Resident of the former-Branch Brook Gardens, Luz Lopez, discusses some of her concerns with Det. Gary Souss of the Belleville Police Department at a block meeting May 3. The troubled complex is now called Audubon Place and has been taken over by new owners. Some residents say they're noticing an improvement over the intolerable conditions formerly provided. Others are reserving judgement.

Thursday,

Police arrested and charged Ben Miller, 35, of Belleville with shoplifting from the Food Basics store, 414 Main St., and possession of a hypodermic needle on May 8. He ran from the store with $36 worth of assorted items but was stopped by police. The needle was found in a subsequent search. Bail was set at $200.

Police arrested and charged Jacqueline Gilroy, 25, of Belleville with possession of two clear vials of cocaine and a wax fold of heroin stamped "Americaz Nightmare," after she ran from a vehicle on Mill Street and was stopped by police. She threw the items as she ran, but they were recovered. She also had an outstanding warrant from Hillside for $550.

A homeowner on Cleveland Street reported that someone had robbed their home while they were there, a so-called "cat burglar." The burglar gained entry through a ground floor window, and took jewelry, cash and a wooden chest style jewelry box. No value was given for the stolen items.

Police arrested and charged Mark Farrow, 37, of Belleville with driving under the influence of a controlled dangerous substance (CDS) and possession of a clear vial of white powder believed to be CDS after a traffic stop at 2:30 a.m. on May 9. Police said Farrow was driving the wrong way on Naples Avenue and was stopped at Newark and Florence avenues.

He was given a chemical Breathalyzer. He was given a summons for driving the wrong way on a one-way street. Bail was set at $250.

Police arrested and charged Virginia Tronolone, 23, of Little Ferry and Alexander Adami, 25 of New York City with driving while intoxicated after they switched seats in a Dodge Neon and fled following a motor vehicle acci-dent on Main and Bayard streets on May 8. Tronolone's bail was $250 while Adami's was $500.

Police arrested and charged Michelle Douglas, 27, and Autumn Miller, 27, both of Hackensack, with possession of CDS and possession of drug paraphernalia after their Volvo was stopped for a motor vehicle violation on Washington Avenue at 8:30 p.m. on May 5. A hypodermic syringe and two wax folds of heroin, one stamped "Lucifer" and the other "Demolition," were found in the car.

All persons arrested are innocent until proven guilty.

Marching band receives championship jackets

BY RICHARD DICKON of Belleville Times

For the Belleville High School Marching Band, the celebration continues for its 2004 championship season.

The band is the current USSBA All-States Champion, besting 12 other bands from five states in the 2004 competition. According to the Band Parents Association, it is actually a co-winner with the marching band from the State of Virginia. The honor comes from winning several competitions throughout the year.

At the May 2 Board of Education meeting, the band members showed off new championship jackets.

According to Band Director Paul Haase, it's customary for all championship teams at the high school to have championship jackets purchased by the board of education.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Edward Kliszus said that the band had a pizza party in late April where the members received their jackets. They will don them this week at a competition in Hershey Park. Pa.

"We wanted to thank the board for buying the jackets," Joseph Long, president of the marching band, said to the board in front of an audience packed with other band members and their parents.

School Board President John McManus said the jackets were deserved.

"You earned those jackets, with the number of trophies and all of the credit you have brought to this school," he said.

The jackets are embroidered with the words "Central and New Jersey Region All State Champs for 2004. They are mostly Belleville school colors - blue, with gold trim.

This is the first time that the Belleville Marching Band has been first among several states, let alone New Jersey, Haase said.

"I don't think we would've even talked about this a couple of years ago," he said. "The kids are really amazing, what they have accomplished in a short time."

Stina Calungsgod was named Best Drum Major in the J.P. Stephens Competition. She said it "feels amazing" to be the first band to soar to such heights.

"Personally, I feel whatever I do has to be original and unique," she said. "It's good to be first."

The marching band is not the only music department group enjoying success.

The Wind Ensemble competed in the Region 1 Concert Festival and took the silver medal, Haase said

"They're relatively new," he said. "This is only their second year."

The marching band began learning its music in the summer and continued to practice four days every week.

When not competing, the band can be seen marching in local parades and performing at local football games.

Residents are eager to see if life improves

BY ANNA SPIEWAK of Belleville Times

Officials held the very first block meeting on May 3 at the newly named Audubon Place, formerly known as troubled Branch Brook Gardens Apartments.

The complex was sold for $40 million last month after the previous landlord was fined and brought to court on a number of state and county health and safety violations.

"BBG, I don't want to hear that name," said Councilwoman Marie Strumolo Burke. "From now on it will be called Audubon Place. It's a new renaissance in town."

Strumolo Burke and County Freeholder Ralph Caputo spearheaded a complaint against the former landlord, Larry Lipschutz, after Officer Gary Souss investigated the complex, known as the largest in the township, based on tenant complaints at block meetings. He reported many violations infringing on people's quality of life.

"When we started this (last year,) everyone thought it was a waste of time," said Caputo. "But we got lucky. The former owner took his money and left."

After more than a month, all tenants say the place looks cleaner and some say the new owners are kinder and more courteous, while others have concerns about their futures under new management.

Manhattan-based Praedium Group LLC and Audubon Communities Management LLC, which have projects all over the tri-state area, took over the 404-unit complex at the end of March.

Since their coming, the sidings of the buildings have been fully replaced and roof work has started. Landscaping is also underway with overgrown trees and bushes being cut down, said Audubon Communities CEO, Andrew Schwarz.

"We're doing everything we can as quickly as we can," he said in a subsequent interview. "Stuff that takes permitting is going to take longer than stuff that doesn't take permitting."

Usually inside work need permits, he added.

The new owners were actually supposed to be present at the May block meeting, but because of a minor miscommunication, they did not show up, for which they apologized immensely, said Souss. But Caputo said it was a good thing that the owners weren't there, because it gave tenants a chance to prepare a list of questions for the new landlords.

"We're usually such good neighbors," said Schwarz. "We go to dedications, clearly it behooved us to be there and Chuck (Reyer, company president) got sick and forgot to tell Gary (Souss)."

Mike Bit-Alkhas, a 20-year Branch Brook resident acknowledged that improvements are being done, but he was disappointed that the new owners are not notifying the residents about what's going on.

"They're bulldozing around," said Bit-Alkhas referring to the new owners not giving all residents any written notifications about their next plan of action, etc.

Schwarz said he and his partner are looking to get back to the tenants at the next June meeting and verbally tell them exactly what they will be doing and in what order.

Bonnie Karg, a 28-year Branch Brook resident also said that the 404-unit building looks cleaner, but she is waiting to see what happens next.

"I'm concerned for the tenants," she said. "We have no heat, there are structural problems and old appliances that need to be replaced."

According to Schwarz, the complex has four new boilers on the property. He added that the heat problems are in the apartments themselves, mostly due to weak radiators.

A maintenance manager, David Hughes, can be reached at the office Monday through Friday to address such issues.

Roberta Eagle, a Branch Brook resident since 2001, said she was impressed with the new owners. She said the new management sent her and other residents placemats in the mail for Mother's Day.

"Larry never sent us something like that," she said. "Everybody deserves a chance," she added about the new owners.

Caputo concurred that the residents should give the new owners a chance and build a new, honest relationship with them.

"Go to the office and introduce yourselves to the owners," he said. At the meeting, Strumolo Burke also stressed patience. "Rome wasn't built in a day," she ter than it used to be."

Some residents were also concerned whether the new owners will give the old residents priority or just focus on collecting residuals from new renters who will come in to occupy the 88 or so empty apartments. Established tenants are grandfathered in with fixed rents, whereas new tenants would be paying $1300 a month.

