Newest Resident — Kristin Casullo rests in the arms of her mother Susan Tuesday. The first Belleville resident of 1981 was welcomed with gifts from local businesses, and Harry French, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, and Mrs. Sol Sherman, first baby contest chairman, came by to hand them out.

Welcome, Kristin Sara!

Kristin Sara Casullo is Belleville's newest resident. The seven-pound, four-ounce, 20-inch girl was born 7:12 a.m. Sunday at Clara Maass Memorial Hospital to John and Susan Casullo of 90 Branch Brook Drive.

Kristin is the Casullo's third child and third girl. Kerri Casullo is 8 years old, Michele is 2. Their father is employed by Colgate Palmolive in Jersey City.

The new child's paternal grandparents are Albert and Antoinette Casullo. The maternal grandparents are Richard and

As the first Belleville baby born here in 1981, Kristin was the winner of bank accounts, gift certificates and other prizes donated by local businesses in a contest under the direction of the Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber's executive director, Harry T. French, and the contest chairman, Shirley Sherman, presented some of the gifts Tuesday afternoon while visiting Mrs. Casullo and her new daughter in the hospital.

The first baby program was the 17th conducted by the local Chamber. Donors this year were Charles Jewelers, Roth & Schlenger, Fountain of Flowers, Pro Lumber Hardware, Sherman's Children's Wear, People's Bank, Kondrack Studios, Casa Poma Inc., First DeWitt Savings and Loan Association, Flowerama, the Junior Woman's Club of Belleville, Jolly Cleaners, The Belleville Telegram, the Belmont Avenue Pathmark, Milt's Photo, Vac-u-Max, Bell Coin Shop and Belleville Shoes.

Town receives $300,000 from federal government

Belleville will soon receive $301,070 in federal revenue sharing funds, money which will be divided equally among the town's five government departments and which may be used to lower the local tax rate.

"It's almost like a rebate," said Craig Brown of Bruno Associates, the Newark consulting firm that handles Belleville's applications for outside funding. He noted that the reimbursement will help commissioners deal with rising insurance and utility costs. Finance Commissioner Joseph McGreevy seemed pleased to get the funds, stressing his colleagues have always split the federal money five ways.

"There has been talk of cutting this back," said Brown of general revenue sharing. "That's what everybody's thinking about. Every town gets a chunk of this...but some of the southern states have gone up drastically (in population), some 10, 15 and 20 percent."

Brown pointed out that with New Jersey's population inching up only 2 percent, it's apparent the state will be losing out to the Sunbelt with its booming industry and population.

Brown noted that his firm did not write a grant proposal for the general revenue monies and didn't have to since they are "entitlement" funds or funds that municipalities get simply by applying. He said without the yearly federal infusion of about $300,000 here, Belleville's tax rate would increase 3 percent, or $30 to $50 per household.

And unless general revenue sharing is axed entirely, Brown doesn't foresee a big drop in local funding. Both Brown and Town Treasurer Isadore Padula didn't know how long general revenue sharing would continue under President-elect Ronald Reagan, but Brown said it seems a good guess funding will gradually decrease.

Last year, Belleville received $282,075, while the 1979 allocation was $316,360. Brown said the general revenue sharing funds are distributed by a formula based on population, per capita income and tax revenues.

The 11th congressional district, of which Belleville is a part, got $22 million for 1981. With Belleville losing more than 2,000 residents according to the 1980 Census, it's likely the town will lose funds in 1982. Essex County has been waging a legal battle to have the Census Bureau reveal the list of street addresses it used in compiling the population figures. The U.S. Supreme Court will soon hear the case, and if the county wins, it's likely Belleville's count will eventually be revised upward.

Trustees hike cost of lunches 5 cents

Because federal funding is being cut back 10 cents per meal sold, Belleville trustees have decided to raise some school lunch prices a nickel hoping to cut their losses in half.

A form letter from the federal government read by Board Secretary Administrator Mary Shader last Monday informed trustees that since they will be losing 10 cents in funding on each "Type A" lunch, a $10,240 deficit might accumulate by year's end if they didn't up prices. Type A lunches, usually those served hot, include standard percentages of vitamins recommended by the government.

Trustees chose to raise prices only five cents because they felt a larger increase might cause students to buy fewer lunches, thus making for a greater deficit.

"We'll increase this five cents for January and February and then see how it's working," said Mrs. Shader. With prices increased only five cents over the six months left in the school year, it's estimated trustees will be $5,120 in the red. They hope that deficit will be eliminated by profits from other areas, if possible.

Belleville's school lunch program is run throughout the system by Servomation, a firm which is paid a fee but receives no profits and is under trustees' jurisdiction.

"I have no objection to a small loss, but we'll see what happens after that," said Board President Ernie Zoppi last week. He added that trustees would reassess the lunch program in March to see how it's doing.

The federal government provides reimbursements on different types of lunch programs conforming to federal guidelines. The "Type A" lunches will continue to receive some federal subsidy. Lunches in other categories have so far not been affected by any cutbacks.

SAGA ISN'T OVER YET

Desegregation crisis the top story of 1980

The first year of the 1980s was a momentous one for Belleville. It was a year in which several great issues were decided — at least for the time being — and in which a few major trends emerged, perhaps indicating what the future here will be like. Some of 1980's news was good, much, unfortunately, was bad.

Riveting the attention of residents almost weekly over the last year, Belleville's school desegregation plan, for better or worse, was undoubtedly the most important news story of the year and an omnipresent topic of conversation.

Since the fall of 1979 when restructuring committee hearings began, front page headlines were dominated by an intricate, unwinding tale of the state's insistence that local school trustees draw up a desegregation plan or face a possible cutoff of state aid or the blocking of money normally returned after a budget defeat.

Tied up for months in tumultuous meetings and bitter community debate, the plan last September moved 64 minority children from School 1 and nearly 150 non-minorities from Schools 1 and School 2, both of which were closed. The children were shifted to achieve "racial balance" as defined by the state.

Two School 1 parents have taken the Board of Education to court, charging trustees not only misled them into believing 1 would be kept open, but that they placed the entire desegregation burden on School 1's minorities. The parents lost the early rounds but have not given up by any means. Repeated call on the board to fight the state went unheeded by school trustees who voted 4-3 on March 3 to shut down the two schools and begin three "magnet" schools to improve local education while at the same time eliminating defacto segregation.

The desegregation saga and related spinoffs such as the possible purchase of School 2 by the town for a recreation center should continue to be big local news for some time.

2) Also entangled in a legal morass is a development that surfaced in September. The 1980 census count, the year's No. 2 story, could well mean the town will lose thousands upon thousands of dollars in federal aid in the years to come.

