EVAN H. THOMAS SUFFERS HEART ATTACK FRIDAY

Superintendent Of Schools In St. Barnabas Hospital Where Condition Reported Improving

The condition of Evan H. Thomas, superintendent of schools here, is reported as improving by hospital authorities at St. Barnabas Hospital in Newark today. Thomas was taken to the Newark hospital Friday morning after suffering a heart attack at his home. The report says he spent a good night last night.

Evan H. Thomas

When first admitted to the hospital, authorities listed his condition as fair, but reported that he has been steadily improving since Friday when he suffered another mild attack. Thomas, who lives at 153 New Street, has been under doctor's care for a heart ailment for several years.

Doctors report that Thomas suffered his first attack about 10 a.m. Friday and was taken by ambulance immediately to the hospital. On Sunday, he suffered the second attack which has been diagnosed as a coronary occlusion. Doctors explained that the second attack was actually a part of the first one, in that it followed the normal pattern for cases of this type. His condition is no more serious than any other case of this sort, doctors said.

They added that there was no reason for alarm. Electrocardiograms show that his heart is returning to normal, or to the healthy state, doctors said.

Although doctors emphasized that Thomas was progressing satisfactorily, they would not estimate how much longer he would be hospitalized. That is determined by day-to-day factors, it was explained.

Thomas is in his fifth year as superintendent of local schools. He has previously served as general superintendent. His duties during his illness are being assumed by general supervisor Dr. Frank M. Durkee.

KINTZING, DIRUGGIERO, AND MRS. CASSADAY ELECTED TO BOARD; VOTERS DEFEAT BUDGET

Capital Bill And Current Expense Fail

Only 4,341 People Cast Votes As 27 Per Cent Of Voters Go To Polls

A small percentage of Belleville voters turned out at the polls Tuesday and defeated two of the three phases of the school budget which required public approval.

Voters turned down Board of Education requests for both current expense and capital outlay. The third phase, repairs and maintenance, received the approval of the voters by the narrowest of margins. The current expense appropriation of $1,459,754 was defeated by 176 votes, with 797 in favor and 913 opposed. The capital outlay expenditure of $3,200 was also defeated by a 281-vote margin, 633 for and 909 against. The repairs and maintenance allocation of $135,098 squeezed by the voters by a bare 28 votes, with 397 voting in favor of the appropriation and 869 against.

First In 56 Years

Ruel E. Daniels, secretary and business manager of the Board of Education, said this was the first time in at least 56 years that budget requests in these two categories had been defeated. And only once before, he said, has a maintenance appropriation been turned down in the same period of time.

Daniels explained that by law, another referendum must be held within 15 days for the two phases of the budget that were not approved. The Board can either resubmit the same appropriations or draw up new figures.

Board president Mrs. Edward Rochas said that she did not know where the present budget could be trimmed any further.

New Car Outlet To Open Showroom Here Thursday

Elvy Motors, a new car outlet, has announced plans for opening their new showroom next Thursday. The firm will be located on Bloomfield Avenue at Hackensack Street, near the Belleville-Bloomfield-Norwalk boundary.

They will handle all makes of cars, using authorized new car dealers as a source of supply for their new automobiles.

The firm is owned and operated by Elvira Cluff, president; Michael Cluff, vice-president; with 15 years experience in new car buying; and Oscar Gerard, serving as manager.

Mayor's Water Department Report Sets Off Heated Commission Row

Show $300,000 Paid In Salaries From Revenue

CEREBRAL PALSY COLLECTS $2,100 IN SUNDAY DRIVE

Achievements, Expenditures Be Compared

A report released by Mayor Isadore J. Padula, director of revenue and finance, last week showing that more than $300,000 has been used from water sales since 1953 to help pay salaries in the public works and revenue and finance departments has become another storm center in Belleville's controversial political picture.

Padula's report, the preparation of the report after the last Commission meeting when he was requested to do so by James Connelly, persistent critic of Commission affairs. The Mayor said that the report is that a good deal more money is being used for salaries in the two departments than is actually shown in the municipal budget.

Not Specific

Padula said that some employees in both departments normally do other administrative or operational work for the water department. He did not elaborate on specific employees or tasks. It has always been town policy to pay at least a portion of their wages from water proceeds, he said.

Luesday night's Commission meeting saw Golden and deposed building inspector Thomas A. P. Greco loudly attack both departments for the "loose" spending. Both demanded that specific employees be cited, and that specific cases be performed by them be listed.

Commenting on the Sunday drive, Charles E. Garabrant, president of the CP group, said, "We are deeply grateful to the thousands of individuals throughout Essex and West Hudson communities during the 'Helping Hand Day' drive, which had an overall goal of $125,000 for Cerebral Palsy."

Mrs. John Connelly, Local Chairman, Says Final Report Will Show Higher Collections

Sunday's "Helping Hand Day" canvass for Cerebral Palsy raised about $2,100 in Belleville, according to a preliminary report by Mrs. John Connelly, local chairman.

It was stressed that the returns are not complete yet, as there are still many envelopes containing contributions which must be opened and tabulated. As soon as the final figures are available, prompt announcement will be made, she said.

Local volunteers were part of an army of 8,000 teenagers and adults who canvassed residential areas of Essex and West Hudson communities during the "Helping Hand Day" drive, which had an overall goal of $125,000 for Cerebral Palsy.

The local committee tried to reach every home, but conceded that some may have been overlooked. In such cases, householders wishing to contribute may do so simply by placing their check in an envelope and mailing to the Cerebral Palsy Center, Belleville, Mrs. Connelly said.

