Spanning generations

Photos By Joe Long

The Nov. 5 Veterans Parade in Belleville featured several organizations — with young and old members that spanned generations — which paid homage to our nation's war heroes. Above, Tin Can Sailors march proudly during Belleville Veterans Day Parade. They were joined by, below, Daisy Troop 36 members, who displayed their banner during the parade.

Cerebral Palsy Center is ready to celebrate 50th anniversary

The Cerebral Palsy Center in Belleville will initiate a year-long celebration of its 50th anniversary with a series of programs and activities.

The Cerebral Palsy Center was founded in 1946 by parents of children with Cerebral Palsy. The initial program was housed in the Crippled Children's Hospital in Newark, and later moved to the Summer Avenue School in Newark.

The center initiated a building campaign in the 1950s that raised the funds which constructed the facility at 7 Sanford Ave., Belleville, in 1956. There have been three additions to the building and the development of residential programs which began in 1986.

During 1995, the center served 557 infants to adults with Cerebral Palsy and other physical and developmental disabilities.

The celebrations began Nov. 14 with the opening of the time capsule by students and the annual meeting. The contents of the capsule, which was implanted in the cornerstone in 1956, will be on display throughout the service year. A new time capsule will be placed in the cornerstone at the end of the anniversary year.

The annual meeting was attended by the center's membership, parents, individuals who have received services at the center, employees, donors, volunteers, representatives from civic groups and government offices who have supported the agency.

Dr. David Greifinger, the center's medical director, was recognized for 10 years of service. He spoke on "Medical Managed Care for Individuals with Disabilities." The center's Performing Arts Group and participants of the Students Music Program performed musical selections.

In addition to Tours of the Center, the evening included the dedication of the Basement Renovation recently completed with the assistance of Community Block Grant Funds.

Individuals are invited to visit the center throughout the celebration year and to request the Calendar of Events and Commemorative Journal by calling the center at 751-0200.

Council tackles heavy agenda

By Paul O'Keefe
Staff Writer

Belleville Township Council took up a sweeping agenda during its Nov. 9 meeting, voting to phase out rent control, rezone the Macy's warehouse to enable commercial development, approve bonds for safety lights at three schools, and discuss several other township issues.

"When I was growing up, there was the Charms factory, General Motors and Edison Battery, but they are gone and not coming back," Mayor James Messina said of the Macy's land.

The rezoning enables the developer to begin planning a 146,000 square-foot mall at Franklin Street and Maioran Place.

Part of the mall will be in Bloomfield, whose planning board will take up the issue later this month.

Attorney Ralph Salerno and Planner Peter Steck attended the meeting to answer citizen and council questions about the rezoning.

Of the 14.4 acres the site occupies, 10.6 are in Bloomfield. Final plans for how much of the taxable structure will lie in Belleville have not been produced yet. Most will likely be in Bloomfield.

The change from an industrial zoning to commercial reflects a statewide trend in the wake of industrial exodus from New Jersey.

Two residences also will be affected by the change, but will no longer be located in an industrial zone.

Former Commissioner Vincent Frantantoni asked that the zoning change be done through the Zoning Board, and pointed to the harm done small businesses by malls.

The trend toward commercial development is area-wide, however, with malls planned for the ADP land in Clifton and River Road in Nutley.

The development of the Macy's land was inconsistent with the current master plan, but Salerno noted that the plan will be revised soon and asked for the cooperation of the council to enable a smooth transition.

Bonds were approved after a public hearing for the purchase of blinking safety lights at Schools 8, 5 and 3.

The lights were a request of parents who lobbied the Board of Education and council since January.

"I want to thank you for putting this ordinance on," said Phyllis Frantantoni, who has done most of the public lobbying.

"I am not usually in favor of bonding, but this is something important for the kids," she added.

Deputy Mayor Tom Spillane said he had observed traffic at School 8 earlier in the week, and came away concerned about speeders on Union Avenue during school hours.

Spillane suggested speed traps by police after he observed a vehicle travelling so fast through the school zone that he could not record the license.

Township Manager Steve Cuccio reported that the hockey rink sought by Councilman Gerald Digori will cost, at most, $20,810.

Cuccio will attempt to set up a meeting between the recreation committee and board to discuss sharing costs for the rink.

Cuccio also reported that the new fire engine at the Silver Lake Firehouse had been badly damaged after a vehicle rear-ended it.

The truck will be transported to Florida for factory repairs.

Cuccio also noted a request from Fire Chief Robert Caruso for public forums to answer recent criticism of 911 ambulance service.

Pauls finds a new Oz in Belleville

By Douglas M. Muro
Staff Writer

"There's no place like Belleville, there's no place like Belleville," said Carol Pauls.

Well, Pauls did not say those exact words, but this Kansas native has found a new Oz.

"My husband and I have lived in Belleville for more than a year," Pauls said. "At first it was a culture shock. It was different than what I expected. People are people no matter where you go, but there are more opportunities here."

"It is hard to get a feel for Belleville," she continued. "It is neat to see how the community comes together. There are many generations of families here. You get a real sense about the past."

Pauls is in the second year of her doctorate program at Seton Hall University. She wants to pursue a career in clinical psychology. "I think I would like to be a child therapist," she said.

Being raised in a religious-oriented family helped Pauls nurture a Christian philosophy she now espouses.

"I struggled a long time to figure out why I was put on this earth," she said. "I believe God gives us gifts, and God gave me the gift to work with people. There are a lot of sad, hurting people, and I believe one person can make a difference. I can't save the world, but I can promote change."

Pauls continued. "So many changes are happening. I have to wait and see what will be practical for me."

Pauls is dedicated to sending the right message to young children who cannot receive support in their homes.

After enrolling in a developmental psychology course at Emporia State University, Pauls "fell in love" with psychology. It was then that she decided why she was here.

"Many people have experiences that lead them to psychology. That was mine. I want to work with inner-city children. We need to work with kids from birth to five. This is an essential period of development. We have to prevent the more serious problems that can occur later on in life," she said.

"Many children experience unpredictable violence and as a result they never feel secure. Security is an imperative part of childhood, parents must provide this," she added.

With two sisters and a brother, Pauls appreciates the solace one can find in familial life. Her father was an interior carpenter and her mother worked in day-care.

"I come from a town of 3,000 people," Pauls said. "My husband and I visited Kansas last Christmas. It made us miss what we had there, but I like the difference here. I am amazed by the tradition of family in Belleville, and there is great Italian food in this area."

Carol Pauls

Riverside Community Church on Union Avenue, in Nutley, is another "blessing" Pauls has discovered during her days in Essex County.

"We had a hard time finding churches when we first moved here. We were excited when we found Riverside. It is our family in New Jersey."

Pauls and her husband, Mark, teach Sunday school and are part of the worship team at Riverside Church.

"We are as active as we can be in the church," said Pauls. "We are not able to participate as much as we'd like to. Riverside Church has so much potential to meet people's needs. My mother and father made Christianity important in raising us. I get the same message from Riverside Church. Churches should be alive, to show that God is reaching out to people."

Parenthood is something Pauls wants to experience, but not in the near future. "Sacrifices have to be made and right now I want to finish school and concentrate on my work."

Pauls devotes some of her time to Beth Israel, where she works in outpatient therapy.

"My husband is very supportive of my schedule, I couldn't do it without him."

"I encourage full time parenting for those who can afford it."

Sometimes Pauls longs for her small home town, but at least New Jersey has "Pizza Hut."

"Pizza Hut started in Wichita, Kansas," Pauls said. "It is nice to think about home. I will get through the growing pains, but home will always be Kansas."

Kansas' loss is Belleville's gain.

Buccino publishes essays on local life

Local writer Anthony Buccino has published his essays about life in Belleville, Nutley and Bloomfield in his new book, "Sister Dressed Me Funny." This is Buccino's second book about life in the tri-town area.

The book has 15 all-too-true stories about growing up in the 1950s, 1960s 1970s and today. Many of his selected essays appeared in Womall Community Newspapers in the past 21 years following his self-introduction to Independent Press editor Russell Roemmle in 1974.

"Russell was always looking for young kids who wanted to write, and that was me," Buccino said. "So I wrote rock 'n' roll reviews and local play reviews. Then Russell asked me to write more things, about my generation. That was when a column was born. We called it 'Talking 'Bout My Generation.' I had fun because Russell never imposed limits on me, he always encouraged me."

Eleven of the essays were published by Roemmle-edited newspapers. Buccino said one essay, "The Abie Statement" pre-dates his association with Roemmle. Three other essays, "Grandma's House in The Country," "Cat Lick School Flash-back" and "Dressed By Nams," Buccino said, "were not quite ready for publication."

Readers of this quirky collection will cut close to the edge through humility, irony and humor. Here, in unapologetic style, Buccino details fumbling with the school tie, catholic school nuns, and school bus heroics.

The summers of 1960s and the children who lived them along the pipeline near where Buccino's grandmother had her farm led a lifestyle much different from today. He wistfully captures the youthful innocence of living in Grandma's house in the country, which was Glass Avenue in Belleville. In those days, he and the other children watched the Fourth of July fireworks from the dead-end street. They were never aware the display could be seen in person at the bog. On hot summer nights, they eagerly awaited Tony the Ice Cream Man and his truck with the horn that played "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

"Sister Dressed Me Funny" proceeds chronologically from elementary school, through junior high school, to high school and to the work-a-day life. Buccino, then in his 20s, ventured to described his idea of the perfect job. He explains why working in a shoe store in Newark in 1972 was not the perfect job. But, it's all much easier to hear in the author's voice. Even in some of these early-authored essays from the old Independent Press, Buccino's sense of irony and subtlety is obvious.

Buccino's remembrances of attending what was then called Holy Family School in Nutley brings a new perspective to the credo he often heard there, "May God help you!" The credo, he said, usually followed an errant student about to touch his toes, and proceeded the wisp of a widdle paddle. "And whimpering of wounded pride," he added.

"Sister Dressed Me Funny" closed in the recent past after the author visits Spatola's funeral parlor. Memories of many long-lost relatives once laid-out there prod his search for his family history. Buccino skillfully takes a daily ritual, such as eating a turkey sandwich, and makes it seem logical that he should see before him his family at a holiday dinner from long ago.

There, at his aunt's house in Bloomfield, he says he observed his older sister and older cousins. "We often catch them talking about Frankie Avalon or Tony Orlando or the sudden popularity of an English group called the Beatles," Buccino said.

Through his search, Buccino discovers his Italian-American roots, which seemed dormant for many years of his life. "I never thought of myself as being Italian-American when I was growing up," he said. "All the old people I knew spoke Italian, so I just figured when I got old, I too would speak Italian. It was that simple to me, then."

Buccino uncovers boxes of family photos of long-lost relatives. Among the discoveries is the proof of the title — that haunting picture of himself in that dress his sister made him wear.

In addition to writing and editing a monthly trade magazine, Buccino is familiar to Essex County residents where his columns have appeared in local newspapers since 1972. He has published articles in Belleville Post, Nutley Journal, Independent Press, Glen Ridge Paper, the Essex Journal, the Herald News and New Jersey Monthly magazine.

The author, who attended Montclair State University, also published "A Father's Place — An Eclectic Collection" in 1991. The title essay portrays the bittersweet relationship between a father and a son. Other essays about life in Belleville, Nutley and Bloomfield explored his fondness for Brookdale soda; inheriting his father's overalls and hammer collection; a high school marching band reunion; too much coffee; his pets — a Labrador Retriever and an Easter bunny; plus fishing with his two-year-old daughter and immortality.

"Sister Dressed Me Funny," is $18.95, including shipping. Copies of "A Father's Place — An Eclectic Collection" are an additional $10 including shipping.

Make a check or money order payable to A. Buccino and mail to Cherry Blossom Press, P.O. Box, 110252, Nutley, N.J., 07110. Include return address and phone number. Allow 6-8 weeks for delivery.

About 150 people witnessed Law Enforcement Officers receive honors for heroic acts as well as for community service.

Church to collect food for Red Cross

"The Miracles," the Franklin Reformed Church's youth group, will collect food for the Nutley Red Cross food pantry on Sunday from 12-6 p.m. in the church's Community House. Activities, games and crafts will be presented throughout the day to raise awareness of hunger and poverty in the United States and internationally.

This will be the fourth year "The Miracles" have raised food for the Red Cross. The past three collections have provided over 3,500 pounds of food. This year's goal has been set at 1,800 pounds.

Activities will include a life-size "revised" Monopoly game, short dramas and readings, a performance by "Doojam," the creation of a hunger awareness banner, and much more. The Community House is located at 45 Hillside Crescent, in Nutley.

Residents deserve action now

Residents of Cortlandt Street were asking questions last week. They deserve answers.

Not long ago, the Zoning Board was caught flatfooted when these Valley residents came to ask how the use of an open air concrete crusher on a Cortlandt Street property was approved without the residents across the street being notified of hearings.

These citizens united in an admirable protest against a deal that smelled.

The company that was going to build this so-called recycling plant turned out to have the identical street address as the chairman of the Belleville Republican Organization.

The Zoning Board reversed itself, but not before heaps of asphalt were left on the lot.

Despite efforts by the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection and the township, the asphalt remains. What gives?

Citizens caught a contractor spreading the asphalt on the lot, and part of Mill Street was damaged when the heavy equipment tried to dash across the street into another lot.

Still, the asphalt remains piled, an eyesore to residents who have endured too much already.

We urge the township administration to take action immediately to solve this mess. Dumping on Belleville is nothing to wink at.

The police issued tickets in the case of the heavy equipment damaging the street, and state officials have been brought in to view the problem, but this offense has continued far too long.

Take action to clean Cortlandt Street. These good citizens deserve that every possible effort on their behalf be made by the township. Now, not someday.

More can be done

The recently approved ordinance to control adult entertainment is to be praised, although something more may be needed nonetheless.

Several small sweet shops openly sell pornographic movies and magazines. One is located across from the Middle School.

These wares are covered, of course, to protect young eyes from perusing the photographs. The titles are equally raunchy, however, and something needs to be done to curtail this.

Is wording an ordinance to curtail the sale of pornography in stores really that difficult? If modern interpretations of the Constitution are so far in left field that communities cannot regulate this kind of abuse, we are in deep trouble as a country.

