He had seven warrants totaling $10,000 from Newark, three from Maplewood totaling $1,300 and one from Bloomfield for $500.

• Police arrested and charged Eugene Fogle, 57, of Belleville with driving while intoxicated and careless driving on Nov. 12. ## Nutley theatre tryouts set Nutley Little Theatre has scheduled auditions for “Starting Here, Starting Now,” a Maltby-Shire musical revue at the NLT Barn, on Saturday, Nov. 22 and Sunday, Nov. 23, from 2 to 4 p.m. on both dates.

Directed by Noel Schoonover of Teaneck, “Starting Here, Starting Now” will run on Feb. 6, 7, 8, 13, 14, 15, 19, 20 and 21. (Feb. 8 and 15 are matinees.) Other shows may be added within this date range. There will be no rehearsals during the holiday season.

With lyrics by Richard Maltby, Jr. and music by David Shire, each song will play out as a dramatic event in this unique musical revue, which has been staged in more than 250 productions worldwide since its initial off-Broadway run in 1977.

The cast requires two men and two women — a younger-than-40 year-old couple and an older couple. Auditioners are asked to have a Broadway show tune prepared, but not to sing a piece by the Maltby-Shire team. For more information, contact Schoonover at nltboard@nutleylittletheatre.com.

Woody Regan is the musical director and Penny Potenz Winship of Montclair is the stage manager. A variety of technical positions for the production are also available.

Nutley Little Theatre stages its productions at the NLT Barn, 47 Erie Place, Nutley, located off Brookfield Avenue (one block east of Franklin Avenue) in the heart of the Erie Place Historic District. For directions, visit the Web site www.nutleylittletheatre.com. For more information about this or other productions, call (973) 667-0374.

CASINO CONFIDENTIAL

By TONY AUGUST

A Journey Back In Time, Atlantic City, A 2003 Odyssey

We're three years into the new millennium already, so what better time to look back at the way it was with some predictions and resolutions on the way the new Atlantic city could be, should be and hopefully will be.

Atlantic City is a seaside resort 60 miles SE of Philadelphia and 100 miles SSW of New York, resting atop a 10 mile sand bar called Absecon Beach, incorporated in 1854. It started out as a fishing village until the coming of the railroad in 1854 which helped turn this little village into Atlantic City.

The first boardwalk, a four-mile stretch of wooden planking overlooking the beach, was built in 1870 and the first rolling chairs appeared in 1884. By 1900 Atlantic City had become a high-class resort with huge hotels abreast a clean, wide seashore that attracted street crowds of vacationers, mostly Philadelphians, eagerly soaking up the sun and surf of the majestic Atlantic Ocean.

Atlantic City became famous for its great salt water taffy. An elongated and soon to be famous steel pier containing a theater, cabaret, club, movie houses, kiddie rides and attractions like a diving horse and diving bell, stretched out into the ocean. Eventually there were six amusement piers and a municipal auditorium whose hall seated over 40,000 making it a favorite spot to host conventions.

Atlantic City began to decline as a popular resort area, during World War II, when the Army and Coast Guard took over the hotels, closing them to tourists as they made them into barracks. The old and glamorous, Chalfonte-Haddon Hotel was made into an army hospital.

Atlantic City also lost a good deal of its tourist trade and with that came the loss of jobs and people left town for more fertile areas. Everyone in town was affected as real estate property values went down.

There was some hope, though. Politicians began talking in the 70s of how to revive this once thriving tourist resort city and they decided the best way would be by legalizing gambling. Oddly enough the first referendum on the matter was voted down in 1974. They tried again in 1976 and this time Atlantic City said yes.

Builders got to work immediately and a group of investors plowed $50 million into converting the “Chalfonte-Haddon” Hotel into Atlantic City’s first legal gambling Hotel/Casino, renaming it Resorts International. They opened their doors to immense standing room crowds only, actually letting people in and out on four hour shifts.

Steve Lawrence and wife, Edye Gorme opened the first show in the new hotel/casino and earlier Steve was given a $50 chip during the opening ceremonies and started things rolling by throwing a lucky seven setting an unprecedented winning streak for Resorts for the next 4 years. Their first year alone they covered their $50 million investment and made an additional $10 million in profit as they raked in $60 million.

Bally’s soon got into the act, the ill-fated Playboy tried its hand among others, but not until a young dynamic New York real estate, developer and entrepreneur named Donald Trump came to town, would Atlantic City reach its present day status as a national and international resort area. The rest is history and you can look it up.

TONY A’S NEW YEAR PREDICTIONS AND RESOLUTION

Many hotels will ease their pursuit of the high roller, just not enough to go round.

No-name entertainers will headline the showrooms. They cost less.

Corporate “bottom line mentality” will eventually wipe out any semblance of old world, charm, style and elegance. Machines and manikins will be substituted for humans wherever possible.

I renew the same New Year resolution each year I resolve to call them, the way I see them and to keep trying to find people who can and will provide me with space or a platform to say what I have to say to anyone, anywhere, who’ll take the time to read or listen, until I have nothing more to say or the breath to say it with, whichever comes first!

Greengrove said he remembers when the building was purchased by his family and later opened as a neighborhood hardware store. A member of the service at the time, Greengrove, was not initially involved in the family business. Once he returned home from active duty, however, he joined his uncle and his father in the business where he later became owner and manager until he retired and sold the business seven years ago. Even then, he said, the hardware store maintained a kind of familiar atmosphere where every person who walked in the door was greeted by name.

The property is in Fourth Ward Councilman Michael Melham's ward. He said it is "absolutely fine that they will come before us and ask for a zoning change."

He was comparing the property with the more than 20 acres earmarked for WalMart and Home Depot, where he believes the property owner wants to get the zone changed to retail first and jack up the price afterward.

At-Large Councilman Lou Pallante said, "I don't think it's important that the property is sold before the zoning change. We have to make a decision about what we think will attract certain buyers, not see who's going to buy what."

