Local Police Force Tracking Down Two Latest Thefts; Group Of Minors In Juvenile Court Yesterday Awaiting Sentence By Judge Bellfatto

The epidemic of stolen cars that has broken out strongly in Belleville this year is continuing unabated, according to a police department announcement today. Two more thefts have been reported in town this week, to bring the total of stolen cars here to 42 for the year. This is in comparison to 28 such cases during the entire year of 1955.

In releasing the figure, Detective Harry Winfield said this number only included cars stolen from local residents, and did not include cars stolen from other communities, dumped here, and discovered by the local police department.

The negotiations, between Hillside Enterprises, Inc., of Belleville, and the restaurant chain, have been going on for the past two months. According to Robert C. Gruhn, attorney for the local firm, no final decision has been reached yet.

The negotiations came into public prominence during March when William Mikulak, representing Hillside Enterprises, asked Town Commission for a zoning amendment which would permit carousels.

STRIKE ENDS AT EDSON TOOL CO.

Production Employees Return To Work After Three Weeks

About 100 production employees of the Edson Tool and Manufacturing Company, Cortlandt Street, returned to work last week ending a three-week strike over terms for their first union-management contract. The union, Local 5362 of the United Steel Workers, won representation at the plant February 13.

According to Albin Weisenfeld, secretary of the State Mediation Board, the new contract includes hourly wage boosts ranging from 10 to 25 cents, a starting pay of $1.40 an hour, a union shop, and a 12-cent hourly bonus for work on the second shift.

The pact also specifies the addition of one more paid holiday which now number seven, and company paid Blue Cross hospitalization to implement the present Blue Shield coverage.

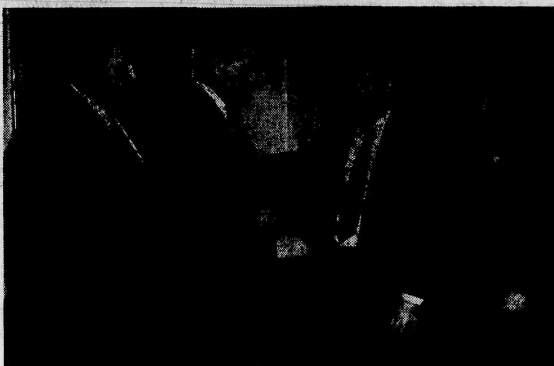

The workers raised the agreement last week before the contract was put into written form. Settlement of the walkout was looked for in the early days of the strike except for disagreement over a union shop. This last point was arranged during the final negotiation period.

Code Of Dress Adopted By High School Students

A code of dress for students at Belleville High School, formally adopted by the student council and approved by the Board of Education, has gone into effect this week. Sandra Shaw, president of the council, said that the group felt proper student dress was important to the education of high school students. The Board of Education added that attitudes of students toward proper dress today, help to determine the personality and character of the citizens tomorrow.

Although the code is on a strictly voluntary enforcement basis, student cooperation during the first week has been very good, school officials report. The complete code for both boys' and girls' attire follows:

Ed Littig Stars In "Tour Of Belleville" Bicycle Race

John Chiselko Of Somerville Pedals Way To Sizzling Victory In 25-Mile Middle Atlantic Bicycle Road Racing Championship Here Sunday

Sunday saw the fourth annual running of the Tour of Belleville Bicycle Race which this year attracted the largest field of riders ever. More than 80 of the country's top riders started in the 25 mile classic at Municipal Stadium. The field included three former National All-Round Champions, three Olympic riders, several State Champions, and the cream of riders from New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts, Maryland, Michigan, Pennsylvania and other parts of the United States.

The afternoon of racing began with a stock bike race for Belleville youngsters. Howard Beresford, who won last year's race, was the winner followed closely by Ralph Trause who took second and Philip Lees who placed third. George Lee was in for a close fourth place.

Next was the old timers race of two miles in which Belleville's Ed Littig was the favorite. He poured on the steam to give his home town a thrilling finish. Ed Littig was taken in the town ambulance to St. Mary's Hospital, Passaic, where he was reported in fair condition. His condition has been improving during the past week.

