

Police Seize Still After Telephone Tip Owners Flee, Abandoning Truck and Dismantled Equipment

Following receipt of an anonymous telephone call, Sergeant John F. Flynn and Patrolmen Roy Hilton and Raymond Demgard seized a dismantled still, a truck and mash at 168 Mill street early Saturday. No arrests were made, as the owners of the equipment fled before police arrived.

Police believe the still was partially loaded with eleven empty mash barrels, a wash tub and a quantity of copper tubing. In the house were found a dismantled fifty-gallon still, two twelve-gallon crocks and a large quantity of corn mash.

Ambulance Travels 5,477 Miles In Year

Director Gerard Presents Annual Reports of Fire And Police Departments

The town ambulance traveled 5,477 miles last year in transporting ill and injured persons to and from hospitals, Commissioner George R. Gerard, director of public safety, told the board of commissioners Tuesday night in presenting the annual reports of the police and fire departments. The ambulance record showed that 435 calls had been answered.

The report of Fire Chief Robert A. Reid showed that firemen answered 300 alarms, of which thirty-four were false, during 1936. Fire caused damages estimated at $5,979 to buildings and $3,438 to their contents, a total fire loss of $9,417.

The police department made 1,863 arrests during the year, according to a report submitted by Police Chief George R. Spatz. Sixty-three automobiles, together with money, jewelry and other stolen property valued at $2,758, was recovered by police. More than 340 calls for assistance were answered by police cars. The recorder's court collected fines and costs amounting to $6,643.

An ordinance increasing the age limit for appointment of new patrolmen to the police force, providing appointees are veterans honorably discharged from the armed forces of the United States, was passed on first reading. It would allow the appointment of veterans of 40. The existing law forbids the naming of men over 36 to the force.

The board acted to reduce the fee for bagatelle boards, now taxed $52 a year, to $25 a year. It passed on first reading an ordinance which would amend the present law to this effect, and would impose a fee of $10 a year on "Skill Ball" and other coin amusement devices.

Republican Women Seek 5-Cent Fare

Organizes Committee To Enlist Aid of Women's Organizations

The Belleville Women's Republican Club has launched a campaign to secure a 5-cent street car and bus fare to Newark from Belleville. A committee, headed by Mrs. Katherine Ferguson of 28 Bell street, has distributed petitions requesting the fare reduction to outstanding women's organizations in town.

"The overwhelming response to the efforts of the club to make the 5-cent fare possible is adequate proof that the citizens of the town feel that they are entitled to the same rights and privileges as their neighbors in Kearny and Arlington, who have the benefits of a 5-cent fare," said Mrs. Ferguson.

"The policies of this campaign," she continued, "are in full cooperation with those of Mayor William H. Williams and all the commissioners, who are strongly in favor of the demands of the Woman's Republican Club, there being no doubt that a 5-cent fare would make Belleville an ideal suburban town for residents and manufacturers."

Mrs. Ferguson asked that women's groups who have not received petitions from her committee write her, in order that blanks may be supplied.

Resciniti Granted License Renewal

Board Doesn't Oppose Junk Yard Permit For Clinton Street

Giuseppe Resciniti, who operates a junk yard at 42-44 Clinton street, was granted a renewal of his license to conduct the business at that site without comment or opposition by the board of commissioners Tuesday night.

The board's action followed an inspection of the premises by town officials, who reported that Resciniti's yard was fenced in accordance with the local ordinance regulating junk yards. Commissioner George R. Gerard said that the appearance of the yard had been materially improved, and that gates had been installed at the entrance.

Town Attorney Lawrence E. Keenan, who accompanied Mr. Gerard on a tour of inspection, reported that books recording purchases of materials, required by law of junk dealers, were satisfactorily kept by Resciniti. The board was compelled to grant Resciniti a license six months ago when he obtained a writ of mandamus from the Supreme Court. The action followed prolonged litigation, during the course of which a town ordinance was ruled invalid.

The town opposed granting the license on the grounds that the yard is allegedly a detriment to a residential neighborhood near St. Peter's Church.

