

Belleville Man Goes For Swim; Is Killed By Boat Propeller

Harold Gramp, 28, of 10 Hornblower Avenue, was killed Monday when he was struck by the propeller of a 60-horsepower outboard motor while he was swimming off the beach at Lake Hopatcong.

The victim was identified by his wife, Joan, after 15 inspectors conducted an all-night investigation to determine his identity. The couple were married four months ago. Gramp told police her husband had been a strong swimmer.

Chief Inspector Ray Louf said the victim's possessions were the things through which his identity was learned. They included a set of car keys, a wrist watch and a wedding ring. The victim's car was found on Brooklyn Road, a quarter of a mile from Lake Hopatcong State Park.

Louf stated that the craft passed over the man and the propeller struck him in the arm and chest.

The blade cut through his ribs and lungs.

The boat operator, Richard D. Paul, 21, stated he had seen Gramp and swerved to avoid him. The accident occurred midway between Point Pleasant and King Cove.

Complete Investigation

Peter J. Gannon, chief of the State Bureau of Navigation, ordered Paul's operator's license revoked immediately pending "a complete investigation" of the accident.

Louf said that Paul was in a state of shock. When told his license was revoked, Paul stated, "I don't think I'd drive again any way." Paul was operating a 16-foot boat owned by William R. Egan of Devon Road, Essex Fells.

Gramp operated a typewriter repair business at his home. Louf said that he was swimming in the navigation zone where power boats normally cruise.

A boat parade was held at Lake Hopatcong last Sunday to inaugurate "Safe Boating Week."

ITT Holds Unique Labor Lab

A unique Workshop in Labor Statistics to provide industrial relations personnel with a better understanding of material available to them from the Bureau of Labor Statistics, was just completed at ITT Laboratories in Nutley. The workshop was held during June.

The Workshop consisted of four sessions and was conducted by staff members of the Mid-Atlantic Regional Office of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, in U. S. Department of Labor.

The first meeting was opened by Herbert Binnsstock, Acting Regional Director of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, who joined with Chester E. Johnson, Vice President and Director of Industrial Relations and Security at the Laboratories, in welcoming the participants.

According to Mr. Johnson, the primary objective of the Workshop was to develop a better understanding among members of his staff as to the materials and services which are made available to industry by the Bureau.

The first session covered the "Wages and Industrial Relations Program" of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, and was discussed in a talk by Frederick W. Mueller, Regional Wages and Industrial Relations Analyst of the Bureau.

Julian Leiber, president of Local 400, International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, AFL-CIO, which represents bargaining-unit employees at the Laboratories, attended the session as a guest of the company.

Future meetings covering various Bureau programs will be: "The Prices and Cost of Living Program," "The Manpower and Employment Statistics Program" and "Productivity Statistics and Other Programs."

Times Survey Shows Clara Maass Users Favor Making Belmont Ave. 2-Way Street

Sullivan To Meet With Officials From Hospital, County On Road

Harry Sullivan, Commissioner of Public Safety, is meeting at noon today (Thursday) at Clara Maass Hospital with hospital officials and possibly members of the Essex County Board of Freeholders to discuss problems involved in making a portion of Belmont Avenue a two-way street.

Belmont Avenue is one-way leading to the parking lots at Clara Maass. In order to get back to Franklin Avenue going toward the heart of Belleville or Nutley, motorists must take a roundabout route, traveling at least a mile more than necessary if Belmont were a two-way street and could be used for exit to Franklin Avenue.

Commissioner Sullivan said he had been working on the problem for some time and had asked for help from the Freeholders. Sullivan said he could open the street to two-way traffic and wanted to avoid "chaotic conditions" which would occur. The Commissioner said he was studying the "flow of traffic into the street" if it were made two-way.

Sullivan said that if the street were to be made two-way without taking safety precautions, there would be accident hazards because of increased flow of traffic, the narrowness of the street and the fact that Franklin Avenue, which Belmont exits into, has fast-flowing traffic.

