Town demanding census recount

By John Jurich

Belleville will officially challenge U.S. Census Bureau figures which showed the town's population slipping 6.8 percent over the last decade and which threaten to decrease federal aid here to the tune of $200 a person.

Essex County is compiling the challenges expected to be made by most of its 22 communities and will formally submit them to the bureau tomorrow. Yesterday, officials here met to get Belleville's statistics in order and hand them over to the

The Bottom Line

By Ed White

Q. I have heard that there is a 90 percent failure rate for a small business in the first five years. Is that true? How can someone guarantee success in a business? J.Y., Nutley, A. Yes, that statistic is accurate according to the Small Business Administration. There are no guarantees in business. Business is really a two-part process. The first is planning. There are perhaps five crucial tasks that should be accomplished here.

 Making a thorough market analysis: Current market develop-ment can be monitored by observing the competition, analyzing your advertisements, reading local papers, studying relevant government publications and attending trade shows.

2. Developing an effective sales effort: Any business must strive to gain its share of the market and to maintain a suitable balance between its selling activities and its other characteristics such as size, type of merchandise or service and business image. Many seminars, educational forums and vocational meetings are continually inform-ing the business owner about new techniques and experiments in marketing methods.

3. Achieving financial stability: The misuse or inefficien) use of capital can be fatal to the small firm. Avoid ill-timed or irresponsible withdrawals of capital from the business. And don't live off your in-

4. Developing management expertise. The chief executive of any business, however small, should devote a good share of time to managing rather than production or selling.

5. Developing and following a business plan: A plan of operation during your first five years in business is essential. Always keep your long-range goals in mind - don't fall-victim to shortsightedness.

The second part of business success has to do with attitude. A successful entrepreneur, someone once said, is one who is a little crazy and stupid. He has to be crazy enough toward success beyond all obstacles and stupid enough to ignore those who say it isn't possible. Planning and persistence is the bottom line for business success.

Western Electric, the manufacturing and supply unit of the Bell System, purchased more than $283.2 worth of goods and services from New Jersey suppliers last year, about $50 million more than it spent in the state in 1978.

"That's just one of the ways Western contributed to the state's economy in 1979," said Charles Seelinger, New Jersey Bell's local community relations manager and a member of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. "The company also spent more than $287 million in salaries to some 12,000 employees."

Of the top 10 New Jersey municipalities in which the company made supply purchases, Belleville ranked eighth swith a total of $6,231,348. Newark was first with $56,069,723.

Seelinger noted that in Essex County alone, Western paid $87,8-83,000 to local suppliers for materials and services that were used by the various Bell System com-

By George Chenoweth

On Oct. 18, 1978, President Carter signed legislation (Public Law 95-478) authorizing the White House Conference on Aging to be convened in 1981. Previous White House Conferences on Aging had been held in 1961 and 1971.

The need for this conference was demonstrated by the dramatic change in our society and the growing number of older Americans. In 1974, roughly 7 percent of the total population was 65 or older. In 1979, 10 percent of the population was 65 and above. Today, the proportion is 11 percent, more than 24 million people. By the year 2020, almost 16 percent of the population will be 65 or older.

The increasing health and longevity of Americans is a remarkable achievement that presents significant challenges and opportunities for every institution in American life. Both the public and private sectors will have to share in the development of policies to deal with the enormous consequences of this achievement. That is the purpose of the 1981 White House Conference on Aging.

Legislation calling for the 1981 White House Conference on Aging identifies the need to improve the economic well-being of older Americans, make comprehensive and quality health care more readily available, establish a more comprehensive social service delivery system, expand availability of appropriate housing, long-term care and retirement policy, offer greater employment opportunities for older Americans, overcome aging stereotypes and encourage biomedical research in the aging process.

A major thrust of the conference planning is an emphasis on the untapped skills and creativity of older persons and the contributions that older people can and do make to our society. Greater sensitivity to the needs and voices of minority groups among the elderly has also been built into the conference plans so that all of the elderly play a major part regardless of race, creed, color or national origin.