Only 35,069 people were counted locally compared to 37,629 in 1970, a tally Registrar of Vital Statistics Ralph Risoli termed "crazy" since births here have outpaced deaths 2-1 since 1970. (At the same time, school enrollment continued on a downward

Newark claiming water rate power

By Mike Olohan

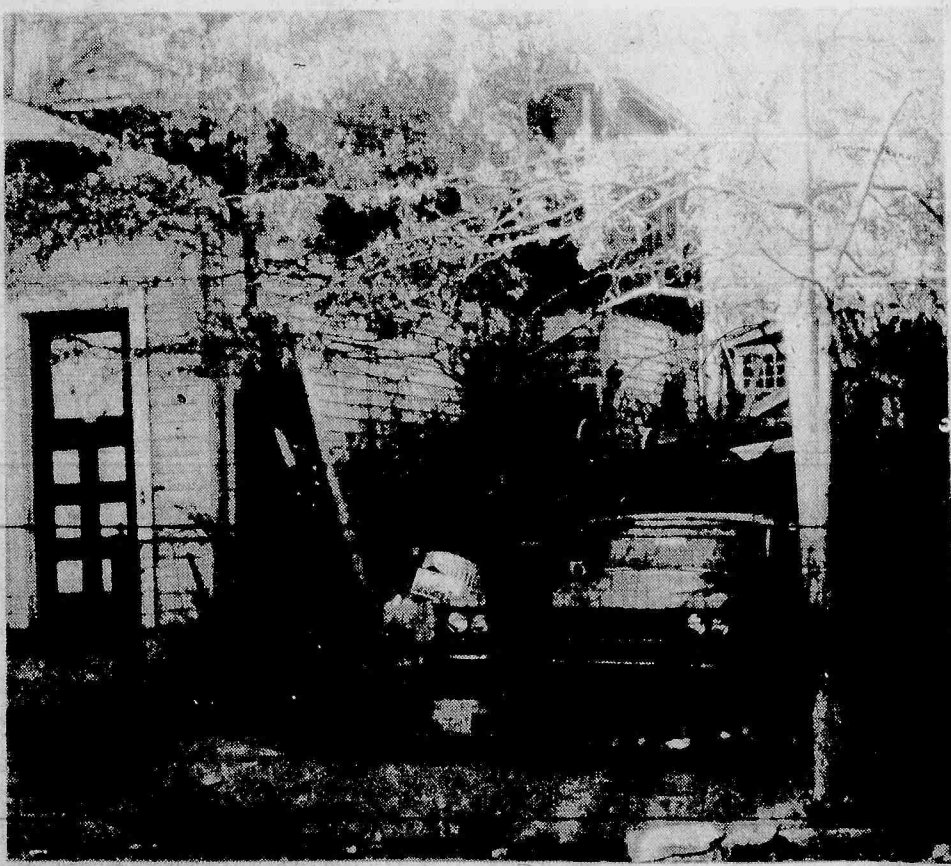

While one state official says Newark Water Company representatives must appear before New Jersey's Board of Public Utilities before being granted a more than double rate increase here, Newark's director of customer services says his company is autonomous and needs no one's approval to raise prices.

To find out exactly what became of a rate hearing supposedly scheduled for two weeks ago, The Times contacted several state officials. Robert Kent, supervising rate analyst of BPU (which replaced the former Public Utilities Commission), said that Newark Water officials and BPU members had met recently to arrange a hearing in the Newark Office of Administrative

PSE&G reports profits are up

Public Service Electric and Gas Company has reported that earnings for the 11-month period ending Nov. 30, 1980, were $2.98 a share of common stock compared with $2.65 a share in the corresponding period of 1979.

Earnings in the 11-month period for 1980 reflected a gain of $19.5 million, or 27 cents a share, on the sale in October of Transport of New Jersey, the company's transportation subsidiary, to the state. Earnings in the period were reduced by a write-off in April 1980 of $13.2 million, equal to 18 cents a share, representing unrecovered costs associated with abandonment of the company's offshore energy exploration project.

In the first 11 months of 1980, there were 72.8 million average shares outstanding, an increase of 11.8 percent from the 65.1 million outstanding in the comparable 1979 period.

FBI Graduate — Police Sgt. Cornelius "Nick" Berrigan has graduated from the FBI National Academy. There he took several weeks of courses designed to help him with his law enforcement work here in Belleville. A 1949 BHS graduate, he and his wife Doris live on Beech Street. They have three children, Donna, 22, Brian, 18, and Gary, 12.

Former Times editor Shapiro's press aide

Essex County Executive Peter Shapiro has announced the appointment of Rona Parker of Livingston as his press secretary.

Mrs. Parker, a former editor of The Belleville Times, was public information officer for Northern New Jersey and New York's Westchester, Orange and Rockland Counties for the 1980 census. She served as press secretary to former State Sen. Alexander J. Menza and was deputy press secretary to U.S. Senator Bill Bradley during his 1978 Senate campaign.

The 41-year-old Mrs. Parker was previously a columnist and reporter for United Press International in New York. She was a local reporter for WJRZ, a radio station that operated in Newark in the 1960s, and began her news career writing for the Newark Evening News.

Mrs. Parker said she is especially pleased to be working in Essex County, where her roots are. A native of Newark, she graduated from West Side High School and received a bachelor of arts degree from Rutgers University in Newark, where she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. She received a master's degree from the Columbia Graduate School of Journalism.

Shapiro said Mrs. Parker brings to the $20,750-a-year press position 20 years' experience in news coverage, government operations and public information service. She has also worked as a free-lance writer and a private consultant in press and public relations.

She is married to Dr. Robert Parker, a podiatrist, and has four daughters, Dawn, 16, Michele, 14, Karen, 13, and Gail, 11.

Chief Sbarra will report soon on upgrading town fire code

Prodded by Belleville's public safety director, Fire Chief George Sbarra will soon be making recommendations on how to upgrade the town's fire code in order to make local buildings safer to live and work in.

Early in December, Commissioner Matthew Pica told Sbarra to find the fire hazards existing around town and report back to him with recommendations for improving conditions. So far Sbarra has identified hazards but hasn't made specific recommendations as Pica requested, though they're expected to be forthcoming.

Following two horrendous blazes in Las Vegas and White Plains, N.Y., in which 110 people lost their lives, Pica decided to begin a townwide inspection of buildings, a fact not known until he was contacted last week. He was annoyed by a Times article depicting Belleville's fire code as not strict enough. He emphasized that action was already being taken to remedy fire hazards.

