

RED CROSS GETS $7,309 TO DATE

Red Cross officials report that $7,309 has been raised to date in the 1957 fund appeal for that organization. Campaign chairman Dr. Frank DiRuggiere said he was disappointed in the slow returns but that he would extend the drive's deadline in hope of reaching the goal. Previously, he had announced the quota as $25,000. The drive was originally to have lasted for the month of March, but it has now been extended indefinitely, he said.

Smith

Smith's story of the teams that he opposed in that time concerns the famed Phillips 66 Oilers. Always a power in the amateur ranks, the Oilers fielded a team that averaged 9'6" in height. It must have been a trying time for the new Blue and Gold mentor, for he is but 5'10". He will encounter a team that some problem time and again in his new position, for Belleville has yet to field a team that was taller than average.

Dollars cut such a figure with some men that they feel they have to disfigure themselves to get them.

worth for every dollar spent," he said.

Mishkin stated that the Belleville Park group was started by several years ago to fight the location of the county parent home in Belleville. Several hundred members joined at the time. Mishkin said and Blomene had been made president. He claims that at the time of the recent budget hearings, the group was merely interested in a review of the property revaluation undertaken by the J. M. Clemenau Company. The group was not interested in politics or in "who gets the money," he said. Mishkin says the picture shown "got mixed up with politics because a number of people are sore at the Commissioners."

Deadline

Mishkin says he didn't like this idea, so he formed his own group with non-political aims, which is open to everyone. Mishkin, who is a member of the Kenilworth School Association, charges that Blomene's group was a political organization.

School Board

done in the past few months to ascertain if the money was spent properly.

In discussing the Board's poor relations with the local press, Golden stated that all public affairs should be aired in public. The only test for private conferences is whether they serve the community interest. The Board members didn't wish to make their opinions public.

In bringing up an entirely new matter, Golden asked the Board if there was any truth to the reports that boys from School No. 10 had been assigned menial or janitorial duties, such as cutting grass, scrubbing stairs, shining shoes on doors, etc.

Will Investigate
Superintendent of Schools Evan H. Thomas said he could not say that this did not happen. He stated that he has seen boys working on improvement of the grounds, "to give them a better appreciation of the grounds and their upkeep," he added. Golden countered by saying there was a difference between class projects and isolated cases of discrimination in the form of punitive action.

Boyd said the Board would look into these reports.

Golden continued his questioning of Board practices on one more item. He wanted to know if the Board was able to invest any of the money that it appropriates, before spending, in order to accrue interest. Board attorney Mike Schwartz explained that the Town of Belleville was the source of money to every agency in town. The School Board has no control over funds, it merely collects them from the treasurer when needed.

He added that the Board did have money in several Savings and Loan accounts gaining interest. These are only surplus funds, it was pointed out, and amount to about $70,000.

Board members were also confronted by a group of parents from School No. 12, who said that their school was being neglected.

They specifically wanted to know when the play area was going to be shut down so that they were included in the $100,000 over $5,000. They also raised other points concerning the school.

Representatives from School No. 10. Boyd appeared to ask the Board if any consideration had been given to their previous suggestion of moving the school offices to a new location. Boyd said the Board hadn't discussed it yet.

In other matters, the Board adopted a new teachers' salary guide for the 1957-58 school year. Aside from granting a $200 across-the-board pay raise, Board members also agreed to eliminate the category with teachers who had two to three years of training and were new to the district. About 15 teachers in the system, holders of degrees from normal schools, are now lumped in with those teachers holding bachelors degrees.

New Minimum
The minimum salary for a teacher with a bachelors degree is now $3,800 and goes up to $6,000 in 16 yearly steps. For those holding a masters degree, it is a $4,000 minimum going up to $6,200 in 16 yearly steps. For those teachers with one year beyond the masters degree, the minimum is $4,200 and the maximum $7,200 in 17 yearly steps.

Additional resolutions were tabled by the Board for future action. One measure would have changed the district lines between Schools Nine and One so that all children residing in the area between the north side of Holmes Street and the south side of Johnson Street would be registered in the School Nine district.

At present they are in the School One district. There would be about 75 students affected by the change, and some Board members did not feel that the children in the lower grades should be forced to walk the extra distance which the change would necessitate.

The second measure which was tabled in the pre-meeting conference would have named former basketball coach Herman "Judy" Wishe to the post of principal of the school. Physical education for the school system. No reason was given for the tabling action.

