AND PROMISE OF FIGHT

Desegregation plan gets state go-ahead

By Mike Olohan

Belleville's desegregation plan has now received official state approval, but both School 1 and School 2 parents refuse to concede anything, emphasizing trustees' reasons for closing their schools are both unfair and unfounded.

Because no School Board meeting was held this week, trustees got no immediate reaction from citizens to State Education Commissioner Fred Burke's okay of their plan. "You may proceed to implement the desegregation plan approved by the Belleville Board of Education on April 14. A progress report must be submitted to the department of education during July 1981," wrote Burke.

The nearly three-month delay in approving the desegregation plan, which closes School 1 in the Valley and School 2 in the Silver Lake section and creates four "magnet" programs, was marked by indecision and second thoughts by both trustees and state officials.

Trustees considered rescinding the desegregation plan though no rescinding motion was ever brought to a vote, while state officials wondered why School 1 was closing instead of School 9, which made School 1 parents think their building might still have a chance.

The feelings of parents whose children will lose their neighborhood schools were never in doubt, however. "All stops come out now, we're going as far as it takes," said Valley Association President Bob May Monday. His group has been fighting to save School 1, with little encouragement from board members.

"They made their decision prior to the March 3 meeting," said May, emphasizing the oft-repeated charge that trustees had preconceived ideas about which schools they wanted to close. "I think we have a good chance of winning (a lawsuit). We're taking this further. We're not going to make it any easier for them."

Most trustees say they sympathize with the predicaments of parents, and are willing to listen to their views, but will not change their minds about closing School 1 or 2.

"I go along with it," said Trustee Anthony D'Agostino, referring to Burke's okay of Belleville's plan. "Now it's just a matter of them reacting to it...certainly they (School 1 and 2 parents) have the right to sue and appeal this. But I'm not deviating from any campaign promise — I think both these schools should be sold," he added.

Calling the decision to close Please see "Fight" on page 17.

Magnet programs — can they work?

Two of Belleville's "magnet" programs, cornerstones of the school system's desegregation plan, should be ready by the fall, and two more by the beginning of next year, but what impact they will have and how they will be accepted by the community is uncertain.

The problems inherent in voluntary "magnet" programs won't be easily solved. Voluntary magnets, under which schools are set up for individual subjects, are supposed to attract students — while better mixing them racially — but questions remain as to whether parents will send their children to magnet programs, despite their high quality.

Trustees and administrators concede the magnet programs merely complement the desegregation plan, which closes two schools to force minority movement. Since magnet programs have to be voluntary, their success or failure is based more on both parents' and children's understanding of them than anything else.

Although magnet plans were originally proposed as the solution to Belleville's desegregation problem, trustees didn't feel magnets alone would guarantee movement of minorities. Thus two schools were closed.

Belleville's academically talented and English as a second language magnets will probably start come September, but its fine arts and fundamental (basic skills) curriculums won't be introduced until January or February, according to School Superintendent Dr. John Greed.

Committees on fine arts, basic skills and academically talented met for three weeks recently and devised detailed curriculums that Greed said will soon be available to the public. How well the magnets work may have a lot to do with whether trustees can convince parents they are worthwhile.

Montclair has used magnets to solve its desegregation problem, "but it was not a desegregation effort so much as the program the parents want their youngsters to attend" that made it successful, Trustee Caesar Romano has noted.

While Belleville's magnets aren't the backbone of its desegregation plan as in Montclair, eventually magnets may be able to integrate the schools if every school develops a

MS therapy clinic runs into unexpected delay

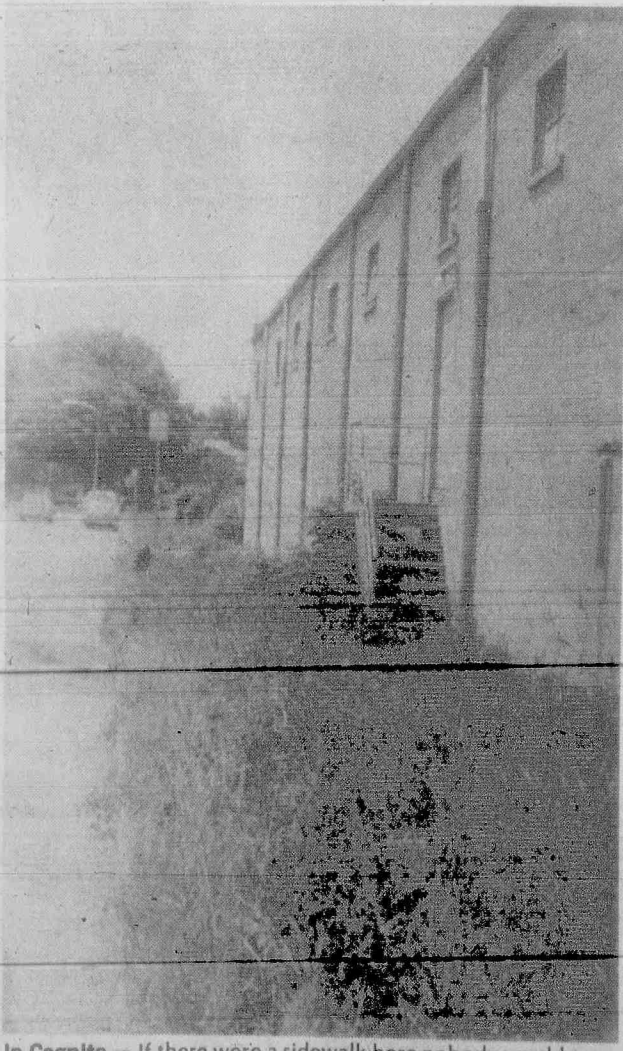

The Multiple Sclerosis Association of Essex County will delay its application to build a therapy center in Belleville another month, waiting to see if it has enough money available to hire the full-time help it needs to get approval for the project.

The town donated a vacant lot at Bella Vista Avenue and Ralph Street in the Valley to the association two-and-a-half years ago. Terms of the agreement called for the property to be used for a therapy center, and that is why the association's application to the Zoning Board of Adjustment ran into a snag last month when it was first presented.

The association plans to construct a one-story building at which MS patients can get therapy but will need time and money before the operation gets in full swing. In the meanwhile, the association proposes using the center as meeting place for MS victims and as office space for itself. However, the agreement with the town says a therapy center must be constructed on the property, and the Zoning Board balked at granting the association's application because it felt that stipulation might be violated.

The application was supposed to Please see "Clinic" on page 17.

Teachers, trustees close to a contract settlement

Months of quiet, closed-door negotiating appear to have paid off with School Board and teacher representatives nearing agreement on a new contract.

Two years ago, picketing, name-calling and public criticism divided trustees and teacher union negotiators, but both sides this year have avoided any public charges against each other, hoping for early agreement.

Belleville School Board Attorney Lawrence Schwartz says an agreement could be reached in several weeks and BEA President Paul Del Polito agrees.

"We accomplished a great deal (last Thursday)," said Schwartz Tuesday afternoon from his law office on Washington Avenue. "We're very close to an agreement right now."

Schwartz said both sides have a "good" working relationship. "I hate to classify any relationship," he said, noting both sides are optimistic about an early settlement.

"Three's been a lot of progress. I'm sure we'll have a contract by September," said Del Polito Tuesday night, making a rare public statement. The BEA, like the Board of Ed, has been restrained in commenting on the negotiations, choosing not to use the press to gain any leverage from public opinion.

"It's not completed yet," said Del Polito of the contract, adding that specific details of the pact couldn't be released until it was approved by Belleville's teachers when they come back in September.

Early in July, negotiators said "the whole contract" was still being discussed, but apparently many issues have been settled over the last several meetings.

Schwartz noted that Senate Bill 750, which attempts to reopen a "permissible category" of negotiable items like class size, curriculum, teacher transfers and budget input, has had an impact on the two sides here, but he stressed that no extra topics had been introduced into contract talks because of pending legislation.

In 1978, New Jersey's Public Employment Relations Commission barred public sector negotiators from discussing any "permissible category" of topics, noting that would exclude public participation from public decisions and "endanger the very foundation of representative democracy."

Del Polito made a point of saying that despite near-agreement on a contract, nothing's final until the total BEA membership votes on it. However, parents — if not children — can now breathe easier with the threat of a teacher job action or slowdown seemingly averted.

Coalition working for river clean-up

Worried about the problems being caused by the Passaic Valley Sewerage Commission's uncontrolled daily dumping of 250 million gallons of sewage into Newark Bay, the Passaic River Coalition is trying to organize 19 towns bordering the river, including Belleville, to help clean up and police it.

Belleville officials have been notified about the coalition's efforts and will probably send a representative to the meeting Tuesday at North Arlington's Borough Hall — the second meeting this summer. A small group, including Belleville Deputy Mayor Aldo DiChiara and mayors from North Arlington, Kearny and Rutherford, attended the coalition's organizational meeting June 30.

The Passaic River Coalition is trying to organize 19 towns running from the Dundee Dam in Clifton down to Newark Bay along the Passaic to put pressure not only on PVSC to stop dumping of raw sewage into Newark Bay, but to build a united waterfront community committed to ridding the Passaic of pollution.

The PVSC has been dumping untreated sewage directly into Newark Bay since last winter while construction took place on a five-mile-long outflow pipe from its new treatment plant — causing the bay to literally become a dead sea lacking any nutrients to support life.