According to police, Edward Presser, 24, of Beth Boyden Terrace, Newark, was driver of the truck which was heading east on Academy Street when the bike ambulance out of Belleville hit his path. Presser was issued a summons on a charge of failure to have been in proper control of the vehicle. The bike was completely demolished.

(Ed. Note: The current issue of "Elementary School Journal," the professional journal of elementary education, contains an article written by Dr. Frank M. Durkee, general supervisor of Belleville schools. Entitled "Why Johnny Reads," the article explains the motivation needed to make school children interested in reading and then points out the program being used in Belleville schools to make students take more active part in both classroom and outside reading. The article is reprinted in an abridged form here.)

NEW SHIPMENT OF SALK VACCINE TO ARRIVE HERE

Health Officer Eugene Berry Says Town Will Administer Second Shots In Series

Town Health Officer Eugene T. Berry revealed today that his office has received official notice from the State Health Department informing him that a shipment of Salk vaccine would reach Belleville the end of this month. Berry estimated that the vaccine would arrive here around May 25.

Now that we have received this specific promise for more of the vaccine, Berry said, the town intends to continue its free clinic to all local children. This means that every child in town, both pre-school and school age, who received his first Salk inoculation will now be administered the second shot in the series. Berry noted that any child who for one reason or another, has not received his first shot, would be eligible to get the injection from the new shipment.

All told, Berry expects about 2,400 children to apply for the second shot. The number of first inoculations administered this past winter. The clinic for school children was held in January, and the pre-school clinic February. Berry said the second shots will be given for each child in the series. A tentative date has been set for early next month, to enable all the youngsters to be handled before school closes. He said that the formal application blanks will be handed out to the school children in class. These must be signed by the parent and

Local Red Cross Collects 53 Pints Of Blood Here

The Belleville Red Cross collected 53 pints of blood here when the latest drive was conducted at the high school. Mrs. Herbert Robinson, blood program chairman, said that during the drive, 83 of the 83 people who made appointments to give blood came into keep their appointments. This is too many "no shows" she said.

Officials hope to collect between 75 and 100 pints of blood at the last blood bank of the season to be held at the high school on June 8 from 10 to 12 noon. Mrs. Robinson pointed out that Belleville has been running behind its quota this year. If it were to be blood for local residents the June bank must be a success.

Police Department Revisions Provide Better Protection

New Accident Prevention Squad Is Assigned To Enforce Traffic Regulations; New Post Created

Public Safety Director Harry J. Sullivan has announced two revisions in the organization of the Police Department which have been made to "afford the best protection possible to residents in all sections of Belleville."

With the recent addition of seven new men on the force and three replacements, the department is practically at full strength which permitted Sullivan to make the two changes.

For purposes of police protection, the town has been divided into four sections, each with two policemen and a patrol car specifically assigned to each post during the entire day. Previously the town had been divided into three posts, with the curtailment in coverage made necessary by the shortage of men.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL BUILDING FUND AT $100,000 MARK

MENTAL HEALTH DRIVE TO BE HELD

Mayor Isadore J. Padula has been named honorary chairman of the Belleville Mental Health drive, to be held from May 21 to 31. Seymour Grossman, principal of School No. 7 and Mrs. Samuel Skinner, are co-chairmen of the residential division, which will conduct a house-to-house collection drive during the campaign. Both of the co-chairmen have also been named honorary promoters of the drive.

They explained that according to leading national mental authorities, at least 50 per cent of all people seen by medical doctors, have some form of mental illness. ## The Face Is Familiar: Traffic Officer Makes Life Pleasant For Neighborhood

By Rita Knoll
In the old days, kids were pretty scared of the policeman on the corner, but nowadays things have changed and his new role is that of a friendly adviser, who sometimes can get tough, if necessary.

One of the most pleasant aspects of the new look in police uniforms is the increasing number of ladies in town, known as traffic officers.