Perhaps the various community groups, the pride of Belleville for their active participation in local debates, could bring pressure to bear on these establishments. In the meantime, parents should survey stores and make sure they approve of children buying gum there.

Accountability at last

Can it really be true that the Board of Chosen Freeholders, long mused to be the chosen freeloaders, are finally buckling down and becoming more fiscally responsible?

While more oversight was expected from the Democrat-dominated board was expected after the election of Republican Jim Treffinger as county executive, the board, under the leadership of President Joseph DiVincenzo, has taken some real action to get a handle on the county's business.

The most recent steps were made during its Nov. 9 meeting in Orange, when DiVincenzo called for more accountability of the county's two autonomous agencies, the Essex County Improvement Authority and the Essex County Utilities Authority.

Both authorities have enjoyed relatively little scrutiny by the county government, although both are responsible for placing a heavy amount of debt on the county through their bonding practices. This debt is partially responsible for the $91 million mortgage the county has placed on its future and from which the executive and freeholders are now trying to eliminate.

DiVincenzo requested the authorities provide members of the freeholder board with 1994 and 1995 records of fees and expenses paid to third parties, such as attorneys, bond counsels, auditors and financial advisors, as well as the operating budgets for those years. The president also requested that copies of minutes from past meetings be sent to members of the freeholder board.

With this information, DiVincenzo said the freeholders will be able to provide oversight to the authorities and make suggestions for cost savings, something the freeholders have done with their own budget, making cuts totalling $1.3 million by reducing the number of aides each freeholder can employ and reducing the amount of money the aides can earn.

This new attitude of fiscal responsibility will hopefully spread to the Improvement Authority and Utilities Authority, especially since the majority of both authorities' boards of commissioners have just been appointed by the county executive.

Mazucca on the money with newsletter lies

Bel View

By Paul O'Keefe
Staff Writer

Board of Education President Ralph Mazucca was right on target about the 2nd Ward newsletter mailed out by Joe Scaperrotta.

Scaperrotta, Tom Fuscaldo and Angie Paserchia characterized themselves in the newsletter as having achieved every single bit of progress in Belleville during the last year. They stole credit from others who had actually done the work, but truth has never burdened these three.

This writer knows well the telltale reaction from Scaperrotta and his friends when the truth is published about them.

They resort to name-calling and passing untruths, as they did to Tom Spillane, Victor Canning, this newspaper and me.

When this newspaper published a series in 1994 outlining the number of merchants seeking to recover money from Richard Yanuzzi, Scaperrotta's close friend and political mentor, their immediate response was to file a false harassment charge against me.

Yanuzzi falsely alleged I made an anti-Italian slur to him outside a council meeting.

He dropped the charge, of course, seeking as he did merely to plant doubt in local minds.

Our increased newspaper circulation proves the tactic did not work. Citizens should look for a similar next morning after splashing his face with water. That is not a man sitting around.

Mazucca has been receptive to the ideas of fellow board trustees when it comes to cutting spending. I have watched him forge an amiable working atmosphere on the board that has paid dividends in several cost-cutting moves.

Mazucca listens to every trustee with respect, and does not deserve the mud slung by Scaperrotta. Belleville is lucky to have him as board president.

As for Mazucca's observation about unscrupulous politicians, he did not name names in his letter, but Scaperrotta took it to mean himself and the Belleville "Republican" Organization.

Scaperrotta's newsletter used bulk permit 4532 from Newark. That permit is in the name of Yanuzzi, chairman of this dubious political front.

Yanuzzi no longer comes to Board of Education or council meetings. His presence was, I guess, too embarrassing for Paserchia, Scaperrotta and Fuscaldo. Angie has a little trouble figuring out which way she is supposed to vote without Yanuzzi waving in the audience, but sacrifices must be made to protect the illusion of integrity.

The Nov. 9 council meeting proves Mazucca is not a man who "sits on his butt." He has been an excellent board president who works hard. He was one of the contract negotiators with the teachers union, and a few nights went without sleep during bargaining sessions.

He would go straight to work the my point. Paserchia voted with reservations to approve the introduction of an ordinance to change the zoning of the Macy's warehouse. She had doubts because this was the first time she had heard of the project.

It was discussed in full at the previous work session with Angie present. Articles have been written about it in the daily newspaper and both Belleville weeklies.

Better get Richard back in his seat, Angie, you need the help.

The fact is that Yanuzzi runs Scaperrotta, Paserchia and Fuscaldo. The failure of these three politicians to distance themselves from Yanuzzi in light of the numerous documented problems with that man's ethics condemns their effort to refute Mazucca.

Before Scaperrotta steals the thunder from the achievements of others, he should list his real accomplishments. Like getting a county job for Paserchia, and another state appointment for her via Sen. John Scott, another disappointing politician.

This is the same Angie who campaigned saying she was retired and not looking for any jobs paid by the taxpayers.

These three are accomplished in one area alone: lying to voters about their accomplishments and the reputations of opponents.

Tune into the tube and you'll be tuned out

Reporter's Notebook

By Jim Van Blarcom
Staff Writer

Why has television become a major influence in shaping the world in which we live?

Not to expand on the clutter of reports and opinion related to the "not guilty" verdict in the O.J. Simpson trial, but history has been made in the coverage of the decision.

Whereas it is estimated that almost 98 percent of U.S. households have at least one television set, one can only imagine how many of those sets were "tuned in" to the jury's decision and subsequent aftermath of the trial of the century.

Approximations by various polling organizations suggest the number to be in the millions.

Then there are the televisions that were seen on the television airing the verdict in department stores, college campuses and local bars.

Even Times Square, with its video screen, looked like a large living room.

When I p.m. arrived on the first Tuesday in October, the affirmation that television is king could not be disputed. People across the globe stopped their lives in progress to watch the end of the longest televised trial.

People left their roles as workers, students, parents and children to become loyal television viewers.

It is not unlike what most people do every night of their lives.

Since the first broadcasted presidential election debate between Nixon and Kennedy, television has shaped many of our thoughts and opinions. It is as some say "the great unifying tool" that allows for more of a tribal society.

Others, such as Marshall McCluhan, might argue that it's the "media that is the message."

This is true because people will not only remember the Simpson verdict but where they were when they first saw the video.

The success of television is due to its assault on the perceptions. It incorporates the senses of sight and hearing, allowing for greater participation with less effort than any other medium. In a nutshell, it makes us lazy and less imaginative.

Keep in mind that television is also fallible. It cannot cover everything from every conceivable angle, either visually or analytically.

That is not to say that all television should be condemned. It can be an effective educational tool. But the type of education is purely subjective.

Television must be seen for what it is — events and insights that are manipulated by multiple broadcasters to make money. Ignoring that, many of us frequently watch television to pass the time. Sometimes it's our companion when we're alone. Our continual return to television is more than a hobby, it is an addiction.

After all, what does television have to do with reality? Some might argue its focus is reality because it allows for a larger "consciousness" of the world.

Another argument is that maybe it's television that gets in the way of reality. It prevents and distracts viewers from actually experiencing life.

Ultimately, it is the individual who must decide if this is true. But somehow centuries of mankind lived without the influence of television and were able to perceive reality quite correctly.

The majority today has lost interest in, or find mundane, the everyday meetings, workshops and hobby groups that focus on who we are and where we are going.

Ask yourself why. These were the things that were "life" to our forefathers.

There are few people who make the time and effort to participate in these activities. Those who do are vocal because they must. They're found at town council meetings, board of education meetings, various church functions and receptions. They should be held in the highest of esteem for saying "no" to artificialness and "yes" to life.

The way technology is advancing, children in the 21st century might never know what it is to depend on television for information. At the moment, many adults would be incomplete without watching NBC's "Must See TV." Television must be seen as a tool, not as a time filler. It has never stopped a war, fed hungry mouths or hugged a love one. Let us remember these are things we can do instead of watching the tube.

'The taxpayer's friend'

To the editor:

I am very sad as I write the word "editor," as I had always had Russell Roemmele in mind when I wrote many other times. God rest his soul.

We will all miss the great editor of four weekly newspapers in Bloomfield, Nutley, Glen Ridge and Belleville. He was the taxpayer's friend, a sincere man who crusaded against possible discrepancies and corruption in government.

He always published my letters to the editor. I was happy and thankful for that.

I pray that God will be merciful and lead him to heaven. I extend my sympathy and condolences to his family.

Firing back

To the editor:

It has been my practice not to comment on much of the political rhetoric which is either spoken at town meetings or printed in local newspapers. However, when one sees or hears a consistent barrage of lies, misinformation, and unjustified criticisms directed toward people or local government agencies doing their level best to keep Nutley the wonderful community it is, exceptions must be made.

First, I will address Mr. John Buttacavoli's shocking statement regarding Nutley police officers. "These cops do not put their lives on the line."

On the morning of June 21, 1994 several Nutley officers were looking forward to seeing their children graduate from school later in the day. Suddenly our thoughts were interrupted by a gunman who began shooting at us. This gunman was later identified as mass murderer Darnell Collins, who killed nine people.

I will never forget how this gunman looked directly at us and continued firing his gun. The quick action of the Nutley officers on the scene saved the lives of many people, especially one family on Walnut Street where he attempted to break the door of their home down when Nutley police officers decided to put themselves in his direct line of fire to draw him away from that home.

Last year several Nutley officers were involved in the shooting of a gunman who took a Nutley resident hostage after shooting her. Again, the quick action of Nutley police officers, who were shot at several times, saved the life of the hostage and others.

How in the world does Buttacavoli conclude that Nutley officers do not put their lives on the line? Even if he argues that these incidents are isolated, what about when we respond to domestic violence complaints and we become the targets of the combatants in these homes. Some officers are punched, thrown down stairs, hit with weapons, etc. Because of our excellent training provided by the police department since Chief DeLitta took office many of us are not seriously injured or killed.

Buttacavoli's statements are a slap in the face to every Nutley officer. He owes all of us an apology.

Second, I do not make it a practice to comment of criticisms leveled at the police chief. But, again, in this instance I cannot stay silent.

In your article a citizen is quoted as saying that the chief sits in his chair in his office all day.

Let me share with you what this chief does, day and night. Last week he spent the day with me setting up plans to establish cost-effective, school-based programs designed to create positive police-student relations which will equate into channeling children's energies into positive contributions to the township. We met with school officials not in the chief's office but at the schools. A few weeks before these meetings the chief was on patrol during the night, something he does very often. Chief DeLitta is not a nine-to-five manager. He is a 24-hour manager who by the way responds to many dangerous calls with his men. This citizen's statements are unwarranted.

In reference to Nutley as a whole, I can share with you first hand that as a direct result of the Nutley Police Department's aggressive policing policies and proactive policing methodologies, coupled with the best educators, administrators, and teachers American has to offer any school system, we have been able to forge a partnership which has kept property values up, taxes stabilized in comparison to other communities and our streets and parks safe from becoming drug dens, shooting galleries, and havens for criminal elements who wreak havoc in communities around us.

Every citizen has the right to free speech and I have always said that if it wasn't for America's free press our nation would cease to exist. But when the free press continues to promote division and negativism by constantly printing the views and opinions of people who have self-serving political agendas instead of what is in the best interest of the community, some of us who have the facts must speak out.

Peanut butter is a way of life for reporter

Muro's Musings

By Douglas M. Muro
Staff Writer

Think of the countless things one can place it on — bread, crackers, apples, celery and much, much more.

Peanut butter is something most people appreciate throughout their lives. So few can abandon the greatest of all nuts.

Four words illustrate the colossal impact peanut butter has had on this planet — Reese's Peanut Butter Cups!

Is there anything that compares to those chocolate covered, circular beauties from heaven above. The pleasure of biting into a peanut butter cup cannot be described.

I have a friend named Ken, whom I've mentioned in other columns, and this freak of nature claims he does not like the combination of chocolate and peanut butter. What kind of twisted human being are we dealing with? How can he survive without that which gives us a reason to endure?

Ken does, however, love peanut butter and jelly, but there is no forgiving his insane stance on God's perfect combination.

Chocolate and peanut butter have a symbiotic relationship — one depends on the other.

One must then believe that Ken is an alien from a planet where peanut butter is worshipped in its natural state. A place where 7-foot men cover themselves in lettuce, with linguini hair and no thumbs. A place where the natives sing Engelbert Humperdinck songs, but wish they were singing melodies by Paul Anka. A land so far removed from our world that they spell Xerox with a "z" and don't believe in velcro.

Back on earth we honor the man, the myth, the legend who has made the most holy of consecrations possible, George Washington Carver. The man behind the nut. The man who paved the way for Planter's "Mr. Peanut." The man who deserves to spend eternity surrounded by women serving him peanut butter cups.

For those of you who claim to be peanut butter supporters, yet do not eat it straight from the jar or on bread without the jelly, you are nothing.

You are pseudo-peanut butter lovers. You should and will be exposed for the charlatans you are.

Unless you can consume peanut butter alone, you are not welcome. To do otherwise is a betrayal of our heritage.

The only thing we have to fear is a shortage of peanuts. With our shelled friends, there is nothing we can't achieve.

Do not stop yourself from rushing to the refrigerator, sneering that thick, creamy substance all over some bread and devouring that bad boy. Better yet, run, don't walk, to your local convenience store and purchase 8 pounds of Reese's Peanut Butter Cups.

No one can suppress your desire for peanut butter, your freedom to express allegiance to peanut butter, or your right to pursue new ways of ingesting peanut butter.

The words alone evoke a feeling of greatness. Peanut — which comes from the Greek word peanopolis, meaning majestic front, and butter — which comes from a cow. What more can you ask for?

Remember peanut butter, not just lunch, but a way of life.

THAT'S MY GRANDPA! — Famous children's author and illustrator, James Stevenson, has replied to a letter and snapshot sent to him by the Jean Roberts, children's librarian of the Nutley Public Library. A while back, Roberts noted that Thomas Tamburi, a frequent patron of the Nutley Library, bore a striking resemblance to "Grandpa," a mustachioed character featured in more than six of Stevenson's books for boys and girls. She approached the library "regular" and requested permission to send his photo to the artist, a Connecticut resident. Stevenson replied with a "Grandpa" sketch and good wishes for Tamburi and Roberts. The original correspondence, along with Thomas Tamburi's picture, have been framed and will be permanently displayed in the library Saturday at 3:45 p.m. in celebration of Children's Book Week.

