see the land for yourself, but you can walk over it when you board a railroad ferry to cross the Hudson. For dozens of feet under your boat's propeller you're "walking" over land upon which your railroads pay high taxes.

Ridiculous—to assess land under water at $87,000 per acre?

Yes—but it's just one more example of the tax problems faced by your railroads trying to do business in New Jersey.

There are other examples too:

- ... Like the fact that New Jersey collects from railroads more taxes per mile of railroad than any state in the Nation.
- ... Like the fact that if other states adopted New Jersey tax rates on railroads there would be no railroad tax problem—all railroads would simply go bankrupt—and then pay no taxes at all.

A fair solution to this unfair taxation is important not just to the railroads but to the welfare and future progress of every New Jersey community. The better railroad service of the future—upon which such progress depends—can come only if railroads are allowed the modest savings needed for improvements. Now, all they make in New Jersey and more goes for taxes.

Beware Side Issues

Although the local referendum question, (transfer of town land to the board of education) is a small part of the general election ballot November 8, it will get its share of attention during these weeks before election.

There may be a campaign of innuendoes, inferences and side-issues. There may be attacks on personalities and all the hard-hitting of free-swinging politics.

There may be another "Air Raid Shelter" tactic by someone . . . a charge hurled in the last referendum, recently disclosed openly and candidly as a "diversionary" tactic, without value in itself other than to draw attention to and to defeat the school proposal.

There may be wild reports of skyrocketing tax boosts and bankruptcy . . . even though there's not a cent connected with the referendum question . . . only the issue of transfer of land to the board so it can bring a proposed high school proposal to the people.

We submit that it's simple wisdom for people to recognize the source . . . recognize the source of arguments for and against.

And let's point out here and now that the land to be voted on is a separate tract than the one, "the bog site" proposed in the last referendum.

One Man's Opinion

Pan-Arab Nationalism In North Africa Is Islamic Holy War, Like Crusades In Reverse

By Ralph Eric Heinzen

"The days of colonialism are over" the Premier of France, Edgar Faure, announced stentoriously in the French Parliament this week during a debate on France's problems in North Africa. More correctly, he might have proclaimed: "The Crusades are, on again, this time in reverse."

In this One Man's Opinion, based upon my own observations of the destruction of the Moslem bastion of the Ottoman Empire and the rise of Arab Nationalism in North Africa forty years ago, I am convinced that Pan-Arab Nationalism has declared a Holy War which has all of the tenaciousness of the Islamic wars of the unbelievers, during the Middle Ages, combined with a modern Mohammedan entry into the world struggle for power.

French colonialism, as a matter of fact, is not to blame for what is happening today along the vast arc of the Mediterranean's south shore.

There is nothing "colonial" about France's position in North Africa. French colonialism may be dying in Indochina, but French colonialism still survives in West Africa as it survives, to some extent, in a few scattered colonies here in America.

North Africa never was a French colony; Tunisia and Morocco are Protectorates and Algeria has been, for a century, an integral part of the French Republic. Algeria, in fact, is more a part of France than Hawaii and Alaska are parts of the United States.

Red Hand Of Moscow

The Arab Holy War against France has been declared from Tunis or from Rabat, from Cairo, and, indirectly, from Moscow. It is an Islamic war and a Communist intrigue against Christian France, the hardest kind of a war to fight in this modern world with Soviet Russia engaged in upstaging the legitimate overseas political interests of the Western nations by using the cry of "colonialism" to encourage racial or religious nationalism and to divide the nations of the west among themselves.

Islam was a deeply religious creed through the centuries, yet it was also a fighting religion. Under one of the Islamic institutions, "Umar," every able-bodied Moslem male was theoretically a fighting man, part of the Islamic militia. In the creed, was to exist for two purposes — to fight unbelievers without and to suppress rebellion within.

Tradition Of Holy Wars

"Umar," revived, is being used by the Arabs and the other tribes of Islam against the Christian Crusaders in the Middle Ages when the Catholic knights of the West tried to win back Bethlehem and Jerusalem from the infidels.

In a break with the traditional Moslem tenets, polygamy, slavery and intolerance were eliminated. Women in Turkey cast aside their veils and new substituted hats for their fezz. Pious Moslems all over the world regretted the Islamic "renaissance," even though the Prophet fifteen centuries before, had foreseen the breakup of the Islamic world and had predicted that all Islam would divide itself into 73 sects of which, eventually, 72 would perish and one, only, would survive.

