TWO SECTIONS - 50 CENTS

Pope John Paul II's visit enthusiastically welcomed

Leaders of all faiths respect papal message

By Douglas M. Muro Staff Writer

Every so often an event transpires which captures the public's imagination. A monumental occurrence that define definition. The presence of an individual so revered, millions will flack to his side and listen with unparalleled regard. Who is the recipient of this attention and reverence? Pape John Paul II.

On Oct. 4 at 3 p.m., the Holly Father arrives at Newark International Airport, where he will be welcomed and give an opening address.

Evening prayer at Sacred Heart Cathedral in Newark will begin at 5 p.m.

"Each day I get to see the excitement being generated by the news of the Papal visit," said Monsignor Joseph Slinger, pastor of St. Reter's Church in Belleville, "People are always asking me for tickets to the Mass at Giants Stadium and inquiring about the Holy Father's exact itinerary. Every person I meet has a reason for their mounting enthusiasm. Some are excited because of the impending wisit of a holy man, some because they want to be in the presence of a major world leader and some because they feel deeply that this man, this head off the Roman Catholic Church, is a sign of the presence of Christ in the world.

"I share all those feelings and participate in the excitement from many of the same reasons, but also because I have spent nearly a score of years trying to understand the Pope's vision for the church so that I can help foster that wision and make it real wherever II am assigned," Slinger said. "Now I will probably shake his hand and see into the eyes of a leader who has greatly influenced my life. To meet someone who has affected your life so deeply is like meeting your best friend for the first time. I can not wait."

On Oct. 5 from 9:15 am. tto 1 p.m., the Pope will visit the United Nations, where he will orate to the General Assembly and U.N. staff.

At 5:30 p.m., the Popemobile will travel around the interior of Giants Stadium before a crowd of thousands and John Paul will celebrate Mass at 6 p.m.

"The focus of this event will be a celebration of Mass with the Holy Father," noted Monsignor Richard Groncki, director of Archdiocesan Ceremonies and pastor of St. Walentine Church in Bloomfield. "A Papal Mass is always an exciting event, but to have it happening right here at home in our own archdiocese, and to be able to have a part in it is really thrilling."

"There are a million tiny details to take care of with this wisit," Groncki said. "Trying to create a prayerful atmosphere for a great number of people is not easy, but it is a lot of fun because you are working with great people and because there are so many willing to help. We want everyone in Giants Stadium to have a sense of joyful participation in the Liturgy."

Father Daniel Danik of Sacred Heart Church in Bloomfield, shared his excitement. "This is something both historical and extraordinary. If think there is a general good feeling. This spurs people on to a religious renewal."

On Oct. 6 at 9 a.m., the Popernobile continues its trek with a tour inside Aqueduct Racetrack in Queens. This will be followed by a Mass and papal homily.

Yonkers is next on the Pope's agenda, where he will lead an evening grayer and deliver an address to seminarians at St. Joseph's.

"Il think the Papal visit is positive," said Rev. Nancy Moore, pastor of Bethany Latherm Church in Belleville. "It enthuses Catholic people and makes them feel part of the larger church."

Next on the list is Central Park and the Great Lawn where the Popernotitie will true the grounds Oct. 7 at 9 a.m.

Mass will be said at 9:30 a.m., and at 12:15 p.m. the Pope will arrive at the residence of Cardinal John O'Comsor at St. Patrick's Cathedral in Manhattan.

During the same afternoon, a rosary will be recited at 3:30 p.m. At 5 p.m., the Pope will bless offices of Highy See Mission to the United Nations in Manhattan and give a brief address.

An informal meeting with the leadership of other Christian churches will begin at 6.50 p.m., at the O'Connor residence. This is followed by dinner with regional bishops at 7 p.m., and a meeting with leaders of the lewish community at 8 p.m.

"There are a number of sames the Pope expouses that we are in full agreement with," said Don Flynn, pastor of Riverside Community Church in Nutley. "One issue I believe should be mentioned is the Pope's pro-life stance on abortion.

We are glad and grateful for the unswerving position he has taken on this sensitive topic."

Oct. 8 is the Pope's final day in the U.S. and his schedule is full. Things get started at 9.50 a.m., with the Pope's arrival at Baltimore-Washington International Airport. At 10:15 a.m., the Popemobile takes its final U.S. tour with its journey through the inside of Oriole Park at Camden Yards. This is followed by a Mass at 10:45 a.m.

Cardinal William Keeler's residence is his next stop at 1:30 p.m. A parade will accompany the Pope to this destination.

After visiting the Basilica of the Assumption in Baltimore, the Pope will meet with leaders of Catholic Relief Services at 5 p.m., followed by a visit to the Cathedral of Mary Our Queen at 5:45 p.m.

Finally at 6:25 p.m., the Pope will arrive at St. Mary's Seminary and from there he will travel to the airport to deliver a departing address.

At 8 p.m., he will depart for

"Pope John Paul II is a great leader in the world," said Rev. Bill Gannon, pastor of Christ Episcopal in Glen Ridge. "I rejoice with our Roman Catholic brothers and sisters in their celebration of his presence in this country."

Belleville voices doubtful of ECIA-Hilltop bond deal

By Paul O'Keefe Staff Writer

Belleville residents gave reserved opinions on the Hilltop land deal during a special meeting Aug. 31 in Township Hall with County Executive Jim Treffinger.

Bellevilites generally welcomed the sale, but had doubts as to how the project was being financed.

The following are some statements made by Belleville residents.

"Tagree with the use of Hilltop as a state park or reservation. . . I have serious reservations with the use of Essex County Improvement Authority. This is an unholy alliance between the county and ECIA," said Councilman Victor Canning

"I don't like when a councilman goes before a group of Belleville seniors and uses scare tactics. A councilman told seniors that their taxes would go up $1,000. He repeatedly said this. People are losing sleep worrying about their taxes because of this. It is no wonder a bus load went to rally for the Hilltop sale. This hurts you indirectly," Joe Celfo told Treffinger.

"ECIA is a scam authority. Who pays their salaries, benefits and pensions? All this padding of the bills falls back on the taxpayers. . . County Freeholders are extortionists who are using this land to get money from taxpayers," former 2nd Ward council candidate Henry Charzewski charged.

"The service agreement is of the ECIA, by the ECIA and for the ECIA. If you really mean to make it a state park, then take development out of the service agreement. . . I worry that someday a court will say you can't have veto power over an independent authority, and ECIA will get the land while you tell people you tried," N.J. Assembly candidate Vincent Frantantoni said.

Police Department plaque honors vest contributors

By Paul O'Keefe Staff Writer

Belleville Kiwanis dedicated a plaque Aug. 28 that will hang in Belleville Police Department headquarters. The plaque recognizes the 37 businesses that have donated money toward the purchase of bulletproof vests for township police.

With 37 vests purchased so far, and 15 more on order, the Kiwanis drive approaches its goal of 70 vests for the

"I think the Kiwanis Club and Mario Drozdz have done a tremendous job," Mayor Jim Messina said at the dedication.

"The Kiwanis also are working with us to put up a blockhouse at Fairway Field," Messina noted.

"You people care, it really means a lot," PBA President Mark Minichini said. Drozdz noted the drive has exceeded Kiwanis expectations. The vest fund set the goal of providing all officers and incoming recruits with bulletoroof vests to replace the outdated, less protective models the department uses now.

Contributors to the vest fund:

* Air Force Sergeants Association, AMVETS Ameri-

Belleville doctor authority on women's health issues

By Donna DiLauro Staff Writer

Dr. Rhonda Hearns of Belleville took first prize among 32 physicians in a competition sponsored by the New York Obstetrical Society at the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey.

Hearns, born and reared in Washington D.C., moved to Belleville two years ago. The young doctor became interested in science and medicine during her high school days and has a specific interest in women's health.

Hearns is a second-year resident at UMDNJ. She earned top honors in the regional research competition as a postgraduate physician for her research paper "Endometriosis Reduces Bone Mineral Density in Rats." Hearns' research supports a previous study linking endometriosis to the development of fragile bones.

Endometriosis is a painful condition that strikes 25 to 50 percent of infertile women. It occurs when the uterine tissue invades other parts of the pelvis and abdomen.

"The normal age-appropriate level of bone density was significantly reduced by endometriosis in our study," said Hearns. "However, further investigation is necessary to explain the extent of this link in humans."

Dr. Gerson Weiss, professor and chair of obstetrics and gynecology at the medical school, said Hearns' work suggests that physicians treating endometriosis patients should be on the look out for changes in bone density.

"The department is proud of this achievement by one of our junior residents," said Weiss.

Hearns found that rats with endometriosis had lower bone density after a 90-day period when compared to rats that did not have endometriosis.

Two groups of rats were used in the study. Endometriosis was surgically induced in one of the groups. DEXA, dual energy x-ray absorptiometry, measurements of the lower spines were performed prior to surgery and again after 90 days in both groups.

The second set of DEXA measurements showed that rats with surgically induced endometriosis had markedly less bone density than rats in the control group.

These data suggest the rats with endometriosis had weaker bones and were more susceptible to fractures.

Hearns' interest in women's health is an up and coming field in recent years. After being grossly overlooked for years, studies such as Women's Health Initiative have received much deserved publicity.

While Hearns' research is noteworthy as a medical professional, her status as an African-American woman propels her as a role model in a field that is underrepresented by women in general, let alone minority women.

As Hearns noted the many mentors she has worked with, she too has been a mentor.

Dr. Rhonda Heams Women's health

"I was in charge of the mentor program at Eastern High School in Maryland," said Hearns. "I have also been a Brownie leader — I have always been interested in helping people."

When the young doctor has time off from bone marrow studies, you might find her rollerblading up and down Joralemon Street or jogging and bicycling the streets of Belleville.