Teacher takes a trip to China

Belleville Middle School Teacher Barbara Spillane presented a workshop on China at the New Jersey Council for Social Studies and New Geographic Alliance Fall Conferences on Oct. 27.

The workshop, "China: Tradition and Transformation" focused on how China is holding on to its traditions while attempting to modernize. Using the KWL Chart and Artifacts, teachers in cooperative groups examined artifacts and came up with generalizations about present day China.

The conference "Passport to the World" had about 250 teachers from all over New Jersey in attendance. The keynote speaker was noted historian John Cunningham. His topic was "Land Use and Conservation in New Jersey."

"New Jersey is a laboratory for geography study," Cunningham said. His lecture traced the development of New Jersey through its immigrant settlements. He criticized New Jersey's land use policy for not conserving this valuable resource. Cunningham urged the educators in the audience to discuss these issues with their students and lobby the state's government to alter their land use policy.

Spillane also attended two other workshops. The "Multimedia/Interactive Geography Workshops" used the latest technology resources to demonstrate the five themes of geography, including high-tech materials such as CD Roms, laser disks, and computer interactive medias blended with hands on globes and maps.

The second workshop was "The Holocaust and Geography" presented by Dr. Harriet L. Sepinwall of the College of Saint Elizabeth. In this presentation, the geography of the Holocaust was examined using historical atlas and historical records.

The program also included an exhibit by major publishers of textbooks, technological materials, curriculum guides, etc.

"This was an excellent day to explore the innovative topics in social studies as well as to network with other educators from all over New Jersey. I will use the knowledge I gained in the classroom with other teachers in the district," Spillane said.

Belleville Middle School Teacher and Library Trustee Barbara Spillane, above, is providing a "China Exhibit" in the two display cases of the Belleville Public Library and Information Center. Among the items on display are a Chinese Zodiac, Chinese poems, a Call to Prayer Toaist, Terracotta Warriors of Xian, a Cloissone Vase, Hand-Embroidered Handkerchiefs, Mao Memorabilia, and a Chinese fan and doll. Spillane was a Fulbright scholar to China this past summer.

Lorenzo returns from overseas deployment

Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Angel L. Lorenzo, son of Innocencio B. and Juanita B. Lorenzo of Sycamore Drive, Belleville, has returned to Norfolk, Va., after completing a six-month overseas deployment aboard the amphibious assault ship USS Kearsarge, which included duty in the Adriatic Sea near Bosnia.

Lorenzo is one of more than 2,400 sailors and marines aboard the large-deck amphibious ship who completed the 15,000 mile voyage. Lorenzo's ship was the lead ship of the three-ship USS Kearsarge Amphibious Ready Group which included the amphibious transport dock USS Nashville, the dock landing ship USS Pensacola and the 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit.

While in the Adriatic Sea, Lorenzo and fellow crew members helped rescue Air Force Capt. Scott O'Grady, who had been shot down over Bosnia. Marine helicopters from Lorenzo's ship flew 87 miles across the Adriatic Sea into Bosnia to rescue the downed pilot. The Marine rescue team was only on the ground in Bosnia a few minutes when they picked up O'Grady and returned him to USS Kearsarge. No one was injured, but the helicopters did received several hits from ground fire during the return flight. Overall, aircraft on Lorenzo's ship conducted more than 10,000 landings and takeoffs during the deployment.

Lorenzo also participated in several multinational exercises with forces from Albania, Germany, Greece, Italy, the Netherlands, Spain, Turkey and the United Kingdom. Operating off the coast of Sardinia, Lorenzo and fellow sailors and Marines participated in one of the largest amphibious landings since World War II. Equipped with a Marine landing force, helicopters, Harrier attack aircraft, high-speed assault hovercraft, armored vehicles and landing craft, the Kearsarge ARG provided area commanders with a wide-range of capabilities, which included the ability to evacuate civilians, rescue downed pilots, conduct reconnaissance and serve as the leading force in an amphibious landing.

While spending more than 130 days at sea, Lorenzo had an opportunity to visit France, Italy, Malta and Spain. During the port visits, sailors and marines volunteered their free time to renovate homes for the elderly and orphanages and work with local school children.

Lorenzo's involvement in the deployment is an example of how U.S. men and women are serving in the Navy and Marine Corps around the world in support of U.S. interests. These highly trained naval forces provide a unique forward presence and crisis-response option, which can be withdrawn quickly when no longer needed.

He is a 1982 graduate of Science High School of Newark.

Voss returns after six-month deployment

Navy Seaman John A. Voss, son of Allan F. and Arlene M. Voss of Dewitt Avenue, Belleville, has returned to Maysport, Pa., from a six-month overseas deployment aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Blue City, which included duty in the Persian Gulf near Iraq and in the Adriatic Sea near Bosnia.

Voss is one of 400 sailors aboard the ship who completed the 30,000 mile voyage. Voss' ship was part of the 11-ship USS Theodore Roosevelt Battle Group, which included jet fighters, attack aircraft, airborne early warning and electronic warfare aircraft, helicopters and ships and submarines armed with Tomahawk cruise missiles.

While in the Red Sea, Voss and fellow sailors provided anti-air protection and air surveillance for the aircraft from USS Theodore Roosevelt, which were patrolling the no-fly zone over Southern Iraq. Voss and fellow sailors also discovered a 50-foot long Egyptian luxury sailboat that was adrift, and returned it to Egyptian naval authorities.

After weeks in the Northern Red Sea, Voss traveled to the Persian Gulf, where the ship not only served as one of the aircraft carrier's main anti-air assets, but also was host to a reception for 250 diplomats and foreign military leaders.

Traveling back through the Suez Canal into the Mediterranean Sea, Voss and fellow crew members received orders to proceed to the Adriatic Sea. Operating near Bosnia, USS Blue City supported the ongoing efforts of NATO and U.N. forces by keeping track of all aircraft flying over the former Yugoslavian republic and the Adriatic Sea. Using its sophisticated air tracking radar, Voss' ship ensured no unauthorized aircraft flew near the multinational force in the Adriatic.

While on a routine patrol in the Adriatic Sea, one of the helicopters from Voss' ship rescued the pilot of a jet fighter that had crashed into the sea.

Voss' ship is equipped with the same type of Tomahawk cruise missiles that were launched at Bosnian Serb military targets in support of United Nations efforts by the guided missile cruiser USS Normandy. Armed with anti-aircraft and anti-ship missiles, Voss' ship is a formidable warship and can travel nearly 700 miles a day.

Spending 141 of 182 days at sea, Voss also visited France, Greece, Israel, Italy, Malta and the United Arab Emirates. In Naples, Italy, Sailors from Voss' ship volunteered their free time to build a playground at an orphanage and renovated a home for the elderly. While on the island of Malta, Voss' ship gave tours to more than 1,200 local citizens.

Voss' involvement in the deployment is an example of how U.S. men and women are serving in the Navy and Marine Corps around the world from the Persian Gulf and western Pacific Ocean to the Mediterranean Sea in support of U.S. interests. These highly trained naval forces provide a unique forward presence and crisis-response option, which can be withdrawn quickly when no longer needed.

The 1993 graduate of Belleville High School joined the Navy in October 1994.

Snowmen ready for winter's worst

By Jim Van Blarcom
Staff Writer

With winter storm season approaching, traditionally marked by the advent of Thanksgiving, most North Jersey inhabitants begin to ponder just how bad the weather will be.

Accidents, school and work days lost, and general inconveniences due to sub-freezing temperatures and ice and snow accumulation, are among concerns of area residents and officials.

To facilitate safe and efficient roadways, local departments of public works are prepared for the worst for the 1995-96 winter.

Having experienced the winter of 1993-94, the most tumultuous of recent record Belleville and Nutley have learned what the worst can mean, physically and fiscally.

Belleville

Belleville director of public works Charles Cerami boasts access to more than 18 pieces of machinery for winter clean-up.

"We have pursued a bond ordinance to purchase three additional large trucks," said Cerami.

The trucks are necessary for any unforeseen increase in BDPW's workload.

"Our priority is to clear the main roads but we could help the county if things get bad," he said.

Belleville stores approximately 300 tons of salt to feed the town's three spreaders.

"That's enough to take care of five storms in the five- to six-inch range," said Cerami.

For a normal winter Cerami expects to encounter six to seven storms that would cost the town nearly $60,000 to clean up. "That figure also includes cleanup of a few two- to four-inch dustings," added Cerami.

Cerami estimated that clean-up of winter 1993-94 forced Belleville to spend $169,000.

Nutley

Peter Scarpelli, director of Nutley public works for 12 years, has found the best approach for snow removal is to divide township into ten sections.

He then assigns the town's 10 trucks to individual sections.

Of the 10 trucks, two spread salt or a mixture of sand and gravel on roads except those maintained by state and county.

"We were recognized as the best North Jersey town for winter clean-up by a WWOR channel-nine poll in 1994. I believe we received four and a half out of five plows that year," Scarpelli said.

He estimated that the cost of clean-up that winter was $300,000.

Scarpelli also mentioned that Nutley will budget $30,000 for manpower, with overtime, and $20,000 for supplies this winter.

All of the area towns follow similar procedures when a winter storm approaches.

If two inches or less of snow accumulates, salt-spreading trucks are sent out. If more than three inches accumulates, trucks with plows are sent out.

Police departments are responsible to notify DPW during the evening when roads become dangerous and report specific trouble spots.

DPWs utilize monitoring services from one or more of the following: national and state weather services, Essex County Weather Station, television, radio and the Farmer's Almanac.

Winter of 1993-94 is unforgettable because of the many intense storms that paralyzed the tri-state area. Last winter was relatively mild in comparison despite frightening predictions. What the weather will be like this year remains to be seen, but rest assured that our area towns are prepared.

Belleville schools raise money through walk

The Belleville school district, through a program called the "Winners Walk," has raised more than $18,000 over the past three years for the U.S. Organization for Disabled Athletes. The amount raised puts Belleville near the top among the hundreds of schools nationally that participate in the program.

"On behalf of the disabled youngsters who have benefitted from this program, I offer my heartfelt thanks to District Superintendent Michael Lally and Athletic Director Karen Fuccello. And most of all, I thank the children of Belleville who put their hearts and souls into this effort," said USODA president David Williamson.

The Winners Walk program, also known as "Kids Helping Kids," is held each spring and fall and consists of student "ambassadors" walking, running or jogging an 85-yard course during physical education classes.

Prior to the walk, the students solicit pledges from adult sponsors for each lap completed. Students do not collect money and there is no cost to the district. Student pledge sheets are returned to USODA, which then contacts the sponsors by mail.

A total of seven Belleville elementary schools and 228 students participated in the program this year. This year alone, the students walked a total of 6,261 laps and signed up 1,505 sponsors while raising $5,188. Rich Ruffalo, a world-class blind athlete and USODA's national disabled spokesperson, was instrumental in bringing the Winners Walk to Belleville. Money raised through the Winners Walk goes to USODA's Disabled Youth Sports Training Programs, which are held each year at 50 sites around the country, reaching out to disabled children from 8 to 18 years of age. For more information about USODA, a registered non-profit tax-exempt organization, phone (516) 485-3701.

Disease center is named in honor of Rodgers

By Anthony Puglisi
Regional Editor

John Rodgers always gave support and encouragement to patients suffering from immunological and infectious diseases. He would talk and play cards with patients who were receiving treatment, all the while, as a fellow patient, pulling around the IV bottle attached to his arm.

Three years after his death, the inspiration Rodgers once gave to others is being carried out by the Friends of John for Life, Inc. The organization, spurred by efforts made by his mother and sister, celebrated the dedication of the John Rodgers Immunology and Infectious Disease Center at St. Barnabas Medical Center Monday afternoon.

The center, which has accepted about 100 patients since it opened in May, is still in the process of settling into its new home at St. Barnabas in Livingston. Doctors at the center suggested it be named after Rodgers because of his positive attitude and his concern for the well-being of others.

"He always wanted to help others and he always had a positive attitude no matter what turn he took during treatment," said his mother, Chris Rodgers of Bloomfield. "He always kept trying."

"He had an inspirational type of attitude and he was someone who always was helping other people," his sister Terri Rodgers of Bloomfield said. "His kind of courage was unique."

The Friends of John for Life was created by his close friends to help raise money to pay for Rodgers' medical bills, but after Rodgers died "the charity didn't want to stop," Terri Rodgers said. "There's a lot of kids who don't have the support like John. Now we have a purpose."

Dr. James Oleske, who with Dr. Anthony Minnefor treated Rodgers and opened the center, said Rodgers was the type of patient who "challenged" doctors and patients to overcome the disease. Oleske said opening the center will allow his team of doctors and associates to see more patients and better serve New Jersey.

"I can't tell you how long our dream has been in the works," Oleske said, describing the informal ceremony as "happy and nostalgic."

A graduate of Bloomfield High School, Rodgers was born with Bruton's Agammaglobulinemia, a immuno-deficiency disorder which prevents the body's immune system from fighting off infections. Sherri Rodgers said the disorder is genetic and is not caused by or related to the AIDS virus.

Rodgers aspired to be a carpenter, Oleske said, but entered the medical field to become a respiratory therapist because of his desire to help others who were also afflicted with the immuno-deficiency disorder. Rodgers attended Glassboro State College, now called Rowan, and earned his certification as a respiratory therapist from the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey.

Rodgers' condition worsened before he could ever put his knowledge to work and it was determined he needed a double lung transplant. He was 22-years-old and Oleske discovered Rodgers' lungs were beginning to deteriorate due to his continuous struggle to fight the disease and the numerous infections caused in his lungs.

Rodgers was put on a waiting list and moved to Minnesota where the transplant was to be conducted. After a year of waiting, he received the organs and the operation was successful.

However, after several weeks, because of the immuno-deficiency disorder, Rodgers developed an infection which spread to his brain and he died.

