New superintendent

Dr. John Greed, 45-year-old superintendent of schools in Boonton, poses with his wife, Clara, and daughters Gladys (left) and Maria after being officially named Belleville's new superintendent effective August 1. The Greeds plan to relocate their home in Belleville.

Dr. John Greed, 45-year-old superintendent of schools in Boonton, was unanimously appointed Belleville's new school superintendent Monday by the Board of Education.

Scheduled to replace current superintendent Anthony Greco who will retire this spring, Dr. Greed has been a top level school administrator since 1966, and was selected by the Board from nearly 150 applicants for the position.

Hired at a $36,000 annual salary, the Boonton superintendent will officially begin work here in August, and has agreed to move his home to Belleville by June of 1977. He has been superintendent of schools in Boonton for the past five years.

Prior to that time, Dr. Greed was director of curriculum and superintendent of schools in Florham Park from 1966 to 1971. He served as a principal in the Kinnelon middle school from 1961 to 1966, and was an elementary and secondary school teacher and principal in Linwood, Pa., prior to that.

A Navy veteran and former part time teacher at Fordham University and Seton Hall, Greed earned his Ph.D. from Fordham in 1967. Following undergraduate study at LaSalle College in Philadelphia, he earned his master's degree at the University of Delaware.

The new superintendent has also held numerous community positions, including posts on the Morris County Board of Mental Health and the Florham Park Library Board. He is currently president of the council of superintendents in Morris County.

Dr. Greed is married to the former Clara Carrara of Bloomfield. They have four teenaged children, two of whom attended Monday's Belleville Board meeting.

Though the new superintendent's appointment was unanimous by the Board, the transition was not made without some dissenting comment from one Belleville citizen—a candidate in the upcoming March 9 School Board election.

Peter Paglia, who admitted he is "looking for issues," questioned the necessity of replacing Greco, whose resignation for retirement was accepted a year ago.

"I see, really, no reason for Mr.

Budget is up $1.1M

A tentative $9.3 million '76-'77 school budget was unanimously approved by the Belleville Board of Education Monday, but according to the members, it's already "obsolete."

Though the figures represent a hike of about $1.1 million over last year's, "the budget here tonight is outdated already," said Board member Matthew Pica. Current statewide school funding confusion and the uncertainty of current teacher salary negotiations have left the budget "so tentative it changes from minute to minute," Pica said. According to Board president Richard Mahmarian, the current proposal "is not worthy of discussion."

Most Board members agreed, however, that unless the budget is reduced before final adoption, they will vote against it.

Tentatively, the current expense portion of the budget has been set at $8,931,208, roughly $1 million higher than last year. Capital outlay expenditures are listed at $165,780, about $75,000 higher than last year. The debt service account reflects a decline of over $5,000 from last year.

The amount of school aid to be allocated to Belleville by the State remains an open question, however, as does the status of the largest portion of any school budget—teachers' salaries.

Mahmarian said the chances of reaching a settlement with Belleville's teachers on their new salaries by the February 23 deadline for final budget adoption are "not very good." The Board is proceeding, he said, according to a Public Employee Relations Commission schedule, and is now awaiting a fact-finder's report.

Without a definite teacher salary figure, he said, the Board "can only estimate" the amount of money that will be

Bus hearing is tomorrow

A special Public Utilities Commission hearing on the proposed discontinuance of the No. 15 bus line in Belleville and Nutley will be held tomorrow, 8 p.m. at Nutley Town Hall.

Representatives of Clara Maass Memorial Hospital, the Essex County Geriatrics Center, Belleville's Public Affairs Department, Transport of New Jersey and the Attorney General's office will be present for the discussion.

Originally scheduled for termination next week, according to Vernon Minetti of the PUC, all operations on the 15 line will be continued "until after we have resolved this matter."

"The effect upon public convenience and public necessity" is the main criteria used to determine whether TNJ will be permitted to discontinue service, said Minetti.

School Board field final at six names

The emergence of two more Board of Education nominees last week has expanded the final field to a total of six candidates seeking to open seats in the Newark school teacher, and John A. Caruso, a camera manufacturing company supervisor, both filed prior to the revised school election deadline, joining two incumbents and two other challengers in the escalating campaign.

Following a drawing last Friday in Board of Education headquarters, Caruso has been assigned first position on the ballot, followed by Paglia in second position. Third position will be occupied by challenger Ralph Risoli, Belleville's Town Registrar, while incumbent Board member Caesar Romano has been assigned fourth position. The youngest challenger, 27-year-old Robert Sebbenm drew six spot, followed by incumbent Board president Richard Mahmarian.

Caruso, 54, of Mt. Pleasant Avenue, is a supervisor with the Berkey Camera Company, Keystone Division in Clifton. Like Paglia and Sebben (the two other candidates who filed after the original deadline had passed) Caruso said he is particularly concerned with "resolving the Number Three School issue." The challenger also stresses his independence and his distaste for "mudslinging."

Paramount in Caruso's platform, he said, is Belleville's need for a "realistic" school budget. Noting that voters have rejected 13 budgets in as many years, "I'd like to see a budget where we can get a 'yes' vote for a change," he said.

Caruso has been employed with Berkey Keystone for several years, and was employed 29 years at ITT prior to joining the Clifton firm. A Belleville resident since 1931, he holds an associate degree from Essex County College, and is now working nights on a bachelor's

Ahavath Achim new 'home' for Special Ed offices

Belleville school system's Special Services department now has a temporary home, despite the destruction of its offices in the School Three fire in January.

The Congregation Ahavath Achim has turned over one entire wing of its building at 125 Academy Street to the people who, headed by Dr. David Spelkoman, tend to the needs of handicapped students.

Several churches in town offered facilities to the special education department, but the Ahavath Achim offer was accepted because, according to Spelkoman, "the facilities here are ideal."

Most of the Special Services staff is working from borrowed desks and card-tables since almost all of their office furniture was lost in the fire. Dr. Spelkoman, however, has his own desk. The doctor's office furniture was late in delivery and missed the fire.

Originally, it was believed almost all of the special education records stored at School Three were destroyed. Now, however, Spelkoman estimates 80 per cent of the files escaped the flames.

"I can only describe it as an act of God," said Spelkoman. "Three feet from where the files were kept, the photocopier and several desks were completely destroyed. The outsides of the cabinets were just beginning to blister. It's just a miracle so much was saved."

Spelkoman said he and his staff worked on the files after they were removed from the burnt out building, scrubbing the filing cabinets and thawing out some of the frozen records. As a result, much of the Special Services' work was information in the lost files," said Spelkoman, adding, "but we are still going forward with our work. We don't want any child forgotten though there may be some delay in some cases."

degree in business at Rutgers University, Newark. The Belleville High School graduate is also an active member of the Belleville Italian American Civic Association.

An advocate of "a constructive campaign" and a well-informed public, Caruso and his wife, Mary, are the parents of two grown children.

Paglia, 54, a resident of Malone Avenue, is "diametrically opposed to split sessions," he told the Times/News, and termed the split session system now in effect for Schools Three and Seven, "the worst thing they (the Board) could possibly do."

A school teacher for the past 25 years, Paglia has been teaching elementary grades in Newark's Burnet School for the past 22 years. He is currently a second grade teacher there.

To Paglia, the School Three fire aftermath, including the reconstruction of a new School Three building, will be important issues in the coming campaign. "The whole system is worried their school will be inconvenienced," he said, adding that he believes there are better short-range solutions to the housing shortage caused by the School Three fire. He proposes immediate occupancy of four classrooms in the "new" School Three wing which "can be made available for occupancy by four classes within two or three weeks' time."

Holder of a bachelor's degree from Panzer College, a master's in education from Newark State Teachers College (now Kean College) and credits nearly equivalent to a doctor's degree, Paglia also stresses the need for curriculum reform in Belleville's schools, especially in the area of career education—a subject he has been studying for the past several years. More educational emphasis should be placed on "preparing children for industry" through more updated vocational programs.

A Belleville resident 30 years, Paglia organized the Belleville Disabled American Veteran's 19 years ago, and helped organize other similar units in New Jersey. He is also a past president of the Newark Teacher's Association.

Paglia is married to the former Vera Farmer, and the couple has two grown children and grandchildren who attend School Three.

Greco going," said Paglia, and suggested the Board give Greco one more chance to remain.

The candidate's comments triggered a flood of comment from the Board, and ultimately a remark from Greco himself: "All superintendents are members of the brotherhood of kamikaze pilots," Greco said the at times heated exchange made him "feel right at home," and he confirmed statements by Board members that Greco had decided to retire of his own volition.

The question of Greco's decision to resign, was a carry-over from a storm of controversy raised last year at the time of Greco's resignation. Paglia implied Monday, as other citizens had in the past, that Greco had been pressured to leave his post.

As it did a year ago, the Board denied the charges. Greco said he spoke with Greco about his retirement before proceeding with his final job interview, and was assured by Greco he was leaving of his own volition.

Board president Richard Mahmarian heavily praised the special Board-appointed screening committee which selected the final four people considered for the superintendency. George Brown, chairman of that committee, was present at Monday's meeting.

"We realize Dr. Greco has a great responsibility to the community," said Brown, "facing an era where the Board and he are confronted with one of the most difficult situations."

School budget obsolete required. A public hearing on the budget will be held Monday, February 23, 8 p.m. in the Belleville High School Auditorium. Before that, however, Mahmarian indicated that the Board would again review the figures to decide which areas will have to be pared. Though Board member Lawrence Schwartz gave his tentative approval for "advertising purposes," he vowed he would oppose it if not reduced by February 23. According to Mahmarian, "I think we all share the same opinion."