"That sewage flushes up the Newark Bay as well as out of it," said Ella Filippone, executive director of the nearly 10-year-old Passaic River Coalition. She noted that health officials in Elizabeth "have recently testified that 15 residents living by waters flowing from the Newark Bay in Elizabeth were rushed to the hospital suffering from symptoms attributable to incredibly high levels of fecal coli and coliform bacteria."

For seven months, PVSC has been dumping raw sewage into Newark Bay, turning it into what many consider an open septic tank. The dumping is supposed to stop by Aug. 17, but it's unsure exactly how much damage has been done and what future effect it will have on the

First DeWitt Savings offering NOW accounts to customers

First DeWitt Savings is offering its customers checking account services. The joint announcement was made by John P. Dailey, chairman, and Henrik Tvedt, president of the association.

Technically known as NOW accounts (for Negotiated Order of Withdrawal), the new First DeWitt checking account system offers the best of both worlds to savers — the convenience of checking, plus a 5 percent dividend paid on checking account balances of $500 or more.

According to Dailey, the system works as follows:

A saver can open a checking account for as little as $100. With balances of $500 or more, however, a customer's checking is absolutely free.

If a balance falls below $500, a service fee is charged depending on the balance. Details are available from tellers.

Each month the customer receives a detailed statement of check transactions during the month as well as any dividends credited to the account.

Checks are in two parts, an original, and a non-negotiable duplicate copy which provides customers with an accurate record of every check written. All canceled checks are held in safekeeping at First DeWitt.

Tvedt urged all First DeWitt customers to avail themselves of the new checking privileges. "Now our customers can have one-stop banking," he said. "This new financial convenience rounds out the many fine services we offer and affords our customers major savings in time, trouble and travel. And to top it off, the double advantage of checking plus interest on your balance makes it ideal for those who write just a few checks monthly, or those with volume checking activity."

Further details are available from any First DeWitt teller at any of the following locations: main office, 463 Washington Ave., Belleville; Bloomfield Center office, 667 Bloomfield Ave., Bloomfield; Watsessing office, 20 Watsessing Ave., Bloomfield; Brookdale office, Broad Street and Watchung, Bloomfield; Forest Hill office, 60 Belleville Ave., Bloomfield; Hopatcong office, Sharp Avenue and Hopatcong Road, Hopatcong.

Top Saleslady — Helen A. Guster of 23 Cedar Hill Ave. was honored during a five-day business and educational conference with officers and leading sales representatives of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company at the Bahamas Princess Hotel. During 1979, she achieved an outstanding sales and service record and placed in the top 3 percent of Metropolitan's 20,000 sales representatives in the United States and Canada. She is associated with the company's Broadacres office in Bloomfield.

Chamber Notes

Shapiro to speak

Put this date on your calendar: Tuesday, Sept. 16, when all members of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce are invited to attend a meeting at The Fountain beginning 12 noon. Here, in addition to an important message from our speaker, Essex County Executive Peter Shapiro, members will have the opportunity to make suggestions for programs and projects to be undertaken by the Chamber of Commerce.

It is impossible to understand how any member of Congress could be so dumb as to introduce a withholding tax on Social Security or that 15 percent of interest or dividends be withheld and sent to the government. Not only would this produce more paperwork under which we are already buried, but it would be most harmful to the elderly, many of whom sacrificed during their working years and saved money so that they could take care of themselves when retired and not be a burden on the working people by going on welfare. Sending 15 percent of dividends or interest to the government would reduce the base upon which interest is calculated, hence, a reduction in income. Fortunately, that bill has been defeated — for the time being.

Both parties will soon have hammered out platforms. Wouldn't it be great and interesting if the party that wins the presidential election would pay some attention to its platform after the election and not just use it to get elected, as seems to be the case throughout years?

Fidelity Union experiences a fairly profitable first half

Income of Fidelity Union Bancorporation (NYSE) before securities transactions for the first six months of 1980 was $11,422,000 or $3.01 per share, an increase of 11.1 cents a share. Peter Cartmell, chairman announced today. Income before securities transactions for the same period last year was $10,390,000, or $2.71 per share. Net income, after securities transactions totalled $11,283,000 or $2.97 per share, compared with $10,393,000 or $2.71 per share in 1979.

For the three-month period ending June 30, 1980, income before securities transactions was $5,229,000 or $1.38 per share, a decrease of 1.4 cents a share, compared with $5,361,000 or $1.40 per share for the same period last year. Net income after securities transactions totaled $5,229,000 or $1.38 per share, versus $5,361,000 or $1.40 per share in 1979.

The earnings results for the three-month and six-month periods ending June 30 were affected by two insurance recoveries, one which increased income before securities transactions by $621,000 after taxes in the second quarter of 1979 and another which increased income before securities transactions by $1,242,000 after taxes in the first quarter of 1980. Excluding both of these insurance recoveries, income before securities transactions for the three-month period ending June 30, 1980, increased 11.3 cents per share and for the six-month period ending June 30, 1980, 5.1 cents a share.

Cartmell noted that the improvement in earnings, as adjusted, of 11.3 cents for the second quarter resulted from a substantial improvement in net interest margin at the lead bank, Fidelity Union Trust Company, during a period of declining interest rates. "We do not anticipate that this improvement will continue for the balance of 1980 as the prime lending rate is now more in line with its historic relationship with the cost of money," he said.

Figures reported by the Bancorporation consolidate the results of its five member banks, Fidelity Union Trust Company, Colonial First National Bank, The National Bank of New Jersey, Burlington County Trust Company and Fidelity Union Trust Company NA, and non-bank subsidiary Suburban Trust Company. The figures are based on average shares outstanding of 3.8 million in 1980 and 3.829 million in 1979.

Figures for Garden State National Bank are not included since the acquisition was not made by Fidelity until July 1980. Garden State reported income before securities transactions for the six-month period ending June 30, 1980, of $4,598,000 and total assets at June 30, 1980, of $838,491,000.

Fidelity's board of directors has voted a regular quarterly dividend of 70 cents a share, payable Aug. 15, to shareholders of record as of July 30. The annual cash dividend rate is $2.80 per share.

Postmaster offers some vacation tips

Before leaving on vacation, several simple steps will ensure that your mail is handled smoothly while you're away.

"Ask a neighbor or relative to remove mail and newspapers from your mailbox daily, or have mail held at the post office," suggests Newark Postmaster Joseph Benucci. "A written request to hold mail up to 30 days can be given to your letter carrier or submitted at the local post office. If an extended absence is anticipated, a temporary mail forwarding order can be requested."

Benucci stressed the importance of not letting mail accumulate in a mailbox, noting, "It's a sign even novice burglars can detect."

Other tips include taking an ample supply of stamps and postal cards on your trip and remembering to take the addresses of those to whom you may write. Don't forget, post cards require only 10 cents postage, while standard letters one ounce or less need a 15-cent stamp.

Protein is not stored by the human body as are carbohydrates and fats. It must be supplied regularly by eating animal or plant foods in which it is contained. In addition to building and repairing tissues, protein is needed to manufacture certain regulating substances which control specific, complex body functions. Excess amounts of protein serve in an additional capacity. They are converted and utilized as a source of energy. Approximately 10 to 15 percent of daily calorie requirements should actually be provided by foods that are rich in either animal or plant protein.

Backyard chase ends in jail for a teenager nabbed here

Caught! After a wild, headlong footrace through backyard shrubbery, over brick walls and cyclone fences in an attempt to outrun Belleville and Bloomfield police, 19-year-old Matthew Russo was found hiding behind a bush, taken into custody and charged with criminal trespassing at 203 Brighton Ave. in the small hours of June 6.

Residents along the Belleville-Bloomfield borderline had been suffering a rash of burglaries over the past several weeks. Bloomfield officers patrolling the area spotted Russo walking along Harrison Street in Belleville and decided to follow him in their car with all lights out.

Russo led the officers to the Brighton Avenue residence where he walked up the long driveway to the side entrance. "From the street, it appeared as though the suspect was jimmying the door," testified Bloomfield officer Peter Fehenback in Municipal Court last week. "We flashed him with our sidelight and called out to him inquiring what he was up to," said Fehenback. Russo took several steps toward the car and then suddenly bolted in the opposite direction leading to his capture and arrest.

Judge Edward Abromson asked Russo for his story. "Your honor, I was returning from a bachelor's party and I didn't relize where I was or what I was doing," explained Russo, a resident of 5 Montgomery St., Bloomfield.

"You knew well enough to flee the police," responded Judge Abromson curtly. "I suppose that you live in the bush you were found behind." The judge found Russo guilty and sentenced him to 30 days in the Essex County Correction Center.

Grayling Williams, 25, 90 Brighton Ave., Kearny, was found guilty of possession of two hypodermic needles and of being under the influence of an injected narcotic in the early morning of June 15.

Williams, an employee of Embroidery Management Corporation., Newark, was one of four men spotted by officers Joseph Simonetti and Louis Pomponio parked off Washington Avenue. When the two officers came up to the parked vehicle they took the four by complete surprise. One of the four men tossed a vial of pills from the window and Williams, sitting in the front passenger seat, was observed to reach beneath it. He was found to have hidden two hypodermic needles and was also discovered to have needle marks on his arm with the blood freshly coagulated, indicating injection two to three hours prior to his arrest.

Williams, speaking on his own behalf, said he had not been under the influence of drugs but that he had been drinking. He said the needle marks were the result of a blood test taken the previous day when he had paid a visit to the Williams Street Clinic in Newark.

Williams admitted that there was a point in his life when he was taking narcotics regularly but said he had refrained from using any drugs in the recent past. He claimed to be hiding a hunting knife, found in the car along with the needles, when he was reaching under the seat. "I carry the knife for protection," Williams said.