However, Building Inspector Robert Domenick, who will become Belleville's code enforcement officer when state certification comes through, has said he and assistant Vincent Cappetta can't do a thorough code enforcement job with a two-man staff. Both inspectors enforce the fire section of New Jersey's 1977 Uniform Construction Code, which superseded Belleville's local construction code.

That state code says buildings 1,200 square feet or less don't need sprinklers or smoke detectors, a clause that Sbarra would like to see changed. He and Pica both feel smoke detectors should at least be required in most buildings, and Pica plans to introduce an ordinance upgrading local fire laws.

Right now, Sbarra is researching what fire ordinances other municipalities have, and will recommend changes suitable for Belleville, said Pica.

For three months, Pica said, firemen were inspecting vacant lots to help eliminate fire hazards. But the construction code inspectors have been unable to handle their end, searching for fire hazards in buildings and correcting them, because the sheer volume of complaints precludes any extensive and quick follow-up program.

Domenick told commissioners in mid-November that his department is undermanned, but he will probably have to wait until after budget time to discover if he's been given extra help. With another inspector and full-time secretary, he says his department will be able to get out from under the massive paperwork it is now forced to complete.

Local firefighters have for sometime expressed the fear that a large blaze in Belleville could easily get out of control, since three local firehouses are usually manned by only 13 men — four for two ambulances, a dispatcher, three in Silver Lake, one man on Engine 5, one on Truck 3, two on Engine 4 and the chief.

Firemen's union spokesman Charles Aughenbaugh believes a 19-man minimum as recommended by the National Fire Protection Administration should be used, but adds most departments in New Jersey are undermanned.

It seems apparent, then, that greater emphasis will be have to placed on fire prevention. Sbarra said fire inspections of public buildings and businesses are performed yearly, but Domenick noted he doesn't go out looking for fire violations because he doesn't have the time. He said if he happens to see something that looks hazardous, he'll stop and check it, but otherwise he only operates when given complaints by citizens.

"It's not part of the job," said Domenick when asked if he inspects buildings regularly for fire violations. "It's not required." He said it "would be good" if State Community Affairs Commissioner Joseph LeFante gets his proposal passed to include pre-1977 constructed buildings in 1977's state uniform Construction Code.

"I would like to see that," Domenick said.

Pica said there's no reason why smoke detectors can't be installed in public buildings throughout town and a proposed ordinance is likely to focus on them. He says he'll do what has to be done to save lives. "That's what I'm here for," he stressed.

Prayer for today

Thou must be true thyself,
If thou the truth wouldst teach;
Thy soul must overflow, if thou
Another's soul wouldst reach!
It needs the overflow of heart
To give the lips full speech.
Think truly, and thy thoughts
Shall the world's famine feed;
Speak truly, and each word of thine
Shall be a fruitful seed.
Live truly, and thy life shall be
A great and noble creed.

Mayor Gibson

Newark's Mayor Gibson has announced his candidacy for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. If Gibson stays in the race, he will be the first serious black candidate with a chance for the nomination of a major party. Gibson would enter the contest with strong credentials. Serving 10 years in one of the nation's most difficult offices, Gibson brought peace and integrity to a troubled city. Gibson's track record reflects fair treatment for all races, colors and creeds. As a public official, Gibson comes off as a great humanitarian, dispensing equal justice with fair play for all. In a city which has had more than its share of corruption, Gibson has proven to be an able administrator — a good judge of people and public servants. He has as much right — and maybe more — as any other Democrat in New Jersey to seek his party's gubernatorial nomination. We welcome his candidacy.

The hostage crisis

The fast-breaking news these days would lead any American to draw her or his conclusion as to what the Iranian madmen plan to do with our American hostages.

The Iranian leaders probably will do the most practical political thing. They have nothing to gain by releasing the hostages to an outgoing president. They have much to gain by waiting until Ronald Reagan becomes president, make a deal with Reagan — in the process make Reagan look good and at the same time earn some brownie points from a president who will be the Free World's leader for the next four years. Whether the Iranians like it or not, they must adjust to the fact that they will have to live with Reagan for four years. Logic seems to indicate the Iranians would want to make Reagan look good by turning over the hostages to him rather than to a lame duck President Carter.

Only time will tell whether the practical overcomes the incredible.

Great postal service

Every year around this time, we reflect for a moment upon the hectic Christmas holidays and wonder how we lived through them. A major reason for our survival in reasonably good shape is the outstanding performance of our postal workers. The mail was heavier this Christmas. For the clerks and postmen, the burden was greater. When one realizes that millions of pieces of mail and parcels have been processed through human hands, we marvel at the great efficiency of our postal system and the people who make it work.

We congratulate Postmaster Joseph Benucci and his dedicated staff for again turning in an outstanding performance.

Having draft will keep country ready in unhappy event of war

To the Editor:

The signing up for the draft is very important even though at this time we do not really need it. At least most people do not think so. But let me assure you that no nation can very well endure without it. If you want to keep fighting wars that you can win, you have to have the right kind of men and women in the armed forces. Ones who are quite healthy, well educated or at least know what they're doing because there are some human beings who are not educated and yet can make fine servicemen. For one example, Sergeant York. Remember him?

Someone made a statement recently that "We're going back to the days before World War II when we did not have much of a defense and look what the Japanese did to us — almost wiped us out." It can happen again. History is a great repeater. But how soon people do forget. After 40 years, it is like it never existed.

No one likes wars, you can be sure of that. Or least I think most people don't — sometimes you have to wonder what our leaders think about when they start these wars. But I do argue with the youngsters opposing the draft. If you're going to fight a war, win it! But don't fight for the sake of some puppet government or some material think that this nation wants. One you man said recently that he would not mind dying for his own country, but not for any other.

As far as women are concerned with the draft, the only thing I can say is that a woman should have the option of going to war if she wants to or of staying home. Or she could just take a minor military job like office work or helping train GIs in different capacities. But as far as wars are concerned, it's still a man's job. It's bad enough to see a man cut up and wrecked for the rest of his life without having the women join him.

Sincerely,
Wm. H. Rundle

Yule celebration brought a diverse group together

To the Editor:

A touching, joyous gathering full of love and the true meaning and spirit of Christmas took place not long ago and this meaningful time of year began in a long-to-be-remembered manner.

In the home of myself and my husband Frank Gialanella, friends and family from the tri-town area of Bloomfield, Belleville and Nutley gathered together for a tree/home decorating dinner to share in the true meaning of brotherhood and love. Joining forces for one purpose one could see the helping hands tenderly filling the live branches with beauty in a most heartwarming sight of folk of Italian, Jewish and black heritage sharing, laughing, one and all that which, Christmas, love and peace are all about.