Before converting Belmont Avenue to a two-way street, Sullivan declares, a traffic light would have to be installed at Belmont and Franklin Avenue to control the flow of traffic in and out of Belmont. The light, Sullivan says, would probably have to be synchronized with that at Mill and Franklin Streets.

Also a widening of the throat of Belmont Avenue would be necessary, possibly through the extension of the City of Newark, which owns the southern strip of land at Franklin and Belmont.

Another plan, says Sullivan, was discussed by County Engineer Curtis Cowell before his recent retirement. This envisioned the extension of Belmont Avenue into Brookbrook Park at which time the existing outlet from the Brookbrook Park extension into Franklin Avenue, opposite the Andrew Jurgens Plant, would be closed.

The latter exit is a hazardous one, Sullivan declared, because the view of the emerging motorists is obscured by shrubbery which lines the curb on Franklin Avenue.

This last step would require the permission and co-operation of the Essex County Park Commission.

Says Mr. Sullivan, "I feel that since a Sunday was added in the town of Bloomfield, Bloomfield Avenue by cutting a road through the park, there should be no hindrance on the part of the Park Commission."

World Conquest Street

Mr. Sullivan said that part of the fear he had in making Belmont a two-way street would be its attraction of motorists seeking to get to the County Jail on Franklin Street and North Sixth Street. It also would be an outlet for traffic moving from the Brookbrook Park extension of the Garden State Parkway.

Sullivan said he had ridden over a road Sunday and still felt the street too narrow.

Sullivan asserted he wanted to get the approval of the Hospital Board of Trustees, whom he was wanted to eliminate the condition.

Situation Called Intolerable

Crosby Hine, who is a member of the Clara Maass Board of Trustees and chairman of the Building and Grounds Committee, told Sullivan that the situation concerning the one-way street at Belmont Avenue was "intolerable."

He declared that as far as a signal light was concerned, it would be a "very good thing." Signals are not impossible, he asserted.

Mr. Hine went on that "every time we tackle it" the situation

In last week's issue, The Times presented graphic evidence of inconvenience caused hundreds of visitors and employees at Clara Maass Hospital who had to use long roundabout routes to go back toward the heart of Belleville and Nutley rather than the direct route via Belmont Avenue, presently designated as one-way street going into the parking area at the hospital.

Use of Belmont Avenue for exit purposes, as well as for entrance would eliminate at least a mile, if the extra travel.

This week, The Times has followed up the first article, questioned visitors and employees at the hospital and others as to their opinions on the one-way street.

Favor Two-Way

Readers will note that the overwhelming feeling of those questioned by The Times was in favor of turning Belmont Avenue into a two-way street because of the inconvenience and frustration caused by the long exit route.

For example, a link of 116 Conover Avenue, Nutley, has occasion to use the street every working day.

Mr. Link, a registered nurse at Clara Maass, about eight miles in the morning to get to work. Going home at night, it takes her 15 minutes.

The added time is caused by the increased length she must travel, as well as the stop streets and the increased traffic.

"I think they should make it a two-way street," Mrs. Link says of Belmont Avenue, noting also that a signal light should be installed at the intersection of Belmont and Franklin Avenues.

Volunteer Worker

Mrs. Alice Holwey, a volunteer worker with more than 3,000 hours of duty with the Clara Maass Auxiliary, declares, "I live right here in North Newark and have to go all the way round to get home. They should make Belmont Avenue two-way."

Mrs. Holwey added she gets calls from people asking directions on how to get to the hospital. She also is asked instructions on how to get back, and the going, she says, gets "pretty tough."

Town Is Paid $1 A Year For Signs

The town of Belleville is paid $1 a year for allowing United Advertising to place five signs on the perimeter of the Belleville Police Pistol Range.

This was explained to The Belleville Times in a statement by Herbert Burns, assistant general manager of United Advertising in Newark.

Location of the signs has been a controversy in recent weeks, caused by the alleged by John Bryner Moore of the Passaic Valley Citizens' Planning Association, that Harry J. Sullivan, Belleville Commissioner of Public Safety, was employed by United Advertising.

Sullivan has answered that the signs were placed before his term as Commissioner of Public Safety, and further that he is not employed by United Advertising, but by the Outdoor Advertising Association of New Jersey, of which United Advertising is one of 45 members.