Face

she has plans for a column of her own in the near future.

But, she has had no interest in all sides of the thought, and some actual experience in acting and directing. All this doesn't mean there couldn't be more. But isn't this a problem? A what-to-do dilemma that leads to a strange predicament? Well, here's where the real performer comes in with a very valuable lesson, honest self-evaluation.

"I had six months of voice. But it would be more of a hindrance than a help. No popular songs demand range or a great voice. I want to be a great performer. Not a great singer." This from Connie, and this, on her incessant push toward self-improvement, she said, was in her diary every night. Every act I see gets in, especially my favorites, Judy Garland, Ethel Merta, I try to learn from their types of introductions, their ways of speaking, the hand motions, the little tricks that endear them to the audience. I mean, this is the only business where the people who buy pay before they get their merchandise. They decide the best you can give them."

As for individuality, also a pliable commodity in the entertainment field, this, too, is Connie's specialty. I never intend to refuse a drink, or a cocktail party, or anything I don't like. I don't want to fall into a trap. I don't want my friends to have to give me the star treatment.

I'm not going to conform to the laws of phonies."

Strict attention to duty and a hard streak of practicality, as evidenced by the following, "I never go out after work in New York, and I only go out in other towns as long as Mother's with."

On religion, "To me, God is supreme. Everything else is secondary. I love an empty church in the middle of the week. Sunday is more of a ritual. Wednesday is a day of spontaneous religion."

This, then, is a personality. Knowledgeable, verbal, confident, competent. Has she done it all by herself? Connie is the first one to deny it. Her mother, her press agent, her manager all have in for their due credit in her conversation. And in one life the illuminating aside, she did say this "When I first began to record, I used to dress up, pretty, come into the studio, and be terribly aware of everyone. Now I love an empty church in the middle of the week. Sunday is more of a ritual. Wednesday is a day of spontaneous religion."

Receives GE Citation

Anthony Calderone, of 10 Crescent Terrace, has been named "Man of the Month" by the cost reduction committee of the commercial and industrial air conditioning department at the General Electric plant in Bloomfield.

Calderone is the first to receive the honor under the new program. The recognition, which is for January, carries with it the presentation of a "Man of the Month" certificate and a credit at the employee store for an appliance. He is shown in the center above receiving his award.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Calderone, is married, and the father of one son.

me. It may sound corny, but I don't believe in mixing business with pleasure, and I don't want to be the cause for stories that can't do men any good." She added, "All hail, an R.C.A. promotion man said he'd never heard anyone say anything derogatory about me, and, in this business, that's quite a compliment."

Romance, Miss Francis? "Well, I went what I'd call steady for about six months. We were very close and our ideas coincided perfectly. We both hated prejudice in any form, any kind of bigotry. I just can't think of a man I have to think people are. Well, this boy is a singer, too, and two people in this business have a lot of unexpressed jealousy and friction. So that was that." Connie added, "Any man I eventually marry has to be intellectually superior to me. Truth and realism in people, and certainly in a man I care for, is something I'm always looking for."

could be set up at a comparatively moderate outlay and would be a good start for entrances on all four surrounding streets. Commissioners took the recommendation under advisement with no indication of what their next step would be. However the possibility was mentioned of forming a permanent town parking authority to carry on the work.

Other items serving on the committee were Saul Smoller, Arthur Williams, J. Hart Campbell, and William L. Roemer.

In other business, Commissioners laid over two resolutions pertaining to home development projects in town. The first would have given Egan Estates, Inc. the green light to go ahead with their building project on the former Piange Farm. However, Commissioners held up approval of the subdivision of the second lot until they had heard from the Board of Education. The subdivision was held up at the last meeting at the suggestion of Commissioner Robert C. Grubbin.

Commissioners also voted to recommend that the motion picture "Baby Doll" not be shown at the Capital Theater. The resolution termed the picture "indecent, immoral, and objectionable." However, the show began a brief run Wednesday night at the local theater, according to manager George Karros, because the bookings had been made a long time in advance. The local amount of expenditures were set at the same time at $2,295,080. No definite figures on the new tax rate were settled as word must be received from the County Tax Board.

A group of local tavern owners, and their legal representative, Thomas Byrne of the State Tavern Owners Association, were invited to the Commission meeting to ask that a definite limit be placed on the number of private club liquor licenses in town. They were told that Commissioners had decided to study each case that comes up on its individual merits rather than to make any blanket rule. The tavern owners said they were alarmed at the large number of club requests which had come up recently and which are anticipated.