Amidst an abundance of pasta and other homemade Italian delicacies, with a background of Christmas music from all nations, working hand-in-hand, a most breathtaking sight emerged as the final star was put on the tree and the switch sent forth not only the lights of the tree and baby Jesus in the manger, but a special human electricity, the light of togetherness. This indeed was and is the true meaning of the holiday season — a love captured and shared to be etched within us always and to bring forth from within and hold all through the year.

While I told of the image of the tree I wanted and husband Frank served up Irish coffee, the hands of Donna, Frankie and Jerry Gialanella and their friends Barbara Glazer (Hebrew) and Dwight Watkins (black) brought that image to reality. It was indeed a joining of hands and love of family and friends once more proving how very well we can, with peace and contentment, love one another and work, no matter what backgrounds, together towards one goal — the beauty of human relationships, one unto the other and the giving of self.

Senior Notes

By George Chenoweth

In the publication, "Consumer's Guide to New Jersey Law," which every senior citizen should refer to as needed, one of the important subjects dealt with concerns wills.

You don't have to be wealthy or near death to do some serious thinking about a will. As a matter of fact, the less money you have, the more important each dollar becomes. Although any property that you own with someone else with the right of survivorship is not subject to the provisions of your will, almost everybody has some possessions that will be covered by a will if the co-owner should die before you do.

If you die without a will, your property will be distributed according to New Jersey law. The procedure followed is very complicated, and it makes no exceptions for persons in unusual need or your own wishes.

Here's how your property will be divided if you die without a will. State law says that your spouse will receive the first $50,000 plus one-half of the balance of your individually owned property if you are survived by your spouse and descendants born of your marriage to this spouse, or by your spouse and your parent. If there are descendants born of a prior marriage, your present spouse will receive only one-half of your individually owned property. Any share not passing to your spouse, or your entire estate if you aren't survived by your spouse, will be divided among your children, or descendants of deceased children, if there are any.

Otherwise, it will pass to your parents, grandparents or their descendants. Also, your spouse may retain a lifetime right to one-half of the income from any interest on real estate you owned, if the real estate was acquired before May 28, 1980. Your spouse will receive your entire estate if you die leaving no living descendants or parents. Your spouse will probably be appointed administrator of your estate. If you have no spouse, there may have to be an agreement among your nearest relatives. A bond will have to be purchased to insure that the estate is properly administered and another bond will have to be taken out if you have minor children.

As you can see from these provisions, the complications that arise when you die without leaving a will are great. However, you can avoid many rigid provisions of state law and distribute your property and protect your children as you wish by having a will.

It is best not to try to make out a will be yourself, there are too many legal aspects to be encountered. Get in touch with the Essex-Newark Legal Services, Senior Citizens Division, located at 81 Main St., Orange, or call 672-3838 for an appointment.

BELLEVILLE PROLOGUE

Josiah Hornblower — a pioneer

By Ted Ings

Take a short walk through the old, decaying cemetery of the Dutch Reformed Church off Rutgers Street and you may find yourself lost in a dizzying maze of weathered tombstones and overgrown ivy. Hardly a place to take the family on a Sunday afternoon.

But if you care to learn a little bit about Belleville's colorful past, it might just be the thing to do.

Look over towards the eastern portion of the burial tract, just beyond those large, marble monuments which dot the sloping hill. If there's not too much snow on the ground, you'll come across a small, white stone with an oversized bronze tablet emblazoned on its side. It's really not so hard to find, since there's none other like it to be found there.

After you clear away some of the ivy, you'll find the tablet reads: "J. Hornblower — Patriot, Pioneer, Distinguished Citizen."

It's the grave of Belleville's only true hero and first town father... Josiah Hornblower.

Although most history books write only of his engineering genius, Josiah Hornblower was also one of the earliest members of the Congress of the United States. The resident of Second River (Belleville) distinguished himself in that body by favoring every measure calculated to strengthen the young Union.

Hornblower had never sought election to Congress. Instead, he earned his position on the merits of earlier accomplishments during the Revolutionary War, which began when the people of Essex County selected him as one of three members to represent them in the lower house of the provincial legislature, known as the assembly.

Recognizing his deep belief in the American cause, his colleagues elected him speaker of the assembly the following year.

In 1785, Josiah Hornblower was chosen by the legislature to represent New Jersey in the new Congress, which would soon be meeting in New York.

But, true to the Hornblower legend, Josiah didn't even realize he was being considered for the job. When representatives of the legislature called on him to bestow this unexpected honor, they found him ankle deep in mud, working in the fields of Belleville, gathering corn.

The roots of this hard worker can be traced back to England, where he was born on Feb. 23, 1729, the son of Joseph Hornblower. The elder Hornblower had spent many years developing "fire engines" or steam engines, designed by Thomas Newcomen, with whom he had worked.

This undoubtedly had a strong influence on young Josiah. He too entered the engineering field when he matured.

On May 8, 1753, the young engineer left his home for London with a bold mission in mind: He planned to sail to America to assemble the first steam engine in the New World — at the Schuyler Copper Mine in New Barbadoes (North Arlington). He smuggled aboard all of the necessary machinery and parts in triplicate.

The feat was not only remarkable for its technology but also for the fact that it was done without permission or knowledge of the crown. Hornblower left London about three weeks later aboard the "Irene."

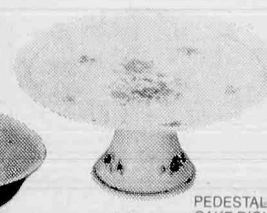

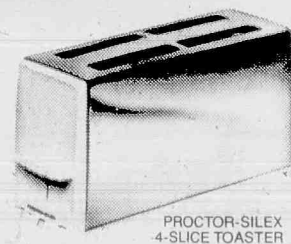

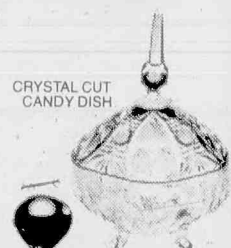

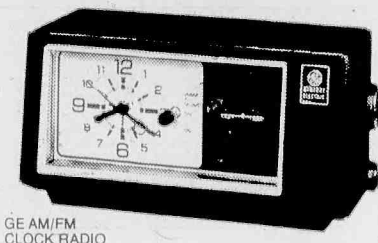

When he arrived on Sept. 9, 1753, Please see "Hornblower" on page 7.

Belleville Pioneer — The grave of Josiah Hornblower, who led the fight nearly two centuries ago to give Belleville its name, has been consigned to relative obscurity in the cemetery of the Dutch Reformed Church on Main Street.

Umberto's Corner

Dear Umberto,
My mother wants me to give her a permanent. I told her that before winding her hair on rods we should do a patch test. She told me to give her the perm without worrying about the patch test.