Increase Noted In Use of Telephones

Pulse of Business Beats Faster Than In Several Years

Increased traffic through the telephone exchanges of the State in 1936 showed the pulse of New Jersey business and social activity beating more strongly than in several years, the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company announces. More than half of the 96,000 telephones lost during the depression years were back in service by the end of the year, 32,000 of them regained in 1936.

"If telephone usage, arising as it does from the private and business activities of the whole community may

Reports Progress In Noise Reduction Grain Yeast Plant Hopes To Eliminate Odors In Near Future

The National Grain Yeast Corp. is making progress in the reduction of unpleasant odors and noises at its plant at 600 Mill street, Frank L. Chambers, vice president in charge of production, reported to the board of commissioners Monday.

According to Mr. Chambers, devices recently installed have reduced the noise of machinery by two thirds. The firm has received letters of commendation from residents of the section who formerly complained of the noise, he stated.

Asked by Commissioner Joseph King if the noise would become more apparent when windows are opened during the warm weather, Mr. Chambers said that it would not, as rubber cushions are being placed under machines. The noise that drew the greatest amount of criticism, he declared, was that from the intakers of blowers, and this has been successfully muffled.

Mr. Chambers said that experiments on destruction of the unpleasant odors emanating from the fermenting tanks were proceeding satisfactorily, and a method by which the gases are treated by ozone appears to be the best. He promised to make a report of further progress to the commissioners February 8.

Mayor William H. Williams thanked Mr. Chambers for his report and for the efforts made to eliminate the odors and noises, which have drawn protests from neighbors of the factory.

The placing of all town employees not now protected by tenure of office under civil service was suggested to the board of commissioners Monday by Mayor William H. Williams. He requested its consideration by his fellow commissioners, and pointed out that it might be submitted to the voters as a referendum at the general election next November.

The plan would apply to all employees not under tenure or members of the police and fire departments. The mayor declared that, while the jobs of 80 per cent of the municipal workers are protected by state law, the remaining 20 per cent lacks even the

Wife Calls Fireman To Save Own House

Home Endangered by Col- lapse of Adjoining Build- ing in Belleville Ave.

The oft-repeated story of the fireman who is called upon to save his own house was re-enacted in Belleville Saturday afternoon when Mrs. William Gilchrist of 45 Belleville avenue telephoned her husband, a fireman attached to headquarters in Washington avenue, that the abandoned house next door had collapsed and threatened to cave in the sides of their home.

Gilchrist immediately notified Fire Chief Robert A. Reid, and the hook and ladder truck was dispatched to the scene, where Gilchrist, with the assistance of other firemen, pulled down what was left of the collapsed structure.

The fall of the building, which had been condemned by the town and its removal ordered, was caused by the efforts of the children of the neighborhood to get firewood from the abandoned house.

A group of boys was taken to police headquarters and admonished after neighbors had complained that morning that the children were endangering themselves by tearing away parts of the structure, but removal of beams had so weakened the house that it collapsed later in the day.

The building was the residence of the late James O'Neil, who resided there for many years.

Piano Students In Two Recitals

Eleanor Bacon-Peck Pre- sent Junior and Senior Pupils

Eleanor Bacon-Peck, local piano instructor, presented her students in two recitals at Greylock School, No. 5, last week. Senior students appeared Friday evening and junior students, Thursday. Large and enthusiastic audiences attended both concerts.

The classes of Adell Peck Sutherland and Mildred Drentlau, assistant teachers, were represented on both programs.

Guest artists were Wilson Harris, baritone, of Newark, whose depth of tone and pleasing personality was quickly recognized by the audience, and Donald Gauss, tenor, of Belleville, a singer and pianist.

According to several music lovers present, a high average level of musicianship was evidenced in the simple earnestness and grace of the young performers. Several of the advanced students showed remarkable talent and excellent training. The audiences were impressed with their endeavor to penetrate the spirit and aim of the composers.

Pianists taking part in the senior recital were: Dorothy Banks, Kathleen Teague, Louis Kreisler, Margaret Steinmetz, Conrad Lee, Robert L. Banta, Jr., Mr. Gauss, Mrs. Sutherland, Elizabeth Sharp, Miss Drentlau, and Janet Stewart Miller.