Gail Cardriche inquired if she could leave her apartment and move into one of the new ones. But Souss said after spending $40 million on improvements, the owners need to start rental incomes, which would be higher in price that current tenants' fixed rents.

"We're not rich in Belleville, we have to bring new people to boost the economy, otherwise the town is stagnant," Caputo added.

The county freeholder also suggested that the residents form a tenants' association to prevent problems resurfacing in the future. "You're going to have to be self

School violence drop the result of raised character in schools in April 1999, schools everywhere have taken steps to stem violence. Those efforts have had an effect.

With the numbers of violent acts dropping throughout most of the state, and particularly in Belleville, the programs and initiatives are clearly having the desired effect. For the 2003-2004 school year, the news was all good, with numbers dropping or staying at zero.

Ever since the horrific Columbine events different school districts include utilizing the state program called Interventional Referral Services, formerly the Pupil Assistance Committee, which was started 12 years ago to offer training in avoiding violent confrontations.

> Student assistance counselors have been added, along with additional guidance staff.

Belleville has the "Walk Away" policy, where a student who is antagonized, or brushed up against, is taught to walk away, Some of the programs that have helped in so only one student faces disciplinary action.

dents with a number of penalties for violations.

School resource police officers in the high school and middle school, and the DARE officers in both schools are helping to deter incidents.

There is the Peers Educating Peers program where older students teach younger students to resist violence, as well as substance abuse.

Perhaps most importantly is conflict

Belleville has cracked down hard on stu- mediation, where a panel of students hears about arguments between students and helps them work them out.

> Schools will never be totally conflict or even violence free, but the work being done in Belleville has helped, and the faculty and staff deserve credit for making things less violent. Now they must keep those efforts up, to make sure violence doesn't make its way back.

OP/ED

BHS Music Boosters defend claims about honors classes

On April 28, 2005 the Belleville choir is honors worthy. Well, why Times ran an Op/Ed entitled "Music honors hurts students, A parent's open letter to the Belleville Board of Education" by Mr. Angelo Corino.

Mr. Corino contends in his letter "Belleville has 10 honors music classes" But according to the Belleville High School 2005-2006 Program of Studies there are only three honors music classes. They are Wind Ensemble, Chamber Orchestra, and Concert Choir. He says, "Belleville has only six AP courses". Again, according to the Belleville high school 2005-2006 Program of Studies there are 19 honors classes and 12 AP classes excluding the honors music classes

He says that Belleville has not raised the bar with honors music classes but only raised the class rank of the music students and that Belleville raises the grade for the honors music classes too high. Actually honors music grading is consistent with the grading of the other honors classes, which would of course affect class rank. According to the College Board high school music students score higher on SATs in both verbal and math than their peers. In 2001, SAT takers with coursework/experience in music performance scored 57 points higher on the verbal portion of the test and 41 points higher on the math portion than students with no coursework/experience in the arts. Looking at the College Board's results we should be introducing music to our students earlier, which would raise the bar even higher.

Med school more likely these music honors classes and that no school in the State of New Jersey that he could find has this built around the core course and kind of course offering or thinks then move out to the electives." It's should Belleville follow their lead? To cite one example from "The Comparative Academic Abilities of Students in Education and in Other Areas of a Multi-focus University," Peter H. Wood concludes that music majors are the most likely group of college grads to be admitted to medical school. Physician and biologist Lewis Thomas studied the undergraduate majors of medical school applicants. He found that 66 percent of music majors who applied to med school were admitted, the highest percentage of any group. For comparison, (44 percent) of biochemistry majors were admitted. Also, a study of 7,500 university students revealed that music majors scored the highest reading scores among all majors including English, biology, chemistry and math. Belleville should take the lead and do what is best for the students of Belleville.

Mr. Corino says that Mr. Kraemer told him that these classes are for music majors. Yes, these classes are important to music majors but does this mean that students taking honors classes in the other disciplines are expected to major in those areas? According to the International Association for the Evaluation of Educational Achievement, the world's top academic countries place a high value on music education. Hungary, Netherlands and Japan stand atop worldwide science achievement and have a strong commitment to music education. All three countries have required music training at the elementary and middle school levels, both instrumental and vocal, for several decades. The centrality of music education to learning in the top-ranked coun-He says that Belleville is the tries seems to contradict the Unitonly school in the state that offers ed States' focus on math, science,

United States House of Representatives stated in Congressional resolution 380 that the arts are a core academic subject, and music is an essential element of the arts.

Not an 'easy A'

He has "heard their grading referred to as an "easy A" However these honors music classes perform a college level repertoire with accompanying studies. Taking up an instrument can be especially tricky for kids, who have to contend with schoolwork, performance jitters and the occasional crisis of confidence before blossoming into accomplished artists. Learning to play an instrument is intense and exciting, but can also be a lonely pursuit for a kid, because if you want to make progress, you've got to put in a lot of time alone practicing. There is a track record of success. For example, the honors wind ensemble earned a silver award at the N.J. Region II Concert Band Competition, an achievement not previously accomplished. He assumes that anyone can get into the class in order to get the "easy A". Keep in mind that these students must pass an audition to gain admission into these classes and not everyone who auditions is accepted.

He urges the board of education to "remove the extra points you gave those students for the last three years so that you do not affect the class rank of the seniors and any other students." But I can't imagine any scenario where students who took classes under the established criteria would have so-called extra points these removed.

He claims, "By raising up one group, you lower the others." Does this same argument apply to the student who is unable to get into He says, "Resources should be all of the same honors classes as his or her counterpart?

In his aside to the reader he interesting that on May 4, 2004 the says, "This letter has nothing to do Performing Arts of Belleville High with the wonderful music program that we have at Belleville High School." But his inflammatory and derogatory references to these classes as not being worthy of honors credit, accusations of students getting credit they don't deserve, and these courses being an easy "A" imply otherwise. I find his presentation to be insulting and demeaning to those students, teachers, and administrators who are attempting to give our students a high quality education.

Boosters seek no favors

Mr. Corino further contends that the Belleville High School Music Boosters Association is the reason for this perceived inequity. He says that he "was told that in 1999 the music parents requested that the music students' class rank be raised and that in order to so they wanted honors music and choir courses added to the curriculum." He also says that "this has to do with playing politics and the board of education playing games with students' class rank based on a request from the music parents."

The objectives of the Belleville High School Music Boosters Association are to aid in developing interest, provide financial support, encouragement, and moral support to the activities of the Belleville High School Music program. In accomplishing these objectives, the Belleville High School Music Boosters Association consults with, and is advised by, the supervisor of Visual and

We fully support the honors music courses, as presently constituted and object to any effort that would exclude qualified students despite their grade level from participating in and earning the full honors credit they deserve. However we do not pretend to be qualified to advise the Belleville Board of Education as to how these programs should be administered.