Williams brought his grandmother into court as a character witness. "We always tried to bring him up to be a proper young man," she said.

"In sentencing your grandson, you must understand that I'm not blaming you," said Judge Abromson to Williams's grandmother. Williams was fined $400, told to stay off drugs and placed on supervisory probation for one year.

In another drug-related case, Sharon Perry, 20, 567 Montgomery St., Jersey City, was found guilty of passing a falsified prescription at Abbott's Pharmacy. She was fined $250 and sentenced to one year probation.

Waiting for Perry in a parked car outside of Abbott's was James Edward Jackson, 23, also of 567 Montgomery St., Jersey City. He was found guilty of possessing narcotics without a prescription. He was also fined $250 and placed on one-year probation.

Theodore Soppeck, 51, who had lived with Gail Barris at 192 Beech St., for a stretch of six years, was found guilty of breaking the rear entrance storm door of that residence and ripping it off its hinges on June 15. Soppeck, a big man, had been out drinking that evening and returned to his former home rather than his apartment. He was fined $150.

Judge Abromson also referred the case of a 23-year-old Montclair man to the Essex County Grand Jury. The man is charged with possession of a handgun without a permit and with firing four shots into his car out of frustration when his vehicle wouldn't start on the evening of July 15. He had been drinking at a Belleville bar.

Holy Family plans 10th tour of Italy

For the 10th consecutive year, Holy Family Church will sponsor a tour of Italy.

The group will travel via Alitalia to Rome. After a stay in the Eternal City which will feature an audience with Pope John Paul II, the travelers will visit Sorrento, Palermo, Agrigento and Taormina. The September trip marks the first time in 10 years the tour has stopped in Calabria and Sicily.

The journey will end Oct. 10, again with a trans-Atlantic flight by Alitalia jet to New York's JFK where the party will be met by a special bus for the trip to Nutley.

In Rome, visits will be made to the catacombs, the Vatican museum, St. Peter's Basilica, Tivoli, the Coliseum, the Roman Forum, Circus Maximus, the Spanish steps, and the tombs of the popes.

The Rev. Francis J. Blake, pastor of Holy Family, will accompany the tour throughout Italy.

Prayer for today

When everything is pleasant and bright
And the things we do turn out just right,
We feel without question that God is real,
For, when we are happy, how good we feel...
But when the tides turn and gone is the song
And misfortune comes and our plans go wrong,
Doubt creeps in and we start to wonder
And our thoughts about God are torn asunder—
For we feel deserted in time of deep stress,
Without God's presence to assure us and bless...
And it is then when our senses are reeling
We realize clearly it's Faith and not Feeling—
For it takes Great Faith to patiently wait,
Believing "God comes not too soon or too late."

School Desegregation

The New Jersey State Department of Education has approved a plan for our school district which calls for the closing of Schools 1 and 2.

Students from School 1 will attend Schools 3, 8, and 9, while pupils from School 2 will attend Schools 10 and 4. Before the plan can be implemented, much work must be done by the School Board. Transportation is a major problem, as well as the need to develop "magnet" programs providing instruction in English and a second language at School 7 and teaching academically talented children in two schools and basic skills in School 10. The school desegregation problem has been with us for years. The final answer is in. The state is the boss. Any challenge to the state directive must fall because education in New Jersey is a state-mandated program, a requirement of our state constitution. Education is subsidized by the state.

So — the sooner our School Board officials and PTA members recognize this is the end of the line, the sooner Belleville will be able to get its school system in order.

Any delay in implementing the state directive can only lead to further agony. We have had enough. The interest of our students requires that we obey the state directive.

Shah of Iran

Shah Mohammed Riza Pahlavi died at the age of 60 Sunday at a military hospital outside Cairo, eighteen months after he left his throne for a life of exile.

During his thirty-year reign, the Shah proved to be a bulwark of strength for America and the free world. Whatever else one might want to say about the Shah, no one can deny the fact that during the thirty years that he ruled Iran, he was our best friend among the Mideast oil-producing nations. He was the anchor that permitted the United States to protect its national interests in the Mideast. Proof of that fact is the disarray confronting us today in the Mideast. As long as the Shah ruled Iran, our national interests were not jeopardized. His ouster reversed our situation 100 percent.

He is charged by the nuts who are presently running Iran with crimes against the nation, against his people, and stealing money from the national treasury. Compared to the crimes that are being committed today in Iran under the guise of a holy war, the Shah in retrospect had the looks of a boy scout. The so-called religious people in power today in Iran are killing people daily without cause, with no consideration for what is right, with no consideration for what is decent and for what is humane.

By any standard of measure of behavior in the Mideast, the Shah served the best interests of his country and the national interests of America. It was a sad day for the United States to turn its back upon the Shah who was such a good friend for thirty years.

Rent control law is harming landlords and homeowners

To the Editor:

I have read with interest your editorial of June 26, 1980, "Time for an end to rent control?" and the scare tactics of the landlords. It seems to me the tenants have been using the same tactics on the commissioners for many years. (Votes)

Needless to say, neither the rents or the assessments of apartment buildings in general have kept pace with building costs. The New Jersey assessors' manual shows an increase in buildings costs of 116 percent over 1973, while the 5 percent increase allowed amounts to 41 percent over the same period. Because the value of apartment buildings are based upon income, the revaluations show, in general a 50 percent increase in assessment with some even lower. Naturally the taxes are lower and the reduced amount is passed on to the homeowner.

Now the 10 percent you refer to in the article is not on the investment but on the assessed valuation and to me as a homeowner promises lower taxes on the apartment and higher taxes to me as a homeowner. For example, an apartment building six doors removed from my home had a total assessment prior to revaluation of $280,500. After revaluation it was $428,400, an increase of 52 percent. The interesting fact the land increased from $68,000 to $178,500, but because of the rent level of the building, the building increased from $212,500 to $249,000, an increase of only 18 percent, while on my home six doors removed, the building assessment increased from $13,700 to $29,800, an increase of 118 percent. Obviously the taxes on the apartment were reduced while mine were substantially higher.

Obviously tax appeals if granted are going to further increase the burden to the homeowner. Incidentally, the 50-family apartment over taxes for 1980 is $18,935 or $379 per family prior to the rebate and credit at state level, while my taxes for 1980 are $2,470, and since almost 80 percent of our taxes go for school and county, the tenants' share is $303, while mine as a homeowner is $1,976. Do not the tenants use these facilities?

With most of the apartments in town the above condition prevails with one exception. In this complex, the assessment increased almost 100 percent. I have to assume the rents were already high. But think of the inequity. In one case, you will have a 10 percent return on a building, due to rent control, where the assessment is only 30 percent higher than 10 years ago and on another a 10 percent where the assessment is 100 percent over 10 years ago.

Then we come to fuel. In the building I occupy, the income in 1973 was $9,000. The 5 percent increase amounted to $450 in 1974. That year my taxes increased over $300 and my fuel $600, a total of $900. In 1978, the fuel was $1,700, income $11,000, rent increase $550. Fuel 1979, $2,400. Fuel alone, $800. With an average cost of 66 cents in 1979, I can expect a $1,200 increase in 1980. The 6 percent increase in rent is $720. Of course at time of revaluation, the total increase in assessment is 49 percent from $34,400 to $50,400 and this is the basis for the 10 percent return.

The 5 percent ceiling has completely distorted the whole picture particularly after revaluation, and to the homeowner, it would appear there can be no answer to the tax structure but to have it on the ballot and if successful, a revaluation of apartment buildings.

I hope prior to writing the editorial, your made a study of the situation and if so, tell me where I am wrong as it would give me great peace of mind.

Unemployment law 'rips off' the elderly

To the Editor:

As a long reader of The Belleville Times, I would like you to please print this in your editorial page. April 1, 1980, there was a law passed in New Jersey that if you are retired and working your monthly income of Social Security and private pension are more than $500 per month you cannot collect unemployment.

This is so wrong against the senior citizens who do work part or full time and cannot get what they paid into. It seems to me they are being ripped off.

Thank you very much if you enlighten all seniors on this.

Yours truly,
John Devine

Prior to revaluation, the board recognized the low assessments and applied the same percentage to the existing assessment on all buildings. These assessments were made prior to the controls and very more equalized than where the values have been made on existing rentals whether high or low.

It should follow that rents should rise in the same percentage as the cost of a home, but hardly so. A white oak home sold in 1974 for $40,000 with interest rates 8 percent costing $3,200. In 1980, they are selling for $70,000 with interest exceeding 12 percent. Interest cost, $8,400. A $200 apartment in 1973 is now up 41 percent to $281.40.

Both Belleville and Nutley are involved in senior citizen housing, and the papers indicate the cost to the taxpayer will be approximately $600 per month. Do we have any rents in Belleville approaching this figure?

When interest rates were 6 percent, apartments were selling on the basis of a 9 percent return. I ask you even if the return were 10 percent how a building can be sold for anywhere near replacement cost with mortgage money at 12 to 14 percent and if interest is considered an expense on a mortgaged property does the owner who has not mortgage get a higher return? Or does the tenant on a mortgaged property pay more rent than where there is no mortgage?

I know I have rambled, but whenever I read an editorial justifying the discrepancy of taxes between the tenant and the homeowner, I just have to make my feelings heard. Do they not use the school system or county facilities? I have had no children, but I want to share the cost, but our type of rent control along with the revaluation has placed more of the burden on the homeowner.