Commenting on the Sunday drive, Charles E. Garabrant, president of the CP group, said, "We are deeply grateful to the thousands of individuals throughout Essex and West Hudson communities during the 'Helping Hand Day' drive, which had an overall goal of $125,000 for Cerebral Palsy."

In answer to Mayor Isadore J. Padula's report showing that more than $300,000 has been paid out in public works and revenue and finance department wages since 1953, Commissioner Kenneth D. Smith, head of the public works department, stated that where in this report is there a comparison of work accomplished for the expenditure involved.

Smith said that early this year he recommended to Commissioners that a water operating budget be set up similar to that of the other town departments. This was done with the idea that the town would comply with certain recommendations of the National Board of Fire Underwriters. (These reports, with recommendations, were made in 1953 and were only mere paper until 1954," he said.)

Comprehensive Survey Smith said that a short time after he was elected to office in 1954 he undertook a comprehensive survey of the water system. "It is my intention to carry out all these recommendations which are reasonable and within our capacity to pay," he said. "Annual maintenance is essential."

He said, "If we are going to let our water system, which is one of the biggest assets of the town, deteriorate and get into a state of disrepair similar to our public buildings of 18 months ago, we are practicing false economy."

In answer to charges made at Tuesday's Commission meeting, Smith said that a short time after he was elected to office in 1954 he undertook a comprehensive survey of the water system. "It is my intention to carry out all these recommendations which are reasonable and within our capacity to pay," he said. "Annual maintenance is essential."

Conference Puts Two On School Board

Meagher And Pico Are Runners-Up; New Board Meets Monday

Dr. Frank DiRuggiero, Mrs. Charles Cassaday, and William L. Kintzing were elected to three year terms on the Belleville Board of Education in Tuesday's school election.

Dr. DiRuggiero took top honors as he polled 1,706 votes, but he was closely followed by the two other successful candidates. Kintzing collected 1,637 votes for second place, and Mrs. Cassaday polled 1,622 votes for the third position.

Large Gap A comparatively large gap separated the three successful candidates from the next runner-up, George Meagher, in fourth place, collected 1,469 votes, while Nuncio R. Pico ran fifth in the balloting with 1,419 ballots.

The last four candidates were Ralph Risoli, 1,214; James Salmon, 733; Anthony Moro, 630; and Gary Vanderbilt, 594.

By the action of Dr. DiRuggiero and Mrs. Cassaday, the Belleville Conference placed two of their three nominees in office. Their third candidate, Meagher, came close to election but ended up in fourth place. This is the second year that the Conference has been successful in helping to elect candidates that they select.

In last year's first school Board election, they were successful in backing William Allison Boyd.

March controversy centered around the Conference this year. Their only purpose, according to Conference officials, is to try and choose the best qualified persons to run for office and aid in their election. However, opponents of the group stated that in trying to keep politically backed candidates from being elected, the organization was itself acting as a pressure group. However, both Conference officials and the opponents of the group have stated that there is no objection on the part of the candidates now that they have been elected.

Among Top Three In receiving the highest number of votes, Dr. DiRuggiero was among the top three candidates in all four of the town's wards, and he was elected to the third ward where he placed fourth.

The first ward voting favored Kintzing, Mrs. Cassaday, and Dr. DiRuggiero in that order, and Dr. DiRuggiero in the second ward voted for the three candidates in the town, deleterious and yet into a state of disrepair similar to our public buildings of 18 months ago, we are practicing false economy."

RESISTOFLEX CORP. IN NEW LOCATION

Former Belleville Company Has Occupied Roseland Plant

Resistoflex Corporation, a leading manufacturer of aircraft and industrial special purpose hoses and fabricator of plastics used for critical aircraft and industrial applications, has announced the occupancy of a new plant and research facility at Roseland that doubles its former capacity.

For the past 17 years, Resistoflex has been located at 29 Plaines Street, Belleville. According to the company's president, this long association with Belleville has been most cordial and friendly, and he expressed his sincere gratitude to the excellent cooperation extended to all of the Resistoflex employees in the organization over these many years.

He would continue his personal interest and association in the Belleville community by virtue of his being a senior active member in the Rotary Club.

The company's expansion results from mounting demands for high temperature, high pressure hose products in the aircraft and defense industries, and from the growing industrial markets for such products as hydraulic, pneumatic, petroleum and automotive hoses.

The $5,000,000 plant, completely modernized, was designed especially to house operations of a company that concentrates its research, development and production on producing and extruding special synthetic materials to precision standards and fabricating standard and other metals for hose assembly fittings.

Three Zoning Problems Confront Commission

Two Applications For Manufacturing, Business Permits Held Over For Next Town Meeting; One New Case Expected To Be Presented At That Time

Seemingly taking their cue from the recent Kiernan attempt to obtain a variance to the town's zoning rules, three new cases have arisen where local residents are seeking exceptions to the zoning ordinance. Two of the cases were discussed briefly at Tuesday night's Commission meeting, while the third is expected to reach Commissioners at their next meeting.

The first case involves the application of John C. Kosmos, of 88 Holmes Street, for a permit to erect a building at that address to be used for metal finishing and allied work. The Zoning Board of Adjustment, headed by Vincent Del Guercio, approved the variance by a unanimous vote at their last meeting and recommended that Commission grant the desired variance. The site is in class B residential zone.

Robert C. Grubin, representing a group of residents in the area who are opposed to the plant being built in their neighborhood, was at the Commission meeting to protest the granting of a variance. However, the matter was held over for the next meeting.