This ranking report is for the most recent school-year compiled, 1993-94. The recently expired school-year rankings are being compiled. Preliminary indications, from published 1994-95 data and for proposed spending in the current 1995-96 show few changes in percentages or constant dollars per item. This listing is for dollars spent, not received, as from federal and state aid sources. Therefore, the listings should be seen in the spending side of the ledger, not in revenues. Also keep in mind that the listing or ranking does not disclose how much of the dollars spent or raised in levies is attributable to or from from the homeowner. As a municipality loses its industrial tax base, and if it should not make up that loss in net valuation, then the single-family and two-family homeowner pays a correspondingly higher level of taxes to finance school spending. This is what has happened to Belleville and Nutley. The ranking does edvidence that Belleville and Nutley have comparatively low teachers' salaries per pupil. More rankings will follow in this series.

Meetings take place 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., in Clara Maass Medical Center Education Center, One Clara Maass Drive, Belleville.

The first meeting will be held on Sept. 12 and will discuss breast cancer treatment options. The speakers will be James Orsini, M.D., medical oncologist, and Corinne Devereaux, M.D., radiation oncologist.

Other topics to be covered at future meetings: breat cancer surgical interventions; legal issues; reconstruction techniques; nutrition and exercise; and psychological issues. Programs are presented by physicians and/or certified health

For information about Clara Maass' newest oncology service, the breat cancer lecture series and support group, phone Ann Shaftic, R.N., or Donna Rainone, CSW at 450-2210.

Preparing for year 2000 and beyond

The Belleville Board of Education and the public school administrators - and not to be forgotten, the students - attracted with merit the attention of New Jersey Monthly in its high school rating system.

As we have said, Belleville spends fewer dollars per pupil in the county and is low within its socio-economic grouping. To be recognized by any rating system, therefore, is no small feat. It should be emphasized, however, that standardized test scores and SAT results are also a measure of academic success, and it is here that Belleville has some catching up to do.

The key factor in this recent rating and in any assessment of Belleville public schools is the manner in which students are prepared for the career marketplace of the year 2000 and beyond. All the high ratings, all the test scores, will mean little if technological understanding is not the primary focus. Belleville is moving in that direction, but certainly not with the rate of speed which we would press the pedal.

Strangely enough, this magazine rating, from a credible but hodge-podge of educators, may have a negative effect on Belleville voters who have a habit of opposing budgets no matter how saintly - or unsaintly. Folks might believe the schools are doing well without any infusion of new dollars: "You got the high rating with the dollars we gave you. Why do you need more?"

It is hoped the school board and the administration understand that alternative sources of revenue are still the priority if Belleville schools are to prepare the students for the year 2000 and beyond. That is the final assessment,

Treffinger joins the power brokers

We cannot yet believe the bad news. Essex County Executive James Treffinger — owing a political debt no doubt to state Senator John Scott or why else? - has given a job to Councilwoman Angela Parserchia. Other political payoffs are in the works, we are told.

How is what Treffinger is doing any different from the handing out of jobs to political power brokers — Republican and Democratic — of Tom D'Alessio, Nick Amato, Peter Shapiro, Dennis Carey and other summertime residents of, say, Spring Lake or other haunts of the politically greedy and infamous?

James Treffinger should be ashamed of himself, and then some. He pledged to work at phasing out county government and to get rid of the no-show jobs. We were among those who believed him, believed in him. He has betrayed the trust in those who voted for him to lead the county out of an abysmal morass.

We had hoped that Treffinger would be something different from the Orechio, Giblin, Adubato, Sharpe James, Piro, Durkin, Crecco and other power brokers and their hangers-on. We had hoped that county government would be phased out. We had hoped that this great and old county would have an economic and social rebirth.

We are angered. We are grieved. James Treffinger, unless he is struck soon on the road to Damascus, has taken the heart out of us and, we are sure, out of tens of thousands of others who had believed his pledges.

Unemployment law abuse made easier

The Legislature recently approved an amendment that would "liberalize" — that is, expand — benefits for seasonal and other types of workers who do not regularly work all year.

No one objects to unemployment benefits as such, for, after all, they are earned and paid for by the employee as well as the employer.

What is objectionable in this instance is that the state is making it easier for some folks to knowingly abuse unemployment benefits. For example, we have recently heard of a company, owned by the wife, who in turn hires her husband and lays him off for a portion of the year, during which time he receives unemployment benefits and, so we understand, works for the same business but does not receive a check — thereby avoiding direct federal or state illegalities, or so they think.

Should this person receive benefits? How many others in this community get around the law through this or a similar abuse of a worthy federal or state law?

Instead of making it easier to abuse, the Legislature should be tightening up employment laws so folks cannot abuse benefits which employers and employees finance and which most folks never use, never mind abuse. Most folks work, one way or another.

To be sure, how do these abusers separate themselves from the welfare cheaters, college-loan defaulters, illegal aliens and other frauds and convenient stereotypes?

More hypocrites!

Sweat of their brow — bend of their back

Folks have come to celebrate Labor Day as a kind of end to summer and an introduction to the school year. Despite the weeks remaining before fall, summer is over.

Labor Day parades are gone; the unions are next. Unions are an endangered species, soon approaching the status of the guilds of the late feudal era in Europe. They will not be on the Laboring folks made Belleville. About 1815 or thereabouts, Irish and German immigrants came to Second River, then a hamlet within Bloomfield, to work at the mills along Second and Third rivers. They also secured jobs, 12- and 14-hour workdays, six days a week, in small workshops in the area.

With the building of the great Morris Canal, the most advanced engineering feat of its day, and almost simultaneously the building of the tracks, bridges and depots of the early railroads, jobs for unskilled and semiskilled immigrants were plentiful. Skilled workers from the "old country" were not as numerous. When found, they were paid comparatively well for the time

The early Irish and German immigrants worked grueling jobs, as historical reference testifies, especially in the construction of the canal and the railroads. We are told of the heavy laboring of the day. Although construction and technological changes were being introduced rapidly, essentially the common work practices were hardly different from those of the late Middle Ages. The sweat of the brow and bend of the back were the common condition - nay, the fate of our forefathers.

When the immigrant fathers were digging the canal toward its highest point at Lake Hopatcong, they did not come home unti! Saturday evening, as most of them slept in tents or makeshift shelters along the route of the engineering wonder

Were they unhappy? They were and they were not. The work was hard and long and often dangerous. It was better paying, however, than most jobs back in Europe. These families were never "illegal" and, on the whole, few instances of federal, state or municipal benefits were known, The churches and the communities helped somewhat. As old folks still say today, "God provided and mama made soup

Silver Lake, the lake itself not the neighborhood, is an example of early backbreaking labor in Belleville. In 1730 or so, Jaspar Crane, a descendant of the founding family of Newark — the Cranes were Puritans who settled in southern Connecticut about

1630 and fought the Pequot Indians fiercely for territorial control - and a few partners in a lumber mill with water power supplied by a huge wheel and a small flume system from the man-made lake, apparently had widened a natural swamp basin of Second

This labor was an immense undertaking. The original lake was about a half-mile long to the dam at Heller Parkway back to what is today Bloomfield, with a stream emptying in Second River. The labor used in building Silver Lake was done by the poorer descendants of founding Newark families - remember that Newark had been settled only 60 years earlier and "Silver Lake" was, until 1812 when Bloomfield was chartered as a township, within Newark.

When one understands that earthmoving equipment was a partnership between man and mules - horses were too costly to use for simple but most strenuous duties this species, the mule, has been heir to - we today can only honor these early builders, their supervisors or "engineers" and the laborers. The species mules are in "doggie heaven," with the others of God's creatures He abides

A century or so went by between the "Puritans" - by then called Congregationists or Presbyterians - who dug Silver Lake and its dam system and then operated its mill, to the early German and Irish immigrants who built the locks, planes and passages of

Within alhalf century on so, the first ave of Italian immigrants came to Belleville as the post-Civil Warnise of industrial capitalism found its place in a massive area from the Ampere sections of Newark-East Orange-Bloomfield, throughout Silver Lake on the month side of Blamfield Avenue, west through Watsessing in Bloomfield and Deddtown in East Orange and cast to North Newark.

That industrial area, seem to be among the most productive in Ameriwas no llonger labor-intensive in the old-fashioned sense. It was laborintensive and madhine intensive. No one marched or, as now, harbecould or bought diothes for school, or dissed down summer homes. Those, our forebears, worked on Lation Day, of course. They always worked, God

Belleville's "labor" history has never been written. Those "laborers" worked and worked and worked found time to marry and have flamlies, went to church Sunday mornings after having drunk allittle two much on Saturday mights, and then they died, mostly leaving their heirs more than they had been lieft

Their graves are frogetten. Their biographies unwritten. Not even our schools have a day's studies to advise students how these "laborers" who came before us endured with faith in their God, in their America, in their family and through the sweat of their brow and the bend off their back

'I-never-tell-a-lie' echoed by local politicians

"Why should I vote anymore?" said

We are used to hearing those words from the naturally apathetic, but this woman has been at every meeting of her township's government for two decades and has worked on many campaigns

She said the words to me after we had discussed Essex County Executive Jim Treffinger and the $32,000 job given to Belleville Councilwoman Angie Paserchia.

I do not have a good answer. What good is voting if the campaigner is going to lie to citizens and do an about face in office?

I am not talking about baby-kissing campaign white lies. New Jersey voters are hearing whoppers that would be called breach of contract or fraud anywhere else.

with a choice between the Democrats, who blatantly tax, spend and hire buddies; and Republicans, who promise not to do the same but lie.

So why vote at all? The game is rigged.

Gov. Christine Whitman deserves real credit for cutting the income tax and exploring privatization measures

Some of those measures are already showing very good results.

Spending has increased in Trenton, however, by more than $600 million. That was not supposed to happen under the Republican Revolution.