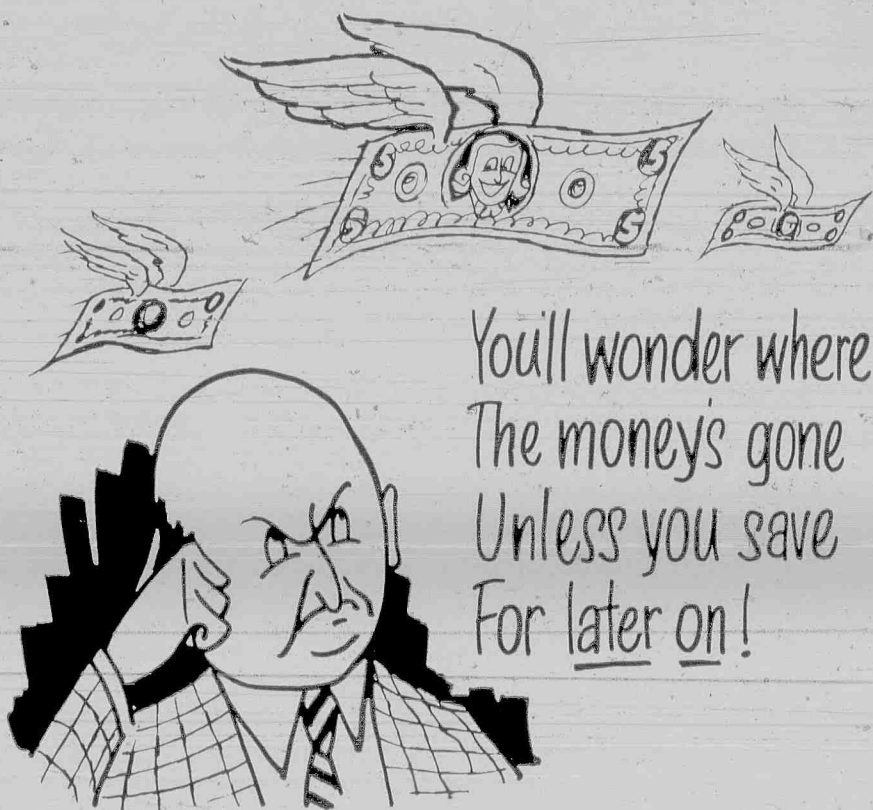

Most files were saved

Had the fire destroyed all the records, the director said, "it would have taken years and the work of many additional staff members to get back to our present level."

The Special Services division will continue to operate out of the Academy Street building until other accommodations can be secured. Spelkoman said they may have to wait until a new School Three is constructed, but he said the inconvenience of the temporary home was minimal.

Revaluation hearing next Tuesday

Revaluation of all Belleville real estate is expected to be the main topic of interest next Tuesday when the Belleville Board of Commissioners hold a public hearing and vote on the controversial ordinance setting the revaluation plan in motion.

At 7:30 p.m. in the Commission Chambers of Town Hall, Belleville's leaders will hold their regular meeting, part of which will include a public hearing on the revaluation measure.

Two weeks ago the Commissioners passed, 3-2, an ordinance on first reading which authorizes a special revaluation resolution. That resolution, however, must be passed on a minimum 4-1 vote.

School Candidates will debate

Belleville's six candidates for Board of Education in the upcoming March 9 election will pitch their platforms and answer questions tonight, 8 p.m., at the Fountain Restaurant.

Hosted by the Belleville-Jaycees at their regular meeting, all six candidates are expected to attend. The public is also invited, said George Riepe, Jaycee president.

Polling place transplanted

Bellevilleites who ordinarily vote at School Three in annual School Board elections will now have to visit Fewsmith Presbyterian Church, 312 Little Street, on election day, March 9.

The Belleville School Board has voted to move the polling place designated as Polling District Number Twelve, for Ward II districts eight and nine, from School Three (which burned down last month) to Fewsmith Church.

AARP holds dinner, hears talk

The Belleville Chapter 2051 of the American Association of Retired Persons, Inc., had a busy month in January, the highlights of the month a fire demonstration and a dinner.

Belleville Fire Captain Edward Dunleavy and Fireman Thomas Nisovocchia gave a brief talk to the AARP members, pointing out ways to reduce chances of a house fire. At the dinner, held at the Fountain Restaurant, over 100 members of the club enjoyed a night out with a meal and dinner show.

The next meeting of the group will take place today, when the organization members will be entertained by a singing group from the Belleville Woman's Club. The program, under the direction of Miss Edith Richards, will have a Bicentennial theme. Program chairlady of Chapter 2051, Mrs. Roberta Wertz, arranged the entertainment.

Godspell' held over— again

Continued "land office" response to Family Playhouse's rock musical production of "Godspell" has resulted in another hold-over performance tomorrow at 8 p.m., director Ray Napolitano has announced.

Now the longest running community theater production in the Belleville-Nutley area's history, "Godspell" will be performed at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Family Playhouse theater, 28 Brookline Avenue, Nutley. Tickets may be reserved by calling 997-5626. They are priced at $4 and $3.50.

Peoples Bank in on the Olympics

Peoples National Bank & Trust Company, through its membership in the American Bankers Association, is co-sponsoring the XII Winter Olympic Games in Innsbruck, Austria, which is being televised for 43.5 hours on Channel 7 from February 3 to 14.

Using the theme, "Your Bank—Helping You Change Things for the Better," the commercials shown during the telecasts of this quadrennial winter sports spectacular illustrate banking's role in community growth.

The ABA, national trade association of the banking industry, has, as its members, nearly 14,000 banks, more than 95 per cent of the nations total.

Meeting set on School Three status

An important meeting regarding the status of School Three will be held next Monday, February 9, in the Belleville High School auditorium, the Board of Education has announced.

According to Board president Richard Mahmarian, a detailed report and assessment of the current split-session system in use at Schools Seven and Three will be made, along with other statements regarding the transition made since the tragic fire which took the School Three building last month.

The Board has strongly urged the attendance of all concerned parents and residents.

Risoli joins Imperiale's staff

Ralph Risoli, Deputy Commissioner of Public Affairs and Town Registrar, has been named to State Senator Anthony Imperiale's legislative staff, the Senator announced this week.

Risoli, a longtime member of Belleville's municipal government, will act as "a liaison to the people" for the Senator, he said. Risoli is one of five people named to the Senator's staff. Others named were Rocco Malanga of Newark, Marie Piserchio of Kearny, Michael Augustowitz.

Grand jury to receive stolen property charge

A 26-year old Bellevilleite charged with possession of stolen property had his case sent to an Essex County Grand Jury following proceedings January 21 in Belleville Municipal Court.

William McNulty, 40 Honiss Street, was arrested October 29, 1975 for having clothing, a record player and tape player belonging to a woman identified as Vivina Bergamotto.

Strumolo backs new bill governing tax-exempt land

A proposed State constitutional amendment allowing municipalities to charge tax-exempt properties a "municipal fee" received the wholehearted support this week of Belleville Public Affairs Commissioner Vincent Strumolo.

"Something like this could save the Town half a million dollars," Strumolo said Monday about the proposed law, set to be introduced next week by Assemblyman Richard J. Codey of Essex County.

The bill would offset tax losses to municipalities occupied by large parcels of land owned by tax-exempt agencies, both public and private, by allowing towns to charge a fee based on each agency's land value—not building value.

Strumolo said he has sought the support of Belleville's two Assemblymen and State Senator Anthony Imperiale for the bill, and would ask the Town Commission to pass a resolution next week supporting Codey's proposed law. "The people should back me up and send letters to their representatives, too," said the Commissioner. "That's the only way we can get this thing steamrolled."

According to Strumolo, about 11 percent of Belleville is county-owned or private. Under Codey's bill, institutions like Clara Maass Memorial Hospital and the Hendrick's Field Golf Course (the single largest tract of land in town) would be assessed according to their acreage.

Taking other parcels into account (such as Branch Brook Park), Strumolo said he believed passage of the law could significantly benefit Belleville's taxpayers.

Codey is expected to introduce the amendment February 9 in the Assembly. If approved by a two-thirds vote in both legislative houses, it will be voted on in a statewide referendum.

Strumolo is not the only town official concerned over the large pieces of tax-exempt property in Belleville. At a recent planning Board meeting, Planning chairman Joseph Grande indicated he would favor leveling a "head tax" on golfers using the Hendricks Field facility. Grande asked that Board's attorney, Thomas DiBianco, to investigate the possibility of passing such a fee, citing the recent bill assessing Passaic Valley Sewerage Commission members a fee offsetting tax loss revenues caused Newark by the location of a large treatment plant there.

Grande also said he believed such a head tax might be justified since the Hendricks Field Golf Course was at one time private property, donated to Essex County.

Sign of cheer — As part of Jaycee Week last month, local Jaycees (with the cooperation of the Belleville Police) installed a number of welcome signs at various entrances around town. Three town men plead guilty to loansharking

Three Bellevilleites were among five men who pleaded guilty last week in Newark Superior Court to loansharking conspiracy charges.

Frank E. Bucco, 38, of 55 Carner Avenue, Joseph Fantoni, 32, of 17 North 7th Street, and Salvatore Maiorano, 51, of 22 Rutan Road entered their pleas before Superior Court Judge Ralph L. Fusco.

The guilty pleas were part of bargaining negotiations with the Essex County Prosecutor's office, and assistant prosecutor Nicholas Turco agreed to recommend to the court that two loansharking counts against each of the defendants be dismissed.

The Bellevilleites and two Newark residents, Marie Lardieri, 49, of 8 North Magnolia Lane and Jerry Auriema of 20 Varsity Place, were first arrested last March 31. At that time, Essex County Prosecutor Joseph P. Lordi indicated Bucco, a Clifton restaurant owner, was the leader of the operation. Lordi said the group had collected 268 per cent interest over a six month period on a $300 loan.

Newark man jailed for attacking woman

A 19-year old Newark man was sentenced to four months in jail January 21 in Belleville Municipal Court for assault and battery.

Robert Burke, 9-11 Underwood Street, was arrested November 21 for stabbing a woman identified as Regina Lindau with a four-inch scriber.

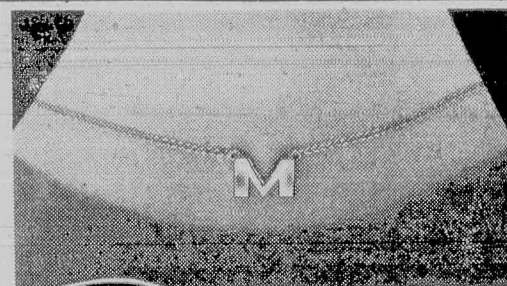

The defendant pleaded guilty to the charge.