Pallante said the property is zoned industrial, but no one thinks the development will be industrial.

"If we think it should be retail, that's what we're going to do," he said. "If it's worth more, that's their negotiations, not mine."

Pallante said the Woodmont development group wanted to include the post office property as part of its redevelopment plan.

"The lawyer for the property said 'We're open to anything. We just want to make a reasonable sale,' " Pallante said.

"When I originally sold the business, the thing that I missed was the camaraderie with the customers," said Greengrove. "It was the sort of thing where you knew the customers since they were little kids...and there were some (customers) who shopped there for over 50 years."

Many residents lamented over the loss of the mom and pop business where customers frequently lingered for a friendly conversation.

During the course of the day following the early morning fire, several stopped to gaze at a family owned-business that continued to thrive after chain hardware stores such as Home Depot and Lowe's started popping up in nearby towns.

The fire broke out last Tuesday morning at approximately 1:40 a.m. Battalion Chief Anthony DeBerto said that over 100 firefighters from Belleville and several surrounding towns responded to the massive fire. Although the inferno was brought under control by 6 a.m., at noon Tuesday, small piles of rubble continued to smolder.

During the course of the fire, the roof collapsed, trapping burning objects beneath.

According to DeBerto, initial concerns about products within the burning building such as pesticides, cleaning chemicals and fertilizer were alleviated as a result of the weather. He said that the fair weather allowed those products to burn off and dissipate in the air without being trapped in the area by rain clouds or humidity.

He said that surrounding buildings escaped major damage from the fire. A heated brick wall that DeBerto said firefighters feared posed a danger to a neighboring business, was successfully removed by the day's end. A residence to the rear of the building experienced some heat damage on exterior siding and to windows.

DeBerto said that the business was empty when the fire broke out and no injuries were sustained as a result of the blaze. The cause of the fire remains under investigation by the Belleville Fire Department and Essex County.

$80,000 in other grant monies are being used on the project. Another $100,000 to $200,000 in county money is not available, because it was earmarked for the area close to the Nutley border.

"It's not allowed for any other purpose," Fuscaldo said.

bers in membership, Fornaratto said that the Belleville-Nutley chapter is maintaining a healthy membership. He said that chapters in other towns have completely dissolved recently and that groups that have survived will most likely condense in order to stay afloat. He said that the large membership generates enough revenue for the Belleville-Nutley post to provide programs for its members.

In order to continue the group's vitality, Fornaratto said, members have been reaching out to veterans from the Korean War and Vietnam, but conceded that many who served in those particular wars have been slow to join veterans' associations. The DAV has been working hand-in-hand with several other groups in town to boost membership and build relations. Last Tuesday, the DAV invited families of soldiers who have fallen in Iraq to join the group at its annual service at the veterans' memorial on Union Avenue.

into the fire continued within the scorched structure. During the course of the day, several agencies arrived at the scene to aid in the investigation of the fire. The New Jersey Fire Marshall's office, Essex County Prosecutor's office, Bureau of Alcohol Tobacco & Firearms and Nutley Fire Department were among the many groups on hand investigating the cause of the fire.

Wilson said that in the case of a large fire, several agencies typically aid in the fire investigation. No injuries were reported as a result of the blaze.

"The rain makes the soil around the roots of trees loose, and makes branches heavier with wet leaves and more likely to come down," he said.

OPINION

Where there's smoke there's fire

So let's just say it

Everybody thinks it, but no one wants to say it — so we will. The rash of fires at local businesses in this area is definitely suspicious.

Even if every single fire reported at a business in the Nutley/Belleville area over the last few months can be pinpointed to an accident, or “act of God,” after a while one has to ask, “what’s God’s beef?”

At press time, no official statement has been made about the possibility of these fires being intentional. We are not pointing the finger at anyone ourselves, nor are we saying these fires are definitely arson, but rather saying that the frequency and proximity of these fires is ‘alarming’ — pun fully intended.

The latest blaze happened at 3:30 a.m. on Monday morning at Kirk’s Auto & Truck Service Center at 126 Washington Ave. The business was decimated.

This happened less than a mile from last Tuesday’s early morning fire on the same avenue at Pro Lumber & Hardware Company in Belleville. That business was decimated.

The week before last month’s election, two Nutley businesses experienced late fires in two nights — one at House Arts Corporation on East Centre Street, and the other at a building owned by Professional Security Bureau on River Road. Both were located in the Washington Avenue vicinity.

Those two businesses weren’t decimated, but the fire at House Arts Corporation was the second reported blaze on that property in two weeks. The prior was a supply trailer full of the company’s merchandise. Notice the progressively worse nature of these blazes.

September’s fire on Franklin Avenue, which destroyed three businesses, has been deemed accidental, but its occurrence in the frequency of these fires simply draws more attention to the issue as a whole.

Sure, these fires of late could all be coincidence, but if these casualties were human instead of property, there would be a widely publicized investigation, and the media would have already bestowed a nickname on some elusive serial suspect.

Local firemen are slow to say officially that there’s something dire about all this. They have enough to extinguish without a wildfire of rumors out there. But off the record, it isn’t difficult to gauge their true opinion.

Like any professional, they know when they’re going through “a busy spell.” Every time there’s a large destructive commercial fire, with explosive chemicals and other dangers, the local firefighters are the ones who have to go streaming toward it.

David Wilson of the Nutley Fire Department said it’s always a good practice for business owners to check their security systems, including the burglar and fire alarms, always lock their doors at the end of the day and to install a sprinkler system.

The Essex County Prosecutor’s Office investigates every commercial fire in its jurisdiction. But as any newspaper reporter who’s been on scene with the prosecutor’s office knows, it’s easier to get information out of a troupe of mimes.

