Aside From That

By Howard Klausner

The latest word from seafarer and adventurer Enre Dluhos is that he is in Gold Beach, Oregon, where he hopes to have the good ship Mary D. Hume afloat and ready to sail for Belleville in time for the sailing of the tall ships honoring the 500th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America next year. In what promises to be an epic of the sea, the veteran mariner is restoring the old steam driven whaler to seaworthy condition - we devoutly hope - and he has promised to carry as passengers Mr. and Mrs. Lou Cicenia of Charles Jewelers when he joins the parade of ships down the Hudson River. They are long time friends. The whaler is the last of its kind, and the Curry County Oregon Historical Society awarded it to Captain Dluhos on his promise to give it a good home. As an added attraction, the ship has its own resident ghost, a lady who plays the piano "sometimes at night when the low mist crawls in," Dluhos reports. "I'm not scared," he hastens to add, "because I am into this thing with a genuine passion." There is very little that scares Captain Dluhos, his friends agree, except the prospect of settling into a staid suburban lifestyle, something he has managed to avoid with outstanding success. If all goes well, the Mary D. Hume, built back in 1881, will become part of the Belleville scene, docked in the Passaic River as a tribute to American history and Dluhos' determination. "He's a very determined man," says Joe Cicenia, Lou's dad. "When he wants to do something, he gets it done." ●●●●● Lou Cicenia is also a sea lover and he keeps the family yacht, all 16 feet of it, parked at the family summer home in Barnegat. His three daughters and two sons-in-law have learned to love the sea as well, he reports. In the summer of 1987, Lou dove into the ocean to rescue a woman who was clinging to the hull of an overturned boat in choppy waters. He was nominated for a Lifesaver Award but the Coast Guard let the suggestion sink at sea. Right now, he says, he's more concerned about keeping the Washington Avenue business district afloat. ●●●●● One of those waging the good fight to revive - the word seems to be "revitalize" - the business district is Rita Troise, the vigorous president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, who sees signs of renewed commercial life. A symbol of that renewed life is the tree, and Mrs. Troise is hoping to see a tree planting program on Washington Avenue that would add a touch of greenery to a sometimes barren landscape. "We need more stores to provide the personal touch that only a small store can provide," she said. "We need clusters of stores - clothing stores here, auto supply stores there - to service local needs." As an example of how a local store could be successful, she cited Sherman's which provided shoes and children's clothing to three generations of Belleville people, closing its doors only when Shirlee Sherman decided to retire. "She is a merchant and she is a real part of the community," Mrs. Troise said. "That's the kind of store owner we need." ●●●●● One outstanding example of thriving enterprise is Spinoso music which has two corner stores facing each other off Washington Avenue and is planning an expansion that will create seven recording studios for its more than 100 students. "You've got to think positive!" owner Ralph Spinoso said, with the confident smile of a positive thinker. Whatever else the economy has done to business, it has not hurt the music trade, he reports. From singer Frankie Valli to guitarists Vic Juris and Joe Lilore and drummer Jimmy Young, Belleville has produced a good number of outstanding musicians. Young recently provided back up for the Kathy Lee Gifford show, and Lilore writes books on music for Warner Brothers. His latest is "59 Days to the Guitar". Ralph's son, Steve Spinoso, manages one of the stores and teaches part-time in the Weehawken school system. Saturday night, his school orchestra performed at Giants Stadium for the World Football League game. The stores sell everything from sheet music to electronic pianos, with sound amplifier equipment thrown in. "If they switch to rap, we can still supply the amplifiers," Ralph Spinoso said. But he doesn't expect the market for musical instruments to disappear. More youngsters than ever are taking up music. He acquired the business many years ago from Charlie Nuzzolo of Nutley, a famed accordionist who took first prize in a contest at the New York World's Fair back in 1939. "Charlie is still going strong," Ralph Spinoso said. And so is Ralph's business. You can tell by the decibel count at the Saturday jazz sessions that visiting musicians have at the store. It could provide Belleville's anthem of business recovery.

Financial analyst says: Feds run Nutley S&L

Joining the North Jersey Herald News and the Bergen Record in describing the Nutley Savings and Loan as an insolvent institution is Bauer Financial Reports, a nationally recognized rating service for financial institutions.

Paul Bauer of the Florida-based Bauer Financial Reports, Inc., said this week that the federal Office of Thrift Supervision has been in charge of the Nutley Savings and Loan bank for at least six months. "The OTS is in charge of things, not the present outfit," Bauer said.

"I think it's a matter of the regulators looking over the books before deciding to liquidate," Bauer said. "Someone would have to come in with $10 million to make it solvent. It's certainly on the block."

Bauer's ratings of financial institutions is distributed nationwide, and Bauer Financial Reports has dropped Nutley Savings and Loan from its Undercapitalized Thrift List and Troubled Thrift List because - Bauer said - Nutley Savings and Loan has "a zero star rating. It's insolvent."

Bauer said that the bank has less than the minimum tangible asset requirement of one percent of receivables on hand.

This does not mean that the bank is out of business, Bauer said it was his opinion that a representative of the Office of Thrift Supervision was present at the bank to supervise its operations. "It's only a matter of time before the RTC (Resolution Trust Corporation) takes over," Bauer said. "The reason the RTC hasn't done so already is that it is probably hoping to find a buyer."

The Resolution Trust Corporation was set up by Congress to bail out the thrift industry. Technically, the Office of Thrift Supervision is in charge of all savings and loan institutions, but direct management only occurs when the institution is in trouble.

Nutley Savings and Loan, which once took out a full page advertisement in a daily newspaper to denounce an Orecchio Publications article which disclosed the insolvency of the bank, has been experiencing growing deficits for the past two years.

As of December, 1990, according to Bauer, the deficit had reached $9.7 million. At that point, Bauer dropped it from his listings.

The State of New Jersey insures deposits of public bodies - municipalities and school systems - over the $100,000 amount guaranteed by the FDIC but it no longer does so for public funds deposited with the Nutley Savings and Loan.

An RTC spokesperson said that Nutley Savings and Loan was not on its list of banks under RTC control.

Attempts to learn what salaries and other benefits are being paid to bank officials ran into a stone wall. Michael K. Shaughnessy, executive vice president of the bank, said flatly that he would not talk with Orecchio Publications "under any circumstances" charging that the newspapers had shown bias against the bank. An effort by a depositor to obtain the information was also rejected.

The right of depositors to have full access to information about the operation of a mutual savings bank is based on the fact that the depositors are the actual owners of the bank.

Syndicated columnist Bill Doyle, who writes on financial matters, stated recently: "In theory, mutual savings banks and mutual savings and loan association are owned by their account holders - depositors and borrowers. In practice, management of a mutual institution runs the show and seldom gives account holders any special financial rewards.

"Mutual banks and S&Ls are diminishing in number as many convert to stockholder-owned status. Bank and S&L stockholders share in profits - when and if there are any - by receiving dividends and, hopefully, seeing the values of their stocks rise."