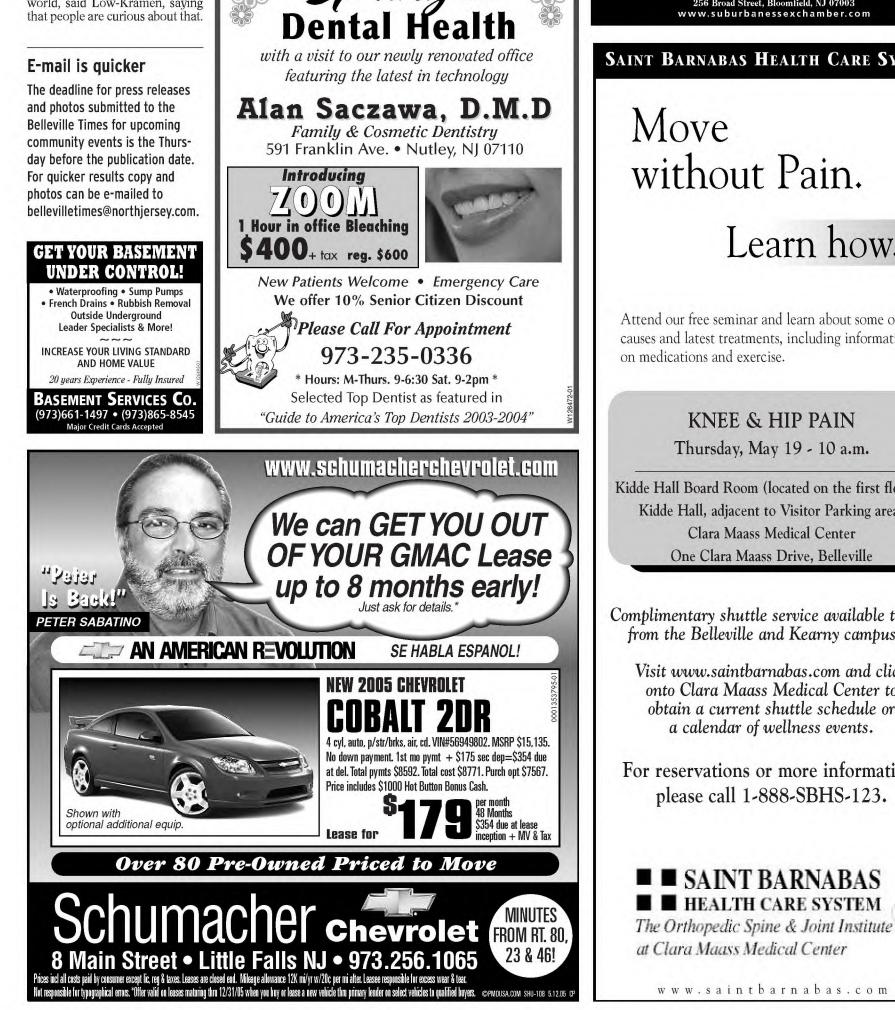

Furthermore, we encourage the board of education to do everything within its power to offer the highest quality and most comprehensive course of study possible. Register now for summer camp

The Belleville Recreation Department is now accepting registration for its seventh annual "Camp Belleville" program this summer, a structured, self-contained, six-week program for children now in kindergarten through sixth grade.

The camp will be held at the the Rec House 407 Joralemon St. and will be supervised by certified instructors and/or college and high school student assistants.

school student assistants. The program will run from Monday, June 27 through Friday, August 5 from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. For flexibility, children may join in one-week intervals and have the option of joining for any or all of the six weeks of the program.

Pre-registration is required and participation is limited to the first 100 children to apply per session. Registration began May 9 and ends June 10. Nominal program fees may be required. Late applicants will be placed on a waiting list. Applications are available at the recreation office.

Campers will be grouped into three different activity groups: grades K and 1, grades 2 and 3, and grades 4 through 6; or by gender. A variety of activities will be scheduled on a daily basis, including sports, arts and crafts, games and drama. Youngsters must bring their lunch to camp each day.

lunch to camp each day. In addition to "Camp Belleville," the township will also host its free summer playground program. The traditional playground program, in existence for many years, will be held at the stadium and possibly at the Friendly House from Monday, June 27 through Friday, August 5. Those hours are from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., but playgrounds will be closed for lunch from noon to 1 p.m. These playgrounds are open to children who are currently in grades kindergarten through eight.

Playground registration will be done during the first week at each location and children must sign in and out daily as they come and go. College-age counselors will be present to lead games and activities.

All programs will be closed on rainy days.

For further information regarding either program, call 973-450-3422.

Belleville cops recovered the getaway car for a band of burglars operating in Wallington.

Wallington police were searching for two Newark residents in connection with a burglary last Wednesday.

John Ortiz, 24, was wanted for kicking in the front door of a Mount Pleasant home and stealing watches, jewelry, and an undetermined amount of money, said Police Director Anthony Benevento.

The homeowner identified Ortiz from a collection of mug shots as the man he saw run from the side door of his home when he returned from work at 7 p.m. Wednesday. The homeowner wrote down the license plate of a white Kia that police said was used as the getaway car.

"Getting the plate was a great job," Benevento said.

Belleville police stopped the Kia later that evening, which led to the arrest of another Newark resident, Emilio Rodriguez, 29. He was charged with possession of stolen property.

The vehicle owner, Mercedes Cruz, 39, also of Newark, was also wanted for questioning about the incident.

Police believe the homeowner was specifically targeted because he is new to the neighborhood and is having work done on his home, Benevento said.

Insurance scammers get day in court

A group of alleged scammers who operated in Belleville and other towns are being brought to justice.

Six Passaic men were indicted last Tuesday in an insurance scam that netted thousands of dollars and spanned North Jersey.

Free blood screens coming up

The Community Health Department at Clara Maass Medical Center has announced its 2005 monthly comprehensive blood screenings. Screenings will be held from 7 to 9 a.m. in Essex Room A, located adjacent to the main lobby of the medical center, on the following dates: May 26, June 23, July 28, Aug. 25, Sept. 22, Oct. 27, Nov. 17 and Dec. 22.

Cost for the screening is $35. Pre-registration is required. Contact the Community Health Department at Clara Maass at 1-888-SBHS-123 to register.

Authorities said the men used fake IDs to submit claims to insurance companies from October 1999 through December 2003. According to the indictment handed up in Superior Court in Paterson, they stole the identities of legitimate clients, submitted claims and then pocketed the money. Andre Pascal, Pedro Pascal, Luis Pascal, Jose Pascal, Hector Abreu and Wilfredo Abreu face 10 years in prison if they are found guilty of health-care claims fraud. The Pascals are brothers, as are the Abreus, police said.

School violence drops almost two thirds

Belleville Times BY RICHARD DICKON of Belleville Times

Following a trend throughout most of the state, school violence and vandalism decreased in Belleville public schools for the 2003-2004 school year, with inci-

2005 dents of violence down almost two thirds Incidents of violence dropped from 32 to 12 and total incidents, 12, which also includes vandalism, weapons and illegal substances, fell significantly, from 40 to 14, according to state Department of Education statistics.

At Belleville schools, where enrollment was up slightly to 4,573, vandalism dropped from three to two instances, while weapons went from one to zero and substances stayed at zero from 2002-2003.

More than two thirds of New Jersey schools reported five or fewer incidents of violence, vandalism or substance abuse during the School Board President John 2002-2003 school year, with one McManus said the decreasing dents all, according to the annual report.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Edward Kliszus said the decrease "is due to the diligence of the staff."

The schools utilize the state program called Interventional Referral Services, formerly the Pupil Assistance Committee, which was started 12 years ago to offer training in avoiding violent confrontations.

Student assistance counselors have been added in grades kindergarten through six, and additional guidance staff has been added to the high school.

"Everyone, including the stu-dents, are more aware," Kliszus said of the need to stem violence. "We have the 'Walk Away' policy, where a student who is antagonized, or brushed up against, is taught to walk away, so only one student faces disciplinary action. It has been very successful in the past two years?

school in three reporting no inci- numbers are a tribute to the hard work of the faculty and staff of the schools.

"They have cracked down hard on kids with a number of penalties for violations," he said. "They have taken a pretty hard line."

McManus pointed to school resource officers in the high school and middle school, and the DARE officers in both schools as helping to deter incidents.

Peers Educating Peers is a program where older students teach younger students to resist violence, as well as substance abuse, he said.