The Republicans have been airing radio commercials bragging about their spending cuts. This is lying, nothing more, and the disgust of vot-

Senator Scott, the great turncoat, sold himself as the big conservative in a time when working middle class voters were looking for relief from Jim Florio and company. Scott then dumped the bulk of Republicans who worked their tails off for his election. He deals now with Belleville Republican Organization members exclusively, and Paserchia is one of them. Scott sponsored a bill to exclude companies like Garden State Leasing from having to pay limo drivers overtime. The Teamsters will now organize the drivers much more easily because the workers have no choice It is organize or watch these political bums cut their hard-earned

Garden State Leasing was a contri-

The workers, many off whom world for Scott, are being stomped on in the worst way because this senator has no character. He thinks of himself and no

State Republican Party officials should take a look. The Teamsters will increase their menbership and never trust the party again. This was the union that twice emiliosed Ronald Reagan. The working white male vote, so important to Sauti's election and that of Whitman, will be that much more dissolved by actions like

letters to the editor

Scaperrotta is in our paper, too

Last week's "Bel View" column written by Paul O'Keefe, although the style looks very similar to that of Russell Roemmele, discusses its usual variety of half-truths, lies, gloom, doom and despair. In the column, O'Keefe also goes to great lengths to criticize me on my positions on issues affecting Belleville

The First Amendment gives O'Keefe - and you too, Russell - the right to write whatever you please. However, I believe last week's column has definitely stepped over the line.

This publication, including its editors and its publishers, have proven they have no scruples. I point to the portion of the column which states I should be executed, simply because you disagree with me on an issue, and my methods of presenting my views. To quote O'Keefe, he states that "I would appreciate some sort of capital punishment. . . preferably, capital punishment as something India once utilized, in which an elephant would step on the convicted man's head.'

Mr. O'Keefe — and probably Roemmele too — are obviously very disturbed individuals. Even though the circulation of this rag is very low, I hope that even the die hards who are most easily fooled by this trash will now see that the Belleville Post is nothing more than a tool for a very small number of disgruntled individuals who have no credibility in our township

Area savings institutions report improved earnings

By Douglas M. Muro Staff Writer

New Jersey Savings League reported that 77 federally insured and state certified savings institutions with offices in the state publicized second quarter earnings of $71 million.

"Equity capital increased by $218 million, since June 1994, to nearly $3 billion, which resulted in a capital-to-assets ratio of a very healthy 8.5 percent," said League President Edmond Lawlor, Jr.

League Chairman Leopold Montanaro, also president of West Essex Bank in Caldwell, said "the continued solid performance of the industry demonstrates the confidence and support of New Jerseyans for community based savings institutions that place a high priority on customer service."

Montanaro pointed out that the state's savings institutions continue to provide a convenient source of home financing funds and additional financial services, and that unlike many lenders, most savings institutions service their own loans and therefore can personally respond to customer inquiries about their loans

"In the fast changing world of acquisitions of financial services providers by distant entities, it's comforting to know that local savings institution will be there to meet the financial needs of the communities they serve," Montanaro added.

Richard Bzdek, executive vice president of American Savings in Bloomfield, shares some good news. "We have had an improvement in our earnings the last couple of quarters." There are two major benchmarks of gauging the profit of an institution," added Eric Heyer, vice president and controller of American Savings. "These two things are the return on assets and the return on equity." Heyer continued, "Our return on assets was .95 for the month of June, which is considered healthy. Our return on equity in June was 12.6, which exceeded the peer group average." "Our biggest concern is generating good loans and getting fair returns," Bzdek said. "Bloomfield is a strong banking community." Walter Fillmore, senior vice president in charge of retail banking at Collective Federal Savings Bank — with branches in Bloomfield, Belleville and Glen Ridge, reports a similar trend.

"Our offices have done very well during the second quarter," said Fillmore. "This is an improvement from last year. Our numbers are comparable to the rest of the industry's numbers. Whenever a bank's return on assets is at or near one percent, you are doing well." Emil Butchko, senior vice president and treasurer at First DeWitt, predicts the positive trend his bank is experiencing will continue. "The quater that just ended was a good one, and we expect the same if not better."

First DeWitt has branches in Bloomfield and Belleville. The Trust Company of N.J. — with a local branch in Nutley — echoes the progressive period banks are enjoying, with reports of an "exception-

While the industry's return on assets remained .81 percent, second quarter earnings were down approximately 10 percent from the $78,801 net income for the first quarter earnings of 1995 and by 27 percent from the $97,380 net income for the second quarter of 1994

Piece Of Mind

By Donna DiLauro Staff Writer

our colleague, Michael Gallo, now back at Villanova — Snapple Mango Madness; Russell - 20 cups of coffee paid for by the Worralls and Diet Rite soda, with no fat, no calories, no sodium, no nothing, as not to interfere with his caffein addiction; Rose iced tea; Bernice - Veryfine juices; and Paul - room temperature Parmalat. Diet Coke reigns.

My mother insists I am embalming my body before it's time with my daily intake of Diet Coke. My friend John swears I will develop Alzheimer's by drinking from an aluminum can, but I stand by Diet Coke as a healthy choice.

Clinical tests have proven that increasing the blood flow in your body is a sure remedy for headache. Diet Coke comes in handy — the caffeine naturally increases blood flow, thus eazing one's aches.

When it is two minutes to deadline and Russell needs an 18-inch story, it is Diet Coke to the rescue. It gives the energy and vitality one needs to complete arduous tasks under pressure.

You can imagine my fright while vacationing in Italy last year - there was no Diet Coke in my father's small town. After enduring withdrawal, I finally found a small store in a nearby town that carried "Coca Cola Lite," - the taste was slightly different, however, and I instructed my mother to be sure and have a fresh American Diet Coke with her when she picked me up at the airport.

I did get some Diet Coke on the plane ride home, but it was served in those puny little baby cans. I made a pain of myself and asked for more every three minutes. When I got off the plane there was a mountain of Diet Coke cans behind me.

Doug says water is the only drink that should be legal, but, then again, Doug wears women's dresses and prances through huckleberry fields on a daily basis.

Don't get me wrong — water is good. It helps us make cool, delicious drinks such as Diet Coke. In fact, I probably have a larger H2O content than Douglas has.

The water goes right through him, but the sodium in Diet Coke helps me retain the water I need in an emergency.

I have yet to mention the taste of it - cool, crisp and zippy - I drink Diet Coke, just for the taste of it. I am thinking of serving it instead of cchampaign as the toast drink at my

Pilgrimage of Pope John Paul II to the Newark Archdiocese

By Russell Roemmele Managing Editor

This is the first in a series of commentaries on Pope John Paul II's visit to the Newark Archdiocese. This may well be the most historic pilgrimage ever undertaken to Roman Catholics and to other Christians and to those of other faiths in this area in our time and ever since those Puritans and Dutch Reformed folks settled here in the mid-1600s. The editor's commentary is a focus on recent writings of this great, yet humble man, and on his message, his charisma, and, most triumphantly, on his fervent hope in salvation - personal and social. Comments from readers are invited.

Salvation. This is the essence of Pope John Paul II's "Crossing the Threshold of Hope," one of the most read "best sellers" in recent years, and a magisterial yet graceful restatement of Roman Catholic doctrine addressed less to theologians than to men, women and children - specially the children - of all faiths. This holy man preaches Christ Crucified, the hope in eternal salvation.

"Christ Resurrected dies no more! Even though evil gained power in the history of man and the times in which we live; even though we could not see your return in the world, a world where man might live in peace and justice, even though, humanly, the transition were not to be seen, even though the powers of darkness and the forces of evil raged. You, Paschal Victim, Spotless Lamb, Redeemer, have already gained the victory. And you have made it our victory! . . . From "Prayers and Devotions, 365 Daily Mediations, by Pope John Paul II," April 16, "Christ is

When The Pope speaks of the mystery of salvation, he is as of St. Paul and St. Augustine and St. John of the Cross. When he speaks of the hope, the joy, in salvation, he speaks as of St. Theresa of Avila, St. Francis of Assisi, and Mother Teresa of our time

He is the stunch conservative, defender of fundamental Roman Catholic order, but he is also all-embracingly tolerant of every faith - Protestant, Judaic, Buddhist, among others — in pursuit of goodness among men and rejection of the Seven Deadly Sins.

Unnoticed by most scholars and media in America and in Europe is something else, Karol Wojtyla as "Vicar of Christ on earth" has become: The Pope who has become so close to so many men, women and children through his pilgrimages - and that is what his "visits" are, in effect and through his appearances on television worldwide. The Pope is no longer within the Vatican. He is, as it were, at the altar in one's parish, speaking through the common language of the Mass, blessing even on to the least of these,

commentary part one

Pope John Paul II has reached out to men, women and children of all faiths, through the medium of television, thus communicating the church message, and therefore himself a transition from the electronic wonders of 20th Century technolgy to the optical wonders of the Year 2000 and beyond - yet all within the constant, ever-present date - the 25th day of December in Year 1.

The pilgrimage of Pope John Paul II to Newark, the Biblical "City on the Hill" of those southern New England Puritans who founded that city in 1660 and built its mother church, Old First Church - and perhaps at which the Pope should enter in a symbolic gesture of his message - is of overwhelming religious and social value.

More than that, if I can say so, his pilgrimage is an affirmation that in this most modernized environment, Giants Stadium, Christ Crucified and eternal salvation, the defeat of sin, is the greatest of struggles and victories

The Pope's pilgrimage is therefore, once again, "crossing the threshold of hope" — and it is hoped that it will be experienced in this way. In that Pope John Paul II, this "Vicar of Christ on earth," will be able to touch the common faith of men, women and children, so then will his mission have been accomplished. Thus, then, the sermon of hope will overcome the culture of death.

In order to hope for slavation from God, man must stop beneath Christ's Cross. Then, the Sunday after the Holy Sabbath, he must stand in front of the empty tomb and listen, like the women of Jerusalem: "He is not here, for he has been raised." Matthew 28-6. Contained within the Cross and the Resurrection is the certainty that God saves man, that He saves him through Christ, through His Cross and His Resurrection." Pope John Paul, "Crossing the Threshold of Hope." Chapter titled, Why does God tolerate suffering?