The Record and the Herald-News both reported that thrifts with smaller deficits had been taken over by the RTC during the past two years.

Our Seniors are shining academically

The Belleville High School Class of 1991 reflects the increasing academic achievement of the school system.

Three of five Essex County essay winners came from Belleville High. Its Latin classes have won praise from the national association of teachers of Latin. The Italian government has offered a visitor exchange program with the school.

Class Valedictorian Jennifer Best has won a four-year scholarship to the University of Rochester. Class Salutatorian Albert Balkiewicz has won a pre-medical studies fellowship at Stevens Institute of Technology.

Melanie Bonacorsa, Heather Kane and Ms. Best have each won the Robert C. Byrd Merit Scholarship, the first time three seniors have achieved this. The award is valued at $1,500.

And Tracey Lockwood has won

EXCELLENCE AT BELLEVILLE HIGH - In a graduating class marked by academic achievement in many areas, these Seniors have won singular honors. From left are Tracey Lockwood, winner of a scholarship to Drew University worth more than $19,000, and Robert C. Byrd Merit Scholarship winners Melanie Bonacorsa, Jennifer Best and Heather Kane. The award is valued at $1,500, and it is the first time in the school's history that three Seniors have won it in a single class.

Municipal budget drops five points with state aid

By Anthony Buccino
Belleville municipal budget will have a five point tax decrease Mayor Marina Perna told residents Tuesday night. This will result in a $20 savings for the average home assessed at $40,000.

Perna said the tax reduction was made possible by $1,580,269 in new state aid and some economies built into the budget. Total appropriations will increase four and one quarter percent or $990,147.94 from $23,224,588 in 1990 to $24,214,736 in 1991.

The amount to be raised by taxes will drop from $15,677,173 in 1990, to $15,317,967 in 1991. This will drop the local tax rate from 3.33 in 1990 to 3.28 in 1991.

Perna said since Essex County has not determined its budget, and the school budget was defeated, the overall tax bill has yet to be determined.

Council and the board of education are meeting this week to determine recommendations to reduce the school budget, the mayor said.

Perna said council wanted to reduce municipal government portion of property taxes in the 1991 budget. She said that with continued state aid, council hoped to continue lowering the township portion of the budget.

The mayor said about 55 percent of the township budget goes towards salaries, wages and fringe benefits. Six positions were eliminated through layoffs with an annual savings of $204,000.

Perna said the township's four

HE STATES THE FAX - Richard P. Yanuzzi, chairman of the Belleville Republican Party Organization, holds a sample of political campaign literature which he states was faxed from an office in Belleville High School to Republican officials. The Board of Education has ordered an inquiry into the matter. Yanuzzi said he thinks he knows who did the faxing, but declined to name the person, at Monday's meeting of the Board.

unions and management employees will receive between 5 and 6 percent raises in 1991. She said that is similar to raises for township employees in neighboring Nutley, Bloomfield and other area towns.

The mayor pointed to problem areas being addressed. She cited a decline in property tax collection from 96.37 percent in 1989 to 95.21 percent in 1990.

Another problem area is the cost of treating township sewage. The mayor said costs have increased more than 40 percent, about $400,000, from 1990 to 1991. She said the reason for the increase was the ban on ocean-dumping of sludge and the cost of operating a multi-million dollar sludge dewatering facility at Passaic Valley Sewerage Commission in Newark.

Township manager Burt Kendall and the council are targeting two budget "soft spots," the mayor said.

Kendall is exploring alternate health plans and asking employees to increase their medical deductibles to reduce $2,350,000 budgeted for health benefits.

Another targeted area for savings is $2,508,000 budgeted for collection and disposal of garbage. The final cost of dumping fees in Essex County have not been determined, the mayor said, and increased recycling should reduce tonnage and result in further savings.

Officials urge citizens to block tunnel soil tests

In another attempt to block passage of the proposed flood tunnel designed to carry excess rain waters from Wayne to Newark Bay, the Nutley Board of Commissioners at its April 16 meeting opted 4-0 to approve a resolution denying the Army Corps of Engineers permission to drill holes and test the subsurface soil.

The Corps, announced in late February that it would be requesting permission from residents in Nutley, Belleville and Bloomfield to perform subsurface explorations, said Elysis Kronick, a spokeswoman for the Corps.

"Nutley will not grant permission for test borings on township owned property and urges other municipalities contacted by the Army Corps of Engineers to do likewise," said Public Works Director Peter Scarpelli, as he introduced the resolution.

The government proposal calls for a 20 mile underground flood tunnel estimated at $1.2 billion. The project is to be funded by federal and state revenue.

The section of the tunnel in Nutley, which enters the township from Bloomfield heads southeast toward Belleville, will run between 300 and 400 feet below ground, Corps. officials said.

According to Scarpelli, the Army Corps of Engineers has been seeking permission from property owners to drill test borings.

"We urge everyone, whether they are private citizens or Essex County officials to support us in this decision, the commissioner added.

New glaucoma treatment

Patients with glaucoma are now benefitting from the most advanced laser treatment available at Clara Maass Medical Center, says Philip M. Fiore, MD, eye physician and surgeon who implemented the new laser technique at the Clara Maass Ambulatory Center's Eye Laser Facility.

According to Dr. Fiore, the innovative outpatient procedure which employs high-intensity light beams to cut and coagulate tissue has many advantages over conventional glaucoma surgery including reduced recovery time, less pain, decreased side effects of severe inflammation, and minimal post-operative therapy.

"Clara Maass Medical Center is the first hospital in New Jersey to introduce this new laser procedure to control glaucoma," says Dr. Fiore.

Fiore, who studied at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, Harvard Medical School, and has published numerous articles on glaucoma. "Clara Maass is dedicated to offering the most current laser technology available to the community."

Dr. Fiore explains that glaucoma, the leading cause of blindness in two out of every 100 adults age 35 and older, is a defect in which high pressure within the eye damages the cells, gradually leading to loss of vision. "When glaucoma is detected in time, treatment can prevent further vision loss," he says, stressing that preventive care and regular eye exams are important sight savers.

Clara Maass Medical Center is a nonprofit, 475-bed acute care voluntary general hospital located at 1 Franklin Avenue. Among the Clara Maass family of healthcare services are a Family Center for Maternal/Child Health, Medical Oncology Care, Cardiac Rehabilitation, Same Day Surgery, and Community Services.

Golden Comments

By Jim Golden

In law, the best graduate schools offer the case for change. Many of the nation's 175 law schools are transforming their curricula. They are responding to a tighter job market and demands by practicing lawyers for new recruits with more specialized skills to serve clients.

The neophyte attorney is often as useless to his or her clients as a powdered wig. In the law, on-the-job training has become a chancy proposition. "We need to expose students to more-demanding, sophisticated curricula that go beyond the basics," argued Robert Gorman, president of the Association of American Law Schools.

Gorman expressed what is becoming a prevailing opinion among legal educators: The venerable law-school curricula with its emphasis on general principles and Socratic learning needs to be revised and updated.