Mrs. Gertrude Comer, of 141 Floyd Street, is one of Belleville's four new ladies. Her current post is at the corner of Washington Avenue and Greylock Parkway, but residents of the area and students of St. Peter's school will also know her well. Mrs. Comer is a comparative newcomer to the force. She was made a member in September, 1955. Her first assignment was at School No. 2 where her patrol was under supervision. This consisted of three days under the supervision of a member of the new police force. After this, she took over the post

Action In Tour Of Belleville Bike Race

Commissioner Elmer S. Hyde, of the Department of Parks and Public Property, fires the starting gun to get this year's Tour of Belleville Bicycle Races off to a flying start. Three local youngsters are shown mounting their bikes just after the starting gun in the Belleville Stock Bicycle Race. The starting line was in front of Municipal Stadium on Nolton Street. A large crowd of neighbors, and other interested residents saw Howard Beresford repeat his victory of last year in the race.

at St. Peter's school and remained there till the end of February, when she was transferred to her present post.

Mrs. Comer believes that a friendly word and a helpful attitude will win more friends than a harsh and critical outlook over would. This goes for the older and younger folks alike.

Mrs. Comer has home-grown experience with the younger folks, as she has to cope with a thirteen-year-old son, David. It's pretty obvious that David approves of his mother's attitude, as his latest ambition is to become a member of the police force when he is old enough.

Mrs. Comer's working week consists of approximately twenty hours on duty. Her job is helping people to cross the street, and keeping general order among all the school-going youngsters of that neighborhood. She hopes that perhaps some day in the future she might become a member of Belleville's regular police force.

Her police and home duties are not the only part of Mrs. Comer's activities, she has also found time to have been a president of the L. Leslie J. Rummel Auxiliary No. 164 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Newark. She also held various other positions with that organization. She was also a past councillor of the Daughters of America Star of Runyon Council No. 64, of Newark.

Mrs. Comer's attitude can be summed up in one sentence: she is proud and happy to have the honor and privilege of wearing this uniform and we're sure that anyone crossing Washington Avenue or Greylock Parkway knows that she really means it.

Accident Prevention Squad

The other new move saw the formation of an accident prevention squad. Four men have been assigned to this squad on a permanent basis, with the idea of cutting down the number of traffic accidents in town.

The four men are officers Kenneth Place, Hugh O'Toole, John Donnelly, and Michael Marotti. The detail will provide 16 hours of coverage, working in two shifts from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. Their duty will be to investigate all accidents in town, find out their cause, and what could have been done to prevent them. They will spend their time exclusively in traffic law enforcement. A motorcycle and patrol car have been assigned to the group, which is directly responsible to Chief of Police George Spatz.

The force had an accident prevention squad previously but it was disbanded several years ago due to a shortage of manpower.

The department is now under the command of four squads, each with 10 men working around the clock—a lieutenant, a sergeant, and eight patrolmen.

without music in business zones of town. At the time, Mishkind explained that the restaurant chain operated eating establishments in this part of the country, unique in that the restaurants attracted kid-like rides as an added attraction for family drivers. Mishkind said that the rides served as an amusement for the children while the adults ate, and that by utilizing the plan, a successful business had been established.

He said that the chain was interested in the site of the old River Park Skating Rink, at 701 Washington Avenue. However, before negotiations could be carried further it would be necessary to receive the Commission's approval for the kiddie rides which at that time had been banned by Town ordinances.

Mishkind received the desired zoning amendment last month, and Hillside Enterprises was based on negotiating since. However, Grubbin revealed that the prospective tenants have not submitted their plans to the local group for approval yet. In the interests of the town as a whole, Grubbin said, the group would not proceed with the talks until the restaurant chain's plans are inspected.

The original agreement with Hillside Enterprises was based on the theory that the firm would make substantial improvements to the present property and that financial proof of their intentions would be shown. Grubbin added that no definite plans have been forthcoming from the business yet, but that further meetings between the two groups are scheduled. "We are awaiting some definite plans," he said, "and these could be produced at any time."