At press time, no official comment has been made by state or county investigators addressing the possibility of an arsonist — either to confirm or deny it. But it’s getting to the point now where the public deserves a perspective on this issue.

Fighting sprawl in New Jersey

McGreevey just beginning to live up to his promises

“There is no single greater threat to our way of life in New Jersey than the unrestrained, uncontrolled development that has jeopardized our water supplies, made our schools more crowded, our roads congested, and our open space disappear.”

— Governor McGreevey
State of the State address
Jan. 14, 2003

With those words earlier this year, the governor made fighting sprawl one of his highest priorities. But as the year winds down, it still remains one of his toughest battles. The governor made a lot of promises in the January speech, and only now is he beginning to live up to enough of them.

To his credit, his administration has worked hard to encourage the redevelopment of brownfields - industrially contaminated sites - in urban areas, and it has protected more than a dozen streams and reservoirs from encroaching development. These include the Oradell and Wanaque reservoirs.

Early next year, crucial but long-delayed water regulations take effect. The new rules will create 300-foot buffers to protect reservoirs and waterways from encroaching development and will require towns to implement tougher safeguards to reduce pollution from stormwater runoff.

But Mr. McGreevey’s ballyhooed legislative package of anti-sprawl measures disappeared last spring when his proposed statewide planning tool - the so-called Big Map, intended to steer growth away from rural areas and into urban areas - crumbled amid confusion and misconceptions.

Since then, the governor has regrouped, and the talk in Trenton is that the lame-duck Legislature may pass two anti-sprawl measures - one that would empower towns to charge impact fees to developers to help pay for the resulting needed new roads and schools, and another that would give towns more ability to direct new construction to areas that already have sewer hookups.

Mr. McGreevey, who has been mostly silent on these measures for months, must work hard to ensure they are finally passed - if not in the lame-duck session then next year, when his party will control both houses of the Legislature.

In the meantime, Environmental Commissioner Bradley Campbell says he will introduce a new, less-controversial version of the state planning map next month. The new plan is to create a multitiered approval process for DEP permits with tough but clear standards to steer development away from environmentally sensitive areas, including habitats for endangered species and sources of our drinking water. It sounds good in theory. The question is how good it will be in practice.

As a report recently released by the New Jersey Builders Association suggests, the battle against sprawl will continue to be an uphill fight. The builders claim that the state’s efforts to restrict growth will lead to higher housing prices, crimp the state’s economy, and cost 14,000 jobs, and, as we know, the builders have a powerful lobby in Trenton.

Mr. Campbell responds that the builders “think that smart growth means no growth, and that’s not the case.” He says the study ignores the hidden costs to taxpayers of unrestricted growth, from infrastructure costs for sewers and roads and schools to more traffic jams and more flooding.

But the all-growth-is-good mentality of developers and many local officials - who see new residential development as a way to increase the tax base - is hard to change.

In the past New Jersey has tried to curb sprawl by buying open space, but that has worked only up to a point. As the remaining open space dwindles, it becomes increasingly expensive. The McGreevey team’s anti-sprawl measures are the next sensible step, but supporters must work hard to overcome that ingrained resistance.

The second round in the governor’s fight against over-development is beginning. His job will be to convince still-skeptical New Jerseyans that he meant what he said in that State of the State speech.

Another SLCA hit...

Celebrating the block that rocks

Now that the Tenth Anniversary Block Party of the SLCA on Heckel Street is a memory, I can breathe a bit.

And what a memory it was. The weather started with pouring rain, but I guess God had different ideas and made the sun shine. We thank you, Lord. What a crowd we had.

For those who didn’t attend, let me try to give you an overview of what we had on the street. I guess the first thing would be the food — grills, supplied by Tom Apicella, were crackling away with hamburgers and sausage, donated by Violante & Sons, Shop Rite of Nutley, and Subs & Stuff. The peppers and onions and coffee for all were donated by Daily Catering. Our own Pete Caggiano of Heckel Street cooked up tasty reishish kabob and his truck supplied hot dogs with all the fixings.

We also had donated catered food from Zig Zag, Vitanzo Caterers, Scardignos. Portuguese food was donated by Solar Do Minoh; and of course Italian rolls were supplied by Nicolos, Giordanos and Columbus so that we could put that delicious eggplant parmigiana made by Nick Trabucco.

Soda was supplied by Stop & Shop and Pathmark; orangeade, pies and cookies were supplied by McDonalds; ice cream by Nastos’ Lemon Ice and by Rita’s; and the popcorn machine, tables and chairs by Just Parties. Zepoles were available for everyone.

For amusementm we had a D.J. who played great songs — thanks to Benny DelMau-ro and Nickie Carselda. You should have the seen the children dancing in the streets along with the grown-ups.

We had Gerard Esposito crooning songs with his fabulous voice — you would have thought that Engelbert was in town.

The Bukowski Animal Shelter brought along the cutest little cats for anyone wanting to adopt a pet. Carousel Entertainment donated two great rides, a jumping bubble and a basketball game. Money was received from many businesses from the surrounding areas. I must say that the business owners from Silver Lake really responded and I thank everyone.

We were worried about the rain coming so we rented a large tent. Fortunately, the rain didn’t come, so we used it for a gigantic dessert room, filled with cookies and cake baked by Mary Cetrulo, Theresa Sabatino, Vera Castellano, Diane Grant, AnnMarie Sanabria, Terry Sessa, Jean Giordano. And we had the Hostess with the Mostest dishing out the desserts and coffee, Rose Roppatte. We had taralles, by Racioppi, and the biggest 10th anniversary sheet cakes from DiPaolo Brothers. My neighbor, Ramon Mejia, made a delicious Cuban cake. Thanks to our wonderful chief of police, the street was safe. Grazie to Chief Joe Rontonda, Captain Frank Manno, Lt. Mark Minichini, Det. Sgt. Jimmy Giuliano and our favorite Community Policemen John Martucci and Gary Souss who gave of their time. Our firemen came along with the engine and distributed goodies to all. Special thanks to those who helped us put up the banners. We knew our community police van would be lonely, so we asked him to roll right over and he supplied lights and electricity to us.