Vote yes or no, please

We have never seen a more confused and incomprehensible round of voting, as that conducted at last week's Commission meeting over whether to revalue local real estate.

Of Belleville's five Commissioners, only two— Mayor Michael Marotti and Commissioner Joseph McGreevy— gave clear, distinct, understandable votes. Our other three leaders cast their so-called votes as follows:

Commissioner Vincent Strumolo: "I vote yes on the condition it (revaluation) is court ordered."

Commissioner Mary Senatore: "I'll pass on this for now."

Commissioner Rocco Saletta: "I refuse to vote on this."

Needless to say, it is hard for us to tell exactly what the vote was, and we assume it was equally difficult for the general public.

Unsanitary sewers

A variance case recently brought to light what is a long-standing sewer problem on Harrison Street.

And judging from the comments of the Harrison Street residents at the variance hearing, it is a problem that has existed for quite some time.

"We can't complain to nobody," said one elderly resident of the area. "We just pay our taxes and live in water."

Another resident, who has lived on the street for many years, gives this assessment: "The Town must put new sewerage in or we're gonna have that stuff in our living rooms. Our water is filthy and our pressure is low. The Town knows all about it."

Yet another, a licensed plumber, describes the sewerage situation— both sanitary and storm sewers alike— as "a very Experienced leaders and politicians that they are, our Commissioners know how to vote, and, we believe, knew what they were doing when they cast these vague remarks as so-called votes. We do not believe they were being fair with the public.

There are, after all, four "legal" voting categories: yes, no, no vote, and abstain. We believe that offers a reasonable variety from which to choose, and suggest the Commissioners stick with those categories.

Our leaders have all the right in the world to comment on their reasons for voting as they do, and they have more than ample opportunity to do so. We like to hear their comments.

But when the commentary is over, please say clearly, either "yes," "no," "I take no part," or "I abstain."

severe problem." On many occasions the residents have had to have their basements pumped when the sanitary sewers backed up, they say.

It occurs to us that both Public Works Director Mary V. Senatore and Revenue and Finance Director Joseph McGreevy told a gathering of Belleville business people last year that they were preparing to revamp much of Belleville's sewer system this year.

So what, pray tell, are they waiting for?

Bellevilleites pay, on a relative scale, some of the highest property taxes in the county. In return, they receive stopped-up sewers, hollow promises and warnings of yet higher taxes.

It's about time our leaders cut out the nonsense and excuse making, and starting putting this town in shape. They can start at Harrison Street.

Turn over a new leaf

John Cali and Michael Adubato, recently reelected as Belleville's representatives in the General Assembly, have rarely appeared in Town to lend their support— either moral or legislative— to the people who helped put them back in office.

Tomorrow, however, would be a good time for them to start turning over a new leaf.

Tomorrow night, 8 p.m. at Nutley Town Hall, officials from Belleville, Nutley and several large hospitals and businesses will appear at a public hearing regarding the discontinuance of the Number 15 bus line serving both communities. We think As-semblymen Cali and Adubato ought to be there, too, if not to speak at least to listen and show they care.

There are many critics of the current political climate in the 30th Legislative District. They believe the Democratic Party machinery has forsaken the average voter in this area, and that our representatives are not representatives of the people but of their party friends who put them in power.

We dearly hope this is not the case, and offer tomorrow night as a chance for both Assemblymen to begin proving otherwise.

"White-Wash"— It was white on top of white early this week when a blizzard closed schools, froze pipes and made driving nearly impossible. Washington Avenue, above, was nearly deserted Monday morning— except for the sleds.

Wants better Abdel coverage

To the Editor:

Has the Belleville Times/News forgotten about Abdel Anderson?

He received plenty of coverage from the Times/News when he was setting records on the Belleville High School basketball team and receiving State-wide acclaim last year.

Now Abdel is playing basketball for the best team in the east, and receiving national mention in such magazines as "Sports Illustrated" and "The Sporting News." Rutgers University in nearby New Brunswick is enjoying an undefeated season and Abdel has played a vital role. He is basically the sixth man on the squad and is averaging close to ten points per game.

He has played before a regional television audience on channels four and nine in addition to the UHF stations. In this, his freshman year, he has played in Madison Square Garden and in Florida, where he played with a broken nose.

Why doesn't the Times/News publicize when he will be on TV or give a brief report of his action on a weekly basis?

Aside from his personal gains, Abdel has made a name for Belleville here at Rutgers. Whenever someone finds out that I'm from Belleville, they often ask me "Isn't that where Anderson is from?"

Let's not have to turn to national magazines and other local newspapers to read about the success of Abdel, and let the Belleville Times/News keep us informed.

'Mr. Mac' keeps Three's 'family' together

To the Editor:

I would appreciate it if you would print this open letter to Mr. Austin MacArthur, principal of School Three.

Dear Mr. MacArthur and School Three "family,"

I feel I just had to write this note to you to express the way I feel about our situation.

First of all I think the solution that was decided upon was excellent for the amount of time you had to do it in.

Next, I'm so very happy and proud to be a part of this "family." I use the word family very strongly because that is the feeling I have gotten since my children started School Three.

As for you, Mr. Mac— with you as our leader how could be possibly go wrong? You have always helped us whenever we needed your help. We as parents have always been informed of anything that is going on at all times.

The teachers take a "real" interest in the children. It's not just a job to them. They really care.

Sure, we may have lost our home temporarily, but our "family" is still together, thanks to you, Mr. Mac.

Postage economy is overdue

By PAUL STERN

I'm in the mood today to offer some constructive criticism on the county level. Admittedly, my following suggestion is a very minor one, but could result in a savings of several hundred dollars annually to the County which I help to support.

Several hundred dollars is, of course, peanuts to the County, but it's not to me, so Freeholders please take note.

I received in the mail this week the annual notice of 1976 meetings for all county committees. The hefty announcement, required by the new "Sunshine Law" or Open Public Meetings Act, was sent out certified mail, return receipt requested, at a cost of 80 cents. According to the cover letter contained in the announcement, similar notices were mailed to 36 other newspapers, I assume at the same expense.

I am of course grateful for the announcement, and am glad the Freeholders are making such a thorough and efficient effort to comply with the new law, which requires such notices be made to, I believe, at least two newspapers. County agencies, like all others, will also be sending out periodical updates as required by law for holding special, unanticipated meetings.

There is nothing in the "Sunshine Law," however, that says the notices must be sent by certified mail, or that they must be sent to every newspaper in the county. Though sending notices to every paper seems like the fairest way to do it, the extra expense in postage is unnecessary.

Notices sent out last week in the present system cost, by my calculation, $29.60 in postage. I have already received two correction notices, also mailed certified, at a cost of 58 cents each or $42.92 for all 37 papers.

Adding up the figures, I calculate it cost the county taxpayers $72.52 in postage this week, when a much smaller amount would have gotten the notices to everyone just as quickly and efficiently.

Obviously, the Freeholders want proof that the notices were sent— reflective, perhaps, of a certain amount of political paranoia. I should think, however, that of

Golden Comments

By James R. Golden

That public hearing at Town Hall on Tuesday, February 10 at 7:30 p.m. should play to a "packed house" of irate, concerned homeowners who view the revaluation move as a subtle effort to bring more money into the coffers of the Town by anteing up the assessment on their homes and property to make up for the profligacy and waste of an administration that lacked the foresight to have envisioned the inevitable path to financial despair their over-generous policies would result in. Few believe the claim that revaluation is necessary to protect the town from losing thousands of dollars in tax payments from local industry, much of which has already left town or is indicating it plans to shortly.

The little people who are to be hit the hardest by any revaluation are loudly protesting that our Commissioners don't seem too concerned about how much more they will lose in increased taxes with inflated assessment values being placed upon their humble homes. They stress it's we people who vote who can redeem any injustices heaped upon us by elected officials— not the local industries. They very probably would... at the first opportunity.

All is not lost yet, however. While there seemingly appears a 3-2 split in favor of revaluation, four affirmative votes by the Commissioners are required to authorize the special $149,000 appropriation resolution that would be needed to "kick off" the program.

The reservations and comments attendant to the vote on the measure at the last Commission meeting indicates that it is not likely that so many "yes" votes will be forthcoming. Surely, Mrs. Mary Senatore, who coyly commented "I'll pass on this for now," in voting on the matter is too clever a politico and student of parliamentary procedure to "abstain" since she knows an abstention has been ruled by the courts as an affirmative vote that could produce the fourth needed vote that her adversary Commission colleagues would "delight" in "suckering" her into if she didn't know better.

The time for Belleville to revalue is when Newark does in compliance with the law and the orders of the courts. If they "get away" without doing it, why shouldn't we?

Not unlike Governor Byrne, California's Governor Edmund G. "Jerry" Brown has shocked that state's education establishment by posing irreverent and hostile— but basic— questions. "Why is it better to have a smaller number of students in each class?" he demanded of the University of California regents. He often asks: "Why are administrators paid more than teachers if the business of schools is teaching?"

Governor Brown is convinced that students are badly served by the wide— and expensive— variety of non-academic courses offered by the state's schools and colleges. He is taking a back-to-the-basics approach, all of which stresses the trend to austerity in the educational field and the concentration on basics such as reading, writing and arithmetic.

Let's get a clearer picture of this important event and the effects it might exert on our schools, our children's education and our taxes. Until the school law on elections was changed, only three candidates, two of whom were incumbents, had filed for the two seats coming up for election. Ralph Risoli, who is the town registrar, a member of State Senator Anthony Imperiale's legislative staff and an acknowledged known student of government, was the only other candidate aspiring for the position. He is competent, capable and qualified. He might easily have won and unseated one of the incumbents. So he was feared.

A plot was seemingly contrived to "flood the field" with new candidates of the same ethnic background who would be induced to file before the newly set deadline for filing in a "drive" to beat down Mr. Risoli's candidacy and hopefully keep in office the incumbents.

If this was done it comes under the heading of "dirty tricks" and only displays the depths to which some "behind-the-scenes" political powers will go to build up the hopes of some candidates they induce to run with promises of support only to use them as "suckers" to beat a good man and get their candidate in. Did Jack the Ripper have a hand in this? If so, for shame.

the 37 papers notified, at least two would be willing to testify, if necessary, they received them.