Sullivan also said that Moore was aware that he (Sullivan) worked for Outdoor Advertising, since both he and Moore had appeared at a meeting before the Belleville Police Pistol Range.

On the issue of the $1 arrangement between United Advertising and Belleville, Herbert Burns, assistant general manager of United Advertising, has issued the following statement:

"The lease was executed on July 11, 1949, between Louis A. Noll, director for the town

Mr. Hood's Well-Behaved Fifth Grade Is Commended by Hudson River Day Liner

Mr. Hood's Fifth Grade Aboard The Hudson River Day Liner

"They're saying so much about juvenile delinquents, I thought I'd bring this down and see if I could get it in the paper. It makes the children look good and they are good."

These are the words of Leo V. Hood, fifth grade teacher at School 3 on Cortlandt Street who proudly showed the Belleville Times a letter he had received from the Hudson River Day Liner Company referring to members of his class who had taken a photo of the children on the boat.

The 16 children and three parents attended the class day activities. They also visited Central Park Zoo.

The parents were Mrs. Kitty

Haley, Mrs. Myrt Augustowicz and Mrs. Sue Carey.

Mr. Hood has been in the Belleville school system for 23 years. He has taught at School 10 and School 9 as well as School 1.

Asked how he handled his children to make them the subject of such fine letters of commendation, he replied: "With kindness and with sternness."

He went on to say that he did not apply equal parts of the two, but that kindness and affection than sternness and only applied the latter when it was absolutely necessary.

WINNING VOLLEYBALL SQUAD: Members of the School 5 Volleyball team were undefeated in season's

Ann Hodgson, Jacqueline Buzbank, Sharon Jones, Angela Serio and Geraldine Leonardis.

One-Way Solution In Sight?

The story in today's issue that Commissioner Harry Sullivan will meet at Clara Maass with hospital and County officials to discuss the possibility of alleviating the condition created by the one-way stretch of Belmont Avenue indicates that a solution should be on the way.

The solution is long overdue. The condition, as it exists now, has caused much too much inconvenience to too many persons, both employees of the hospital and visitors, who must take a long circuitous route in order to get back toward the heart of Belleville or Nixley, whereas if proper provision had been made for a two-way street at Belmont instead of the one-way as now exists, the exit could have been made at a distance of some 200 feet, rather than the mile plus motorists must now travel.

Problems there are, and patience has been the order of the day; but the time has come for action. The County has declared it is up to the town to make the street two-way. Belleville can do it, and we are sure they will.

We have heard that safety of the motorists was a consideration, and we agree that this aspect should certainly be covered in planning for a more convenient exit from the hospital grounds.

With this in mind, Belleville — and Nixley — residents will be watching for action on the part of Belleville officials to see the change made.

It should have been made long ago.

Credit Where Credit Is Due

Elsewhere in this issue is a story relating to promptness and efficiency of the town ambulance manned by the Belleville Fire Department.

This "promptness and efficiency", both to getting the ambulance to the scene and the administration of oxygen, resulted in the saving of a woman's life.

This work should not go unrecognized, and deserves the praise of the local community.

Clean Up Belleville

Belleville, in French, means beautiful city. Unfortunately over the years the appearance of this town has been considerably dragged down because of careless handling of the sanitation ordinances.

The Women's Club of Belleville ought to be commended for standing up before the Board of Commissioners meeting last week and asking for stricter enforcement of existing town ordinances "to enhance the appearance and sanitary conditions of Belleville."

The Women's Club also charged that leaving garbage containers uncovered over the weekend is unsightly and dangerous to public health. Is there any reason why this must continue?

It is certain that once this matter has been brought to the attention of the Board, the Commissioners will take prompt action to beautify the town and preserve health standards endangered by thoughtless habits.

Safety For The Fourth

Nearly fifty million motorists will be taking to the road over the Fourth of July weekend. Some will not return alive. Thousands more will return eventually, but it will be a long and painful route by way of the country's busy hospitals.