"He recognized the needs of children," said Ben Yusiowicz, chairman of Friends of John for Life, when he presented Oleske and Minnefor with a large donation of toys for children to use when they visit the office.

Yusiowicz also presented a plaque of Rodgers commemorating the dedication. The chairman said the plaque, which hangs in the waiting room, is symbolic of Rodgers' courage and will to overcome his disease. It reads:

"He struggled to all that other kids could do. Never setting his limitations, his perseverance led him to become a respiratory therapist, fulfilling both a personal goal and a vow to help others in need. His courageous spirit, sense of humor and heartwarming smile became an inspiration to all who knew him. His optimism and goodness overwhelmed us and we will keep in our hearts forever."

Friends of John for Life will work with the center to provide financial support for patients as well as supporting the center.

"We'll give them emotional support if that's all we can give," Sherri Rodgers said. "I hope people will walk away from this center with a feeling of hope."

The Center for Immunology and Infectious disease at St. Barnabas is located at 101 Short Hills Road, West Orange, in the Atkins Kent Building, Suite 400. For more information or to make a donation to the Friends of John for Life, call 429-9426 or write to P.O. Box 1570, Bloomfield, 07003.

Loss of loved one can dim holiday glee

How do you feel when you hear "Jingle Bells" the day after Thanksgiving? Are you one of those who say, "Oh no, wake me on Jan. 2?" Or are you filled with the same glee and excitement you knew as a child? Maybe you are thinking it is a wonderful season, but it takes so much work to fulfill Christmas expectations and those of the family.

Each of these feelings change when the celebrant suffers the loss of a loved one. It may be a loss through death or through the disintegration of a relationship. Unfortunately, or fortunately, life goes on. And, along with taxes, elections and other non-events, comes Dec. 1, and you don't feel like decking the halls with holly or gathering "round the egg nog."

So, what will be your strategy to get through the holidays and maybe even emerge a stronger, more peaceful person on Jan. 2? See if you can incorporate all or some of these suggestions into your holiday:

- Tell yourself there is no "right way" to celebrate. Ask yourself what feels good and follow your instincts.

- Remember the reason behind the holiday and perhaps return to the religious simplicity by spending a quiet devotional time each day, climaxing on Dec. 25.

- Devote time to helping the less fortunate. You will forget about yourself for a time and realize there are others who have suffered losses — not necessarily more or less painful, just different.

- Try not to compare your life unfavorably with that of others. Besides, many outwardly happy people are suffering inside, and you many not see their pain. Comparing and feeling envious are very human traits, but remember, for all those who seem to have it all, there are an equal number with whom you wouldn't trade places.

- Celebrate or don't celebrate, in a new way. Scrap traditions that don't work and try something new. In two years the new celebration will be life tradition.

- Give yourself the gift of grieving in the way that feels best for you. Find time in the holidays to talk about your loss to a trusted friend or professional who will appreciate the therapeutic value of tears. Getting it out in private may prevent embarrassing emotions when in the midst of happy groups.

- Seek beauty in something each day. Nature is awesome, unpredictable and soothing. Sometimes the sighting of a cardinal on a branch outside your window, a blue sky following days of gray, a snow storm or the clarity of the stars in a winter sky can help us appreciate our place in the greater universe.

- Treat yourself to small pleasures. You have learned life is precious and fragile and not to be wasted. An herbal tea, a bubble bath or a chocolate chip cookie are gifts to be enjoyed.

- Keep a diary of your feelings each day. You will find themes emerge as you read it back. Pretend it is a dear friend's diary and prescribe doses of love and kindness. Return to your diary next year, and discover how you may have grown.

- Know that life is change. Some changes are happy ones and some are sad, but the only constant in life is change. Find assurance in the oldest of cliches — time heals. And, if you feel stuck in your grief, resolve to do something about it in the new year. Don't be afraid to reach out. See a group of people suffering a similar loss. The holidays can be very stressful for anyone and especially for those who have suffered a loss. Don't try to be brave; there are many willing and able to help you.

West Essex Community Health Services in Verona has bereavement groups and can give referrals to other groups and/or agencies that may be helpful in your time of need. ### Fire department gives leaf-burning warning

Nutley Fire Department reminds residents that the open burning of leaves is prohibited under township fire prevention and pollution codes. Leaves collected by property owners should be placed curbside for collection by the township's Road Department.

In recent years, the township has experienced a rash of late night fires in uncollected leaf piles. The Fire Department requests your help in eliminating these fires by adopting the following measures:

- ♦ Pile leaves away from buildings, trees, telephone poles and cars. Wet down leaves during dry spells, especially dry oak type leaves.

- ♦ Be alert for suspicious activity near piles, which could include slow moving vehicles, strangers to the neighborhood, erratic bicycles or other such traffic. Notify police immediately with any information you may have.

- ♦ Never park your car on a leaf pile.

- ♦ Be patient, your leaves will be picked up. Nutley has many beautiful trees, most produce leaves.

- ♦ If you smoke, use your vehicle's ashtray.

Magician to perform at Bloomfield Library

Four to take O'Toole's duties

By Anthony Puglisi
Regional Editor

A combination of four people with varying duties will replace Essex County Chief of Staff Kevin O'Toole when he is sworn into the State Assembly Jan. 1.

O'Toole, who is also mayor of Cedar Grove, has been chief of staff for County Executive James Treffinger since Treffinger took office Jan. 1. O'Toole had announced he would resign from his county position if elected to represent the 21st Legislative District.

Treffinger, who campaigned on downsizing and making county government more streamlined, said he is taking advantage of O'Toole's exit as an opportunity to combine positions and revamp the chief of staff's office.

The reorganization of the chief of staff office calls for four people to assume the duties of O'Toole as well as take more of an oversight role with different county departments. These changes are just the beginning of more structural and organizational changes Treffinger is expecting to present to the freeholders within the next several weeks.

"I've explored a variety of options and this week I've decided to radically redefine and expand the role of chief of staff and thereby streamline other functions now being performed in other ways," Treffinger said. "As part of an overall reorganization plan to streamline, centralize and rationalize executive branch functions, which I hope to submit to the freeholders in the next few weeks, this first reorganization of the staff functions will, I believe, improve efficiency and accountability, and through a more central coordinating function for the chief of staff's office will save taxpayers money."

The four individuals who have been chosen to replace O'Toole are Michael DeMiro, a Verona lawyer, municipal attorney for Verona and a longtime personal friend and advisor to Treffinger; Barbara Dennis, an East Orange attorney who lost an Assembly bid in the Nov. 7 General Election; Wayne Halsenbarg, county treasurer; and Joel Weingarten, head of the county's office of management and budget.

"The present structure scatters top managers throughout the operational structure and leaves staff functions, which are essential to executive oversight, to fall on only one person," Treffinger said about the burden being placed on the county administrator, Vincent DiMauro. The four-person "team approach," Treffinger said, will "serve as a multiple check for me. The more people with whom to interact on broad policy matters, the better."

DeMiro and Dennis will be employed as part-time chiefs of staff and will each receive $45,000 annually without benefits. This is in line with an executive order passed by the county executive earlier which state part-time employees were not eligible for benefits.

Halsenbarg's job as treasurer will be combined with the job of controller, currently held by Lisa Gomez-Rivera. Traditionally the responsibilities of controller had been part of the county administrator's job, and combining it with the duties of treasurer did not create a conflict between the jobs, the county executive said. Treffinger said Weingarten's job as budget director will be eliminated with Weingarten still overseeing that department.

Halsenbarg and Weingarten will retain their annual salaries of $79,000.

Although specific duties and salaries have not been finalized, Treffinger said O'Toole's resignation and the four-member chief of staff office will result in $70,000 in savings.

Essentially, O'Toole's position and his $85,000 annual salary is being filled with two part-time positions. The plan will be further offset by the resignation last week of Alan Zalkind, who had been an assistant to DiMauro and had been earning $75,000. Zalkind's position will be eliminated.

Weingarten resigns from ECIA

With his expanded role within the county, Weingarten has resigned from the board of commissioners of the Essex County Improvement Authority before having been sworn into the position and without ever attending a meeting as a board member.

Treffinger said Weingarten declined the position because there now exists a conflict of duties between his county job and the unpaid ECIA position. Last month, Treffinger announced Weingarten was leaving the finance office to become a top aide and, after a ruling by counsel Michael Chertoff, it was determined there was no conflict between that position and the ECIA.

The county executive now believes, however, with Weingarten assuming the duties of chief of staff, there will be some conflicts. "Now Joel will be working on matters which likely could involve the ECIA whereas before last week I had structured his role so that there could be no possibility of conflict," he said.

Weingarten had become the target of attacks by employee unions, who had filed complaints against the county official with the Local Finance Board, because of a conflict created by him working for the county and serving on the ECIA board. Although Treffinger would not concede being swayed by the unions, the employee representatives should be satisfied with the change.

Other ECIA changes

Treffinger also announced the resignation of Americo Seabra from the ECIA board. Seabra, former county parks and recreation director who was replaced by Daniel Salvatore last week, resigned to return run his family's business.

Nominated to replace Weingarten and Seabra are Frank Cocchiola, a Nutley councilman, and Jake Shapiro, a West Orange resident who lost a bid for the Assembly in the Nov. 7 General Election. Their nominations are expected to be presented to the freeholders during their Nov. 26 meeting.

Safety first

Lt. Vincent Abbott of the Belleville Fire Department, left, passes out helmets to the children and parents in a special program on fire safety and prevention for Fire Prevention Week. The purpose of the program was also to acquaint the participants in the James J. Cozzarelli Jr. Children's Room with firemen, their dress and equipment so that they would not be threatened in the event of a real fire. The more familiar Nutley and Belleville children are with firemen and their safety procedures, the safer they will be. We encourage both Nutley and Belleville fire departments to continue visiting the schools, churches, etc., to increase their visibility and community impact.

Nutley residents participate in parade

Nutley UNICAN Anthony Biondi was grand marshal of the Belleville/Nutley Columbus Day Parade Oct. 15. In addition to Biondi, chapter president Mario DiMaggio led banner carriers Anthony Bardino, Anthony Buccino, Steve Mairella and Pat Ritacco.

Marching in the UNICO delegation were Belleville ACES members Janessa Sean, Michael Tortorelli, Belleville ACES president Artie Grutt, Peter Matturi and Aliza Grutt.

The marchers led chapter members on the UNICO National float. Riding were Belleville Chapter President Gene Antonio; chairman of the Nutley UNICO Columbus Day Committee and Al Ficociello, co-chair of the National Christopher Columbus Committee; and Bloomfield's Dr. Manny Alfano.

This year's float was themed, "UNICO Bridging the Generations of Italian Immigration to the United States." The float featured a bridge behind a golden replica of the Statue of Liberty sited between the American flag and the Italian flag. The Belleville's School No. 10 students, from left, Jennifer Gambino, Gianna Immersi and Jessica Juliano were clearly spooked at the witches and goblins present for School No. 10's first Spook House on Oct. 27. From all of the wonderful decorations to the spaghetti with oil and jello with bugs, looking at the children's faces it was a real success. Pictures caught students coming out of the spook house. Thanks go to school No. 10's original spookster Jerilyn Price for her great idea, and all the moms that helped. The pumpkin patch followed the spook house and the two first grades picked pumpkins while enjoying refreshments and munchkins. Following the parade was a "Say No to Drugs" puppet show enjoyed by the whole school.

Spooked

Nutley football squad gearing up for playoffs

By Matt Franklin
Sports Editor

Throughout the regular season, the Nutley High School football team proved it could match up offensively with any team in the state. The Raiders consistently moved the ball downfield, balancing a strong running and passing attack.

This Saturday, Nutley will meet another team which features outstanding players on the offensive side of the ball. However, the stakes will be higher this time around, as the Raiders will begin play in the North Jersey, Section 2, Group 3 playoffs against Phillipsburg. The contest at Tangorra Field in Nutley will kick off at 1 p.m.

Nutley carries a 6-2 record into Saturday's game, having lost only to strong squads from Hackensack and St. Joseph. The latest Raider loss came Saturday, a 14-0 defeat to St. Joseph in Montvale, but heavy winds and rain prevented Nutley from mounting its usual offensive attack. The contest had no playoff implications, as both Nutley and St. Joseph had already clinched state playoff spots before the game.

Phillipsburg, meanwhile, will bring a record of 5-3 into Saturday's game. This is the West Jersey school's first year back in the NJSIAA for football since leaving after the 1981 season. Phillipsburg had been playing strictly Pennsylvania schools until coming back to the NJSIAA this year and competing in the Skyland Conference-Delaware Division.

Like Nutley, Phillipsburg relies on a strong offensive attack. The Stateliners are particularly strong at quarterback and wide receiver, as Nutley head coach Rich SanFillippo found out Sunday night when breaking down Phillipsburg's game films.

"Offensively, they present the best quarterback and receiver we'll face all year," said SanFillippo, who won a state championship at Nutley in 1992. "They have a really fine quarterback, and the receiver is outstanding."

The Phillipsburg quarterback is senior Keith Kullman, whom SanFillippo describes as a "pure passer." Kullman combines a strong arm with accuracy, meaning the Nutley secondary should have a busy day Saturday.

The favorite target of Kullman is senior wide receiver Mike Lelko, considered one of the top wideouts in New Jersey. SanFillippo, for one, came away impressed with Lelko after going through Phillipsburg's season statistics.

"During the middle of the season Lelko caught 31 passes in two games," said SanFillippo. "He had 16 catches in one game and 15 in another. He has outstanding speed, and he can certainly catch the ball."

Rich SanFillippo
Nutley coach

Phillipsburg also features the offensive talents of junior running back Allen Slack and freshman running back/placekicker Josh Clymer. Those two players have enjoyed top moments for the Stateliners throughout the campaign.

But while Phillipsburg has some strong offensive talent, the same can be said for Nutley. The high-powered Raider attack features quarterback Craig McCann, running back Rob Carey and wide receivers Joe DelMaestro and Sean Nicol. Those four seniors have helped Nutley average close to 25 points per contest.

McCann, a first-year varsity starter, has done a superb job of running the Raider offense. Like his QB counterpart at Phillipsburg, McCann employs pinpoint accuracy on his passes and has thrown 12 touchdowns this season.