Local player seeking success with Seton Hall soccer squad

SOUTH ORANGE - At the an al Setun Hall University Soccer Media Day, the guys in the spotlight were players such as senior midfielder Struct Worker, junior striker Tommy Houston, junior forward Peter Gonzilez, sophomore sweeper Billy Deffus and junior goalie Eric Shaw

But a kid who could be as important as anybody to the learn's success this fall in the Big East is Belleville High graduate Michael Magarinos. he senior, who hails from Spain, has the ability to help the Pirates at either midfield or forward. A year ago, the 5-finus-III., 1775-pounder was the team's third leading scores with seven goals and 100 assists for 24 points.

If im mady to help the team wherewor I might be needed," said Magarinos, who has collected 15 goals and IM assists in his sparkling three-year carrier for weteran SHU mentor Manmy Schellscheidt. "I think the key for us this year iff we want to contend for the conference championship is to play a bit better on defense than we did a year ago. The problem last season was that we were somewhat inconsistent in our play."

A year ago, the Pirates fashioned a 112-6 record, the team's best performance since the 1991 squad went 1443. But the Pirates did give up 32 gods, including six in a horrible 6-4 sethadt to Garden State rival Princeton. And against conference champ St. John's, SHU allowed four goals during the course of a disappointing

Magarines, who would like to try his hand at gun somer after he graduates next spring, came into the 1995 compaign with a bit of a handicap. In mid-fully, the youngster suffered a ligament injury and was forced to wear a knew brace. Still, Magarines was able to play for the Pirates during a series of pre-season calcibilion

Michael Magarinos versatile performer

"I'm ready to go now," said Magarimos, who will turn 22 on Nov. 10. "I'm really hopeful that we can have a successful season and I think we will because our team has a lot of experienced players."

The Pirate standout, who attended a number of World Cup Games last summer at Giants Stadium, is just one of several players in the SHU lineup who can play at different spots on the field. And that's a big plus as far as Schelltscheidt is concerned.

"Having a lineup that is flexible will be a big asset for us," said the personable SHU mentor, who has ompiled a fine 83-42-12 mark in his first seven years at the helm. "I just want to put a bunch of guys out there who will make the correct decisions on the field. The key in this game is having players who can connect with

Magarinos, who enjoyed an outstanding amateur career in Spain playing for the Areosa Soccer Club, has been a fine player for the Pirates, campaign he had five goals and four assists for 14 points, and then as a sophomore, netted three goals and four assists for 10 points. But last fall the youngster really came into his

"I don't want to put too much pressure on myself this year because I know that we have a number of players that can contribute for us," said the modest senior. "Sure, I want to do well, but I know that if I have an off game, someone else might pick up the slack. I think we'll all be inspired to do well because the league has a new look this fall with three new teams (Rutgers, Notre Dame and West Virginia), and we want to show people what Seton Hall soccer is all about.

CORNER KICKS - Some of the other key players for the Pirates this fall will be sophomore Skjalg Myklebust, senior Jeremy Cohen, junior Seth Grossman, junior Joe Molinaro and senior Alex Echeverry...

Magarinos, who has played for the Union Lancers' club team, is a pyschology major.

Houston, who led the team last year with 12 goals and nine assists for 33 points, will be the other big gun in the lineup along with Magarinos.

Since Magarinos has been at SHU, St. John's has won the Big East title every year. Seton Hall won conference crowns in 1986, 1987, 1988 and 1991. As a freshman, the Belleville resident was a member of a team which made it to the Big East finals and advanced to the second round of the NCAA Tournament.

Schellscheidt likes the fact that Shaw was busy in the nets during the pre-season matches in Mexico because that factor "should make him sharper" for the early portion of the schedule. During the four-game trip to Mexico in mid-August, the top SHU players, according to the coach, were Shaw, Deftos, McKee and Houston..

Belleville High School football players go through drills during practice last week at Municipal Stadium. The Buccaneers open the season Sept. 23 at Teaneck.

What a crazy ride for county executive

What a trip it's been for County
Executive James Treffinger since County he's begun canvassing the county to dispense news about the proposed $32.5 million sale of the

The exec has been putting plenty By Anthony Puglisi of miles onto his Cherokee Jeep, Regiona' Editor hot off the Aug. 21 junket which saw him hold four hearings in three towns that day and two more meetings this week in Belleville and Newark.

Until Aug. 31 in Belleville, however, Tretfinger was in the familiar and comfortable surroundings of West Essex, where his hometown of Verona is located. The discussions at the Hilltop meetings have been informational and rather civil. with voices rarely rising above normal speaking level and tempers remaining cool. One thing is for sure, though. Essex County has a diverse population and each municipality has its own character - and characters - and I don't think Treffinger was ready for what transpired in the "beautiful village" that night.

"Does tais happen a lot in Belleville?" Troffinger asked the crowd during a heated interlude during the public sersion.

So this is not taken out of context, let me explain that the county executive's comment was in response to an argument which resulted between Belleville resident Henry Charzewski and Belleville Councilman Joe Scaperrotta. Charzewski has been an open critic and watchdog of his hometown council and, to be sure, there is no love lost between him and the councilman.

Charzewski was getting rather emotional about the rising taxes a touchy topic especially when they are constantly on the rise - and the county's involvement with the Essex County Improvement

Treffinger interrupted the resident to stress once again his commitment not to raise taxes and to downsize county government.

When finished listening to the exec's response, Charzewski called Treffinger's ploy of interruption a common tactic to get the common citizen to lose concentration and off track. He said he didn't like lawyers and did not trust any politician, especially Scaperrotta.

Scaperrotta responded, telling Charzewski he was "out of line and if he continued, he would be "removed" from the chambers, even summoning the local police officer to carry out his wish.

"When it's my money, I'm in order. I'll speak for myself," Charzewski responded.

The exchange between the two lasted for a few minutes, with Treffinger inserting his question during the firefight.

There were several things I took notice of during this exchange.

First the positive. Although he was unsure of how to handle the situation, Treffinger did not want Charzewski removed and said he wanted to hear what the man had to say. Also, to his credit, the Belleville police officer at the meeting did not spring at Scaperrotta's beck and call. Instead of confronting Charzewski, the officer whispered to Frank Montagna, a Belleville school board member, who was sitting next to Charzewski, to try to calm his friend down. That worked.

I must ask, however, what was Scaperrot:a doing and what right or role did he think he had? The meeting was not one sponsored by the Belleville council and he has had no role with the Hilltop sale. The only thing the meeting had to do with Belleville was that it was in Belleville's municipal building.

The meeting was Treffinger's, and only Treffinger's. He was in charge; he was in control. Not until Scaperrotta opened his mouth to respond to Charzewski did things get out of control.

If this was a ploy by the Belleville councilman to raise his stature among Treffinger and other county officials, as if to show the power and control he had over his constituents, it failed and failed miserably. In fact, it was downright embarrassing for Belleville because residents of West Caldwell, Verona, Bloomfield and other towns were on hand to see. They came to make comments and become better informed about Hilltop. Instead, they got a stage show, and a bad one at that Elected officials are representatives of their constituents, whether those constituents agree with them or voted for them or not. Scaperrotta did not do well, and Belleville should be ashamed.

Belleville also should be ashamed because of the scare tactics one of its council members used to convince senior citizens to support the Hilltop sale. In recent weeks, Scaperrotta has told seniors that taxes will rise by at least $1,000 if Hilltop is not sold.

It's true that taxes will increase, but the figure is about one-half the misinformation provided by the councilman. If Hilltop is not sold, taxes will increase $300 to $500 and, while some may say this is a scare tactic to a lesser degree, it is fact and Treffinger has presented it as thus, not as to rile the feathers and get people up in arms.

It would be beneficial for residents throughout the county - and probably the freeholders as well, as Patricia Sebold is the only one among her colleagues to show an interest in what the people have to say - to attend at least one public hearing and listen to what the county executive has to say.

The rumor mill will only shred the truth and lead to misinformation. Rather than listen to those who are uneducated about the Hilltop sale, residents should listen to Treffinger and hear it from the horse's mouth, so to speak,

Hilltop is a problem for the entire county

By Anthony Puglisi Regional Editor

There were pleas from the public the Hillton should be addressed as a county-wide issue, and different areas of the county should not be pitted against one another in the discussion.

This showing of solidarity came from residents of the western and northern parts of the county during the sixth public hearing about the proposed $32.5 million sale of Hilltop Aug. 31 in Belleville.

Robert Rusignolo of Nutley expressed his concern about Hilltop because it has pitted the western part of the county against the eastern part, the wealthy areas against the poorer ones. "We in the east are making such an issue of it because the districts in the west are wealthier. They can afford to pay higher taxes. We have more senior citizens on fixed incomes and are looking for some tax relief," he said.

County Executive James Treffinger said he disagreed with that kind of 'elitist" opinion. "A vast majority of Essex residents cannot absorb or afford that amount" of a tax increase, he said.

Mark Kaplan, a resident of Verona and co-founder of the Save the Mountains Committee, said Hilltop is a "problem we all have to share."

Kaplan supported Treffinger's idea to turn Hilltop into a state park or reservation, and described the idea as "wonderful solution."

"I'm happy taxes won't go up and that you will keep it as a park," said Tricia Cleary, a resident of Bloomfield and member of the Sierra Club, who added open space in Essex County must le preserved.

All I have to do is look around me in this county and I see examples of bad planning," said Cleary, who lives near the once industrialized and now vacant Westinghouse factory. "I would we come open space. There is very little nature in this area and this is the last piece of open land."

In response to this, Treffinger described himself as an "environmentalist as well as someone with concern for taxes." Often people with these ideas find themselves on opposite sides of the arguement, he said, but "this is one issue they can work together on.'

Treffinger said keeping Hilltop preserved in its natural state will have better value for the county than building new ratables on the 365-acre West Essex site. The open space will improve the quality of life and attract new business to the area. In the long run, Treffinger said, this will have a positive impact on the ratable base.

Developing the Hilltop may produce immediate revenue, he added, but "the drain on services will make it level out over time."

Several residents also aired their concerns about the Essex County Improvement Authority's involvement in the deal. The ECIA is floating bonds to purchase the property and will act as a "holding company" until it is sold to a third party, which Treffinger is hoping will be the state of New Jersey.