In that breakup of global Islam, many Mohammedan countries saw the birth of rampant Islamic nationalism. In Turkey, defeated in World War I, a powerful political force known as Pan-Turkism was born under Mustafa Kemal Pasha. It was aimed at uniting all sections of the Turkish race in one vast confederacy and purging national life of all foreign influences, in language, in customs and costumes, in literature and politics.

In India, Islamic nationalism took the form of a vast pacified entente with the Hindus under the slogan: "I am an Indian first, and a Hindu or Moslem afterward." Among the Mohammedan populations of Russia, the Bolshevik revolution of 1917 virtually destroyed the Islamic religious institutions in favor of political integration into the Soviet Union.

That Bolshevik form of Islam exists today and is a convenient article of political expediency in the Kremlin. Communism has had a tremendous appeal for the Moslems of Java and many other Eastern Islamic peoples and lands and that is why many Western statesmen see the hidden hand of the Kremlin in the Pan-Arab nationalist agitation in North Africa, aimed today against France as it was aimed ten years ago against the Dutch in Indonesia and the British in India.

In the field of present-day practical politics in which the question of Islam's relations with the West are at a dead-end, Washington's strategy planners are acutely concerned about the Soviet Union's penetration of the Middle East.

Washington tried to stall off Egypt on arms only to have Cairo make a deal with Czechoslovakia. Washington now faces the prospect of Moscow becoming an arsenal for every Arab state. The result is the Kremlin is moving into the Middle East disguised as Arab benefactor and advisor. And Israel is urgently calling for Western arms.

Assistant Secretary of State George Allen's pan-Arab move was a dud. The only chance he had of persuading Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser to call off his Czech army dogs was to offer a better deal. But he couldn't.

He couldn't accept cotton or credit which Egypt offered. It had to be cash on the barrelhead, since Cairo still was boycotting a Middle East security pact and therefore not eligible for free arms from the United States. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is going to try to talk Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov into calling off the Near East arms race during the Geneva talks. But Molotov has a sure defense . . . "It's not us, it's the Czechs, who are trading arms for cotton."

Letters To The Editor

"At Least Nero Didn't Cut Fire Hoses." Reader Says, Comparing Commissioner's School Stand

Editor, Belleville Times-News: Says Educate Now

It has been suggested that our Town Commission is like Nero who sat on his balcony playing his fiddle while the city burned. At first glance the comparison seems appropriate, but on the whole I do not think it is fair to Nero. He merely sat and fiddled; he didn't get down in the street with an axe and try to cut the fire hoses.

Did you know that the Adult School, now in session, was started over the protest of at least one of the Commissioners, who said it was a waste of the taxpayers' money? As a matter of fact the Adult School is self supporting except for heat, light, and janitor service at the High School.

There are 400 adults enrolled in the Adult School, and there must be at least 800 more who would like to attend but do not, through lack of time or money. All these people realize that there are gaps in their education, caused by inadequacies in the schools they attended as children. Perhaps then, too, there were Town Commissioners who deemed money spent for education wasted. Perhaps there were voters who took their instructions blindly from the direction of the "Commissioner X Association" and ignored or derided the recommendations of world famous authorities on education. Perhaps there were people who listened to junior grade demagogues, with no children in the public schools, who were only trying to begin a career in politics. Perhaps there was an indifferent public that didn't bother to vote.

You people interested in the Adult School can do the Town a great service by bringing your friends to the polls on November 8 and voting to give free hand to the Board of Education. Perhaps there was an indifferent public that didn't bother to vote.

teachers sharing a teachers' room, approximately 9 x 25 feet, would bring tears from critics who would deem private offices for principals and adequate teachers' rooms a luxury.

Therefore let us confine this to the regular classrooms and specialized rooms. Have these critics gone around to see conditions for themselves? Where would they put more children? Certainly, one or two could be put in certain classrooms, but where will the tremendously larger lower grades go as they reach the upper grades and high school?

Today high school pupils are being denied desired subjects such as shop and domestic science because the rooms won't hold them.

In grammar schools it would be possible to put more pupils in classrooms if we weren't extravagant enough to think each child should have a desk. Are these critics suggesting we teach on a "standing room only" basis?

It isn't fair to judge education on the approved standards of running a bus. In a bus, one can crowd as many people as one likes as long as they can still breathe. Education is an entirely different matter from driving a bus.

I shouldn't presume to say how one should run a police department.