The favorite target of McCann has been Nicol, who has six touchdown catches on the season. That's even more remarkable considering Nicol came back from a serious back injury suffered last season.

DelMaestro, meanwhile, has enjoyed a terrific campaign. The 6-foot-3, 200-pound senior has caught just two touchdown passes, but his presence on the field helps keep opposing defenses off-balance.

"He's just a natural," said SanFillippo. "He does a lot of things well. He's our field goal kicker, he punts and he plays defense."

The Nutley running game is led by Carey, who's enjoying a banner campaign in his final season of high school ball. The 5-11, 180-pound Carey has combined speed and strength in scoring 14 touchdowns, putting him amongst the scoring leaders in Essex County.

For all of the offensive success of both squads, however, the state playoffs is a brand new ballgame. All of the statistics and achievements won't mean anything for Nutley once Saturday's contest kicks off.

"We'll be in a struggle this week," said SanFillippo. "Phillipsburg has a nice tradition and good skill kids. I don't expect an easy game."

EXTRA POINTS — The other matchup in North Jersey, Section 2, Group 3 has Shabazz (4-4) at West Morris (7-1). The state championship game in the section will take place the weekend of Dec. 2, possibly at Giants Stadium...

the loss to St. Joseph. The hard-working captain came into the contest with a sore right ankle but will return for Saturday's state playoff game. DelMaestro and senior linebacker Anthony Pellegrino are banged up as well, but they will also start against Phillipsburg...

SanFillippo said the home field advantage will help Nutley on Saturday. However, he also pointed out that West Morris came to Nutley for the sectional final in 1991 and earned a 14-0 victory.

"It's not a clincher, but it's important," said SanFillippo. "Given the distance Phillipsburg has to come, it makes a difference..."

Pete powers All-Area Tennis squad

By Rick Bliwise
Assistant Sports Editor

If the fans of the Nutley High School tennis program were to put together a highlight film of the 1995 campaign, it would be tough to know where to start. After all, this autumn the Raiders had so many brilliant moments on the court.

For starters, there was the performance of senior Kathleen Pete in the Essex County Tournament singles' event. Pete, who enjoyed a superb four-year varsity career for NHS, captured her second straight county crown. And in the ECT, Nutley beat Caldwell, 5-0, to give veteran Raider coach Vince Turturiello his historic 500th career triumph. Later in the event, Nutley would bow to Montclair-Kimberly, 3-2, but that would be one of only two setbacks the team would suffer during the campaign.

Then, in the state tournament, Nutley swept past West Morris, 4-1, to capture the North Jersey, Section 2, Group 3 championship. From there, the Raiders advanced to the Group 3 finals before bowing to powerful Ramapo, 4-1. That day, Pete had the lone victory for Nutley.

Finally, a superb campaign ended on the afternoon of Nov. 6 when Nutley rolled past Immaculate Heart, 4-1, to win a conference championship. The starting singles' lineup of Pete (23-2), Terry Dumansky (18-3) and Nicole Fredricks all scored impressive straight set triumphs, as did the No. 1 doubles team of Rosanna Corino and Lisa Dumansky (17-3).

"That just put the finishing touch on a super season for our squad," said Turturiello. "We went 18-2 and I can't say enough about the performance of each of the kids on our team. A group like this doesn't come along very often, believe me."

Four players from Nutley — Pete, Terry Dumansky, Corino and Lisa Dumansky — are members of The 1995 Worrall Community Newspapers All-Area Girls' Tennis Team. Rounding out a very talented squad are West Orange senior Alyson Berowitz, who did a great job at the No. 1 singles' spot for the Mountaineers, and Bloomfield's talented first doubles team of sophomore Amanda Fetterly and senior Mary Szubiak.

Here are the 1995 first-team selections:

KATHLEEN PETE, Nutley: During the decade of the 1990s, the top tennis player from the local area has been Columbia's Marjorie Gantman, who won the state singles' championship in 1992. But Pete, who hopes to continue to play at a high level in college, isn't too far behind. "Kathleen was so tough because she was just so consistent out there," expressed Turturiello. "Sure, she had such weapons as solid groundstrokes and a good serve, but it was just the way she played match after match which made her so good. Kathleen never beat herself with careless play on the big points."

Pete, who made a nice run in the state tournament, felt that she improved her game this year because she was more patient on the court and displayed better footwork. The personable youngster also noted that she was more physically fit than she had been in past seasons.

Winning the ECT again was certainly a top moment for the senior, but another big moment came when she beat her foe from West Morris, 6-1, 6-1 in the sectional finals.

ALYSON BEROWITZ, West Orange: The senior sparked Cindy Reuter's squad to a fine 15-9 mark and a share of the Northern Hills Conference championship with West Milford. Berowitz, a kid who was "truly dedicated to the game," according to her coach, finished up the season with a nice 13-8 slate.

TERRY DUMANSKY, Nutley: The senior, along with Pete, Fredricks and Corino, played a key role for Nutley this fall, just like she did in 1992, 1993 and 1994. Dumansky was often overlooked at the No. 2 spot in the lineup because of Pete's huge presence, but Nutley's opponents always knew they would have to be at their best when facing Dumansky.

"Like Kathleen, Terry was a very consistent player for us," remarked Turturiello. "It was great to see her earn a spot in this year's state tournament."

Dumansky, like Pete, always seemed to be at her best in the key matches. When the Raiders won the sectional championship, Dumansky came away with a solid 6-4, 6-3 decision.

ROSANNA CORINO and LISA DUMANSKY, Nutley: The singles' players got most of the attention in the Nutley lineup but Corino, a senior, and Lisa Dumansky, a sophomore, were also a major force at No. 1 doubles. In the big matches, they always came through as the 6-4, 6-4 decision in the sectional finals would indicate.

"There are so many good things I can say about each kid," commented Turturiello. "I think what impresses me the most about Rosanna is that she's such a tremendous all-around athlete. Heck, if she wasn't starring in this sport, she'd be doing it in another activity. And Lisa is a kid who has already made great strides in the game, even if she's just a sophomore. There's no question that she'll be someone to keep an eye on over the next couple of years."

AMANDA FETTERLY and MARY SZUBIAK, Bloomfield: The star for the Bengals this fall was freshman Melissa Mottola, who did a superb job at No. 1 singles. But a big key for coach Ron Masson was the performance of Fetterly and Szubiak (15-7) at the No. 1 doubles position. Their strong play helped the Bengals compile a fine 16-7 mark which was highlighted by the consolation round championship in the ECT.

Top booters named to coaches' team

By Rick Bliwise
Assistant Sports Editor

During the decade of the 1990s, the performance level of girls' soccer throughout the Garden State has dramatically improved.

And in the local area, that's particularly been true. Columbia High School, Bloomfield and Nutley have all had outstanding programs. Just last year, the Cougars won the ECT title behind the brilliant play of Mary Meade. And this fall, Bloomfield gained a share of the county championship led by senior Jenette Hendrickson, a youngster who had the ability to play at practically any spot on the field. Earlier in the decade, Nutley was dominant with such talented kids as Lindsay Hill.

Columbia, Bloomfield and Nutley are all well represented on The 1995 Essex County Coaches' All-Star Team. In fact, eight players from those squads were among the 17 selected to the first team.

"I think all three of those clubs had some real good players this fall," said Nutley coach Don Tobey. "I mean a kid like Hendrickson was just amazing to watch."

"As a whole, the talent pool in the county may have been down just a bit from last year when kids like Meade were around. But I know a lot of talented underclassmen will be returning next fall, so I think the quality of play will be back at a high level in 1996."

From the Worrall Community Newspapers area, these are the youngsters selected to the prestigious first team: G-Meredith Egan, Columbia (Jr.); B-Jodi Baumgardner, Bloomfield (Sr.); Rachel Bernstein, Columbia (Sr.); MF-Jenette Hendrickson, Bloomfield (Sr.); Janine Scafaria, Nutley (Sr.); F-Michelle Busichio, Columbia (Jr.); Nicki Martelli, Columbia (Sr.); Michelle Reilly, Bloomfield (Soph.).

On the second team, the local area is also represented. The selections include: G-Moe Eineker, Bloomfield; B-Donna Leacy, Bloomfield; Rhena Jasey, Columbia; Jen Yanuzzelli, Nutley; MF-Heather Egan, Columbia; Jill Watral, Bloomfield; F-Amber Hemmer, Bloomfield; Gayle Weber, Nutley.

As an indication of the balance around the local area this fall, consider two big games between Bloomfield and Columbia. The Bengals ousted Columbia in the ECT but then in the North Jersey, Section 2, Group 4 state tournament, Columbia returned the favor. Yet, even after that tough loss, Bloomfield was able to rebound and Bob Mayer's crew went on to play a scoreless tie against powerful Caldwell in the ECT championship affair at New Jersey Tech in Newark.

Nutley, which had a losing campaign this year, might be the area club to watch next fall. Among the good ones returning for the Raiders will be Yanuzzelli at sweeper, junior keeper Kristen Puzio, Weber at left wing, and sophomore striker Heather Syme, who was switched to stopper late in the year and did a superb job at that spot.

"I think the biggest problem for us next year will be trying to replace Alicia Hudnett, who did such a great job at left fullback," expressed Tobey, who like Mayer and CHS mentor Steve Jones, has guided his club to a county championship during the 1990s. "She was so steady out there for us and was practically like another coach on the field."

"Kids like that don't come along very often and she worked exceptionally hard, even without getting the kind of recognition that several of our other top kids received (like 1995 graduates Amy Hessels and Sarah Clarke). You have to have a team effort to win in this game and Alicia always did her fair share and then some for us."

CORNER KICKS — The other two local girls' soccer clubs, West Orange and Irvington, had no representatives on the 1995 Coaches' All-Star Team. Tobey feels in general, the coaches do "a fine job" of selecting the squad...

Del Mauro sparks victory

By J.R. Parachini
Staff Writer

One reason why the Queen of Peace High School football team is looking forward to next season is because tailback Tommy Del Mauro will return for one more year.

The standout junior running back and Newark native rushed for a career-high 203 yards on just 10 carries (impressive 20.3 average) to lead the North Arlington parochial school to a thorough 26-6 pasting of visiting Fort Lee last Saturday in Bergen County Scholastic League-American Division action.

A young Griffins squad improved to 1-7 with the victory and will now have their sights set on playing at Rutherford on Thanksgiving, Nov. 23, in their season finale. The game may be moved because Rutherford is in the state playoffs.

"We paid our dues the last two years and we practically have our entire team coming back," said Del Mauro, who resides on the Newark/Belleville line. "We're looking for big things next year."

The 5-foot-8, 162-pound Del Mauro, in his second year on the varsity, patterns his running style after Barry Sanders, running quick and low to the ground with a burst of power.

His effort last weekend, out of a Delaware Wing-T offense, featured touchdown runs of 17, 86 and eight yards, giving him the team lead in touchdowns with four.

Del Mauro also had seven tackles from his outside linebacker position, as Queen of Peace either set up in a 4-4 or 5-2 defensive scheme.

On special teams, Del Mauro returns punts and kickoffs and returned one kickoff 54 yards against Fort Lee. He will be one of the key senior leaders on next year's squad for head coach Rich Borgess.

Storm puts heavy burden on police

Reports of property damage due to Saturday's storm have increased the workload of police, already hampered by drug arrests, breaking and entering and motor vehicle thefts.

Police arrested Maria Antonia Felax, 29, of Newark, and charged her with possession of CDS on early morning of Nov. 8.

Patrol observed a suspicious vehicle in the area of Washington Avenue and Holmes Street. After stopping the auto, Felax was seen exiting through the passenger's door and discarding two clear vials suspected to contain crack cocaine. Further search of the vehicle and Felax revealed an envelop containing a white powdery substance and a small bag of green vegetation suspected to be marijuana.

Police arrested Thomas John Ryan, 20, of Nutley, and charged him with possession of CDS and CDS paraphernalia on the evening of Nov. 9.

Patrol observed a suspicious automobile in the area of a Washington Avenue supermarket. At the same time a man running towards the car was noticed. Patrol questioned the man running and the driver of the vehicle. Ryan was searched and was found with a hypodermic needle and two packets containing a white powdery substance suspected to be heroin.

Police arrested Mark Wierman, 38, of Bloomfield, and charged him with possession of CDS and CDS paraphernalia on Saturday.

police blotter

Patrol observed several suspicious individuals in the vicinity of Union Avenue and William Street looking into the windows of parked vehicles. Police questioned the group and background checks were made. Wierman was wanted on an outstanding warrant and was searched. Found on Wierman was a hypodermic needle.

Police arrested Richard Naporano, 45, of Belleville, and charged him with possession of a controlled dangerous substance early Saturday morning.

An investigation of a disturbance at Naporano's residence prompted the discovery of a packet containing a white powdery substance believed to be heroin.

Shoplifting was reported at a Washington Avenue supermarket during the afternoon of Nov. 8.

Police responded to the call and arrested Claudia Mylerva DeLaFuenta, 19, of Newark, charging her for attempting to exit the store without paying for $58 worth of cologne and plug-in air fresheners.

A strong-arm robbery was reported by a Belleville juvenile during the early evening of Nov. 6.

The juvenile stated that he was approached by a group of 10 juveniles between the ages of 9- and 12-years-old in the vicinity of Franklin Avenue and Honiss Street. Three members of the group took the juvenile's walkman and jewelry.

An act of arson was reported at a Ogden Road residence during the evening of Nov. 7.

The resident stated that unknown persons set refuse contained in his garbage can ablaze while it was set at the curb. Belleville arson squad is investigating.

The theft of storage bins at a Washington Avenue apartment house was reported on Nov. 9 and Nov. 10.

Motor vehicle thefts were reported Nov. 6 on Greenwich Street; Nov. 7 on Newark Avenue; Friday on William Street; and Saturday on Mill Street.

Breaking and entering was reported Nov. 7 on Wallace Street; Nov. 9 on Washington Avenue; Friday on Academy Street; and Saturday on Joralemon Street.

Not a laughing matter

Newark Mayor Sharpe James competed in the funniest mayor competition during the seventh "Comic Relief" fund-raiser to help the homeless.