In particular, reformers are focusing on the last two of law school's three years. Teachers and students alike long have assailed the latter semesters as a hodgepodge that for many merely fills time between the intense indoctrination into the ways of the law and the state bar exams that entitle graduates to hang their shingles.

"Law schools talk about providing a Renaissance education, but they really don't do it," said Scott Van Alstyne of the University of Florida. Co-author of a recent book that calls on law schools to include a wider range of specialties in their course offerings, Van Alstyne bluntly charged that "there is such waste in upper-level courses that many graduates are not prepared to deliver legal services to anybody."

The drive to shore up advanced legal studies mirrors the shakeout in the practice of law. Although there remain plenty of lawyers who handle routine dockets of consumer problems such as divorce, wills and small-injury claims, most of the power and influence in the legal world are wielded by mega-firms that have earned reputations for expertise in handling major transactions and massive litigation, whether in securities, law, taxes, international deals or in representing white-collar defendants.

Increasingly, impatient clients are balking at the idea of shelling out multimillion-dollar fees to legal teams that must devote costly "billable hours" to instructing fresh-from-the-cannery lawyers in the rudiments of the law.

According to Dean Ronald Cass of the Boston University School of Law, "As competitive pressure on American law firms increases, clients want an attorney who is thoroughly familiar with the field before starting work on their problem."

Job prospects for young lawyers are gloomy...for the first time in a decade third-year law students are worried about getting jobs — not just good jobs, but any jobs.

Law schools are trying to give their students opportunities to study a single subject in depth...the trend is toward specialization, "globalization" has become a business buzzword, international law is a safe bet to emerge as the hot specialty of the 1990s. "The growth of American law firms overseas is explosive."

Schools are rushing to offer courses that will help students understand elaborate international financial transactions and intricate trade regulations. Others are delving into world politics.

There remain many new career opportunities for the large numbers of students who prefer dabbling in a variety of second- and third-year courses and then sharpening skills after graduation by working for a judge or an experienced lawyer.

"Most students need not make a specialty choice in law school — there's time enough to do it once in practice," maintained Stephen Gillers, a New York University professor and an authority on law-school curricula.

Proponents of change have proved their case beyond a reasonable doubt. The question now, however, is whether the nation's often slow-moving law schools will be able to carry out the verdict with the deliberate speed that the legal profession is demanding.

SIGHT SAVING — Dr. Philip M. Fiore, eye physician and surgeon at Clara Maass Medical Center, uses new laser treatment for glaucoma.

Suit filed against insurers

The Belleville law firm of Gacione, Pomaco & Beck filed a class action suit on April 22 against the New Jersey Automobile Full Insurance Underwriting Association (JUA), and its successor, the Market Transition Facility (MTF), alleging wrongful cancellation of automobile policies for failure of the policyholders to submit a renewal questionnaire.

The suit filed in the Superior court in Newark also names Commissioner of Insurance Samuel F. Fortunato, and all servicing carriers for the JUA and MTF. The 20-page complaint was filed on behalf of Glenn Robertello, whose JUA policy was cancelled in October of 1990, by Electronic Data Systems Corp., (EDS) one of six servicing carriers for the JUA.

Robertello subsequently was involved in an automobile accident, and the JUA denied coverage because Robertello did not return a renewal questionnaire to the JUA.

Robertello is being represented by Anthony F. Malanga Jr., and Michael R. Casale, partners in the Gacione firm.

"We believe that the JUA and MTF violated the law as well as breached their own insurance contracts by unilaterally cancelling at least 3,000 and as many as 10,000 policies this past year," said Malanga.

OUR OPINION

Loving Service

*Dream not the sunny hours away,
Be up and doing ever,
for life is short and after life,
There comes the vast Forever.
And single not great work to do,
A word, that's kindly spoken,
A smile, a glance may help to heal
The heart that's nearly broken.*

*If happiness should dwell with you
Or sorrow be your guest,
It matters not; put self aside
And bravely do your best.
The sunshine shed on other lives
Will surely gild your own,
And harvest time will bring to you
The seed which you have sown.*

*Then haste to do the Master's work,
The cup of water giving,
And soon with thankful heart you'll find
That life is worth the living.
Dream not the sunny hours away,
Be up and doing ever
for life is short and after life
There comes the vast Forever.*

An era of excellence

It is a Belleville tradition, apparently, to knock down the school budget every time it is presented.

One reason, of course, is that it's the only budget on which the public can vote. If the taxpayers had the opportunity, they would do the same to the municipal budget, and the county budget as well.

But not all towns treat the school budget this way. In fact, there are towns where the school budget is rarely, if ever, defeated. And these are not communities of unlimited wealth, either. But they are communities that set great store by their school systems.

Belleville loves its schools as much as any other town, but there has been a long history of political interference with the schools that makes it difficult for the public to realize that we are in a new era, an era of growing excellence.

The hard core of dedicated educators in the school system has raised the standards of the schools to the point that their students can equal and excel the students of any other system in the state.

It is about time that the taxpayers took a good look at the product that the schools are producing and realized that as the reputation of Belleville schools rises, so does the value of their homes.

Good schools add immeasurably to the quality of life of a community, and Belleville taxpayers are getting more for their dollar than they realize.

Our youngsters are winning more academic scholarships than ever before, and the schools are winning more recognition for their achievement than ever before.

These advances are not limited to the students in the top ranks of their classes. Great headway has been made in raising the academic achievement of children at all levels.

Bi-lingual students, students who are not familiar with English, children with various emotional and physical problems, are all benefiting from the new atmosphere of the school system.

The school system has not emerged completely from the grip of political infiltration, and there are those who still see the schools as vehicles for their political activities. But the classrooms have become beacons of hope for the community.

Belleville is still a town where hard working people can find affordable housing and enter into the American mainstream. They have the right to see their children walk on safe streets and enter classrooms where teachers will provide them the direction and the tools to make a better life for themselves than even their parents achieved. It's all in the American tradition of upward mobility.

Supporting the schools costs money. Turning your back on them costs much more.

YOUR OPINION

Budget hopes

To the editor:

Belleville taxpayers should see a reduction in their municipal property taxes for 1991.

In August 1990, the new Town Council increased the 1990 budget by $869,000. This item is now in the budget and will be raised again in 1991 with no increase in the tax rate.

In December 1990, Essex County opened the garbage incinerator, which immediately reduced our dumping fees from $102.50 to $70 per ton. This will result in a $568,000 savings for Belleville in 1991. There was also a $700,000 surplus in the garbage account in 1990, a result of waste reduction and recycling.

These three items total $2,137,000 or 45.4 tax points. This amount is more than enough to offset salary increases, proposed increases in wastewater treatment, and health care premiums.

Belleville will also receive $1,462,000 (31 tax points), in property tax relief from the State of New Jersey. This amount is required to be listed in municipal budgets under a line item entitled "Supplemental Municipal Property Tax Relief." This money can only be used to reduce taxes, no appropriations can be made for it.