"Whenever possible, the Salvation Army tries to send children to camp, but all this costs money, and 80 per cent of all money collected by the drive must go to national headquarters for financial aid in disasters such as floods, etc. It costs $21 per week per child to send these youngsters to camp, so it is very important that we collect as much as is humanly possible during this week."

Mayor Isadore J. Padula, honorary chairman for the town drive, has urged all people who can devote time to the drive to contact Mrs. Lapham and volunteer their services as soon as possible.

returned to enable the child to receive his shot. Cards will be sent by mail to parents of preschool children, who received the first shot. These must also be signed and returned to the Health Department.

Berry stressed that no third shots would be given in the program planned for June. He asked parents to signify on the application cards, if their child has since received a second shot from a private doctor. "The program of the whole state, including Belleville," he said, "is to spread the vaccine as far as possible since a shortage does exist." He added that even a first shot will provide up to 80 per cent immunity, while the two shots are practically 100 per cent protection.

Under the system being conducted by the Health Department, every local youngster between the ages of 1 and 14 has been provided with the opportunity to receive the series of Salk shots free of charge.

Bike Tour

The women's two mile race was won by Melinda Gardner, a petite rider from Union City whose final sprint was just too much for second place Zay Phillips and Gladys Woodbridge of Massachusetts.

In the juvenile boys one mile race, Bill Zisa of New Milford rode a mile in 2:35.8 for first place. Jack Simon was second and Al Borgosse of the Bronx was third. Ed Littig, Jr., of Belleville, was just out of the running in this race.

In the junior five mile race, Belleville's Richard Haff looked like a winner right up to the final sprint. He jumped into the lead as they finished the third mile and pulled the whole pack for the remaining two laps. However, in the close of the race a group managed to sprint in ahead of him. Jim Davie of Glen Head was the winner with Jerry and Perry Metzler taking second and third.

Of course the big race was the 25 mile event in which every rider had his eyes on the United States record set here last year by Rupert Wall.

Right from the start, the pace was fast with the riders averaging 28 mph during the first several laps. On the fifth lap there was a spill as one rider slipped on the turn into Nelson Street from Chatham Avenue. Twelve bikes and riders piled up before the turn was completed. One of those to spill was John Chiselko who ultimately won the race. Chiselko also won the Belleville races of 1953 and 1954.

In the seventeenth lap, ten riders broke away from the pack and were never overtaken. As they headed for the tape Chiselko was the strong man and pulled out to a one length lead for the big win.

Commissioner Elmer S. Hyde was the honorary starter for the races. Joe DeBacco was race director, with Alfred Goulet supervising the registrations.

The Recreation Department, directed by Hyde, was sponsor of the race with recreation superintendent Robert E. Cook serving as race coordinator.

CANCER CRUSADE COLLECTS $7,276

Official figures released today by the Essex County Cancer Society reveal that Belleville has raised $7,276 so far in the current crusade for funds. The figure collected represents slightly more than 85 per cent of the town's quota as set by the county organization.

Local chairman Elmer S. Hyde said that the drive went on time indefinitely until his goal of $8,500 was reached. The drive began in April. Last year, with Hyde again serving as chairman, the local drive went over the top, collecting $10,000 to set an all-time Belleville high.

The latest figure released by the county society includes all money reported to them so far in the drive. This takes into account the house-to-house collections, which comprise a large part of the total contributions. Hyde said that some of the volunteer workers still haven't handed in their final reports, although their collections have been made. He feels that when these outstanding reports are tabulated, the drive will again go over its quota.

Hyde is hopeful of exceeding the goal before the end of the month. He said, "I am sure local residents realize the importance of contributing to the fight that is going on to wipe out this dreadful disease and will give to support their own drive to an end to it."

Hyde has been chairman of the local Cancer Crusade for the past four years, during which time Belleville has exceeded its quota each year.

attention was short and poor, and many of them were immature. Since I had spent the summer in Mexico and returned with many interesting things I talked with the children about my experiences and asked them whether they would like to learn things and experience of the boys and girls. Meeting came into the reading program. Parents and children, under teacher direction, finally planned a summer reading program, making use of the public library.