In the junior recital were: May Millward, Paul Deckenbach, Ruth Rudge, Doris Kessel, Bernice Van Sickle, Patricia Plumer, Volmer C. Bar-Mitzvah Celebration Is Planned for 13th Year Of Synagogue

The Congregation Ahavas Achim Anshe Belleville, 317 Washington avenue will hold a Bar-Mitzvah celebration to commemorate the 13th anniversary of the opening of its synagogue building. The entire year 1937 will be known as the Bar-Mitzvah year, and the week-end, March 12 to 15 will be the period when the events of the Bar-Mitzvah will take place.

Plans are being made to hold a special service March 12, at which time many prominent guests will address the congregation; and a comprehensive review of the spiritual attainments of the community will be presented. A special social hour and Oneg Shabbat is planned for after the service. March 13 a special service will take place at the regular Saturday morning services, in which the junior congregation will participate.

The main and closing event of the celebration will be a dinner-dance to be held at the Clinton Manor in Newark, Sunday evening, March 14. Prominent speakers have been invited to address the banquet, and an interesting program of varied entertainment will be presented. Tickets for the dinner-dance can be obtained any day but Saturday at the synagogue or from any member of the congregation.

Great interest has been aroused by the proposed publication of a jubilee volume in conjunction with the dinner-dance. The volume will contain a short history of the Jews in Belleville, and a souvenir journal. A special campaign has been started to secure funds for the building fund to repair and improve the present synagogue facilities. The funds realized from the jubilee volume will be put into the building fund.

At the present time there are over thirty children attending the daily religious school, and 110 children the Sunday school.

The congregation, the sisterhood and the Progress Club, as well as all the groups affiliated with the junior congregation are cooperating to make this celebration the greatest that the community has yet seen. Liner Runs Aground, Taxpayers Here Pay Claim for Damage to Pas- saic Valley Sewer Vetoed By President

In 1928 the S. S. Leviathan, owned by the federal government, ran aground in New York harbor. As a result, Belleville must add $5,000 to its 1937 budget.

The board of commissioners learned of this on receipt of a letter Monday night from the Passaic Valley Sewerage Commission. When the liner struck the bottom of the harbor, it severed the outlet to the trunk sewer, resulting in damage amounting to $109,000.

The sewerage commission has, for the past seventeen years, sought recompense from the government for the damage. The claim was approved by Congress, but the bill upon presentation to President Roosevelt, was vetoed. Consequently the damage must be borne by the municipalities using the sewer.

Board to Consider Teachers' Salaries

Association Asks Increases For Veteran Instructors, Ending of Cuts

The board of education will be asked to consider adjustment of teachers' salaries when it meets next Monday night. A letter, embodying a program designed to provide raises in the lower brackets and recognition of veteran teachers, has been sent the board by the Belleville Teachers' Association.

The association asks that teachers, hired during the depression, who have given from ten to ten years' service in the local schools, be given increases.

The communication points out that many teachers, after seven years' service, are receiving less than when they started.

The ending of pay cuts, imposed during the depression, is also asked. The reductions were halved last year.

The establishment of a salary schedule, providing for gradual raises based upon experience, is also asked. The association estimates that this would cost about $15,000 in the high school, but is small compared to the permanent saving effected by the board in depression years, when salary increases were waived. About $126,000 was saved in this manner, the association holds.

The association maintains that the cost of adhering to its program would be repaid by the retention of good teachers, the attracting of better instructors to the system and the improving of faculty usefulness to the community.

It is expected that the board action in relation to salaries will be in conformance to the policy of the town commission in the matter of town salaries.

be regarded as some indication of general conditions," G. W. McRae, vice president and general manager of the Company stated, "there is cause for satisfaction in the 1936 performance which, while not spectacular, showed a well sustained improvement."

The growth in telephones in service was accompanied by greater use of the telephone for both local and out-of-town calling, the Company reports the latter reaching a new peak during the holidays at the close of the year.

The company's financial situation improved moderately. With December returns estimated, it is believed telephone earnings for 1936 will amount to approximately 4 per cent on the investment as compared with 3 1/2 per cent in 1935. "This slow recovery is due in part," Mr. McRae said, "to the fact that the volume of business is still below the capacity of the plant, and also to continually rising taxes, these having increased by 15 per cent in 1936 while revenues increased but 6 1/2 per cent."