The Institute for Safer Living of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company estimates a high 470 highway deaths over the three day holiday weekend.

The principal reason, according to the Institute, is that there are thousands more cars and drivers on the road than a year ago. Many of the new drivers taking to the road during the past 12 months lack the skill, caution and experience to keep them out of trouble in highly congested traffic.

A large share of holiday traffic accidents, actually have their beginning well before the victims leave home, the Institute asserts. Here's why:

- (1) Lack of proper trip planning, and failure to allow enough time for reaching destinations and returning.
- (2) Failure to allow for adverse weather or other driving conditions.
- (3) Drinking before or during the trip.
- (4) Failure to put the car in top operating condition, especially tires, brakes, headlights and windshield wipers.
- (5) Starting the trip tired or in below-par physical condition (holiday driving requires top physical reactions and alertness).
- (6) An upset mental condition on the part of the driver such as; anger, depression, lack of patience and the like.

So start your personal safety campaign well ahead of your holiday drive. It will go far toward helping you to avoid the fate of the unfortunate. And for double insurance against accidents, plan to drive every mile at moderate speeds, in keeping with road traffic and weather conditions.

The Times wishes you a happy, safe holiday and hopes you will be reading our pages next week.

New Country

She woke to find that snow had fallen over the bleak world she had known. Stepping beyond her drifted doorway, she found each tree and bush and stone, each house on the once familiar road, had lost its old identity. It was a land transformed, outside the margins of her memory. And when the sun came out the field shimmered and shone horizon-wide. In the new country now revealed weed-crowns were snowflakes magnified. Somewhere beneath lay beaten grass, mouldered flowers and frozen clay, as she explored another land not hoped for yesterday.

Letters To The Editor

My Dear Mr. Editor: Many Bellevilleites have searchingly inquired of me what occasioned my absence of Letters to the Editor or news copy regarding any public stand on pressing local problems coming before the local Board of Commissioners. Some erroneously concluded disinterest on my part, this being exactly the design intended by those who conceived the sinister plot in collaboration with a prostituted press — that suppressed news and kept from the public the militant public opposition to faulty administration and costly misrule. I have persistently presented. Public records establish my faithful "watchdog" attendance and activity along the same lines I have continually planned for the past several years. Yet, nay a comment about it in the local newspaper. Why?

Only now with a change in ownership of the Belleville Times-News and a complete housecleaning of the politically prejudiced staff that played along with the professional politicians in town hall can the story be told.

Up to the present when Mr. Frank A. Orecchio bought out the Times-News, Belleville has been without an impartial, objective news publication. The above paragraph reflects the views of Mayor Padula, who admits to being its agent of rein and is subtly, it seems, employed to build up the Mayor's colleagues and programs and knock down his opponents. The Times-News, long wallowing in troubled financial waters, never took kindly to antagonizing the hand that fed them, the commissioners who placed the legal notices and the costly full page ads that John Q. Citizen pays for when submitted by a Commissioner who wants to propagandize his record. It is not uncommon to find secretaries of Commissioner's political organizations working side by side with "brainwashing" cheap, impressionable help.

With Orecchio's helmship, surely this odious role of the Times-News will be corrected and we may expect a civic minded objective publication that fairly and impartially presents both sides of all news stories as a newspaper should. Then, once again, mayhaps, our local citizens may be accorded an opportunity to learn what the opposition to our closely-knit, smooth operating commissioners have to say, both at public meetings of the town commission and in letters sent to the paper.

Too long have unprincipled repugnant policies on the part of both designing politicians and newspaper personnel prevented the open, fair presentation of ALL sides of local news to reach the readers.

The Belleville Times-News under new ownership with legitimate newspaper personnel steeped in the accepted tradition of an impartial, objective coverage of all the news fit to print will be a welcome and needed institution within our community, one that indubitably will lend to its growth and improvement. May I be permitted to wish it well in the furtherance of these lofty objectives.

Respectfully submitted, James R. Golden

PROMPT WORK SAVES WOMAN

"Prompt and efficient" response of the town ambulance manned by the Belleville Fire Department was instrumental recently in saving the life of Mrs. N. E. Bertl of Belleville.