Results in Quantity of Reading
With a plan for independent reading, an excellent teacher-pupil relationship, and a rich program of real experiences, "what happened?" That, second-grade class of 27 boys and girls read 957 books during the school year in addition to the basic readers, and the median child read 40 books. The two top children read 80 and 75 books. The next five read 50 books each. The two lowest children read 10 books each. The next five read 15, 18, 19, 20, and 20.

Examination of the class indicates an I.Q. range of 91 to 140, but the child with the 91 I.Q. scored better on reading comprehension tests than the child with the 140 I.Q. and read no more than 18 books. One can readily see that the 128 I.Q. had one of the lowest scores on the test and read only 10 books. One can readily see that the 128 I.Q. had one of the lowest scores on the test and read only 10 books. One can readily see that the 128 I.Q. had one of the lowest scores on the test and read only 10 books.

Widen Horizon
In developing a rhythm band the children made their instruments: tin canisters, shakers, drums, and blocks, and sticks. In decorating them they used paper, water-color paints, and enamel. The children widened their horizons for reading.

In this diagram the discovery time was always traded with the unusual things brought in by the pupils. It was a source of real experiences with its stories, the fish snails, praying mantis' nest, and the like.

For a time the children took care of two hamsters. They fed one a good diet and the other a poor diet and noted the results. They set up a good health store and operated it, learning much about nutrition and making change.

LETTERS To The Editor

Editor, Belleville Times-News.

It is amusing to read of a joint prepared statement in "bad faith" by Comm. Smith and concurred in by Comm. King, both principals charged with acting in "bad faith" by the State Superior Court in their scheme to out building inspector Greco, which states the Town won't signers?

It is ludicrous, because under the circumstances a real experience to have appeared the decision since it was unanimous. Furthermore, they were taking into themselves the right to assume they speak officially for the entire body of Commissioners the court order.

In his typical fashion, it is noted Comm. Smith assails the Court's actions, charges some control interference and says this is a "temporary setback." Does he mean, he is still going to try to get rid of the building inspector?

Naturally the Commissioners criticized in the Court's opinion are resentful. It is, too seldom that anyone puts them in their proper place, they're apparently not used to it. The bravely worded decision of the Superior Court, confirmed what some of us have been saying for the past several years—that "conditions are bad in Belleville."

The apparent apathy of many of our citizens toward the conditions that were revealed from time to time, has been a bit difficult to understand. Perhaps the comment of Judge Sidney Goldmann will best and far more our good citizens, who have been likewise in their responsibilities as such, to the realization that they get good government, not by accident, but because they want it and will be something about it.

The upsetting conditions in town, so many now are complaining about, stem from a betrayal of a public trust and bad administrative practices created by those in the town government; who by acting, as the Court avowed, in "bad faith" demonstrated a lack of regard for the public welfare they were sworn to uphold.

Now that the Superior Court of the State, not a critic, has emphatically condemned one of the phases of local misrule, perhaps the good people of Belleville interested in dwelling in a well managed community will now show renewed interest in the way their town is run and take a more active part in restoring decent community government to their home town.

Respectfully submitted,
James R. Golden

Return Of Blossom

I watched an orchard slowly turn to white
Where early petals pink from apple tree and peach,
And saw a snowstorm stipple sable boughs
To burst white blossoms easily near my reach.

Gazing at the orchard's white from distant view,
The snow returned its blossoms to the sky
Braced by clouds upon cerulean blue.

Nearby a huddled flock of snow birds
Broke their oneness with the winter's white,
And left the blossoms made by snow alone
To brush a turquoise sky with ermine flight.

Navy Should Remove Abandoned Craft

A long-time local eyesore seems to be on the way out at long last. An official request has been sent to the Navy Department this week asking for the removal of the derelict landing craft, anchored in the Passaic River at the foot of Little Street by the Frederick Scott Ship of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, for the past several years. The action was taken by the State Office of the Veterans organization after it had declared the local post defunct.

