The final poem was "God Please Give Me Hope, with Cristina Malva, Maria Cruz, Daisy Urgiles, Kayleen Kauer, Veronica Tejada and Sotomayor. They talked about trying to find hope in a desperate situation, with lines like, "I want to run away. I hope I don't end up like those who have died. The war is almost over. I'm finally free, but I'll never be right. Too many people have fought their last fight."

After the class finished their poems came the short play, "One Candle," which was performed with Israeli music in the background. It started with a "Letter from a Young Girl" read by Shelby Diaz.

The letter starts, "It was terrifying! I cannot breathe, and my legs are weak. We have gone into hiding because the Nazis are after us." Later, the girl states, "I am already missing home and home cooking. I am so cold...I am alive for now, but I don't know how long I will survive."

The play starts with a latter-day Jewish family whose members wonder why they have to buy a potato for Hanukah. Nana, played by Victoria Andreola, explains that in the concentration camp she smuggled a potato and some margarine and made them into a makeshift Hanukah candle.

"It was the worst prison you could ever imagine," Nana tells her family. "I remember all the names of the women...I'm thankful to light potatoes for all who perished. La'chim, To life!" The play ends with all of the characters raising a toast and exclaiming "La'chim!"

At the conclusion of the play, Andreola said, "This (play) gives us hope for the future and (shows that) the past has taught a lesson."

The rest of the cast of the play included Dana Sinkevich, Crystal Antonio, Diaz, Nicolette D'Amico, Evelyn Puenta de la Vega, Knafo, Melissa Miele, Jose Eschevarria, Granados and Patel. The stage crew was Soto and Polite

Certainly all who witnessed the remembrance agreed with those sentiments, and were reminded of the worst - and the best of humanity.

Residents complain town didn't do enough to lower 2005 budget costs

BY ANNA SPIEWAK
of Belleville Times

Although municipal officials feel they've created a responsible budget, it would be out of character for Bellevilleites to accept it sitting down. So a number stood to complain at last week's Township Council meeting.

The 2005 municipal budget was passed 4-3 by the council last week, calling for a nine point tax increase, which means an additional $36. Together with the county's $45-tax increase and the school board's $173 increase, that raises taxes to $254 for the year for an average home assessed at $39,857. That's a 1.1 percent tax increase.

This year's budget totals $43,860,587, of which $25,472,000 will be raised through taxes.

Township Manager Mauro Tucci said he's very proud of the "sound" budget that was passed.

He said he went over actual expenditures and had conversations with various department heads about what their needs would be. Tucci said he even took budgets for upcoming years into consideration to ensure there won't be "huge spikes" down the road.

"My belief is that people will accept small increases, and this increase amounts to $3 a month, most folks pay more than that for coffee," he said.

As with most municipal budgets in Belleville, a number of longtime residents complained about the tax increase, questioning why it isn't set at zero and citing perceived excesses in plan.

Vincent Frantantoni questioned vacation days for employees, which amounted to $1,287,653 in this year's budget, stating that days off cannot be carried over from year to year. Based on state regulation, no employee can carry two years of vacation.

"I'm bringing it up because it's very costly," he said. "It's a waste of tax dollars. People have to take it the year they got it."

Frantantoni also questioned why there is a nine-point increase when the town has a $5.8 million surplus.

Municipal Accountant Joseph Faccione responded that there was actually a $5.9 surplus, of which $5.8 was already used to support this year's budget, leaving less than $100,000 in surplus.

Nevertheless, Frantantoni reiterated his disappointment with the increase.

"We have to start cutting, the state just put a cap on Board of Education surplus," he said referring to law S-1701 that limit school board spending. "So cut, cut, cut and give us tax relief. All you do is put more people on payroll."

According to Tucci, there's about six or seven positions in this year's budget that have not been filled. He is still going through an evaluation process to see if those positions are actually needed. At the Department of Public Works, the council is looking to hire more inspectors to make sure there's no garbage on the streets, etc. One full time position will be redirected to a couple of part time positions instead to get more people on the streets to adjust quality of life issues, he added.

Resident Florence Pentol complained about township employee health benefits.

"We can't afford paying a full premium, they should pay a portion," she said.

Township employees are not part of the New Jersey State Health Benefits program. Instead they go directly to Blue Cross and Blue Shield, currently called Horizon. They do co-pay out of pocket when they go to the doctor or for prescriptions, said Tucci.

Lifelong resident Edith DeFeo chimed in on all of the above, adding that there are too many municipal positions.

"We have to pay for employees who don't even live here. It's not fair and it's not just," she said. "Everyone in the state and in the private sector is letting people go. Give us a zero increase, the school is zapping us."

TV crew moved by annual School 3 tolerance program

BY RICHARD DICKON
of Belleville Times

At first glance, it appears like any other elementary school play, with students milling about nervously as the curtain is close to rising. But there, sketches of Menorahs and candles and horrified-looking people looking hung on either side of the stage, and watchers soon realize the excitement among the young actors comes from the gravity of what is about to unfold.

This is School 3's 11th annual Holocaust Remembrance, where sixth grade viewers and actors alike learn tolerance and to embrace differences by first seeing mankind at its absolute worst.

The performance began with one of the students portraying a teacher and instructing different groups of students to read their poems aloud. That was followed by a short play, "One Candle," about a Holocaust survivor explaining the significance of a potato to her surviving the death camps and always celebrating Hanuka h.

The Holocaust saw the destruction of some 6 million Jews by the Nazis and their followers in Europe between the years 1933-1945. Other individuals and groups were persecuted and suffered grievously during this period, but only the Jews were marked for complete and utter extinction.

"Classroom Close-up," a six-time Emmy winning show produced by the New Jersey Education Association and NJN Public Television, visited the school to tape a story featuring what the producers called "an amazing program," which this year commemorates the 60th anniversary of the end of the Holocaust.

The show filmed the May 9 performance.

"Wanda Swanson, from the show, was crying, she said she'd never seen kids do such a great job," and Isobel Villano, a sixth grade teacher who started the remembrances in 1994.

The other sixth grade teacher, Marilyn Lo Coco, is also instrumental in the Holocaust Remembrance.

At the May 11 performance student Michelle Knafo started the proceedings, saying things like genocide "is hurtful to ourselves and the world around us."

That led to the poem "Why," with victims questioning their fates. It was spoken with great drama by Matthew Metzler, Jose Echevarria, Vaughn Grandados, Joseph Grosch, Mihir Patel, Jeramie Torres, Luis Soto and Brandon Pham.

Some of the devastating lines included, "Why were we taken from our homes like criminals? What will happen to us? I don't want to die. I'm too young to die. It's like our lives just disappeared into nothing."

Derrick Cortes and Pavel

Almonte read "Words for Hope," which didn't offer much hope, but a lot of reality.

Cortes said, "There are not enough tears for the many lives," while Almonte said, "I know five languages, but only one for death."