The following letter was sent to Harry J. Sullivan, Commissioner of Public Safety, by Mrs. Bertl:

Dear Commissioner:

Through you let me express my appreciation for the prompt and efficient response of the Town ambulance manned by the Belleville Fire Department, and the police patrol car to the emergency call to my home on Wednesday, June 24th at about 8:30 p.m.

The prompt and efficient operation of the ambulance men in administering oxygen to my wife was instrumental in saving her life.

Both the Fire Department and the Police Department, under your jurisdiction, are a credit to any community.

Other officials recently appointed were Herman Hoffman, entertainment chairman; Alex Weiss, membership chairman; John Rapp, publicity chairman; Fred Holland, sick and benevolence chairman and Elmer Peterson, house committee chairman.

Consisting of 75 members the Retired Men's Club is a non-sectarian organization which does not require the payment of dues. The only requirement is that a gentleman be retired.

On Wednesday mornings the club has a non-regular meeting at the Festsmithe Presbyterian Church, Little and Union Avenues. All retired men are invited to attend.

Kiwanis Club Holds Second Annual Picnic

The second annual picnic of the Belleville Kiwanis Club was held recently at the Belleville Pistol Range.

Guests from Newark, Bloomfield and other nearby towns attended.

Consensus after the affair was that it was "another fine day for a picnic."

The standing of the teams through June 28 is as follows:

AMERICAN LEAGUE
Chippers	W 10 L 1
Knobs	4 5
Acers	4 6
Bonems	2 9

NATIONAL LEAGUE
Cube	W 7 L 1
Giants	4 5
Yan-ees	4 7
Doflers	1 9

The schedule as presently set up has games listed through June 28. The Belleville Little League will take part in the Fourth of July celebration with a double header showing two American League teams and two National League teams. The time of those games cannot be found elsewhere in the paper in that the plans of the Independence Day celebration committee are not known to the writer at this time.

Belleville Little League plans to continue the league scheduled activities up through July 18, with the period July 13 through 18th being used for rescheduling of games that were postponed earlier in the season.

This is an innovation over previous years in that in the past local activities had been stopped two weeks prior to the Independence Day celebration to allow for formation and practices of All Star delegations, from both leagues.

This decision was made by the Little League men in that they felt preference should be given to the activity on a local level over that of the All Star competition.

Boys May Still Sign for Swim Club

Those who would like to register in the Essex County CYO Swim Club for season membership and have not yet done so may register when the club opens its season at the Seton Hall University pool on Monday, June 28th.

Thereafter, only daily and weekly registrations will be open. If you are already announced by the CYO, however, only season members will be eligible for the daily swimmer classes leading up to Red Cross club.

The club is open to boys between the ages of 10 and 14. This year it will be directed by James Pether, Seton Hall University swimming coach. Members will have the use of the Seton Hall pool daily, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to noon for eight weeks.

Classes will be held for beginning, intermediate and advanced swimmers. Culmination of the season will be a swimming meet with events for each class and medals or the first three finishers in each event.

Youngsters who have not already registered will be required to know proof of a medical examination before being accepted for membership.

Legion's Team New Opponent Is Montclair

The Belleville American Legion Baseball team will meet with the Montclair team on July 4 at 1 p.m. at Municipal Stadium. This will be the final game of the first half of the season.

A playoff game will be scheduled between the two winning teams of the two seasons at the end of the second season.

The club has had a poor season to date, however, the team feels that the second half will prove that the club is much stronger than the record shows. The last two outings seem to prove this.

Belleville John Kay expressed disappointment over the poor attendance at home games. Kay stated that he is over the opinion that more fans "rooting for the boys" will give them added incentive that they need to become a standout. "Let's help the boys on to the second half championship," he declares.

The official starting time of the game is 1 p.m.

An Address By Lansing P. Shield

"What Do We Need For Economic Survival?"

(Publisher's Note: This is the second of three installments of an address delivered by Lansing P. Shield at the 11th Annual New Jersey Business Conference held recently at Rutgers University, New Brunswick. We believe his message, "What Do We Need For Economic Survival?" presents such an intelligent appraisal of the problems confronting us today that each word of the message should be of interest to our readers.)

