

RIGHT TO SEE DURKEE'S FILES UPHELD

Di Ruggiero Doesn't Need Board's OK

School board member Dr. Frank Di Ruggiero was within his legal rights in requesting letters written by relieved duty superintendent Frank M. Durkee during the 1962 presentation to the Grand Jury against the school board.

So ruled board attorney Max N. Schwartz at a special meeting Monday night when board member Mrs. Norma McCool charged Dr. DiRuggiero with "going on a witch-hunt" and acting in an "unethical and unworthy manner."

County superintendent William S. Twichell also upheld DiRuggiero's right to see letters written by Durkee to Twichell and the State Commissioner of Education during the most recent in-board.

The board's handling of Durkee also drew fire from the citizen's side of the room. Allan H. Crisp, co-chairman of the "Fair Play Committee," submitted copies of petitions bearing the signatures of 1,000 residents opposed to the investigation and "suspension-with-pay" of the superintendent. Crisp read a strongly worded letter criticizing the board majority.

Acting superintendent Michael Rosamilia said the search of Durkee's files by Durkee's secretary did not turn up any correspondence about the Grand Jury probe.

Mrs. McCool objected because she said the board by majority vote had previously denied her access to documents necessary to the conduct of her office. Board member Richard H. Drake, aligned with Mrs. McCool on the pro-Durkee bloc, said other board members than Mrs. McCool had also been denied access to documents.

Dr. DiRuggiero defends his actions by saying, "as an indicated member of that board I had the right to know what was in his files concerning the investigation."

Referring to a previous request to see Durkee's correspondence on the dual vs. unit control issue, Di Ruggiero implied there must be other areas in which Durkee was guilty of insubordination if the board. The superintendent's "suspension - with - pay" was based on his alleged attempts to frustrate the board's decision to remove business operations from Durkee administrative control.

Mrs. McCool asked, "why is there a pretense of an impartial investigating team if the board is going to conduct its own investigation?" No word has been received from the National Education Association's Commission on Rights and Responsibilities on whether it will prove Durkee's conduct as the anti-Durkee majority has invited it to do.

Copies of the "Fair Play Committee" petitions were also sent to State Education Commissioner Frederick S. Raubinger. Fair Play co-chairman Crisp told the board his group's letter was not signed by co-chairman and former board president Mrs. Edward F. Rochau because she was on vacation. The letter addressed to board president Ernest S. Arvidson said:

"On behalf of one thousand citizens, taxpayers and parents, we submit the attached petitions in opposition to the high-handed actions of the majority bloc of the Belleville Board of Education, consisting of yourself, Nicholas Juliano, Frank DiRuggiero and Rocco Saleetta."

"With summer in full swing it is remarkable for so many to 'stand up and be counted.' However, this response is indicative of the degree of opposition which the majority's policies have aroused during the six months they have been in power."

Nab Man For Dope

Belleville police arrested Joseph P. Cofone, 19, of 60 Passaic Avenue, Niles, on August 22 and charged him with unlawful possession of a hypodermic needle and narcotics.

He and a juvenile were taken into custody by patrolman Harry Sullivan and Arnold Thompson. The juvenile was released in the custody of his parents.

CLASSROOM VISIT — A three-woman team from the Federal Office of Economic Opportunity picked Belleville's Project Head Start at random as one of three such projects in the state visited to check on Head Start's accomplishments. Shown in the School Nine classroom (seated) Mrs. Vera Vinogradoff and Miss Fan Brooke, and (standing) Miss Vera Shippen. Federal Evaluators Praise Key Head Start Volunteers

By LAWRENCE E. HAYTER

Three woman evaluators from federal poverty headquarters who visited the local Head Start program here Friday praised the participation of a few key volunteers for making the local preschool program a success.

Their comments came when Mayor Nuncio R. Pico noted that there was a "lack of town-wide interest" in the project to prepare youngsters from low-income families for kindergarten next month.

The fact-finding group of consultants to the federal Office of Economic Opportunity picked Belleville's Head Start class at random as one of three such projects to see on a week-long study in the state.

People like the caterer who is supplying a morning snack and lunch at a loss, the taxi-driver who visited the homes of the children on his own time at night before taking them to Head Start school for the first time, and the members of the local Youth Employment and Evaluation Commission, who spent many hours recruiting the youngsters, all contributed to the project.

The evaluation team also found some areas which could be improved. Particularly in training the teaching staff before the program begins and involving more parents in Head Start activities.