The landing craft had been donated to the local post by the Navy in 1948 and has been a source of trouble ever since. Upon receiving the vessel, the post had elaborate plans to renovate it into an appropriate club house for the chapter, with built-in bar and all the trimmings. However, for one reason or another the plans never materialized.

Originally beached south of the Rutgers Street Bridge, the craft was ordered moved and was finally dumped in its present location. Fires have broken out on the abandoned ship from time to time, and juvenile gangs have used it for secret hideouts, also causing considerable damage.

In their letter to the Navy, the state office points out they have been notified by Mayor Isadore J. Padula that the Town considers the craft a menace to the public health and welfare for too long a time already, devious for all ages, a fire hazard, and an eyesore to the citizens of Belleville, "the craft's removal was strongly urged.

Padula also mentioned that it was necessary to have a constant police watch to prevent possible violence, and that the ship was presently situated in line of the right of way of the Route 21 extension.

Let's hope the Navy, who has final jurisdiction in the matter, will see fit to rid Belleville's river front of this unsightly wreck which has posed a threat to our health and welfare for too long a time already.

Racketeers Camouflage Behind Charity Drives

A corner has been lifted of a banner of charity which disclosed a very sordid mess beneath. Racketeers have wormed their way into one of the most worthy of all charities, that which has to do with helping to ease the difficulties for those unfortunate stricken with multiple sclerosis. The racketeers are making a fortune by victimizing the thousands of families which, out of the generosity of their hearts, gave clothing to the several regional societies for the help of the stricken.

The racketeers prey on their victims by "renting" the banners of the charitable organizations. In a case under study by the Essex authorities, the racketeers used telephonists, paid by the hundreds of calls they made from "sucker lists". The telephonists asked for gifts of used clothing, stressing the need of those stricken with sclerosis. The clothing was to be left on the porch; the societies would pick up the bundles.

What the telephonists did not say was that the collection was a private racket and that the charitable organizations received only a cut of 20 per cent of the net, after all expenses, of course, from the sale of the old clothing. The victims of multiple sclerosis, of course, received none of the clothing. It was bundled in burlap and sold in New York City at a flat rate of 13 cents a pound as "rags". In many cases, alas, generous local families, believing that the clothing was actually to be worn by the sclerosis victims, gave suits and dresses which were almost new, worth $50 or more. Rags and riches, everything was bundled together and sold at 13 cents a pound.

Belleville is notoriously generous, but, alas, has been the victim of nefarious racketeers. It is the contention of The Times-News that this affair should be investigated and the police should be asked to give clearance to any charitable group which wants to make clothing or scrap collections here. There are, of course, many good agencies, such as the Salvation Army and the Good Will Mission, which are worthy of our generosity but our town must be protected against the frauds, the racketeers, the crooks who make a mockery out of charity. No crook is lower than the one who steals from a paralyzed man, yet that is what is still happening on a very profitable scale for the racketeers in the name of the first victims in this sorry trickery.

One Man's Opinion

We may lose one-eighth control of Tangiers but we can solidify our position in Morocco by exchanging ambassadors

By Ralph Eric Heinzen

The United States has a big stake in Morocco and in Tangier, the international port across the Straits of Gibraltar from the big rock, and in all the debate about the end of French and Spanish colonialism and the independence of Morocco many have been too prone to remember that we claimed and kept equal rights in Morocco, even under the French, and that we are one of the eight powers which share control of Tangier.

With the grant of independence to Morocco by the French and Spanish, there is little doubt that the International Zone of Tangier will soon cease to exist and will become an integral part of the independent Moroccan sultanate.

When that occurs, the United States will lose its one-eighth grip on the vital northwest corner of Africa but by exchanging ambassadors with Morocco we will be in an even more solid position to defend our trade interests, our investments and, above all, our air bases which are a key to the NATO defense system.

Twenty Centuries Of Strife

The internationalization of Tangier was nothing new when we and the Spaniards, the Portuguese, the French, the British, the Belgians, the Italians and the Dutch agreed, in 1923, to a statute which shared its control. Back in the days of the Romans it was a free city. At other times it came under the Moors, the Vandals, the Byzantines and the Arabs.