Next was "I was Afraid" and Pham, Sonia Sotomayor, Melissa Miele, George Martin, Brian Rojas and Fred Padilla brought forward the fears of Holocaust victims.

Some of the key lines were, "I cry tears that leave me empty. I stay dead inside. I'm afraid I will remember, and forget too much. I was afraid no one would care. We were so afraid."

"Lost in a Concentration Camp" featured Irving Pena, Miguel Pelli-cia, Joshua Polite, Stephen Gavenas, Wenner Nunes and Pavel

Almonte. The poem featured the lines from the standpoint of those committing the atrocities, "I am fear, I am death. No one knows my pain, my hope. I'm the worst that can be in a person. I am death and destruction. ...the redemption of those who have been wronged. This must come to an end."

BY RICHARD DICKON
of Belleville Times

School 3's 11th annual Holocaust Remembrance had a profound effect on audience members and cast members alike, reinforcing the message of hope for a better future while acknowledging the atrocities of the past.

Barbara Wind of the Jewish Education Association located in Whippany, said, "You enlighten us, you encourage us to swallow our fear if we want to make a difference."

She said genocide continues today, that in Darfur in the Sudan, "as many people will die as are sitting in the room will die from disease, starvation and wounds today. We still haven't learned the lesson."

According to the web site "Save Darfur," "A preventable humanitarian crisis, affecting more than two million people, is raging in the Darfur region of western Sudan. Not since the Rwanda genocide of 1994 has the world seen such a calculated campaign of slaughter, rape, starvation and displacement. Government-backed militias, known collectively as the Janjaweed, are systematically eliminating entire communities of African tribal farmers. Villages are being razed, women and girls raped and branded, men and boys murdered, and food and water supplies targeted and destroyed. Victims report that government air strikes frequently precede militia raids."

Joseph Kraemer, the district's director of curriculum and instruction, brought the topic of genocide home for the students.

"What if someone said let's get rid of School 10 because they're different from us and eat different foods," he said. "Let's clear the world of them. Today they call that ethnic cleansing, which is an oxymoron. They want to eliminate them from the planet. It's called ignorance, but it's still happening 60 years later, and has really been happening since the beginning of mankind."

Kraemer said a student might be white and has a friend who is Hispanic, Italian or Irish who is being picked on for their ethnicity. That student has a choice to make.

"You can defend them or you can take the easy way out," he said. "It's a sad state of affairs that you still have to do this (the remembrance). We need everybody to step up."

Rev. Nancy Moore of Bethany Lutheran Church said the demeanor of the students tells a lot.

"They're so sensitive," she said. "They show by their actions and their words that they're serious, and understand what happened. The teachers are getting their message across."

The makeup of the student body at School 3 makes the message that much more important, and Moore that much more happy.

"They're so diverse, and they're teaching us, because they get along," she said. "I'm proud to be in Belleville."

School board member and senior citizen Antoinette "Toni" Marone said she feels good about the coming years after seeing the program.

"Our future is safe with kids like this," she said. "I get very emotional. The teachers keep the memories alive, which we have to do in this day and age."

Students enlightened

Two of the stars of the play weighed in what the experience meant to them.

Dana Sinkevich, who played Sarah, said, "It was awesome. It was a good feeling to understand what the people went through."

Victoria Andraeola, who played Nana, said, "It was a good experience to know how people felt in that time. I really appreciate being put in such a great play with great teachers."

Crissabel Victoria, who played the teacher in the poetry reading part of the show, had a unique take on her role.

"I enjoyed being someone older," she said. "I want to be a teacher when I get older."

How is New Jersey still offering rebates?

All 80 seats in the state Assembly are up for grabs this November, and that can mean only one thing: New Jerseyans are going to get property-tax rebates this year, regardless of the state's failing financial health.

Political expedience, anyone? Last week, the rebate drumbeat pounded louder and louder. First came word from Assembly Democrats that they had miraculously pinpointed $450 million in spending cuts - so the state could once again send out the popular checks later this summer.

Then acting Governor Codey announced that a better-than-anticipated revenue forecast would mean an additional $1 billion - and agreed that property tax rebates could be partly restored.

But Mr. Codey also warned of escalating state debt and a $2 billion budget deficit facing the next governor. And he acknowledged that the state now has the third-highest total debt in the nation (behind only the far bigger states of California and New York).

How can New Jersey restore these rebates when the state is in such a financial hole? These rebates are the equivalent of a company giving all its employees bonuses for a good sales period even though its overall financial picture is abysmal. In other words, this is lunacy.

This page praised the acting governor for trying to cut $1.1 billion from the popular NJ Saver property tax rebates when he announced his budget two months ago. Mr. Codey also said then that he planned to reduce the Homestead rebates for senior and disabled residents from $1,200 to $800. While one can see a need to restore the Homestead rebates for needy seniors and disabled residents, it is disheartening to see him give in on the NJ Saver rebates.

Yes, Mr. Codey must work with the Assembly's Democratic majority to get his budget approved, and compromises are no doubt inevitable. But to give rebates at a time when the state is in financial straits is irresponsible. Assembly members want the rebates because they believe a check from state government - particularly a check earmarked for property tax relief - is the best piece of campaign literature around.

Taxpayers should not be fooled. The budget for the upcoming fiscal year still has some enormous financial holes that need to be filled. The budget currently includes a pie-in-the-sky plan to sell off $500 million in unidentified state land and other assets. Another $175 million in revenues is projected for non-existent lottery terminals in the Meadowlands. How can the state give out rebates at a time when it is relying on make-believe revenues to balance the budget?

What's more, there appears to be a good chance that after the budget is passed at the end of June, discussions will begin on converting Horizon-Blue Cross from a non-profit insurance company. A conversion could generate $1 billion in revenue for the state, but as the Rutgers Center for State Health Policy has noted, the switch has "huge potential consequences for poor, rural, high-risk and elderly people."

The state should not be offering rebates when it has so many other pressing priorities and financial obligations. Until New Jersey is on firm financial footing again, rebates are ridiculous.

- From The Record (May 15)

School board, council now work together

For years in Belleville, the township council and the Board of Education were at odds over many things, most notably the attempted repairs of Municipal Stadium. In 2005, however, there is a mutual respect and willingness to work together that has been missing for a long, long time.

With the school budget defeated by voters April 19, the school board and council have agreed that $234,000 will be cut from the budget, a reasonable amount. Most amazing is that officials from both sides actually agree that the settlement was satisfactory.

The reduction cut the tax increase from $205 to $183 for home assessed at the township average, $39,857.

This year, residents came out to the polls in extremely low numbers, with many blaming the unusual lack of a school board contest for the abysmal turnout and defeat of the budget.

With barely 1,000 voters participating, less than 6 percent of registered voters came out, and the budget still failed by only a little more than 20 votes, hardly a mandate.