Head Start teacher Miss Barbara Caputo reported that her pupils' biggest accomplishment was improved discipline and manners. "Most of them didn't have 'please' and 'thank you' in their vocabularies. Now they use them all the time, and even insist on their teacher using 'please' when I ask them to do something."

Like all classes, the youngsters have made varied progress. Some have learned to print their names and recognize colors, Miss Caputo reports, while others haven't done much more than learn to get along with others.

Parents have been fairly interested in their youngsters' accomplishments, reports the Head Start teacher. Half of the mothers accepted the invitation to accompany their children to a medical exam which is offered as part of the program.

Attendance "has been wonderful" local poverty officials report, once the program got rolling. There were serious problems with recruiting enough kids to fill the class for the first week and a half.

Traffic Code, Stalled for 18 Months

The 18-month-old omnibus traffic ordinance which affects parking and one-way streets throughout town may finally be headed for the municipal code book.

On Monday night the Town Council introduced a revised version of the ordinance which it initially introduced on Feb. 1, 1964. A public hearing at which there is expected to be some objections is scheduled for Sept. 13.

Revision of the controversial measure followed neighborhood hearings in five parts of town. Residents voiced their objections to the proposal, and some of these were incorporated into a revision made by Frank Rovell, Signal Superintendent.

Rovell said he complied with residents' suggestions wherever they weren't in conflict with state regulations. The revised measure mainly lightens some of the parking restrictions, he said.

Council vote on the ordinance introduction was 4-1, with Councilman James R. Golden casting the negative vote. He termed it "a melange of confusion for the automotive public of this town," and said he hoped "people would leave down in droves" to oppose it.

Re-introducing the ordinance on first reading, instead of adopting it, was necessary, attorney Jack Soriano said, because the revision constituted a substantial amendment, and re-advancing would be necessary.

Besides aiding traffic flow and imposing more parking restrictions, the ordinance is designed to collate present traffic ordinances which are so numerous as to be a "mish-mash," according to Town Manager John R. Burnett.

Also, many current regulations cannot be enforced because of nonconformance to state law, or because signs have come down and never been replaced, Rovell said. He was chairman of a four-man committee which drew the original ordinance.

A meeting tonight (Thursday) is scheduled between the Town Council and the auditing firm, A.M. Hart, following a charge Monday night by Councilman James R. Golden that town officials are not following the auditor's recommendations.

Golden was charging that Hart, or a representative of his firm was not present at Monday's meeting, to answer questions he wanted to pose on a recently-completed town audit.

Receiving by the town's five police cars 13 days before the notified Hart of the meeting, but that at the last minute Hart called Town Clerk Eugene G. Barnett, saying he had another engagement.

The council then agreed to try to have Hart present at a meeting tonight so the questions could be asked.

Golden said he was concerned about identical recommendations on the town audits which kept cropping up year after year. He claimed this showed nothing was being done to correct the situation.

Archbishop To Dedicate Sanctuary

The new contemporary sanctuary of Holy Family Catholic Church completed after two years of construction will be solemnly blessed and dedicated at 10 a.m. Saturday by the Most Reverend Thomas A. Boland, Archbishop of Newark.

Archbishop Boland will celebrate a Solemn Pontifical Mass in the new structure immediately after the dedication ceremony, assisted by leading clergymen of the area.

The new church building is of modern design. It was planned by the architectural firm of De Sina and Pellegrino of New York. General contractor was the Riebold Construction Company.

The new church faces the same direction as its immediate predecessor and is surrounded by ample parking areas. It is built high on the church property and has a large terrace immediately in front.

Music Festival This Saturday For 7 Groups

For the first time in this area, a musical festival will be held on Saturday, August 28, at Passaic Stadium, River Drive, at 5 p.m.

Announcement of the addition of the engagement of the 85-piece Chicago Vanguards was made today by J. Ronald Lynch, president of the Passaic Kiwanis Club, sponsors of the event for the benefit of underprivileged children and welfare agencies in the Passaic-Clifton area.

Lynch, who attended the Kiwanis International Convention last month, stressed the fact that the Passaic club, though small, is the only group in the country, ever to undertake the staging of a junior drum and bugle corps festival.

A program of this magnitude entails many months of hard work from all members. We would greatly appreciate the support of people from this area," he added.

In addition to the Vanguards, competing corps are: Blessed Sacrament, Golden Knights, Newark; Selden Cadets, Selden, L.I.; St. Lucy's Cadets, Newark; Connecticut Royal Lancers, Bridgeport; Fair Lawn Police Cadets; The O.L.P.H., Ridgemen, Brooklyn; and C.W. Townsman, Brookbridge.