Most importantly is conflict mediation, where a panel of students hears about arguments between students and helps them work them out, McManus said.

When you put all the pieces together, the faculty and staff have done a great job, and we have less and less (violence)," he said. "A lot of it is due diligence by them to try and make sure things don't escalate. Programs started years ago are paying off."

student enrollment. The state commissioner of education agreed.

"New Jersey has aggressively pursued a variety of policy and program strategies to address the problems of disruption and violence in the schools since the beginning of the Safe Schools Initiative of 1994," said Commissioner of Education William Librera.

Last year, school officials attributed a significant plunge in violence to efforts made in increasing lighting around each school building, installation of new doors that can only be opened from the inside and security cameras installed in the hallways of the high school.

Suspensions are the last resort these days, officials said, since there's no supervision in most homes where both parents work. For this reason, Belleville High School has had a school resource officer, a plainclothes police officer, Det. Paul Auriemma, for the past four years. The goal of having the officer at the school is to develop a relationship between an authority figure and the students, ergo discourage misconduct on school grounds, according to police officials in the juvenile bureau.

Belleville's Drug Abuse Resistance Education (D.A.R.E.) program has been in place for the past 11 years.

Under the 1982 Public School Safety Law, a school staff member who witnesses or has knowledge of an incident of violence must file a report with the school principal. But some people question the accuracy of the statistics being reported by the schools. Librera himself has admitted some numbers don't match in comparison to ronment for students at all times.

When it comes to weapons offenses, anything, including a bat, razor blade, or even a plastic fork, if it's used as a weapon, is included, according to police. Although legally those tools are not considered weapons, by school policy they are, said police, adding that the actual number of charges for weapons possession is usually significantly lower.

The most serious crimes that police said took place in the 2003-04 school year was a food fight in the cafeteria and a dead pigeon found in a teacher's desk, which was considered a harassment issue.

Belleville is also known to have some gang affiliations, or "wannabes," police said. For this reason a new program was implemented at the middle school this year called Gang Resistance Education Training (G.R.E.A.T.) The federal program aims at bringing awareness of the existence of gangs and how to resist them. The school currently has a policy against wearing specific colors that represent gang relations.

Recent state initiatives have included:

a new law prohibiting harassment, intimidation and bullying in schools.

■ a new law requiring public hearings on school violence

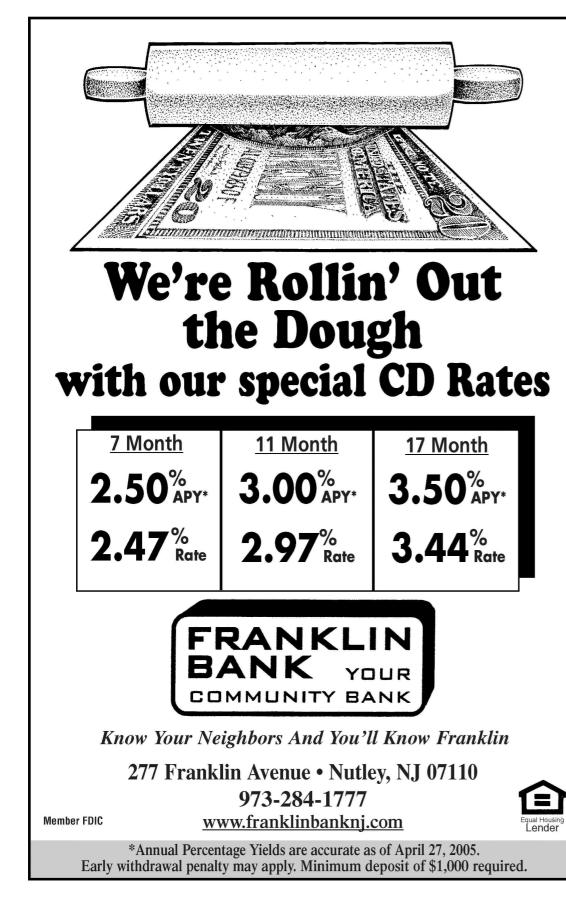

■ a new law requiring the annual observance of School Violence Awareness Week

■ a new website, "Keeping Our Kids Safe," which provides oneconvenient access to stop, resources that help districts find diverse ways to create a safe envi-

Belleville shop part of tattoo expert's empire

BY HUGH R. MORLEY Special from The Record

The dots, Barth explained, are test tattoos created to ensure the durability and appearance of some of the 54 ink colors he manufactures in Nebraska and sells through his Web site.

'There's no substitute for a skin test," Barth, 38, said at his business, Starlight Tattoo, in Rochelle Park. "You can create the best ink in the world, but if it doesn't work in the skin, it doesn't work.'

So far, the business strategy appears to be working. Since Barth, an Austrian native, moved to the United States a decade ago, he has built a mini-empire on the art of sinking ink into human flesh.

Aside from the Web site, he owns three Starlight Tattoo shops in Paterson, Rochelle Park and Belleville - with a combined workforce of 14. He organizes a lucrative tattoo convention each fall in Secaucus that attracts about 12,000 customers and 150 vendors

The combined annual revenue, he says, is $2.5 million, and growing. Unlike other tattoo artists, who are often content to ply their trade in a single storefront, Barth said, he always thought big.

"People say, 'Oh, yes, he's just a tattoo guy," Barth said. "No, I'm not; I'm a businessman. I'm always pushing to the next level.'

Still, his business success is founded on his reputation as an artist.

"Mario is a world-famous tattooist and has been for over a decade," said Jean Chris Miller, author of "The Body Art Book' and publisher of tattoo magazines. She said his profile in the industry has risen steadily since the early 1990s, when he drew attention at several tattoo shows with his "innovative pallet" and distinctive style.

That ascent, Barth acknowledges, also has been assisted by the changing social mores that have made tattoos more of a mainstream adornment.

Little more than a decade ago, tattoos - then mostly the province of seamen, rockabilly musicians and bikers - carried a social stigma. But these days, ink-on-flesh designs are flaunted by singers, actors and sports stars alike, spawning a whole new market and boosting business for tattoo artists such as Barth.

"Today isn't like 25, 30 years ago," said Tom Satulla, 47, of Kearny, a Barth customer who got his first tattoo at 17. Back then, Satulla said, tattoo artists could draw only bold lines - not the subtle designs of today - and there were just a handful of ink colors.

These days, "there are so many colors and the artists, especially Mario, are phenomenal," Satulla said. "The colors, they jump out at you.'

Barth, who was trained as a graphic designer, drew his first tatgrew up in Graz - a traditionbound city that is the second largest in Austria - where doing tattoos was illegal and getting one was unheard of except in the underground music and biker scene, Barth said.

His father - who had his own printing business - opposed Barth's choice of profession. Nevertheless, Barth said, he eventually convinced Graz officials to legalize tattooing. He opened three stores before leaving them behind to move to the United States, attracted by the freedom and opportunity on offer.

Working with partners, he opened and closed stores in Detroit and Miami Beach, before moving to New Jersey with his wife. He opened his first New Jer-

He followed it by opening a store in Paterson the same year, in Belleville in 2001 and in Rochelle Park last year, after a legal battle to overturn the borough ordinance that prohibited tattooing except by doctors, he said.

As his reputation grew, Barth said, other artists began to ask where he got the brightly colored inks he used, which he had developed himself. So in 2001, he began his own line of inks, Mario Barth Intenz Ink, which is now sold in nearly a dozen European countries, Canada and Japan, he said.

"His inks are popular," said Bill Ward, a salesman at Dermagraphics Manufacturing & Supply Inc. in Whiting who sells Barth's ink. quality of designs, clean and ster- said, goes for $200 an hour if he ile premises, and word of mouth recommendations. The Rochelle Park store has six tattoo studios, each with a ceramic tile floor, stainless steel hand basins and a Formica work top.