Second of Three Articles

It is hard for us to realize that millions of people in countries undergoing great social and economic changes now consider us aligned with reactionary forces. As our liabilities are overpublicized and overplayed both by our friends and our enemies, these millions doubt the intrinsic worth of our economic system and question whether it will survive.

It is any wonder that our national image is marred when headlines around the world read, "3,600,000 Unemployed in U.S., New Low Since December.

1957" (that's more than the total population of some of the underdeveloped countries), "Mob Lynches Negro in Mississippi" (foreign newspapers don't bother to point out it was the first lynching in four years), "Strikes Threaten to Paralyze Hospitals," "Inflation Weakens U.S. Economy."

A worried citizen who had been reading too many headlines went to a doctor for a checkup. After a thorough exam, the doctor said, "You're as sound as a dollar." The patient said, "Gosh, Doc, I didn't know I was that bad off!"

When we find ourselves in a defensive position, we might ask ourselves questions like these: Are we businessmen assuming our share of the responsibility for strengthening our economic formula or are we too preoccupied with beating last quarter's profits? Of course, that's important, too.

Are we moving fast enough in eliminating weaknesses in our own businesses? For example, are we prepared to move faster in the direction of a true business democracy in which employees become partners through stock ownership or sharing profits or both? (That may be the only language solution of our labor problems.)

Have we the courage to fight monopolistic labor tactics rather than take the expedient way out? Are we prepared to take a more active part in government? Or, to sum up, as dealers in commodities and securities, are we also prepared to discharge our responsibilities as dealers in human security and human freedom?

Some of our most serious liabilities lie in another important segment of our economy. Even that mythical figure, the man in the street, is beginning to understand that the greatest single threat to our economic system is the short-sighted philosophy of some of our labor leaders.

Where there is no regard for a relationship between productivity and wage increases, when strikes are called in callous disregard of public health and welfare, when the philosophy becomes prevalent that "we'll get ours regardless of its effect on the business or social community," then our system begins to fall apart.

Rising trade-even prices, loss of world markets, foreign competition that we can't even meet in our own domestic markets are the signals of the approaching storm.

Economic storms breed in a climate of unbalanced budgets, wage-price thrusts and unfavorable trade balances.

Industry and Labor Must Work as a Team

The philosophy of more pay for less work is being carried to a point where we are dividing up something we haven't got (and it may not be long before Moscow is saying, "We planned it that way.")

We are late in facing up to these liabilities that mar the effectiveness of our economic formula. It may be that we need stronger unions, but unions which get their strength through discharging their responsibilities to society as a whole. It may be that industry-wide bargaining, strike insurance, and legislation should be the means of striking a better balance between industry and organized labor. One definite conclusion may be drawn: we need desperately a greater will to fuse the interests of economic groups into the common objective of promoting the real welfare. This is the real core of our domestic problem if we are to preserve our institutions against the world-wide challenges they now face.

Our form of society, shaped around a capitalistic system, places primarily on business the responsibility of finding solutions for economic problems. While the government is in a unique position to promote a balance between divergent economic interests, you and I and thousands of business leaders should take a major share in shaping an economic system that will insure its survival. Politicians are the mouthpieces of their constituents. Their constituents, for the most part, work for us. What we do either in the public interest or otherwise, sooner or later will be reflected in Washington or the State Capitol. How fast and how well, also, largely depends upon us.

We are reaching the point where industrialists and labor must subordinate their short-term selfish interests if they want our economic system to survive. Either we start hanging together or we'll hang separately.

On the grounds that it is not the function of government, some of our leaders in Washington appear to be reluctant to make an all-out effort to bring industry leaders and organized labor closer together. The relationship between management and labor in this country reminds me of the relationship between manufacturers and retailers which may be found in some countries in Europe. Apparently there is a strong antagonism between these two European groups because they believe their interests are divergent.

While in this country, manufacturers and retailers, for the most part, work closely together for the reason that they realize one cannot be prosperous without the other. Industry and organized labor are equally interdependent. They must work together as a team; if either is to remain strong.