Rain date for the music festival is Sunday, August 29, at 8 p.m.

Thousands Use Olympic Park's Swimming Pool
 Thousands are flocking daily to a four-million gallon swimming pool which, after nearly 40 years, still is one of the biggest in the world. The pool at Olympic Park, in Irvington and Maplewood, was constructed in the 20's and is renowned for having water purer than that from North Jersey drinking faucets.
 The mammoth facility rarely reaches capacity attendance, even with this summer's restrictions on home pools. Its water, incidentally, comes from artesian wells on the park's own property.
 Red Cross swimming instruction is given at the pool each morning for an enrollment of more than 1,000 children.
 Olympic will have a new circus bill on Monday, featuring the Three Talons, perch acrobats, Simpson's wild animal act also is on the bill.
 The current free show has the Hildays, an aerial act; Tebor's trained seals; and the Tenness, Australian rope and whip performers.

Conduct Unbecoming A Public Official

It remained for Councilman Robert Westpy to make Councilman James Golden look like the very essence of culture.

At the council meeting Monday Westpy burst out with a raucous "Shut Up Golden!"

Councilman Golden was trying to make a point with his colleagues; he was probably saying things Westpy didn't care too much to hear — and so citizens present were treated to the ill-tempered Westpy command.

With each passing Council meeting

Westpy appears to be hard at work proving to the citizens of Belleville they erred when they elected him to the Council. As a member of the Council Westpy's judgment has never been too good — almost always rubber stamping Mayor Nuncio Pico's requests. Now into public focus Westpy projects his official manners as a subject of discussion.

Westpy's Monday night outburst against Golden certainly comes within the category of conduct unbecoming a public official. F.A.O.

Governor Hughes Is Right

Republican Senate leaders have cancelled a pre-election session of the Senate at which time pending gubernatorial nominations are customarily acted upon.

Governor Hughes' failure to act upon legislation increasing the size of the courts is being used as the GOP excuse in deciding to cancel the traditional mid-summer session to act upon pending gubernatorial nominations.

Ever since this legislative session began, Senator C. Robert Sarcone has blocked the appointment of three judges. One of New Jersey's leading legislative experts, Newark attorney Leon Milmed, counsel to former Governor Alfred E. Driscoll, is a nominee Sarcone refuses to clear for appointment to the judiciary.

Another is Nutley's County Judge John Crane who has been proposed by Governor

Hughes for a seat on the Superior Court. Everybody, even Senator Sarcone, admits both Judge Crane and Attorney Milmed are eminently qualified for the judicial posts in which Hughes wants them to serve.

Governor Hughes takes the position Republican senators should take action on pending nominations before he proposes anymore. We agree completely with Governor Hughes.

The Republican senators should stop playing politics with the judiciary and return to Trenton to confirm both Judge Crane and Attorney Milmed. And if they don't return on their own initiative GOP gubernatorial candidate Wayne Dumont should demand they return to approve the judicial nominations. F.A.O.

That Animal Shelter Again

Last week a Times-News reporter visited the animal shelter maintained by the person who has the contract to pick up stray animals in our community.

A citizen's committee, headed by Mrs. Sally Hood, also made a surprise visit to the shelter about three weeks ago — but he reception accorded our citizens was a little different than the experience published in last week's Times-News by our reporter. The citizens were refused admission, the owner claiming "I can't just let anyone pass through here (the shelter). We have vicious dogs, sick dogs, nice dogs — all kinds of dogs."

Apparently since the citizens visited the Lodi shelter something must have happened to those "vicious dogs, those sick dogs," for they didn't represent an obstacle to our reporter. Now that the vicious and sick dogs are either out of the shelter or in captivity perhaps the citizens may want to make another visit to the shelter they were refused admission to.

No more sick dogs — no more vicious dogs to worry the concerned owner — isn't that wonderful. F.A.O.

Redwoods Forever

Controversies involving commercial use of natural resources tend to become hot, even bitter. Fortunately, however, when all concerned with such a problem are open-minded and reasonable, and honestly seek out a solution that is fair, constructive and in the public interest, the difficulties and differences usually can be ironed out. That seems to be the case with the world famous redwoods of northern California.

The cause of sound redwood conservation has been confused by the fact that here are two distinct species of these trees. One, which attains great age and almost unbelievable girth, is the Giant Sequoia. These are the cathedrals of the forest, and they are among the oldest living things. Virtually all of them are in National Park groves, where they will be reserved for as long as they live.