The walls are lined with dozens of awards for his work he has received from tattoo associations and shows.

The tattoo price list begins at $50 for a standard design, Barth said. More complicated work, he Barth - who said his clients have included rockers Lenny Kravitz, Gene Simmons of Kiss and Nikki Sixx of Mötley Crüe - said his own calendar is booked up seven months in advance. With additional training, he has broadened his work to include cosmetic tattooing and medical tattoos to disguise scars from reconstructive surgery.

Cold laser therapy can treat carpal tunnel syndrome

There is a safe, painless way to effectively treat carpal tunnel syndrome.(CTS)

It is called the Microlight 830 Laser. This device has been effectively treating CTS for over two years at Precision Care in Bloomfield." Our physical therapists have had experience treating many CTS sufferers," says Dr Roy Jackson, DC. The laser emits a beam of light which penetrates deep into the carpal tunnel to soothe the inflammation and promote healing. The end result is an effective way to treat CTS without drugs, cortisone shots or surgery. A landmark study revealed that 72% of disabled workers were able to return to normal activities as a result of the cold laser therarepetitive stress injury that causes wrist and hand pain as well as numbness and an awful pins and needles sensation. Jackson says "The cold laser is held against the skin at the wrist and delivers a precise and painless treatment". It targets the tissues that are swollen within the carpal tunnel. Relief is usually felt within 10 sessions.

One study showed that 90% of patients treated with the Microlight 830 Laser no longer experienced the awful nighttime pain and numbness or tingling associated with CTS!

Mountainside surgeon to operate live over the Internet

A surgeon from Mountainside Hospital will perform surgery live over the Internet, on Friday, May 27 at 10 a.m.

Eric Whitman, M.D., will per-form a minimally invasive radioguided parathyroidectomy, a recently updated and more precise operation for a disease called hyperparathyroidism.

There are four parathyroid glands in the center of the lower neck; this particular surgery is the removal of a diseased parathyroid gland. In most cases, this disease affects only one parathyroid gland, which becomes hyperactive or over functioning.

"The old surgical procedure for this involved a three- to four-inch incision and exploration of all four glands. Patients would often spend several days in the hospital and have low calcium levels after surgery," said Whitman.

The new outpatient procedure, minimally invasive radioguided parathyroidectomy, is done through a 1.5 inch incision. A preoperative scan is used to localize which of the four glands is abnormal and during surgery, a radiation detector probe helps localize exactly where the abnormal gland is, minimizing dissection."

Live Internet surgeries are becoming popular for educating students, referring doctors seeking to know more about others' expertise, and for consumers who are looking in greater detail at medicine. The May 27 surgery will be less than one hour. For more information and to view the surgery visit www.atlantichealth.org <http://www.atlantichealth.org>.

Attention: low back pain sufferers

BY DR. SUSAN GUARINO, CHIROPRACTOR

Along with 25 years of chiropractic experience, I have recently expanded my practice to include a DRX9000 spinal decompression system which is a non-surgical, non-invasive treatment for herniated and degenerative discs. The object of decompression is to reduce the pressure inside the disc and facilitate the transfer of fluids, nutrients and oxygen back inside the disc. Reduction of the intradiscal pressure - the pressure inside the disc - results in the retraction of the bulging or herniated discs and welcome relief of nerve pressure.

With precise and painless computer-controlled tension, the specific lumbar disc level is gently mobilized to reduce the pressure inside the disc. The process is painless and safe, as well as comfortable and relaxing for the patient. Many suffering patients from sciatica and spinal stenosis can be helped with Guarino DRX9000.

During an initial consultation, I will determine if your condition fits the profile for treatment. To review the research on the DRX9000, go to the web site www.axiomworldwide.com and click research.

I also continue to see many patients who respond to traditional "hands on" chiropractic care. Call my office at (973) 759-3600 or visit my office at 858 Joralemon St., Belleville.

Tips for successful parenting

BY COUNSELING AND PSYCHOTHERAPY ASSOCIATES, LLC

In healthy families, parents function as a safe base for children. Children feel the security of strong family connections, and see their parents as allies. When children know their needs will be met, they move beyond the basics of safety and survival, venturing into the world to learn and grow. Conversely, when children feel threatened, their focus reverts to survival, and growth is stalled.

There is a wide range of normal behavior, from fussy and timid to cheerful and active. In optimal development, parents accept their children's basic disposition, and simultaneously encourage them to grow to maximize their potential. For example, parents of timid children can help their kids to feel more comfortable in social situations by creating individually-tailored opportunities for them to socialize. Children are more likely to experiment with new behaviors if they know they can participate in their own way. Families that nurture children's strengths and respect their uniqueness are well on their way toward raising healthier and happier children.

Nutley woman crowned winner of state pageant

Hedy Di Carlo, Mrs. Essex County, captured the title of Mrs. New Jersey United States 2005 on April 30. Since 1990, the Mrs. New Jersey

United States Pageant has been celebrating the qualities and achievements of married women while promoting the ideals of philanthropy, community service, and civic responsibility in addition to mere physical beauty. A homemaker from Nutley, Di Carlo bested a group of six other hopefuls to become the new titleholder. The blue-eved brunette will now represent New Jersey at the Mrs. United States Pageant July 28 in Las Vegas.

Di Carlo said she learned about the pageant a few months ago from former Mrs. New Jersey 2004 (Beth Leska), with whom she is friends.

"When I saw Beth and told her out mv hobbies and scrapbook- All contestants were judged on about my hobbies and scrapbooking to help children, she told me that I should really try out for the Mrs. New Jersey pageant, so I did," said Di Carlo.

Her chosen platform, entitled "Share Your Hobby, Share Your Heart," involved incorporating volunteerism into peoples' daily lives through their hobbies. For the past several years, Di Carlo has volunteered with Saint Barnabas Health Systems by creating scrapbooks for terminally ill, hospitalized children. Her future plans are to create a line of stickers and embellishments for scrapbooking that are devoted to images of children with disabilities and events specific to their life experience.

She described the atmosphere of the competition as very friendly, with all of the women getting

Several firefighters injured in Saturday blaze

BY SCOTT WENTWORTH for Belleville Times

A late afternoon fire shut down Washington Avenue, the main thoroughfare, in the south end of town on May 7, with firefighters rescuing two apartment residents.

The fire was next to 40 Washington Ave., near Cleveland Street. Firefighters rescued a mother and child from the fire, on the second floor of a three-story apartment building, bringing them to safety.

Firefighters had a difficult time extinguishing the fire, since it was burning mostly within the closed wall spaces and up into the roof. The flames were well advanced upon the fire department's arrival, and the fire also traveled up the exterior front side of the building, but was kept from extending into the adjacent building just three feet away on the left side.

The older construction of the building made it difficult to get to the fire, with a combination of plaster, wire lathe and tin ceilings in several layers to penetrate through. At one point, an entire section of plaster, tin and wire collapsed onto a firefighter on the third floor, trapping him under the debris while the fire burned overhead. Bloomfield firefighters were able to locate the firefighter and lift off the piece, estimated to weigh several hundred pounds, and remove him safely.

The fire was declared under control and completely extinguished at 7:47 p.m.

Approximately six residents were relocated with the assistance of the local chapter of the American Red Cross. The second and third floors received heavy fire damage and the roof collapsed into the building. The office of Casale Real Estate on the first floor received smoke and water damage.

There was one minor injury to a resident treated at the scene, and two firefighters were injured and transported to Clara Maass Med-Center. One firefighter ical received a deep facial cut and a second suffered blunt trauma from the collapsed ceiling.