Anyway, these notices will not be the last mailed by the Board, and over a long period of time the postage will undoubtedly build to a tidy sum.

The real point I am trying to make, though, is not about postage savings per se, but about economy in general.

If someone like myself— who ordinarily deals with the Freeholders only through the mail and on other select occasions, can see a way to save several hundred dollars, the Freeholders themselves, and their underlings, should be able to cut the budget in significant ways, while still preserving the services they offer to the taxpaying residents.

What we need in the county seat, apparently, is an efficiency expert, who in the space of about ten days could probably knock out a million or so dollars in unnecessary expenditures on overtime, telephones, office furniture and useless employees

THE STATE WE'RE IN

Dismayed at the DEP

By DAVID F. MOORE

Back in October the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection adopted new rules outlining conditions under which it can impose or lift bans on new connections to sewer systems with overloaded treatment facilities.

Environmental circles were dismayed when it happened, because it seemed to many that DEP had backed down in the face of a legislative proposal to lift such sewer connection bans prior to completion of adequate sewage treatment facilities.

In this state we're in, most densely populated of the 50 states and laced with complex and often highly polluting industrial facilities, the problem of inadequate and overloaded sewage treatment is basic to our survival. Not only does it pertain to aesthetics but to human and economic health alike.

It's been found that restricting new connections to sewer lines when the treatment facility is already overloaded is an effective way to protect the public health and welfare from things like polluted water supplies and dangerous bacterial conditions.

This has been a tough measure, and it's brought howls of outrage from more than one developer whose financial ox was gored. But in the view of the great majority of persons who are not blinded to the value of niceties like adequate sanitation, such restrictions served the greatest public good.

Of course, special interests spend a lot on high-powered lobbyists, which can often have bearing on legislative attitudes.

That's the basis for the dismay I mentioned. But one active group, the Trenton-based League for Conservation Legislation, has faulted the DEP's new regulations for another reason.

The League contends that by allegedly failing to give the public adequate opportunity to comment on the regulations before they were adopted, DEP is in violation of the law.

The law in question is the Administrative Procedures Act. Bill Beren of the League, or LCL as it's often called, wrote recently that "given Governor Byrne's directive in his State of the State message to review and reevaluate all rules and regulations and statutes adopted in the 1960's to determine their relevance to today's economic situation, it is absolutely critical that DEP follow legislatively mandated procedures in adopting and amending departmental rules and regulations."

The LCL quotes the Administrative Procedures Act as requiring that an agency like the DEP give at least 20 days notice of its intended action, and afford all interested persons reasonable opportunity to submit written or oral viewpoints.

Beren has urged all such interested persons to request that DEP notify them well in advance of any future proposed rule changes. LCL is also conferring with the New Jersey Public Advocate's office about the possibility of suing DEP for its alleged failure to comply with the law. If successful, such a suit could overturn the October changes in the regulations.

'Quit spending our money!'

To the Editor:

I strongly protest the way the State, County and our local Commissioners are spending taxpayers' money at a time when the future of the State and cities is uncertain and government branches are falling apart at the seams.

This mess has been created by some politicians causing a greater hardship on the people who are desperately trying to raise a family. Many factories and other business people are laying off, closing their doors and moving away, increasing the welfare and relief roles. That's a disaster and will bring on a depression sooner than some people think.

New jobs have been created for special people and fat wage increases have been granted. The elimination of some programs, including the school programs, to cut expenses, and the creation of new tax programs to raise funds by those in power is not the answer to curbing inflation and bringing peace and harmony in this State.

Some politicians elected to office who promised to do so much for the people during their campaign now look the other way. If the Taylor law forbidding strikes against the government cannot be enforced, it should be removed from the books. This also applies to revaluation programs by the county, harmful to the property owners since the county pays no taxes on the property it owns, which runs into the millions.

Yet these millions are included in all revaluation programs at the expense of the homeowners.

The federal government allows a depreciation on all income producing property except a one family home. Is the County bigger than the federal government? A home is like an automobile. It does not increase in value, but decreases with age. When repairs are made the home owner should not be penalized, since he provides work for others.

I appeal to the Commission to obey the wishes of the people and defy the County for revaluation, like is being done by the city of Newark. It hurts too many people, especially the older folks living on social security or on a pension.

I would never approve such a political gimmick.

Seniors request Homestead action

To the Editor:

The vote on the referendum for Homestead Security was overwhelmingly passed by the voters in the November 4, 1975 election. The ratio was two to one. Now it's the time to urge legislators to enact legislation.

Therefore senior citizens and others who qualify under the amendment to the constitution are requested to petition their assemblymen and senators urging them to enact legislation as soon as possible that will provide an exemption from taxation of a reasonable portion of the assessed valuation of all senior citizens' homes and a corresponding rent reduction for senior citizen tenants.

Revaluation opposed

To the Editor:

We have had it!

We the people of Belleville will not stand for the revaluation of our homes and a high hike in property taxes! Just to benefit the present officials of this town!

They are selfishly putting the money in their own pockets. They have no compassion for the poor people, and care less if they lose their homes in these hard times. We will fight this terrible injustice even if it means to get rid of the present Commissioners.

We only need one major and we will appeal to Mr. James Golden to help us and take the necessary steps like getting a town ordinance and having a public hearing.

So I call upon all concerned people. Let us pack the Town Hall and show them we mean business!

Abate is Adult School head

You never stop learning, they say, and you are never too old to learn.

For most people, the continuation of their education consists mainly in lessons learned at work, dealing with other people, and in some cases just talking to their children. Recently, however, more and more people are continuing their formal education by either enrolling full-time in college courses in order to obtain a degree or by enrolling in night courses.

In order to help people who just cannot afford the time or the expense of going fulltime to college, the Belleville Adult School in conjunction with Essex County Community College has started offering college level courses along with its pot pourri of instructions.

Frank Abate, 29, was recently appointed Director of the Adult School, and will be helping that informal institute of education chart its course in the coming months.

Abate, a resident of Belleville since 1968, also works for Essex County Community College, and so is in a perfect position for coordinating the efforts of the two in order to ensure the smooth functioning of the combined product.

While it may seem unusual to describe the Adult School as a "product," that is, in a way, the way Abate approaches the work.

"The biggest problem most people have," said Abate, "is a lack of confidence in themselves and their ability to go back to school. At one time, I was a salesman, and I try to use the skills I learned there to instill confidence in people. I don't sell them on the idea of school. I sell them on themselves."

Abate has his headquarters on Washington Avenue in Belleville at the Essex County College "NEED" center. Working out of a store front, he is right in the heart of the community, and that is where he likes it.

"This is a community college," he said, "and we have to meet the needs of the community. The NEED center is accessible to the people—all the people. We are concerned with helping all ages of people, from seniors down to the youth."

Abate looks on his work with the Adult School and the college as a kind of community involvement for himself. He said he believes it is important to become involved with people, and he carries this involvement into the political arena.

In fact, he traces his desire to work with his fellow townspeople back to his original interest in politics. President of the New Jersey Young Democrats, Abate is vitally interested in the political affairs of the state and the community. As a result, it was almost inevitable he would become involved in work with had a great deal to do with the town in which he lives.

Abate encourages people to consider attending the adult school, adding, "There is a lot a person can gain from the experience. It may help them advance in their field of work, or it may just be something for them to do. A lot of senior citizens enjoy taking courses, they learn, and they enjoy themselves."

Abate, a graduate of Montclair State with a masters degree from Rutgers, resides in Belleville with his wife, Eileen, and two children, Stacy, 4 and Scott, six months.

School budget cuts restored

By JODI MASSONE

One year ago

If Angelo Guarino were to win the Board of Education election in Belleville the students could have a ball! It would be the first time that a pupil would be in charge of a teacher.

Angelo Guarino, 18, and a senior in Belleville High School, would win, Guarino could be, in effect, his teachers' supervisor.

As a new candidate for the coming election, Guarino joined Michael Chieffo, Rocco Constantino, and incumbent James Risoli. He was the youngest person in town to have ever sought a position on the school's governing body.

Unusual as the circumstance was, the legality of his eligibility for the post was being questioned, but after investigation by School Board attorney Max Schwartz, everything was said to be in order, and the school student went all-out on a campaign to make him boss over his teachers.

Denying accusations by ballplayers, parents, and fans, alike, head football coach Thomas Testa said that he was ready to use legal means to clear his reputation of misconduct charges that were levelled against him a week before.

He was investigating the possibility of lodging a libel suit and added that he was personally and professionally insulted by the malicious and untrue charges made by the group. Even though the Board of Education election was just around the corner, and the commission election was still somewhat in the future, Nicholas Raimo, a lifelong Belleville resident, became the first one to announce his candidacy for a spot on the Town Commission in the May election.

Two years ago

The tentative 74-75 school budget package represented a jump of about $584,578 over the budget as amended by the Commissioner of Education.

An appeal filed by the Town of Belleville the February before, to increase the municipality's allotment under the Federal Revenue Sharing Program was decided in favor of the Town. As a result, Belleville had received two checks for $20,000, all of them retroactive to 1972.

An office message was sent a week previously by Acting Commissioner of Education Edward Kilpatrick to opposing parties of the restoration of $214,036 of the funds slated by the Town Commission from the 1973-74 school budget. Left untouched by the Commission was $236,844 of the Town Father's total cut of $450,880 from the $7.4 million budget.

Six years ago

The new Belleville Board of Education was to meet and reorganize for the coming school year. The Board of Education would also put out a welcome for Caesar Romano and Richard Mahmarian. The rejuvenated Board would find little time to relax, however. Facing the school officials many educational problems presented by the space age seventies.

Eleven years ago

Joseph Cervasio of 711 Belleville Avenue, Nicholas Grande of 113 Union Avenue and Leonard Luong of 175 Beech Street, received nominations as alternate candidates for appointment at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Sixteen years ago

New bus routes for Belleville were proposed by the Washington Avenue Merchants Association. Plans for the lines were pending final negotiations with the Public Service Transport Company and the approval of the Public Utilities Commission.

Nicholas Juliano and Ernest Anderson captured two seats on the Belleville Board of Education. The new victory, and the defeat of incumbent Mary Reilly Coronato shifted the balance of power on the Board away from President Frank DiRuggiero to the side of School Superintendent Even H. Thomas.