Commenting on 1937 results, Mr. McRae said, "There seems to be every reason to expect that this improvement will continue" into the present year and the outlook is more hopeful than for five or six years past."

Among the facts that will be presented to the commission by the committee is that Nutley residents may travel to and from Newark for the same fare paid by Belleville residents, but Nutleyites may go to Passaic for 5 cents, while Belleville residents must pay 10 cents or more to the same destination.

Mr. Noll stated that the committee feels that, with the assistance of The Belleville News, a pioneer in advocating a 5-cent fare to Newark, the problem may be solved at an early date.

SYNOPSIS
Ossie Merrill, all-American full-back at Sierra College in California, returns to Bellport to receive the plaudits of his home town. Cheers Reynolds, with whom Ossie was in love before he went to Sierra, now gets the cold shoulder from him. Paddy O'Riley, who is second string quarterback at Green Ridge, a small eastern college, adores Cheers but refuses to admit it. His roommate, Dutch Schultz, variety full-back, acts as Cupid by sending Cheers a letter telling her how much Paddy loves her. Cheers is baffled. Green Ridge wins national attention as a Rose Bowl possibility by defeating some of the best teams in the East. After the Green Ridge defeat at Pittsburgh, Cheers surprises Paddy and Dutch in a conversation about her. She accuses Paddy of getting Dutch to write her about him. Paddy is furious at Dutch and vows revenge.

"As far as the Rose Bowl is concerned, here's the setup," the coach continued softly. "If we take Erie—and we're going to try—we're one of four teams eligible. One of 'em will high hat it, a couple have rules against it..."

"Then that makes us the logical choice?" asked Hay.

"It's not that easy. Unfortunately, we're not a big, well-known college. The public likes color in the game. But—we can get the Rose Bowl, gentlemen, if we sell the country on the idea it wants to see us there... I suggest that we get our publicity department busy at once."

Dutch inquired of one of the players who was limping slightly. "Housemaid's knee?"

"No. I just tackled O'Riley, the invisible man. By the way, Paddy, how's about giving out with the blue print of that sidewinder of yours?"

"That's like asking a fan dancer to wave goodbye," chuckled Dutch as his friend said nothing but began to whistle blithely. "You take that from O'Riley and you take all." He sat down and picked up a newspaper.

"Yeah," persisted Donovan, "but I've got it all figured out how I could use that run against the Erie line."

"So have I," murmured Paddy.

"Who did this?" Dutch interrupted the chatter hoarsely. His thick hand shook as he held out the paper he had been reading. The sports page featured a story headlined as "WILL SHE SAY YES?" and subtitled: "If Green Ridge Receives Rose Bowl Nomination Dutch Schultz Will Win Star's Favor, 'tis Said." Underneath was Florence's autographed picture, one of Dutch, and a half-column story.

"Wow! What a pipero!," shouted Donovan, grabbing the paper. "And she knew him when—and how!"

"Listen, Irish," Dutch broke in angrily. "I know you did this. I'm not clowning. If this puts me in the dog house with Florence..."

"It'll be because she's got no romance in her soul, huh, August gear?" mimicked his roommate.

CHAPTER VI
"GENTLEMEN—we have called this special meeting of the Board of Regents of Green Ridge college to discuss a very important matter regarding athletics," William Hay, president of the board of directors, began pompously. "Coach Moreland has given us a winning team this year—so far."

Shortly after the directors' meeting had concluded Paddy was walking across the campus, reading a letter he had just received.

"Dear Mr. O'Riley: (it read) Here's the photograph you asked for. Knowing August as I do, I can hardly believe he was too bashful to write for it himself. At any rate, they tell Little did Dutch Schultz know that his old high school romance with Florence Taylor would be the means by which Green Ridge would be catapulted into national recognition as a Rose Bowl possibility.

"We've been lucky," Soapy spoke up deprecatingly, although he had smiled at the "so far." "Might not happen again for ten years and a small college like this."