Kosmos plans to erect a one-story building, 32 feet wide and 121 feet long, with a 16 foot high to be used for metal finishing. The work would involve use of noncombustible materials, including chemicals in the manufacture, storage, and distribution of metal finishing products.

The second case that came before Commissioners was the application of one Attorney Lawrence G. Nicolette, of 177 Passaic Avenue, for permission to install a gasoline pump in front of their auto body shop at that address.

Attorney Edward G. Weiss, of Paterson, representing the two applicants, said that one pump is presently located in front of the shop for shop use only and that gas is not sold retail. Permission has been received from the building inspector to install a second pump in front of the shop.

ARSON FOUND IN WESTINGHOUSE FIRE

Sunday Fire Causes Damage To Garage And Two Cars

Belleville Fire Chief Harry White and town detectives have blamed arsonists for the blaze early Sunday morning which badly damaged a cement garage at the South end of the Westinghouse plant on Washington Avenue. The fire also damaged a company-owned station wagon and another car owned by an employee, both of which were parked in the garage.

White, after investigating, said remnants of an oily rag were found hanging from the gas tank of the station wagon. He said it appeared that the rag had been set ablaze, but he could not account for the fact that there was no explosion in the tank. Although both cars were damaged, their automatic sprinkler systems prevented further damage.

The chief said that the arsonists had also used unsuccessfully to set fire to a car owned by plant supervisor, which was parked in an adjacent lot. A large barrel of oil was found on the front end of the auto, and a book of matches was discovered on the ground near it.

Footprints of "more than one man" were found in the sandy area leading from the plant's Washington Avenue fence to the site of the garage, White said.

Physical Fitness Brought To Forefront

This great country of ours has a habit, from time to time, of exposing itself to a critical self-examination of its customs and way of life and how these compare with other nations of the world. No doubt, this is an excellent practice because it keeps us from getting self-righteous and smug about our attainments and virtues. Pride cometh before a fall, the saying goes, and most of us know how true that is.

Recently, one of the moods of self-criticism has come again. The complaint has a way of arising just about every three or four years. This concerns the physical condition of American youth and the role of schools and physical education in connection with it. It seems that tests of physical skills and attainments were given to a number of children and these showed that American youngsters made a poor showing in comparison to European kids of the same age.

Immediately there arose the old charges against the schools and their programs. These have been aired many times. You probably know them by heart; that the coaches are only interested in winning teams, that they concentrate all their time and energy on the natural athletes who least need physical training, leaving the unathletic material to their own devices. It has also been said, with some justice, that every time you go to see a high school athletic contest, Fall, Winter or Spring, it's always the same kids.

There are always a number of youngsters in our secondary schools who face a difficult choice in regard to athletics. Most of them have participated in sports of some kind from the time they were out of the toddling stage. A football game with the neighborhood kids, perhaps, or a sandlot baseball affair, or dribbling a ball around a basket tacked up on someone's garage.

Being kids, or to put it better, being humans, they have a desire to excel in these activities. But it is here that they come into contact with one of the iron facts of life, to wit, that Nature has not endowed all of us with the same talents. On the sandlot diamond, for example, Johnny discovers that while practicing and trying to improve his performance to some extent, Jimmy, the kid three doors down, can do these things better than he. Worst of all, he seems to do them better without half trying.

At the plate he hits the ball effortlessly, sends it sailing between the outfielders or over their heads. In the field he pegs the ball with easy grace right where he wants it to go. Johnny burns up; he redoubles his efforts. He is as good as Jimmy. He improves. He even gets chosen for the team, some days. But he never or later learns that he just cannot do what Jimmy can do.

When the two boys get to high school Jimmy goes out for football, in which he has also excelled. Jimmy goes on to the varsity. What about Johnny? He knows that football is the "thing to do." Perhaps his dad wants him to go out and possibly do the things he himself either could not do or had no opportunity to do in his boyhood.

So, Johnny gives it a try. He finds that on the field he's in his own way. Jimmy, of course, shows immediate promise. In fact, it's rumored that the head coach has his eye on him already. Johnny, meanwhile, is shifted from one position to another. His lack of coordination is early apparent. The coaches yell at him. He doesn't like that. Soon the coaches cease yelling at him. He doesn't like that either, because this means he's not worth yelling at. He has a feeling that he's not getting anywhere, that the time might better be put to more useful purpose.

Some of the hypothetical statements about to stick it out. All honor to them, we'd say. Others don't see the sense in trying to compete in something that they are not equipped to compete in, and fall by the wayside. Perhaps more are following the latter course than did in bygone years. This might be due to the increase in vocational guidance and advice youngsters get these days. In that field, youngsters today are told to select a vocation which they like and can perform well. They are advised wisely not to attempt to compete in any field where they will always be at a disadvantage through lack of aptitude. Rightly or wrongly, many youngsters are translating this into a reason why they should not go out for sports.

Anyway, to get back to the physical testing of American and European children, this does not seem to be a question of training rather than natural ability. Perhaps the schools are at fault. The tendency may be on the part of some to say "so what?"