Flowers and proclamations arrived from our Congressman Bill Pascrell who could not attend; Lois and Nick Trabucco along with Vera Castellano and her husband, presented me with a beautiful bouquet. Even Det. Sgt. Giuliano gave me a present.

The committee was great, starting with the Head Honcho, Nick Inaugurato, Joe Marra, Nick and Lois Trabucco, Vera Castellano, Lee and Toni Payne, Sam Papa, Ray Veniero, Barbara and Laura Lozaw, Pete Branch, Anthony Sessa, John Buglione, Tom Cappitelli, Anthony Minichini, Helen Infusino, Angela Cuzzo-Zarro, Rae Carlucci, Rita Charles, Grace Constantino, Elaine Spagnolia, and our singing and dancing chef, Pete from Pete’s Deli. Even the children helped out — so thanks to James Grant, Toni Ann Minichini, Stacey Sanabria, Robert Serrano, Gerard Gil-fone and so on and so on. I know that I will forget to thank someone, but forgive me.

Wait I did forget something...Video Joe videotaped the event. For those who didn’t see it on Channel 51, don’t fret because we have one videotape to share with all of you. Call me to reserve your night.

Everyone asked for us to do it again. it’s just too soon to tell. A lot of work goes into making it a success. The Silver Lake Civic Association would like to thank everyone who participated in the party and if your name was not mentioned, please forgive me.

And remember, WE ALWAYS WILL LOVE SILVER LAKE!

The second phase of life can be sweetest

From the time I can remember, I have heard people talk about how things will be when they retire.

Although for each person retirement may be unique, retirement itself is a common event. People do it all the time; some do it more than once in a lifetime. Even in our churches, people have a certain amount of fantasy about retirement. When you are young, retirement sounds like a wonderful dream come true until you face it. It sounds great to say that we will play golf every day, or shop every day or fish every day for the rest of our lives.

However, when we begin reading the Bible, we see that retirement is not an option in the Christian life. We are called to persevere in the faith to the end, and that requires active effort on our part. Moreover, retirement is not profoundly or theologically significant. I cannot think of anyone in the Bible who ever retired. You never read about Moses or Abraham or the Apostles Paul or Peter or any of the disciples having been given a retirement party.

In spite of following the Lord faithfully from our youth, we receive no free passes in our old age. We are even more responsible to testify to the Lord’s righteousness and power in continuing to give us the victory and deliver us from our enemies.

Instead of looking at old age as an end, we should look at it as the next level. Did you know that Grandma Moses painted over 1,500 popular paintings, mostly farm and country scenes? She did not begin to paint until she was 80 years old and 25 percent of her paintings were done after she was 100. At 94, George Bernard Shaw wrote another play. At 91, Eamon de Valera was president of Ireland. At 87, Konrad Adenauer was chancellor of Germany. At 89, Albert Schweitzer headed a hospital in Africa. At 83, Goethe finished “Faust.” Ben Franklin, was a framer for the United States Constitution when he was 81 years old.

Do you intend to spend your life for yourself or will you invest it for the Lord? Senior citizens are not aware that they have a great deal to offer and that they can be a meaningful influence in the lives of others; they can even invest in the next generation. Many young people need someone older to come alongside them and encourage them. We don’t always have to preach a message to show the goodness of God. God uses the entirety of our lives to tell others of His personal love for them.

Well, many will point to some of their physical limitations as proof that they can’t do anything, especially in their churches. The better thing would be to assess the things you can still do and go ahead and focus on those things. Today, there are many Christians who are dedicating their lives to a strong finish. They are visiting nursing homes, praying with lonely people, working on craft projects, and also teaching the younger generation how to knit, sew and how to use carpentry tools. You are only limited by your imagination.

Recent studies by the insurance industry indicate that just kicking back in retirement leads to a funeral in four to seven years. Longevity requires a purposeful retirement that includes meaningful hobbies, ongoing relationships and sustained involvement. If you attend a church, speak to your clergy and offer your services. If you are not attending a church, there are many local churches in the area that would appreciate your help and service.

Douglas MacArthur stated his philosophy in this way:

“You don’t get old from living a particular number of years; you get old because you have deserted your ideals. Years wrinkle your skin; renouncing your ideals wrinkles your soul. Worry, doubt, fear and despair are the enemies which slowly bring us down to the ground and turn us to dust before we die.”

When things get tough - she's the one to run to

By Richard Dickon
For students in Belleville public schools in extreme crisis, there is a woman specially trained to deal with such situations.

Jane Holzman is the district's crisis intervention specialist. In grades K-12, she "works with students in extreme crisis situations," according to Deborah Perri, director of student services and Holzman's immediate supervisor.

Examples of extreme crises include suicidal behavior, violence or any type of abuse, and conflicts that are "heavy duty," not just verbal, Perri said.

Their designated child study teams and case manager handles special education students. "They know the kids better," Perri said.

Belleville has had a crisis intervention specialist for at least seven years, and Holzman is just beginning her fourth year.

After much discussion seven years ago, the township council and Belleville Municipal Alliance collaborated with the board of education to create the position. Former school board member Barbara Cicalese was a strong advocate of adding the specialist.

"The position is absolutely flourishing," Perri said. "We have an expert who knows the job well and collaborates with the student services department. She works with other counselors and core teams in other schools."

Holzman is in charge of in-service learning sessions for the staff. She helps arrange outside counseling and mental health services, Perri said. Holzman is a resource person for teachers, parents and students, she said.

"In times of crisis, she is an integral part of developing plans of actions, along with the administration," Perri said.