Once when I was in your shop I heard you talking about a patch test, so I told her about it. I am convinced she should take one but now I don't know how to administer it. Could you please instruct me?

Patch Test Daughter
Refused Mother

Dear Patch Test Daughter,
Before you give a permanent, for the health of the recipient, it is imperative that you first administer a patch test. This is to check whether or not the person is allergic. It is as simple as 1-2-3. Take a piece of cotton saturated with the lotion and touch her elbow or behind the ear. Wait 24 hours. If her skin becomes irritated, she is allergic. DO NOT give her a permanent! By doing so, her face or eyes may swell up and she may get sores on her head.
If there is no reaction to the patch test, go ahead with her perm.
But remember, for the sake of your health, a patch test is most important.
Yours,
Umberto

YWCA offering moms workshop

The Montclair-North Essex YWCA will offer workshops for mothers of infants beginning 10-11:30 a.m. Wednesday, Feb. 25. The workshops are open to mothers of infants newborn to 12 months.

As in the past two years, the workshops will be led by clinical social workers Ethel Decker and May Benatar. The weekly meetings will provide an opportunity for women to share and explore the personal feelings that accompany the birth and development of a child. Group discussions can reduce many of the normal anxieties associated with parenthood, increase parent effectiveness and contribute to marital stability and growth.

There will be a nominal fee for the workshops and babysitting will be available. For more information or to register, call Ann Rowe at 746-5400.

Barbara Romano will head March of Dimes drive here

Barbara Romano will lead the drive in Belleville against the nation's most serious child health problems as chairman of the 1981 March of Dimes Mothers March of Birth Defects here. This year's event is scheduled for the week of Jan. 25-31. It will be county-wide with all towns participating.

"A strong effort by concerned mothers is needed to alert the community to the 250,000 infants born each year with birth defects," said Mrs. Romano. "Mothers March is a neighbor-to-neighbor appeal for funds to support March of Dimes programs of research, medical services and health education."

This year marks the 30th anniversary of the Mothers March. "Today, as in the past, March of Dimes volunteers seek your help," Mrs. Romano said. "One hour of your time can make a real difference in the battle we are waging to protect the health of the newborn."

For details about joining the Mothers March, call the March of Dimes at 761-5775.

Hornblower helped change 'Second River' to 'Belleville'

Resting Place — The Dutch Reformed Church on Rutgers Street is the resting place of Josiah Hornblower, the Belleville resident best known to history.

Clara Maass offers tips on beating winter colds

Are you tired of catching that annual winter cold? Would you like to know how to prepare your body for exercise on a cold, snowy day?

This information and other winter health advice is available by calling the Clara Maass Memorial Hospital Tel-Med system. Now is the time, before the freezing weather sets in, to acquaint yourself with the innovative service which can provide helpful information for you and your family.

Tel-Med is free and simple to use. When you call 751-7000, you should request the tape you wish to hear by number or exact title.

"Winter" tapes are just a small part of the Clara Maass Tel-Med service. A brochure of the more than 200 tapes can be found in many places in town - health department, library, banks and churches. You can also obtain a brochure listing all available tapes by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Tel-Med c/o Clara Maass Memorial Hospital, 1 Franklin Ave., Belleville, N.J. 07109.

Some of the tapes designed to help you this winter are

"Frostbite," "Sore Throat," "Viruses; What Are They?," "Exercising: Warm Up Slowly," "The Flu" and "Chronic Cough."

Other topics covered by the free Clara Maass health information service include mental health, aging, home health care, diet, drug and alcohol abuse, birth control and childhood sicknesses.

The health tapes run three to five minutes. You will hear a discussion of the illness or problem about which you are interested.

Tel-Med is designed to provide health information but is not to be used in an emergency situation or to take the place of your family physician.

If your club or organization wishes to distribute Tel-Med brochures to its members, contact Mary Dominski in the Clara Maass Public Relations Department, 751-1000, ext. 817.

Tel-Med is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekdays and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturdays. The program is not in operation on Sundays or holidays.

there was scarcely another mechanic in the entire land who had the slightest idea of what a steam engine was, let alone how to construct it.

But construct it he did. In the spring of 1755 the mighty engine was completed and roared to life.

People traveled for hundreds of miles to see the scientific wonder in the wilderness at Schuyler's Mine. Among the visitors was Benjamin Franklin, who wrote, "I know of but one valuable copper mine in this country, which is that of the Schuylers' in the Jerseys."

Having gained fame for his success, Josiah Hornblower directed his interests to other areas. In 1761 he took a leading part in the erection of a schoolhouse in Belleville, the first ever built in town, and paid a large share of the cost from his own pocket.

He built a home in our town, just north of the present Rutgers Street bridge, which came to be known as "The Mansion House."

In 1793 Hornblower built the first stamping mill in this country in Belleville, as a part of the New Jersey Copper Mining Association. A few years later he had the pleasure of participating in the construction of the first steamboat in America, as the Passaic River became one of the earliest proving grounds for steam navigation.

Finally, after retiring from the Congress after many years of public service, Hornblower led the successful campaign to change our town's name from "Second River" to "Belleville" in 1797. He had long felt that the old name was inadequate for such a large and expanding community.

As the leading citizen in the community, Josiah Hornblower left behind him a long list of remarkable accomplishments, as well as a very large family. A family which would one day bear descendants such as the first chief justice of New Jersey, Joseph Hornblower, and, many years later, Justice Bradley of the United States Supreme Court.

Last year, 1979, marked the 250th anniversary of the birth of Josiah Hornblower, a date in history which has gone fairly unnoticed.

But, perhaps after reading this brief history of the man, someone will change that old bronze tablet on the tombstone in the Dutch Church Cemetery so that it simply reads: "Josiah Hornblower — Belleville's Pioneer."

THUMB-SUCKING SYNDROME

Does thumbsucking lead to crooked teeth? Most experts don't think occasional thumbsucking in infancy causes any problems with teeth. But there is a general agreement among dentists that prolonged and intensive thumbsucking past the time the first permanent teeth erupt - at 5 to 6 years of age - can lead to misshapen mouths and displaced teeth.

Actually, the position of individual teeth displaced by thumbsucking is of less concern to orthodontists than the effect of the bony support of the teeth - and the development of abnormal, deforming muscle activity. If, for example, the habit persists past two years, it could alter the child's swallowing pattern. Once this happens, the youngster may develop a protrusion of the upper front teeth; a narrowness of the upper dental arch; and an obvious malocclusion (improper bite) problem.

As long as there are infants, there will be thumbsuckers. However, if the habit continues longer than usual, it's best to have the child checked by a dentist before it causes any problems.