Treffinger said people should be wary of a public authority whose members are not elected or accountable to the public they represent However, the county executive said, there were more checks and balances in the service agreement between the ECIA and county than there are in the Constitution of the United States.

More meetings

There have been several schedule changes for future public meetings about the Hilltop. As of Tuesday, the following schedule had been set, with more meetings expected to be scheduled: Wednesday, Irvington Town Hall, Civ.c Square, 6 p.m.; Sept. 19, Orange Town Hall, North Day Street, 8 p.m.; Sept. 27, South Orange Village Hall, South Orange Avenue, 8 p.m.; and Oct. 24, Millburn Town Hall, Millburn Avenue, 8 p.m.

The meetings in Orange, South Orange and Millburn will be part of regularly scheduled municipal meetings. The times given are when the municipal meetings usually begin. The Irvington meeting will be one hour before a regularly scheduled freeholder meeting

Green Acres planner to speak at Hilltop meeting

Kevin Richardson, principal planner for the New Jersey Green Acres Program in the Bureau of Green Trust Management, Department of Environmental Protection, will be the featured speaker at the Save the Mountains Committee meeting Monday at 8 p.m. in the United Methodist Church, Montrose and Hill

Since 1985, Richardson has administered the Green Acres Local Assistance and Non-profit Acquisition Programs for Essex, Union and Hunterdon counties. He also assists in the administration of the federal Land and water Conservation Fund for the state of New Jersey,

His responsibilities include the solicitation of Green Trust and Non-profit Acquisition projects in adherence to state standards; evaluation, inspection and recommendation of acquisition and development projects for state funding; providing technical assistance concerning project eligibility, program and departmental requirements and legislative requests.

During the business part of the meeting, reports will be heard on the petition drive, ongoing correspondence with various state entities and activities of other groups working with the Save the Mountains group.

Petition drive

Close to 1,000 signatures for the Hilltop State Park petition were obtained by Teena Schwartz' roving volunteers during the annual Verona Labor Day picnic. The Save the Mountains Committee's request for a table to aid the volunteers in its quest for signatures was denied by the Jaycees, organizers of the picnic, as

Tom Kaplan, a resident of Verona and co-founder of the Save the Mountains Committee, tells County Executive Jim Treffinger and audience members at an Aug. 311 hearing in Belleville that Hillton is a county issue, not one toot residents against each other.

Parade to mark true meaning of Labor Day

Labor Day isn't just another long weekend or trip to the beach. Holidays just don't happen. They are established to commemorate a great event, to home individuals, to keep memories alive. Labor Day honors the workers of America and Organized Labor for improving living conditions of all workers

The art, history and culture of the labor movement in Essex County and New Jersey will be celebrated at "A Celebration of Labor," an interfaith Labor Day observance tomorrow. The program, to be at St. Patrick's Pro Cathelina, New ark, will include music and singing, art exhibits and a presentation on the impact of the labor movement in the area

Sponsored by the Essex-West Hudson Labor Council, AFL-CIO, the covert will begin with a march at 5:30 p.m. from the Newark City Hall and proceed along Broad Street to St. Patrick's Pro-Cathedral, Newark. A band will band a parade of union members and supporters marching behind the banners of their

"We feel that many people have forgotten the meaning of Labor Day. We want to be sure all citizens are aware of the historical struggles of working people that have made our lives better today. This country is facing a crisis in housing, employment opportunities and health care - all traditional issues." said Thomas P. Giblin, president of Local 68 and chairman of the event

"A Celebration of Labor should be a must activity for any trade unionist in the Essex-West Hudson area," said Frank Darcy, president, Essex West Hudson Labor Council. "Organized labor must remember that together wer stand and divided we fall."

The 1995 Celebration of Labor March will be ted by Grand Warshal Rechard Tissiere, president and business manager of Local 472 Heavy Construction

As a charter member of the New Jersey Alliance for Action and the Project Build Labor Management Committee, Tissiere has been a voice of reason and cooperation between the two groups. For his accomplishments with the Alliance for Action, he was honored by being named its Eagle Award recipient

In October 1987, he was appointed by Governor Thomas Kean as a Commission of the Com sioner of the New Jersey Turnpike Authority, its first labour representative at a time when the Turnpike was going through one of its most far-reaching expansion projects including the 1990-95 widening between interchanges III to IEEE

Archbishop Theodore McCarrick will preside over the colebration at $1 Plan rick's Pro-Cathedral and the committee will recognize all religious denominations, along with ethnic and racial groups that form the Labor massaic

"Every union member in New Jersey should make an effort to attend the 1995 Celebration of Labor because the overall success of this program will be reflection on all trade unionists," said Thomas H. Kenney, executive secretary and treasurer, Essex-West Hudson Labor Council. "Every resident of New Jersey is invited to be a part of the celebration," he said.

All are welcome and encouraged to support the march and eclebration. A reception will follow the service. For more information, call Brendan Wessey, committee member, at 623-7878.

Essex County's history is replete with Montclair Connections

The present ado in Essex County over the Montclair Connection, which is to rail transport what the Passaic River basin tunnel is to flood control hereabouts, has been repeated in one way or another ever since Robert Stevens built the first railroad and the Camden and Amboy became the first operating rail system in New Jersey in

In Essex, the early railroads were usually not very profitable as passenger carriers - even the great intercontinental systems were hardly profitable - as they were freight carriers. Public transit or mass transit has almost always been unprofitable, especially as union work rules, kindly called feather-bedding, and government subsidies interfered with proper management.

Railroads in the county made useless - and certainly made unprofitable for the most part — the Morris Canal within 20 years after its completion from Jersey City to the Delaware River in the 1820s.

Lookout On Eagle Rock By Russell Roemmele

Staff Writer

From time to time, passengers - or really commuters - forced the railroads into extending tracks in the county or through it. As I noted before in this series, the independence movement, the secession, of Montclair from Bloomfield in the 1860s, was motivated in part because Bloomfield powers-that-be and ordinary property owners refused to endorse a bond issue to extend the tracks to Montclair.

Remember, the Essex County Improvement Authority, which has bonded Essex County property owners into $400 million in debt, was, fortunately, undreamed about in those days - otherwise we would probably still be paying off debt incurred by those bonded early commuter lines, as our grandchildren shall be paying off

Where the profits existed for the railroads was not in the convenience of passengers but in the convenience of freight shippers. Even more, the rise of railroads - displacing canals, river traffic, and horse and wagons mattered almost as much as the rise of industrial capitalism. The rails were instrumental to the vast economic and social changes in Newark and its inner-suburbs that came about in the era between the 1850s and the 1920s.

The rails held supreme until the late 1920s in freight transport in Essex County, gradually to be replaced by truck transport which ousted it altogether, except for heavy bulk shipments, following World War II and the access to the greatest transportation infrastructural feat in history, the interstate highway system.

Today, little railroad freight business exists in Essex County. Its uses are barely profitable. Commuter rail systems, or public transit, are kept afloat only because of their subsidizaion by taxpayers. Profitable public transit is an oxymoron, as its commuters always have been been subsidized whether in bus or rail or subway use, and in capital spending.

As a matter of fact, if the average Joe Six-Pack — having replaced our old friend, John Doe - knew how much public transit is subsidized through his federal and state taxes and through the unassessed land of NJ Transit, for example, he would rebel. Of course, he is advised by government that subsidies are necessary to relieve highway traffic. Sure!

The current war over the Montclair Connection is being misunderstood. On the one hand, the property owners in Montclair and elsewhere who must be evacuated or otherwise inconvenienced have every right and reason to protest because, after all, they have the U.S. Constitution Compensation compensated for their losses not only with the existing market value of their properties as the criterion, but also for the inestimable value that should be affixed to the cost of their displacement from their homes and neighborhoods.

On the other hand, if the Montclair Connection does not go through, Bloomfield will suffer grievously without the expected development of its downtown, near its ancient Lackawanna tracks and depot.

As with so much about Essex County, few historical outlines of rallroad development in the county have been researched and analyzed to follow the money trail - and the politics. Corruption was in intimate relationship during the conception, growth and potent years of the rails in the state, and in Essex it was no different. So what else is new? As a boy, I grew up midway between the massive Pennsylvania

Clause on their side. They should be yards and the Central Railroad trac and shacks - and that is what they were, shacks - Down Neck in New ark. The old Ironbound in Newari existed for 80 years without mail

> Yes, II, too, romanticized the mailroads and, frankly, I still hope to take that trip on rails through Canada, from Toronto to the Canadian Ruddiess, II suppose it is subsidized, too. I would love to take a trip on the Orient Express, too - not so much as today, then as, say, in the 1930s, hoping to survive Peter Lorre or Sythacy Green street or Alfred Hitchcock or that mysterious woman in the cabin next

When I was a boy, I received my first Lionel train set. . . heavily subsi dized, I note, by my father's wages and paternal goodness. Remember the Irvington works of Lionel? Such is the fate of Essex County rail systems, I

Public hearing to discuss downsizing government

There will be a public hearing on the downsizing the federal government Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Montclair State University, Student Center Ballroom, Montclair. The hearing is sponsored by the Government Reform and Oversight Committee and will feature Jersey City Mayor Bret Schundler and Essex County Executive James Treffinger as two key witnesses.

The meeting is open to the public and there will be an open microphone session during which the audience will be able to offer its views on creating a smaller, more responsive

"Last November, the American people elected a Republican majority in the House and Senate whose platform was to make government smaller, more responsive and less intrusive in our everyday lives," said Congressman William F. Clinger Jr., R-Pa., chairman of the committee. "This hearing will help us develop proposals to create a '21st century government' according to the priorities of the American people."

This is the second of a series of field hearings being held by the committee. The first was July 14 in Cleveland, Ohio.