Need for a National Council
Up to now, government, management and labor have had no common meeting place where attempts can be made to close ranks against our common enemy—where conflicting interests may be examined in an atmosphere other than that of an emergency.

A possible first step toward a solution is the formation of a National Council appointed by the President, composed of forward-looking leaders in government, labor and industry. This seems like a logical step in breaking down the hostility between economic groups and promoting understanding. Similar Councils at the State level might well implement the efforts of the National Council.

In our own State, steps are being taken under the leadership of our Governor to move in this direction. These are only first steps, but we can only start from where we are and there is a pressing need for action.

But a formula for survival embraces more than correcting some of the basic weaknesses in our economic structure here in our country. It must embrace the world. In this hot economic war now being fought on two fronts—here and abroad—we seem to be doing even more poorly abroad than at home.

Let's take international trade as a measure of our effectiveness. We're coming off second best in every brush with Russia and with most of the industrialized nations of the free world. The excess of U.S. exports of goods and services, excluding military aid, over imports dropped from $300,000,000 in 1957 to $200,000,000 in 1958 (over 50%). The '57 figures were affected slightly by the Suez crisis so the comparison is not entirely valid. And this decline in our trade balance is continuing in 1959.

Our failures in the market places of the world cannot be ascribed solely to rising costs, would have had to be held. There would be final defeat and the final decision would not be clear-cut. While Russia is capturing markets, we are in committee. The first cannot have been designed in Washington. You know the definition of a camel—it's a horse designed by a committee.

Nor do you win a war by legislation or legislative hearings. We have many dedicated men in Washington but their efforts are nullified through lack of central direction, overlapping jurisdiction and insufficient authority. Under the present system—or lack of it—planners are afraid to make commitments. They are not sure of their authority or where they stand because Congress controls the purse strings on a year to year basis.

Steps in the direction of remedying this situation are:

Business as usual and government as usual have place in unusual times.

But measures such as these just mentioned, in themselves do not go far enough. A system, after all, the wage-price spiral is not a U.S. phenomenon. It will be found in most of the industrialized countries of Europe.

Anti-Burglary Week Stresses Safety Rules

Police Chief George R. Spatz, announced today that the week of June 28th through July 4th is being observed as Burglary Prevention Week in Belleville. This is not just another "week," emphasized the Chief. It is being held in conjunction with a state-wide program in anti-burglary sponsored by the New Jersey State Association of Chiefs of Police to educate the public on how they can help reduce burglary losses.

"Burglary 'Big Business'"
And, Chief Spatz went on to say, burglary losses are "big business" for some people. During 1958, approximately 650,000 burglaries were reported across the country, or about 10 burglaries were actually committed every hour, every day of the year.

It's an alarming figure, Chief Spatz says, but even more alarming he goes on, is the fact that many of these burglaries could have been prevented if the public had taken just a little more interest in their personal protection.

"People too often leave their homes in an excited, weekend, or vacation without a thought given to the precautions recommended by their police department," Chief Spatz said. "Windows are left open and keys left under the door mat or in the car, and even worse, lights are left burning 24 hours a day. Alarms that take a burglar—this place is a nut over."

War Two-Fold
The war against burglary is two-fold, prevention and apprehension by the homeowner before they occur and apprehension of the burglar who dare commit the crime. Apprehension, of course, is the continuing job of the police department, but the primary responsibility for prevention must rest squarely upon the shoulders of the homeowner. Only with his full cooperation can the war against the ever-increasing burglary rate be successful," Chief Spatz declared.

To do your part in this battle of wits against the burglar, Chief Spatz has recommended these simple precautions be taken by every one when leaving their home or apartment:

1. Close and lock all outside doors and windows, including basement porch and garage. Use pin tumbler cylinder locks on all outside doors.
2. Close your garage doors. An empty garage with the door open is a good sign that no one's home.
3. Do not tell friends, neighbors or work associates of your valuable possessions you have around the house. In fact, never leave valuables lying around the house. Place them in a safety deposit box.