Finally, Belleville residents have an opportunity to receive a 20 to 40 point decrease in their municipal tax rate. But will they? Be sure to attend the budget hearing and watch what happens to your "property tax relief."

A family's tribute

To the editor:

On behalf of the Belleville Alliance for Substance Education, Inc. (B.A.S.E.), I would like to extend our sincere appreciation to the family of Ken Carwright. They have donated pens for all the seniors at Belleville High School in memory of their son.

Again, our most sincere appreciation.

Chairperson, B.A.S.E.

Del Guercio's thanks

To the editor:

My sincere thanks and appreciation to all Belleville citizens who helped make my victory possible.

A special thanks to all of my campaign workers.

I will continue to serve you with the best interests of our children as my No. 1 priority.

Joe Del Guercio

The sheriff writes

To the editor:

Law Enforcement officials are continually called on to "do something" about the crime in our neighborhoods. But because criminals have easy access to handguns, preventing handgun violence can be extremely difficult and frustrating.

Support is building in Congress for a bill that will help keep handguns out of the hands of criminals — the Brady Bill.

The Brady Bill, named for Press Secretary Jim Brady, who was shot in an assassination attempt against President Reagan, would require a seven-day "cooling off" period between the purchase and receipt of a handgun.

Suicides and crimes committed in the heat of an argument might be prevented if access to a handgun is delayed. And, police could use this time to conduct a criminal background check on the purchaser.

I know I'm not alone in my support for a national waiting period. A Gallup Poll recently found that 95 percent of Americans support such a measure.

It makes good sense. We do not have the data or money to effect the kind of instant record check that some members of the gun lobby have touted as the panacea to our handgun violence problems. And, we don't have the time to wait years for such a system to be put in place. With homicides at an all-time high across the country, it is clear that we need a national system now — one that will prevent criminals from buying guns in states with few controls and then using them in states with effective handgun laws.

Our congressmen need to know that their constituents will be expecting them to stand up to the gun lobby and support law enforcement by voting for the Brady Bill. Your input can make a difference. We must stop criminals from getting handguns that are used against police and the citizens we protect.

Contact your Congressman now because this is legislation we can not live without.

Armando B. Fontoura
Essex County Acting Sheriff

Paserchia thanks you

To the editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the voters of Belleville for placing their confidence in me during the April 30 Board of Education election.

While getting elected was a difficult process, serving as a board trustee is by far the harder task.

I promise to work together with my fellow board members for the benefit of the taxpayers, and the betterment of the children of our township.

Again, on behalf of my husband Angelo, my daughter Francine, and my son Carl, let me express my sincerest gratitude.

If I can ever be of any assistance, please feel free to contact me at my home (759-5404). God bless you.

EAST ORANGE Mayor Cardell Cooper and John Cryan, Chief of Staff of the Essex County Executive's Office, are co-chairing a county Democrat fundraiser for May 30th. These two heavyweights should produce a very successful event.

BLOOMFIELD was yanked out of the Essex County District and finds itself married to Passaic County, where the head of the ticket is Republican Senator Joseph L. Bubba of Wayne, matched with incumbent Assemblywoman Marion Creece of Bloomfield.

In the General Election, Bubba is being challenged by Democrat Assemblyman Joseph A. Mecca of Totowa and Independent candidate, Newton E. Miller, Mayor of Bubba's hometown of Wayne. Miller's campaign slogan is "Unbiased, unbiased, unbiased."

Sen. Joseph L. Bubba

TWO years ago, the Republican National Committee honored the Republican Party in New Jersey by recognizing the skills of one of the party's major players by appointing Larry Bathgate of Rumson as its National Finance Chairman. Bathgate surprised his sponsors by raising a record amount of money. The effort even caught the eye of President George Bush who personally thanked Bathgate for his work on behalf of the Party. A real estate developer, Bathgate has a major part of his assets in a far-flung real estate empire. The bank Bathgate was doing business with is in trouble. As a result it backed off from its agreement with Bathgate, leaving him twisting in the wind.

Essex G.O.P. Chairman John Renna, who also is State President of the Republican County Chairmen Association, thinks Larry Bathgate got a bum rap — and with that conclusion, I agree 100 percent. I'm betting Bathgate continues his winning ways. Bathgate enjoys a well-earned reputation for integrity and loyalty.

Larry Bathgate

THE depressed real estate market finds Bathgate joining thousands of other successful businessmen wrestling with problems resulting from it. Major buildings and loans and banks have been likewise adversely affected.

THE Township of Belleville today is better off because of the work being done by Town Manager Bert Kendall enjoying the respect and support of not only town employees, but also of the business community and informed citizens. Give Kendall another year and one will see the rejuvenated hopes and dreams of native Bellevillians nearing reality.

TWO-HUNDRED-FIFTY of his fellow townspeople recently came out to pay tribute to Passaic Valley Sewerage Commissioner Tom Cifelli, recently reappointed by Governor Jim Florio to another five-year term as a member of the Passaic Valley Sewerage Commission. Cifelli is the senior member of the agency, now completing 14 years of service. There are two Cifelli's who are members of the Harrison Township Council, and there are some Harrison natives who think the township name should be changed to Cifelli City.

Tom Cifelli

MONDAY night, the Essex Council Boy Scouts of America honored Senator Carmen Orechio as its Good Scout of the Year selection. The event was the fifth annual Sup-O-Ree of the Yanticaw District, which includes Nutley, Belleville and Bloomfield. Nutley's Jack Gorman was the master of ceremonies and did his usual fine job.

A voter's critique

To the editor:

Fifty-six percent of budgets approved raises a question of why predictions were to the contrary.

Maybe at the budget meetings scarce tactics were applied that kids would lose and be deprived; activities cut out, and pencils unavailable.

This is hoodwinking the public but I didn't hear that the board of education is capping their salaries for kids and their needs.

What tickled my fancy were the phone calls I made to potential voters — "Oh I forgot," "I thought it was tomorrow" "I didn't receive a ballot," "Where do I vote?"

Something must be wrong that the average Joe wasn't informed to vote, where to vote and why. There might have been a big difference in the 56 percent approval average.

What took the cake was at the voting booth where a printed notice read, quote "turn down the pointer over yes or no in the public question column — name each candidate then leave down," unquote. (quite a piece of engineering) I looked for a column but found two line items not labeled as in other elections like "Board of Ed candidates" or "School Budget" — but if you weren't alert you could have missed pressing the lever tucked in the upper left hand corner on the public question.

Now to the budget meeting at the high school on April 25. I expected a rebash of budget why's and why-nots, but it was only a promotional thing and input by Mr. Frantantonio was cut off by Mr. Del Guercio and the meeting was adjourned abruptly. A poor showing for an elected official on such a sensitive matter of dollars and sense.

All in all the budget must be reviewed and trimmed to suit the public's pocketbook. The salaries and perks of the administrators and school employees must be curbed and fair to all concerned.

The salvation of our kids and the school system rest on the broad shoulders of the basic taxpayer in the business world.