The $49.8 million school budget for 2005-2006 did not deserve to be drastically cut, and the council saw that and cut a reasonable amount. The school board now can use funds from the capital reserve fund to make up the difference.

That leaves less money for capital improvements, but means there will be no layoffs of teachers and the schools will have all of the same programs as last year.

So both sides agree it was fair, and that the two sides worked well together. The council might have wanted to cut more, but did not do so after seeing the entire situation clearly. The school board would have like to have seen less cut, but accepted the amount because members knew the council was charged with cutting something from a defeated school budget.

How far the two sides have come from the acrimony of past years, when issues like renovating the stadium brought nothing but disagreement. The fairness and ability to work together should now carry on into other mutually shared issues, and residents should look forward to two governing bodies that look together toward making a better future for everyone.

OP/ED

Council plan hits you in the wallet

TO THE EDITOR,

Open wide, Belleville residents! No, not your mouths to receive food or medication, but your wallet to feed the insatiable appetite of your Township Council.

Three years ago we elected Mayor Digori as the township's first mayor elected directly by the people. Last year we elected four new ward council members, all who were supported by Digori.

It now appears we created a "cabal" that is serving their own special interests and the hell with the taxpayers. Last year, Digori and his majority councilmember support gave us a large tax increase, despite the fact that we had a budget surplus of $3.7 million.

This year we have an even larger surplus, $5.8 million, and the Digori majority is giving us a nine-point tax increase. It they only used $400,000 of the $5.8 million surplus, we could have had a zero increase in our municipal budget.

The cabal also has members on the Board of Education. After the voters rejected the BOE budget, the council supposedly met with the BOE (date and time were unannounced) and agreed to a meager cut which is leaving us with a $2 million increase in the local tax levy for the BOE. On May 9, the council majority approved the BOE budget without allowing citizen input.

These inflated budgets are being used to provide patronage jobs and maintain free benefits and dozens of $100,000-plus salaries. In addition to the economic burdens inflicted on the taxpayers, this administration is creating a legacy of destroying the quality of life in Belleville.

The council has appointed members to the Planning and Zoning boards who have thrown our zoning ordinance out the window. Basement apartments are being approved, despite the fact that a township ordinance prohibits them. Large, three-bedroom two-family homes are being approved on 25-foot lots that are not even legally large enough for a one-family home.

Side yard variances of only two feet are approved, creating a problem for maintenance and a severe impediment to our firefighters in the event of a fire. If a developer wants to exceed our density requirement, no problem, jam 'em in, make millions, and the buy a mansion in a town that respects its zoning laws.

One former board member sold his house in town, is moving to Fairfield, but of course he is keeping his business in Belleville, where anything goes.

While the township can't fill potholes properly or collect bulk waste on schedule, they are extremely punctual showing up early in the morning to issue parking tickets while you are getting your children ready for school and preparing to leave for work to earn dollars for their onerous taxes and fees.

When you receive your new tax bill, realize that Digori and crew are using the largest budget surplus in Belleville's history to cater to their special interests.

Send letters to our troops

TO THE EDITOR:

For some months now, the Belleville Public Library and Information Center has been collecting items needed by our troops serving in Iraq and Afghanistan, and passing them on to Fairfield Chapter of the American Red Cross for dispersal. The citizens of Belleville have been most responsive in providing items like travel size shaving cream, bath soap, shampoo, international calling cards, wet wipes, small bottles of hand sanitizer, twizzlers, individually wrapped, granola bars, small cans of fruit, crystal light power drink, double edge disposable wrapped razors, sun block, writing tablets, and cold packs. We encourage your continued generous response.

As Memorial Day draws near, the Library would like to invite Belleville residents to respond in another way, as well. The library will have a table set up in the lobby with writing paper and pens for those who would like to let our troops know what they are thinking of them with a note of encouragement and thanks. Write a note and we will send it for you. We hope that you feel free to write weekly. We thank you, in advance, for the generous show of support for those fighting for all of us.

Donors help put new roof over church hall

BY RICHARD DICKON
of Belleville Times

More than 14 months after part of a drop ceiling fell in on the small but dedicated congregation of the Old Dutch Reformed Church at the corner of Main and Rutgers streets, the room has been completely repaired.

The 307-year-old church's Fellowship Hall had its rededication on May 15, with everyone who donated money, supplies or contracting expertise invited to attend, according to Joseph Schwenk, vice president of the church.

The congregation was meeting in March 2004 when the hall's drop ceiling fell in on some of the parishioners. Ironically, the members had been gathered to try and find ways to improve the fortunes of the church and its shrinking congregation.

A cable in the drop ceiling snapped, causing a chain reaction that sent lighting fixtures and ceiling tiles hurtling toward the floor. The rare and valuable stained glass window nearby was almost damaged. Four parishioners were injured and were treated and released from Clara Maass Medical Center.

Schwenk, who with his wife, Elizabeth, has been a member at the church for 35 years, described the damage as "pretty bad."

The repairs cost $18,000, much less than the $25,000 to $30,000 estimated, thanks to some donations of materials and a generous contractor, Schwenk said. The work included electricians and painters, as the whole ceiling had to come down.

"It took us a long time,"

Schwenk said. "But thanks to the donations of many good people we've come full circle."

There is no more drop ceiling, and the higher ceiling has been plastered and painted. The floor and kitchen have been fixed as well, Schwenk said.

"The contractor did more than what he told us he would do, a lot of extras," he said. Still, Schwenk said he would not name the benefactors.

"There were a lot of small donations," he said. "It's hard to pinpoint any one company or person. They're all good, whether it's one dollar or a thousand, it was all for a good cause."

The contractor gave the congregation a really good price and said he would do more "because it was a church," Schwenk said.

New chandeliers hang from the ceiling, and like most everything used in the repairs, they come from Belleville.

"We stayed in town for most of the work," Schwenk said.

As for the May 15 rededication, he said it was to honor all who helped.

"We recognized the people," Schwenk said. "We hoped they would all attend, and see what their donations meant to the church. They know, and we know, what they did."

Schwenk would not give an exact number of members in the congregation, saying only it was "very small."

The main threats to the church all involve upkeep. There is a need for painting, carpeting and reupholstering seats. The bell tower also needs to be repaired, since high winds have damaged the aluminum siding, Schwenk said.

'Officer Voodoo' investigates rituals and cults

BY THOMAS E. FRANKLIN
Special from The Record

Police Officer Paul Long parked his car next to the old cemetery behind the Dutch Reformed Church in Belleville, took a look around and knew instinctively that a spell had been cast. Where one might see nothing but scattered litter on a city sidewalk, he saw the sacrificial remnants of a pagan "ritual cleansing," carefully concealed in a ShopRite grocery bag. At the foot of the stone wall that surrounds the 1697 burial ground, Long cut open the bag to find a dead chicken and turtle. Heads chopped off. Polaroids, candles and a T-shirt were scattered nearby. All signs of a Santeria or Palo Mayumbe ritual. Whatever it was, Officer Voodoo was on the case.