Spain and Portugal fought more than one war over Tangier and the lovely city rising in an amphitheatre from the spacious bay changed hands between them ten during the 16th, 16th and 17th centuries before it came into the possession of the English in 1725 as part of the dowry of Catherine of Braganza on her marriage to Charles II.

After the British abandoned it to the Moors rather than fight for it, France drove the Moors into the desert by gunfire from a French fleet and took it over in 1844.

Spain's Lost Chance

France and Spain went at it hammer and tongs for a century over possession of Tangier, and finally, on the eve of World War I, in 1914, France, Britain and Spain agreed to share control. Before that could be accomplished, war broke out and Spain, wanting to preserve her neutrality, backed out.

It was 1923 before Europe, having set her own house in order after four costly years of war, turned again to the Tangier problem and when the agreement was made to share control under eight powers, the United States agreed to take part.

During World War II, General Franco might have grabbed Tangier and all of French Morocco for Spain, but he was wise enough to realize that all wars end some day and that then a day of reckoning would come. So during the war he stepped at Spanish military occupation of the international zone, its incorporation in Spanish Morocco and the dissolution of the international administration.

Keeping Russians Out

After World War II, France, Britain and the United States, with Russia's blessing, decided in Paris, in August 1945, to tell Franco that his de facto occupation of Tangier was illegal and that he should turn it over once again to the powers which shared in the 1923 convention. This Franco did without a dispute.

Russia had a hand in that Paris agreement and, generously, the West agreed that when a new statute for Tangier was drafted Russia would be invited to share in its logical choice for the new ambassadorial post. He took in Washington. The White House has not yet decided whether to submit Mr. Holmes' nomination to the Senate. Washington recognizes the special French interest in Morocco and is being careful not to embarrass Paris by moving too fast. The prevailing view here is that France should act first by replacing her high commission in Morocco with an embassy.

The new Moroccan Government forced the issue of its diplomatic relations with the rest of the world by appointing a Foreign Minister, Ahmed Balafout, on April 26.

Part Of Independence

Morocco's right as an independent nation to conduct her own diplomacy was recognized by France in a protocol signed last March 2. But it was also agreed that France, which held a protectorate in Morocco, would continue to represent the new Government abroad until ties of "interdependence" had been established between the two countries. Negotiations toward this end are still going on in Paris.

Washington officials want to see the French move ahead quickly. They expect that Egypt, the Soviet Union and other countries interested in ousting the Western powers from North Africa will send ambassadors to Rabat as soon as the Moroccans agree to receive them.

In these conditions a grudging French attitude can only harm Western interests, those officials say. They contend that the West already saddled with the onus of colonialism, will gain nothing by too much delay.

Future Of U. S. Bases

The future of the United States strategic air bases in Morocco is not directly at stake. The bases agreements, negotiated between France and the United States in 1950, remain legally in force despite transfer of authority to Morocco in fields other than foreign affairs and defense.

Sultan Mohammed V has indicated that the time may not be far off when his Government will want to work out its own arrangements with the United States for the use of the bases, hinting that Morocco will ask economic assistance in exchange.

But no major obstacles are foreseen in Washington. The bases, for the moment, remain under French command.

Wants Facts Revealed

The existing agreements provide for joint use by France and the United States. Up to now the French authorities have not officially notified the Moroccan Government of their contents. United States officials say there is no ground for Moroccan suspicions that the agreements may contain secret clauses. They have been urging the French to make an end of secrecy on this point.

Washington also is confident that the future of Tangier can be resolved without much difficulty. The Tangier zone, ruled by an eight-power committee of control, is expected to be incorporated into the Moroccan state.

The eight powers are in substantial agreement on the ultimate transfer and on the first steps for bringing it about.

They have in mind a progressive increase in Moroccan responsibility for the administration of the city and a progressive reduction in the area of international jurisdiction.