"The series of national field hearings will serve several purposes. First, we want to hear from leaders in government and the private sector who have succeeded in reshaping their own organizations. Those people who have experience in this area can help identify what obstacles need to be overcome and demonstrate that sweeping change is possible," Clymer said. "The committee also wants to collect information on which to build a public record in support of legislative action later this fall. Republicans also want to demonstrate that we are committee to effecting the scale of change the American people

Senior volunteers sought

Adults older than age 55 with some time to spare are urgently needed to help staff neighborhood flu clinics in September, October and November, according to Sherrie Calish, assistant director of the retired Senior and Volunteer Program of Essex County.

Calish said help is needed for registering older adults for their preventive inoculations and in helping some of them file Medicare claims. Volunteers are asked to work for shifts of one and one-half hours during the daytime, in public buildings in suburban communities in Essex County.

Calish added that RSVP, a nonprofit agency headquartered at 439 Main St., Orange, provides volunteers with excess accident and liability insurance at no cost and reimburses volunteers for travel expenses when necessary. RSVP is sponsored by Senior Services. Joyce Reciniello is RSVP director.

Essex Green Cinemas should remain the same

Essex County is about to lose one of its most underrated entertain. Anthony's ment pleasures and local residents don't even realize it.

in t even realize it.
It's no secret by now that the Alley waters of West Orange's Essex Green Shopping Plaza, Mutual Life of New York, want to destroy the General Cinemas movie theater to music way for a giant 14 screen multiplex. Sounds good, huh? Think again

Forget the zoning. Forget whatever "undesireable element" the residents of the Eagle Ridge connum complex are so pitifully afiraid of. What should be concerning serious film lovers is the fact at our county will probably lose one of the best movie theaters this sade of the Lincoln Tunnel.

Alas, the General Cinemas is far more than a scrubby little threescreen theater buried behind a scrubby has-been shopping mall. Looks can be deceiving.

So what's so special about the theater?

For starters, its biggest asset lies in the fact that it houses a gargantuan screen — 70 millimeter to be exact. Now that may not seem like a big deal for non-technical film lovers, but consider that most movie houses, such as those in typical multiplexes, utilize 35 millimeter screens. In essence, a humungous 70 millimeter screen heightens the film experience even more by doubling the size of the print. Try findng one of those at your local 14-plex. It won't happen.

By Anthony C. Venutolo Arts and Entertainment Editor

Cinemas and you'll find out what kind of intricacies lie in its THX sound equipment - without having to visit an ear internist.

As far as the aggravations involved with the creation of a multiplex are concerned? That, we can do without. Why does Mutual Life think the county needs yet another multiplex? There are two in Newark, one in East Hanover on Route 10, a miniplex in Cedar Grove and one a hop, skip and a jump away down Route 23 in neighboring Wayne.

Not to mention, there are plenty of other small theaters in Essex like Bloomfield's underrated Royal, Nutley's Franklin and Montclair's Clairidge, Wellmont and Bellvue. The need for a huge multiplex defies logic.

In July, I, like the rest of America, went to see Ron Howard's "Apollo 13" during its debut weekend. As I was standing on line at Sony Theaters in East Hanover - an overrated cinema, at best - I was shocked to see the movie house had dedicated three or four of its screens to the film to accommodate the overbearing crowd. It didn't seem to make sense to me as we

Manifest Destiny, the myth that all of North America would inevitably belong to the United States, was companied by the romanticized concept of the Indian as "The Vanishing American." Native Americans became dislocated people whose traditional religions, arts and ethnic identities were nearly erased by federal legislation that promoted assimilation. The Indian's artistic self-expression changed with the creation of reservations and boarding schools where Native Americans were prohibited from any kind of activity that would remind them of their rich cultural heritage. This was policy until the 1930s. Non-Indians of the time did, however, present a sympathetic and striking picture of the American

Auditions

· Auditions for "Rumors," a comedy by Neil Simon will be held at the Baird Theater, 5 Mead St., South Orange, Sept. 12 and 13 at 7:30 p.m. Needed are five males and females. Ages are open.

The action takes place in the townhouse of a deputy maoyr of New York four couples over to celebrate their 10th wedding anniversary. The party never begins because it is revealed the host has shot himself in the head it's only a flesh wound - and his wife is missing. His lawyer decides on a cover-up, which gets progressively more difficult to sustain as the other guests arrive and nobody can remember who has been told what to whom. Doors slam and the roller coaster ride more and more crazed to sort everything out.

Cinema should stay the same weekend, Christmas day, New Year's Day and just about any Friday. Saturday or Sunday during the parking space, let alone make your movie on time.

Surely, Neuer and management could hide behind the defense that traffic congestion are only at isolated times during the year. That's fair except so we'll exclude Monday Turnday and Wednesday mights as busy theater nights. Howeser, once Thursday hits, people get itchy for weekend activity and ace at theaters start to rise.

Couple that with a blockbuster ing weekend of "Speed 2," & Barrian and Robin" and you Let's keep it there.

Our county will probably lose one of year and sell me about swift flow of the best movie theatraffic. You'd be lucky to find a ters this side of the Lincoln Tunnel.

> have a hungry swarm of teen-agers, families and couples just waiting to get a seat after parking their car in a congested lot.

Sure, in the name of commerce and capitalism, the multiplex idea could work and I'm sure people will welcome a new movie house that features 14 first-run films. But it's this "something for everyone" mentality that's ruining the very fabric of what makes Essex Green The Tarassic Park" and "Bat- General Cinemas so enjoyable.

DRIVE CAREFU

The kids are on their way back to school. And being children, they might not be looking where they're going. It's up to you to slow down and look around, when driving where children are likely to be.

It's also important to keep your car in good working order-brakes, especiallyto keep our children out of harm's way.

BACK TO SCHOOL

Safety should not be forgotten when going back to school be hurt badly enough to need a doctor's attention. We call them "accidents," however most childhood injuries can be prevented.

"Parents, teachers and other role models need to lead the way by teaching children to think safely," said Dr. Cheryl Dickson, director of Pediatric Ambulatory and Emergency Medicine at United-The Children's Hospital of New Jersey

United and NJ SAFE KIDS offer the following tips to parents on getting their children back to school

Bicycle basics: Children need to be taught the rules of the road, riding on the right, with traffic, obeying traffic signs and signals. While children should not be riding after dark, reflectors and bicycle lights help kids to be seen when riding at dusk. New Jersey law requires children under age 14 to wear approved bicycle helmets.

"The majority of bike crashes are caused by poor judgment or poor riding skills," said Dickson. "Wearing a helmet is the most important step in preventing injuries. If worn properly and consistently, helmets can prevent

Each year one in four children will the majority of fatalities and the most serious injuries."

Riding the school bus: Most school bus related injuries occur when approaching or leaving bus loading zones. Teach children to cross at least 10 feet in front of the bus so the driver sees them, and only enter the road if the driver signals it is safe to cross. New Jersey law requires seat belts on all new school buses, so teach kids to buckle up if safety belts exist.

Street smarts: Pedestrian accidents are the leading cause of preventable death and injury to children ages 4-8. Parents of children who walk to school need to choose the safest route to school and walk it with their child the first day. Children under age 8 should walk to and from school with an adult every day. When crossing streets always stop first, and then look left, right and left again for approaching traffic. Walk on sidewalks and cross at corners or sidewalks.

"Parents need to make injury prevention an important part of a child's life at home and in the community, said Dickson

Follow tips to make the college transition smoothe

mmer sings its swan song, students across America are leaving behind lazy days in the sun, arming themselves with textbooks and backpacks and ending back to school.

linfiect, according to the National Center For Education Statistics in Washington, D.C., an estimated 15 million students will enter U.S. colleges this fall.

For students moving to dormitories or off-campus housing, this can be an especially exciting time. But while you're packing up your Rollerblades and flavorite CDs, don't forget to bring a few items that will help make the transition from high school to college smoother.

Phone Wate: a leading manufacturer of telephone answering machines and confless telephones, offers these suggestions

Electronic Pocket Organizer: You'll need this to track your daily activities and upcoming midlerms. Most brands also include a built-in calculator for those challenging math assignments.

Tesephone Answering Machine: "An answering machine is the ideal study budity because it allows you to concentrate on hitting the books without ever missing a call," said Jim Oblak of PhoneMate. "With the demands of juggling classes, studying and socializing, college students won't want to be without

Portable Computer: Whether it's an English paper or an accounting spreadsheet, a computer is an invaluable instrument for making the grade. Most campasses provide computer services, but nothing beats having your own to use. Dun't fraget to buy software that offers spell checking, a dictionary and Confless Phone: A confless phone gives you the mobility to do two things at unce - like calling home while you're getting ready to leave for your psychogy class. And to save space, look for a cordless phone with an integrated answering machine, such as PhoneMate's Model 2350.

Portable CD Player or Audio Cassette Player: For those breaks between classes, nothing relaxes you better than some good tunes after a hard day of September is the month to purchase children's glasses

The days begin to gradually shorten, families take their last weekend trips to the shore, the stores are full of the Colorama frames, and tortoise and new book bags and lunch boxes. These signs mean only one thing to children everywhere - it's back-to-

Even more important than finding the perfect lunch box design is getting a vision exam before school begins. Poor vision adversely affects a child's performance in school. By making sure your child has a vision exam, you are starting him or her on the right foot for the new school year.

In 1993, nearly 8 million children younger than 13 were wearing glasses. If your child needs corrective eyewear to begin the 1995 school year, he or she is certainly not alone. Fashion frames and innovative eyewear designs ensuring comfort and proper fit are on the market and make eyewear shopping fun for children.

According to Peter Friedfeld of Fisher-Price Eyewear, "Bright, multicolored frames continue to grow in popularity, as well as 'antique' coloring and classic ambers. For example, Fisher-Price Eyewear has a popular selection of fun patterns in the new 'Euro' styles, bold dashes of color in amber colors in our classic styles.'

Aside from adventurous color frames, which both enhance children's looks and are fun to wear, eyewear collections for 1995 are more oval in shape. This new trend is an interesting play on the rounder shapes of the past. Because the shapes are narrow this year, it is easier to center the child's eyes within the frames.