Twenty-one years ago

Sixteen booths were being prepared by the Belleville Boy Scouts and Explorer Troops for the annual Cavalcade of Scouting to be held in the high school gym. The Cavalcade would cap a week's activities in scouting, in a celebration of National Boy Scout Week.

Going home

I'm going home though it's against every rule
Going home, so go and call me a fool.
I've been outside the world too long.
I'm so confused I don't know right from wrong.

Don't try to tell me what you'd do if you were me
Because I know that's the way it should be.
I don't see the light as clearly or the sky as blue
My mind is mixed up and I don't know what to do.

I'm going back to see if anyone's home.
And I'm going to stay awhile so I won't be alone.
I've stayed here long enough and I'm feeling small
So don't try to hold me, I don't want you at all.

TESTS LOOM SOON

Exam cram starts

By BRIGID FREDERICKS

On February 9 students at Belleville High School will begin taking mid-term exams. These exams will test students on what has been taught since September. Every student is required to take exams. The semester courses exams are not scheduled for exam week, but will be given during normal class time.

All major courses are scheduled to be tested February 9-13. Some classes not scheduled will be given projects to be done at home instead of exams. Half year courses will come to an end after exams, and thus will begin the second half of the semester courses.

Students who achieve a 'B' average in any subject will be exempted from finals. Final exams for seniors are June 7-10 and underclassen are scheduled for June 14-17. All grades for exams will be averaged in with the regular marking period grades and used as a final average for the year.

Preparations for exams have begun in almost every department. Students will soon start studying for these hour and a half tests while teachers are busy drawing up the exams themselves.

Dillon favors the footlights

by JOANNE SANTIGLIA

All the world's a stage as far as John Dillon is concerned. This honor roll sophomore has ambitions of someday entering the theater.

John's stage debut at twelve years old, was in a review called "Sights and Sounds," produced by his parish, St. Mary's Church. It was at this time that he first decided to make dramatics his goal. John said, "I really felt good inside when I heard the applause of the audience and to find that they were pleased with my performance."

John's rich baritone voice has helped him to succeed in such roles as Nicely Nicely Johnson in "Guys and Dolls" and Rolf in "The Sound of Music," which was his favorite role. He has also acted in such plays as "Oliver," "Funny Girl," "A Man For All Seasons," and in the recent hit, "1776."

If John decides to major in dramatics in college, then he will minor in art design and/or art advertising, which is also one of his favorite pastimes.

John feels that being in the theater can give one the opportunity to meet interesting people, to learn about human nature, while at the same time improve upon his own speech and ways of communication. He realizes that dramatics is a very competitive field, but feels that willpower and determination are major factors in the success of any amateur actor.

When asked how far he really thinks he will advance in the theater, John said, "If I only had the ability to get to an off-off Broadway show, I will accept it and enjoy it; but if I truly feel that I am better, and if I am encouraged by others, I will push ahead to higher levels."

So to John, acting has proved to be beneficial through meeting semi-professional actors who have taught him "to accept both failure and success," as well as a history of funny and exciting experiences.

LIGHTER SIDE

From tree to paper: a scrappy biography

By LISA HAYES

So here I am? A piece of paper. My life long dream. I, myself, started out as a part of a really boring tree. All day kids climbed up and down, it was making me positively dizzy.

So here I am, or did I say that already. I'm so nervous I guess I feel I have a great future. You know it can be very promising being in an English notebook. A Pulitzer Prize story can be written on my little blue lines.

Somehow I think I'm predestined, you see my great-grandfather was the piece of paper the original Declaration of Independence was written on. Now I don't like to brag or anything but we predecessors are highly thought of and we do have much potential. Gee just sitting in this notebook has deepened my knowledge. Now my owner is taking me to study.

I kind of like this study, it's nice and peaceful.

"Hey, how you doin' Tom?"

"Fine, Paul."

"You got a piece of paper?"

"Sure, here."

He's taking me out! I know they're going to write that story. Let's see will it be drama or a nice comedy? Oh no! How disgraceful! How can I ever face my great-grandfather like this! It's absolutely horrible, I have become a piece of paper for a tic-tac-toe game! Know

I'll be the black sheep of the family. Sniff. I guess I'll go to Switzerland and change my name. Yeh, then I'll never be found.

"Oh here's a piece of scrap paper."

Let's see, what can I write? I know. What's this? Some girl is starting to write a poem on me. Hey it's pretty good. I may have a future Emily Dickinson on my hands. Go ahead kid write your heart out, you and I are going to be famous.

BELLBOYS BACKED

Nickname knocked

To the Student Page:

For the past 20 years, Belleville athletes, otherwise known as "The Bellboys", has been synonymous with Belleville High School and now for some unknown reason a change of name and was deemed necessary. Why?

After several choices of names were put before the student body for voting, the name of "Golden Tide" was elected.

Has anyone given any thought to problems which arise from a change of name? As a cheerleader, I am concerned with the changes that would be required for our cheers, chants and routines. Perhaps to some, these problems may seem trivial but to me and the rest of the cheerleaders, they are unsurmountable. It takes a great deal of hard work and time to perfect a cheer and with the name chosen, there are many cheers and chants that could never be used.

But there is still another aspect to this change, and that is the fact of years of our athletes being known as "Bellboys". Isn't there a certain amount of nostalgia attached to that name? Are the people of Belleville really going to let this happen? I sincerely hope not! So come forth all you Bellvites and rally in this cause, let the "Bellboys" stay!

Fickle fans forever favor grapplers

By ROSS SHERMAN

Fans of Belleville have often been cited as being fickle towards their teams in the respect of being behind them while they are winning, yet fast to criticize them when they are not too successful. This theory goes out the window every year when Coach Jim Silvestri and the wrestlers roll out the mat to begin a new season. Win, lose, or draw, the wrestlers have always received an abundance of support from the fans. Although wrestling is a relatively new sport in Belleville, it has risen quickly to rival such established sports as football, baseball, and basketball in popularity.

Since the sport's beginning in Belleville in 1961, the team has known three coaches. Mr. Silvestri successful at his job since 1965. It has been an uphill struggle for Mr. Silvestri since the start of his coaching career, knowing little or nothing about the sport. Yet, through his success on the varsity level, a great interest among younger students in wrestling, such as Junior Varsity and Freshman along with a fine recreational system for young boys who will provide the fuel for the Belleville wrestling machines of the future.

While graduation has left some holes in the Bellboy ranks, the sophomore class has produced some surprises as well. Two seniors have finally risen to the varsity and share the 141 spot. These two men are Tom Zarra and Andy Schenke, two outstanding J.V. performers of last year.

At 122 lbs. is sophomore Mark DeGlaiano who is coming off a fine freshman season, and is doing well in his first year of varsity competition. Also in his first varsity season is Bob Raccioppi at 135 lbs. a sophomore. He share the spot with the currently injured junior, Nick Sicurello.

The team is currently sporting a 4-1 record to date. The highlight of this being a first place finish in the Bloomfield holiday tournament. This great achievement marked the first time at Belleville team has ever taken this tournament and in order to do so edged out last years winner, West Essex. Taking first place finishers for Belleville were Carl Arlt, Vin Mustacchio, Robert Villano, Chris Tremel, and Keith Waddell. Two second places were mailed down by Ken Milano and George D'Alessandro while Ron Grolimond and Andy Schenke took third places. This victory will be long remembered by Coach Silvestri.

If any special commendation should be made, it should be for Joe Savastano, Savo, as he is known, filled in for the then injured Chris Tremel at 158 lbs. and came across with victories in his two matches, a decision and a pin. When Chris was finally able to return, it turned out Joe's services were still much needed. Robert Villano who is the regular 148 became sick and was unable to wrestle. Coach Silvestri asked Savo if he could make 148 lbs. by the next day's match. In the course of a single day, Joe lost ten pounds and was able to wrestle. Though he was narrowly defeated, Joe showed the kind of person he is by making the sacrifice of losing so much weight is such little time for the sake of his team.

The junior varsity has developed into a perennial power under the second year coach, Mr. Joe Zarra, a former varsity wrestler under Coach Silvestri. Last year, the team finished at 13-1-1 and is on the way to another fine season this year with a 4-1 mark to date. The managers aiding the team are William Villano, Dave White, Denny Li-jo, and Donna Berrigan. Also of valuable service are the mat maids.

Well-Sweep Herb Garden is topic of DAR meeting

"Well-Sweep Herb Garden" was Mrs. Bernard Navatto's topic as guest speaker at a meeting of Yantacaw Chapter DAR January 26. Mrs. Navatto, NJDAR State Conservation Chairman, and an Ex-Regent of Old White House Chapter, is a resident of Somerville. Well-Sweep Herb Farm in Port Murray is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Hyde, organic farmers, both of whom are descendants of early New Jersey settlers among whom were the Van Houtens and Van Rippers.

Mrs. Navatto showed slides and played a taped commentary prepared by Mr. Hyde, which tells about their historic home, the old barn, their herb gardens, early American furniture, china, and other family heirlooms preserved from colonial days. They own one of the silver knee buckles presented by George Washington to a feminine forebear in appreciation for her assistance to him and his troops. Included are many interesting tales about herbs from earliest times, such as the one about the Egyptian top onion with which Pharaohs' slaves were often paid.

The two most precious possessions of early American colonists were their Bibles, which guaranteed spiritual health, and their herb seeds which held the promise for their physical health. In addition to bags of herbs and bottles of herb vinegars, Mrs. Navatto displayed arrangements of the Hyde's dried herbs and flowers and told of the art of preparing them. One bouquet is called a "tussy mussy". Among other uses in early days, British judges carried them and could bury their noses in them to combat the frequently offensive odors in the courtrooms. Such natural room deodorizers as sage or mock oranges, and pomander balls were described. Mr. Hyde has been a pomander ball made of an apple dating from Civil War days. Mrs. Navatto said that visitors are always welcome at the Hyde's but an appointment by telephone is suggested.

During the business meeting it was reported that the papers of four candidates whom Yantacaw Chapter sponsors for the State title of DAR Good Citizen have been forwarded to the State Chairman. For the first time senior boys were eligible for selection by their classmates. The candidates are Catherine Roessner, Nutley High School; Erica Mosner, Passaic High School; Angela Pellosie, Collegiate School, Passaic; and Joseph Calabrese, North Arlington High School.