They give their all and really care. They're No. 1 and without them nothing ticks in the township — governments and the world. Give it some thought people and get off of your knees.

Dan Ippolito

Pipe down, please

To the editor:

This is an open letter to the Rockin' Horse Saloon on Belleville Avenue. (The favor we ask of its owner could quite possibly be asked of all the other bars in town, too).

When you opened your establishment a few months ago, we were truly happy that what seemed to be a reputable business was finally moving into a building that had changed owners more times in the past few years than we can count. We were glad to learn you pub would have a "country music" theme, because we realized a more mature audience listens to this type of music. We hoped we would no longer have to tolerate the underage drinkers and college-age kids the previous bar, "Legends," attracted.

Well, you've got a less rowdy crowd than the previous bars at this location, but the noise level your music generates is a bit much. We live about half a block from the Rockin' Horse and the sound still travels through our closed windows until after midnight. We understand your patrons have a right to have a good time, but we and the rest of our neighbors — and yours, I might add — have a right to sleep, especially since quite a few of us have to get up at five in the morning to go to work. Some of us have small children and babies who can't sleep with all the racket.

Many of us have tried to call you to ask you to "turn it down," but your number is unpublished.

All of us bought our houses long before The Rockin' Horse Saloon moved into the neighborhood, and a good number of us will probably be here long after the bar is gone. The homeowners and tenants who live within hearing distance of your establishment on Belleville Avenue, Bridge Street, Dow Street, Prospect Place, and Hornblower Avenue would like you to become one of our "good neighbors."

So could you please keep your door closed when you've got the music blasting — and may I turn it down a bit, too. After all, you've got a small place. The music doesn't have to be that loud for your customers to hear it, does it?

We'd love to say "welcome" to the neighborhood. By fulfilling this one small request, we'd all be happy to agree that you are, indeed, a welcome addition.

Increased Availability of Generics
Before the mid 1980's, the availability and number of generic drugs was slowed by a requirement that generic-drug producers carry out costly clinical trials of their products. However, as of 1984, federal law no longer requires generic-drug makers to duplicate redundant trials, that only duplicate the results of original studies, to show that a generic drug demonstrates therapeutic equivalence. Since 1984, a generic drug need only show that it is bioequivalent to a brand-name product in order to gain FDA approval. What this means is that the generic drug is absorbable into the bloodstream at about the same rate as its brand-name counterpart. It stands to reason that, if a generic drug has an active ingredient that is chemically identical to its brand-name predecessor, bioequivalence will assure similar therapeutic effect.

To save money ask your physician to write your prescription for a generic medication. We can handle all your needs at ROSSMORE PHARMACY, 338 Washington Ave., 759-1968, 759-1966. The sale and retail of over-the-counter aids are handled. This includes wheel chairs, walkers, canes and crutches. Greeting cards and other items are available for graduations. Hours: Daily 9 am - 10 pm, Sundays 9 am - 9 pm.

HINT: Thanks to bioequivalency testing, generic drug acceptance has risen to the point where generics account for about one-third of all new prescriptions filled.

Belleville Times SPORTS

BUC SHOTS

By Mike Lamberti

Third in a series. The tenth anniversary of the '81 baseball Bucs

There was little time to relish in a huge victory. The 1981 Belleville Bucs, who had rallied from eight runs down to defeat Columbia in a second round Greater Newark Tourney game, had a game just 48 hours later. The opposition would be Irvington, and it was a first round state tournament affair.

"It was the greatest comeback I was ever associated with," coach George Zanfani said the other day about the Columbia game. "I would venture to say it was one of the biggest comebacks in school baseball history."

Zanfani wasn't just a baseball coach who knew how to hit and run and when to have a pitcher work on the outside corners. He was a coach who communicated well with his players. Consequently, if a player was having some difficulty, Zanfani usually came up with the remedy to solve the problem.

Such was the case with ace pitcher Anthony Coco. Coco was the man who had allowed eight runs in 1/3 of an inning against Columbia on that Sunday. Zanfani never hesitated in giving the ball back to Coco the following Tuesday for the state game with Irvington.

Coco, today a Belleville Hall of Famer, lived up to the challenge. I think it's safe to say that the two week period of May 17-May 31, 1981 is perhaps one of the most significant times of Coco's life.

"When I left the mound after the Columbia game, I knew we would find a way to win," Coco said ten years ago after the '81 season had ended. "I also wanted a chance to pitch again real soon."

More recently, Coco added these thoughts on the Columbia game. "Stop talking about it," he said. "You're making me famous for giving up eight runs in 1/3 of an inning."

So, 48 hours after the Columbia game, Coco was back on track, pitching a six hitter. He allowed Irvington just three runs, all of which were scored early in the game. The Bucs trailed 3-1 heading into the bottom of the sixth, but rallied for three runs to win 4-3. Coco had gutted out the victory with a complete game effort.

"The rivalry between Belleville and Irvington was not as strong in '81 as it was in the mid '70s," Zanfani said. "But it was a tough ball game and a good win for our team."

Two days later, Belleville breezed by Secaucus in an independent game, 6-0. Billy Zelman pitched a gem for Belleville and the game represented a bit of revenge for the Bucs.

"In 1980, we lost a 2-1 decision at Secaucus under the lights," Zanfani remembered. "They had Jeff Bittiger pitching for them and it was a tough loss."

After beating Secaucus, the Bucs had a game the following day, May 22, against Roxbury, in a second round state game.

Buster Lentz took the ball for Belleville and pitched a solid game. Lentz was an unused player on the '81 team, a man who posted a perfect 6-0 mark in his first season of varsity ball.

Lentz' pitching, along with key hits by Frank Fazzini, Paul Scheuplein, Phil Cerza and Bobby Brave led the Bucs to an 8-4 victory. It assured the Bucs a sectional semi final matchup with Barringer the following Monday. Next up would be a GNT semi final game with Bloomfield.

The game, played on May 23, would be held at Verona Park. It was truly a classic matchup.

"The placed was packed," Zanfani said. "I don't think I ever saw the field so crowded. We had the first game of the double header, a noon time contest, and it was very hot."

Coco matched up with the Bengals Anthony Sarno. Earlier in the year, Sarno had blanked the Bucs on three hits May 23. This time, Belleville went ahead early, scoring a run in the first inning. Brave walked, stole second base and scored on a Fazzini hit.

In the third, the Bucs went ahead 2-0. Ken Constantino singled and stole second base. Joe Corbally then hit a slow infield single and Constantino, who was running on the play, came around to score.

Bloomfield cut the lead to 2-1 in the third, but the Bucs went ahead 3-2 in the fourth. Scheuplein tripled and scored on a Constantino sacrifice fly.

The Bengals rallied to tie the game, scoring solo runs in the fifth and seventh innings. The game then remained tied at three until the twelfth inning as Coco and Sarno threw masterpieces.

The Bucs scored twice in the top of the 12th. Fazzini led off the inning with a bunt.