At least residents of Newark and elsewhere now know the mayor of the largest city in New Jersey does not let his job get him down and is able to leave his troubles at the office.

County Seat

By Anthony Puglisi
Regional Editor

It's ironic that James was able to maintain his sense of humor for the competition, albeit the contest did help raise money for the homeless. Obviously, James could not find humor in his hometown and that's why he flew to California last weekend.

For more than a year, James has been the target of a federal investigation by the U.S. Attorney's Office into his political fund-raising exploits. On Friday, Newark Police Director William Celester and Chief of Staff and Assemblyman Jackie Mattison were the targets of raids conducted by the IRS, FBI and U.S. Customs Office during which records and files were taken from their homes and offices.

Take a good look at the city. The schools, deteriorating both structurally and educationally, were taken over by the state this year. The county has the eighth largest welfare system in the nation, largely due to the welfare population in Newark. Vacant lots, a loss in ratables, a floundering port, drugs, auto theft.

Your sides are probably hurting because you're laughing so hard.

Public office should not overtake a politician's life, but how an elected official acts sets the tone for the administration. In addition, how effective and accountable can a mayor be when he jetissons off to Africa, Los Angeles or wherever just because there's some conference where he can gain exposure? As a representative of the thousands of people in Newark, what could possibly be gained from a mayor's trip to some foreign country, except some trinkets he bought for his family and frequent flier miles from the flight?

The trouble is there are several mayors in Essex who fit this description, leaving those Essex residents at a disadvantage, unfortunately.

In some other municipalities facing scandals, however, residents have realized the severity of the events and have not taken to the stage to find some relief, albeit comic.

In West Orange, Police Chief Robert Spina and Acting Township Attorney Joseph Dooley have been the targets of investigations for their alleged wrongdoings.

Spina received a three-count indictment for endangering his See NOT LAUGHING, Page B2

Families created through adoption

By Anthony Puglisi
Regional Editor

In support of National Adoption Month, County Executive James Treffinger issued a proclamation Tuesday urging residents of Essex County to consider adopting children and praised the efforts of the Essex Adoption Resource Center.

The county executive, who was adopted as a child and talks openly about it in public, said being adopted can drastically change the lives of children for the better. As an adopted child himself, Treffinger said he "suffered no ill effects" and is grateful for what his parents did for him.

Part One

Next week: Two families' tales of adoption

During the presentation, Claire Russell, recruitment specialist for the Adoption Resource Center's Essex Division based in Bloomfield, said there are 500 children within the program in Essex County and more than 2,000 statewide. Many of the children are between the ages of 5 and 11 and all have diverse backgrounds.

"This is a month of celebrating families which have come together through adoption and promote adoption for kids who are still waiting to be adopted," Russell said.

As part of this celebration, 60 Essex County families who have adopted children will be honored during a recognition luncheon Saturday at the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey in Newark.

About 75 percent of the children seeking families are adopted by their foster parents who they stay with while the search is conducted. The remaining 25 percent are the focus of the Adoption Resource Center.

"One of our greatest needs is to recruit loving, adoptive families for children," said Betty Jones, adoption manager for the center's Essex Division. "Every child deserves a family and a loving home. Adoption is a great way to build a family."

Russell and Jones dispelled the myth that adoption is hard and that only certain families are eligible to adopt children.

The myth that adoptive parents had to be married and live in a house with a white picket fence around it are not true, Russell said.

Adoptive parents can live in apartments, can still work and can be single, Jones said, adding it is easier to adopt now than ever before.

The adoption process begins with an application the parents must complete. The parents must then attend four to five training sessions, each of which are about three hours long. There are also employment and fingerprint checks done.

After being approved for adoption, parents learn about the child's background and undergo a six-month monitoring process with the child. After this period, records are a completed and another six-month monitoring period is conducted.

The Adoption Resource Center helps find homes for children who are newborns to age 12, although there are some teenagers.

To help promote the idea of adoption, the state office of the ARC in Trenton publishes a monthly bulletin which provides a list of all the children waiting for families. The bulletin has photographs and short biographies of children and has a separate section for siblings who want to remain together.

Freeholders demand accountability from authorities

By Anthony Puglisi
Regional Editor

The president of the Board of Chosen Freeholders has demanded more accountability and fiscal responsibility from the county's two autonomous authorities and has requested financial records and budgets for the last two years be provided to the members of the freeholder board.

Freeholder President Joseph DiVincenzo has requested the Essex County Improvement Authority and the Essex County Utilities Authority provide records of third party billings, such as payments made to attorneys, financial advisors and auditors, be provided to the board so they could review and suggest cost-saving measures.

"I brought this up because of the tough financial times being faced by the county," DiVincenzo said after the meeting. "We did our part and now it's time for them to do theirs. We can't continue to lay off people and cut like we've done this year."

DiVincenzo presented his statement after the board unanimously voted to approve a resolution which would reduce the bonding for the Hilltop deal by $5 million to $45 million.

The reduction in the bond was announced two weeks ago after negotiations between the county executive, freeholder president and executive director of the ECIA. Also participating in those discussions was Jerome St. John, a voluntary consultant who has assisted the freeholder board with its financial decisions this year.

On the agenda Nov. 9 were three ordinances and three resolutions concerning the business of the ECIA.

Thomas Banker, executive director of the ECIA, said he did not know what brought on DiVincenzo's request. "The ECIA has always responded to every reasonable request for information," he said.

Operations at the ECIA have been stymied for the last five months as the board of commissioners has not had enough members to form a quorum to hold a meeting. Five of the seven board positions had become vacant after members resigned or were being filled with holdover members whose terms had expired.

Three of the five new members were recently sworn in and the commissioner board is expected to meet tomorrow to begin handling business, including approving minutes of past board meetings.

The same situation occurred at the Utilities Authority and Treffinger recently appointed three new members to that board, who have been sworn in.

"Both of these agencies must look for more savings for our taxpayers, just as we are in the county," DiVincenzo said in his prepared statement. "The freeholder board has to begin to take a greater interest in how these agencies are spending the taxpayers' money."

"I believe in this board had more information about these agencies, we could help them find other savings for our taxpayers," he said.

The president said this was evident during the recent negotiations in which the ECIA was persuaded to cut its fees and save $5 million on the Hilltop bonding. The county is using the bond revenue to bridge a $32.5 million budget gap and hopes to repay the bond with Green Acres funding approved in the Nov. 7 General Election.

"We should work harder before we pass a bond ordinance. This board has the responsibility to make sure we're not overbonding. It's nice to roll back the bond amount, but we should work harder," DiVincenzo said.

DiVincenzo's remarks took several of his colleagues by surprise, although they supported his statement and requests.

"I believe this is part of our oversight responsibility," said Freeholder

Pat Sebold, who has complained in the past about not receiving minutes from the authorities in the past. "Although the boards are autonomous, we have a right to review and I hope your request is fulfilled soon."

"It's our responsibility and we should be fulfilling that role," she added.

Freeholder Joseph Parlavacchio said he "unaware" DiVincenzo was going to make the remarks that night, but he supported the president.

"We've had a good relationship with the ECIA and it will continue to get better," DiVincenzo said.

President has request of ECIA, ECUA

Be Our Guest

By Joseph DiVincenzo

Editor's Note: This statement was read by Freeholder President Joseph DiVincenzo during the Nov. 9 freeholder meeting in Orange.

I would like to comment on the resolution before us.

The state of the Hilltop is not something any of us are happy about, but it is something that cannot be avoided.

Essex County's mandated costs force us to utilize every potential avenue to increase revenue.

After this said, we don't have many avenues left.

As I have said before, Essex County taxpayers pay an economic penalty because of our geographic location. The ballot question which was approved Tuesday could be helpful.

However, I am concerned that the bigger issue, the unique costs urban communities are forced to bear, will not be addressed.

These costs affect our county the most. Essex County taxpayers will not see any relief if something isn't done to alleviate the financial burden of these costs.

I will continue working to make the state deal with this issue. After tonight's vote on Hilltop it will be seven years that we don't have any more options.

At this time I would also like to speak about two of the county's autonomous agencies—the Essex County Improvement Authority and the Essex County Utilities Authority.

Both of these agencies must look for more savings for our taxpayers, just as we are in the county. The freeholder board has to begin to take a greater interest in how these agencies are spending the taxpayers' money.

It is important. These agencies will continue to play a greater role in the finances of this county and we cannot ignore the actions they take and their impact on the county.

Last week, working together with County Executive Jim Treffinger, we were able to request the ECIA to lower their fees in the Hilltop transaction. We are fortunate they were willing to work with us to help the taxpayers.

In addition, by working together to reassess the agreement, we were able to identify other savings. These actions reduced the financing needed by $5 million.

I believe if this board had more information about these agencies, we could help them find other savings for our taxpayers.

So tonight, I am formally requesting the following information for calendar year 1994 and 1995 be provided to every freeholder:

The fees and expenses paid to third parties including but not limited to:

- the underwriters and/or placement agents.
- the letter of credit banks or liquidity providers.
- the municipal bond insurers.
- the bond counsels.
- any other attorneys fees.
- the auditors.
- the financial advisors.
- the printer.
- any other third parties.

I would also like the minutes of all meetings and the operating budgets for calendar years 1994 and 1995.

I believe once the board has the opportunity to review these documents, we will be able to suggest other cost saving measures that can be achieved for the taxpayers of Essex.

This board wants to work together with both the Improvement Authority and the Utilities Authority. That is the only way we can do the best possible job for the people we represent.

Joseph DiVincenzo is the president of the Board of Chosen Freeholders.

child, harassing his former chief and sabotaging a drug bust in which he tipped off the target the raid was coming. Dooley's activities concerning loans and mortgages he took out on property are being scrutinized.

Residents held a candlelight vigil protesting Spina staying on the job and vowed to continue until he was removed from office. He was last week, but the vigil put pressure on council members to do something about the affair.

In Nutley, it was discovered elected officials possibly could be playing favorites by granting tax appeals to a select few. There, a handful of residents have openly criticized the government and Mayor Carmen Orechio, with one resident announcing his candidacy in May's municipal election.

Community activism should not wait for disasters like these to hit. These scandals, although negative, do provide the impetus for the unification of residents whose common goal is protecting their towns and way of life. But residents should take a proactive stance.

In Maplewood and South Orange, Citizens Budget Advisory Committees have existed for a long time and have taken a rational, nonpartisan look at municipal and school budgets. The cuts they have suggested are often accepted with the result being a leaner and more acceptable budget.

In East Orange, a CBAC met for the first time last year and cut $5 million from the budget. More cuts were recommended this year, although the savings will be tough to realize as the local government has dragged its heels in passing the budget.

Unfortunately, residents can no longer sit back and trust their elected officials, no matter how well-qualified they are. Elected officials also have to realize they need the help of their constituents. Many residents have specialized qualifications which could tremendously help governments. They just have to be asked for their help. Chances are many residents would volunteer.

The Declaration of Independence states that government is for the people and by the people. That statement is more true now than in the past. People have to be included in the decision-making process. Posing questions to nonpartisan volunteer committees can bring more insight for elected officials and influence to what's truly best for the community they serve. Likewise, any conclusion reached will be more palatable to the public if they know they have had some input.

Blood drives announced

The North Jersey Blood Center has announced a variety of times and locations for opportunities to donate blood. "The need is particularly acute as the Thanksgiving holiday approaches," said Judy Knecht, spokesperson for the blood center.

Each donation of blood is broken down into various components, each of which have different shelf lives. One component of blood, platelets, has a shelf life of five days. "During long holiday weekends, there are frequently shortages of platelets because not enough blood is being donated directly prior to and following these days."

"There is also a need to build up the inventory as we approach the traditionally difficult winter period," Knecht said.

Donors must be 18 years of age. Seventeen-year olds may donate with parental permission. There is no upper age limit for donors, provided they have donated within the last two years or have a doctor's note. Donors should know their Social Security number and bring a signed form of identification. People with cold or flu symptoms should wait until they are feeling better before donating and there is a 72-hour deferral for dental work, including routine teeth cleaning. For those who have travelled outside of the United States recently, call the blood center for eligibility criteria. For more information or to sign up for a blood drive, call the blood center at (800) 811-0000 NJ.

Blood drives will be conducted at the following locations:

Center continues tradition of caring

By Robin Wallace
Managing Editor

This month, the Cerebral Palsy Center of Essex and West Hudson began its golden anniversary celebration with a gala reception Tuesday. As the center, located within the Clara Maass Medical Center complex in Belleville, continues the celebration with events scheduled throughout 1996, the milestone places the center as the oldest in the state.

When the center was founded in Newark in 1946 by a group of parents whose children had cerebral palsy, doctors knew very little about the disease, and victims were doomed to lives of inactivity and invalidism with infrequent treatment.

Part Two

Determined to change the situation, the parents conducted the first ever fund-raising campaign and, with funds raised from 20 people contributing $15 each, launched the center, including a dental clinic, in one room of the Clapp Children's Hospital in Newark.

Quickly outgrown, the center moved to the basement of the Summer Avenue elementary school, Newark, where a comprehensive treatment program began to be developed. In 1950, the center raised $140,000 in its first county-wide fund-raising campaign. Within the next several years, fund-raising efforts by local letter carriers contributed an additional $140,000 toward the construction of the Belleville facility, which was then in the blueprint stage.

At its 50th anniversary, the center moved to the Belleville facility in 1996. Since then, the building has been expanded, and contains an eye and dental clinic, physical and occupational therapy programs, a preschool and regular classroom instruction for clients from kindergarten through age 21, a successful thrift shop, an outdoor swimming pool and a variety of counseling, support, advocacy and referral services.

Like any successful enterprise, the center has recently gone on-line, with teachers, therapists and clients discovering the many advantages of computers to help in treatment, education and training.

"Computers are going to be very important to our clientele in the future," said Phyllis Burgess, executive director of the center with which she has been affiliated for 40 years.

The center employs 90 full- and part-time staff members and 30 volunteer workers, and this year was awarded a grant to hire a rehabilitation technician, a professional who develops adaptive equipment for the disabled. Burgess said the center develops much of its adaptive equipment on site, and the technician provides a great service in increasing the mobility and independence of clients by creating apparatus that allows them to perform the broadest range of activities.