The coast redwoods, on the other hand, are slimmer and taller. They are among the fastest growing of all trees. They are thus perfectly suited to sustained yield forest management. Under the forest-industry Tree Farm program, new trees are planted, nurtured, and grown to take the place of those which reach marketable size. And endless supply of these trees is thus assured. And so is the economic vigor of the region involved, which is heavily dependent on forest products. In addition, vast tracts of the largest coast redwoods have been set aside for public use — in other words, they are protected for the enjoyment of present and future generations which might otherwise never see these majestic works of nature.

The redwoods will remain, startling the beholder with their grandeur and, at the same time, make their full economic contribution to the civilization of which they have become a part.

Dedication

The sanctuary of the new church is on three levels. The interior is of Italian imported marble. The altar occupies the most prominent place within the sanctuary. It is of one solid block of marble supported by two marble columns, and is arranged so Mass can be said facing the people. A mosaic of the Holy Family is on the rear sanctuary wall. Two side altars, one of the Virgin Mary and the other of St. Joseph, are also within the sanctuary. The altar railing is of marble.

The pews in the body of the church are of solid oak, and the kneelers are aluminum topped by church, and access is by two stair wells, one on either side and leading from the main body of the church. A new liturgical organ has been installed. An exterior bell tower, completely separate from the church building, has been built, and is surrounded by four large bells which are rung electrically. They sound the Angels' every day at 12 noon and at 6 in the evening. Sunday Masses have been of part of whose ceiling is a mosaic, is directly off the vestibule. The new building has ample, modern lighting fixtures, and a complete sound system with microphones at the pulpit, on the altar, at the presiding priest's chair, and at the ambo. It is completely air conditioned.

The stations of the cross are of white Italian marble and were executed in Italy. The stained glass windows were produced domestically and are replete with many symbols of the Faith and quotations from Holy Scripture; they are modernistic in design. The new choir loft can itself accommodate more than 100 persons with ease. It is constructed, as is usual, in the rear of the church, and access is by two stair wells, one on either side and leading from the main body of the church. A new liturgical organ has been installed.

An exterior bell tower, completely separate from the church building, has been built, and is surrounded by four large bells which are rung electrically. They sound the Angels' every day at 12 noon and at 6 in the evening. Sunday Masses have been of Deacons of honor to the Archbishop will be Right Reverend Joseph A. Dooling, pastor of St. Francis Xavier Church in Newark, and Right Reverend Monsignor Walter P. Artoli, pastor of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Church in Jersey City.

Archpriest for the Mass will be Right Reverend Monsignor Vincent P. Coburn, Officials of the Archdiocese. The preacher will be Very Reverend Monsignor John F. David, assistant director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith.

Masters of Ceremonies will be Reverend Theodore V. Bonelli, secretary to the Archbishop, and Reverend Henry M. Naddo, assistant at Holy Family. Deacons of the Mass will be Reverend Francis J. Blake of Holy Family, and Reverend Sylvester J. Livolsi of St. Francis Xavier, Newark. The music of the Mass will be Carlo Rossini's "Missa Choralis," sung by the senior choir of mixed voices.

Editorial on Narcotics Called Irresponsible

To The Editor, Belleville Times: This is the first opportunity I have had to discuss the editorial of your August 5th issue entitled "Anaphy in Narcotics Fight."

This editorial is replete with misinformation and illustrates beyond a reasonable doubt that irresponsible journalism is continuing in Belleville. It is this type of situation which eventually leads to low moral on the part of competent public officials who work without compensation for the improvement of the lot of their fellow citizens.

Let us look at the facts with respect to each irresponsible statement appearing in your editorial.

The first resolution passed by the Citizens Conference Committee on Narcotics (Refer to minutes) was that the Committee would not be used as a political vehicle for any individual and that no news item would be released without the review and consent of the committee. I sponsored this resolution personally since I had dabbled in politics in the past and did not want politics to interfere with the committee work. I think you must agree that the committee has maintained a high non-political standard of deportment.

Your other statement that three individuals never attended a meeting namely the superintendent of schools, the police department's juvenile officer and Public School System's attendance officer, is also false. As a matter of fact, Doctor Durkee not only attended our meetings but gave the committee whole hearted support. Moreover Mr. Marotti attended our meetings and it was agreed that when he could not do so Detective Hugh O'Toole should attend. Therefore in effect Mr. O'Toole is a member of the committee a fact which you apparently did not know since you recommended his appointment.