YWCA offering moms workshop

The Montclair-North Essex YWCA will offer workshops for mothers of infants beginning 10-11:30 a.m. Wednesday, Feb. 25. The workshops are open to mothers of infants newborn to 12 months.

As in the past two years, the workshops will be led by clinical social workers Ethel Decter and May Benatar. The weekly meetings will provide an opportunity for women to share and explore the personal feelings that accompany the birth and development of a child. Group discussions can reduce many of the normal anxieties associated with parenthood, increase parent effectiveness and contribute to marital stability and growth.

There will be a nominal fee for the workshops and babysitting will be available. For more information or to register, call Ann Rowe at 746-5400.

Umberto's Corner

Dear Umberto,
My mother wants me to give her a permanent. I told her that before winding her hair on rods we should do a patch test. She told me to give her the perm without worrying about the patch test.

Once when I was in your shop I heard you talking about a patch test, so I told her about it. I am convinced she should take one but now I don't know how to administer it. Could you please instruct me?

Patch Test Daughter
Refused Mother

Dear Patch Test Daughter,
Before you give a permanent, for the health of the recipient, it is imperative that you first administer a patch test. This is to check whether or not the person is allergic. It is as simple as 1-2-3. Take a piece of cotton saturated with the lotion and touch her elbow or behind the ear. Wait 24 hours. If her skin becomes irritated, she is allergic. DO NOT give her a permanent! By doing so, her face or eyes may swell up and she may get sores on her head.

If there is no reaction to the patch test, go ahead with her perm. But remember, for the sake of your health, a patch test is most important.

Yours,
Umberto

Barbara Romano will head March of Dimes drive here

Barbara Romano will lead the drive in Belleville against the nation's most serious child health problems as chairman of the 1981 March of Dimes Mothers March of Birth Defects here. This year's event is scheduled for the week of Jan. 25-31. It will be county-wide with all towns participating.

"A strong effort by concerned mothers is needed to alert the community to the 250,000 infants born each year with birth defects," said Mrs. Romano. "Mothers March is a neighbor-to-neighbor appeal for funds to support March of Dimes programs of research, medical services and health education."

This year marks the 30th anniversary of the Mothers March. "Today, as in the past, March of Dimes volunteers seek your help," Mrs. Romano said. "One hour of your time can make a real difference in the battle we are waging to protect the health of the newborn."

For details about joining the Mothers March, call the March of Dimes at 761-5775.

Hornblower helped change 'Second River' to 'Belleville'

Resting Place — The Dutch Reformed Church on Rutgers Street is the resting place of Josiah Hornblower, the Belleville resident best known to history.

Clara Maass offers tips on beating winter colds

Are you tired of catching that annual winter cold? Would you like to know how to prepare your body for exercise on a cold, snowy day?

This information and other winter health advice is available by calling the Clara Maass Memorial Hospital Tel-Med system. Now is the time, before the freezing weather sets in, to acquaint yourself with the innovative service which can provide helpful information for you and your family.

Tel-Med is free and simple to use. When you call 751-7000, you should request the tape you wish to hear by number or exact title.

"Winter" tapes are just a small part of the Clara Maass Tel-Med service. A brochure of the more than 200 tapes can be found in many places in town - health department, library, banks and churches. You can also obtain a brochure listing all available tapes by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Tel-Med c/o Clara Maass Memorial Hospital, 1 Franklin Ave., Belleville, N.J. 07109.

Some of the tapes designed to help you this winter are

"Frostbite," Sore Throat," "Viruses; What Are They?," "Exercising: Warm Up Slowly," "The Flu" and "Chronic Cough."

Other topics covered by the free Clara Maass health information service include mental health, aging, home health care, diet, drug and alcohol abuse, birth control and childhood sicknesses.

The health tapes run three to five minutes. You will hear a discussion of the illness or problem about which you are interested.

Tel-Med is designed to provide health information but is not to be used in an emergency situation or to take the place of your family physician.

If your club or organization wishes to distribute Tel-Med brochures to its members, contact Mary Dominski in the Clara Maass Public Relations Department, 751-1000, ext. 817.

Tel-Med is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekdays and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturdays. The program is not in operation on Sundays or holidays.

there was scarcely another mechanic in the entire land who had the slightest idea of what a steam engine was, let alone how to construct it.

But construct it he did. In the spring of 1755 the mighty engine was completed and roared to life.

People traveled for hundreds of miles to see the scientific wonder in the wilderness at Schuyler's Mine. Among the visitors was Benjamin Franklin, who wrote, "I know of but one valuable copper mine in this country, which is that of the Schuylers' in the Jerseys."

Having gained fame for his success, Josiah Hornblower directed his interests to other areas. In 1761 he took a leading part in the erection of a schoolhouse in Belleville, the first ever built in town, and paid a large share of the cost from his own pocket.

He built a home in our town, just north of the present Rutgers Street bridge, which came to be known as "The Mansion House."

In 1793 Hornblower built the first stamping mill in this country in Belleville, as a part of the New Jersey Copper Mining Association. A few years later he had the pleasure of participating in the construction of the first steamboat in America, as the Passaic River became one of the earliest proving grounds for steam navigation.

Finally, after retiring from the Congress after many years of public service, Hornblower led the successful campaign to change our town's name from "Second River" to "Belleville" in 1797. He had long felt that the old name was inadequate for such a large and expanding community.

As the leading citizen in the community, Josiah Hornblower left behind him a long list of remarkable accomplishments, as well as a very large family. A family which would one day bear descendants such as the first chief justice of New Jersey, Joseph Hornblower, and, many years later, Justice Bradley of the United States Supreme Court.

Last year, 1979, marked the 250th anniversary of the birth of Josiah Hornblower, a date in history which has gone fairly unnoticed.

But, perhaps after reading this brief history of the man, someone will change that old bronze tablet on the tombstone in the Dutch Church Cemetery so that it simply reads: "Josiah Hornblower — Belleville's Pioneer."

"No Group Is Too Large For Us"

Work on BHS courtyard could be underway soon

Anxious to build Belleville High seniors their own courtyard by spring, Trustee Mike Chieffo expects help will soon be forthcoming from Mayor Michael Marotti's Recreation Department and that the facility will cost just $1,500 to $2,000 to complete.

Planning for the courtyard began nearly two years ago when trustees played a benefit basketball game at BHS to raise money for the project. Another $1,000 was donated by the 1979 senior class. About 25 telephone poles contributed by Jersey Bell for the courtyard have been lying for several months in front of Belleville High, testimony to inactivity by local officials who received final project blueprints early last summer.

Several groundbreaking ceremonies have already been held, with no work yet underway. Chieffo said about three days' labor would be required to construct a courtyard. He noted cement can now be poured during cold weather, so work may begin soon.