Burgess said the future of the center is focused on preparing people with disabilities for the workplace. She said while most people are raised with the expectation they must be employed and support themselves one day, this expectation is removed from the disabled and places them at a disadvantage.

"A person who goes to work has to present themselves as a competent employee, and that is what we're trying to do. I think the greatest obstacle is experiences. These people have had such limited life experiences," Burgess said. "No one prepares the disabled for work. Our philosophy has not given the handicapped the right signal. Other children talk about what they want to be when they grow up. You don't hear that with handicapped people. Just because you are handicapped should not make you unable to go to work."

With the center's job skills program and independent housing and living programs, Burgess hopes the center can help reduce the chasm between the disabled and the rest of society. She said disabled children are already being mainstreamed at younger ages and at greater success.

"Our concern is work and training for work, and greater integration into the community," Burgess said. "We want to give them every opportunity to have experiences you and I have," she said.

Urban League sponsors bank, homebuyer seminar

The Urban League of Essex County will host a free Community Bank Night and Homebuyers Seminar today at 6 p.m. at 140 Bloomfield Ave., Montclair.

Through its Housing Education program, the Urban League has provided pre-mortgage seminars and courses to more than 350 potential homeowners. The Homebuyers Seminar is a free two-hour session which reviews budgeting, closing cost, financial strategies, finding a good realtor, home maintenance, types of mortgages and finding a good location for your home. The Urban League's housing educator has more than four years of experience in the mortgage business.

During the last seminar, many people received information they needed to begin the process of buying a home. This time, the Community Bank Night is being added so everyone can get mortgage information directly from many participating banks at one time rather than visiting each bank individually.

The Community Bank Night is also free and is the Urban League's effort to provide networking opportunities between banks/mortgage lenders and potential homebuyers. Potential homebuyers will have the opportunity to meet and network with more than 10 bankers/mortgage lenders in a relaxed and informal environment and find out about different ways to get mortgages. Banks will feature their mortgage products and discuss their process for applying for a loan. In addition, bankers will display other financial products they have to offer. Homebuyers will also have an opportunity to find out about Fannie Mae government issued mortgages.

To register for the Homebuyers Seminar and Community Bank Night, call 746-9438.

ARTS &amp; ENTERTAINMENT

Surreal artist comes to West Orange restaurant

Volare, the trendy West Orange eatery, is about to do what no other local restaurant has done — maintain an in-house artist to create a surreal world where fine cuisine merges with abstract artistic visions.

Upon walking into Volare, French artist Philippe Valy, has accomplished just that with some pretty exciting paintings and three-dimensional images.

Valy, who is from the South of France in a small town called Sanary, utilizes hundreds — maybe even thousands — of small knick-knacks blended into large images often suggesting the nature of existence.

"I'm a visionary," he said. "I want to educate people through art." That's certainly obvious through the strong mythical symbolism found in his work.

Take for example "America 3000," an exciting print on display in Volare that suggests the cultural landscape of the United States. Coincidentally, the original is owned by a man that lives on Pennsylvania Avenue. His name is Bill Clinton.

The image of the proud Statue of Liberty gazes upon a world that has changed right before her eyes. So how did so much insight engross a man who has only been in this country two years?

"I'm spontaneous. And I think it shows in my work. It just comes to me all at once," Valy said. "That's not to say that I don't go weeks, even months, without inspiration."

Valy believes he was touched by a higher power to do something special, to guide him. "The soul does all the painting. Sometimes you can't even control the hand — that's the mark of a true artist."

His notion of a "true artist" is an important belief he defends. To Valy, an artist may be able to go to school, learn the craft, cultivate some talent — but you must "be born an artist," he said. "Do it with enjoyment."

Valy has also spent time in the Caribbean. More specifically, St. Martin. In the Tropics, he found artistic paradise. The artistic landscape allowed him to further incorporate women and the sea — two constant themes he uses — into his work. The intensity of the ocean blues tempered with softer colors revealed art that dealt with passion, life and happiness.

He found much success on the islands. A highlight was when Queen Beatrix of the Netherlands came to visit, at which point Valy presented a painting to her.

He seems to rejuvenate interest in art no matter where he is. From the Cafe Theater in France to the Limner Gallery in the Big Apple, Valy's vision creates the surreal landscape for independent thought.

In terms of inspiration? Valy considers himself to be the spiritual son of Goetz, the French painter who invented pastels.

Also on display in the restaurant is a wonderful painting of Marilyn Monroe in a tribute that suggests the woman's legacy, grace and legend.

After five showings in SoHo galleries, Valy's next project may be publicly smaller in scope but bigger in human nature. The artist would relish the opportunity to create some sort of a large mural of sorts for his hometown of Clifton.

As one can tell, Valy is a humanitarian. So it's no surprise that when the Orlando-based "Give Kids the World" auction asked the artist to donate a piece for their cause, he did so with no questions asked.

National Stage debuts 'Glennegarry Glen Ross'

Anyone who's worked in sales knows what kind of monotonous racket it could be. The process of "working" a potential customer down to his bone marrow just to have him sign on the dotted line is common practice. Often times, this "be always selling" mentality makes swimming with the sharks look like a weekend getaway.

Check out National Stage Company's production of "Glennegarry Glen Ross" by David Mamet and you'll be taken on a two-hour roller-coaster ride of desperation set in the cutthroat world of real estate sales.

The play centers around five men who work in a real estate office in Chicago. At first, we don't see them in their working environment, but in another setting where most deals are usually made — a restaurant. The Chinese eatery is their sanctuary where these white-collar con men of sorts complain about the bile business they so very much deplore. All of them, that is, except for Richard Roma.

Roma, played by Andrew Lionetti, is no stranger to the National Stage Company. We've seen him play rough as well as smooth. As Roma, he's both. Roma is a master con man and the sales leader in the office. He uses his words so well, he could sell birth control devices to the pope.

In the first act, we see Roma plant a seed inside of James Ling. Ling, played by Paul Stabile, doesn't know what to make of Roma's idle banter. The feeble man is just another day's prey out in the wide open for Roma to come along and devour. It isn't long before the salesman is invited over to meet Mrs. Ling to sell them some land.

On the other side of the restaurant, Shelly "The Machine" Levine begs Williamson, the uptight office manager, for the premium leads. Levine, a relic of the past, is a by-product of the days when cold-calling and door-to-door selling was expected from a salesman. In these frugal modern days, that just won't cut it anymore. And Levine, who was once a sales leader, is becoming a sad, defeated and desperate man.

As Levine, Alexander Barnett

shines. He makes Mamet's manic rhythm sound as natural as everyday conversation. Barnett is a man who is no stranger to the stage and this most definitely shows. After playing characters like Hamlet, Oedipus, King Lear and MacBeth, Shelly Levine is a walk in the park for this seasoned pro.

Ned Snell's Williamson is right on target. He's the slimy little "corporate boy" all the salesmen hate. He's their watchdog. We see this collective resentment when Levine asks the rest of the office "When was the last time this $#%& was out on a 'sit'."

Also in the restaurant that night is Moss and Aaronow. Flipsides of each other, Moss is the pitbull of the group, full of antagonistic rage against Mitch and Murray, the two owners of the firm we never see. David Sitrer as Moss shows us what agony the real estate business can be. Dealing with worthless leads he knows will go nowhere, Moss is a man so on the edge, he's ready for something drastic.

His partner, Aaronow, played by Jeffrey Norman, perfectly embodies a man who seems to be afraid of his own shadow. He sits there and just about agrees with everything Moss says. After commiserating a bit, Moss has an idea to "strike back." "Someone should do something to them," he says. "To the office." And thus exposed is the main plot point in this potent drama. Moss suggests to a disbelieving Aaronow to steal the good leads — the Glennegarry leads — and sell them to a competitor.

As the second act opens, the audience sees a ransacked office with papers and debris just about everywhere. This is where the emotional roller-coaster begins. The reason why the second act is so riveting is because Mamet takes his time setting up all the circumstances at hand.

From Levine's fruitless attempt to sell worthless land, to Roma masterfully working Ling, to the apparent burglary of the office, there is a whirlwind of commotion here. Add a pretty angry detective to the group to further annoy our already teed-off salesmen, and you have classic Mamet full of X-rated expletives and shocking revelation.

The set, always a treat at a National Stage production, captures the quiet essence of the restaurant to the hectic pace of the ransacked office. As a matter of fact, the stage so beautifully transforms itself, we often forget we're watching a staged production and feel as if we're eavesdropping on a career day field trip.

Directed by one of our area's best, Cris Firriolo knew this drama had National Stage written all over it. It's easy to overact in a Mamet play but his players know how to pace themselves like an impending eruption of Mount St. Helens.

The venue in which this play is performed is perfect. Usually on a much bigger stage, Firriolo decided on the 12 Miles West theater. This small 100-seat theater perfectly makes the audience feel like they're watching caged animals to add more crazed intimacy to the Pulitzer Prize winning play.

The National Stage Company continues with David Mamet's "Glennegarry Glen Ross" at 12 Miles West Theater until Nov. 26; Next is Arthur Miller's "A View From the Bridge" at the Blooming Grove Theater in February. The 12 Miles West theater is at 488 Bloomfield Ave. The Blooming Grove theater is at 544 Bloomfield Ave. Performances are every Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m. Tickets are $18 and $15 for evening performances and $15 and $12 for matinees.

Deidre Lang of East Orange in Paper Mill Show

Deidre Lang, a bubbly young performer from East Orange, takes her work very seriously. She appears at the Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn as Michelle Morris in the musical "Dreamgirls."

Lang is one of the "dreamgirls" in the second act after she replaces Effie played by Sharon Wilkins. In addition to being featured in the show, she also is the understudy of lead singer Angela Robinson, who plays Deena Jones. In fact, Lang was in rehearsal one Friday afternoon, and took time out to chat with this reporter.

"As understudy, I'm rehearsing Deena," she said with enthusiasm. "I know it means learning another role. But actually, it's not hard for me because I did this show before."

Lang performed in a regional production of "Dreamgirls."

"I know the music already, and I appeared in the show in a regional company in Long Beach, Calif., about three years ago. I was in the ensemble.

Essex Profiles

By Ben Smith
Staff Writer

This is what you call movin' up," Lang laughed.

"I love the show," she exclaimed. "Everybody is great to work with. 'Dreamgirls' is a great piece of work. I just fell in love with it."

Lang, has appeared in national tours of "Tommy," "Cats," "Bubbin' Brown Sugar," "Satchmo" and "Harlem Suite," and in the regional production of "Ain't Misbehavin'." She also portrayed one of the original flygirls in the television comedy "In Living Color."

"I auditioned in New York City for the role of Michelle in the Paper

Mill's "Dreamgirls," she recalled. "And I went to about three rehearsal calls and then found out I had the part maybe a month later. I live in East Orange and I live in Los Angeles, too. You know, kind of bi-coastal. My parents, Juanita and Wallace Lang, and my family live in East Orange. But I grew up in Plainfield."

Singing came easy for Lang, and she does a lot of it in the musical. "I never took a singing lesson in my life," she admitted, "but actually, I started dancing when I was about 8-years-old. I started taking dance lessons back then. I used to watch all the old Fred Astaire and Gene Kelly movies, and that got me started."

"Right out of high school I went to the Alvin Ailey School in New York City and took musical theater courses," she said. "I wanted to work right away, and my first job was a European tour of 'Bubbin' Brown Sugar.' And I've been working ever since. In between, I was in some shows. Right after high school, I did a show called 'Harlem Suite' with Maurice Hines, Jerome Hines' brother. The show toured and we went to Los Angeles and it closed there. I decided to stay there, and I got an agent out there and a month later, I auditioned for a show, a pilot, for 'In Living Color,' for television. And a year later, the show got picked up, and the rest is history. The show ran for five years," she said proudly. "I was one of the original flygirls."

'I love the show. Everybody is great to work with. It's a great piece of work. I just fell in love with it.'
— Deidre Lang

"You know," Lang admitted, "television is harder than people think. You rehearse eight hours a day and tape the show on a Friday. But it was fun for me."

Lang also appeared in her Broadway debut in The Who's "Tommy." "That was in February of this year, but it closed in June. I love it here at the Paper Mill," she added. "Everybody's so nice, and each performer treats the other as a person. It's a good place to be working in," Lang said. "And it's good to be working at home. My friends and family come to see what I do in person. It's like I can give back to my community where I come from."

The energetic musical show with so much singing and dancing can drain any human being, especially with eight performances a week — three matinees and five evenings.

"Oh, I get tired," declared Lang. "But I'm tired and I'm wired, and I stay up a couple of hours after I come home to East Orange, dancing and singing in my head."

The young woman said that after "Dreamgirls," her "plan is to go Los Angeles and pursue a television and film career."

"I'd love to make movies," she grinned. "It's my next goal in life."

"Dreamgirls" runs through Dec. 10 at the Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn.

Social Security numbers can hasten tax returns

Taxpayers can eliminate delays in getting their federal income tax refunds by applying for Social Security numbers now.

IRS District Director J.J. Jennings said, "There is a new law which applies to tax years beginning Jan. 1. The IRS is now looking at all Social Security numbers on all federal individual income tax returns."

Individuals who claim exemptions for dependents or who have qualifying children and claim the earned income tax credit are required to include Social Security numbers, SSN, for such dependents or qualifying children regardless of their ages.

HOROSCOPES

November 26 - December 2

ARIES - March 21/April 20

An acquaintance or distant relative may seem unusually friendly all of a sudden. Be on your guard. There could be an ulterior motive — especially if you're financially well-off.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

A health concern should be addressed before it becomes a real problem. Even if it seems minor, you're better off safe than sorry. Don't waste time on someone who is bound to let you down. Give more credit and attention to those on whom you can rely.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

Having a hard time focusing on your day-to-day tasks? Has your enthusiasm towards work dwindled? Need some excitement in your life? A new adventure is the perfect way to put a little spark back in your fire. Do something different.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

Go the extra mile if you're working on an important project. It will most certainly pay off. Minor frustrations are better dealt with in a calm — rather than emotional — manner. Try not to take life so seriously. A new friend may not be all that (s)he seems to be. You may be in for a surprise.