It is unfortunate that any gouging that exists took place prior to controls and to apply percentages under this condition makes it most inequitable both for some tenants and some owners. A prime example exists on two eight-family buildings of the same age and condition.

In one of the buildings in 1973, the rent for a three-room apartment was $130 per month, in the other the threat of rent control caused the owner to increase the rents to $230. With the applicable increases, the first building is now $184.72, while the second building is now $326.70. The increase on the low rental has been only $54.72, while on the high rent it was increased $96.70. The first building now produces $17,733, while the second building now has a rent roll of $31,363. Although the buildings are identical, obviously the second should be worth substantially more than the first and in making an assessment of value, that would have to be considered.

Now what about the tenant in the second building? If after making an appeal for 10 percent on the first building, the rent was increased to $250 per month, what recourse does the tenant paying $326.70 have?

The 5 percent for many years prior to revaluation makes it very difficult to come up with a formula based upon the assessment, but if the assessment made in 1968 were used plus a percentage based upon figures in the New Jersey assessors' manual, then the 10 percent might make some sense, as we had a free market and there was not the threat of rent control.

Even in Nutley, where in the first few years of control the rents were based upon the Cost of Living Index, plus the tax pass-through and the current 6 percent based upon the higher rent, the assessments are not in line with replacement cost and hence much of the taxes are being passed on to the homeowner. And in Nutley where no money was budgeted for the loss of state aid to schools in 1976 and taxes went up 12 percent, the rebate is based on the higher figure and the tenant gets 100 percent of the actual tax saving and the owners do not retain the 35 percent as they do in Belleville and the rebate is based upon the budgeted amount which was not forthcoming but included in the budget.

I know we are talking about Belleville but in one building I have an interest in in Nutley, at the time of revaluation the assessment increased 26 percent, $133,000 to $167,000. As a result, $1,705 was passed on the homeowner and $1,755 rebated to the tenants. As a result of the rebate, there was no increase in rent in 1977. In 1978, the insurance was $850, in 1980 it was $2,450 which took up another year of the increase, not to mention fuel costs. Based upon the assessed valuation, the return in 1979 was 8.2 percent, even though the building assessment is $118,000. It is insured for $175,000 and should be increased. Now how can a building be sold for the assessed value if it pays 8.2 with no mortgage and currently mortgage money is 12 to 14 percent?

What is the future of rental housing? Will investors construct apartments is the return does not exceed what can be obtained in the bank with very little appreciation in value? With private housing ranging from $800 to $1,000 per month, how many tenants are moving?

Again I say, the taxes on the apartments must increase and it must come from somewhere. Each year with increased costs, there is a greater basis for a tax appeal and the homeowner will have more of the burden passed on to him.

It was put on the ballot in Montclair and the homeowners rejected rent control. It is being tested shortly in West Orange. Bloomfield lessened the possibility with a 6 percent fuel adjustment. What have the commissioners in Belleville given the homeowner that would cause him to support rent control? Only higher taxes.

It is sad that the commissioners relied on the 10 percent, which would be understandable had the new assessments been in line with the percentage of increased absorbed by the homeowner. But even if they were in line with replacement costs in 1978 (revaluation 1977), this is two to three years later and the records will show that private housing is selling 40 to 50 percent above the assessment. Should not the apartments show some semblance of increase in value? Even taxes are up 12 percent (8 percent this year), insurance up 25 percent, fuel in 1977 44 cents, 1978 54 cents and now in 1980 99 cents, not to mention the plumber etc.

The cost of The Belleville Times June 1977-78 was $8. It is now $12. Up 50 percent. Would you like your return based upon those figures?

Prior to writing the editorial, your research must have come up with some of these figures and it would be appreciated if you would elaborate on your thinking. The homeowner would like to know.

Respectfully,
George B. Pifer

(Our 50 percent price increase didn't guarantee us a 50 percent profit. Belleville's rent control law guarantees landlords a 10 percent profit, a point Mr. Pifer only obscures with his array of figures.)

People can choose whether to buy a newspaper, but their choices are much more limited when it comes to shelter. The rent control law was adopted to ensure that they would have a place to live and that the gouging Mr. Pifer admits existed would cease. Though controls do hold down profits, they certainly don't end them. The so-called "hardship" provision of the law allows landlords unlimited rent increases when they fail to make at least a 10 percent return, based, as Mr. Pifer correctly notes, on the assessed valuation of their property. Thus, theoretically, if a landlord needed to charge $600 a month for an apartment to make his 10 percent return, he could do it.

One of several factors used to determine the size of a hardship increase is the cost of fuel. Commissioners, realizing that fuel was already part of the hardship formula, decided correctly this May that a fuel surcharge would be redundant.

Other points: Assessed valuation is not based on income alone but on comparable sales and depreciated replacement costs... Assessment comparisons between houses and apartments are invalid. A room in Mr. Pifer's home, for instance, would probably be larger and more desirable, and therefore more valuable than one in the apartments nearby. Then too, the equity on a single-family home makes it worth more when it's sold, and houses, like apartments, are put on the market by realtors.

Finally, a few examples taken in isolation do not prove that the tax burden has been shifting to homeowners since the advent of rent control here in 1974. We will be examining the rent control issue in more depth soon and hope to have some answers to questions about the law. — Editor)

Center last Wednesday.

With its new location in Belleville, the center carries a wide variety of household pets. Its accommodating and personable staff introduced the children to such pets as guinea pigs, snakes, a wide variety of fish, parakeets, ferrets and even a cockatoo, which is the type of parrot TV's Baretta owns.

To make the tour complete, each child received a balloon upon leaving the store which put smiles on a lot of faces and ended the visit on a happy note.

The brief but informative trip to the Nutley Pet Center afforded the children and teachers as well with much enjoyment. BIPPY, Belleville's Intervention Program for Pre-School Youngsters, helps children ages 3 through 5 overcome learning difficulties.

Readers choose name for pirate

"Captain Hook-a-Book" was the winning entry in the pirate naming contest held recently at the Belleville Public Library.

The winning entry was submitted by Lynda Duna, with second place going to Melissa Hines for "Captain B.B." (Book Bug). Tina MacDonald was awarded third place for "Belleville Public Pirate."

Each summer the staff of the children's room constructs a paper mache figure which the children name as part of the library's summer program. Over the last several years they have named a dragon, a mechanical man and in the bicentennial year, a large firecracker.

Umberto's Corner

Dear Umberto,
Two of my girlfriends had a lamp cut. The cuts were different but both were short. I asked them the name of their haircut. They told me it is called "lamp cut." Why were they different? What is a lamp cut all about? Do you do the lamp cut?

Sincerely yours,
lamp cut

Dear lamp cut,
Yes, I do and have been doing it for a long time. Lamp cut is not a style. It is a method of cutting. It is a wet haircut, cut under heat lamps. While cutting it is styled to your desire.

Yours,
Umberto

Now, a note to my Rock & Roll friends. On August 16 a local group called "Static" will appear at the Armvets in Belleville. Tickets are $2.50. ## "I put out my last cigarette 2 years ago. Now I'm helping others do the same."

"I attended the first American Cancer Society stop-smoking clinic for Blue Cross-Blue Shield employees and became a staunch ex-smoker. Then I was asked to continue classes at our company. It's one of the best things I ever did. It's really working—and I'm delighted."

We wish every company had an employee like Anne Morham. Anne offers a stop-smoking presentation based on the American Cancer Society program. Blue Cross and Blue Shield offer this program to companies because helping people to stay healthy is a major priority. And no one can deny: Cigarettes are dangerous to your health.

Cigarette smokers have 70% more heart attacks than non-smokers. More strokes. An inordinate share of cancer of the lung, larynx, esophagus, mouth and bladder...not to mention emphysema and chronic bronchitis. Smokers die younger than non-smokers. And women who smoke are far more likely to have stillborn or premature babies.

Grim as it all sounds, there's hope. After ten years, death rates of ex-cigarette smokers from all causes are almost the same as those for people who never smoked.

What can you do about it? If you're an employee, ask your employer about starting a stop-smoking program. If your company is enrolled with Blue Cross-Blue Shield, consider the benefits of having us put on a stop-smoking program for you and your people.

For more information on stop-smoking programs, contact: Anne Morham (201) 456-2507 or write to her at Blue Cross and Blue Shield of New Jersey, 33 Washington St., Newark, N.J. 07102.

Nancy Marino to perform in 'Godspell' next month

Nancy Marino of 37 Sycamore Drive will sing the solo song, "Day by Day," in a production of the musical, "Godspell," made possible by the formation of a new youth theater company.

The New Jersey Theatre Ensemble, in residence at Kean College in Union, established the Youth Ensemble Performers to help young actors and actresses in the Essex County area.

Brian Bellog, founder and treasurer of the NJTE and a former director in the Essex Catholic High School theater department, met early in the summer with some three dozen interested young people, including Miss Marino, who were intent on forming their own organization. When Bellog realized the financial burden and obvious difficulties the young people would have in trying to launch such a monumental endeavor on their own, he met with the NJTE Board of Trustees to see what could be worked out.

The board members told Bellog that if the young adults could organize themselves into an independent governing body, help raise the costs of a production and help publicize the effort, they could see no reason why the concept should not succeed.

Bellog was then asked to direct the first production and he set out to find the best facility in the Essex County area to host it.

The Rev. Michael J. Neils, pastor of the First Evangelical Lutheran Church in Montclair, was contacted and the concept was discussed and developed in June. Rev. Neils then contacted the Lutheran Church Board and permission was granted to go ahead with the project.