As temperature drops, schools collect clothes

By Richard Dickon
The Belleville School District's Jane Holzman helped start a drive that brought coats, hats, scarves, gloves and mittens to Belleville residents in need.

With the holiday season nearing, Holzman, the schools' crisis intervention specialist, got the Wyoming

School Parent Teacher Organization of Millburn to sponsor a Community Outreach Annual Coat Drive.

She suggested to the committee that the coats and other winter items be donated to St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church in Belleville. She made all the arrangements and delivered more than 100 items on Nov. 3.

Holzman lives in Millburn and is part of the community outreach committee, which reaches out to areas in need in Essex County.

"I asked if the collected items could go to St.

Peter's," she said. "We collected 100 items over two weeks, and St. Peter's is distributing them at its food bank."

"This is just in time for the cold," Holzman said. "Giving has always been important to me. I'm into my fourth year here in Belleville, and I have a real strong investment in the community."

Deborah Perri, director of student services for Belleville public schools, said of Holzman, "I am very proud of her efforts. Her idea of giving back to the community she works in is extremely admirable."

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas

Santa visits Franklin firehouse

The Belleville Fire Department, with the help of its friends, invites everyone to welcome Santa Claus to Belleville.

Santa will be at the Franklin Avenue firehouse at 275 Franklin Ave. on Saturday, Dec. 6 from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m.

The first 500 children will receive a free picture and a gift from Santa.

New and used toys will be collected at all firehouses until Dec. 15. Refreshments will be served.

Santa arrives at Clearmon Field

At 10 a.m. on Saturday, Dec. 13, Santa will be arriving at Clearmon Field via helicopter. There will be a procession including the Belleville High School Band proceeding to State Fair on Main Street. State Fair will have snacks for the children and take photos with Santa.

Santa will be arriving via helicopter compliments of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey.

Annual Chieffo display going up

Michael Chieffo of Belleville invites all boys and girls to come see his animated Christmas display along with Santa, in person, and surprise cartoon guests on Saturday, Dec. 13 from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. (rain date will be Dec. 14). The house is at 269 New St, Belleville.

Kids can drop off their letters for St. Nick at Santa's mailbox, also at 269 New St.

For the sixth year, Michael Chieffo is asking anyone who is interested in bringing an unwrapped toy the evening of Dec. 13 for children with cancer. The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society representative will be present. The society will distribute the toys to local hospitals.

Santa mailboxes set up in town

Belleville boys and girls are encouraged to get out their pens, pencils, crayons and start writing their wish lists to Santa Claus now.

Special mailboxes are set up from Nov. 17 until Dec. 19 to accommodate the expected heavy mail. One is at town hall on Washington Avenue and the other is in the front of the Silver Lake firehouse on Franklin Street.

Children can't miss the mailboxes. They're bright red and clearly marked "Santa's Mail" so not one has an excuse for not writing early.

By very special arrangements made between Mr. Claus and the Department of Recreation and Cultural Affairs, all letter writers are guaranteed an answer. A self-addressed, stamped envelope must be included with your letter to Santa so that he can write you back.

If children are too young to write, they are urged to draw a picture and Santa will get the message. Be sure to have someone print the child's name and address on the return envelope so that Santa can answer the letters.

Under the Quilt concert Nov. 28

Christ Episcopal Church has announced plans for “Under the Quilt”: A Concert for AIDS Awareness” Friday, Nov. 28 at 8 p.m. at the church, 393 Washington Ave., Belleville.

Performing at the concert will be “Girlyman”, a New York City-based trio which produces “Delicious Harmony-Driven Gender Pop” and Beth Sherby of the Montclair-area band The Sherbys.

Tickets are $16 in advance and $20 at the door. Proceeds for the event will help defray the cost of displaying the quilt, which is an important educational outreach to the community. To purchase tickets online or for more information, visit <http://www.christchurch-belleville.org/quiltconcert03.htm>. Tickets may also be purchased by phoning the church at (973) 751-0616.

The concert serves as the opening of the display of 14 blocks of the AIDS Memorial Quilt, which will be on display at Christ Church from Friday, Nov. 28 through Sunday, Dec. 7, the week of World AIDS Day, which is Monday, Dec. 1. Christ Church is spearheading the project.

Public services, which are yet to be announced will be offered during the time that the quilt is in residence.

The AIDS Memorial Quilt was begun after the nation was gripped in 1985 with the realization of the epidemic sweeping the country which became known as Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, or AIDS. The quilt was begun in 1987 through The Names Project so that the names of those who had died would not be forgotten.

Each panel is three feet by six feet, the size of a grave, and the quilt now contains over 44,000 individual memorial panels. Panels are joined together to form a “block,” which measures 12x12, containing eight individual panels. Fourteen blocks will be on display.

The entire quilt has been on display several times in Washington, D.C. Originally displayed on the Ellipse between the White House and the Washington Monument, its most recent display was in the area in front of the Capitol. It has now outgrown even that area.

The quilt will be on display from noon until 9 p.m. each day. Christ Church is in search of volunteers who will act as quilt monitors, ensuring the safety of the quilt and being of assistance and support to those who come to view this moving display. To volunteer, call Rev. Paul Walker, vicar of Christ Church at (973) 751-0616.

Here are several good tips to beat holiday stress

The holidays can be a stressful time. Between writing out greeting cards, planning parties, shopping for gifts, preparing the holiday feast and fixing up the house for guests, there are a lot of holiday preparations that can leave a person feeling run-down.

Along with the stress of tackling these holiday chores are the financial pressures, long distances, health concerns and conflicts with in-laws that can keep some families and loved ones apart. This can lead to additional stress, as well as negative feelings like anger, frustration, sadness, fatigue, loneliness or even resentment.

While it is not uncommon to feel stressed or a little blue during the busy holiday season, following are a few tips to help make the holidays a little brighter:

- Plan ahead as much as possible.
- Keep reasonable expectations.
- Accept that there is only so much you can do, given time constraints and financial considerations.
- Try to maintain a positive outlook.
- Get involved by helping others who are in need.
- Don't get caught up trying to please everyone.