Commissioners also gave final approval to the revised 1957 budget at the Tuesday night meeting. After the last public hearing on the budget the revised figures had been sent to the state for approval. The new figures which were approved set the total amount of money to be raised by taxation for local purposes at $1,533,396. The total would be $1,533,396.

Celebrating Feast Of St. Joseph

St. Joseph Serves As Friend In Need To Paserchias

Woman's Club Of Belleville Marks Forty Years Of Pleasant Service

The Woman's Club of Belleville had a birthday party Tuesday. Proudly, it broke a national formal rule, and admitted to being 40 years old.

Not only that, it went, by means of a pageant, into detailed proof of its age, naming names, and dating dates. It seems, that in 1917, a group of 13 maidens formed the Belleville Improvement Association which had as its object, to render the members helpful to one another and useful to society and to cooperate for the betterment of social conditions.

One of the first services rendered was a Clean-Up Week for the town. This included the painting of club-purchased waste cans. The next few years saw concerted contribution to the war effort, donations to the Silver Spring Welfare Association, maintaining of a social worker with salary paid for three years, the playing of piano and violin, the starting of a toy shop to give toys to state board children, and the sponsoring of a WPA nursery school for pre-school children.

Jean Paserchia Is Engaged To Frank Nigro

Mr. and Mrs. Domenick Paserchia, of 281 North Belmont Avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jean Paserchia, to Frank Nigro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Nigro, of 68 Wallace Street.

The announcement was made at a party at the St. Anthony Field Club on February 23.

Miss Paserchia is a graduate of Belleville High School, and is employed by the Perle and Tube Company, and is presently employed by the National Steel Company in Belleville.

The couple plan a September wedding.

Through the years, there were plays, art exhibits, flower shows, painting, patchwork, quilting and cupping to enrich the lives of all members. Recently a "Hat Review" created much interest on the part of the state chairman. Each participating member wore a hat representing a play or popular book, and all made quite a hit with the audience.

The year 1955 saw the beginning of the evening department, a pleasant active group of women who cooperate with and join in all Woman's Club projects.

Lately, the Clara Maass Hospital, has been a recipient of drive under the aquis of the club, and through the years the Cancer Dressing Unit has managed to outfit 40,000 much needed dressings.

The Woman's Club of Belleville, has lived 40 busy exciting years, giving pleasure and service to others, and to itself in the performance of its sundry duties. But with all that, with all the activity and pressure of its existence, the club is keeping one thought paramount: "Life begins at 40."

MUSIC FESTIVAL AT HIGH SCHOOL

On Wednesday evening, at 8 p.m. the Instrumental Music Department of the St. Joseph Elementary Instrumental Music Festival at the high school auditorium. The program will feature approximately 95 instrumentalists. The All Grammar School Orchestra, High Combined Elementary String Groups as well as the Elementary Marching Band, are some of the organizations that will participate.

A portion of the concert will feature all of the string players in the grades. In the past three years, 150 Belleville High School students in Belleville schools have expressed a desire to play string instruments. Because of this, the elementary school orchestra, and in particular, the All Grammar School Orchestra, is steadily growing.

The festival concert will be under the direction of Frank Seibel, Joseph Seibel, and William Shadel, instrumental instructors in our elementary schools.

Approximately 100 of the students in the concert this Wednesday evening have been chosen to represent Belleville in the Annual State Music Festival which is held at State Teachers College in Montclair, New Jersey.

The public is cordially invited to attend the annual performance.

Shown above is part of the festive table that helped mark the feast of St. Joseph this past Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Domenick Paserchia, of 281 North Belmont Avenue. Grouped around the table with the family is a small part of the huge crowd which attended the affair to honor their patron saint. Guests arrived early in the morning and most stayed until evening.

Mrs. Domenick Paserchia of 281 North Belmont Avenue believes in the power of St. Joseph, and with evident good reason. Twenty-five years ago, when she was ill, she made a vow to her patron saint that she would observe his feast day with full devotion upon her return to health. She kept her word; and had occasion to renew this devotion five years ago when her husband was seriously ill. The fortunate result of two unfortunate occasions in 1950 and 1955 was that she was able to observe the feast of St. Joseph's with full devotion upon her return to health. Mrs. Irma Ryer Explains Duties Of Motor Service

"What has Red Cross done for you," asks Mrs. Irma Ryer, chairman of the Motor Service of the Belleville Chapter, American Red Cross? "Have you every had reason to request Red Cross service? If the answer is no, be grateful you can be independent. This fact alone should make you want to contribute time and money to the Red Cross so that your less fortunate neighbors and friends can be helped," she said.