Preliminary reports from the Fire Investigation Bureau are that was the second time fire compathe fire is not suspicious at this time. Just prior to the 911 call, it was reported that construction crews were doing renovations on the lower roof in the area where the fire started. As of this time, no specific cause has been listed, and a full investigation is ongoing. Fire officials reported that this

Some GOP oppose Paserchia appointment

BY RICHARD DICKON of Belleville Times

A feud has developed within the Belleville Republican Committee, the latest in a series that has polarized the membership.

Belleville Republican Chairman Antoinette "Toni" Marone is leading a campaign against the reappointment of fellow Republican and former town mayor Angie Paserchia to the Passaic Valley Sewerage Commission (PVSC), but Paserchia and her supporters are fighting back.

The PVSC is made up of an equal number of Democrats and Republicans appointed by the governor with the approval of a senator.

The commission is in charge of sewage treatment for Belleville and many other municipalities in the area, and has the power to award contracts. The independent state authority is governed by a ninemember panel nominated by the governor and confirmed by the state senate.

According to the Star Ledger, a pattern of political patronage and nepotism has existed at the state's largest sewerage authority, and the payroll continues to add friends and family of those who wield political power.

Marone and other members of the Belleville Republican Committee oppose a new five-year term for Paserchia at Passaic Valley, questioning her qualifications to handle the duties of awarding contracts for sewage treatment and saying others in the party would be more capable.

There are real questions about her competence," said Marone in a released statement. "We have a situation here where Democratic Sen. (Ronald) Rice (D-28) is recommending Paserchia to fill a Republican position. We feel that is unfair and discourteous. It is standard practice to consult the municipal and county chairman of the appropriate party before making recommendations for Fuscaldo appointments.

We will be contacting the Governor and the members of the Senate Judiciary Committee to voice our strong objection."

Rice defended his reappointment of Paserchia. The two worked together when Paserchia was mayor in the early 2000s.

"She's been doing a good job," Rice said. "We have good experience there. She's been there quite some time and has developed a good team relationship. She deserved it, just like the others."

As a former mayor, Rice said Paserchia has experience in dealing with municipal water problems.

"I don't make anything of this (campaign against Paserchia)," he said. "It's politics. They're locked into who likes, or dislikes you. I don't get into that."

Michael Perrone, a member of Marone's Republican Committee majority, said of Rice, "He doesn't know anything of the history of Paserchia in Belleville. It's not a question of liking or disliking someone. We believe Angie Paserchia is a good mother and a good wife. It's just that she has served the interests, and followed the gospel of Richard Yanuzzi."

Yanuzzi is the former Republican chairman who got a majority elected to the Belleville council in 2000. Among other things, the majority sought to pass an ambitious redevelopment plan for the Valley section that would have taken several people's homes through eminent domain. The plan was ultimately defeated.

Paserchia echoed Rice's comments.

"This is all political - all jealousy," she said, explaining that others are jealous that the newly refurbished Children's Room at the Belleville Public Library and Information Center was named after her. Paserchia fundraised more than $15,000 for the library and also paid for various sundries out of her own pocket.

Perrone said, "This is hardly jealousy. There was a federal investigation of the plans. The room did not need to be refurbished. It took $150,000 to do a 30 by 30 room."

A federal investigation was launched in 2003 into library records, but nothing has ever come of that investigation.

Essex County Republican Chairman Kevin O'Toole could not be reached for comment. Perrone said he is against Paserchia's reappointment.

Belleville is the Hatfields and McCoys and the other side is angry," Paserchia said. "I have always pushed for Belleville. I've done a lot for this town. This is a vendetta. If they feel I've done something wrong, go to the proper authorities and put in a complaint."

Perrone said he planned to file a complaint with the state election authority about events that took place in 1994 and 2002. The 1994 complaint involved fines for not filing reports and Perrone claims the ty. The latter job included super-2002 inquiry would involve the payment of debt, the payment of rent and the mailing of campaign literature.

Paserchia's response to Perrone's threat to file a complaint "If Mike was. Perrone had a life. he wouldn't have to worry about me. If he Marone feels there is an irregularity, then let him do what he has to do and I will defend myself."

Paserchia said she has always been "a good Republican," while Marone supported Democrat Garry Furnari over Republican John Scott for state senate and Democrat Ralph Caputo over Republican Joseph Scarpelli for Freeholder.

Marone and the Republican Commission members also claimed that in 2000 the position of assistant purchasing agent was created at PVSC and given to former-Belleville Councilman Thomas Fuscaldo, a close associate of Paserchia. But, they claim, Fuscaldo lacked the credentials to be an official purchasing agent.

Fuscaldo countered that, "I am not an assistant purchasing agent. No position was created for me."

In 1986 Fuscaldo graduated from Rutgers with a degree in political science/business. He worked in his father's printing business as general manager six days a week until 1995, when he was hired as a fiscal officer for the county, then deputy director of the division of employment training and deputy director of the division of economic development, both for the counvising several dozen employees, Fuscaldo said.

Then in 2000 he applied for the purchasing agent position, and has since attained status as a registered public purchasing agent and a qualified purchasing agent by the Department of Community Affairs.

"Nine commissioners deemed me qualified," he said. "I think I'm qualified."

The Belleville Republican Party has been weathering a few storms due to internal strife. Most recently two factions in the party squabbled over who was the elected chairperson, Marone or Fuscaldo.

Fuscaldo challenged Marone's chairwomanship, even though she had the majority of Republican district leaders voting for her. Then Republican Chairman Richard Yanuzzi called a reorganization meeting only Fuscaldo supporters attended, and he was elected. That challenge ultimately ended when Fuscaldo stopped pursuing the chairmanship.

Yanuzzi, who now is library director, said, "This is nothing but petty jealousy. Mike Perrone is off the wall, and cost this town millions in development ratables (by opposing a redevelopment plan in 2001) in the Valley. Angle has spent years helping others. It's sad when something like this is allowed to see the light of day."

THE GO GUIDE

Holcombe & Wictor to headline at Café

The Hillside Café, a nonprofit music venue in Nutley dedicated to bringing quality live acoustic music to the Essex County area, will feature a guest emcee at its next evening of music.

WFDU on-air personality Bill Hahn will emcee for headliner Malcolm Holcombe and opening act Pat Wictor.

The Hillside Café is located at 45 Hillside Crescent, Nutley, at the Web corner of Church and Prospect streets, in the Franklin Reformed Church "community room."

The performance will be held Saturday, May 21 at 8 p.m. (Doors open at 7:30 p.m.) Admission is $7. Reservations are suggested for groups of four or more. Call (973) 616-0106 for more information.

Bill Hahn

WFDU radio personality Bill Hahn arrived in this country as a tiny tot, and growing up during World War II greatly impressed his outlook towards life, politics and where one has roots. Like all his peers growing up, Bill was fed a steady diet of great radio programming.

For more information about Hahn, visit the Web site www.wfdu.fm.

Malcolm Holcombe

Singer-Songwriter Malcolm Holcombe's music is a blend of country and folk. His moody poetry, country blues guitar and rumbling baritone has garnered comparisons to notable musicians such as Tom Waits.

He continues to write prolifical- combe.com. ly, appears regularly on radio and has been involved with the "Return To Cold Mountain" CD, produced by Grammy winner Bil Vorn Dick.

Since Malcolm's star is rising fast, this is likely one of the last chances to see him in such an intimate setting and at such a low cost, according to the Hillside Café.

Charitable spirit result of character ed.

BY RICHARD DICKON of Belleville Times

Belleville Middle School Principal Marilyn McGrath attributes her students' recent successes in raising funds for tsunami victims to one thing - character.