Long is a 21-year Belleville police veteran who has cultivated a longtime interest in the occult into an expertise. He is one of the foremost experts on the occult, and is often invited to conduct seminars at police academies around the state. He recently educated police officials at the Bergen County Police Academy about grave robbings, Santeria, Palo Mayumbe, black magic and white magic.

"The class gives everyone an understanding of these religions and takes the edge off the unknown," Long explains.

Long says that people are often scared of pagan religions, which are not widely accepted in Judeo-Christian society and usually involve rituals and other untraditional forms of worship. "Anytime you see anything ritualistic, you think it's satanic," he says. "What I'm trying to do is open their minds.

And Long says that these mysterious religious rituals are on the rise. Bill Moheit, pastor of the Dutch Reformed Church, whose grounds are often littered with the sacrificed animals, is fed up. "It's sacrilegious," he says. "I don't like it. In a church like this, with its history and all. I believe in freedom of religion, but it denigrates my religion. There have been a few dozen [incidents]. Paul has explained to me about the chickens and why they have rituals. It's very complicated, but he's helped us recognize what it is."

Long says the only thing illegal about the act is the dumping. "When people see that, they think it's evil. It's not evil, it's their religion, they need sacrifices to feed their Gods. It's an integral part. It's their belief."

Long studied under high priests in Wicca, Santeria and Palo Mayumbe to learn more. "I respect what they believe in. The reason some people are scared of the occult is because it's unknown. If you found crucifixes and rosaries, does that make it a Christian crime?"

Winemaking flourishing in Belleville and Nutley homes

BY MICHAEL PERRONE
Special to Belleville Times

Few people know that New Jersey, not California, is the wine-making capital of America. There are more winemakers in the Garden State than the Golden State, due to huge immigration of Italian, Spanish, Portuguese and eastern European with their strong wine-making tradition.

While California is our nation's premiere grape growing region and home to the majority of large commercial wineries, the enormous number of individual home winemakers in New Jersey gives the state the top national spot for the winemaker title. This according to Richard Schum, Chairman of the Essex Chapter of the American Wine Society and author of the book, "90 Years of Wine Making." Schum is employed by the New Jersey Department of Agriculture and Rutgers University.

Schum served as head of the panel of judges last week who sampled 57 wines produced by local winemakers at the First Annual Winemaking Competition. The event, a fundraiser for the local Columbus Parade was held at the Nutley Parks building, 44 Park Ave., and was attended by more than 300 people. Winemaking partners Martin Lutz, a Belleville firefighter and John Gabriele of Gabriele Construction in Belleville were the first prize winners. Schum pointed out that Essex County and especially Belleville and Nutley is an area flourishing with excellent winemakers.

Jimmy Corrado, owner of Corrado's Wine Center in Clifton, one of the largest grape distributors in New Jersey, estimates that there are about 500 winemakers in the Belleville-Nutley area. Corrado has watched winemaking blossom in recent years with the old timers being joined by a younger generation looking to keep the tradition alive and return to their roots. Corrado has a mailing list of wine grape customers with more than 10,000 names.

Schum said that the judges were extremely impressed with the wines entered in the recent competition, calling them among the finest the judges had ever sampled.

"Belleville and Nutley should be extremely proud of the fine wines produced by their local winemakers," Schum said.

BUDGET

DeFeo added if the township needs help, they should hire part time workers, since most of the help needed is seasonal. Tucci responded in a subsequent interview that replacement of full time workers to seasonal is not something that can be done very quickly.

"You really need to take a good look at the work force, you wouldn't want to do it in a way that was hurtful to people, which was done in the past here," he said. "We don't want to revisit some of our previous mistakes."

After public participation was over, Councilmen Steve Rovell and George Ritacco, Deputy Mayor Louis Pallante and Mayor Gerald Digori passed the budget, while Councilmen Kevin Kennedy, John Notari and Councilwoman Marie Strumolo Burke, unsuccessfully voted against it.

Burke had asked how many votes were needed to pass the budget. When told four, she voted against it. After the vote she said she agrees that vacation days should not carry over to the next year and that municipal employees should pay a portion of their premium.

Next council meeting will be held on Tuesday, May 24 at 7 p.m.

Friend's effort reveals gap in burial process

BY RICHARD DICKON
of Belleville Times

Kathy Collins just wants her longtime friend to be interred with dignity. With no next of kin and very few assets, Elizabeth Bruining, 82, may end up being buried anonymously. So Collins is reaching out to anyone who'll listen.

The circumstances of Bruining's death are sadly unique. With no family members stepping forward to pay for her funeral, she had, as of press time, gone into her third week without burial. Her body lies in storage at a Bloomfield funeral home. And since Collins is not a relative, she cannot even have her old friend interred by the county.

Bruining was born April 17, 1923 and lived most of her life in Garfield.

An accomplished pianist and violinist, she earned a living teaching piano.

"She always talked about music," Collins said. "The piano and violin were her life."

Bruining also worked for Chase Manhattan Bank when she was younger.

Over 20 years ago, she moved to Branch Brook Garden apartments in Belleville and became a neighbor to Collins.

She could be very sociable, according to Collins, always attending church socials and playing tennis, and could often be seen riding the grounds of Branch Brook on her bicycle, with her "old grandma shoes" in the basket.

"My kids used to ask me if Toto was in the basket on the bike," Collins said.

But Bruining could also be intensely private, especially on certain matters.

She was never married, and would talk vaguely about having family someplace, though no one ever came to visit, Collins said.

"Now she's dead and she has no family," she said. "I'm the type of person who grew up in the church, and I try and help everyone."

Two years ago, Bruining came down with cancer, according to Collins. This past March she had a brief stay at Clara Maass Medical Center before moving to Park Manor Nursing Home in Bloomfield where she died April 28, eleven days after her 82nd birthday.

Collins said she attempted to find out if Bruining, or anyone else, had made arrangements for her funeral, but came up empty. She was told by the director at VanTassel Chickene Arthur K. Brown Funeral Home in Bloomfield, which picked up the body from Park Manor, that no arrangements had been made.

Collins feels like she is family to Bruining, even though she eventually moved to a single family home. "I took care of her for 15 years," she said. "I helped her with heating problems. I used to do her shopping, take her to the doctor, complain when there was no heat..."

If Collins had been an actual blood relative to Bruining, she could at least apply for a welfare burial. In that instance, the county pays up to $1,971 for the funeral.

JOHN MONTALVO/BELLEVILLE TIMES

Kathy Collins in front of Apartment 335 at the former-Branch Brook Gardens where her friend Elizabeth Bruining lived for over 20 years.

al costs while the family and friends must pay about $1,570. Total costs cannot exceed $4,000, according to Maryann Carroll, director of government and public affairs for the New Jersey State Funeral Directors Association.