Moroccan authorities have indicated that they would like the city to retain something of its international character. They have mentioned the establishment of a customs-free zone and the continuance of a free money market. With the merging of the French and Spanish zones the commercial importance of the port as a gateway to the whole of Morocco and other African countries is expected to grow.

None of these changes is expected to be opposed by the United States.

control. Things changed, however, when Russian aggression in Poland and Eastern Europe split the victorious allies into rival forces. Now Russia will not be given any voice in Tangier or Morocco, at any price.

The United States is eager to exchange Ambassadors with newly independent Morocco before Soviet Russia does.

In a note delivered ten days ago, the State Department advised the Moroccan Government of its intention to establish a United States Embassy at Rabat and, in due course, to name an Ambassador.

Guess which building pays more taxes?

The building on the left is typical of properties which New Jersey assesses, for tax purposes, at $27,000.

Yet the building on the right, many years older and worth considerably less at current market value, pays taxes on an evaluation nearly twice as high. New Jersey actually assesses it for $52,000.

Surprising? Not if you're familiar with New Jersey's tax methods. The building on the right belongs to one of your New Jersey railroads—and it's the practice in New Jersey to assess railroad property at 100% or more of true value. In contrast non-railroad property averages only 25% to 35% assessment of true value.

Such a discriminatory tax system, along with other unrealistic tax practices, actually wipes out earnings and creates losses. Right now, the railroad industry pays an average of $1.67 in New Jersey taxes for every dollar earned in the state! New Jersey railroad taxes are the highest per mile in the nation, more than five times the national average.

In the face of such unbalanced taxation, your railroads provide your fellow New Jersey citizens with 34,000 jobs and an annual payroll of 122 million dollars. Your railroads spend additional millions of dollars for New Jersey goods and services, transport millions of tons of products and materials that keep New Jersey enterprises humming.

The future prosperity of New Jersey is intimately linked to the financial health of the railroad industry. Naturally the railroad industry's progress is bound to be retarded if its earnings all go out in taxes.

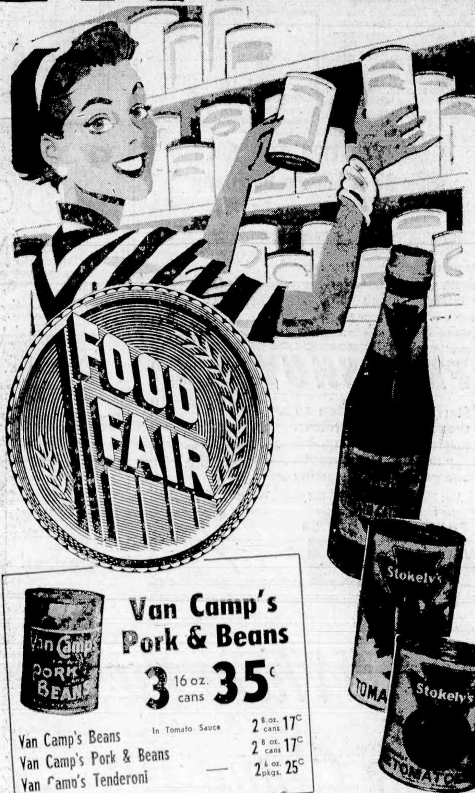

You can help New Jersey progress by being a well-informed citizen. Write for your free copy of "FACTS ON TRACKS": Railroad Information Bureau, 11 Commerce Street, Newark 2, N. J.

How many telephone people do YOU know?

It doesn't take long to think of several, does it?

Today, there are 25,500 people serving you at New Jersey Bell—nearly twice as many as fifteen years ago.

But this is not surprising. Over 150,000 new telephones were added last year. That's more than one a minute throughout each working day. And this calls for many people... and many skills.

Some of these folks are your friends and neighbors. Their one responsibility is good telephone service for you. And, if you know them well, you know the quiet pride they take in doing the job well.

Giving you the best possible telephone service is the job of telephone business office supervisors like Mrs. Joanne E. Ostergren of New Brunswick. Like many telephone people, Mrs. Ostergren is also active in civic affairs which build a better community.