"Now, think it all boils down to this," Hay continued, looking at the sober faces which lined the director's table. "If our team defeats Erie we're in line for an invitation to the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena. Sierra will probably represent the West. Are you for it, gentlemen?"

"I'm against it," growled Henry Wallace, a lean and hungry individual at the far end of the table. "It gives Green Ridge the wrong kind of advertising. It places emphasis on the wrong thing. Green Ridge is an institution of learning—not a training school for athletes."

"Bar a winning football team builds enrollment."

"And college football has no equal in moulding men," interposed another member of the board.

"What have you to say, Coach?" Hay appealed.

"Well," Soapy rose and picked his words carefully. "As far as football being a moulder of men, or college either, for that matter, I think that's a lot of malarkey." As the directors started and frowned he continued imperturbably. "I think kids get a few pointers from their folks when they're young. When we get 'em they're either made or spoiled—we just add a few trimmings to the job. But I'll tell you what I think a football team does do—it gives a man something to yell for—something to be proud of when it's good—something to try to fix when it's bad—and something to come back to when he's old. Anybody needs that."

He looked down the table. With the exception of Wallace, the directors nodded agreement.

me an actress can't neglect her fan mail, so here it is.

Sincerely,
Florence Taylor."

Grinning all over his face, Paddy glanced from the letter to the picture which accompanied it. The latter was incriminating. "To August dear from Florence—Who remembers when and how!"

As he started to replace the photograph in its envelope he almost bumped into the student publicity director, Bob Hope.

"There's one of them football mugs, now," Hope groaned.

"What's the matter with football mugs?" Paddy was up in arms at once.

"Oh, nothing! Nothing at all!" Hope was sarcastic. "I've just got to publicize you muscle men into the Rose Bowl. Soapy's dumped it right into my lap."

"No can help," O'Riley was anxious to present his picture to Dutch. "I never was a newspaperman once myself."

"On the level," Hope's voice was plaintive. "Does anything ever happen to you guys that would make good reading?"

"Nothing the papers could print," Paddy started on, then stopped suddenly, struck by a great thought. "Wait a minute," he chortled. "Wait a minute! Maybe I can think of something that the papers would like to print... Follow me, Horace Greeley!" He took Hope's arm and led him toward the door of the publicity office.

Several days after Paddy's meeting with the publicity man he and the rest of the team were relaxing in the dressing room after one of the toughest workouts of the season.

"What's the matter, Donovan?"

There was rejoicing out at the Occidental studios in Hollywood when the story about Florence Taylor broke.

"Just what the front office ordered," chortled Burke, the head of the publicity department. "Here's our angle to put Taylor over."

"This Green Ridge publicity kid doesn't know what he's got," agreed an assistant.

"We'll tell him. Come on, crack out with some ideas."

"Say," cried Burke's secretary. "I saw Florence at the Grove Saturday night with Ossie Merrill, the Sierra fullback..."

"They're a cinch to represent the West," Burke was jubilant. "A Rose Bowl triangle! What could be better? Gettle—take a wire! Publicity Director, Green Ridge University. Follow our campaign. We'll put you in Rose Bowl. Keep Schultz in line. Advise any new angles. Hop it up."

"But what will Taylor say?" the assistant inquired dubiously.

"She'll be sore at first but when I explain she'll eat it up. Schultz wants to make the Rose Bowl, doesn't he, and she wants to be in lights. It's natural."

"Say, you don't think she really likes that dumb-looking Schultz kid, do you?" inquired Gettle.

"Heck! There's nothing wrong with him that a good haircut won't fix."

"Did you read this guff?" Paddy demanded of his roommate one night not long after the publicity mills had started to grind. "They've got Cheers smeared all over the papers. Listen to this: 'The gridiron triangle is now a quadrangle. A dispatch from Bellport, Ohio, former home town of Ossie Merrill, reveals that Ossie may be engaged to Mary (Cheers) Reynolds, the girl he left behind and whom he visited last summer. Another revelation is that Paddy O'Riley, second string quarterback for Green Ridge, is also a Bellport boy and is carrying the torch for Cheers. When questioned last night Ossie didn't seem to remember Cheers' name. So if Green Ridge meets Sierra at Pasadena on New Year's Day—look out for fire works.'"