Carroll confirmed that Collins' being unrelated is what's prohibiting her from getting county or state help. She said that for a family member, if they have no assets, bank accounts or life insurance, the welfare burial works.

There are other options for families.

"Most times, a family can negotiate a payment plan, and be honest about their ability to pay," she said. "The funeral director works on a case-by-case basis."

While New Jersey doesn't exactly have a "potter's field," a place to bury the lone poor, Carroll said that the county will offer over $400 to area graveyards to bury someone who fell between the cracks. If there are no takers, the person is cremated and the ashes interred unmarked.

"I just want her to be buried with dignity," Collins said.

"I'm sad and drained. I feel helpless. She was a wonderful, wonderful human being."

Collins said she has tried to get help from the county Division on Aging and the county police, but they were not equipped to help her with this somewhat unique problem because she is not a family member.

She called WOR Channel 9 and Channel 12, the Star Ledger television station, and neither could help.

"They said this happens all the time," Collins said.

Bruining's doctors, and especially Park Manor Nursing Home were very helpful, sharing personal information that Collins needs to try and bury her dear friend, like Social Security numbers and any possible life insurance that might have existed. There wasn't.

Janet Cataldo, social activities director for Nutley Parkside Apartments, a senior citizen residence, said in her 20 years on the job, she has seen a lot of situations, but never encountered one where someone was so poor they couldn't be buried.

"I've never had someone not claim the body to bury," she said.

To add insult to injury, Bruining's empty apartment was ransacked two weeks ago and some of her medications appeared to be missing, said Collins.

But even though she's only allowed to help in a limited way, Collins has received some support from the Belleville community.

Pastor Nancy Moore of Bethany Lutheran Church has offered to perform the ceremony for Bruining when arrangements are finally made.

Collins also credited Belleville Police Officers James Melillo and Kyle Kondreck, Det. Thomas Gazzo and Capt. Mark Minichini for helping her acquire some crucial information on Bruining.

First Ward Councilwoman Marie Strumolo Burke also helped Collins in the research.

Anyone wishing to help can call George Silva or Joseph Fantasia at VanTassel Funeral Home at (973) 743-1234.

Collins said this experience raises a very important point about planning for a funeral.

"My mom died two and a half years ago, and everything had been taken care of," she said. "Flowers - everything. It was a great relief to my family."

What's in name? A major pain, say Audubon tenants

BY ANNA SPIEWAK
of Belleville Times

With new management, new renovations and a new complex name for the troubled Branch Brook Gardens Apartments, municipal officials want to change the street name to complement the complex and remove the stigma of the old name. But many residents feel it will be too much of a hassle.

Up until last month, the 404-unit building complex, the largest one in town, was known for its slum-like conditions, such as lack of heat in the winter time, disrepair, and a number of health and safety violations which infringed on the residents' quality of life. After new owners recently bought the complex for $40-million, officials have been looking to get rid of the old reputation to bring property values back up in the surrounding areas.

The new owners, Manhattan-based Praedium Group LLC and Audubon Communities Management LLC, changed the complex name to "Audubon Place."

At neighborhood block meetings and on the Township Council, the suggestion has been raised to

'It will put an extreme burden on the public.'

Vincent Frantantoni
Resident

change Branch Brook Drive, where the complex sits, also to "Audubon Drive."

Councilwoman Marie Strumolo Burke, one of the officials who has pushed for improvements at the complex, called the name change "a new renaissance in town."

But some residents, who have no problem with the new name for the complex, are speaking against the street change, noting a number of hurdles it would create for them. "It would be an enormous problem for us to change our addresses," said resident Jim Messito, at a recent block meeting.

Mayor Gerald Digori responded that changing a driver's license should not be a big issue for residents, and the owners would take care of the rest of the work, such as changing the mailing address for everyone, etc.

At a subsequent council meeting, longtime Belleville residents also spoke out against officially changing the name of the street.

"We're going to have a headache with this, it doesn't make sense," said Phyllis Frantantoni, noting that she just went through address changes with her father, who moved, and the process was arduous.

"I don't know if you know the ramifications of such a change," said resident and former town commissioner Vincent Frantantoni. "It's not just driver's license, it's stock certificates which are held in cyberspace, these things are not done so easy. It was a nice gesture, but I don't think it was thought through. It will put an extreme burden on the public."

Longtime resident Edith DeFeo said that the mail sometimes goes to the wrong place when street names change.

The United States Postal Service uses a database that can include both addresses using the words "either/or," or a dominant street name is given, but the mail still goes to the old address, according to USPS spokesperson George Flood in Newark.

He said the mail usually gets lost when street names sound similar, such as Main Street or Main Court, otherwise it's not a common problem.

About six years ago, under Mayor Angie Paserchia, the council changed the name of Montgomery Street, by the Little League Field, to Marotti Place, to honor former longtime Mayor Michael Marotti. But after residents packed the council chambers protesting the change due to the burden it placed on them, the council changed it back to Montgomery Street.

There's currently a four-foot wide by approximately three-foot high sign at the complex that reads "Audubon Place." Some residents say they don't see a need to replace a three-inch street sign to change the former atmosphere at the site.

Strumolo Burke said there's no imminent plans to change the street name. She doesn't think changing a street name is a big deal and doesn't cost the town any money, but she said the council would discuss the matter further.

"I would love to do it," she said. "I want the aura of Branch Brook Gardens and the Branch Brook Drive to go away."

She added that if the residents were very adamant about the change, the town would just put a sign up without actually changing the postal address.

Raja wins at science fair

Karan Raja won a trophy and received a certificate of outstanding achievement for his first place science project "The Cause, Effect and Prevention of Tsunamis," submitted in a science fair sponsored by University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey.

Raja used a fish tank a vibrator machine, an air-bubble tube, a potato and fire to construct his tsunami project. He received his award from Dr. Eric Weichaus, the 1995 Noble Science Prizewinner.

The final poem was "God Please Give Me Hope, with Cristina Malva, Maria Cruz, Daisy Urgiles, Kavleen Kauer, Veronica Tejada and Sotomayor. They talked about trying to find hope in a desperate situation, with lines like, "I want to run away. I hope I don't end up like those who have died. The war is almost over. I'm finally free, but I'll never be right. Too many people have fought their last fight."

After the class finished their poems came the short play, "One Candle," which was performed with Israeli music in the background. It started with a "Letter from a Young Girl" read by Shelby Diaz.

The letter starts, "It was terrifying! I cannot breathe, and my legs are weak. We have gone into hiding because the Nazis are after us." Later, the girl states, "I am already missing home and home cooking. I am so cold...I am alive for now, but I don't know how long I will survive."

The play starts with a latter-day Jewish family whose members wonder why they have to buy a potato for Hanukah. Nana, played by Victoria Andreola, explains that in the concentration camp she smuggled a potato and some margarine and made them into a makeshift Hanukah candle.