It is surprising to learn the number of people once quite self sufficient and independent who have had to call for assistance from our blood program, services to the armed forces or motor service, she pointed out. You never know when it might be you.

Motor Service is available for those who are unable to use public transportation and who have no other means of transportation to clinics, hospitals and physicians offices. Many people are fortunate and have kind friends or neighbors but there are others with great physical handicaps who must have treatments weekly or more often over a prolonged period of time, Mrs. Ryer said.

There are the aged welfare patients at Essex County Hospital alone and often unwanted by families and friends. When they are allowed to leave the hospital the Red Cross Motor Service takes them shopping, for shoes and other articles.

"Yes, there are many drives for funds," she admitted. Each organization feels their work is important, and they are and we as American Citizens have the privilege and responsibility to support them, she said. Red Cross serves all these other organizations such as Retarded Children, Cerebral Palsy, National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Multiple Sclerosis, Cancer, Heart, Crippled Children and others. Without Red Cross many of these patients would be unable to get to their clinics, doctors and treatment centers, she said.

"At present we are transporting two dozen elderly gentlemen, one is crippled with arthritis and goes to Kessler Institute several times a week. The other suffers from a serious heart condition and goes weekly to his doctor for medication. They are fortunate to have devoted daughters but neither have cars nor can they ride in public conveyances. So Red Cross is on the job and our services are greatly appreciated," Mrs. Ryer stated.

"We need your help. You are the Red Cross. Motor Service needs

The Unaware

Spring waved her soft, impartial hand,
Caresing winter-croated land,
Now, intertwined with daffodils,
Enthusiastic chickweed spills;
Azaleas flourish face to face
With eager froths of Queen Anne's lace;
The lawn forsakes her greening pride;
For side by side
Crabgrass and dandelions grow.
There is no way a weed would know
It sprouts unwanted from the start;
When stirred to life, it grows—by heart.

A Courageous Position To Take

In taking a four-square stand in opposition to either a State income tax or a sales tax, merely to provide an inflated budget for more welfare and education largesses, State Senator Malcolm Forbes, in his campaign appearance here last night, rendered the voters of both parties a signal service.

Four years ago, when Governor Robert Meyner ran the first time, the Democratic Party, at its state convention, decided not to "handcuff" its candidate with any old-fashioned nonsense about not wasting the taxpayers' money. In taking off the "handcuffs," the Democrats merely dropped all mention of a sales tax or an income tax, either for or against, in the party platform on which Meyner stood for election.

Senator Forbes Is Opposed To State Income And Sales Levies

In an exclusive interview with The Times-News, here yesterday, Senator Malcolm S. Forbes took a positive stand in opposition to both a state sales tax and a state income tax.

By introducing in the State Legislature, Monday, a resolution urging the State Tax Commission to submit to the Senate by June 1 recommendations for the establishment of a standard of property tax assessment to conform to the State Supreme Court's recent decision requiring a reassessment of all real, industrial and commercial property in New Jersey at "true value," Senator Forbes sought, also, to minimize the confusion likely to occur in the State's 560 municipalities.

"There is a definite need of greater aid to education, both in the form of relief to the taxpayer through greater State transfers to local district boards and in the development of community or junior colleges but it must be accomplished within the present tax structure and not by the creation of any new forms of taxation," Senator Forbes told The Times-News after he reiterated his position, in a speech to local followers at a dinner held last night.

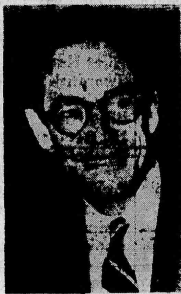

On a swing through Essex County in his primary campaign for the Republican nomination for Governor, accompanied by his sons dressed in kilts, the youthful publisher had particular emphasis on the need of lessening, rather than increasing, the tax burden.

He said that his "no-new-taxes" promise will be written into the 4000-page November platform on a state level if he is successful in the primary election.

Takes Positive Stand
A "no-new-taxes" pledge will be a plain plank in my platform and even at the risk of alienating those who subscribe to the theory that the State must subsidize an enlarged health and welfare program, I will maintain that the State should not underwrite any programs which cannot be financed by the existing sources of State income," Senator Forbes said.