LEO - July 23/August 23

What you think of as innocent teasing may be quite offensive to someone else. Think before you speak. A Libra friend will offer good advice to an ongoing problem. Family quarrels are likely to erupt at the drop of a hat this week.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

Instead of trying to relieve the symptoms, you'd be better off looking for an immediate cure to an ongoing problem. Play it safe when it comes to finances. Gambling of any kind is out of the question.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

A crisis situation at work will give you the opportunity to show what you're capable of. Your impressive reaction is sure to get noticed. Try to better understand a loved one who may need some time alone. This is especially true if you're involved with Cancer the Crab.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

You can learn something from a young family member this week. Open your eyes and your ears and you may be highly enlightened. Older is not always wiser. Look before you leap when it comes to shopping this week.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
An associate you never thought of as a friend will show you a different side of his/her personality. You'll realize that this person is more complex than you thought. An unexpected delay on Friday may upset your entire weekend plans.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Stand up for what you believe in and you'll be sure to get what you want. Give in, and frustration is certain. It's totally up to you. Set a good role for an impressionable youth. You can make a difference.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

The accomplishment of a family member will be of significance this week. There may even be some type of celebration. A second chance on something you thought was a done deal gives you the opportunity to shine. A Leo with bad intentions may try to get the better of you.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20

Take the lead if planning a special event. Your creativity and imagination is sure to add the right touch. Keep a keen eye out for investment opportunities. There could be a diamond in the rough waiting for you. In matters of love, don't set yourself up for disappointment.

West Orange restaurant welcomes surreal artist

His osmotic creation process has led Vally to, set his sights far and wide and it just may be snowballing with his fine work found in the restaurant. As he points out to Volare and all its customers, "I would love to create the rendezvous of the true artist. That is my goal."

But does the myth of the starving artist ring true for him? Not at all. "You can't create without dreaming. And yes, I'm very happy."

Dining Review November 16, 1995

By Douglas M. Muro
Staff Writer

New to Belleville is Toscani Ristorante Italiano. It offers a warm, comfortable surrounding with mouth-watering dishes guaranteed to satiate the heartiest of appetites.

In only its second month, part-owner and award-winning chef Ricky Dee reports business "looks promising."

Located at 14 Belmont Ave. in Belleville, where the Stone Crab once stood, Toscani's menu is affordable and expansive. The menu includes numerous pasta dishes, seafood, veal, chicken, pork and beef.

Ricky Dee has been cooking for more than 20 years and is enthusiastic in his desire to make some new friends interested in fine dining.

"We are in a good neighborhood and everyday we welcome more patrons," said Dee. It is not uncommon for Dee to mingle with his customers after their meal to receive feedback or to share a good laugh.

The congeniality of the restaurant is most exemplified by co-owner Tommy DiNardo, who greets each customer with a handshake and a smile as maitre d' of Toscani. Success, he believes, will be based on insuring a pleasurable dining experience every time patrons visit Toscani.

The distressed, mauve decor provides a soothing effect as diners begin their meal with appetizers such as Frutti Di

Mare — a medley of shrimp, calamari, scungilli, garlic, olive oil and lemon.

Among pasta choices, the penne cardinal with fresh spinach, shrimp tomatoes and farmers cream is a definite pleasure. Or choose rigatoni filetto di pomodoro — prosciutto, onion, fresh herbs and San Marzano tomatoes.

Time before the main course can be spent in intimate conversation or in appreciation of the artwork that adorns the walls. In the mood for a chat, Toscani's friendly and attentive staff are always there with conversation, ask for Carol.

There are 29 dinner entrees plus specials, ranging from the $9.95 cavettelli con broccoli to the $22.95 costello vitello Toscani — a double cut nature veal chop grilled then topped with sauteed arrugula and portobello mushrooms and served in a garlic sauce.

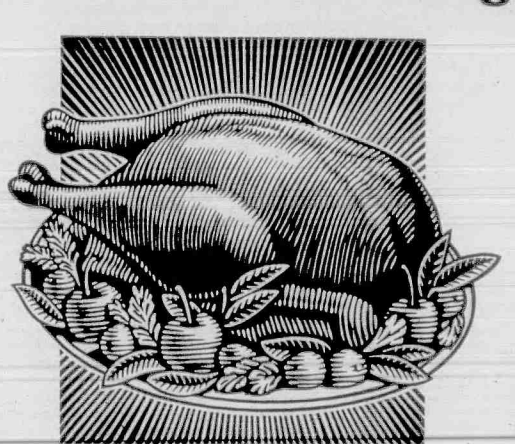

With bow tie pasta and smoked salmon, chicken breast topped with beefsteak tomato in a madiera wine sauce, boneless pork chops sauteed with garlic, artichoke hearts, wild mushrooms, red peppers in a balsamic laced sauce and zuppa di pesce, Toscani is not likely to disappoint even the most finicky of eaters.

An assortment of luxurious desserts Toscani's liquor license is pending, but that does not prevent patrons from bringing their own.

Toscani is open Monday through Friday for lunch from 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.,

Real Estate

Baris named agent for Walsh property

Jordan Baris Inc. Realty Services has been named the exclusive sales agent for the former Archbishop Walsh High School in Irvington.

Most recently, the block-long facility housed the Pastoral Center of the Newark Archdiocese. Jack De Rosa, Baris sales associate, and Ken Baris, vice president of Jordan Baris Inc. Realty Services, have been selected as the designated co-agents responsible for the marketing of the church-owned property.

The grand stone and glass structure features 39,760 square feet of primary space and a 9,744 square foot gymnasium as well as marble floors, 10-foot high ceilings and 8-foot wide hallways. Located at 100 Linden Ave., this distinctive property is near a primary county thoroughfare with convenient access to Route 280, the Garden State Parkway, downtown Newark, Newark International Airport and bus and rail connections.

"Originally a parochial high school, the 43-year-old building recently has been renovated by the archdiocese to conform to the needs of the Pastoral Center and offers updated amenities including central air conditioning, forced air heating, two elevators and remodeled lavatories. The large auditorium, cafeteria, administrative office space and grand-size gym with lockers and showers make the building particularly suitable for a special education school, pre-school, day care center or a community-related facility," De Rosa said.

"100 Linden Ave. offers flexibility in design and adaptability of purpose. This is an ideal opportunity for the buyer and the neighborhood," said Rev. Thomas Cembor, pastor of St. Leo's Church in Irvington.

Commenting on the rare opportunity this offering presents to the right buyer, Baris said, "It is highly unusual to find institutional real estate of this nature. Additionally, the property, located in a multiple dwellings and business zone, provides a prime opportunity for possible development into condominiums, garden apartments or medical offices."

Holiday season is ripe for home-selling market

The holiday season is just around the corner and so are the festive and busy days of shopping, decorating and visiting with family and friends.

For homeowners who want to sell, now is the time to "deck the halls" for the marketplace. According to experts at Weichert Realtors, the holiday season can offer home sellers unique market opportunities that don't exist during other times of the year.

Sellers who put their homes on the market during the holiday season may compete against less inventory and also benefit from today's low interest rates which bring more buyers to the market.

Furthermore, holiday season shoppers are serious buyers. This time of year is hectic for everyone and those who take the time to go to an open house or make an appointment with a real estate agent to see a listing, are not just browsing. They want to buy.

In fact, many buyers in the market at this time of the year are corporate transferees who have immediate housing needs. It is not uncommon for companies to send relocating employees to see an area during the holiday season because work and school schedules can be more flexible.

Also, holiday season buyers may be easier to bring to terms. People tend to be more agreeable, understanding and generous at this time of year.

In addition to attracting serious and cooperative buyers, the holiday season provides an opportunity to show these buyers a home at its best. Decorated with all the holiday trimmings, a home looks attractive and inviting. In addition, scented candles and the smell of freshly baked cookies will make a warm, long-lasting impression on a buyer.

Lastly, sellers need not worry about drastic changes in their busy schedules. During the holiday season, they usually can expect better results with fewer showings of the home.

Due to the volatile economy and lifestyle demands, home buying is no longer a seasonal event. Today, sellers shouldn't hesitate to place their homes on the market. Instead, they should take advantage of favorable market conditions as soon as they are ready to sell.

Olds owners write to the automaker to show thanks

Every car and truck maker in America has adopted customer satisfaction as its holy grail. A major challenge is keeping customers in a positive frame of mind when trouble occurs — a flat tire, a dead battery, keys locked in the car, etc. When adversity strikes, a manufacturer's roadside assistance program must swing into action to save the day.

Some of these programs work, some don't. For the past five years, Oldsmobile's Edge has provided every new vehicle customer a comprehensive array of services —

- guaranteed satisfaction
- a bumper-to-bumper plus warranty
- courtesy transportation
- 24-hour roadside assistance, including emergency service or towing, trip-interruption expenses, lock-out service, dealer locator service, plus computerized trip routing service.

The key to the success of any roadside service program is a quick, courteous, and effective response to any customer's plea for help. Oldsmobile makes sure that its customers are properly taken care of with a system of roadside assistance survey cards. These are, for all intents, report cards that monitor and rate the effectiveness of the response from the customer's point of view. A few are presented below to illustrate not only that the Oldsmobile Edge works but that it plays a vital role in the division's quest for total customer enthusiasm.

"I was visiting New Hampshire with five other women in February when my van would not start one Sunday morning. We were in good company. Most of the guests at the hotel were experiencing similar problems.

"Fortunately, I drove an Oldsmobile. I called the 800 number and spoke to a very patient, understanding, and helpful man named Steve. Within one hour, there was a man in the parking lot trying to get my van started."

000

"January was a frigid month in my village near Chicago. Temperatures dropped to 30 below zero. When my car wouldn't start in a restaurant parking lot, I called roadside assistance expecting a lengthy wait for help to arrive. Unbelievably, I was on my way within the hour."

000

"I am more than pleased with your prompt, courteous, efficient service. Please thank Eleanor who took my call and present her with my thanks. I'm glad I have roadside assistance!

"I am writing to convey my thanks and to express some comments to the people who man the telephones. Your expertise and eagerness to help was a major relief when I had trouble with my 1991 Cutlass Supreme."

000

"With a trunk full of scuba gear, I rolled into Austin, Texas, one Friday evening looking forward to weekend diving classes. But my car had other plans: it looked like Christmas on my dash. Lights were blinking and flashing. Santa was not on his way. The braking system was dying a slow death. I expected a major hassle."

000

"I began what I thought would be a morning on the telephone on Saturday. Elena, the Edge operator, knew all the important facts about my car and the local dealer. Before I finished my first cup of coffee, an assistant called me back to arrange towing. The tow service showed up within 30 minutes and they knew the proper way to tow a car. I was very impressed. After just one call and one hour, my car was on its way to the dealer."

"Follow-up calls have been just as efficient. I have always received a courteous, helpful voice on the line no matter how upset or angry I was. Buy those men and women a Willer! Great work and impressive service. Please hear my thanks and convey it to the troops on the phone lines. They are the first contact with the public and your greatest asset."

"One day on my way home from work in a winter storm near Chicago, my car died in rush-hour traffic. It wouldn't start so I walked to a service area for assistance."

I was weary of calling your 800 number but gave it a try. Charlotte, who answered the phone, was very knowledgeable and did a heck of a job for me. Within an hour my car was shoved to a nearby dealer. The next day it was repaired.

I still can't believe how well the situation turned out. I hope you can let Charlotte know how much I thank her for doing her job so well."

000

"The roadside assistance provided to me was a lifesaver. During a trip from Arkansas to New Orleans with my 3 year-old and my 5 week-old baby, I accidentally locked my car keys in the trunk. Since I had to get to the baby's formula, that was a serious problem. I called roadside assistance and explained my situation. A woman said she'd call back in five minutes."

"Three minutes later, she did call back saying someone would be there to help me in 20 minutes. Within 15 minutes, the locksmith was at the house to hand over my keys from the trunk.

"When I bought my Oldsmobile I didn't pay much attention to the Edge program because I was concerned about other things. Thank you a million times over for your help. I plan on telling friends about what happened to me and the grand service I received."

Come See Why We're The Highway Dealer With The Difference!

We really enjoy the car.

“ We'll probably buy another one. ”

One of the things we hope is that you'll end up buying more than one Saturn. Oh, not all at once, but over the years. To that end, we'd like to point out that Saturns enjoy an extremely high resale value: Our coupes are number one in the subcompact class, our sedans are number one in the compact class and our wagons are number one in small wagons. That pretty much covers it. Hope to see you soon.

The 1996 Saturn SL. Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price [ $10,885 ] includes retailer preparation and transportation. Tax, license, options and state-required equipment additional. Each retail facility is responsible for setting its own selling price, which may differ from the price suggested above. ©1995 Saturn Corporation.

GM trucks pack Vortec engines

Perhaps the best thing about GM's 1996 truck engine program is that you'll continue to discover its many benefits throughout your ownership experience.

Turn the key on your 1996 truck equipped with a Vortec engine and you'll notice how quickly it starts - no annoying grinding or delays. Then enjoy the smooth idle quality that's free of unwanted noise and vibration. Despite the temperature outside, you'll notice how quickly the heater warms up.

As you depress the accelerator, there's no hiding the engine's powerful punch. Engineers have used a variety of designs and technologies to unleash more power at specific times during the driving cycle. This means more torque for off-the-line acceleration, better towing capacity and better 30 to 70 mph passing performance.

Your next surprise occurs at the filling station. Despite the additional horsepower, you'll find you're using no additional fuel. This new power comes with no strings attached - no trade offs for fuel economy or emissions. All of GM's truck engines pass the strict new clean-air laws and are fully OBDII compliant.

Required maintenance - or the lack thereof - will come as an added bonus. The maintenance schedule for GM's Vortec engines has been significantly enhanced. That means more time between service on a number of systems, including coolant and spark plugs. That's a direct time and cost savings for truck owners.

In fact, engineers have pored over every detail of these engines in an effort to deliver customers the best product on the market. Every seal. Every sensor. Every system.

Attention to the big things and the small. That's what you'll discover as you journey down the road with your '96 GM engine.