"It was the worst prison you could ever imagine," Nana tells her family. "I remember all the names of the women...I'm thankful to light potatoes for all who perished. La'chim, To life!" The play ends with all of the characters raising a toast and exclaiming "La'chim!"

At the conclusion of the play, Andreola said, "This (play) gives us hope for the future and (shows that) the past has taught a lesson."

The rest of the cast of the play included Dana Sinkevich, Crystal Antonio, Diaz, Nicolette D'Amico, Evelyn Puenta de la Vega, Knafo, Melissa Miele, Jose Eschevarria, Granados and Patel. The stage crew was Soto and Polite

Certainly all who witnessed the remembrance agreed with those sentiments, and were reminded of the worst - and the best of humanity.

BLOOMFIELD FEDERATION OF MUSIC

Mandolin orchestras to welcome spring

Bloomfield's unique tradition of greeting spring with lively, mandolin playing will strike up under the baton of Maestro Gabriel L. Nevola on Sunday, June 5.

The concert, with featured tenor Tom Smargiassi III, will take place at Bloomfield's Sacred Heart Church at 3:15 p.m. on June 5. New York's LIMAGO (Long Island Mandolin and Guitar Orchestra), conducted by Antonina Nigrelli, will join the 63-year old Bloomfield orchestra (BMO) on stage. The two groups shared batons once previously, at Hofstra University in 2002.

The orchestras feature a variety of instruments: mandolins, mandolas, guitars, mandocellos, mandobass, accordion, woodwinds and percussion.

Several vocal accompaniments by Smargiassi will highlight the afternoon. Smargiassi recently toured with the Manhattan Lyric Opera, performing the role of The Duke in "Rigoletto."

The BMO, counting some 30 volunteer musicians, has performed at numerous New Jersey venues of late, including the Italian American Heritage Foundation convention at Rutgers University in October; Columbus Day festivities in Clifton; and a Sept. 11 memorial ceremony at Bloomfield Township Hall. Nevola's orchestra is regularly invited to entertain at libraries, senior centers, civic events and community gatherings.

Nevola has directed the Bloomfield Mandolin Orchestra for the past 32 years.

Both orchestras operate as not-for-profit artistic societies and depend on funds from public grants for their continued existence, to provide enjoyment for area communities and an appreciation of "old world" musical folk instruments.

Sacred Heart Church is located at 76 Broad St. in Bloomfield.

Donations at the door will be $8 per person (children under 12 are free). To discuss seating matters or group attendance, call Sherry Stafford-Loibl at (973) 697-8099.

For directions to the church or further information, visit the Web site www.nj.mandolins.home.att.net.

This performance is part of a year-round concert series sponsored by the Bloomfield Recreation Commission, under the auspices of the Bloomfield Federation of Music.

ACOUSTIC MUSIC

Holcombe & Wictor to headline at Café

The Hillside Café, a nonprofit music venue in Nutley dedicated to bringing quality live acoustic music to the Essex County area, will feature a guest emcee at its next evening of music.

WFDU on-air personality Bill Hahn will emcee for headliner Malcolm Holcombe and opening act Pat Wictor.

The Hillside Café is located at 45 Hillside Crescent, Nutley, at the corner of Church and Prospect streets, in the Franklin Reformed Church "community room."

The performance will be held Saturday, May 21 at 8 p.m. (Doors open at 7:30 p.m.) Admission is $7. Reservations are suggested for groups of four or more. Call (973) 616-0106 for more information.

Bill Hahn

WFDU radio personality Bill Hahn arrived in this country as a tiny tot, and growing up during World War II greatly impressed his outlook towards life, politics and where one has roots. Like all his peers growing up, Bill was fed a steady diet of great radio programming.

For more information about Hahn, visit the Web site www.wfdu.fm.

Malcolm Holcombe

Singer-Songwriter Malcolm Holcombe's music is a blend of country and folk. His moody poetry, country blues guitar and rumbling baritone has garnered comparisons to notable musicians such as Tom Waits. Malcolm has toured nationally with Shelby Lynne and opened for artists such as Richard Thompson and Wilco.

He continues to write prolifically, appears regularly on radio and has been involved with the "Return To Cold Mountain" CD, produced by Grammy winner Bil Vorn Dick.

Since Malcolm's star is rising fast, this is likely one of the last chances to see him in such an intimate setting and at such a low cost, according to the Hillside Café.

For more information, visit the Web site www.malcolmholcombe.com.

Pat Wictor

Pat Wictor, who is touring to promote his new album "Waiting for the Water," sings in a pure voice and makes his instrument, the lap-style slide guitar, "sing" back to him. He can bring a room to silence, weaving several parts on his guitar and reaching quietly into each listener's heart. And his songs, drawn from the deep wells of rural blues, gospel and country music linger in the mind long after he's done.

For more information, visit the Web site www.patwictor.com.

sey Buddies.

Garage sale to aid NLT

Nutley Little Theatre will continue its 2005 fundraising campaign on Saturday, May 21 with "Another Person's Treasure," a garage sale at the NLT Barn, 47 Erie Place, Nutley. The event, to run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., will feature sales of baked goods, arts and crafts and donated household items.

The sales event is another in a fundraising series called "NLT = New Life for Our Theater," which is raising capital for the theater to make repairs and improvements for the comfort of its patrons.

The sale will offer new and old items donated by NLT's members and supporters, including clothing, CDs, videotapes, housewares, sporting goods, toys and a limited number of books. Donations are still being accepted. To volunteer items, e-mail Melissa Surow, organizer of the sale, at mss@jere-miahassociates.com.

"We're counting on the generosity of our many members and supporters to make this a one-stop supersale," Surow said. "It will be the best of 50 garages all in one place."

Unsold items will be donated to Vietnam Veterans of America. The rain date for the event is Sunday, May 22.

HERE'S HELEN

MAGUIRE

John and Erin, with two cats sharing their home, installed a cat door leading from the kitchen to the basement. And they taught Frank, now a little over one, how to throw his dirty shirt and pants through the door and into the basement where mommy will pick them up for washing. Fine and dandy. Frank took to the idea with great enthusiasm. Too much enthusiasm in fact. Waits for mommy to hand him his shirt and pants every night after supper, toddles over to the "door" and pushes the usually food-covered items through. But that's not all he does.

"If you're looking for anything in this house," said Erin the other night, "look in the cellar. He's also thrown the phone, the remote control, toys and his shoes through the 'cat door'."

"His father said to me the other night, 'You wanted an Irish-looking child. Well, you've got one, complete with attitude.'"

I would have asked the son-in-law exactly what he meant by that statement but he was safe at NJIT, taking final exams. And the next night, he was caught in that horrendous traffic jam after part of a wall collapsed on the Henry Hudson Parkway and I didn't think that was the time to take him to task for his disparaging remark about the Irish.

But I haven't forgotten.

My grandchild roster is about to increase. The southern branch of the family is producing a little one in the fall. That will make six.