"It was Frankie's idea to bunt," Zanfani said. "He asked me what I thought and I told him if he felt he could do it to give it a try."

The infielders were playing at their normal positions and Fazzini's bunt caught the Bengals by surprise. Fazzini was sacrificed to second base. He scored on a Texas League single by Cerza. Cerza went to second base on the throw to home plate.

Joe Zangari came in to pinch run for Cerza and Scheuplein hit a hard single to center that scored Zangari with an insurance run.

The Bengals came right back in the last of the 12th.

"I never really considered taking Coco out of the game," Zanfani said. "Coco said he was fine, although I really didn't expect him to say anything different. The pitch count was high, but this was a game no one wanted to come out of."

In the bottom of the 12th, the Bengals put runners on first and second by way of a single and walk. A two out double scored the fourth Bengal run and put runners on second and third, the winning run on second.

Zanfani opted to intentionally walk the Bengals next hitter, loading the bases. Coco then bore down and struck out the final Bloomfield hitter.

"It was a called third strike," Zanfani said. "It was some ending." The Bucs won 5-4. Coco threw 213 pitches in the game. It was an unbelievable game, ending with a called third strike and the bases loaded.

The victory gained Belleville a berth in the GNT finals for the second straight season. In 1980, the Bucs had lost to Livingston in the finals. In the second game of the '81 series, Livingston and Glen Ridge locked up in another classic game.

Surprising Glen Ridge, a Group I school, used strong pitching from Rick "Casper" Casper and strong defense. Livingston 1-0. It would be Glen Ridge's first appearance in the GNT finals.

"That game really put Glen Ridge on the high school baseball map," Zanfani said. "They became a dominant team in the 1980's and were well coached by Lou (Calderone)."

Between May 23, 1981 and the championship game, set for May 31, 1981, the Bucs would be quite busy. Next week, a look back at the final week of that very memorable campaign.

Pitching phenomenal despite losses

'No luck' Bucs drop four

By Mike Lamberti

For 21 consecutive innings last week, the Belleville pitching staff had not allowed an earned run. Unfortunately for the Bucs, the unearned run scored by the opposition do count and consequently, the team dropped two heartbreaking league games to St. Joe's 2-0 and Paramus 3-2 in eight innings.

In between those games, the Bucs ripped Hackensack 8-1. Last Saturday in a GNT contest, Belleville lost an exciting 8-6 game to top seeded Nutley. The team was also beaten by Teaneck, 5-1 last Monday in a league game. That loss dropped the Bucs season record to 7-15.

Belleville will take on Nutley tomorrow, at Nutley in a 4 p.m. league game. Next Monday, the Bucs are at Don Bosco in what is scheduled to be the final game of the '91 campaign. Head coach Nick Grande was hoping to get in at least one more game after the Don Bosco contest, however.

"There is a certain element of luck associated with high school baseball," Grande said, "and we've had absolutely none of it this season. We hit the ball hard, but right at people. We hit into double plays when it looks like the ball is going through for a base hit. We've played better defensively of late, but we made some key errors that cost us a few games."

Vernus St. Joe's, Rich Ferruggia pitched an outstanding game for the Bucs. The senior hurler allowed four hits, struck out four and walked two. He did not allow an earned run.

"Richie pitched a beautiful game," Grande said. "You couldn't ask for more than what he gave us."

The game was scoreless until the last of the sixth, when St. Joe's scored two runs, benefited in part by a Buccaneer error.

The Bucs threatened in a few innings, but Belleville hit into three double plays. In the top of the seventh, Belleville had two runners on base with two outs, but a strike-out ended the game.

"We were a ticked off ball club going into the Hackensack game," Grande said. "The kids really wanted to get going offensively and they did a job."

The Bucs breezed 8-1, with Jim DuHaime pitching a solid ball game. The senior pitched six innings, allowing five hits. He struck out six and walked three. Once again, he did not allow an earned run. Anibal Rodriguez pitched the final inning for Belleville, allowing one hit and no runs.

Hackensack scored first, but Belleville came back with two runs in the last of the first. Art Caruso singled and went to second base on a throwing error. Caruso stole third base and Carmen Spina walked. Spina stole second base and Richard Quine reached on an error, loading the bases. Michael Alfano singled home Caruso and Bill Salvatore hit into a fielders choice, scoring Spina.

The Bucs increased its lead to 3-1 in the second. Mike Kimball singled and stole second base. DuHaime and Jason Nardachone singled to load the bases. Caruso hit into a fielders choice, with Kimball out at the plate. Spina then hit a fielders choice, but DuHaime scored on the play.

In the third, Quine and Alfano singled, putting runners on first and second. Salvatore hit into a fielders choice, with Alfano out at second and Quine moving to third. Kimball's fielders choice grounder allowed Quine to score the fourth Buccaneer run.

The Bucs broke it wide open with four in the fifth. Quine singled, Alfano reached on an error and Salvatore singled to load the bases.

Kimball lined a bases clearing double to boost the score to 7-1. DuHaime sacrificed Kimball to third and Sal Salvatore grounded out, scoring Kimball.

The offensive attack was led by Nardachone, Quine, Alfano and Kimball, all of whom had two hits. Kimball had four RBI's in the game.

"It was a nice game for us," Grande said. "We hit the ball well and we got a solid game from DuHaime on the hill."

The Bucs lost a real tough game to Paramus 3-2 in eight innings. In his first varsity start, Jason Apple was outstanding on the mound for Belleville. The junior pitched the entire game, giving up just two hits while striking out six and walking five. Once again, no earned runs crossed the plate for the Bucc opposition.

"Jason became a pitcher against Paramus," Grande said. "He pitched one whole game. He pitched his heart out."

The Bucs scored first, scoring a solo run in the second. Quine singled and Alfano singled. However, on Alfano's hit, Quine was thrown out at second. Salvatore then doubled to score Alfano.

Paramus went ahead 2-1 in the bottom of the fourth. The first batter struck out, but the ball was dropped and then thrown wildly to first base. The wild throw allowed the Paramus runner to advance to second. A walk and a fielders choice allowed the tying run to score.

Paramus then got its only base hit in the inning, but a wild pick off

Stotesbury Regatta begins tomorrow

Boys' junior four captures Mid-Hudson

By Mike Lamberti

Under near perfect conditions on the Hudson River, the Belleville crew team competed in the Mid Hudson Regatta last Saturday. The junior four boys team lead the way, taking home a championship medal.

This weekend, the Bucs venture to Philadelphia for the prestigious Stotesbury Regatta. The races begin tomorrow morning at 11:30 a.m. and conclude on Saturday afternoon.

The Mid Hudson Regatta is traditionally an early race due to the increasingly rough waters as the day progresses. Thus, the Bucs left the boathouse at 4:45 a.m. and arrived at the race at approximately 6:30 a.m.

"The first race was 7:30 a.m. and we were done by noon time," head coach Bob Cassin said. "The conditions were really good this year at the Mid Hudson. The waters were smooth and the weather was warm. It was a good day to row."