- Be more forgiving and tolerant - many people may be feeling the same way you feel.
- Even with the best planning, be prepared for setbacks.
- Make time for yourself to have fun.
- Remember what really counts - a little compassion, love and understanding can be the best way to handle holiday stress.

A 'swanky soiree' and sanity can combine for a gala party

So you want to throw a cocktail party. But the idea of one makes beads of sweat form on your brow as you envision the hassle and expense. However, with proper planning, a cocktail party can be pulled off - without breaking the bank or costing you your sanity.

To cut expenses, make your party invitation-only, and ask each guest to bring a specific bottle of liquor. You'll have a fully stocked bar and will only have to pay for mixers like juices and soft drinks, and garnishes like olives and ice. Hand guests a bartender's manual, and let them get mixing.

If you don't want to limit your guest list, pick one or two cocktails based on the same liquor, like vodka or rum, that require few ingredients. Then buy the spirits, mixers, garnishes and ice in bulk. With either party style, be sure to have enough beverages for those who won't be drinking.

Now that you have the beverages, you need some supplies. Assume that each guest will use a glass or two per hour. Buy or rent an array - beer mugs, wine glasses, martini glasses, soda glasses. Or you can buy plastic cups. Be sure to have all the right tools for guests such as a blender, a jigger, a shaker, a strainer, a long-handled bar spoon, a bottle opener and a corkscrew. If you don't own barware, ask your friends if you can borrow theirs.

No one wants to clean their entire home after a party. To minimize cleanup, make the kitchen and living room the base of the operation. Let everyone "mix it up" in the kitchen and mingle in the living room. Close the doors to the other rooms, except the bathroom, to restrict your guests to the designated areas.

Partygoers come to events ready to eat, so don't forget the grub. It can be pricey, but you can minimize costs without too much difficulty. Transform a platter of sandwiches into finer food by cutting off crusts and arranging the sandwiches artistically. Make them on party day and cover them so they don't dry out. Or serve a sophisticated snack - a fruit and cheese platter. Arrange a selection from the supermarket or delicatessen on some plates, add some crackers and dried fruit and nuts. Distribute the food around the room or set up a snack table, keeping plenty of napkins on hand.

Every party needs some music. It will keep guests relaxed and offer some background noise. Avoid music that is too loud or your guests will have to shout to hear their own voices. Stick to soft rock, jazz or rhythm and blues. You can even invite guests to contribute a CD or two from their own musical collection for a potluck party mix.

Besides some music, you need to create a scene. Set up some candles, funky lighting or flowers for some style and ambience. You can also play up on a cocktail party's aura of sophistication. Tell your guests to dress semi-formally. Friends can don a skirt that's too short for the office, and you can traipse around your home in heels.

Of course, you want your guests to enjoy themselves. But don't forget to have some designated, sober drivers on hand to ensure that the intoxicated get home safely. If in doubt, let these guests stay over and sober up overnight. Take care of them with some water, soda, coffee or bread.

Help teens celebrate holidays safely

Follow these tips to help keep teens safe during the holiday season and beyond:

- Make sure your teen has a plan for the evening and that you know it. It's also not a bad idea to set a curfew. If he or she doesn't already have a cell phone, now may be a good time to get one so that help is readily available in case of emergency. If the school sponsors holiday parties, encourage your teen to attend as it's likely no alcohol will be there.
- Monitor the alcohol in your home. You don't want to be the access point for your child's alcohol consumption.
- Make sure you know who is driving. If your child is driving, make sure the car's engine, tires and brakes are in good condition and insist that passengers wear seat belts at all times. It's important that teens understand that they should never get into a car with someone who has been drinking or doing drugs, no matter who he or she is. Tell him that he can call home and ask for someone to pick him up at any time, no questions asked.
- Be aware of the local "hot spots." If you lose track of your child, you'll know of some places to look for him or her.

Winning

(Continued from Page B1) other personalities, deal with my own strengths and weaknesses, as well as those of my co-workers, helped me greatly," Rickett said.

Where does the pressure come from?

"I don't remember the coaches putting a lot of pressure on us to succeed. We would do that ourselves," Rickett said.

"All the team cared about was winning. What else did we need?" Rickett added. "If someone was struggling, the team would get on him a little bit, and try to help motivate him. The pressure came from within; you just didn't want to let your teammates down."

Not only does pressure come from the student athletes from within, but it also comes from their parents.

"At a very young age, parents begin to put pressure on their kids to succeed in athletics," Fuccello said. "I see it at the recreational level; the parents are more than their children, and that is not a healthy mix.

"The days of simply participating in athletics for the pure fun of it are gone," Fuccello added. "A lot of the kids that are participating in athletics nowadays aren't fully enjoying their involvement. The joy is gone for them.

"It would be great if we could get back to 'the good old days' when athletics was a release for the athlete, not a cause of stress."

Where do we go from here?

Obviously there is no way to alter America's obsession with winning, but something has to be done to return athletics to its purest states.

The true student athlete competes to win, but doesn't let athletics rule his/her life.

Adults, and most importantly parents, have to shelter the youth from the culture of winning for as long as possible, not push them into it.

As children, we competed with each other all day long, but it never mattered who won and who lost. We were just happy to play.

Bobby Franks inducted to MSU Hall of Fame

By Timothy Denman
Nutley High School graduate, and former football star, Bobby Franks has been inducted into the Montclair State University Hall of Fame.

Franks played two-way tackle for the Raiders from 1984-87 under former head coach Pete LaBarbiera. After graduation, Franks enrolled at MSU, and headed straight to the football field.

At MSU, Franks played offensive guard, and was inserted into the starting lineup three games into his freshman season. After earning the starting job, Franks never let it go, starting every game for the next three and a half seasons.