The meeting took place at the home of Mrs. Britton R. Hallowell who organized the Nutley Chapter in January 1960.

Please! No more snow days

THERE ARE a few statements that can cause a mother immediate dismay. The dry cleaner — "I can't get the stain out"; the plumber — "There's a leak somewhere"; the doctor — "It's contagious"; the shoe salesman — "The shoes are in perfect shape but they're too small"; WPAT — "No school today".

I love my children dearly. I think they're pretty neat kids most of the time and I wouldn't trade any one of them. But if anybody had offered me two cents for the four of them Monday, I would have felt I was overpaid. Having gotten them off to school in total only the Thursday before after a good two weeks of messy colds, I was ill prepared mentally to enjoy their company for an unexpected extra day.

IF THEY HAD slept late, the day would have gotten off to a better start. Unfortunately, as soon as they realized they were "free", they sprang immediately to life. If they were that eager to arise on days they were compelled to, my mornings would be a lot more calmer and may nerves in much better shape. Detaching my sons from their beds is a horrendous undertaking, made all the more difficult by the fact that they sleep in bunk beds and the top bunk can roll over far out of his diminutive mother's reach and does so regularly.

If they had been enthusiastic about anything I was offering for breakfast, I would have needed only two aspirin instead of four. Instead, they were downright hostile: the cereals were not to their liking. Absolutely no one was going to settle for eggs. Waffles and pancakes were out because this poor excuse for a mother had run out of syrup and what good are English muffins if there's no cream cheese? I don't remember what they finally ate. At that point, I didn't care.

IF ROD had come home from New York on his morning break, I could have dumped the quartet on him and slid across the street for a cup of coffee. But he was up to his proverbial neck in irate commuters waiting for buses which didn't appear because they were stuck on icy roads. When he finally got home at 7:30 p.m., I had to thaw him out before I could talk to him and by that time, I figured he had had enough.

If any two of them had been able to agree on a game to play, that would have kept half of them happy or at least occupied for a short while. But, while the girls were pushing Candyland and Chutes and Ladders (though not willing to oppose each other), the boys were interested only in Battleship or Chinese Checkers and what one wanted to play, the other wouldn't.

IF THEIR tastes in television programs had run along similar lines, much mayhem would have been averted. The boys were not going to sit still for Sesame Street and the girls were not buying anything that intrigued their brothers.

No one except another mother can appreciate with what trepidation I listened to the six o'clock news Tuesday morning. If the schools had been closed again, someone was going to have to cart me away!

Belly dancing course offered at Adult School

The sensual belly dance, once considered a bit naughty in most circles across the United States, is inspiring a flurry of activity here in New Jersey, thanks to Sahda (Lynda) Mathe. Sahda, who will begin teaching the ancient art for the Belleville Adult School this evening, is considered a pioneer in bringing Mid-Eastern Dance to New Jersey. She began teaching the dance here four years ago - her enthusiasm spread - and now many of her students are teachers and professionals who perform on their own and with her dance company, Troupe Zagharret. The troupe has presented Mid-Eastern dance programs extensively throughout the New York-New Jersey metropolitan area.

Ms. Mathe, who holds a B.A. in International Studies from Fairleigh Dickinson University and an M.A. in Education from Columbia, is delighted with her career in Oriental Dancing, which began seven years ago in California. "People are surprised that a person with my education would prefer to perform and teach dance full-time. The fact is, I use my academic background constantly - my training as a teacher enhances my class techniques, and my knowledge and love of foreign cultures are definite assets because I always present Mid-Eastern dance in its ethnic and historical context to my audiences and students." She will be going on a cultural tour of Egypt in March to research the dance further. This will be her second trip to the Middle East.

Sahda's local following is ample proof that Belly Dancing is becoming an integral part of the American woman's leisure and recreational activities, and that it is not merely a "fad" as some had predicted several years ago when interest in the dance began sweeping the nation. She attributes the ongoing appeal of the dance to its beneficial effects on body, mind and spirit, but strongly emphasizes that its significant contribution to the dance world MUST be considered along with its cultural roots.

The sociologically-minded teacher notes that the popularity of the Danse Orientale coincides with certain globally significant phenomena, such as: international focus upon Middle Eastern nations where the dance originated; the changing outlook for women (which is symbolized by the Belly Dance as a healthy approach to female body-mind awareness); and desire to study a dance which is in total harmony with nature as our ecological awareness grows.

Sahda feels that the Belly Dance is the representative dance of today's woman because age and size are no limit unlike ballet, which evolved as an art form designed for an elite few.

While it is uncertain whether Sahda's students are concerned with ecology or feminism, they will be busy having fun as they exercise at her classes at Belleville High School.

Build a house with love and it will little matter what materials it is made of.

YOU AND YOUR PET

Buying birds

When a prospective pet owner goes shopping for a pet bird, the most common request is for "a good singer" or "talker." But it's almost impossible to determine who will be a good performer by looking over the selection in your local pet shop.

A better way to select a bird is to look for one that is young, healthy and sociable. The age of a parakeet is easier to determine than the age of a young canary. Parakeets about four months old will have pale blue cere (the area around the nostrils above the beak) and several dark bars running across the feathers on the forehead, as the parakeet matures, the dark bars will disappear, and the cere will darken to a deeper blue for males and tan or brown for females. Few outer markings distinguish young canaries from adult birds, or males from females.

Whether parakeet or canary, the bird you choose should have clear, alert eyes and a smooth silhouette. Even if the proprietor assures you that the bird is "just molting," stay away from one with an untidy appearance or shedding feathers. What you see could be normal molting or a sign of an advanced feather disease. In addition to feathers, check that the bird's beak and feet are free of white, crusty deposits.

If you wait patiently by their cages, the birds will calm down and resume their normal socializing. Look for a bird that hops from perch and takes a lively interest in its cage mates. A bird that sits in the corner may turn out to be too shy to talk or sing in your home.

Before taking your bird home, be prepared to provide for several basic needs. First, your bird's cage should be big enough to let it jump and hop around. Perches should be of varying diameters and on different levels to encourage exercising of leg muscles. One perch should have a replaceable sandpaper-like cover to keep the nails short and help scrape off mineral deposits. Never place the cage in a draft or spot where the bird has no escape from the sun. You should also have on hand a few toys so your pet will not pull out feathers from boredom during the hours it is left alone.

A caged bird is completely dependent upon you and will need a regular supply of clean water and fresh seed, with an occasional piece of fresh greenery. Because birds do not have teeth, they also need a supply of fine gravel or grit to aid in grinding up seed in the gizzard, a special muscular part of the digestive tract. Do not make the mistake of thinking that the feed cup is full of seeds when it contains only empty seed hulls. If you blow gently into the feeder, hulls will usually float away and let you see how much seed is left. Since most seed mixtures are deficient in calcium, you should place a whole cuttlefish bone in the cage or add finely crushed oyster shell to the seed. If you wish to breed your pet or "produce" an exceptional singer, your veterinarian may suggest special food supplements.

If you have never owned a bird before, there are several early distress signals to watch for. These include: prolonged molting or ruffled feathers, general listlessness, wheezing or heavy breathing, development of enlargements or growths, and changes in the character of the droppings. Droppings are especially significant; they are a clue to intestinal or kidney problems.

Finally, if your pet is not up to par, do not hesitate before seeking professional aid. A veterinarian equipped with the special operating instruments and specially formulated drugs is the best person to diagnose and treat a sick bird. The bird's small size and specialized anatomy make it difficult to try to dose with medicines prepared for humans or other pets.

Fight at Kearny High mars grappler victory

A sparkling victory over the Kearny Cardinals last Friday night by the Belleville wrestling team was marred by a senseless fight and rock throwing incident following the contest.

An exciting battle, which went down to the wire and ended in a 31-27 victory for the Bellboys was ruined for fans and athletes alike, when someone decided to start a mini-riot following the contest. In the brief but high-pitched melee, jayvee wrestling coach Joseph Zarra was punched and knocked down and had to be rescued by members of his squad. That, however, was not the end of the trouble.

According to coach Jim Silvestri, as the team bus pulled away from Kearny High School, with a police escort, stones were thrown at the bus. Fortunately, no one was injured and there was apparently no serious damage to the vehicle.

The win against Kearny gave the Bellboys win number 11 on the year, against one loss. They picked up their tenth victory of the season last Wednesday when they soundly trounced the Bloomfield Bengals, 52-10.

Yesterday, the team was scheduled to take on Caldwell, but results came in too late for this edition of the Times/News.

Saturday, the Blue-Gold matmen will host the powerful Pascack Hills grapplers. The visitors will be looking for their 53rd straight win, and coach Silvestri's men will, he said, be mightily fired up in hopes of ending their streak at 52. The coach also thinks his men can do it, he said, "If they really want it bad enough."

The game is slated to begin at 1 p.m., with the jayvee squad taking to the mat first. Belleville High is expecting a packed house.

Coach Silvestri was not pleased with his team's performance against Kearny. Individually, some of the boys did very well, but the middle weights on the team fell short and nearly brought on Belleville's second defeat of the season.

The deciding factor in the match proved to be the heavyweight battle and, as Silvestri said, "It all came down to George D'Alessandro. There was a tremendous amount of pressure on him, but he took it, and did the job."

D'Alessandro's 6-1 decision over Mike Battaglini tolled the death knell for Kearny's hopes of doing away with Belleville.