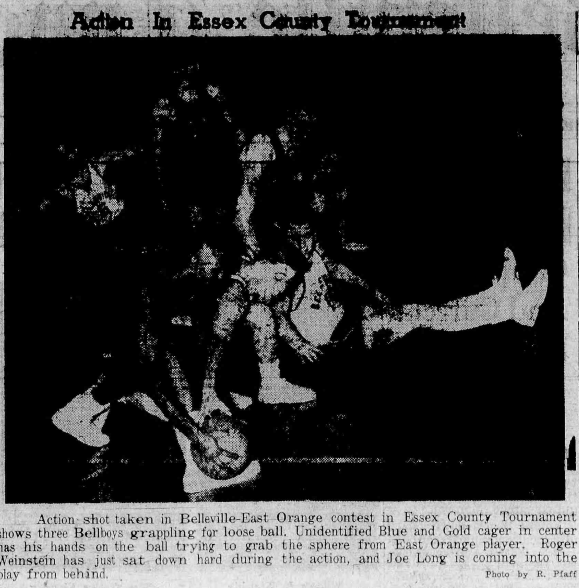

We are then told of the "shocking" rate of rejections for military service for physical reasons. We are ever told of the rejection rate in European nations. Nor are we ever told what the standards are for acceptance into military service in those nations, though there is some reason to believe they are considerably lower than our own. What is a "shocking" rejection rate and by whose standards is that term used?

Draft rejection figures have been used as a club to beat anyone over the head that the user wants to see beaten. Schools and doctors have been assailed for being responsible for the "miserable condition of our youth." If they protest, they are again shown the draft figures and are told this is "proof."

What we would like to know is, what percentage of draft rejections can be traced to negligence on the part of society? And what percentage are due to defects such as heredity, nearsightedness, punctured eardrums, congenital ailments of all kinds and ravages from infantile paralysis? Those who do all this yelling never tell these things, never.

Further, draft rejection figures presumably relate to men rejected for Army service, or for other work for any military duty. The other services have higher standards. Now, did you ever hear of a man turned down by the Army because he was not proficient in gymnastics? Or because he was "soft"? Of course not. It may well be that our kids are not physically all they should be, but to link this with the draft rejection rate and to paint a picture of a nation unfit to defend itself is going a little too far.

But there is one point that ought to be made about this "soft" business and it is something we've noticed right here in town. It does seem that there is extreme traffic congestion in the neighborhood of our schools at the slightest sprinkle of rain or snow. This is not a good preparation for the compulsory military service which, by all indications is going to be with us for as long as anyone can foresee.

Bellboy Cagers Eliminated From Essex County Tourney

Blue And Gold Defeated By East Orange, 65-53, In First Round; Third Period Proves Downfall

By Dave Thaler

After staging a brilliant first half scoring duel, Belleville was eliminated from the Essex County Tournament by East Orange when they wound up on the wrong end of a 65-53 score.

During the first half, Coach Herman Wische's defense had the Panthers' scoring twins, Curry and Sager, bottled up. Curry couldn't get in to the foul lane for his favorite shot, and Sager, who has a hot hand, was not doing his expected damage. The Bellboys, although they looked like David against Goliath, actually outscored the Panthers. They played heads up basketball as they rolled up a six point lead. The margin was cut to four as the second period started.

Miss Shots The Blue and Gold started to miss their shots, but with their solid playing suffered no worse than a tie. It was here that a controversial call cost the Belleville cagers four points. When an offensive player dribbling the ball comes in contact with a defensive player, the referee must decide whether it was the offensive or defensive player that committed the foul.

First Johnny Bartell, Bellboy right forward, drove. He was charged with a foul. Hatcher, who had an enjoyable evening, made both his free throws. Then it was Joe Long, the left forward, that attempted to penetrate the defense. He, too, was charged with a foul. Once again Hatcher converted both shots.

East Orange, having received two breaks, proceeded to lengthen their lead to eight points. Then with a few seconds left in the first half, Joe Prieto, Bellboy guard, stole the ball in the Blue and Gold's half of the court. He had to beat Sager and one other Panther for the two-point. He dribbled in, and as Sager moved up around-the-back pass to Long who had cut back. Long took the pass and registered the basket as the second stanza came to a close.

But the third period proved, once again, to be the Bellboy's Waterloo. Their lapse was brief, but during that time the Panthers increased their lead to 14 points. The Blue and Gold played good ball the rest of the way but so did East Orange. The game, after two minutes of the final quarter, was undoubtedly East Orange's. The Panthers were too good a team to relinquish a 14 point lead.

It can be easily said that the game was won on the foul line. East Orange did not miss a free throw all night, nothing all 19 tries. Sager set two records when he hit the nets 12 straight times. The records are for consecutive free throws and for shooting percentage. The former was held by Eddie Veith, Belleville's great star of last year, who set it against West Side when his team lost in the triple overtime affair now famous.

Bartell and Long both failed to hit their season average of 17 points (they both scored 272 points in 16 games), as Bartell had 14 and Long 13. Sager led the Panthers with his 24 markers.

REC. PLAYGROUNDS PLAN NEW SUMMER HANDICRAFT SETUP

Summer Directors To Attend Craft Workshop Preceding Start Of Summer Activity

Commissioner Elmer S. Hyde, Director of Parks and Public Property, announced this week that the Recreation Department has completed plans for a new handicraft program for the playground this summer. This will be the first all round handicraft program introduced in Belleville. All of the summer directors will attend a craft workshop preceding the summer opening for the purpose of training in the new medium. These craft activities have been designed for three age groups.

For youngsters seven and under, the Department plans shoe button craft which will consist of making bracelets and necklaces, chenille craft (pipe cleaners) imagination figures, spatter painting, Plastene modeling clay, and a permanent type clay called Modelight for designing figurines, ash trays and dishes. Felt craft will also be used for making more elaborate articles and pins. In the group, the directors will also introduce elementary leather craft. Basket weaving will be available for the making of basket planters, bread trays and catchalls. Their program will also terminate with Plaster of Paris.