"Four years ago, the Democratic platform contained no reference, for or against a State sales tax or an income tax. I do not know whether there will be such a plank in the 1957 Democratic platform, but so that there may be no question I will go on record right now in opposition to any widening of the State's tax structure by creating either new tax form."

"It will be hard to reduce Governor Meyner's $342,000,000 budget but it must be trimmed because the State must live within its income. One hears in Trenton, these days, alas, some wretched thinking. Governor Meyner is quoted as having said that he has heard no opposition to his budget. Whether he has heard it or not, there is opposition to waste in governmental operation it may as well not budget that big to wit-out its waste."

In introducing his resolution, Monday, Senator Forbes sought to move up from December to June 1 the deadline for the State Tax Commission's recommendations of a standard of assessment which would be employed in every town in the State. In anticipation of the Supreme Court ruling, the Commission was instructed last December to have its recommendations ready in 12 months.

Senator Forbes pointed out, in his interview here yesterday, that he was obliged to ask, by resolution, that the date be advanced by six months to avoid confusion if it becomes necessary to submit a new constitutional amendment to a referendum.

Under the old schedule that referendum could not be held until November, 1958, but by advancing the deadline six months it would be possible to hold the referendum next November at the same time a Governor is elected.

The Forbes motorcycle left Newark at 10 a.m. for Belleville and Nutley and then swung west across the country. Visits were made to the Times-News offices as well as other newspaper offices, industrial plants and supermarkets and the day wound up with Since Trenton is the setting of another battle, right now, between the State House, which wants "a broader tax base," and the Legislature's Appropriations Committee which is trying to cut the fat out of the Governor's $42 million dollar budget, it is timely that Senator Forbes should take a position which leaves no doubt where he stands.

It is possible that Forbes' announcement, here in Town, that he is opposed to "a broader tax base," which can be translated only in terms of opposition to new State taxes on sales and incomes, may smoke out Governor Meyner. If, instead, the Governor chooses to run on a platform which, once again, would be silent on the issue of new taxes, then Meyner would be at a solid disadvantage against Forbes.

Twenty years ago, under a Republican Governor, the GOP had to have a State sales tax because its "essential services" could not function without it. It was one of those glaring mistakes which go down in history, like the Japanese "victory" at Pearl Harbor. The State Legislature almost broke its neck trying to repeal its folly when the sales tax provoked the bitterest resentment of the New Jersey masses, regardless of party affiliation.

Once burned, twice careful. The Republicans are not going to burn their fingers again, Senator Forbes said very frankly that he wants the State to live on its present income, without any new taxes on sales or incomes. We like such frank talk and fair thinking. And if Meyner doesn't come out with some frank statement of position, in opposition to either or both new taxes, we hope that old spirit of twenty years ago will inspire the voters of New Jersey to throw out the wasters.

One Man's Opinion

It's Hard To Believe We And Britain Really Have Restored Pre-Span Trade And Harmony Over A Few Cups of Tea

By Ralph Eric Helms

If you believe what you read in the official communiques, the Bermuda meeting of President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan served to restore the old working alliance of Britain and the United States. Apparently they would have us believe that the recent rifts over such little things as the Franco-British invitation of Egypt to attack the Suez Canal are now past and forgotten.

There was a day when a solid front between Washington and London might have made the difference between peace and war in this troubled world. Those days are gone. The world's problems, in these unhappy days, are made in Moscow, and they concern lands and peoples which are far outside the realm of the British Empire and are no longer afraid of the British royal navy.

Then, too, it is hard to believe that by sitting down together in the Bermuda sunshine for tea a few times, the two statesmen could settle all the problems which conflict interests and economic processes have built between ourselves and the British.

Britain has much money invested in the Suez Canal Company. We have huge investments in Arabian oil. Britain would like to close the canal until she gets a cut of the tolls to pay back her investments.

Points Of Discard

We want free movement of oil tankers through the canal and we do not want anything to upset the delicate nerves of those Arabs who just happen to be sitting on top of half of the world's

That's only one problem that, in this "One Man's Opinion," Ike and Harold did not settle or did not come anywhere close to settling at Bermuda. And there are plenty of others.

It is no secret that the two nations have different views on Red China just as they are on opposite sides of the issues regarding an awakened Africa, German unification, NATO, where Britain wants to reduce her military commitments which we would like her to expand and the question of H-bomb and guided missile tests.