Ella told them she didn't like either of the names they have picked out. She has a preference for something more dramatic as evidenced by the name she bestowed on one of the kittens in her house, "Barbie Swan Lake."

The kittens came from the Bloomfield/Bukowski Animal Shelter via a foster mother who, since they were found behind Gencarelli's Bakery, had christened them Cookie and Cannoli. Those names soon gave way to Barbie S.L. and Squirt.

The "kittens," now fully grown, are gorgeous. Barbie is a true Calico with fur like velvet and a very serene and laid-back personality. Squirt, who reflects his Maine Coon Cat ancestry, has a tail like a feather duster. He is not serene or laid-back. Just the opposite. They have adapted well to sharing their home with a huge dog, a hamster and an occasional fish.

International League for Peace and Freedom, Essex County branch and co-authored the book "Daisy," a text for teachers of young children which was commissioned by International Playthings. She is listed in the 1997-98 edition of "Who's Who Among American Women."

The meeting is open to the public. For more information, call (973) 338-4025.

Our Sony digital camera is among the missing!

LIFE IN SILVER LAKE
MARIE STRUMOLO BURKE

It's history, our "Just to be With You" featuring the Passions. And, yes, we had a blast. But, I must send this plea out to someone who may have seen the association's Sony digital camera. Our roving photographer, Gary Souss, did a good job on the photo session. The only thing that put a damper on the evening was when the camera was among the missing. So if anyone saw it or knows anything about its whereabouts, the SLCA would appreciate an anonymous note or info leading to its capture. Upon return, there will be no questions asked. We just want the camera and the memorable photos. So please, please, have a heart and return it to its rightful owner. More on the dance in another column.

Did you know that Pro Wrestling (N.W.A.-C.S.) is coming to the Belleville, Nutley area? Well, it will be held in the Holy

Rec department offers summer fun

The Belleville Recreation Department is now accepting registration for its seventh annual "Camp Belleville" program this summer, a structured, self-contained, six-week program for children now in kindergarten through sixth grade.

The camp will be held at the Rec House, 407 Joralemon Street and will be supervised by certified instructors and college and high school student assistants.

The program will run from Monday, June 27, through Friday, Aug. 5, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. For flexibility, children may join in one-week intervals and have the option of joining any of the six weeks of the programs.

Pre-registration is required and participation is limited to the first 100 children to apply per session. Registration began May 9 and ends June 10. Nominal program fees may be required. Late applicants will be placed on a waiting list. Applications are available at the recreation office.

In addition to "Camp Belleville," the township will also host its free summer playground program. The program will be held at the stadium and possibly at the Friendly House from Monday, June 27 through Friday, Aug. 5. The hours are from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., but playgrounds will be closed for lunch from noon to 1 p.m. These playgrounds are open to children who are currently in grades K-8.

All programs will be closed on rainy days.

For further information regarding either program, call (973) 450-3422.

Family gym on Saturday, June 11 at 7 p.m. The coordinator of the event is none other than Giovanni the "Rock" Capalbo. The Rock will be defending America against the evil forces of the Middle East. Also featured on the bill, like that wrestling term?, is Anthony 'The Flash' Sessa from Silver Lake and Vinny, The Law, Strumolo, my cousin. The proceeds from this event will go to a good cause, the Cerebral Palsy School in Belleville. Mark your calendars for June 11.

I've said it over and over again. But I will repeat it. Congratulations to the Belleville High School Marching Band on winning the USSBA Central New Jersey Regional and All States Championships. Way to go kids. And what do you receive when you do good. Well, the Belleville Town Council is rewarding your efforts for all the time and good work put in to the marching band by hosting a dinner on Friday, May 20 at 7 p.m. at the newly renovated Branch Brook Manor.

All the members of the marching band will receive their dinners complimentary. All others should call Pat Hogan at 973-450-0427. Tickets are priced at $20 each which will include spaghetti, meatballs, salad and soda. Come on Belleville, let's show the band how proud we are of them by cheering them on that evening. Make checks payable to BHSM-BA. There will be a few surprises that evening, so I recommend you join in with us.

Happy 60th birthday to one of my good friends, Emil Nardachone. This gentleman is a resident of Belleville and a great attorney. I understand that a surprise party was given to him by his wife Annabel. His birthday is May 19, but the party was given on May 6 to throw him off. We hope it worked. But anyway, we missed you and your gang at our oldies show, but there is always next time.

And remember, we love Silver Lake..

ORPHAN DRUGS

In most cases, drug companies recoup the huge investment they make in research and development of a drug by selling it in large quantities. However, there are drugs that will never earn back their research-and-development costs because they are only suited to a very limited group of users. Medicines that treat fewer than 200,000 individuals are designated as "orphan drugs" by the government. Incentives incorporated in the Orphan Drug Act have helped with the clearance of over 250 such medications over the past two decades. In aggregate, these medications treat more than twelve million people. Without the research grants, tax benefits, protocol assistance, and other benefits provided by the government, users of orphan drugs would have no treatment. When your physician gives you a medication, as part of your treatment, for friendly, helpful service bring your prescription to us at ROSSMORE PHARMACY, 338 Washington Avenue, (973-759-1968 or 973-759-1956). We are Blue Cross and Medicare approved. Baby needs, cosmetics, toiletries, and many other items are carried.

The Belleville Chapter of UNICO National, the largest Italian American service organization in the United States, is conducting its annual membership drive. The chapter seeks Italian Americans and individuals married to Italian Americans (18 years and older) willing to foster a positive image by performing good deeds and fighting the negative portrayal of Italians and Italian Americans. The chapter has been active in collecting petitions for war hero John Basilone's stamp, has taken an active role in making the Belleville/Nutley Columbus Day Parade a success, donated books to the Belleville library and high school. It has also raised funds for local and national charities, scholarships and food baskets.

The name UNICO, in Italian, means "Only One of a Kind." Additionally the letters are interpreted as U-unity, N-neighborliness, I-integrity, C-charity, and O-opportunity.

Chapter President Kathy Masone and the chapter will hold its annual membership drive at the Branch Brook Manor, 132 Washington Ave., Belleville at 7 p.m. on Monday, June 13.

Those individuals wishing to be a part of the chapter may call UNICO membership chairman Charles Palmisano at (973) 585-7278.

Bucs continue magical run

BY MIKE LAMBERTI
for Belleville Times

History continues to be made on the tennis courts at Belleville High.

Last week, the Bucs won its first-ever NJSIAA match, defeating North Bergen 4-1. The victory earned Belleville the opportunity to play top seeded Ridgewood last Tuesday in the second round. Belleville also posted league wins last week against Paramus Catholic, 5-0 and Teaneck, 3-2. Belleville's lone setback this week was a 5-0 league loss to Ridgewood.