The teen age group will also have a variety of crafts offered to them which will begin with making silk flowers for jewelry and wood carving will be introduced as a training for linoleum block printing using in designing prints for scarfs, napkins, place mats materials and use on paper.

This is to be followed by modeling with permanent clay in making figurines, vases and ash trays. Felt craft will consist of larger articles such as skirts, hats, slippers. Leather craft will be available for tooling wallets, purses and bags. Basket weaving and Plaster of Paris will add the final touches to the program for the teenagers.

Virginia "Pat" Harrison, Assistant Superintendent of Recreation, is in charge of the handicraft program and will train the playground directors.

The bride is a graduate of Belleville High School. The bridegroom attended Barringer High School, Upsala College and Newark College of Engineering. He is employed by Bendix Corporation, Teletoro.

WHAT IS A WISHFUL THINKING BUDGET

It is one that is not realistic. It allows for no miscellaneous items.

The Peoples National Bank and Trust Company suggests the safe way to manage one's money is to put saving, as a reserve, at the top of the budget and keep the budget well within anticipated income. Save a fraction of your pay first and then you will have something to show for all your work.

Every week we tell you a little something about Belleville's Little League. You say that there must be a reason for this column besides acquainting people with the great program being conducted. Actually you're right—there is another reason behind this column. This week and next we will try to tell you something of this other aspect.

It is a well known fact that to operate a Little League program you need money. And to get money you have to ask for contributions in some way. This year, for the first time, the Little League will sponsor a "stay at home day." On the appointed date, uniformed Little Leaguers will come around to your house asking for a small donation.

When these kids do come around, think what your contribution will do. You contribute to many charities without seeing where the money goes. It is a different story with the Little League. You can see at anytime the good things that Little League is doing for the youth of the community. We have also been writing in this column about the benefits of Little League activity.

Next week we will try to deal with the financial expenses the Little League has this year. A new field with every facility for the youngsters does not come without some financial outlay, as you well know.

We once again call upon the women for support in a women's auxiliary.

Commissioner Hyde Honored

Shown at the head table during the recent testimonial dinner given in his honor, Commissioner Elmer S. Hyde is surrounded by a group of the people who made the affair possible. Back row, left to right: Elmer Gibbs, who served as treasurer of the affair; James Lammann, chairman of the dinner; Rev. Peter Deckenbach, of Christ Episcopal Church; Rabbi Albert Rabb, of Congregation Ahavas Achim; Thomas D'Avella, toastmaster; Commissioner Hyde's brother, Dan Hyde; and Commissioner Kenneth Smith. Front row: Mrs. James Dunn, who served on the committee; Mrs. Hyde; the Commissioner; Judge Walter VanRiper, who was the main speaker; Mrs. Deckenbach; and Mrs. Gertrude Dillon, co-chairman.

BROCHURES FOR ADULT SCHOOL ARE DISTRIBUTED

Registration To Be Held In High School Cafeteria On Feb. 27, 28, And March 2

School children of Belleville are assisting with the tremendous task of distributing 8,000 Belleville Adult School brochures throughout the town, director Herman Knuppel said today. All adult students of the fall semester will receive their copy through the mail.

The Belleville High School cafeteria will be used for registration of adults on Monday, February 27; Tuesday, February 28; and Friday, March 2 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., he said.

Knuppel suggests that persons interested in enrolling for courses do so by filing in the application blank, the brochure, and sending it to a check with it and sending it to the Belleville Adult School by mail. Most classes will be held in size; therefore, early registration is recommended, he said. It is also possible to register at the Belleville Public Library or Belleville High School during their regular hours. If any resident of Belleville does not receive a brochure he can notify the Belleville Adult School, Board of Education, at 101 N. Main St., or he will receive a copy immediately, Knuppel added.

In addition to the regular registration on Monday, February 27, Knuppel suggests that persons interested in enrolling for courses do so by filing in the application blank, the brochure, and sending it to a check with it and sending it to the Belleville Adult School by mail. Most classes will be held in size; therefore, early registration is recommended, he said. It is also possible to register at the Belleville Public Library or Belleville High School during their regular hours. If any resident of Arsonists gained entry by breaking a garage window. They climbed to the window on two ladders which were leaning outside the building. Plant Superintendent Harry Fox reported the fire to the fire department when he noticed a glow from the sprinklers pouring out from under the garage door.

The plant has been shut down pending the investigation of the cause of the fire by the fire department. The plant has no alarm set off on the premises by the sprinkler system.

HEIGIS SERVES AS SEMINAR CHAIRMAN

Henry E. Heigis, assistant vice-president and manager of the Engineering Department, Walter Kilde & Company, Inc., Belleville, has been serving recently as chairman of a workshop seminar held in New York City under the sponsorship of the American Management Association.

Workshop seminars, which are arranged throughout the year by the American Management Association, provide executives of large and small companies from all sections of the country with an opportunity to exchange ideas for effective management.

Under discussion at the recent three-day meeting which will be repeated in February was the problem of "Management of the Engineering Function." Included in the specific subjects for consideration were the relationship of engineering to other groups within the company, the function of the engineering department, the selection and training of engineering personnel, and the problems of budgetary control.

A Prayer of Brotherhood

I shall pass through this world but once.
Any good, therefore, that I can do
Or any kindness that I can show
To any human being
Let me do it now. Let me
Not defer it, nor neglect it for
I shall not pass this way again.

Question Legality Of Zoning Referendums

Belleville voters went to the polls last Tuesday and, exercising their own free will and good judgment, they defeated the controversial Kiernan amendment to the municipal zoning ordinance. Opponents of the amendment had fought the legality of the referendum in court; most town residents were irked at the thought of spending $4,000 to pay for the referendum; and above all this clamor there was the shouting that the referendum was fixed by political support in favor of the amendment.