The boys junior four shell took full advantage of the fine day, dominating both its races and winning a championship.

The team, made up of Frank Koch, Mike Capezio, Mark Giessen, Jack O'Connell and coxswain Alexandra Lynch won its qualifying race by 1/6. Then, in the championship race, the boat cruised home by a .13 margin.

"That boat has not lost in its heats all season long," Cassin said. "The problem is they haven't been able to put it together in the finals. This time, they were in total command in both races."

"It's a good sign with the Stotes coming up this weekend."

Equipment problems hampered the junior four girls and the lightweight four boys team.

"The seats that those teams use during the race are on slides," Cassin said. "The seat came off track for both teams and it obviously threw their rhythm off a great deal."

"It wasn't as much equipment problem as technique that caused the seats to go off track. It's something we should be able to correct this week. If it had to happen, we're glad it occurred in this race and not in the Stotes."

The senior four girls team has been hampered by illness. Cassin said the rowers are about 80 percent healthy.

"They wanted to row last weekend," Cassin said, "but we felt it was better to hold them out one more week as opposed to letting them row and maybe having a few of them get sick again. They should be ready this weekend."

The novice boys shell take a third in the finals.

"They did a real good job," Cassin said of the novice shell. "This was their last race of the season. Joe (Femicola, the team's coach) was really happy with the teams effort and attitude all season long."

As for this weekend's big race in Philadelphia, the Bucs will bring a boys and girls junior four shell, a girls senior four, a boys lightweight four and a senior pairs shell. The Buc rowers in the pairs race will be Lee Hands and Sean Kimball.

Over 2500 athletes will take part in the Stotesbury Regatta this weekend.

"There will be boats there from California, Florida, Canada, the midwest and the Philadelphia league," Cassin said. "Over 100 schools will participate. It really is the highlight of the season."

The Stotesbury Regatta is not the final race of the season, however. The following weekend, Belleville will compete in the national championships.

Nisivoccia recognized for outstanding coaching

By Joe Piegare

To look at him at a glance you would never dream he was a wrestling coach. His hair is perfectly coiffed, never a strand out of place. The short cropped beard is meticulously maintained year round. His wardrobe is simple, yet classy. Shirts, almost always white, are finished off with a tasteful tie. The crease in his trousers is sharp enough to inflict paper cuts. The shoes are always shined, as if every day he visited the stand on the corner. In truth, he looks more like a Wall Street attorney than the Suburban High School Report Show Coach of the Year for 1990-91.

The North and Central Jersey high school sports scene is monitored on Suburban Cablevision, and host Rob Nattolo chose Joe Nisivoccia over all the other coaches involved in major winter sports. This included wrestling, boys' basketball and girls' basketball.

Although there is no formal award for the honor, it is just a recognition for a magnificent job turned in by the BHS Head Coach.

Nisivoccia lived through a year which would have broken most other coaches. Injuries almost destroyed what turned out to be a most successful season. By now, everyone involved with high school wrestling in North Jersey knows that Belleville lost three stars from its lineup at one time or another during the year. Emilio "Junior" Nardone injured a knee in pre season and didn't return until the last three dual meets. Mike Miele was undefeated when he broke his wrist three weeks into the schedule. And co-captain Dan Hywel needed surgery on his knee, losing almost a month of the regular campaign.

But very few people were aware of the other injuries, less publicized, but just as hard to overcome.

Three year varsity heavyweight George Wallace injured a knee and had to sit for five dual meets. He was replaced by JV champ Anthony Mastropolo who did a fine job filling in. Yet the continuity and team concept of the squad had already been compromised.

Promising soph Ricky Constantino became eligible about one third of the way into the season and was being counted on to fill in at 171 and 189 pounds. But he sustained a shoulder injury and participated in only three matches, after which he was lost for the entire season.

Another soph, Mike Citarella, was rounding into shape on the JV squad and was projected as the 152 pound varsity starter. He too injured a leg and withdrew for the remainder of the year.

That's six starters lost for various lengths of time in a dual meet season that saw BHS wrestle nine teams which qualified for the State Sectionals.

Additionally, junior Angel Marin, a starter last year at 189 pounds, moved to Bloomfield, leaving that weight class without an occupant.

But the injuries were only part of the problem. BHS lost the Region 2 title to St. Benedict's Prep by 13 of a point. The Bucs were unable to surpass the Gray Bees because Cedar Grove and Montclair (both teams ranked in the Region 2 Top 15 and State Sectional qualifiers) cancelled their respective matches with Belleville. Both teams would have been easy meat for Nisivoccia's tigers.

Yet despite all of these setbacks, Nisivoccia managed to maneuver enough to come out smelling like roses. In his own words, "I did more strategic coaching this year than in all my years combined as a head coach."

Missing Nardone and Hywel, Belleville still managed to win the Bloomfield Holiday Tournament. Minus Miele, Nardone and Hywel, BHS finished second to powerful Scotchville in the Elizabeth Minuteman Classic.

The Bucs won the Atlantic Division of the Northern New Jersey Interscholastic League and earned the No. 2 seed in the North Jersey Group 3 - Section 2 State Sectionals. And to boot, Belleville wound up ranked No. 19 in the Final State Coaches' Poll and in the State Leader final Top 20.

To appreciate how much of this success was directly attributable to Nisivoccia, consider these points: The Belleville recreation program is one of the finest in all of North Jersey, losing only one dual meet in the last few years. Yet only six of the twelve starters were varsity wrestlers. The other six were boys who didn't take up the sport until they reached high school. Mike Conte, Tom Pontrella, Chris Talbot, Lee Hands, Jim Mastropolo and George Wallace all took up the sport during or after their freshman years; six of the twelve starters made it to the states, New Jersey's final testing ground for aspiring state champions. Josh Cardinale, Conte, Nardone, Miele, Carlo Ritacco, Hands and Hywel all made it to Princeton. Nardone finished first, Hywel second in the best individual performance of a BHS group in the 28 years since wrestling came on the scene in Buccanore country. This is the first year in Nisivoccia's six year tenure that he has had two assistant coaches and two feeder programs. Until this year he did everything on his own.

Coincidence? Not hardly! Hard work, dedication, know how and perseverance? You better believe it!

This is no ordinary coach. This is a man who has built a life around his first athletic love, wrestling. Coaching, seminars, officiating, Region 2 representative and on and on and on, all reflect how much he means to the sport in Belleville. For those few who have questioned his judgment or methods, one can only say, "what fools you must be!"

So, congratulations Coach, you earned it.

BUC NOTES: Some stats on Nisivoccia just to emphasize his value — Head Coach for 6 years - 5 District 7 titles - 2 Region 2 titles - State Sectional invitee every year he has been head coach - 78-15 record for a percentage of .839 - 2 individual state champs - 3 conference championships - Remember, all this was done without having a junior high school team or a freshman squad.

4H Prep will come to town

4-H Prep, a program designed for boys and girls age 7-9, is forming in Belleville.