The Youth Ensemble Performers, sponsored by Bellog, head a cast of 24 performers for the production of "Godspell," a musical conceived by John-Michael Teblak, with music by Stephen Schwartz.

Miss Marino performed in the

same headlining role in Essex Catholic's production of "Godspell" this past year. A Belleville High School graduate, she will be attending Rutgers University this fall as a sophomore. She is studying communications and theater arts.

Miss Marino has performed with the Nutley Family Playhouse and has been seen in such productions as "The Sound of Music," "West Side Story" and "The Boyfriend."

Performances of "Godspell" for the general public will be given Thursday through Saturday, Aug. 7-9, at the First Evangelical Lutheran Church auditorium, 153 Park St., between Watchung Avenue and Chestnut Street, Montclair. Curtain time is 8 p.m. each evening and all tickets are $3. For more information and reservations, call 743-2235.

Senior Notes

By George Chenoweth

Seventeen busloads of happy senior citizens went to Asbury Park a week ago Monday on a trip sponsored by the town of Belleville. The trip started from the Belleville Senior Citizens Recreation Center on a bright sunshiny day and went to the shore for a few hours stay and then to the Essex-Sussex Hotel in Spring Lake for an early dinner. The weather proved to be ideal, nice and cool at the shore, and the dinner was enjoyed by all in beautiful surroundings. Thanks to Mayor Marotti and the Town Commission and the committee that handled the affair so well from a group of appreciative Belleville senior citizens.

From the St. Mary's Church Bulletin:

Blessed are those who understand my step is not sure and my hands tremble.

Blessed are those who recognize my hearing is not keen and hence make an effort to speak distinctly.

Blessed are those who know my vision is not sharp and I cannot grasp things immediately.

Blessed are the patient listeners who let me recall the days of my youth.

Blessed are those who let me feel I am loved and respected.

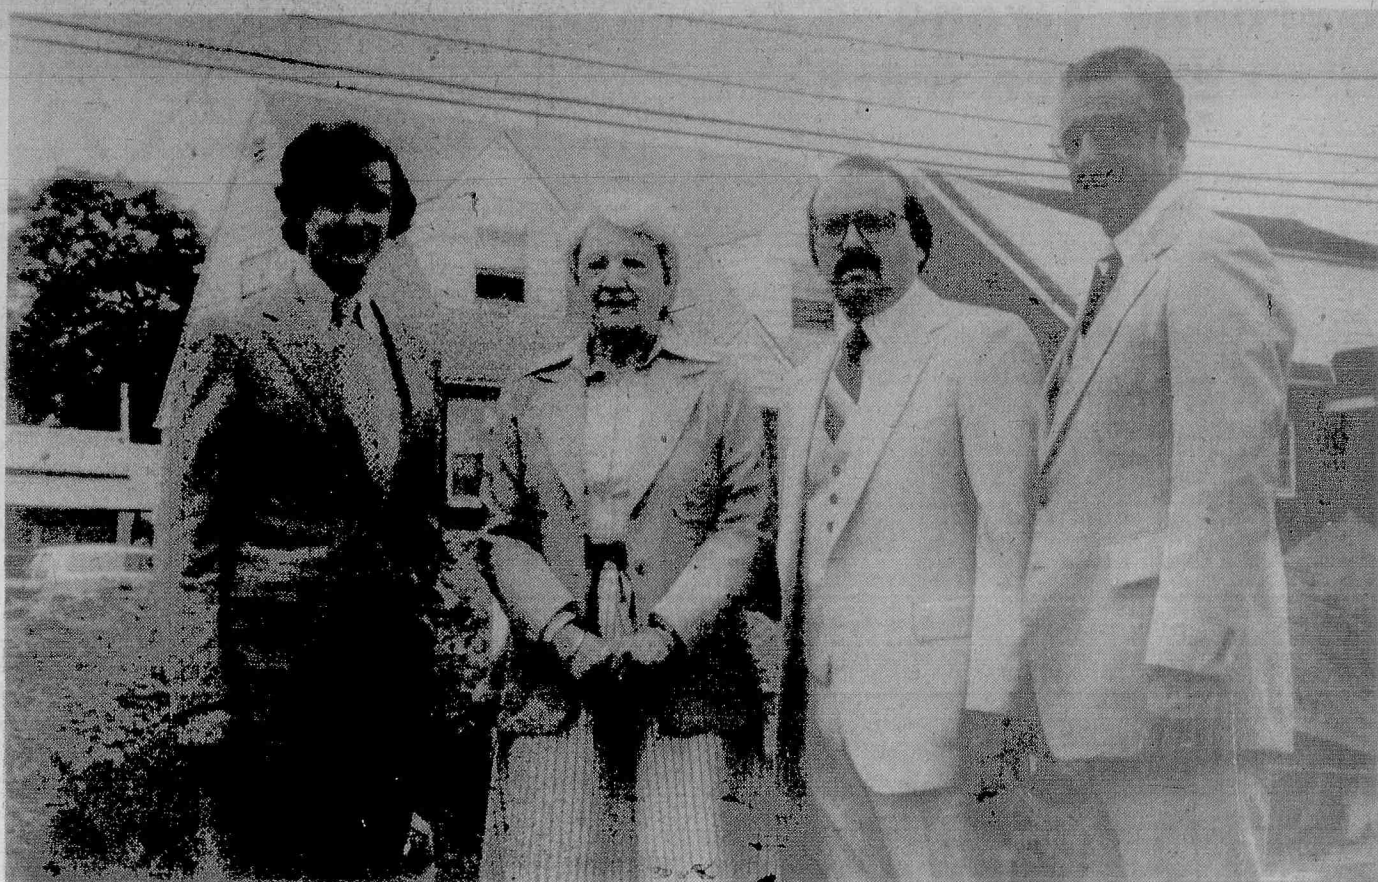

Blessed are those who by being good to me remind me of God's goodness.

You've heard of "Dial-a-Ride," "Dial-a-Joke," "Dial-a-Prayer" and "Tel-Med." Well now there's "Tel-Consumer." The latest service is in answer to many requests for day-in and day-out decisions in the marketplace and is the brainchild of the New Jersey Division of Consumer Affairs. The division is beginning its Tel-Consumer pilot project this month and it will continue through mid-September.

The service will provide timely and helpful consumer advice on topics ranging from auto repair to credit billing disputes, and best of all, you don't have to write for the information, and it's free? Just pick up your telephone and dial. The service is in operation from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Here's how it works: Phone 643-6400 and the consumer operator will ask for your request for information. When that is determined, a number-supplied tape is played back to you.

A brochure must first be obtained. (We have ordered several hundred.) The brochure lists 23 tapes at the present time, but there will be more. These tapes are numbered and cover information on advertising, appliances, automobiles, consumer complaining, contracts, credit-money matters, food, home improvements, legal matters, mail, merchandise, product safety and warranties. This is a pilot project and its success depends on how popular it turns out to be, determined by usage.

Project Tour — The Newark Avenue sanitary sewer project, funded through the Essex County Community Development Program, was inspected recently by County Executive Peter Shapiro, Mayor Michael Marotti, Commissioner Mary Senatore and Community Development

Director John Alati. The project entailed replacement of 2,000 linear feet of sewer line in Silver Lake, a target area for community improvements.

Coalition hoping to marshal support to clean up Passaic

Passaic River.

"We're trying to upgrade the whole Passaic River area," said Filippone Tuesday from her organization's headquarters in Basking Ridge. "We want to get the municipalities to organize a consortium to protect the river. Even though we had only three municipalities there in June, we're expecting a lot more this time," she said.

"Our first goal is water quality for fishing and swimming. If we make the Passaic such that it's no longer unattractive...stop dumping and stop littering, then they'll be more people interested in cleaning it up."

Filippone said if communities bordering the Passaic don't become concerned about the river, it will most likely keep deteriorating until it becomes a permanent health hazard. She noted that although Belleville hasn't been directly affected by Newark Bay's sewage problem, it could be only a matter of time until it is.

"If municipalities grab the bull by the horns, they can stop this problem, and if some municipalities just want to sit by the side, that's okay...I just want to work with the ones who want to help," said Filippone.

Berkeley enrolls Diane DeAngelis

Diane Marie DeAngelis of Belleville will begin her studies in September at The Berkeley School of Garret Mountain.

Miss DeAngelis will be enrolled in the professional secretarial program, which offers options in legal, medical, fashion, advertising and airlines specializations and lays the groundwork for attaining professional secretary certification.

Miss DeAngelis was a member of this June's graduating class at Belleville High School where she was a member of the Future Business Leaders of America and received a certificate in bookkeeping.

"This will be a big thing. It'll celebrate the revival of the whole river," she said.

Trustees decide against hiking athletic coverage

Belleville school trustees have decided not to increase athletic insurance coverage but are uncertain whether they should hire an insurance broker.

C.W. Bollinger Inc. of Montclair which handles Belleville's insurance coverage sent spokesman Robert Campana several weeks ago to assure trustees that their "partial-excess" insurance policy is what most boards of education take out. Last week, trustees voted unanimously to keep that coverage.

Several trustees had been worried that they weren't protecting athletes with the best possible coverage, but Campana noted "non-excess" coverage costs almost three times as much ($64 compared to $22 a student) as the board's present policy.

Partial excess coverage pays for the first visit to a doctor, and after that picks up the "excess" bills not covered by parents' insurance. Non-excess insurance pays for most medical bills incurred by those insured.

"Very few, about 5 to 10 percent of the school districts (insured) have non-excess insurance. Price is why so few schools opt for non-excess coverage," he added. Board President Ernie Zoppi said "partial-excess" coverage would save trustees nearly $3,000 over non-excess insurance.