However, above all the heated side issues, local residents came to the polls in true democratic fashion to express their opinions at the ballot box. True, not quite 80 per cent of the registered voters turned out on election day, but for anything but a presidential election that average could be considered fairly high.

Even more than defeating Mr. Kiernan's hopes of being able to establish a mortuary in a residential zone of Belleville, last week's election proves that there is no such thing as "machine politics" as long as the voters are willing to assume the responsibility that rests on their shoulders.

Eventually the legality of holding a special referendum to amend a zoning law will be settled by the courts; as there is no judicial precedent to refer to at present. In view of events of the past week, such a judicial ruling will serve a very useful purpose. Mr. Kiernan, himself, has announced plans to circulate petitions next year for the purpose of calling another referendum on the same issue. Unless some judicial ruling is obtained, the town may be subjected to annual referendums, at a cost of $4,000, until Mr. Kiernan finally gets his wish.

Secondly, three more cases are pending before Town Commission where variances have been asked to the town's zoning laws. If the Commissioners refuse to grant these, what will prevent these people from circulating petitions and asking for referendums at $4,000 each, in their cases also?

By all means, a judicial ruling is necessary on the question of the legality of special referendums in zoning matters. A. M. B.

Meetings Need More Decorum, Less Delirium

Tuesday night's Town Commission meeting hit an all-time low as far as decorum, parliamentary procedure, or just plain decent manners are concerned. Even for Belleville Commission meetings, which are notoriously loud, this week's session was unduly boisterous and raucous.

The meeting whether it be called a circus, a regular free-for-all, or what have you, was one of the saddest farces ever perpetrated in the name of a public meeting to discuss matters of town government.

The basis of any good governing body, no matter on what level, is an active participation by those governed. However, this calls for one prerequisite — an intelligent and orderly participation. For private citizens to disrupt the proceedings of such a governing body by their personal grudge wars, and to cast sinister accusations based on mere suppositions, was never intended as part of our democratic governing process.

With every right granted to the private citizen, also goes an obligation. The right to question and to doubt our elected officials is one of our most prized privileges. However, with that right goes the obligation to be fair, honest, and impartial. No one has the right, under the guise of questioning matters of policy, to slander, besmirch, or defame public officials merely because of differences of opinion. Constructive criticism, offered in a spirit of helpfulness, and healthy differences of opinion are fundamentals of our system of government.

Certainly, no one has the effrontery to claim that the disorderly squabbling so voiced ferously expressed at Tuesday's meetings was intended in a helpful manner or in terms of constructive criticism. A. M. B.

Gutter Politics At Worst

Politically, here in Essex County, we have the sorry sight of two major parties engaged in parallel civil wars — with no place for an honest, independent voter, either Republican or Democratic, to go.

Until the civil wars end, we will not know whether the Democratic party takes its orders from Tammany, via Jersey City, or whether it can be dominated from within by the Fox-Rodino-Addonizio forces who are in open revolt against the county leadership.

Until this week's maneuvers are ended, we will not know, either, whether the Republican party will continue as a private fief of the "old pros" on the county payroll or whether its leadership can be vested in the hands of the Eisenhower wing of the party's voters.

The Republican imbroglio is clear-cut. It is a battle provoked by the Republican job holders on the county payroll who seek to hang on to their fatly paid jobs by keeping all of the levers of county control in their own hands, fearing, obviously, the loss of their sinecures if they cannot guarantee the continuity of their monopoly control of the county ticket. They are out to defeat the reorganization of Clean Government which would put it in the hands of real Eisenhower Republicans.

The Democratic split smells high of Tammany. At a time when the party might have taken advantage of a deep schism between the two opposing Republican forces, the Essex leadership of the Democratic party chose, instead, to tie up its fate with Jersey City and Carmine De Sapio, New York City's Tammany machine boss.

At a secret meeting, last week, in one of those "smoke-filled back rooms" in Newark, Dennis F. Carey, Essex Democratic chairman, and John V. Kinsky, Hudson Democratic boss, agreed to pool their interests at the Chicago convention, giving Kinsky control over the delegates from Essex as well as Hudson. The Essex-Hudson merger is expected to swing a powerful bloc of votes to whichever candidate Tammany backs. Right now Governor Averell Harriman has the nod.

Even more surprising to the rank and file of Belleville Democrats was the reappearance of that political "Jack-in-the-box," William J. Egan, whom they thought they had knocked off and buried when they picked Carey as his successor. Egan helped to negotiate the Essex-Hudson coup and, as a reward, will be nominated for delegate at large from Essex to Chicago in the April Primary.

Such malodorous goings-on, at county headquarters, has no support in Belleville where the rank and file, if not all the top echelon of the party, backs the efforts of Senator Donald C. Fox and Congressman Peter W. Rodino and Hugh Addonizio to organize, in haste, a ticket with which to oppose the Tammany-Egan-Carey delegation candidates in April.

Expecting the support of Governor Robert Meyner in their efforts to prevent the unholy coalition that Carey has designed, the Fox-Rodino forces hurried to Trenton. They found, alas, a Governor unwilling to take sides. He even refused to allow photographers to take his picture with the Essex group. Meyner is not sure which way the wind will be blowing in Chicago next August and he is reserving his action. Yet it is no secret that Meyner is for Stevenson first and Kefauver second, while the Tammany-Essex-Hudson coalition is for Harriman all the way. If the Governor has his way, however, New Jersey's delegates will go to Chicago pledged to him, in keeping with a saintly tradition, which will allow him to maneuver advantageously once the convention reaches the ballots that count.