With respect to Cesar Romano, although you might not have known it his name is one which the committee is seriously considering. However, it must satisfy itself first that Mr. Romano's interest is genuine and not political and therefore the committee intends to interview each interested party prior to recommending his appointment to the council in order that its non-political complexion be preserved.

As the former committee chairman, I was not aware that former Mayor Laterza was intensely interested in Narcotics, since he neither advised me personally nor did any committee member. May I suggest therefore that Mr. Laterza come forward and I am sure the committee will consider recommending his appointment. As a matter of fact despite any past political differences, in the interest of the town, I shall be glad to endorse Mr. Laterza personally if he so desires.

Last but not least, the committee asked that its membership be increased to fourteen members simply because it operates with five sub-committees and needs more competent hands to do a good effective job.

Now, that I am no longer chairman, and cannot be accused of improving my own public image, may I suggest that you give the committee some moral support to continue its outstanding work of the past which has been non-partisan? After much painstakingly recognized by such creditable newspapers as the New York Times and New York World and had promised to see that paragraph articles on the example when school reports.

BECK'S COLUMN

By MAX BECK

The first manufacturer to show the fall model merchandise this year was Admiral. As has been expected, the choice of black and white console sets becomes less every day, while the selection of color TV sets becomes larger. There is quite a selection of portable B/W TV sets of all sizes and colors. You may select a portable from 12" to 21". Of course, it is a misnomer to call the 19" and larger sets "portable." They are much too heavy for many people to even lift, let alone carry. Even a strong man would not want to carry these sets any distance. Still they are called "portable" and we will abide by this. It appears that the smaller sets are, the more vulnerable they become. In order to save weight, too much of what should be in these sets is left out. The result is that they are not putting the "without too much" under prolonged use cause quite some trouble. One has to keep in mind that these small sets are not to be used like the much heavier console models. The better 19" sets have been improved to a considerable degree. Still the old bugaboo, "heat," is always a problem if such a set is used too long. It is a good idea to let them cool off at frequent intervals. Admiral shows many different model color sets. Essentially they are the same as last year. The factory added a tint control for black and white pictures, which is an advantage. You may now choose from 21", 23" and 25" picture tube sizes and a great variety of styles and finishes. Much emphasis is given to the furniture part. The insides are essentially the same as last year. The same goes for the prices, with one notable exception. All across the board, the new sets will not have the burden of the excise tax, which was from about 4% on the cheaper models to about 6% for the higher priced sets. We service what we sell. We have established facilities for their convenience in banking through our 10 offices in Newark, South Orange, North Caldwell and Irvington as well as through postage free "banking-by-mail" that has resulted in savings accounts in every state in the nation and many foreign countries."

ALUMNI FUN — Here is a portion of some 40 former Belleville High School football players who have been working out at Belleville Municipal Stadium in preparation for Sept. 18 tilt. Tickets for the contest, which will star such former standouts as All-Stater Richard Luzzi, may be obtained at Veebee Esso and DeBacco Bros. Sport Center.

Excellent Seats Still Available For Giant-Eagle Classic Saturday

The Philadelphia Eagles will seek its first Jaycee Football Classic victory in facing the formidable New York Giants in Princeton at 2 p.m. Saturday (August 28).

In the fourth renewal of this pre-season grid battle, the Eagles will be in the favorite role as the Giants attempt to rebuild from last year's disastrous season.

Big, Colorful Pre-Game Halftime Shows Planned

A colorful pre-game and halftime show as well as an exciting gridiron battle between the New York Giants and Philadelphia Eagles are in store for fans attending the Jaycee Football Classic at 2 p.m. Saturday in Princeton.

In the entertainment spotlight are New Jersey's Junior Miss, Katherine J. McNabb of Towaco and the national champion Cardinal Dougherty High School band of Philadelphia, Pa. representing the world's largest Roman Catholic high school.

Classic general chairman Richard W. Glenn of Hopewell today reminded pro football fans that although there is less than a week before gametime, "There are still 15,000 excellent seats remaining priced at $5.00 and $3.00."

"Our goal is $15,000 for New Jersey's charities," Glenn said, "and if a capacity crowd attends his year's game we'll make it. The Jaycees have gone all out in providing an exciting, action-packed grid battle and a colorful halftime show to make the year's classic the biggest and best yet," he added.