Despite rising medical costs, Campana noted Bollinger would give a premium price reduction this year, since "partial excess" coverage cuts down its expenditures on a statewide level — enabling the company to keep premiums down.

For 1979-80, trustees paid out $4,918 to Bollinger for insurance, broken down as follows: $2,486 for football players, $1,932 for all other sports participants, and $280 for the band and cheerleaders.

Campana said coverage for 1980-81 will cost only $4,698 because statewide Bollinger has reduced payouts although it has expanded dental coverage to include cap replacements, eyeglasses and contacts this year.

Belleville athletes average about 70 injuries per year, serious enough to file insurance claims, mostly football injuries.

Trustees haven't yet decided whether to hire Anthony Pratola as their broker to intercede when parents have problems with claims. Although trustees are somewhat familiar with insurance problems, most lack the expertise to know exactly what to do when claims are delayed.

Pratola, a former Belleville resident, would receive a 5 percent commission paid by C.W. Bollinger on each claim filed, although he'd only be directly involved with problem claims if hired by trustees. Trustees won't pay Pratola a salary.

Parents with questions, along with trustees, teachers and administrators would be able to reach Pratola for answers. He said he's had many claims re-examined that Bollinger considered closed.

"I'm not going to be able to make any money off this. I'll be servicing other accounts in the area...it may sound corny, but I want to do this because of my strong feelings for Belleville," said Pratola.

Magnet programs — can they work?

special magnet program — eliminating the need for more forced movement through closings. However, trustees say more schools may close simply because of declining enrollments.

"That concept is not acceptable now," said Trustee Tom Zampino of using magnet schools alone to end de facto segregation. However, Zampino didn't rule out a future magnet school system.

What will happen to Belleville's magnet schools is uncertain, but Romano, who chaired the system's restructuring committee, has pointed out that Montclair experienced "the same community strife, the same descension, the same restrictive attitudes, the same provincialism, the same neighborhood schisms conformation that Belleville now has...all of this was resolved by the educational program becoming the focal point for change rather than a simple desegregation order."

A home-grown star on soccer horizon

Do you know this man? He stands six feet, two inches tall, weighs 185 pounds and is quickly establishing himself as a premier defender in the North American Soccer League.

His name is Jeff Durgan and his steady, all-around play has helped the Cosmos maintain their position high atop the NASL. Despite the fact that he plays like a world-class veteran, Durgan is just 18 years young and is only one year out of high school. While other players concern themselves with summer homes, nightclubs and high living, he maintains a very low-key life with his mind totally devoted to playing the game of soccer well.

Jeff got his start with the team in February 1979 when he was drafted in the amateur picks. He officially joined the Cosmos in July 1979 but didn't get any playing time until the team's Asian tour following the tough playoff loss to Vancouver in early September.

"I didn't play that much during the tour," Durgan told me, "but I did get some good experience with the little playing time I did receive. I would usually play the last 15 to 20 minutes of the game, and the experience did me good. I would have to say that set the stage for this season."

The 1980 season started in Houston for the Cosmos and Durgan was on the bench. Although he wasn't playing yet, he was determined to be a big hit once he got his chance. That chance came on April 20 at a home game against the tough Tampa Bay Rowdies. Durgan was desperately needed to help out the defense because the international star "Oscar" was hurt and Wim Rjeisbergen was nursing an injury that would keep him out of the lineup until early May.

He did not disappoint the team. Matched up against Neil Roberts of the Rowdies, Durgan played a key role in the Cosmos' 4-2 win. "That was probably my toughest opponent physically," said Durgan. "Roberts was a tough player and I had to stick with him or he would have walked all over me."

As the season wore on, Durgan took on the role of "The Aggressor." He played hard, tough soccer and made his opponents work for every inch of turf. He calls his toughest opponent mentally Paul Connel of the Memphis Rogues. "Connel tried to taunt you during the game," Jeff said. "I felt my toughest job was to keep my mind on the game and not to get mad. I would have to say that every opponent has been tough for me this year. After all, this is the pro ranks and you can't find them any tougher."

On a personal basis, Durgan points to the Cosmos' 3-1 victory over the California Surf at California as a very satisfying game for him. "I felt very comfortable and at ease in that one. Everything fell into place and I seemed to be very confident."

The Cosmos hit a mid-season slump and were coming home to battle a Seattle Sounder team that had lost all of three games the entire season. Giants Stadium was packed for this encounter two weeks ago, and Durgan was given the responsibility of marking Roger Davies, the league's leading scorer. This couldn't have been a better challenge for him and his aggressive, all-around-play not only disturbed Davies, it also forced a caution card from the official who was trying to keep the two from destroying each other.

As the game wore on, Davies became so frustrated by his lack of productivity that he got into a shoving match which brought out the temper in Durgan. Consequently, Durgan was ejected, along with Davies, from the game and will have to miss the home game with Los Angeles on Sunday night.

"I'd like everyone to know that I'm not a fighter," Durgan emphasized. "I like to play tough and aggressively, but I don't want to be known as a fighter or troublemaker. There is unfortunately a very thin line between the two and I'm trying my best to impress the coaches with my ability as a player and not a brawler."

His play has received praise from the Cosmos' head coach, Hennes Weisweiler. Receiving praise from a man of Weisweiler's reputation goes to show what a great player Durgan is going to be. "I think they're happy with me thus far," Durgan said. "Lately though, I know they're not too happy with the yellow cards that I've been getting. With the playoffs coming up pretty soon, I've got to concentrate totally on the game. This would be a bad time to hurt myself by making silly mistakes now."

As for his world-class teammates, Durgan couldn't be any happier. "They've all been super to me," he said. "I really admire Giorgio (Chinaglia), though. He is such a nice person to talk to and he really wants to help me become a better player. I can't see how anyone can criticize his ability because he is constantly the scoring leader and is always consistent, day in and day out."

"I would also like to credit Professor Julio Mazzei. He was very helpful to me just like he was to Pele when he arrived a couple of years ago."

When he first found out that the Cosmos had selected him last year, Durgan was a bit skeptical. "You read things in the paper about how controversial the team was and you'd have to wonder, I was only 17 at the time and it was a big step in my life, but I figured what the heck, I have to give it a shot!"

It is a decision that he does not regret. "I have to admit that I am very happy right now. Things are going very well and I would be very happy to complete my career right here." Asked what he thought his biggest accomplishment in sports was, Durgan replied, "still being able to play soccer and enjoy it like a kid. I can still get pleasure out of the game now that it's a job, and that's a big accomplishment to me."

Durgan resides in Upper Saddle River during the season, but makes his permanent home in Tacoma, Wash. He's lived there all his life and will continue to do so once the season is over. When he gets spare time, he enjoys playing any type of sport and is a fine football player and wrestler.

Having a player with the ability of Jeff Durgan is a feather in the Cosmos' big cap. He is a fine example of a good, young American player making it big in a predominantly European sport. With fellow American Ricky Davis also on the Cosmos, Durgan is going to be the start of something big in the United States soccer arena.

The Buc Shot moment of the week belongs to the 1974 cross country team. In late September, the Bellboys traveled to West Orange to do battle with a strong Mountain High School squad. Despite a grueling course, Belleville, led by Jim Beck and Nelson Seda, pulled out an exciting 27-28 win. That cross country team went on to a 7-5 mark, its finest in over 15 years.

Here is the answer to last week's quiz. The question was, what fighter did Muhammed Ali never beat, Floyd Patterson, George Foreman, Joe Frazier, Cleveland Williams, Scott LeDoux or Jimmy Young? The answer, Scott LeDoux. This might seem a bit tricky, but Ali never fought LeDoux. He defeated Patterson twice, in 1965 and again in 1972. He stopped Frazier in two grueling battles in 1974 and 1975. Frazier defeated Ali in 1971. Ali stopped Williams in 1964 and Foreman in 1974. He beat Young in May 1976.

For this week's quiz, try to answer this one: In 1976, the New York Yankees were well on their way to a pennant, leading the

Post 105 men jockeying for good playoff position

The Belleville Legion baseball team is still very much in the post-season playoff picture, but exactly where the Post 105 diamondmen will be heading remains in doubt.

The area's top two Legion teams will continue playoff action sometime this weekend in Lyndhurst. The number three squad can also continue on, but must play out-of-area, in Trenton.

Tuesday, Belleville took on Irvington, and Livingston faced Maplewood 5 p.m. today at home for the third spot. If Belleville and Livingston won, Post 105 would be assured of the second position. If the locals and Maplewood both prevailed, they would battle it out for the second position, again today at the stadium complex. Read that again and just pray.

How Belleville got itself into this mess is less difficult to understand. The hometown boys won two thrillers, 1-0 over Essex Catholic last Wednesday and 3-2 over Irvington Friday, before being battered by Livingston 19-8 Sunday.

The Essex Catholic game, played here, was for all practical purposes over in the first inning when Dan Borgo walked, stole second and came all the way home on a dropped third strike. Post 105 managed just four hits all day, but pitcher Mike Nicosia allowed the Eagles just two, while striking out 11 men and giving up six walks. He went the full nine-inning playoff game.

Belleville got just about as good an effort from Borgo Friday in handing Irvington its first loss of the season following 16 wins. Borgo also hurled the entire game, striking out five and walking four. He gave up seven hits.

Dave Starr started things off for Post 105 in the third inning with a single. He was wild pitched to second and then third before coming home on a sacrifice fly by Dick Vazzano. Belleville tacked on two runs in the next frame. Rich Vitiello and Joe Guarino cracked singles and an error by the Irvington rightfielder brought in one run and allowed Steve Coffey to reach base. Starr's single made it 3-0.