Frames must be comfortable and fit properly. Poorly fitted frames are often painful, distract your child's concentration and reduce the effectiveness of the prescription. "One of the most important aspects of properly fitting a child for eyewear frames is fitting the bridge and temple," said Katheryn Dabbs Schramm, owner of "A Child's View" stores, which cater exclusively to children. "Often, evewear manufacturers do not take children's skull and temple sizes into full consideration when designing frames. I have found that Fischer-Price Eyewear is right on the money when it comes to temple fit.

Montclair Academy starts brand-new music program

This year, on its 30th Anniversary, the Montclair Academy of Dance and Music is starting a program of creative keyboard music

"Creative Music" uses keyboards, computers, synthesizers and tone generators to teach musical knowledge and performance skill. The students learn basic music theory, learn to play simple melodies and soon learn to arrange and compose their own popular, rock and classical

"Creative Music" classes are offered to all ages and skill levels. Electronic keyboard skills provide life-long enjoyment. The academy continues to provide quality training in ballet, tap, jazz and piano.

Director Sharon Baker feels strongly about properly educating the young dancer and has developed programs of Creative Movement for ages 3-5, Pre-Ballet for ages 5-7, Basic Ballet for ages 6-7 and Ballet for ages 8 and Advanced levels of ballet and pointe are available for those students wishing to continue their training. Ballet and pas de deux classes are offered for adults. Keyboard and private piano instruction are given by conservatory trained pianists Rimma Altshul and Laura Berezovsky.

All ballet classes are conducted with live piano accompaniment. Children in creative movement are able to enjoy and investigate the elements and qualities of all dance. Classes in pre-ballet teach children specific exercises designed to help them to develop the beginning physical and mental skills required in later training. Basic Ballet slowly introduces the student to barre and center floor exercises. Students who are eligible, ages 8 and older, are invited to participate in the academy's performing group.

Baker believes actual performances add to the learning experience and are fun. Performance costumes are provided at no cost to the students

The Montclair Academy of Dance and Music celebrates its 30th anniversary by intoducing Creative Keyboard Music using keyboards, computers, synthesizers and tone generators.

Baker received her training at the Ballet Russe and American Ballet Theater schools in New York City. She has directed and taught programs in the Montclair Public Schools and is involved in directing and teaching at area nursery schools. Other experience includes teaching for the Harlem School of the Arts in New York City and the Newark Community Center for the Arts.

Nutley Kumon Centers uses Japanese skills to teach

As a result of attending study sessions at the West Orange and Nutley Kumon Centers for mathematics and reading, the following students have mastered math problems above their school grade level:

Shalen Tejwani, 5-years-old, West Orange; Kelly Hu, 5, West Orange; Victor La, 6, Belleville; Anne Francois, 6, South Orange; Anjali Ramchandani, 7, West Orange; Rajiv Lala, 7, West Orange; Mingtse Ouw, 7, West Orange; Patti Vongsoasup, 7, West Orange; Timothy Wong, 7, South Orange; Roy Saswato, 7, Nutley; Brandon Tsang, 8, West Orange; Nicole Aleles, 8, Nutley; Vincent Nguyen, 8, Nutley; Gary Wong, 8, Nutley; Jessica Aleles, 9, Nutley; Jeremy Tarife, 9, Belleville; Akash Mehta, 9, West Orange; Jennie Vongsoasup, 9, West Orange; Lear Janiv, 9, Maplewood; Christopher Suciu, 10, Maplewood; Sean Curran, 10, Bloomfield; Jared Krick, 10, Nutley; Cindy Kao, 10, Bloomfield, and Pragya Priyadarshini, 12, West Orange

Kumon Method is an individualized study program developed by an educator in Japan. Students of all ages visit the Kumon Center twice each week after school, usually for 30 minutes per session. The result of this small bit of extra study is stronger concentration, greater confidence and an improvement in math

Since its founding in 1954, the Kumon Method has proven so successful that more than two million students are enrolled throughout the world.

The West Orange Kumon Center is located in the St. Cloud Presbyterian Church on Old Indian Road and Ridgeway Avenue Hours are 4-7 p.m. on Fridays and Mondays. The Nutley Kumon Center is located in the Franklin Reformed Church at 45 Hillside Crescent. Hours are 4-7 p.m. on Wednesdays and 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays.

For more information, call 1-800-868-2626 or 314-4058 during class hours.

AAA gives safety tips to kids, parents

Rushing to complete your back to school shopping? Don't forget to review safety with your child before the start of school.

"Although the first weeks of school are among the busiest for parents, they're also the most dangerous for children," said Paul Kielblock, safety manager for the AAA New Jersey Automobile Club in Florham Park. "Now is the time to make sure your children understand school bus and basic traffic safety rules."

AAA's Kielblock recommends parents discuss the following school bus and basic traffic safety rules with their children:

Pay attention to traffic at the bus

Estate Real

RE/MAX targeting Essex towns in venture into more territories

Joe Ventresca, regional director for RE/MAX of New Jersey Inc., recently announced that his real estate organization has targeted West Orange, Newark, Maplewood, Irvington and Bloomfield/Belleville as future sites for RE/MAX franchise offices.

With regional headquarters in Moorestown, RE/MAX of New Jersey Inc. encompasses more than 720 assoc ates in 73 offices across the state. Each office is independently owned and operated, and affiliated with the RE/MAX International network of more than 41,000 sales associates in 2,500 offices in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Eastern and Western Europe, Southern Africa and the Caribbean

"We're working extremely hard to show the residents of Essex County that RE/MAX associates are the most qualified and professional real estate associates in the business, and now we are planning to expand our leading sales force to include such thriving communities as West Orange, Newark, Maplewood, Irvington and Belleville or Eloomfield," Ventresca said.

RE/MAX gives its associates the freedom and incentive to work to their rewards. Founded in Colorado in 1973 by Dave and Gail Liniger, RE/ MAX addresses the wants and needs of the industry's best agenda by providing them with ultimate control over their business and up to 100 percent commissions in exchange for a fixed monthly fee.

This system arose from a general dissatisfaction in the industry by its top producing agents. In traditional agencies, the sales associate is made to "split" his or her commission, often 50/50, with the broker. Top producing agents became disgruntled since they found themselves penalized, not rewarded for their hard work.

Turning away from this system, the Linigers founded RE/MAX on the premise that the associates would receive the "real estate maximums" - thus leading to the acronym "RE/ MAX" - in all aspects of the business. The success of the system speaks fo itself. Internationally, RE/ MAX outperforms its competition 3 to 1, and boasts the highest percentage of million dollar producers, most years of experience with 11 years, most advanced designations, and fullest potential with the highest highest average income at $83,000 per year.

"This is due to the fact that RE/ MAX attracts the industry's top producers. There are no newcomers or part-timers here. Everyone has the same goal of success and possesses the 'above the crowd' mentality. Our associates left competing organizations because they knew what RE/ MAX could offer - freedom, flexibility and control," Ventresca said.

He added, "Now, the real estate organizations have had to adapt to a modified version of the RE/MAX system to keep their best agents. But they will never be able to change their focus, which is on part-time and new agents. RE/MAX only attracts the best, and we are looking for the best producers in Essex County.

RE/MAX of New Jersey Marketing Representative Jim Collins will soon be meeting with prospective broker/ owners for the new franchises. Those interested in purchasing a franchise may contact Collins at (800) 828-7065; and prospective sales associates may also call and receive a free copy of the book "Ask My Why I'm Smiling" by RE/MAX associate Elaine Schreiber.

Insight Into Real Estate

By Vincent J. Carano,

COSMETIC SURGERY

How much should an owner spend to get his property ready for sale? If it's a relatively small amount for improving appearance, fine - but think twice before investing large sums into making extensive improvements prior to putting your house up for sale.

The chances of getting the money back in a correspondingly higher sales price are remote. Depending on the nature of the improvements, the recovery historically runs from 10¢ to 50¢ on every dollar spent.

The exception to the rule is what we call "cosmetic treatment." If the property looks run down, then paint and paper job once over lightly may be prudent. But it's a whole new ball game when you start with extensive repairs and remodeling.

The best solution is to discuss your situation with a local REALTOR. You may find that you can sell the house faster, with more profit and less inconvenience by dropping the price about the same amount you expected to spend on repairs.

Regular checking of front-wheel drive parts may prevent damage

(FWD) is because cars are smaller and

White smaller, lighter FWD wehicles save gasoline, the cost of repairing FWID vehicles is often much higher than for older vehicles with rear-wheel-drive.

The reason is that FWD parts are more complex and costly and are packed into smaller-sized vehicles. It takes more labor to remove and replace a part. These factors create tremendous sticker shock for the average car owner when repairs are needed.

According to the service experts at Moog Automotive, Inc. in St. Louis, Missouri, one of the nation's largest makers of FWD suspension replacement parts, periodic inspection of parts underneath the front of your car could prevent unnecessary damage and hundreds of dollars in repair

A good example of preventive maintenance involves a part that delivers power from the transmission to the from wheels. It's called a constant velocity (CV) joint. It allows power to be transmitted to the front wheels smoothly as the wheels are steered into a turn or move up and down to follow the road surface.

Inside the CV joint are bearings and component parts, which are built to precise tolerances and lubricated with a special These parts are protected by a plastic or rubber cover that looks like the a CV boot.

The CV boot is critical in making sure that contaminants such as water, dirt, grit and salt don't get into the bearings. If that happens, the joint could be damaged in just a few hours of driving. The boot itself is inexpensive, but replacing a CV joint can cost hundreds of dollars.

The bottom line on preventing premature wear or damage to expensive CV joints is to make sure that the boot isn't torn or leaking. If you notice a tear or leak take care of it immediately. It costs far less than replacing all or part of a CV joint, so Graup's chief engineer for track have the boot inspected every time your car is taken in for service.

If the CV joint becomes worn or damaged, it has to be replaced. According to service experts at Moog four sure signs

New rack and pinion replacement units are very expensive, but a number of companies such as Moog Automotive offer a mited lifetime warranty on remanufac tured units for as long as you own your vehicle. Remanufactured units are tested and rebuilt to exact specificatio

These remanufactured racks also use a stainless-steel sleeve to repair the worm aluminum surface surrounding the power steering control valve. This prevents recur-rence of the most common cause of failure-leaking.