Selection of most of the delegates to the conference will be left to each state and all delegates should be named by May 1981. By the time they meet in Washington, delegates will have had a chance to become thoroughly informed on the various issues by reviewing a series of background technical papers and by gathering information from the general public through local and regional hearings during 1981.

Boggan stresses productivity to Chamber

By Mike Olohan

Essex County Administrator Daniel Boggan told about 40 Belleville Chamber of Commerce members this week that increasing staff productivity is his number one aim.

County Executive Peter Shapiro, who was to have been the speaker Tuesday at the Fountain, was in Washington, D.C., visiting Vice President Walter Mondale, Health and Human Services (formerely HEW) Secretary Patricia Harris and Housing and Urban Development Secretary Moon Landrieu.

"We hope it (trip) will be produc-tive for the county," said Boggan, noting Shapiro wasn't goofing off. Boggan was a government official in San Diego when Proposition 13 fever was sweeping California.

When they did occur, however, they should have been recorded in the 1980 town budget. They weren't. Instead, the money budgeted for 1979 accounts was simply shown as being paid out in most cases. ## Health organization may prospect here

By Mike Olohan

Hoping to give Belleville residents an alternative to the established health care system, the Valley Health Plan group of Bergen, Passaic and Essex counties may soon be offering them a chance to join a health maintenance organization.

A health maintenance organization (HMO) attempts to reduce medical costs by hiring its own staff of full-time doctors. Unlike Blue Cross or Blue Shield, members must go to an HMO doctors. Premiums are usually paid through payroll deductions.

In late August, the Valley Health Plan group received a $75,000 federal grant to study whether a HMO would be practical for an estimated 880,000 potential subscribers in Passaic and parts of Bergen and Essex-counties.

Local officials appear unaware of the prospect for a HMO — noting most residents probably would be uninterested anyway since most of their medical coverage is subsidized by their employers

Although HMOs are popping up with more frequency lately, many citizens seem unsure about joining them - having doubts about the quality of health care offered.

According to Valley Health Plan-Director Lynda O'Hanlon, preventive care is what will be emphasized, stressing things like Pap tests, yearly physical examinations and children's immunization shots are covered by the premium payment.

"It may be good for some, but I'm not sure what the price dif-ferences would be," said Marie Sor-rentino, supervisor of Belleville's. public health nurses

She pointed out that with Clara Maass Memorial Hospital so close, most residents would probably be hesitant about joining any HMO. Before any specific list of services and exact listing of doctors available is posted, she doubted if people would sign up.

O'Hanlon said physicians staffing the HMO would probably include a general practitioner, an interobsterrichtn-gynecologist. Besides cooperates would establish the apthose doctors, she said the HMO would have "agreements" with other

If a Valley Health Plan complex (or HMO) was built, it would bo located in the southern part of Passaic County, probably near Routes 3 and 46 and the Parkway.

The VHP is now investigating if residents of Passaic, Bergen and Essex counties would be willing to join an HMO. VHP Trustee Dr. Anthony F. Palmieri, a Clifton obstetrician-gynecologist, believes there "are almost a million people in this area, more than any doctor can handle."

Palmieri said his colleagues are interested in working for an HMO and "I could fill the staff positions tomorrow if we were ready to open... it's not our intention to import doctors for the facility.

Sorrentino felt an HMO would be "too impersonal," and many people wouldn't want to join because they already have family doctors. "It would almost be like a clinic," Sorrentino said, adding that if it were like a clinic, long lines might be com-

However, with nothing yet set, that may be just speculation. O'Hanlon believes an HMO can and will work for many poorer area resi-dents not covered by Blue Cross or Blue Shield.

If the United States Public Health Service okavs the Valley Health Plan's HMO study, the or anization wll apply for additional federal funds to start - probably abou! $3 million

While the HMO will differ from traditional medical care, advocates stress that doctors "sharing" responsibility for particular areas of health while providing high standards of service.