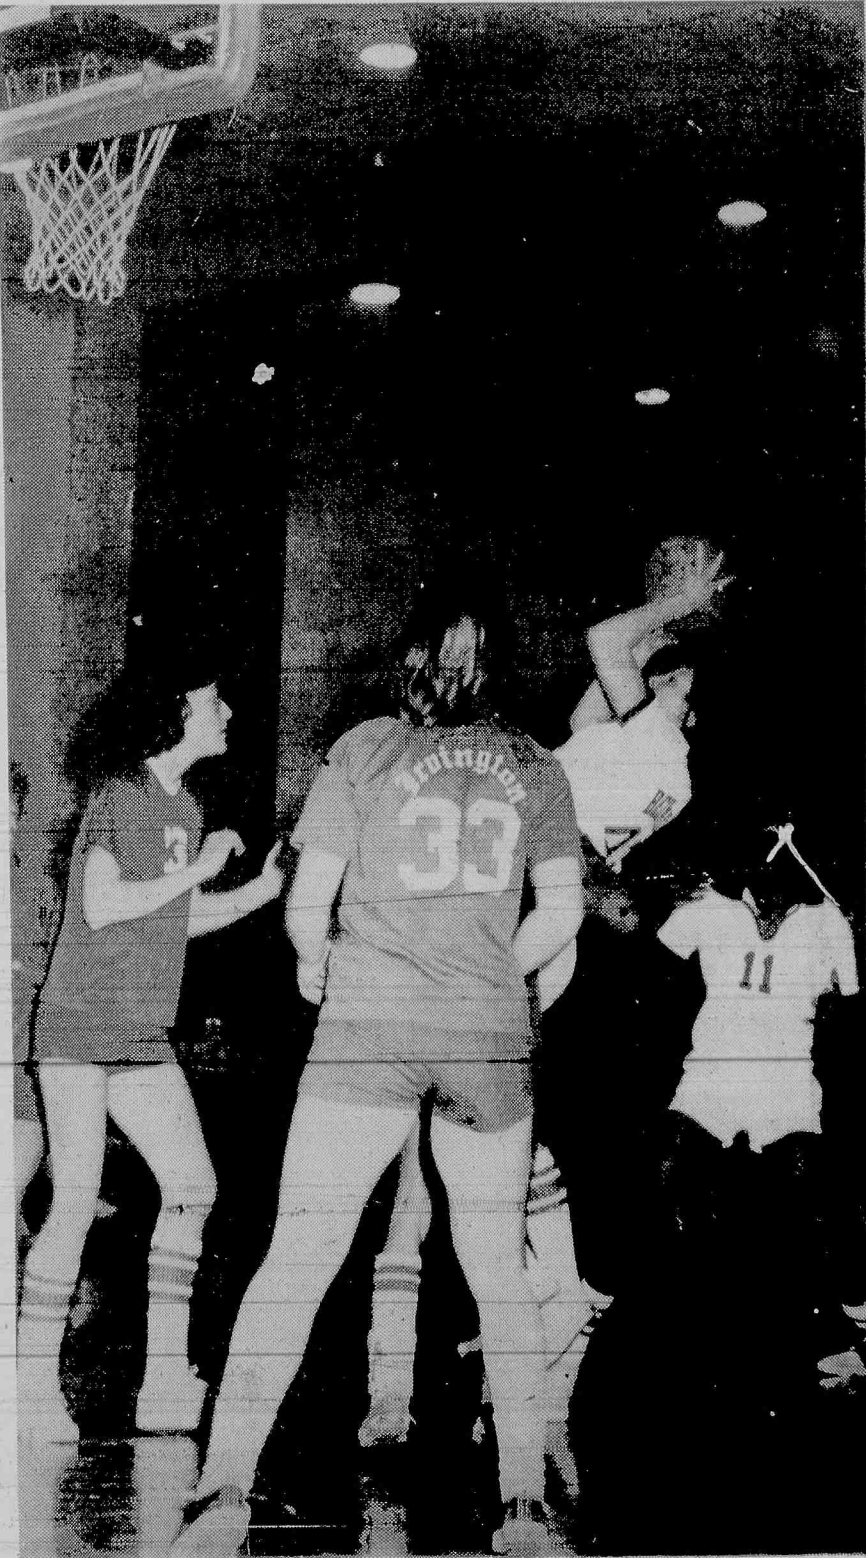

Carl Arlt led off for Belleville, and continued his unbeaten season by wiping up the mat with Bob Hull and taking a 19-1 decision to put the BHS tangles on the scoreboard first.

Bob Freda followed Arlt at 108, but ran into trouble with tough Marty Schreck. Schreck eventually took the match, 5-7, but coach Silvestri still said the boy did "an excellent job."

Win and lose — It was up and down for the Bellgirl varsity basketball squad this past week as the women first took one from Irvington and then dropped the Nutley contest. Above, Carol Lelio (4) beats her Irvington opponents on the fast break and lays up two more points for the hometowners. Below, Bellgirl Nancy Skruttskie attempts a fall away jumper in heavy traffic as teammate Fatima Anderson (11) closes in to cover in case a rebound is needed. The victory marked win number three for the female cagers this season, and it was the second time they had defeated the Campers.

LOSING STREAK STICKS

Hoopsters hammered

Belleville basketball fans looking for some good news in today's paper better rush through this article before they plow headlong into the black abyss of depression. You guessed it, the Bellboy cagers dropped two more games, sinking their record down to 1-14.

Tuesday, the team traveled to Nutley, only to be sent packing with a 55-42 loss.

Craig cagers prep for pros

As the annual Craig Fund game approaches, pro coach Michael Chieffo is expanding and strengthening his roster while opposition All Star coach Rich Luzzi is still carrying on covert negotiations in an effort to build up his team.

Last week, Chieffo said he would romp over Luzzi's team by at least 15 points, and if physical prowess is the determining factor, his men may well do Raiders. Ed Marinaro of the Minnesota Vikings, Bob Tucker of the Giants and Jets Burgess Owens, Steve Reese, Rich Lewis, Emerson Boozer and Rich Caster. Bob Davis, formerly of the Philadelphia Bell will also be on hand, Chieffo said.

Though Luzzi is trying to keep the names of his players under wraps, it was learned this week he already has a partial line-up.

Slated for the Craig Fund All Stars are such local heavies as Frank Zinna, Lou Raniero, Rocco Marotti, Jim Nijivoccia, Gary Lombardi and Al Patierno.

Luzzi is openly worried about the possibility of a physical game, saying, "If it's a physical game, we will have to try and

Please see page 12.

It was the same story last Friday when they rolled out to Irvington and trudged back with a 58-38 loss for their record books.

Tomorrow, the Bellboys host the Kearny Cardinals. Due to trouble at the Kearny/Belleville wrestling match, the game has been changed from an evening affair to a 3:45 time slot.

Last time out, Belleville lost to the Cardinals, 66-57, but the coming visitors aren't sporting that good a record and coach Dan Grasso and his men could conceivably have something to celebrate this weekend.

Kearny, in fact, has only one win in Big Ten competition—the victory over Belleville—so maybe the Blue-Gold hoopsters can register at least one more win.

The Maroon Raiders cut the Bellboys off cold right from the start of Tuesday's game and led from the beginning to the very end.

Nutley dominated the first half of play, and Belleville seemed to have trouble getting its act together as the team committed some glaring mistakes resulting in costly turnovers. Some of the boys seemed to have trouble handling the ball and either bobbled it or threw it away.

The team played hard, but by half-time, the Blue-Gold hoopsters found themselves down by 10. They could take some pride, however, in containing some of Nutley's usually high scorers, but the other players got enough points on the board to do Belleville in.

The hometowners looked like they might be coming alive late in the third quarter, and as the game rolled into the last period, they had cut

Please see page 12.

Girls cream Campers but ripped by Raiders

A brief trip to the winner's circle was in order for the Bellgirl varsity cage squad last week, but it was back to loser's row again this week after yet another loss.

Last Friday, the girls were, for the second time this season, victorious over the Irvington Campers, this time by a tally of 44-25. They could not get around the Nutley roadblock on Tuesday, though, and went back to the losing column with a 57-25 defeat.

The team record now stands at 3-11.

Tomorrow, the girls travel to Kearny to take on the Cardinals for the third time this year. The game, originally scheduled for 8 p.m. has been changed to 3:45 p.m.

The girls beat the Cardinals once this season and coach Karen Fuccello is hoping they can do it again.

Coach Fuccello had nothing but praise for the team that handed the Bellgirls loss number 11 this week, saying of the Maroon Raiders, "They are ranked 19th in the state, but they really should be much higher. Nutley is just a superior ball club."

The Belleville women came out in the first quarter of the Nutley game and looked like a fine ball team themselves, Please see page 12.

Abdel: rising Rutgers star

While the Bellboy varsity basketball squad may not be doing very well this year, at least one former star is shining in the college hoop firmament.

Bellevilleite Abdel Anderson, an outstanding ball player for Belleville for four years, is doing his thing at Rutgers University and is turning heads around with his ever improving play.

Anderson graduated from Belleville high last year, and left a trail of shattered records behind him. Now, he is well on his way to establishing himself as a big hoop name at Rutgers.

Though he hasn't yet broken into the starting line-up, Anderson has appeared in 16 games for the Scarlet Knights and each time has turned in a well rounded performance.

So far this year, the six foot seven inch Bellevilleite has scored a total of 142 points for his school and pulled down 55 rebounds.

The big man's shooting accuracy from the floor has been excellent as he fires the sphere through the hoop. He's averaging almost nine points per game, even in his limited appearances, and he is hitting almost 60 per cent of his shots.

Anderson is doing equally well from the foul line, scoring 36 points for the Scarlet Knights and establishing his percentage from the line at 78.

As if that is not enough for the "Big A," he has also registered 10 assists, 10 steals, and eight blocked shots. It appears he is continually developing his skills as an all around player.

Rutgers coach Tom Young was very pleased to be able to coax Anderson over to his side, and added to a host of other stars residing at the school, can look forward to some strong teams.

The coach said he felt Anderson was an aggressive rebounder and also a fine outside shot.

This season, the freshman Anderson may be overshadowed by some of Rutgers' big names, such as Phil Sellers and Mike Dabney, but in the future, there's a good chance the local boy may surface as a star in his own right.

Basketball fans who would like to see Anderson play should tune into Channel 50 for upcoming televised Rutgers games. The following games are scheduled for broadcast:

February 7, Navy; February 9, Delaware; February 18, Syracuse; March 1, St. Bonaventure.

All the games are scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

The Scarlet Knights' February 14 game in Madison Square Garden against Manhattan is scheduled to be broadcast by WNBC-TV as the ECAC Game of the Week. The telecast will begin at either 1 p.m. or 3 p.m. superior at the 115 pound level, and proved his skill by pinning Tony Carratura at 3:15. The win for Mustacchio is even more significant since he had missed two days of practice the previous week and the Bloomfield meet due to illness.