If you have a rack replaced, always make sure your technician inspects for worn tie rod ends. This is a part linking the steering gear and the front wheels. If it is worn, it can cause premature tire wear, handling and alignment problems.

Many cooling systems require the care of a NARSA specialist

What's the best advice for a consumer ith an automobile cooling system problem? See a specialist.

Since this suggestion comes from the National Automotive Radiator Service Association, an organization representing 1,400 specialists through the United States, Canada, and 22 other countries, the perspective is admittedly biased.

However, the point is no less valid.

"The use of new, lighterweight materials in auto construction, proliferation of automotive electronics, and the interrela tion of underhood systems combine to offer a formidable challenge when it come time for automotive service and repair, says Mike Hribar, NARSA president.

"That is why our Association's emphasis is on getting information and train-ing to the industry's technicians."

A cooling system operating at optimum riciency is crucial with the smaller, higher-revving, hotter-running engines in

"Motorists could reduce repair costs by taking some relatively simple and inexpensive preventative measures, like maintaining the proper fill of fresh coolant and replacing worn hoses and belts," notes Simon Oulouhojian, chairman of NARSA's Technical Committee. "Unfortunately, the cooling system is frequently allowed to deteriorate until it fails, often leaving the motorist stuck in the road."

"When the system does fail, people often begin shopping for a new radiator, thinking that this will correct the problem, and that can be a mistake," according to Bob Duquet, NARSA national chairman. "Proper diagnosis by a trained technician may reveal a malfunctioning water pump or thermostat, a problem with the emission control system, a pinhole leak, belt slippage or a variety of other conditions that can produce overheating. Many such problems can be corrected without buying a new radiator.'

Even when radiator failure is the problem, a cooling system specialist can offer the comsumer some options, Duquet

"On many newer vehicles, manufacturers have replaced the traditional copper/brass radiator with units constructed of aluminum and plastic. Some consumers have the mistaken impression that there are throw-away units, but a properly equipped specialty shop can offer repairs at at substanial savings to the consumer over the cost of a new replacement. Even when the radiator is too extensively damaged to make repair feasible, the specialty shop can offer the option of a recore-reusing the ex isting tanks with a new core-which can save the consumer some money.'

In times past, radiator repairs could often be handled with a spool of solder and a soldering iron, but the cooling system service shop of today must be equipped with special fixtures to facilitate aluminum/plastic repairs, welding gear that can be used with light gauge metals, and a wide range of equipment and supplies to facili-tate repairs on the various metal alloys and plastic compounds found in today's ple probably don't realize that the insurance decisions they make at the rental counter could end up costing them thousands of dollars. According to the National Association of Independent Insurers, NAII, anyone renting a car should be thoroughly aware of who is responsible for paying the damages if they are involved in an accident.

Be careful when making choices when choosing rental insurance

"Unfortunately, a major accident with serious injuries can result in thousands of dollars in medical and repair expenses and legal bills," said Lowell R. Beck, NAII president. "For this reason, it's imperative to know what kind of insurance coverage you have or don't have when renting a car," he said.

If you get in an accident, you could face expenses for damage done to the rental car and for injuring someone else or damaging their property. There are several possible sources of payment for these expenses, including: the renter's own personal automobile insurance policy; the policy of the renter's employer, if the rental is for business purposes; the "collision damage waiver" or "loss damage waiver" that is often sold by the rental company; and coverage provided by the issuer of the renter's credit card, if the rental is charged to the card.

Rental agreements can vary by rental company and by state. Make sure you know what the agreement says in relation to who pays for collision damage and liability losses. Insist that the salesperson explain this to you in detail.

Rental companies have expanded the renter's responsibility for damage to the car in recent years. The rental agreement typically holds the renter responsible up to the full retail value of the car - not simply the actual car val-- for any type of damage, regardless of fault, except for damage resulting from natural causes or accidental fires. You can also be held responsible for all incidental charges related to an accident, administrative fees, and "loss of use," meaning you reimburse the company for the income it would have received if the car had been available to rent. And the rental company may require immedithe spot for any accident related damage and expenses.

In addition, within the past two years, car rental companies in at least two-dozen states have begun using contracts that make the renter primarily responsible for any injuries or property damage they cause in an accident. This means that the renter's own insurance or the renter's personal assets could be tapped first to cover any liability losses. Even if the rental company retains primary liability, the company is ordinarily required to pay only up to a state-imposed limit, usually around $30,000 per accident. That limit could easily be exceeded in an accident with serious injuries, which could put your personal assets at

All this makes it critical that you know whether your personal auto policy covers rental cars usually called "nonowned auto" coverage, and to what extent. At least 40 percent of U.S. auto insurers offer coverage of rental cars for personal use, though usually only for rentals in the U.S. and Canada. The coverage may be limited in some ways; your policy may not cover administrative fees and "loss of use" charges, for example, How frequently you rent is also an issue your personal policy may not cover you if you rent regularly. Check your policy and consult your agent or

Very often, rental companies will, for a fee, waive their rights to seek reimbursement from you for collision or other damage. This is called a "collision damage waiver" or "loss damage waiver," and it is typically expensive, compared to other forms of coverage. Rental companies may also offer supplementary liability insurance and personal accident insurance. Be aware, however, that under the terms of all these forms of rental company insurance, you're not covered if you violate the terms of the rental agreement - if, for example, you carry persons or property for hire, drive on an unpaved road or use the car for towing or pushing. Check your personal auto policy to see how it might apply in these circumstances.

Undo the damage of your summer driving

Fall is the perfect time to undo the damage done by summer driving and to get ready for the rigors of winter driving ahead. So it should come as no surprise that next month is National Car Care Month.

But given the complexity of today's vehicles, many motorists, including former do-it-yourselfers, are looking for professional technicians as "tune-ups" have become "engine performance diagnoses" and on-board computer systems, electronic climate control, anti-lock brakes, digital dash boards, and other advanced systems grow popular.

The following tips from the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence should make finding a qualified automotive technician

ASK a number of friends or business associates if they can recommend someone; a consensus is usually more reliable than counting solely on one person's judgement.

BE sure to call the local Better Business BUreau or consumer organization and inquire about the reputation of the place of business in question. Look for a relatively neat, wellorganized facility with up-to-date equipment and polite service personnel willing to take the time to discuss your repairs. Policies concerning diagnostic fees, labor rates, guarantees, and other policies should be

CHECK around for an auto technician certified by the non-profit National Institute of Automotive Service Excellence. ASE certifies automotive technicians by means of nationally administered tests. Technicians voluntarily take these compentency exams in from one to eight automotive specialties, such as Engine Repair or Brakes. There are also exams for medium/heavy truck and collision repair technicians, engine machinists, and parts specialists.

Those who pass and fulfill the twoyear work experience requirement are awarded ASE credentials attesting their competency. The certified technicians are then eligible to wear the blue and white ASE shoulder insigna.

Not only are these credentials meaningful to the technician, they are reassuring to his employer, and important toyu. They are the extra assurance that your technician knows his or her stuff. And, all ASE-certified technicians must recertify every five years in order to remain current with technology and to stay in the program.

Currently, there are about 375,000 ASE-certified technicians across the country. Shops that employ these certified technicians often display the blue and white ASE outdoor sign and post their technicians' credentials in the customer service area.

Officials with the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence remind motorists that their involve ment is important, too. Among ASE's recommendations:

Read your owner's manual. Become familiar with the basic components and systems.

NEPMA offers new brochure

An all-too-common scenario among vehicle owners: your faithful car is making noises and your mechanic says major engine work soon will be needed. Time for a new car or a like-new engine?

The first solution carries an average $20,000+ price tag; the other about one tenth of that.

To provide needed information on this subject, an easy-to-understand brochure now is offered by National Engine Parts Manufacturers Associatio, NEPMA. The illustrated brochure details the many benefits of remanufacturered engines.

According to W.E. "Bill" Herring, Executive Director for NEPMA, motorists are often not aware of the option of having their engine rebuilt or replaced with an overhauled unit. "It's not uncommon for today's cars to reach 100-140,000 miles or more. At that point major engine work may be needed, while the rest of the car is in excellent condition. Now, during National Car Care Month," He explains, "we emphasize the importance of the car owner understanding all his options.'

The new NEPMA brochure discusses in detail the costs of having an engine overhauled, including parts, labor and sales tax considerations. It then contrasts those costs with average new car costs, factoring in finance charges and sales tax, and even lease purchase and insurance

Finally, the brochure includes a diagram of a typlical engine and lists the parts that are usually new or remachined during overhaul, like piston rings, bearings, oil pumps, valves and camshafts. And it also spells out the related parts that are usually replaced with major engine work, such as spark plugs, filters and water pumps.

"This brochure is an important tool for the motorist to use whenfaced with major engine repair," explains Herring. "We think the car owner should have the most complete information possible when faced with a major automotive expense. Very often the owner is completely satisfied with his or her current car. An investment of perhaps 10% of the cost of a new car can restore the car's performance tolike-new condition, while leaving the rest of the motorist's resources available for other purchases.'

"Furthermore," continues Herring, "the manufacturers of replacement engine parts often design improvements into their products sothat a remanufacturered engine can actually perform better thannew. So installers can offer a valuable warranty that will help mote rists choose to repair rather than replace their car.'

Individual copies of this brochure are available free upon request. Larger quantities are available at a nominal cost. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Car Care Council, Dept. NEPMA, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.

Tax rewards for charity

If you donate time, cash and/or property to charity at any time during the year, you must keep proper records in order to take advantage of the tax benefits. The New Jersey Society of Certified Public Accountant offers a free brochure entitled "Good News For Good Samaritans," a guide to deducting charitable contributions according to the latest tax law

To receive a free copy, send a selfaddressed stamped envelope to Good Samaritans, NJSCPA, 425 Eagle Rock Ave., Roseland, 07068-1723.