It's not just natural character, but a coordinated tack the school takes in dishing out its daily lessons.

'Character educational training is an all-pervading theme, she said. "It's imbedded in our teaching self-discipline, respect, responsibility.

"We've had character training for four and a half years," McGrath said. "We teach it through public speaking class, we have posters, and teachers share with other teachers what they have learned in students acting out, threats to start class, including respect, etiquette, proper clothing, doing homework, responsibility and proper behavior. We try and make the kids better people."

The board of education recently recognized Belleville Middle School for all the students' efforts on behalf of tsunami victims.

McGrath is behind the focus on integrity, which is presented to all teachers, who then teach it as part of their curriculum. She brought it with her when she was named principal five and a half years ago.

McGrath said behavioral issues today are addressed immediately before they become a problem. "We address (behavioral issues) thoroughly, and that does help lessen problems," she said.

Behavioral issues can include fights and verbal arguments. Teachers and staff are taught to diffuse these incidents before they escalate

A big help in that area has been the resource officer, Det. Wanda Scheumeister.

"She walks around, but we don't use her as a disciplinarian," McGrath said. "She doesn't take away the kids in handcuffs. We use her in a positive way. But she's definitely a deterrent to those who want to start trouble?

Instead of getting into trouble, kids have poured their energies into positive projects such as Hat Day, on Jan. 14, which raised $770 for Doctors Without Borders for tsunami relief. Students contributed $1 to break McGrath's strict dress code and wear a hat to school. Eighth grade students Ashley Rodgriguez, Elisa Hoche and Erica Giangrande led the fundraiser, mentored by social studies teacher Philip Lensi.

From Jan. 25 to Feb. 14, students could purchase a blue and gold beaded bracelet for $1, with the money going to the American Red Cross for tsunami relief. The bracelets were donated by AC Moore in Clifton. The bracelets were made and sold by students and teachers. Led by teacher Joseph Rotonda, the effort garnered $652.

On Feb. 14, a Valentine cookie sale raised $163 for UNICEF, thanks to the leadership of grade seven students Anna Chamberlain and Jerekah Manalang.

"Wear Red Day" had students contributing $1 to wear a red item of clothing, which raised $335.21 and another $58 from School 9. The donation went the Elizabeth Glaser Pediatric AIDS foundation. Rotonda was also behind this fundraiser.

On March 23, a crocheted afghan raffle was held, raising $143. Proceeds went to a Thailand orphanage, researched by students for tsunami relief. Students Cristina Roman, Caitlyn Vreeland, Melissa Perez and Chelsea Melendez were behind, with teacher Josephine Palmieri mentoring.

The St. Jude's fundraiser was a "math-a-thon" with students getting adults to sponsor a certain number of math problems that the students would then solve.

School officer strives to develop trust at young age

BY RICHARD DICKON of Belleville Times

Police Det. Wanda For Scheumeister, the recipe for success as the Belleville Middle School's resource officer consists of being seen and being heard.

BMS has had a resource officer since January, paid for by a state grant. She is employed by the police department, and serves 717 students. The high school also has a resource officer.

"Success for me is for children to absorb and practice what I teach them about gang concerns, and resolving a situation through talking, instead of fighting," Scheumeis-ter said. "This will help them in the future, and help keep them out of trouble.

"The students feel comfortable with me," she said.

Her job has her in several roles, beginning with gang resistance training for seventh graders.

We meet once a week, and we talk about what life would be like in a gang," Scheumeister said.

crime and ferocious activity, she said. Seventh graders are considered at most risk for recruitment by gang members.

She said she can't say she knows of any gangs in Belleville. "You look out for certain signs, and you try and get the students involved," Scheumeister said. "You tell that if you get involved, there are certain consequences, and this is the type of life you will lead." There is a graduation from the program after several weeks. The program starts in January. Students are given certificates.

They love it," she said. "They did a project that was displayed in stores in town. It was one thing you would change if you could, like lockers, activities, a community pool. There were wonderful ideas, and there were 10 winners."

The project entailed each student who entered explaining in poster form one thing they would change, and the 10 best ideas were displayed in stores in town. The point was to get students to think about improving their community.

A lot of her job is giving advice lent initiations and escalating and guidance to students, but her uniform also serves a purpose.

"I'm also a deterrent to their (negative) behavior," Scheumeister said. She said she's always maintaining visibility around the school. "Right now we're stressing to walk on the sidewalk, not in the street," she said. Police and school officials have been concerned for being injured by passing motorists when the students choose to walk in the street instead of staying on the sidewalks.

The worst things that she sees are normal disagreements, where she intervenes, so fights don't escalate

"We talk in the office," Scheumeister said. "Some of them even become friends. There is a lot of peer pressure, but they know they will get suspended if they get into a fight. I explain the consequences, if they took it upon themselves, and they haven't gotten into physical confrontations?

She said she doesn't see weapons in the school, but "normal growing up teenage things," which mostly means disagreements that need to be stemmed before they escalate into violence. Since she started in January,

BELLEVILLE CLERGY ALLIANCE

A commentary about the wealth of spirituality

"For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world and lost his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" Matthew 16:26

The inspiring words of a hymn written by Rhea F. Miller entitled, "I'd rather Have Jesus" had a profound influence on the life of the beloved gospel singer, George Beverly Shea. You may recall him as the renowned vocalist of the Billy Graham evangelistic crusades.

Bev Shea, as he was popularly known, grew up in a devoted Christian home. His father was a Methodist minister, and Bev was encouraged to use his fine singing voice often in the church services.

Financial needs of the family made it necessary for him to leave college and work in an insurance office. However, he continued to sing in churches and on Christian radio programs. His exceptional talent did not go unnoticed, and he was invited to audition for a secular singing position in New York City and was offered a job. The opportunity for a substantial salary and recognition made Bev's decision extremely difficult, but God riches untold; had other plans for his life.

One Sunday, as he sat at the family piano, he saw the words to his poem, that his mother had left there for him. She loved to collect beautiful quotations and poems and would often leave them around the house for her son to find, hoping to guide him spiritually. Bev was immediately challenged by the inspiring text and sat down to compose the music for this beautiful hymn, which he sang the same day at his father's church service

"I'd rather have Jesus than silver or gold; I'd rather be His than have es or land; I'd rather be lead by His nail pierced hand: Than be the king of a vast domain, or be held in sin's dread swav!

I'd rather have Jesus than anything this world affords today."

As a young man of 23, Bev allowed the message of this text to wisely guide him to a wonderfully productive and worthwhile life of service to Christ as he shared his musical "theme song" with audiences around the world. He once said, "Over the years, I've not sung any song more than this one."

Alan Stoedter of Manesquan judges the color of the red wine at the first annual homemade wine contest, held to benefit the Nutley/Belleville Columbus Day Parade committee. Over 300 area residents crowded into the Nutley Parks Buildings May 6, to watch 57 local winemakers compete at the first annual Columbus Wine Competition, a fundraiser sponsored by the Columbus Day Parade Committee of Nutley and Belleville.

A three-judge panel from the American Wine Society awarded first place to Martin Lutz a Belleville firefighter and his winemaking partner John Gabriele owner of Gabriele Masonry of Belleville. Second place went to Pat Conturso of Nutley, third place went to George Smith of Kinnelon a former Belleville resident.

Coincidentally enough, Lutz, Gabriele and Smith all began their winemaking days in the same Belleville cellar.

Velardi, Brodo lead Caldwell to NCAA's

BY MIKE LAMBERTI for Belleville Times

Belleville natives Jackie Velardi and Stephanie Brodo are headed to the NCAA Division II softball tournament after helping Caldwell College win its second straight Central Atlantic Collegiate Conference postseason championship last weekend.

plays first base and catches while Brodo, a freshman, is a reserve infielder.