"Not only do we expect a great game," Glenn said, "but this will be the only chance for Giant fans to see their team in action since the New York Club has announced a complete sellout of the entire seven-game home schedule in 'Ankney Stadium.'"

"The Giants have not scheduled a pre-season home exhibition game this year and they will not begin their home season until October 17."

The situation is nearly the same for Eagles fans. Tickets for the Philadelphia Club's home games will be extremely difficult to obtain due to a large advance sale estimated at nearly 50,000 for Franklin Field.

The 202-member Cardinal Dougherty High School band will perform pre-game ceremonies at 30 p.m.

Under the tutelage of band director Donald J. Coakley and drill master William Quilly, the marching band have won dozens of honors and trophies and have been televised nationally and in the Philadelphia area on numerous occasions.

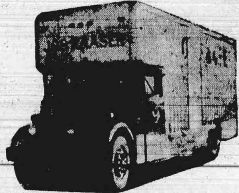

In April the band won first place in the Washington, D.C. National Cherry Blossom Festival Parade. The group is a two-time winner in New York City's St. Patrick's Day Parade and a three-time winner in the LaSalle College Invitational Tournament of Bands.

Newly uniformed in a colorful variation of Great Britain's world-famous Coldstream Guards, the Cardinal Dougherty Band includes 122 musicians, a high-stepping drill team of 61 girls, a 15-man rifle-spinning color guard, three twirling majorettes and a drum major.

The Classic, sponsored by the New Jersey Jaycees, is a benefit game with proceeds going to charity and welfare organizations throughout the Garden State.

Pepsi-Cola is cooperating with the New Jersey Jaycees in sponsoring the fourth annual edition of New Jersey's single sports fund-raising charity event.

Grade Crossing Deaths Under Last Year's Rate

Nineteen lives were lost in New Jersey for vehicle accidents at public grade crossings in New Jersey last year, the New Jersey State Safety Council reports. The toll was eight more than recorded in the previous year. In a total of 58 grade crossing accidents, 43 more than in 1963, 81 persons were injured. The injury toll was 11 more than in 1963.

The end of July this year, eight deaths have been recorded, two less than in the corresponding period of last year. Of the fatal accidents this year five occurred during daylight hours and the weather was clear and paved.

A survey of the accidents last year reveals that 61 per cent of the accidents happened at crossings protected by automatic or manually operated gates, lights, bells, watchmen, or a combination of these methods of protection, and 39 per cent took place at crossings with standard crossing signs.

College officials predict a student body approaching 5,000 by the year 1970.

N.J.'s Lower Milk Prices Saving $55,000,000

A $200,000 study of milk costs has paid off for consumers — some 270 times — in New Jersey. Pete Sandfort of Garden State Farms reported today.

"New Jersey's new milk pricing has saved consumers $54,594,698 in the first 15 months of lower milk prices based on sound economic analyses of costs," said he — not higher — prices for Sandfort, jug milk dairyman who waged a four-year fight to bring consumer milk prices down from among the highest in the nation. Sandfort had friendly words for the new prices, which went into effect in April, 1964, but cautioned that state milk price fixing "must be flexible to permit low-cost milk to be sold in stores, dating from April, 1964.

consumers."

There no longer a question of whether milk controls are constitutional, now that the State Supreme Court has upheld that legal point," he said. "What the state must now do is protect the savings to consumers, and not allow the Court's ruling to be used as an excuse to retain controls, any longer than necessary."

Average Gallon Price

Sandfort said, in a brief report on milk pricing, that consumers have had an average price of 82 cents a gallon for milk purchased in stores, dating from April, 1964.

They have paid a high of 86 cents a gallon in the state. This figure is a low of 76 cents, as shown in the 10 percent that home sales had three years ago, when gallon prices ran as high as $1.20 and $1.30 or some 18 to 20 cents above OMI's Order 64-1 minimums current at that time.

At the average price of 82 cents a gallon now versus the $1.28 price, Sandfort noted, a family of four drinking a gallon of milk a day has saved $167.90 a year.

Sandfort said the savings of $54,594,698 are based on the average prices in Order 64-1 compared to former Order 60-1 prices. Shifts in consumer milk buying from home delivery to stores also are taken into account in calculating the savings.

"No price-fixing scheme is perfect," Sandfort declared. "Order 64-1 is simply the basis for interim controls and sensible pricing soundly based on the milk cost study which Case and Co. of New York made for the state."

"As it always has, Garden State Farms strongly advocates the competitive free enterprise system for milk."

A convention is an excuse for doing the unconventional.