During his tenure at MSU, the Red Hawks completed a 32-9-1 record, winning the New Jersey Athletic Conference his junior year. MSU also advanced to the second round of the NCAA division III playoffs that season.

"Bobby was one of the best linemen I have ever coached," MSU head coach Rick Giancola said. "That says a lot about the kind of player he was. I have been the line coach here for 27 years, and have coached a lot of fine athletes.

"He was a strong aggressive player who could dominate the line of scrimmage, and he did just that," Giancola said.

While in the line-up the 6' 3" 295 lbs. guard helped the Red Hawks gain over 10,000 yards of total offense, and nearly 8,000 yards rushing. The Hawks averaged 350 yards per game, and 200 rushing, while Franks was anchoring the offensive line.

Franks was named captain of the Red Hawks his senior year. "Being voted captain was one of the greatest thrills I had as a football player," Franks said. "It was real special for me, because the players vote for captain, and I had earned their respect."

Current Nutley football coach James Kelly remembers Franks fondly. "Bobby had a great passion for the game, whether he was playing or coaching," Kelly said. "As a player he was very aggressive and physical, and he brought that passion with him to the sidelines as a coach."

Franks graduated from MSU in 1992, and went into coaching and teaching.

Franks coached the tight ends at MSU for three years after his graduation, working under his former head coach.

"When we had the opportunity to have Bobby come on board and coach for us, we jumped right on it," Gi-ancola said. "Anytime you have the opportunity to have someone like him on your staff, it is a blessing."

"He coached just like he played," Giancola added. "He gave everything he had to the team, his dedication was unmatched.

"I trusted him as a coach more than I would other young coaches," Giancola said. "Normally I have to keep an eye on our younger assistants, but Bobby was different, he did exactly what you wanted him to do without having to tell him."

Franks on field dominance and loyalty to the program was rewarded this year as Giancola nominated him for the Hall of Fame. The Hall of Fame committee voted unanimously for Franks' admittance, and his former coach, and boss, presented him with the award last Thursday.

Franks is the only offensive lineman to be inducted into the Hall. "Being the only offensive lineman definitely makes it special," Franks said. "Linemen don't get a lot of attention, and to be singled out is a great honor."

Franks taught physical education and health for 10 years at three different schools, Plainfield High, North Plainfield High, and Paramus High.

Currently, Franks is the principal at the Academy Street School in Dover Township, and resides in Oakland.

Franks is married to his college sweet heart Kathy. The couple has one daughter, Elizabeth, and is expecting twins in February.

Also inducted into the Hall this year were Linda Giarrusso (softball), Nick Matarazzo (basketball), and Gus Moramarco (soccer). While teaching at North Plainfield and Paramus, Franks coached the offensive line.

Wizards wrap up season, look for continued success in '04

By Mike Lamberti
For the Belleville Times

The Belleville volleyball team put together a good season this fall and with a solid contingent of returning players due back next fall, the prognosis is very positive for Grace Worley's wizards.

Belleville finished 9-16 this season, including a 5-7 mark in the NNJIL.

"Overall, it was a good year," Worley said. "We had a lot of new kids this year and the main thing was to get as many of them playing time as possible. I think we should be pretty good next year."

Senior captains Jen Hinton and Marissa Radice turned in outstanding performances.

Hinton, who was selected the MVP of the Bloomfield Tournament back in September, earned first team, NNJIL honors. Radice was selected All-NNJIL, second team.

"I can't say enough about those kids," Worley said of Hinton and Radice. "They did such a tremendous job with our younger players. Having them on the floor was like having two additional coaches out there. They meant a lot to this team."

The junior class was led by Yanira Almagro, who earned Honorable Mention, NNJIL. The other juniors who will be a key part of next year's team include Jess McManus, Jackie Hernandez, Marissa Molnar, Evelyn Bazan and Janice Rodriguez, who was the team's manager this year but should return as a player next season. Sophomore Anna Vilchez also stepped into a key role on the varsity this season.

"I wish it was time for the new season already," Worley said. "We've got some talented kids coming back next year and with a years experience, we have a chance to be a strong team next fall."

Smoke alarms available from fire department

The Belleville Fire Department, in conjunction with the Department of Community Affairs, Division of Fire Safety will be offering free smoke alarms to certain groups of citizens residing in the township.

The first criteria would be that they must reside in a one- or two-family residence. Additionally, if they are receiving any form of public assistance, involved in a government program in which an income level is set as a requirement for participation, or a senior citizen involved in a State Prescription Drug Program, they would qualify.

Eligible citizens may come to the Belleville Fire Headquarters located at 275 Franklin Ave., between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. If any resident has questions, call (973) 450-3368.

Smoke alarms should be installed on every level of the home, in bedrooms, outside sleeping areas and above stairwells. They should be in the middle of the ceiling, or mounted on a wall at least three feet from a corner and six inches from the ceiling. Do not install near fans or air ducts where the smoke can be blown away from the alarm, or within 10 feet of a stove or shower area. They should be tested every week and the battery should be replaced once a year. Keep the outside cover clean by removing dust and dirt by vacuuming.

Remember that 80 percent of all fire fatalities occur in the home, and residential fires kill an average of 5,000 people and injure an additional 21,000 people a year.

ducted in early October, the first and second for sellers and the third and fourth for buyers.

What's your junk worth?

Moving? Downsizing? You could be tossing $100 bills in the trash every time you clean out the house or garage.

The values of ordinary-looking items have skyrocketed in recent years, according to Tony Hyman, host of "What's It Worth" on CBS-TV. Because many valuables were inexpensive or look like junk, folks don't realize how much these items are worth to today's collectors.