"All we have to do is get cracking on this," said Chieffo smiling, obviously aware of the numerous delays the project has already faced.

Meeting tonight to focus on Passaic River cleanup

By Mike Olohan

If you think the Passaic River should be saved — cleaned up and put back to use for swimming and other forms of recreation — attend an 8 o'clock meeting tonight at Maplewood Town Hall where Passaic River Coalition officials will discuss reviving the once pristine waterway.

PRC executive director Ella Fillipone will tell citizens what her group intends to do to make the Passaic both swimmable and potable. PRC is applying for a federal grant to finance a comprehensive plan to clean up the Passaic. Already, support from five communities is assured, but no Belleville officials attended the last meeting held in October in North Arlington Borough Hall.

Tonight's meeting will enable people with questions about PRC's plans to find out exactly where the group stands. Before a federal grant is awarded to PRC to plan cleaning up Essex County's side of the Passaic, the organization must prove it has citizen support.

Out of 19 lower Passaic River basin communities the PRC is trying to enlist, only Newark, North Arlington, Kearny, Lyndhurst and Rutherford have pledged support. "We'll soon be putting in our proposal to do an inventory of the Passaic," says Fillipone, emphasizing PRC wants to clean both the Essex and Bergen sides of the river, and in doing so, involve industry as well as citizens.

No federal funds have been received yet by PRC, but a proposal for Essex County's Community Development Block Grant Program will be drawn up tonight in hopes of obtaining both federal and state dollars.

Months ago, PRC applied for a National Science Foundation grant to begin planning the Passaic's

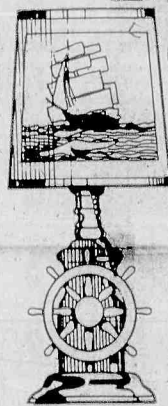

"renaissance," as the group call it, but PRC won't know until April whether it's been received, says Fillipone.

"We have our ideas about the river, but we need funds before we can do anything," stressed Fillipone. She's hoping PRC's National Science Foundation grant is approved to get work moving soon. Right now, all that's definite is a Memorial Day Regatta to further spotlight efforts to cleanse the river. Crew teams from Belleville, Nutley and Kearny Highs will be invited.

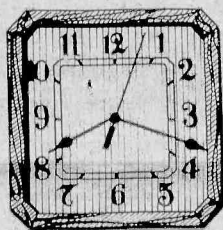

State Environmental Protection Commissioner Jerry English told Fillipone it will take until 1983 before state efforts can be focused on the Passaic, a reality Fillipone says is good since PRC will have more time now to plan a thorough blueprint to rejuvenate the ailing river.

Down by the River — Tom Kacynski and Ella Fillipone of the Passaic River Coalition pose beside a map of the waterway. Citizens are invited to a PRC meeting tonight at 8 at which efforts to clean the river will be discussed.

Wishes and non-wishes from town's officials

By Mike Olohan

Most Bellevillites raised their glasses in celebration of the new year early last Thursday morning, and many local officials and townsfolk were also making resolutions, some weighty, some profound and some, well, some didn't make any.

Asked Tuesday night what his resolution for the new year was, Mayor Mike Marotti smiled and looked somewhat baffled at the question. The mayor, like several others questioned, apparently doesn't believe in resolutions, though he promised he'd try to think of one soon.

While some people humorously have resolved not to make any new year's resolutions, others continue to make them despite the fact they never accomplish any of them.

"I resolved to go on a diet," said Maureen Gilbert, switchboard operator at Belleville's Town Hall. She said though she's made that resolution many times before, she hopes to lose about 27 pounds, getting down to a svelte 123.

"I just eat too much," she said, noting she wouldn't mind seeing her words in print. "At this point, nothing would embarrass me as far as my weight is concerned," she said with a laugh before switching The Times to Mayor Marotti's office.

While the mayor couldn't be located Monday, Pat Verian, his secretary, said she's resolved to "be much neater" in 1981, while also hoping for "a better understanding" between countries so that no more wars occur.

With a son and three daughters, she admitted as in any family there are squabbles, but no wars. "I don't like arguments, but in my house we say what we think," she said, questioning why countries' leaders can't also speak their minds but at the same time learn to compromise.

Town Clerk Mary Lou Hood asserted, "I don't have any minor vices" when asked if she had made any resolutions. She said she wished for "peace in the world," but declined to reveal any personal resolutions.

Also caught off guard was School Board President Ernie Zoppi who said he doesn't particularly believe in resolutions. "No, I don't believe in them, but if it motivates you to do something then it's good," he said. "...You've caught me at a loss...of course I wish for peace in the world," he said, grabbing the suggestion by his inquirer.

"I haven't made any resolutions. It's hard to improve upon perfection," said a comedic Mike Ippolito. Ippolito, who's a welfare worker, chairman of the local assistance board, chairman of the Rent Leveling Board and a Zoning Board member, said he just wishes for "greater cooperation between landlords and their tenants." Ippolito said he sees too many cases of nitpicking between tenants and landlords. "It's getting out of hand, then their quibbling is becoming bogged down in bureaucracy, I would like to see a togetherness between both since each has an investment in their buildings."

"I want to continue to do the best that I can for the town," said Public Safety Commissioner Matthew Pica, contacted Monday at Riati Associates, the concrete company where he works. "I want to continue to protect the health and welfare of the community. I wish that every day," he added, noting resolutions should be monitored every day.

School Trustee Tom Zampino said he hopes to use the experience gained from his last eight months on the board wisely this year. "I learned that not a lot of change can take place quickly. We have to lay the foundation for the things that we'd like to do in the future," he said. "I'm hoping we can provide a good education for my daughter and all the children in Belleville."

"I propose to lose 15 pounds between now and April," said Trustee John DiStasi after Monday's brief 10-minute Board of Ed meeting. "We want to continue to progress and serve the community," he said, adding he'd like to see the school budget passed this year.

"I'd like to see the hostages released," said Public Affairs Commissioner Vincent Strumolo Tuesday night. "I wish everyone a good, healthy prosperous new year, and they should visit the health department (383 Washington Ave.) to continue to keep themselves in good health."

"I want to try to arrest my appetite," said School Superintendent Dr. John Greed. He admitted, he used to make resolutions years ago, but "it was hard to keep them." Greed also wants to cut down to two cigars per day from four.

"I don't think it's charitable to smoke when other people are around," said Greed, adding he tried to quit "four or five times. I made resolutions in September that I'd try to spend more time in the schools and seeing teachers at least a couple times a week." Another wish Greed would like is a little more radical:

"Someday, I'd like to see the whole State Department of Education blown up. I think we've got too much government," Greed noted that at a recent superintendents' meeting with State Education Commissioner Fred Burke, officials gave him an alphabet minus the letters T&E, acronyms for the state's much despised "thorough and efficient" educational plan passed in 1975.