SOFTBALL Caldwell will attempt to defend its NCAA later named to the All-Conference Northeast Region championship this week, and if it wins, will move on to the NCAA Division II College World Series next week in Virginia, where the eight regional champions in the country will vie for the national title.

This is the second straight year Caldwell has qualified for the NCAA tournament. Last year, in its best season in school history, Caldwell advanced to the World Series after winning the Northeast Region crown and played in three straight 1-0 games in the doubleelimination series, winning the middle contest over Northern Kentucky. It lost to Western New Mexico in the first round, and was later defeated in controversial fashion by Florida Southern after an apparent two-run homer by Caldwell's Anna Dahl was ruled a catch in a Round-of-16 contest.

Velardi played a key role in last year's run to the series. She alternated between first and third base, Velardi is a sophomore who with some time as a designated hitter as Caldwell finished 45-7 and won its first-ever conference championship. She was team. This year, Caldwell appears headed to similar success, and both Velardi and Brodo have been a key to the Cougars' run.

While Brodo, a graduate of St. Mary's High School in Rutherford, is just a freshman, she's very familiar with Caldwell's softball legacy. Her sister, Danielle, a 1996 graduate of Belleville High, was a standout catcher at Caldwell for four years, helping the Cougars establish a winning legacy that has since escalated to league and regional championships.

Belleville natives Stephanie Brodo, left, and Jackie Velardi are all smiles after leading Caldwell College to the NCAA Division II softball tournament. Caldwell reached the tournament by winning the Central Atlantic Collegiate Conference postseason tournament last weekend. If the Cougars win the Northeast Regional tournament, they will advance to the Division II World Series.

Bucs off to best start ever, qualify for states

BY MIKE LAMBERTI for Belleville Times

The 2005 season has the potential to qualify as historic in the annals of Belleville High School boys tennis. Tony Salese's team improved its season record to 8-4 by splitting two matches last week, defeating history to qualify for the state great job," Salese said. "It's quite an accomplishment to play in the state championships. It says a lot about the way they've played all year long." Last week, the Bucs beat Clifton gles, 7-6 (7-3), 2-6, 6-4 and Mikko Sunico prevailed in straight sets at second singles, 6-1, 6-3. The second doubles team of David Kang and John Thai won 7-6 (7-3), 7-6 (7-0) to clinch the match.

"All the kids have really played well," Salese said. "It's been a very exciting season so far and I hope we can continue playing at this lev- of those matches start at 4.

NOTES: The Bucs were host to Paramus Catholic and Teaneck earlier this week. Today, the team will begin play in the state tournament. Tomorrow, Belleville travels to Ridgewood and next Monday, it's off to Bloomfield. On Tuesday, Hackensack comes to town and on Wednesday, Nutley visits. Both

Gritty Bucs fall to Nutley in quarterfinals of GNT

BY MIKE LAMBERTI for Belleville Times

When Alan Frank became head coach of the Belleville baseball program in 1999, he envisioned a program at his alma mater that would remind fans of the heyday of week and will be home to Ridgethe program in the 1970s and wood tomorrow at 4 p.m. 1980s.

Since he became coach, Frank has coached some good teams, but this year's squad might be the best team in Frank's seven seasons, and according to the coach, the best is yet to come.

Belleville enjoyed a 4-1 week, with victories over Hackensack, 8-1, Montclair, 6-5, Clifton, 2-1 and Paramus 5-4. Belleville's lone loss came last Saturday in the quarterfinal round of the Greater Newark Tournament when the Bucs lost to Nutley, 8-3.

With a 13-8 record heading into this week's action, Belleville has clinched a berth in the NJSIAA tournament since it had to be at .500 or better by tomorrow's games. Belleville hosted Paramus Catholic and Teaneck earlier this

"The kids really stepped up their game last week," Frank said. "We started the season 0-3 and look how they've come around. We're a young team, but we're getting good pitching and the defense has been solid. I really like the way these guys battle, game in and game out.'

The week started with a tremendous pitching performance by Mark Balbach, who pitched six innings of one-hit ball, striking out seven and walking one. Jonathan Serrano led Belleville with three hits while Jason Luzzi and James Rovell had two hits each.

The following day, the Bucs rallied from 4-1 down to edge Montclair, 6-5 in a first round, Greater Newark Tournament game. Giancarlo Cifelli, who hadn't pitched in seven days, was a little rusty early, but the junior settled in and pitched a good game. Once again, Luzzi played well, getting two hits, including the game-tying hit in the sixth. Craig Binkiewicz had two hits and scored three times, Serrano was two for three including the game-winning hit in the top of the seventh and Michael Cassese had two hits. The play of the game came in the fifth inning when Belleville's Dominick Malanga made a diving catch in centerfield, then threw a perfect strike to first base for a double play.

"Outstanding," Frank said of Malanga's catch and throw. "He's been great on defense all year long.

Against Clifton, the Bucs only had three hits, but managed to get the win as Luzzi drove in both it proved to be the difference, as runs. Luzzi's groundout drove in Malanga in the third for the game's first run. In the fifth, with the game tied, Matt Roman reached on a walk and Matt Alfano came on to pinch run. Luzzi followed with a triple to score Alfano with the game-winner.

David Caruso pitched five solid innings, allowing one run and four hits while striking out two. He also picked off three would-be base runners

'We've been working on pick off plays and it's really helped us," Frank said.

Against Nutley, the defending GNT champions, the Bucs took a 2-1 lead in the third on back-toback homers by Roman and Malanga. But this time, the Belleville defense didn't play as well as it had in recent games and the Raiders scored three times in the fourth and four more in the sixth to seal it.

Cifelli pitched an excellent game for Belleville, but as Frank said, the defense wasn't as good.

"Giancarlo was outstanding." Frank said. "He showed he's capable of pitching against one of the best teams in the area. We'll learn from this and the kids will bounce back.'

Cruz making an impact for Bucs on diamond

BY MIKE LAMBERTI for Belleville Times

It might not be reflected in the overall record, but good things are happening for the Belleville softball team.

Carl Corino's squad had a 1-3 week, defeating Hackensack, 12-2 and losing to Livingston, 4-2, Clifton, 6-0 and Paramus, 8-5.

Belleville took a 7-12 mark into a game with Paramus Catholic on Monday. Yesterday, the team played Teaneck and tomorrow, Jessica McNally drove in three Ridgewood comes to town for a 4 runs p.m. contest.

"The kids are getting better, but it takes time," Belleville assistant coach Chris Cantarella said. "We're young, and we're getting better with each game and playing well against a tough schedule, so that's encouraging.

Against Hackensack, freshman Crystal Cruz hit a two-run single in the first when Belleville opened a 7-0 lead. Cruz finished the game two for three and winning pitcher The play of Cruz, a left fielder,

We brought her up to the varsity during the Clifton Classic and she's really played well," Cantarella said.

The loss to Livingston was an Essex County Tournament game. Belleville led 2-0 in the fifth thanks to a two-run double by McNally in the third that scored Bianka Cosme and Candice Serritella. Livingston rallied back with two runs in the fifth and two more in the sixth to win the game.

Versus Clifton, Belleville ran into one of the better pitchers in northern New Jersey in junior righty Brianne Moore, who held Belleville to five hits, with Cruz collecting two.

Last Friday, Belleville lost to Paramus, 8-5. Cruz, McNally and Serritella had two hits each as Belleville played a good game against one of the stronger teams in Bergen County.

"We're getting closer," Cantarel-la said. "We're right in the games, and the kids know they can play at this level. It's just a matter of playing all facets of the game well."