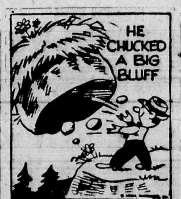

Our problems are not wholly political. They are military and they are economic, as well. Red China causes us much more worry in the field of commerce, however, is that during the past year, and particularly become definite Moscow policy, according to a report filed with the special Senate Committee to Study the Foreign Aid Program.

Before Stalin's passing, the Kremlin made little attempt to boost exports or imports. It was concentrating on the job of making the Soviet Union self-sufficient. But now, particularly, and substantially with the countries of the Middle East and South Asia.

These are the very nations the United States has been seeking to woo with its foreign aid program. The Soviet trade program is still small, by Western standards, but growing. A fourth of the 14 billion dollars in low-interest loans which the Communists have extended to various lands, has gone to Egypt, Syria and Afghanistan.

Leaks In Blockade
Communist China appears to be poking an ever bigger hole in the foreign trade wall which the Western powers have sought to build against the huge frontiers of British trade has been one of the major leaks.

A Ministry of Foreign Trade official in Peking recently announced that, despite the embargo, trade with the non-Communist West in 1956 increased by 26 per cent, compared with the previous year.

This, he stated, to our obvious concern, was a contributing factor in Communist China's ability to fulfill 84.3 per cent of the foreign trade targets set up for the first Five-Year Plan, which still has nearly a year to run.

Actually, there is no way as yet to confirm or to deny this latest Peking claim. What is cited to an extent which is officially announced from Tokyo, reported in a two-way trade increase of 116 per cent, compared with the previous period.

As far back as 1955 Communist China was reported to have a favorable trade balance of some $2,800,000,000. And at that time, in London, it was estimated that Peking's favorable trade balance was increasing year by year.

If there was no embargo on trade with mainland China, according to British business circles, Peking could import between $400,000,000 and $750,000,000 worth of goods a year.

Thus whether one is willing or not to accept Peking's latest figures on trade with the West, there is sufficient evidence available to indicate that a substantial rise has taken place.

One of Peking's most closely guarded secrets, meanwhile, is the exact extent of its trade not only with the West, but with the Soviet Union and the Red satellites in Eastern Europe.

Trade In Billions
Members of a Polish trade delegation who recently visited Peking reported that Chinese foreign trade officials set the total 1956 figure at approximately $4,000,000,000.

The generally accepted figure for Western versus Communist trade in percentage is 20 to 80.

Thus, it can be presumed that Western trade amounts to approximately $800,000,000, while trade with the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe amounts to about $3,200,000,000.

Poland itself has just concluded an agreement, providing for a two-way trade with Communist China amounting to a yearly total of about $350,000,000.

And East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Yugoslavia and the other satellites reported to account for another $500,000,000.

Thus trade between Communist China and the Soviet Union—bearing out the unknown factor of Soviet military assistance—would come to about $2,650,000,000 yearly.

All of these figures are naturally nebulous and subject to fluctuation.

Embargo Chiefly Military

The principal point of significance, however, is that even all owing for some correction they show clearly that our embargo is not as tight an instrument of demarcation as might be expected or even desired.

The embargo continues to deprive Communist China of imports from the West of items considered to be of potential use in Communist China's military effort, notably the heavy industry category.

But as Western economic analysts frequently point out, in an economy which is as backward as that of mainland China, a shipload of Japanese cement may be as strategic as an East German rolling mill. If it releases limited foreign exchange, capital investment, and technical know-how for other tasks.

Another facet of Western trade with Communist China is an announcement in London that Britain has lifted the ban on exports to North Korea.

North Korea, in other words, would be placed on the same footing as Communist China, eligible to receive from British producers any and all goods, not specifically prohibited by the international embargo.

This may well prove extremely valuable, not only to North Korea but to Communist China as well. For North Korea has been suffering, economically, from the inability of the other Communist countries to provide it with commodities necessary to achieve economic rehabilitation.

North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung's trip through Eastern Europe and the satellites last summer was aimed chiefly at getting a bigger slice of the Communist aid pie. But day after day, including his own, the mission resulted in a lowering of Communist aid rather than any increase.

This has left Communist China as the main economic bulwark for North Korea. And inasmuch as Communist China apparently has more steeling to spare than it has commodities to spare, Peking could be expected to welcome an influx of British products into its neighboring ward.