Across the United States, the American Medical Association has created numerous legistrative roadblocks to forming health cooperatives, which enlist the support of many private doctors to handle their clinteles. The cooperatives, like HMOs, attempt to' provide cheap, quality health care by "sharing" the services of many docnist, a pediatrician and an tors. The AMA believes such paratus under which a massive federally funded national health specialists like dermatologists and plan, which it opposes, could operate cardiologists to handle HMO refer- in the future.

no appreciable rain falls within two to four weeks, say state officials. Because PVWC gets its water from the Passaic River, its supply is not strictly dependent on rainfall, thus residents theoretically aren't forced to make any sacrifices. But PVWC officials say they hope Belleville residents won't consider basic water conserving measures as "sacrifices" since they should try to conserve and not waste water whether they're forced to or not

"As a matter of public interest, we encourage discretion in the use of water," says Marinus DeNooyer, a PVWC spokesman. Asked whether conservation measures will soon be imposed on Bellevillites, he said. 'There is always that possibility. If things get worse, something may have to be done quick."

He said PVWC is selling Hackensack Water Company about 10 million gallons daily - which is way over the contracted amount. Both the Hackensack and Commonwealth Water companies, serving 1.1 million residents, have been hit hard by the current dry spell

Asked Hackensack's senior vice president, George Haskew, "We may be in the worst shape now, but what happens if water is drawn away from the other companies and there is no rain?" He said three to four inches of rain are needed to end New Jersey's water crisis.

The PVWC reservoirs receive 40 million gallons of water daily form Moonachie Reservoir, and if that's soon cut back, PVWC may have to abruptly impose conservation on its customers.

Belleville — simply a name in Newark

It's started already. If you got a look at Sunday's Star-Ledger, I sincerely hope that you had not consumed your breakfast because you probably would disgorged it pronto.

Turn to the school pages in the sports section and you'll see that Livingston High School is the pre-season favorite to win the state football title. That's of little surprise because Livingston has a dynamic passing combination and will indeed be a major factor this season.

If you look down the list of the Top 20, you'll notice that Barringer, another of the Ledger's perennial pets, is listed rather high and is considered a big favorite to win the Newark City title.

Glancing/through the rest of the ratings, you'll notice a certain school that posted an 8-2 record in 1979 and was the No. 1 seed in the Group IV, Section 2 tournament, not to mention a 35-8 winner over Livingston last year, is not listed at all. By, now, you know that I'm referring to Belleville.

Once again, the Star-Ledger is off and running with its narrow-minded, one-sided opinion of the Belleville sports program. Personally, I think this is beginning to be ridiculous. Last season, the Bucs were not even in the county ratings at the beginning of the season, while Livingston was ranked sixth. However, once the season started, Belleville was listed a twotouchdown favorite to beat Livingston. Strange, huh?

So, the Ledger had to eat crow and wait all season for Belleville to lose so Livingston could be placed ahead of the Bucs in the ratings. When the teams entered the playoffs last November, Belleville was pitted against Union and Livingston faced Westfield. Lou Rettino, the head coach at Union, told The Belleville Times last year, "Livingston I don't think even belongs there Belleville was a 15-12 loser to Union in a game termed by the Union players as the toughest they had been in all season long. Livingston, with its fine quarterback Stan Yagiello, defeated Westfield 38-21. However, in the finals, Union rolled over Livingston 35-14 to win the Group IV title and eventually the state crown. And the players at Union all voiced the same opinion: Belleville was definitely the tougher team.

If you had gotten a copy of the Nov. 11, 1979 Ledger, you would have seen that Livingston had earned a playoff berth. You couldn't miss it: The headlines were about as big as the ones the Yankees got for winning the World Series. Belleville received its usual heavy play, a small article near the bottom of a page that said Belleville had defeated Clark, but just barely. The Ledger made no mention of the fact until later in the week that Belleville had made the playoffs and indeed was the No. 1

Needless to say, Livingston was eventually placed ahead of Belleville in the county rankings because the Lancers made it to the group finals. Illogical. Both teams lost to Union, Livingston failing, badly. Both teams had two losses for the season, but one of Livingston's was to Belleville, and the Lancers were beaten, badly

What does the town of Belleville have to do to convince the largest newspaper in the state that the football program here is perhaps the best in the area and that Livingston isn't as good as some writers think? The Lancer defense is not of the same caliber as Belleville's, and if Yagiello has a bad day, which he does sometimes, what do the Lancers fall back on

Last year, the Belleville defense pressured Yagiello, and his receivers couldn't hold on to too many of his passes because of the crunching blows delivered by the Buc secondary. Meanwhile, a better balanced Belleville was running and passing the Lancers into the ground.