Irvington got a walk, a single and an error from Belleville for one run and a one-bagger from Nunzio for another, but it was not enough.

Livingston, fast becoming the team Belleville fans love to hate even more than Nutley, got more than enough runs Sunday. Banging out 20 hits, they scored two runs in the first, nine in the third, two in the fourth, one in the sixth and five in the seventh to offset a subpar performance by ace pitcher Scott Parsons.

Post 105 had taken a 3-0 lead in the top of the first, but it was an advantage the locals didn't enjoy long. They added a lone run in the seventh, three in the eighth and one in the ninth. Anthony Coco started for Belleville and last just two official innings. Joe Lipoma relieved him and stayed on until the fourth when Tom Joyce came in. Mike Rainone replaced him in the seventh and finished up.

Cottage, McCabe's fall in Tavern race

Belleville's top two bar squads knotted themselves into a tie for second place in the National Division of the Essex County Tavern League this past Sunday and in the process allowed Nutley Pub to take a commanding two-game lead.

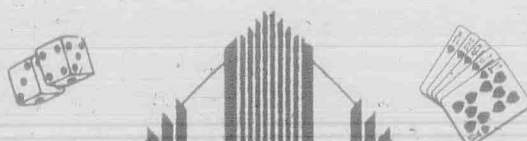

Nanny's defeated McCabe's softball team 8-3, while Town Cottage was losing to Pub 8-6 in a seesaw contest. Nutley now needs to win just two of the three remaining regular-season games to clinch the division title. However, under a playoff system instituted this season, the first two teams in each division will battle it out to represent the division in the league championship series.

In other games involving local teams, Frea's and Pat's was drubbed by Sup's 917 of Newark 20-2, and B.F. Bar was thrashed by Dapper Dan, another Newark club, 20-3.

This coming Sunday at the Belleville Avenue extension of Branch Brook Park, Frea's and Pat's battles BJ in a 9 a.m. game, while Cottage takes on McCabe's and Nanny's faces Waterloo of Bloomfield in 11 a.m. contests.

The standings after 13 weeks of play:

FROM RUTH TO SIMPSON

Sports reporter recalls a half-century in trade

By Michael C. Gabriele

He's bowled with Babe Ruth, traveled with Joe DiMaggio and Lou Gehrig, watched Joe Louis knock out Max Schmeling in one round at Yankee Stadium and was the 20-year official scorer at Shea Stadium who recorded Joe Namath's passing statistics and O.J. Simpson's milestone 2,000th yard in rushing.

He's Pat McDonough and July marked his 55th year in sports journalism. Since 1967 the Union City resident has produced his national bowling tabloid, "The Sports Reporter," at The Belleville Times office in Nutley.

"I got a job at the New York Telegram as a copy boy on July 1, 1925," McDonough recalls of his start in the business. "I was just out of high school and I answered an ad in the paper."

During his first year at The Telegram, McDonough ran copy between desks in the newsroom, covered bowling and occasionally would do re-writes and box scores for baseball. "I never considered myself a great writer, but I was fast, accurate and good with figures. Calculating statistics has always interested me," he said.

In 1934 McDonough got his first opportunity to cover a major league baseball game. "I filled in for the regular writer that covered the Dodgers who was out ill. The game I went to was a doubleheader against the St. Louis Cardinals. The Cards won both games. Dizzy Dean pitched a three-hitter and his brother Paul pitched a no-hitter."

McDonough continued to gain experience in sports writing and in 1938 covered the Yankees for half a season, again substituting for the regular staff reporter who was ailing.

"The Yankees had a great team that year and beat the Chicago Cubs in the World Series," McDonough said, recalling a lineup of legendary figures such as DiMaggio, Gehrig and Bill Dickey. "Covering the Yankees was considered the best job on the sports staff. They chose me to fill in over some other staff writers with more experience, which didn't make me too popular at the time," McDonough said with a smile.

"You really got to know the players well during those years because the writers traveled on the same train as the ballplayers. Back then, a train ride from St. Louis to New York took 24 hours. You had to do something to pass the time, so we played cards, did a lot of interviews and traded stories."

"DiMaggio was a gentleman, a very warm and friendly person, as was Gehrig. It seemed like the ballplayers from the old days were all like that, much friendlier than those from recent years," McDonough observed. "When I first met Mickey Mantle in 1951 he was surly and curt, although when I saw him at the Yankee All Star Game last year he was very amiable and was very happy to autograph a baseball for my grandson."

One Yankee that McDonough came to know well after his playing days was perhaps the most famous and lionized player in the history of baseball, Babe Ruth.

"Babe Ruth used to bowl at the Riverside Plaza Lanes on 73rd Street in Manhattan. He lived right around the corner from the alley. We went out bowling many times. One night we drove back from Queens in his car and he asked me to empty the ashtray on my way out, saying that the cigarette butts might have lip-stick on them from the previous night. He did have quite a reputation and a lively lifestyle," McDonough admitted sheepishly.

"Ruth was always a very competitive person. He had to stay active, especially after he left baseball. He played golf for several years and then turned to bowling. We bowled together in competitions several times. Once I was out with my wife all day in the city and we met him coming out of an elevator. He said that he needed me to bowl with him in a match that night. I had to call our babysitter to make sure she could stay out that late to watch our children. How could you say 'no' to Babe Ruth," McDonough exclaimed.

"Ruth used to bowl three to four hours a day and most of the time he bowled alone. He never would keep track of his scores; he just knocked the pins down and kept playing. I think he was lonely during those years. One time, a few people got together and had a surprise birthday party for him at the bowling alley."

"Babe Ruth played his last baseball game for the Boston Braves at Forbes Field in Pittsburgh in 1935," said McDonough, citing a bit of trivia. "He hit three home runs in his last game (numbers 712 to 714 in his career). The first one landed in the lower deck, the second in the upper deck and the third one he hit over the roof. A few days later he retired."

McDonough's press credentials have allowed him to witness many editor for the New York World Telegram from 1935 until the paper folded in 1966. He is probably the only man ever to have kept score in the five major stadiums in the New York area (Ebbetts Field, the Polo Grounds, Yankee Stadium, Shea Stadium and Giants Stadium in the Jersey Meadowlands).

In 1960 McDonough was hired as the official scorer for a football team called the New York Titans who later became the Jets. For 20 seasons he kept the statistics for the Jets, recording all of Joe Namath's career passing yardage at Shea Stadium. "I never met Namath. There were always mobs of people around him," McDonough said. During the 20-year period McDonough missed only one game, last season's Monday night game.

During the 1973 season, O.J. Simpson of the Buffalo Bills had the chance to become the first running back to rush for 2,000 yards in a single year. His final game that year was against the Jets at Shea Stadium and he needed 197 yards to reach the mark. McDonough, as usual, was keeping the play-by-play statistics for each team. Simpson was hoisted on his teammate's shoulders when it was thought he had obtained the necessary yardage. But as the story went over the news wire services there was confusion as to his exact yardage, or if he had in fact reached the mark. As it happened, the confusion was in the official scorers' press booth.

"It was snowing that day and bitter cold. I had to wear gloves to keep my hands from freezing. But with my gloves on, I had trouble reading my own writing," McDonough explained.

"Originally we had Simpson down for 198 yards to go over 2,000 on the season. But we found a mistake in our team totals so we had to go back over every play and account for every yard. It turned out that he really had 200 yards on that day, which meant he had set another record, for most 200-yard games in a season."

McDonough bought "The Sports Reporter," a bowling newspaper tabloid, in November 1967. The paper has been typeset and made up at The Belleville Times offices during his years as editor and publisher. McDonough has built up his circulation to 4,700 nationwide and has won three national bowling writer awards. He has also authored several bowling guide publications.

Pat McDonough was born in Fargo, N.D., in 1906. When he was 5 years old he lived on a Sioux reservation in Lantry, S.D., as his family tried to work ownership of state land through a homestead act, though they returned to Fargo after one year. At age 16 his family moved to Union City.

historic sporting events over the years. He owns a lifetime all-stadium pass as a member of the Baseball Writers Association to which he has belonged since 1932. In 1938 he received free press tickets to a boxing match at Yankee Stadium. It turned out to be the famous Joe Louis-Max Schmeling rematch which Louis won by a knockout two minutes into the first round.

The Men's Recreation Softball League playoffs underway. The single-elimination system pits the Monday and Wednesday A league teams against each other, and the Tuesday B league teams against the Thursday squads. Each league has its own champion.

In a mild upset, Rossmore Pharmacy edged Circle 11-9 to advance in the A league playoffs. DeWitt Savings nipped Frenchy's 2-1. The Howard Hustlers held off a stubborn Roselli's Amoco team 11-10, and the Four-J's downed Giordano's 18-5.

In B league playoff action, Tuesday champion Govel defeated Belleville Kawasaki 8-1 to advance. International Paint came from behind to edge J&R Insulation. Garden State Pet rolled to a 20-12 victory over Belleville Political and Social Club, and Binky's Tavern beat the Circle 11 team 14-8.

Trustees call convention trip a sound investment in future

Three Belleville school board members spent $4,421 attending the National School Boards Association Convention in April — leaving some citizens puzzled about whether taxpayer money is being well spent.

But two of the three trustees who attended the San Francisco convention, Board President Ernie Zoppi and Cesar Romano, both feel not only was attending the convention well worthwhile, but that it will probably save taxpayers money in the long run.