With the Democrats so deeply enmeshed, here in Essex County, one would imagine that the Republican county leadership would read the handwriting on the wall and win back the lost county posts, next November, by adopting now a strategy of compromise.

Compromise, alas, is not in the dictionary of the "Old Pros" who are entrenched in the county leadership. Beaten here a year ago in the Primary, they have refused to throw out Mrs. Abbie Magee from her vice chairmanship and allow the Republican majority a voice in town leadership. On a county level, the same stupid silliness has prevented the healing of the breach. Yet if the Republican party could present a common front against the divided Democrats in November, last year's losses could be wiped out. The "Old Pros", alas, are interested only in their own jobs; they care nothing about assuring the victory of President Eisenhower or his successor, and providing him with Republican support in Congress.

One Man's Opinion

Russian Foreign Policy Is Based On A Persecution Complex, Complicated By National Paranoia

By Ralph Eric Heinzen

If you believe the textbooks of Moscow, Russia has invented everything worth while in this world. There is an exception: the investment of billions of dollars or kopeks in foreign aid, to help the underprivileged peoples and nations of this world. That really was of American origin, but Moscow, convinced that foreign aid can be a Trojan horse, is "inventing" that, too.

In this "One Man's Opinion," Moscow's entry into the field of foreign aid is parodied at its origin. The Kremlin and its inhabitants are suffering from a deep-seated persecution complex, complicated by national claustrophobia. They are now willing to help the Egyptians build Asswan high dam and erect India's sorely-needed steel plants because they fear "capitalist encirclement." It is Moscow's current policy to "supplant us" in those areas along her swollen frontiers where, if necessary to keep us out, she will exceed us in generosity.

Washington is toying with the idea of calling the Kremlin's bluff and pull out of one or two areas where Russia is bidding against us for the privilege of investing in foreign aid. If we do withdraw in Russia's favor, India, for example, Russia would be hard-pressed to keep her promise of building two monster steel plants. In recent months, Moscow has been negotiating in West Germany to buy the machinery there she needs for the expansion of her own steel-producing industry.

Stealing Our Thunder

For a decade from 1945 through 1955 the United States had a virtual monopoly over the use of foreign aid as an instrument for winning friends and making allies. Proof that the policy must have had some success, the Soviet Union is now deeply committed to the same policy.

As a matter of fact, recent Soviet success in offering economic aid to nations in the Near East and Asia has alarmed many officials in Washington. Several have voiced the fear that our program of economic and technical assistance is losing a degree of its effectiveness because the Soviet Union has stolen our thunder.

Were that the case, then one of two propositions might follow: (1) that we should give up our program of aid to the Near East and find a new instrument for making and keeping allies, or (2) that we should find some means of placing pressure upon neutrals to refuse Soviet assistance and accept ours instead.

Partner In Aid
In this "One Man's Opinion," there is a third possibility: encouraging the Soviet Union further to expand its foreign aid program. What would happen if we were to say to the Soviet leaders: "We urge you to help us ease the poverty and misery in the depressed areas of the world. Join us as a partner in helping other, less fortunate nations to help themselves?"

This would be a true test of the sincerity with which the Soviets are offering to hand out economic aid in the Near East and Far East. Communist propaganda accuses us of offering economic aid out of something less than humanitarian motives.

The current willingness of the Soviets to offer aid enables neutrals to take that offer as a polite form of diplomatic blackmail. In Burma and Egypt can tell us that either they receive aid from us, with no strings attached, or they will avail themselves of Soviet offers.

By encouraging the Soviets only one aim: destruction of the Soviet Union by economic pressures and war. Many thoughts are necessary in order just to begin understanding Soviet foreign policy. One of the most important is the fact that ever since 1917 Soviet leaders from Lenin to Khrushchev, have been convinced that we are out to destroy them.

Their Own Words

Here is proof, out of the mouths and from the pens of the Communist leaders:

Writing a report to the Central Committee of the Communist Party Stalin warned: "The Soviet Union is in a state of capitalist encirclement. . . . It is a very real and unpleasant feature. . . . In that same report Stalin strove the one bulwark of socialist nature of Soviet foreign policy. He said: . . . this fact (capitalist encirclement) determines the basis of relations between the capitalist encircling countries and the Soviet Union."

In a speech reported by Pravda, ex-President Kalinin described the methods by which capitalist nations plan the destruction of the USSR: ". . . the ruling classes . . . are itching to destroy the one bulwark of socialism. . . . they are using the most varied forms of hostility against us, slander, diversion, espionage, and provocation, everything possible is being done to damage the work of socialist construction."

Reds' Claustrophobia

An article in "Krony Plot" (Red Fleet) warns of the ever present danger of war: "The Soviet Union, building Communism in conditions of capitalist encirclement, is not guaranteed against the danger of attack. . . . The war ended with the defeat of Hitler Germany. . . . but so long as the capitalist world exists, the possibility of a new war and of bandit attacks on the USSR are not excluded."

Russia's foreign minister, himself, is not free of this paranoia, despite his contacts with the outside world. "Pravda" reports a lesson which must be mastered by all: "The external capitalist encirclement continues to exist. . . . Almost every spring we again and again had to expect military attacks on the part of the imperialists. We were threatened by some one day and by others side next. They made every effort to disrupt our respect of peace for which we fought so much."