The first mention of football this year in the Ledger school section featured a picture of Yagiello and a full explanation of his illustrious career. I don't think that Joe Namath got that will open its 1980 season 3:45 tomorrow afternoon here against Irvington, and head coach Anthony DeAquino is a puzzled man.

DeAguino admits he has some good talent on this year's team but also recognizes that there are a lot of gaps to fill from last year's 9-7-3 squad. The club lost 10 seniors to graduation in the spring.

"We have a wide variety of players this year," said DeAquino. We have a smattering of seniors, juniors, sophomores and maybe I'll start some freshmen

The Bucs, who will entertain the Campers at Clearman Field, will be led by senior Johnny Lee, termed one of the finest players in the state" by DeAquino. termed "ultra tough" by his coach The Belleville High soccer team and his teammates will look to him for a lot of leadership this year.

Senior Tommy Dunn is also a tough player who will fill a halfback slot. Lenny Cardinale, who scored a goal in the Bucs' scrimmage against Bloomfield Tech last week, will play center and forward.

Freshman Brian Cook will most likely start in goal, while sophomore, Nick DePrizio will be at halfback. Santiago Boria, a freshman, will play right fullback. Carlos Kingahlua will be at a stopper position, and Don-Dilican will be at a wing.

"I don't know if this is a rebuilding year or not," said DeAquino. "We have a lot of questions to be answered and the Irvington game will be a good test for us.

Gridmen making steady progress through pre-season scrimmages

By Mike Lamberti

After two hard-hitting scrimmages, the Belleville High football team is beginning to mold itself into a very respectable unit that will hit. the field for the season opener against "No. 1" Livingston Sept. 26.

The Bucs battled Perth Amboy and Freehold Township in a triscrimmage last Tuesday last week and hosted Ridgewood Saturday morning. Earlier this week, the Bucs traveled to Scotch Plains for a triscrimmage with that school and Parsippany Hills., They battle Columbia kind of publicity when he was in high school. It should be interesting to hear Al Jacobson's remarks on the game with Belleville coming up. In the past, the Livingston coach has delivered some winning cracks, like "We might not even show up" and "It's like the men (Belleville) playing the boys (Livingston)." Those remarks have been made out of grudging respect for the Bucs. Jacobson knows more about the game than a lot of the people covering it in the press.

It will be interesting to see how the Ledger explains its ranking system after Belleville and Livingston meet each other on Sept. 26. The paper will one day have to admit that Belleville has a class program which deserves better than its shabby treatment in the Star-Ledger. That day may be coming very soon. It would be nice to see hard-working high school athletes and their teams judged competently - on the basis of what they do on the field, rather than in superficial feature stories.

Matty! Matty! Matty! That chant might very well be heard in Shea Stadium this week after the Jets' miserable offensive performance in Buffalo last weekend. The Jets are off to an 0-2 beginning again this year and Richard Todd is bringing back those Matt Robinson chants thanks to his slow start at the . The Jets play the suddenly dangerous San Francisco 19ers this weekend and had better get together season will be the biggest disappointment yet in Jet history.

Each week, I will preview the Giants, Jets and a big game in the NFL and make a prediction of the outcome of that game. The Jets will need a revitalization of their suddenly dormant offense if they hope to beat a youthful 49er team at Shea Stadium. The defense has been strong, but it has also spent a great deal of time on the field because of Todd's ineptitude in running the offense. San Francisco has a young, exciting team that will test the defense. If the Jet offense is ready, it could be a big game for the locals. New York 27, San Francisco 16.

The Giants will be faced with a great challenge against the Philadelphia Eagles on Monday night in Philadelphia. The Eagles look to be nearly awesome and will test the Giant defense severely. The Giants might be improving, but won't win here. Philadelphia 24, Giants 13.