Trustees Zoppi, Romano and Board Vice President Charles Miele, along with board attorney Lawrence Schwartz, who paid his own fair, attended the April 18-22 convention where nearly 23,000 board members from across America gathered.

Belleville school board members, like other local officials, believe attending conventions enables them to get first-hand information about developing trends, which will help improve local educational quality.

Of the $4,421.88 spent, exactly

$2,781.20 went for either convention registration fees, airline tickets and hotel accommodations with only $1,640.68 spent for miscellaneous items like coffee breaks, drinks, breakfasts, lunches and suppers, parking, gas, a rented car and tolls.

Both Zoppi and Romano stayed in the Fairmont Hotel with Miele at The Wharf, both hotels in San Francisco.

Although some citizens stress trustees should not be spending any extra money to attend conventions, board members say new ideas and businessmen who market their wares at conventions make attending them crucial to staying atop current educational products and equipment.

"The amount of money spent on this is very insignificant," says board attorney Lawrence Schwartz, who served as a trustee for nearly 10 years. "These people (trustees) serve without pay, have no expense account and get nothing but total anguish from the job," he added.

"This (going to a convention) doesn't take anything away from the programs like some people say," noted Schwartz. "It's a great experience. I learned a great deal attending conventions."

With school costs rising across the board, local citizens are more wary than ever of misused funds. In late April, defeated school board candidate Tom Spillane questioned trustees about how much their San Francisco trip cost. No figures were available then, but board accountant Ed Appleton recently compiled all the bills.

"That's absolutely ridiculous," said Spillane, referring to trustees' $1,640 miscellaneous bill for their trip. "I just wondered about it...that sounds like a lot," he emphasized.

"I don't see a problem with board members attending conventions," said Trustee Tom Zampino, pointing out that most boards want all their members to attend conventions. "When you look at that, board members donate about 500 hours a year (unpaid), they should be able to go to a convention," said Zampino.

"There's no doubt, it's worthwhile to go to conventions. Ninety-nine percent of all other systems do this...I wouldn't go to a convention just for leisure. Some of the information and the literature that they shared with me were tremendous," said Trustee Anthony D'Agostino.

He said even though the cost of a convention may appear expensive, it's usually not above what a regular trip comes to. "The school district does come out ahead even though there's an expense," he added.

D'Agostino noted that trustees don't decide where the national convention will be held, so they couldn't even attempt to hold hotel and food prices down. He said San Francisco prices are higher than New York and "prices (even) go up at convention time when they know so many more people will be in town."

Romano said citizens who believe money is wasted when trustees attend conventions don't understand enough about the gatherings. "If they truly believe that, then they're looking at this from a negative attitude. All new trends seem to take hold on the west coast. You get a better understanding of the spirit of the idea by seeing it up close," said Romano.

"Not only is this not a waste of money, but it's probably the most productive use of money committed to learning. This was the most productive trip I've been on," he added. Romano noted that trustees get insights at conventions not available anywhere else.

"They (citizens critical of convention trips) should remember the time board members spend," said Schwartz, noting some citizens have even complained to him about the sandwiches and coffee trustees purchase for each meeting with public money.

Most trustees didn't seem to think their convention jaunt deserved a story, but if so, wanted the positive aspects outlined. "I don't think you should write about this, but that's the power of a newspaper," said Schwartz casually. "During the day at a convention it's work," he noted.

"Board members serve gratuitously. By going to a convention they'll learn how to be a better board member. If you want to consider it, maybe it's some kind of fringe benefit," said Schools Superintendent Dr. John Greed.

Pointing out that only three of seven trustees attended San Francisco's convention, Greed added, "They've shown some discretion...there's been some economies effected." He said all board members should attend the national convention but Belleville's tight budget makes it impossible.

"It's exceptional," said Romano of the opportunities and knowledge gained at a convention. He said local trustees learned about criterion-referenced testing, busing, desegregation, evaluation of superintendents, available funding and growing trends by attending the convention.

Citizens criticize supers' pay hikes

Belleville School Superintendent Dr. John Greed has received a $3,200 pay raise, a 7 percent increment that puts his yearly salary at $46,000 — about on a par with superintendents in neighboring districts.

However, after the recent public meeting at which Greed's raise was okayed, several citizens questioned the increase, along with the need for a new assistant superintendent for personnel position trustees created.

No one questioned Greed's ability as superintendent, but several citizens wondered why administrative salaries keep rising when budget woes constantly threaten program and course cutbacks.

"Dr. Greed comes up for an evaluation every year...and the raise was given because the job he's done was considered a job well done," said Board President Ernie Zoppi Tuesday.

Zoppi stressed that Greed's salary was "in line" with what neighboring superintendents earn, pointing out that Greed has improved both the reading and math programs, along with handling pressure-filled administrative chores.

He (Greed) does an overwhelmingly fine job, he's done a mammoth amount for us," said Trustee Dr. Anthony D'Agostino. "I'm not leading the pack," said Greed, when asked about his salary in comparison to nearby superintendents. "We (Belleville) have our money problems," he added, referring to continual budget defeats.

"You're talking about a ($12) million dollar enterprise. Our salaries should be measured against private industry...and what's normal for our profession," said Greed.

Assistant Superintendent Seymour Grossman, who suffered a heart attack and was absent for nearly six months, received a raise to $40,600. The salary of the new assistant superintendent for personnel should range from about $30,000 to $35,000.

While some citizens complain of "heavy" administrative costs, Belleville's administrators stress they're doing their best to keep the school system in tip-top shape. Trustees also seem to trust Belleville's administrators — leveling little criticism against them.

Some citizens have doubts, though. "I don't think the Belleville school system needs two assistant superintendents," says Valley Association President Bob May, who feels that if both Grossman and Greed could handle their jobs, no other administrator would be necessary.

However, Greed disagrees saying Belleville's desegregation plan, along with the closing of Schools 1 and 2, enabled Belleville to create the new position, possibly for School 1 Principal Pat Forte, although no definite decision has yet been reached.

Principal unhappy with cuts in BHS equipment accounts

Belleville school trustees have cut at least $20,000 from the original request of $65,000 made by BHS Principal John DeCesare for the high school's furniture and equipment account and make cut more.

DeCesare expects to get about $40,000 worth of equipment but emphasizes the high school could really use much more to improve programs. Without extra money, a student's education could suffer, said DeCesare Monday.

"That's the most we've ever been cut back," he said, pointing out that although trustees have given him $26,000 for equipment, they're still hedging on the extra $14,000 he requested two weeks ago.

DeCesare said he made a priority list of equipment and the added $14,000 is definitely needed. For example in the high school art department, he's asked for a Speedball press worth $115 and a mobile heat-proof kiln cart worth another $115 as number one priorities. He sets number two priorities as a collegiate modeling stand worth $53, a soldering machine for $77 and lock casters for a modeling stand worth $9.

DeCesare spent much time and effort researching program priorities and appeared miffed that trustees suddenly axed so much of his request, which they usually approve.

Trustee Tom Zampino was sympathetic, noting that failure to approve DeCesare's first priorities "impedes us over the years. You need the tools and the materials that he's (DeCesare) requesting." He said

Fight isn't over yet, angry parents vow

Schools 1 and 2 "politically motivated," School 2 PTA President Sylvia View noted. "Education to me seems to have taken a back seat (to desegregation and cost savings)...I don't have any faith in them (trustees) at all," Mrs. View said 14 new houses are going up by School 2 but trustees just ignore the possibility that more children may come into the neighborhood.

"It was an impotent and technical letter (from Burke)," said May. "They're (state officials) more or less leaving it up to us now. We went down there last Monday to discuss School 1, but we arrived, a little late," he said. May said the attorney hired by local parents is deciding where and when to file School 1's lawsuit.

"I don't think they (trustees) have a leg to stand on because the state said no without even hearing us," said May, whose group along with School 1's PTA headed by Judy Sobanko, doesn't think either state or local officials gave them a fair shake.

"I don't know to what extent they'll (School 1 parents) be successful," said Trustee Tom Zampino. "Right now my concern is that we have a plan that deals with all the problems." Though they sympathize with residents who wanted to keep Belleville's current neighborhood system intact, trustees say schools had to be closed and children redistricted or state officials would step in to consolidate themselves, holding the threat of drastically reduced state funding over the board's head.

Although Schools 1 and 2 once planned to file a joint lawsuit to block closing of their schools, School 2 has backed out with Mrs. View noting expenses could be too high. However, School 1's PTA appears ready to forge onward.

"The fight isn't over," says School 1 PTA President Judy Sobanko. "I don't think they (state) heard the whole story...everything that we can do, we're going to do."

Clinic hits legal delay

have been carried over until the board's meeting this coming Tuesday night, but the association has a therapist hired for the coming two months only. Attorney Donald Rinaldo of East Orange, representing the group, said this week he would ask for a delay on a hearing until next month.

The building, about 50 by 100 feet, will cost from $175,000 to $250,000, and the association has been seeking donations for several months. Its last big fund-raising effort here was the sale of sponges shaped like bricks for $1 apiece at the Municipal Stadium fireworks display July 4.

American League East by 12 games in July. Billy Martin was in his first season as manager and the team was blending well. Suddenly, in the middle of the year, owner George Steinbrenner pulled off a trade that the Yankees regret to this day. Steinbrenner swapped a bunch of young, talented players to Baltimore for Ken Holtzman. Holtzman lasted a year before being sold to the Chicago Cubs. In the meantime, the Yankees benefited greatly from the deal. Can you name the four players whom Baltimore received in that deal?