"I hope for good health for everyone," said Public Works Commissioner Mary Senatore. "I look forward to 1981 so Washington Avenue is improved and we're able to reconstruct and resurface more roads in town."

Herald-News Belleville reporter Matt Moser joked about losing some weight, while Times editor John Jurich said he hoped to quit smoking. "I crave a cigarette," he said Tuesday, sitting at a video display terminal in The Times office. Asked what had caused him to start puffing in the first place, Jurich said "peer pressure" and admitted to chain-smoking a pack to a pack-and-a-half per day. On deadline days, it was two packs plus, conceded Jurich, who knows it isn't the first he's tried to kick the habit.

Staring at his typewriter keys, reporter Mike Olohan resolved not to write any more New Year's resolution stories. "I also resolve not to dance with any more tripods at Frank Orechio's next 'Man of the Year' awards dinner," said Olohan, typing up his own resolution.

Newark Company confident of getting double rate boost

Law.

Though specifics weren't available, Kent said Newark was to file a rate increase application soon, and a hearing would probably be held "within a month" in an administrative law courtroom. He said all of Newark's customers would be contacted to appeal if they wished.

However, a hearing was news to Joseph Paradise, Newark's director of customer services, who maintained that his company didn't need permission from BPU officials to charge its customers more.

He said the only approval for which Newark was waiting was from New Jersey's Water (Emergency) Task Force. Paradise said task force members had already agreed in principle to the rate hike. Unfortunately, said Paradise, no firm notice of the task force's approval had yet been received.

Newark is paying its water supplier, Elizabethtown, $389 per million gallons, but is charging Belleville $250 per million gallons. By imposing a $267.92 surcharge on every million gallons sold locally, retroactive to Sept. 7, Newark hopes to recoup most of its losses, which have also been increased by a water conservation program the company is now running.

With New Jersey's drought continuing, Newark will continue to buy water from Elizabethtown. Paradise feels any judge will probably award Newark an increase because "of the water emergency. The towns can refuse to pay, but they'll have to go into court. And because we're in an emergency, we'll probably get it," he said.

Belleville Town Attorney Frank Zinna has said he will probably recommend that commissioners fight Newark's rate increase, but he hasn't heard anything from Newark officials since a letter detailing the increase was received from Mayor Kenneth Gibson's office.

Until he or commissioners are contacted, Belleville won't be paying any surcharge, says Zinna, which if retroactive to Sept. 7 will cost $62,448.

But Paradise emphasizes that because Newark's customers, including Belleville, aren't cutting back water usage 25 percent as mandated by Gov. Brendan Byrne, they'll probably be forced to pay the additional surcharges set by Newark.

The last conservation reading here showed local residents and businesses saving 15 percent, a disappointment considering winter is traditionally a lower water use period. Belleville's water saving peaked at 16.7 percent about three weeks ago.

Paradise seemed perturbed that few other municipalities Newark serves are meeting conservation requirements. "They (state officials) claim all the other towns aren't doing their jobs," noted Paradise, pointing to that as more evidence why Newark should be granted an increase.

"Unless they conserve their 25 percent, they're going to be hit by surcharges," said Paradise. He said on top of a rate increase, Newark could soon begin fining towns that don't conserve 25 percent.

This ad is for people who have $10,000 to invest. And for those who don't.

People who have $10,000 to invest aren't the only ones who can earn high interest rates.

For those of you who have only $3,000 to invest, and want it invested for only 26 weeks at the rate for $10,000 certificates, consider the maximum security of a 26-week certificate from First National State.

Deposit any amount from $3,000 to $9,000 (in increments of $1,000). WE LEND YOU THE DIFFERENCE AND CHARGE NO INTEREST ON THE LOAN. Your certificate may be automatically renewed for additional 26-week periods at the rate prevailing at that time. Federal regulations prohibit compounding of interest during the term of deposit.

If you prefer a longer term and have only $1,000 to invest, we recommend another safe, high-interest certificate. Our Special Investment Certificate.

Lock in today's high rates for the next two-and-a-half years. Interest is compounded daily from day of deposit when paid at maturity, and the rate is guaranteed for the term of the deposit.

If you like, we'll either mail you a check for interest earned on your Special Investment Certificate at the end of each quarter, or it can be deposited into your checking account.

Both types of certificates are insured to $100,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

*Substantial interest penalty is required for early withdrawal. Annual yields are effective when principal and interest are left on deposit for a full year at the same rate.

Now that you've read the details, why not stop in at the First National State office near you. Those of you who have several thousand to invest. And those of you who'd eventually like to.

Our first concern is New Jersey.

Sgt. Hester Jackson officer of the month

Staff Sgt. Hester D. Jackson has been named outstanding noncommissioned officer of the month at Vance Air Force Base in Oklahoma.

An administration superintendent, the sergeant was selected for professional skill, duty performance and exemplary behavior. She is the daughter of Eugene Jackson of 26 Watchung Ave. and Gloria Jackson of 327 South 12th St., Newark.

Marine Capt. George E. Kondreck Jr., son of George E. and Helen Kondreck of 53 Van Houten Place, recently assigned to the western Pacific.

Kondreck, a pilot, is a member of Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron 265 based at the Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii.

Since leaving Hawaii for six months, Kondreck's unit has participated in exercise "Valiant Blitz" in the Philippines. The exercise involved 16 U.S. Navy ships, 5,000 Marines and forces from the Philippines and provided the participants with experience in amphibious landing techniques and combined operations ashore.

Kondreck is a 1969 graduate of Essex Catholic High School and a 1973 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., with a bachelor of science degree.

Airman Clifford J. Williams, son of Catherine Williams of 14 Carpenter Terrace, has been assigned to Keesler Air Force Base in Mississippi after completing basic training.

During his six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas, Williams studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations. He also earned credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force. He will now receive specialized training in avionics systems.

Marine Pvt. Gary D. Trabucco, son of Anthony and Theresa Trabucco of 185 Floyd St., has finished training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C.

During the 11-week training cycle, Trabucco learned the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards of the Marine Corps. Trabucco, who joined the Marines in August 1980, also took part in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close-order drill.

Navy Seaman Recruit Joseph J. Armellino, son of Barbara Carmody of 28 Smallwood Ave., has completed training at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill. During the eight-week training period, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields. Included in his studies were seamanship, close-order drill, Naval history and first aid.

A 1980 graduate of West Morris Central High School in Chester, Armellino joined the Navy in September 1980.