There followed for Belleville the long, black tunnel made up of the middle weights. The Blue-Gold men lost the next four matches, two by pins, and found themselves fighting to regain a great deal of lost ground.

Coach Silvestri said the relative inexperience of the men in the middle weights may have been the telling factor in the four losses. "I think the greenness really showed," said Silvestri. "Kearny and Belleville have always had a great rivalry, and the pressure generated may have been too much for these boys. Things looked pretty bleak in the middle weights."

Mark DeGiacomo at 122, Ron Grolimond at 129, 135 pounder Bob Racioppi and Tom Zarra at 141 all went down before their Kearny rivals. DeGiacomo and Zarra were both pinned by tough opponents, and those points added to the decisions lost by the other Bellboys really put the upper weight tangles into a vise. If at least three men failed to pin a Kardinal, the match would have gone down the tubes.

The next three Belleville wrestlers all but pulled the match out of the fire.

Robert Villano came through for his team by wrestling Ted Mroz on to his back after 5:22 for the first pin.

Undeclared Chris Tremel at 158 kept the engine rolling by pinning his man, Bob Bednarczyk at 5:32.

Not to be out done, Keith Waddell worked Kardinal Mike Garfinkel into pin position at 5:37, giving Belleville a definite hype.

Bellevilleite Ken Milano had the misfortune of taking on Bruce McWilliams for the 188 pound match, and ended up losing a close contest, 4-1.

That set the stage for the D'Alessandro-Battaglino battle. At the end of the allotted time, D'Alessandro had a 6-1 advantage, and became a kind of minor hero of the day.

The Bellboy-Bengal outing last Wednesday was a completely different story. There was no post-game battle, and there was hardly any contest on the mat. Belleville walked away with a 52-10 win.

Nine of the 12 local wrestlers who took to the mat registered wins against Bloomfield opponents, and seven of those nine did it by pinning their opponents. Two of the Bellboys lost, and one tied.

Arlt, Andy Schenke at 141, Villano, Tremel, Waddell, Milano and D'Alessandro all had their Bengal counterparts squirming on their backs for the count. From the 135 pound level on, it was Belleville all the way, and starting with Schenke, every Bellboy pinned.

DeGiacomo and Racioppi both decided their opponents for wins, DeGiacomo whipping Paul Young, 18-1, and Racioppi shutting out Al Rodriguez, 5-0.

Mark D'Amico, filling for the ill Mustacchio at 115 and Dominick DeNardo, filling for Grolimond at 129, both lost in decisions.

The win was no great surprise to coach Silvestri and the team. The coach characterized the Bengals as "fairly weak, though they do have a few good wrestlers. We were fairly confident we could beat them."

That same confidence doesn't extend to the Pascack Hills match this Saturday, the last of the regular season. Silvestri said the team will be a very difficult opponent, adding, "They are tough. They've got 52 wins in a row coming against us, and we will either be number 53 or break their streak for them."

"It's not beyond our reach," Silvestri continued. "The boys know its there, and if we want it bad enough, we can take them."

Last year, Pascack Hills was one of two teams which put the Bellboys under. The other was Becton in the first match of the season.

Nutley's lead down to only five points.

There was still plenty of time left, however, and the Raiders were not done with their guests.

Belleville seemed to go sour again shortly thereafter, and once again began committing the costly errors. The Nutley men were quick to pounce on any opportunity, and blew away from their opponents, raising their lead to 15 points.

A shot at the buzzer by Tom Smith hit, and Belleville finished the game down by 13 points and the loser once again.

Some of the Belleville fans present at the contest questioned the ability of the officials. Some called it the worst the team had all season and said it went a long way in helping the Nutley team to victory. Still, the fact remains the Raiders won the contest and Belleville took it on the chin again.

Tickets for the event are $2.50 and can be purchased at Washington Avenue merchants and through trustees of the fund.

The Irvington Campers ended January for the Bellboy hoopsters on the same cold note they started it off on—defeat. The Irvington squad swamped the Bellevilleites, 58-38.

The Blue-Gold hardwooders started out strong against Irvington, but slowly, their game play decayed, and they allowed the Campers to catch up and run ahead.

Belleville did well during the first quarter, one of its better starts all season. The defense held firm, and the offense steadily fired away at the net, hitting for 10 points in the period.

The team had a slight one point lead at the end of the first quarter, but the tide of the game began to turn during the second time segment as the Irvington team came bounding back.

throwing a scare into the Nutley women by keeping within two points of them. Unfortunately, the scare was only momentary.

The Nutley team got its breath back in the second period and began to apply the pressure to the Bellgirls. At the same time, the Blue-Gold hoopsters became rattled and started committing just enough mistakes for their opponents to capitalize on.

"We let them control the tempo of the game. They came out for the second half all psyched up and when we made an error, they took advantage of it."

The girls were outgunned both offensively and defensively as the Nutley women boxed out the tall Bellgirls and grabbed down virtually every rebound. With the exception of Carol Lelio's 14 points, and was all together a dismal day for the Bellevilleites.

The Bellgirls took a brief respite from their trek across the desert of losses last Friday when the Irvington Campers provided them with their second winning oasis of the year, a 44-25 victory.

This was the second time this year these two teams met, and it was the second time Belleville came out on top. This win was more decisive than the first, coach Fuccello said, and therefore was indicative of the team's improvement.

Still, said the coach, the team was not quite up where she would like to see it.

"I didn't think we played that well," said Fuccello, "but at this point, you take a victory any way you can get it. We need four good periods, and we only had three this time."

Fuccello said her team went flat during the third quarter when they were out-scored by the Campers. The girls had a lead going into the period, and perhaps they were resting on their laurels. If that was the case, they regained their momentum for the fourth period and saved the game for themselves.

The coach picked the decision to move Carol Lelio over to the second guard position as one of the keys to the win. According to Fuccello, Lelio now is able to take the outside shot, giving her team at least a chance of scoring, while the big girls on the team, Nancy Skrutskie and Fatima Anderson work under the boards for the rebounds.

Skrutskie and Anderson still have to improve on the boards, the coach said, but they managed to pull enough down against Irvington to be a big asset to the team.

The team is still weak on its fast break, though. Several times during the Camper contest, the Bellgirls had golden opportunities to rush the ball down to their end and hit the net, but they opted for the more conservative game.

"They still hesitate," said Fuccello. "When we do have an opportunity for the fast break we should take it, but this team doesn't seem to want to do it."

Tomorrow, it's a trip across the river to Kearny for the girls. The Kardinals are the only other team this season the Blue-Gold women have beaten, and coach Fuccello has been working towards a repeat performance.

With a little bit of luck, the Kardinals may become victim number four for the Bellevilleites.

DeWitt Savings realigns its '76 slate of officers

A restructured slate of Officers at DeWitt Savings has been announced by Robert M. Williams, president of DeWitt and a director of the Association. The changes, election of new officers, and reelection of others were acted upon at a recent meeting of the Board of Directors.

Following is the new DeWitt officer slate:

Norman H. Butt, vice president and secretary. Butt, formerly vice president was reelected to fill both posts.

Williams, on behalf of the Board, expressed his gratitude to the two former officers for their many years of dedicated loyalty, faithful service, and unfailing cooperation with the other officers and the Staff of DeWitt.

"Both Mrs. Colehamer and Mrs. McMullen were with the Association for over 10 years," Williams said, "and served with competence, cheerfulness, and enthusiasm. Everyone at the Association extends their best wishes to both for a happy retirement."

Williams reported to the Board that the Association has surpassed $70 million in assets, a new record of growth for DeWitt. Other new records were also reported in members' savings and mortgage loans. He also reported that DeWitt is rapidly becoming one of the State's larger Savings and Loan Associations in terms of asset size and members' savings.

Williams, who previously was, for five years, executive vice president of DeWitt, is also the newly-elected President of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce; the President of the Essex County League of Savings and Loans, the Chairman of the County League of Savings and Loans, the Immediate Past President of the Belleville Lions Club.

Kidde Co. contest aimed at customers

In November 1975, as the result of a series of investigative management sessions at its Belleville facility, Walter Kidde & Company, Inc. initiated a six-week long "Customer is King" contest to promote among its employees a greater awareness of customers' needs, schedule requirements, and desires for value. Management personnel at Kidde were explicitly excluded from entering the contest.

The contest proved to be a highly successful innovation, reports the company. Participants were asked to submit, along with a sketch of a cartoon figure named "King Kidde," a concise, 50-word blurb on "How My Job Helps Make the Customer King." From well over a hundred entries, a panel of judges selected three winners. Prizes were awarded to the winners in a jam-packed awards ceremony held in the company cafeteria on January 19.

First prize, a 23-inch console color TV, went to Michael Pinkett, a senior toolmaker on the 4:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. shift at Kidde. Second prize, a handsome stereo set, was awarded to Arnold Alvine, a 24-year veteran in the company's Methods Department. And the third prize, an XL Polaroid Land Camera, went to Mrs. Barbara Tognola, a technical typist in the Engineering Department.

Kidde plans to continue these incentive programs to intensify employee sensitivity towards customer needs and wants as a gateway to securing a greater percentage of the safety, security, and protection marketplace.

NLT's 'Oz' is Feb. 28

Nutley Little Theater officials have announced that Gabriel Getting will assume the directorial duties for their children's musical, "The Wizard of Oz." Ms. Getting, a resident of Nutley, replaces Tony Betta of Irvington, who had to resign his position because of illness.

Ms. Getting, who is also playing the role of Dorothy, admits directing and acting in the same show is a major task, but she's confident about the outcome. "It's going to be terrific. We'll knock them out of their seats," she reports. Her directing experience comes from conducting a young people's acting workshop, which is part of Nutley's recreational program. For "The Wizard of Oz," Ms. Getting will be assisted by stage manager, Mike Cappaccio.

Nutley Little Theater will present "The Wizard of Oz," Saturday, February 28 and Sunday, February 29, as previously announced. Shows will be 1 a.m. and 3 p.m. each day at Nutley High School, 300 Franklin Avenue, Nutley. Tickets are $1.25 and will only be sold at the door. Reservations and group sales can be arranged by calling 667-8189.