Tony Salese's team faces a busy week. The Bucs (10-5 entering the week) faced Bloomfield, Ridgewood and Nutley earlier this week. It will be at Paramus today at 4 and travels to Don Bosco Prep tomorrow at 4. Next Monday, Paterson Eastside comes to town for the Bucs' final regular season home match. Belleville finishes the season with matches at Montclair next Tuesday and Hackensack on Wednesday, May 25.

BHS TENNIS

On June 3, the first doubles team of Jordan Manlapig and L.J. Cecilio will compete at the state doubles championships at Mercer County Park.

The win over North Bergen was clearly the highlight of the week.

"The kids were really happy," Salese said. "You can tell they're really enjoying all the success of this season."

Cirio DeJesus won at first singles, 6-3, 6-2, Kevin Santos prevailed at second singles, 6-4, 6-0 and Mikko Sunico won at third singles, 6-1, 6-0. The second doubles team of David Kang and John Thai wrapped it up with a straight sets victory, 6-4, 6-4.

Against Teaneck, Santos, Sunico and the second doubles team of Kang and Thai were victorious while DeJesus, Santos, Sunico, the first doubles team of Manlapig and Cecilio and the second doubles of Kang and Thai all won against Paramus Catholic.

"We have a big week coming up," Salese said. "We get the chance to face Ridgewood again in the states, and have some tough league matches as well. Overall, I can't be happier with the way we're playing."

SOPHOMORE SENSATION

Jackie Velardi had another outstanding season for the Caldwell College softball team, leading Caldwell to its second straight Central Atlantic Collegiate Conference regular season and post-season crowns and the NCAA Northeast Region Championship. Velardi hit .296 for the season with a homer, 35 RBI, nine doubles and 16 runs scored as Caldwell finished with its second best season in school history with a 40-11 mark.

BHS BASEBALL

Bucs bounce back, prep for states

BY MIKE LAMBERTI
for Belleville Times

The Belleville baseball team came back from a tough loss at Nutley in the Greater Newark Tournament to post key NNJIL wins last week against Paramus Catholic, 7-5 and Teaneck, 11-10. Alan Frank's team lost one game last week, to Ridgewood last Friday, 7-0.

Belleville took a 15-9 mark into a game with Bloomfield last Monday. The Bucs were host to Nutley yesterday and will be home to Don Bosco Prep tomorrow at 4. Next Monday, Belleville will either host Paterson Eastside, or play a first round, NJSIAA contest. If the state game is on Monday, then the Paterson Eastside contest will probably be moved to May 24.

"I didn't know if our kids would be flat heading into Paramus Catholic after that Nutley game," Frank said, referring to Belleville's defeat at the hands of the defending GNT champions on May 7. "But we did a good job and got back on track."

Belleville took a 3-0 lead against Paramus Catholic, but the Bergen school rallied to take a 4-3 lead in the top of the fourth. In the last of the fourth, the Bucs came back with three runs. Anthony Marinello drove in a run with a perfect suicide squeeze bunt, Jason Luzzi singled in a run and Jonathan Serrano hit a sacrifice fly to score a run.

Luzzi, Matt Roman and Michael Cassese had two hits each to lead Belleville. Serrano (3-0), in relief of starting pitcher David Caruso, gained the victory.

Andrew Brenneman was credited with the save.

Against Teaneck, the Bucs fell behind 10-2 after 3 1/2 innings, but came back with three in the fourth, highlighted by Luzzi's two-run homer, and five in the fifth to tie the game, then won it on Roman's game-winning hit in the last of the eighth.

"Teaneck needed the game to make the states, so we knew they'd be tough," Frank said. "Actually, the way we started that game was the way I thought we'd be after the Nutley game. We were flat and made some errors. But our kids hung in there and found a way to win."

Roman led Belleville with three hits. Brian Cimmert, Brenneman and Marinello had two hits each. Brenneman was also the winning pitcher, in relief.

Belleville natives shine on diamond during collegiate careers

It's been four years? Can't be! Was it May 31, 2001 when Belleville's Kristin Wilson led off the top of the first inning with a homer, propelling her team to a 3-0 upset of Morris Knolls and a North Jersey, Section 2, Group 4 softball championship?

Was it June 4, 2001 when Danielle Green led Belleville to a 4-0 victory over West Milford in the Group 4 semifinals and a berth in the championship game against Cherokee?

Yes, it's been nearly four years, and while the memories of that championship run still burn brightly, the truth is those two are about ready to graduate college. Wilson and Green both enjoyed successful collegiate careers, Wilson starring at Monmouth University and Green a four-year standout at Felician College.

BUC SHOTS

Now, with graduation on the immediate horizon, it's time for those two to look ahead to the next stage of their lives. But this also seemed a nice time to say thank you to both for the enjoyment they provided their family and friends with their outstanding play on the diamond during their high school and college days.

Green, or as I always called her, Greeny, was a fixture at third base during her four years at Belleville. She was a slick fielder who had a penchant for key hits. Greeny took her game seriously, but always took the time to say hello. She had a big smile but a tenacious manner on the field.

At Felician, she was a four-year starter at third base. This year, Green played in all 36 of her team's games, hitting .284. She scored 13 runs, had five doubles and struck out just 12 times in 102 at bats.

What can I say about Kristin Wilson? After earning All-State honors in 2001 and being named the Essex County Player of the Year in her senior campaign at Belleville, Willy went on to Monmouth University, where she had a phenomenal career. According to the Monmouth Web site, she earned her third All-NEC citation this season after garnering first-team honors as an outfielder in 2003 and second-team as a utility player in 2002.

Wilson capped her illustrious career at Monmouth with one of the finest seasons in school history. Despite missing 10 games due to a shoulder injury, she finished second in the conference with a .423 (55-for-130) average, which is 17th in the most recent NCAA Division I rankings and is the third highest in school history. She also finished fourth in the NEC in runs scored (31) and on-base percentage (.454), while ranking seventh in slugging percentage (.569). She stole a career-high and team-best 16 bases, hit five triples with two home runs and 16 RBI.

Willy leaves West Long Branch ranking third in career average (.367), fourth in career hits (203) and fifth in runs scored (106) and stolen bases (50).

Most importantly, she was set to graduate Monmouth yesterday with a Bachelor degree. It seemed like yesterday when she was in her cap and gown at Belleville High.

And now, it's time for them to move on. But here's a note to two Belleville standouts that gave it all that they had on the athletic field.

Thanks very much.

I began

Sudden weakness or numbness on one side of the body, sudden trouble speaking, sudden severe headache: These are signs of a stroke that must not be ignored. The sooner you get help, the better your chances for recovery.

Knowing where to go is almost as important as knowing the signs. Certain hospitals are able to provide specialized treatment that can literally stop a stroke in its tracks.

And The University Hospital in Newark, New Jersey is one of the few hospitals in the nation with this level of stroke care.

Know the signs and know where to go. It could make the difference between merely surviving a stroke and totally triumphing over it.