Through the club, children will have the opportunity to become involved in a variety of hands-on educational activities. The 4-H Youth Development Program is sponsored cooperatively by the county executive's office, the Board of Chosen Freeholders, Rutgers University, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Ciallella to Capitol

By Denise Wujdak

Debbie Ciallella, a junior at Belleville High School, was chosen to attend a "Washington Workshop" held in Washington, D.C. during the week of April 13-17.

Hoffmann-LaRoche provided a $1,000 stipend to fund Ciallella's trip to Washington.

Washington Workshop allows selected students from across the country to meet senators and representatives and to participate through simulations, in the procedures and processes of the American government. With the guidance of Anne Schneider, BHS social studies teacher, Ciallella prepared for her week in government service.

On April 14, Ciallella met Senators Bradley and Lautenberg, and Congressman Roe at a luncheon given by Hoffmann-La Roche.

During the week, Ciallella participated in a model Congress and questioned senators and representatives on bill passing procedures. As a culminating activity, Ciallella and her assigned group devised and presented a defense bill. The bill was passed by the model Congress.

When asked how she enjoyed her trip, Ciallella stated, "Washington Workshop was an interesting experience because you saw everything first hand instead of in the news. It was an experience I'll never forget."

Blood drive held

By Colleen Coppola

The BHS Student Government Organization, in collaboration with the North Jersey Blood Center, which is located in East Orange, held a blood drive at the high school on May 2. In the high school library.

This was a wonderful opportunity for those who took time out of their busy schedules to donate blood. Patricia Pugliese, SGO advisor, stated: "I'm happy to see such an enthusiastic turnout. I can see that this year's blood drive will be one of our more successful ones. I'm very proud of all of our contributing students."

Dawn Rafferty, a senior at BHS, remarked: "I'm so scared! Just seeing the other people giving blood makes me nervous. I'm going to donate anyway, because it really does benefit a lot of people."

Senior Anna Crocco, a first time donor stated: "I'm getting nervous thinking about donating, but it's worth it to help others."

Kristina Villano, SGO president said: "This year's blood drive looks like it's going to be very successful. We have plenty of volunteers, and the people who are giving their time to donate are very generous."

Anne Schneider, a teacher at BHS who has been participating in the Blood Bank for the past five years stated: "It's an everybody wins situation. You have the opportunity to help others, and the blood is there if you or your family ever need it." She added: "Actually, I really do it for the cream-filled oatmeal cookies they give you afterwards."

Print exec speaks

By Max Figueroa

BHS graphic arts teacher, John Senesky, recently arranged to have Susan Rallo, a representative of Print, N.J., speak to his students about the printing industry.

Rallo, an employee of the Murko Printing Company, presented her portfolio followed by a video illuminating the field of graphic communications to the students in an effort to explain the rapidly growing field.

Rallo's presentation included information and statistics concerning the employment opportunities available in today's society.

Students were given a brief overview of specialty areas that included design, work processing, prepress preparation, press operation, finishing operation, and management.

Rallo explained that the graphic communication industry is rapidly growing. The demand for printed products is constantly increasing and therefore insures steady employment nationwide.

Rallo presented current employment statistics, as well as growth projections for the next decade. Concluding her presentation, Rallo invited BHS students to visit Murko Printing Company to observe the industry in action.

BHS senior Tom Pontrella was impressed with the presentation and said, "I am excited about the employment opportunities available due to the skills that I have acquired at BHS!"

Senior Richard Harris was also enthusiastic, "Murk Printing will be one of the first applications that I will complete after graduation."

Gee's class at seminar

By Chris Vitale

Recently, Belleville's English As A Second Language (ESL) students and ESL teacher, Leilani Gee, attended programs designed for foreign students held at Essex County College and Bloomfield College.

The programs explored college opportunities designed to help foreign students.

On April 3, BHS juniors and seniors toured the ESL department and Computer Labs of Essex County College. Students were introduced to the facility's Learning Lab where foreign-born students receive intensive English lessons and to the courses available to non-native speakers.

On April 30, ESL seniors attended an all-day workshop at Bloomfield College. The workshop presented information concerning major or fields of study and financial aid opportunities to the students. The program is specifically designed for ESL students interested in furthering their education.

BHS students contend

By Amy LoCoco

Practical experience is always the best teacher. Several BHS students who participate in F.B.L.A. (Future Business Leaders of America) recently had the practical experience of attending a competition held at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Cherry Hill.

Six BHS students competed against other students from chapters of the North Central section of New Jersey.

BHS senior Angela Magi garnered a 7th place award based upon her answers to questions about business law and demonstrated transcription proficiency.

The competition provides a wonderful opportunity for the students in the FBLA to test their knowledge and skill in the business fields.

The workshops and meetings that are held during the competition are simulations of real business meetings. The students are provided with a practical experience of business agendas and protocol that will prove useful to the future business leaders.

Roe, outlining De Lisi's efforts on behalf of the library.

Protecting Our Environment

Food For Thought

People concerned about our environment may give a warm welcome to the policies promulgated by one fast-food company to slow down the earth's ecological entropy.

Although studies show fast food restaurants contribute less than one third of one percent of total U.S. landfill volume, Jack In The Box, the nation's fifth largest hamburger chain, is taking steps to reduce its waste by 15 percent or more over the next three years.

It's doing so in several ways:
• It's reducing waste in both its own packaging and that which comes from suppliers. Reducing the weight of its carryout bags, for example, saves more than half a million pounds of paper a year and preserves over 4,250 trees.

• By eliminating and modifying materials used to manufacture its soft drink cup cases, Jack In The Box already has cut more than 2,000 pounds of packaging per year.

• It's installing high-efficiency gas fryers and grills to reduce gas use by some 30 percent.

Darren Blass, the company's manager of Environmental Affairs,

A major fast food chain is protecting our environment several ways.

states that, "By modifying the ingredient packages we receive, we have prevented 600,000 pounds of material from entering the waste stream."

Jack In The Box refuses to buy beef from any country where rain forests are destroyed for cattle grazing.

It would seem this is one restaurant chain with an environmental protection policy that really has some teeth in it.

The first electric watch was invented in Chicago in 1895.

Did You Know???

Remodeling? Families today are most interested in improving their kitchens and bathrooms to gain space for more comfortable living. The bonus that comes with the job: those are the renovations that add the most to the value of a home.

Before removing a cracked glass pane from its sash, stabilize it with strips of masking tape in a crisscross pattern. Then score the glass with a glass cutter, about an inch from the edges. Tap lightly on the score lines and the glass will break neatly into sections.

When a room looks under decorated, the problem is rarely lack of furniture. More likely, you need accessorizing, extra touches to fill in the "holes" in the room. Plants and pictures help.

It's easier to buy a home that needs work, now that some lenders are offering combination mortgage/home repair loans in a single package with a 5 percent down payment. Federal National Mortgage Association has set certain income guidelines.

It's easier to buy a home with the help of the real estate professionals at Century 21 Stanford Agency, 86 Union Avenue, Nutley, 235-9000.