We Are "Hostile Forces"

This fear of capitalist encirclement lends fuel to several good uses. It enables Molotov to answer the question of making life easier inside of Russia for the individual in the following fashion: "So long as we are surrounded by a capitalist world, it would be the worst kind of opportunism to slow the least relaxation in the ironing arm of the proletarian dictatorship (meaning the state). The conclusion is to strengthen the proletarian state. . . . so as to increase its power. . . . in relation to the hostile forces of imperialism." He said that in his report to the 17th Conference of the Communist Party.

Lazar Kaganovich added to the chorus of fear and suspicion: " . . . our country continues to be within a capitalist encirclement."

ment. Therefore, there is no place for complacency and we should not relax but strengthen Bolshevik vigilance."

This fear, bordering on hysteria, is not new. It stems from Lenin's early warning, given in these words: "We are a lesion which must be mastered by all. . . . It is to be on the alert, to remember that we are surrounded by people, classes, governments, which openly express their hatred toward us. . . . It must be remembered that we are at all times but a hair's breadth from some invasion."

How much truth is there in all of this? As in the case of many of the mentally ill, a kernel of reality can be multiplied into a mountain of persecution. In 1917-18 some small abortive effort was made by England and the United States to intervene in the Russian Revolution with a few troops moving in from Siberia. That effort dwindled out when we evacuated our railroad guards through Siberia. But it was enough to sow the paranoid harvest.

Just Mention My Name In Sheboygan -- Bob Cook

The Belleville Recreation Department has received national recognition for its work in advancing recreation philosophy. An "improvised play community" which graces the Municipal Stadium playground has attracted the interest of recreation professionals who constantly are moving to refine their play concepts and theories.

Thus far the subject of Belleville's improvised play community has been put into a bulletin by the New Jersey State Bureau of Recreation for distribution to all recreation departments in the state; it will appear in the professional magazine "Recreation"; it is being applied by the Recreation Commission of Seattle Park, New Jersey for their program; it has been studied by the Recreation Department of Maplewood, New Jersey; and was presented to the League of Municipalities Conference at Atlantic City by Robert Cook who was chairman of a panel on new theories.

A panel on new theories of play was presented by the Belleville Recreation Department received the following letter from the Department of Public Recreation of Sheboygan, Wisconsin:

"Professor Joseph Brown of Princeton University has indicated to us that you gave a most worthwhile and informative talk at the National Play Community Conference which was apparently held last year. It is my desire to present these slides to our assembled group at the Wisconsin Park and Recreation Society Convention to be held in Green Bay, Wisconsin, March 7, 8, and 9. I am charged with the responsibility of presenting the topic of 'Design and Safety of Playground Devices'."

LETTERS To The Editor

(Ed. note: A copy of the following letter was sent to the Times News for publication.)

Mr. Elmer S. Hyde
Municipal Building
Belleville, New Jersey

Dear Mr. Hyde:

I would like to congratulate you and the Recreation Department Band for its very fine performance on January 15. For a first performance both the conductor, Mr. Herbert Matlack, and the members of the band outdid themselves.

It would seem to me to be a fine addition to the recreational activities of the town if it were possible for such a band to give a weekly concert during the summer at some appropriate place, such as on one of the broad rolling lawns of Branch Brook Park. Again may I express to your department my appreciation of its leadership in sponsoring a community band.

Sincerely,
Samuel W. Pack
Director of Music

Editor: Belleville Times-News

According to the Belleville Times of Feb. 10 our probable tax rate will be $7.98, divided by 100, or 7.98 cents. This is a rate in comparison with the 1954 rate of 7.98 cents. The rate for 1955 is 8.12 cents, and for 1956, 8.34 cents, and for 1957, 8.56 cents.

I should like to place these figures in comparison with the 1954 rate for all to see where the rate is going. The rate for 1955 is 8.12 cents, and for 1956, 8.34 cents, and for 1957, 8.56 cents. The rate for 1958 is 8.78 cents, and for 1959, 9.00 cents, and for 1960, 9.22 cents.

The municipal rate will have risen over 100 points in two years. Will the people protest? Will it make any difference if they do?

The school budget was voted down although the increase in the last two years has chiefly been spent to get and hold good teachers, which is the request heard from all sides, even from politicians.

Mr. Golden certainly has a plan to raise the money is going to be used for the school. It is apparent that the "poor taxpayer" for whom certain commissioners are always weeping crocodile tears will start being economical by cutting down on his child's education.

Margaret Harris

Editor: Belleville Times-News

The town of Belleville should be proud of the interest shown by its people in the school board election. Good schools need the support of alert and informed citizens. I hope, for the sake of better education in Belleville, that the people will maintain the interest in their schools that was generated by the election.

All these organizations which lined up in the election should be pleased that the people chose to elect two of the Conference nominees. As campaign manager for the Conference candidates, I wish to thank each of the many, many individuals who worked long and hard to get out the voters, but to arouse interest in the election and to get the voters to the polls.

Ernest Arrington, Chairman
Campaign Committee

Martinson's "Golden Blending" gives you more

It takes many fancy coffees to give you the incomparable Martinson's Flavor, Aroma and Body. Each one is roasted separately to bring out the very best that's in the beans. Then, and only then, are they "Golden Blended", an exclusive Martinson process.

The ordinary way is to blend raw, green coffees and give them all an "average" roast. That's "Green Blending". It's quicker and cheaper, but it's not the Martinson way.

We believe your first sip of Martinson's will make you like a Martinson's Coffee user for life!

Martinson's carefully — it's much stronger and richer, takes less coffee to make the strength you like. "GOLDEN BLEND" — 67% TO 70% ROAST