The top 10 items you should never sell at a garage sale include:

- Halloween decorations: Papier-mache, jack-o'-lanterns and cardboard skeletons have value as does anything, even crepe paper, decorated with cats and witches.
- Banana-seat bicycles: In good condition, these 1970s toys bring $500 and up and can be sold with one phone call.
- Costume jewelry: Plastic and rhinestones that cost $5 or less in the 1930s and 1940s, frequently bring multiple hundreds of dollars today (a plastic 1940s frog pin recently sold for $4,800).
- Christmas decorations: Collectors' love of glass ornaments, Santa figures and early artificial trees of feathers or aluminum goes on long after the season is over.

- PEZ dispensers: These candy toys remain a hot item, with record prices being set for those without feet.

- Electric trains: Experts predict values to fall sharply in coming years and advise selling now. Lionel model trains from the 1950s can put thousands of dollars in your pocket.

- Hawaiian shirts: If it's all silk or rayon and has a colorful print, a shirt will likely bring between $50 and $1,000.

- Cast-iron cookware: Any skillets, griddles, roasters, muffin pans and other cast-iron cookware made in the United States are likely to be valued from $10 to $1,500, especially lids and odd shapes.

- Cigarette lighters: Values of the big names like Ronson, Zippo, Evans and Dunhill can range from $5 to $5,000, so expert advice is essential.

- Pottery marked with a maker's name: A $130 yard sale vase was sold to its new owner for $39,000 with the help of an expert referred by Hyman.

Other common items with uncommon values include beer mugs, pocket knives, electric guitars, briar pipes, war souvenirs (including Vietnam), transistor radios, calculators, 78 and 33 rpm records, cap guns, auto owner's manuals, cookie jars, nodder dolls, Disneyland souvenirs, lace, yo-yos (especially rhinestone studded), board games based on TV shows and hundreds of other items.

To find out if you own something valuable, you need expert advice; then you need to find out who wants it at a fair price. There's only one good buyer of cigar boxes in the country, and people who want sewing machines and cocktail shakers can be equally hard to find. The 640-page, 10th edition of Hyman's "Trash or Treasure Guide to the Best Buyers" introduces readers to the top 1,000 collectibles experts in the United States and Canada. Send $29.95 plus $5 shipping to Trash or Treasure, Box 3028-B, Pismo, CA 93448. Credit card orders call (905) 773-6777 after 9 a.m. Pacific time.

"People are a lot richer than they think," Hyman says, "but most folks don't know how and where to cash in."

More people are flipping to food careers

By Karen Schloss Diaz
"Take this job and shove it, I ain't working here no more ... Paper cups, minimum wage, Just walk on out the door."

— Dead Kennedys
As chefs evolve into figures as sexy as rock stars, and the average American easily discusses the merits of mâche versus mesclun, it's no surprise that more people are fleeing Wall Street or the kindergarten classroom to dice and peel with the best of them. And as layoffs continue from pharmaceuticals to finance, the allure of the food world beckons.

Montclair's Barbara Werner, founder of Home Cookin' Personal Chef Service, went from television to tapas, so to speak. For more than 10 years, she thrived as an editor for the USA and Sci-Fi Networks, but once a baby arrived on the scene, she needed a career with greater flexibility and shorter hours.

"Over the course of six years when I stayed home with my son," Barbara said, "I'd cook something new every night. I figured, I better learn how to cook if I want to eat good food! But I never considered a career in the culinary arts because I knew what long hours that meant."

It wasn't until she noticed an ad in the back of a cooking magazine that the light bulb clicked for her. "It was for the U.S. Personal Chef Association," she said. "They were offering a week-long intensive in Cherry Hill. What I learned were the day-to-day details of how to structure a personal chef business."

CHOICE CUTS

Launched in 2001, Barbara now has 10 clients. "My customers are dual working couples, people too busy to cook for themselves but want good, healthy food for their families." Twice a month, she delivers two servings each of five entrees and three sides — enough to last two weeks. And before she takes on a new client, she assesses their menu requirements. "Some prefer low carb dishes, others want lower saturated fats. I want to accommodate their needs, which is why I'm a personal, not a restaurant, chef."

You'd probably recognize Joanne Ricci, another culinary career-changer, if you saw her. That's because she's been a fixture at Raymond's and the recently shuttered 28 for the last seven years.

A decade-long teacher of emotionally disturbed high-schoolers in West Orange, Joanne sensed her days in that field were coming to an end. "The school was moving, the director was retiring, the kids were becoming harder to work with ... I didn't want to become one of those teachers who was unhappy, and as a result wasn't good for the kids. So I thought it best to bow out gracefully," she said.

While wrestling with the question of what to do next, Joanne ran into restaurant owner Raymond Badach on Church Street, and started working part-time for him.

"He really encouraged me," she said. "For two weeks, he kept asking, 'Why don't you come here to run Raymond's?'"

Initially she rejected the offer: "It's a bad idea to work for a friend; what if I get bored making sandwiches?" Then she reconsidered. "I decided, some day I may regret not giving this a shot. And now, seven years later, we're partners and in the process of a major expansion!"

What is it about the restaurant industry that won her over? "It's hard to put into words, but many of the things I loved about teaching are the same. Every day is different and has its own unique set of challenges and things you need to accomplish. Certainly it's unpredictable. I really enjoy the business aspect of the industry, and it can also be very creative. And the food ... well, that's a given!"

Joanne and Raymond's new venture, an expanded version of the current Raymond's, is expected to open in late November. "Our goal is to be an Americanized version of Manhattan's Pastis: comfortable, hip, and inviting, with the same level of great food we always serve."

Any advice, ladies, for would-be culinarians? Joanne is quick to suggest getting a job "in the environment. I talk to kids all the time who say they want to be chefs, and my advice is see if you can work your way into a kitchen and then into a school."

"Everyone wants to work at something they love," added Barbara. Like Joanne, she advocates getting at least a part-time kitchen job. "It's something I should have done myself, because it would have helped to have a little more prep experience." And don't forget the Internet: "It's a wonderful resource."