Looking up from his reading Paddy saw his former friend shaking with silent laughter.

"Say," he shouted, "Did you...?"

"Yeah!" jeered Dutch. "And how do you like them apples?"

FRIDAY, JANUARY 15, 1937

Any lasting social and economic recovery can only be built on the foundation of a moral and a spiritual recovery.—Frank N. D. Buchman.

DIVERSIONS BLOCK SAFETY

It has long been an acknowledged fact that the deplorable loss of life and property caused by highway accidents in New Jersey could be reduced appreciably through adoption of modern road lighting methods and construction alterations at traffic points now known to constitute "death traps."

Yet, despite the fact that highway safety authorities are virtually unanimous in agreement on this point, progress in that direction has been sadly inadequate. The inaction is not attributable to a lack of sufficient funds, but solely to misapplication of revenue which should have been used for that purpose. Through motor vehicle and gasoline taxes, New Jersey highway users have been contributing ample revenue to finance the needed safety steps, but our lawmakers at Trenton, in sanctioning past diversions of highway funds totaling more than $76,500,000, have made it impossible.

Those legislators and groups who have been responsible for past diversions and still claim New Jersey can afford to neglect its highway system and use road revenues for other purposes would do well to take stock of what is actually happening. The answer to their false claim is contained in the records of the State Motor Vehicle Department, which reveal that 1,188 persons lost their lives on our highways in 1935, and 832 more met the same fate during the first ten months of 1936. When it is so widely agreed that adequate lighting and highway construction changes could reduce those appalling figures, it is obviously ridiculous and inhuman to contend that road funds should be diverted to every other conceivable purpose except that for which they were specifically exacted from a single class of taxpayers.

Death itself must be listed among the outstanding proponents of wholesale diversion of highway funds to other than road uses. Let's hope the grim reaper has fewer allies in the 1937 New Jersey Legislature than he had in the past.

ONE DAY'S PAY IN FIVE

It is pretty difficult to arouse the average citizen to the seriousness of the tax burden in this country. The home owner is keenly alive to the local rate and assessment on his own property, but is apt to ignore the indirect taxation which in the course of life takes a larger share of his income.

Total taxes, federal, State and local for 1936 are estimated by the National Industrial Conference Board as in excess of 20 per cent of the national income. This is not a mere guess, but is based on actual figures for 1935 adjusted to the increased taxes and income of 1936.

This 20 per cent paid by Americans compares with 24.4 per cent for Great Britain, 22.7 per cent for Germany and 27.4 per cent for France in 1935 and 1934. This means that here in America, where we have no intolerable armament burden, our tax rate is nearly as high as in Europe.

The 20 per cent tax means that one day's pay out of every five is deducted from the pay envelope. If this amount were taken out directly when the wage earner was being handed his wages he would be ready for a revolution. But it is deducted nevertheless, certainly indirectly, by a tax on everything he consumes.

DEAD LETTERS

The annual cost to the government in handling "dead" letters is a heavy one. The Rochester, N. Y., division of the dead letter office, has just reported that its loss in handling "dead" letters in 1936 amounted to $31,800.

The office handled over 15,000 pieces of first class mail, which could not be delivered because of incorrect or illegible addresses and could not be returned for no return addresses were on the envelopes. Salaries of the men handling such mail amounted to $32,000, and the mail produced the sum of $200, mostly in $1 and $2 bills. This is an unnecessary expense, and the senders themselves suffer through their carelessness. In mailing—be sure of the address, then write or print it legibly. And in a return address.

SCHOOL PRODUCTS

An educator in New York has undertaken an unusual job. He plans to check the careers of some 2,000 graduates of public schools by interviews with the graduates themselves, their teachers and particularly their employers. He will attempt to measure the amount of "common sense" shown by the graduates after they have launched themselves in life.

It is quite an undertaking. Yet the results of the survey should go a long way toward showing the schools just how they may improve upon their products. Countless millions are spent on education today. The net results should be of concern to all of us.

TAKE CARE

While Belleville has had no epidemic of influenza, we may not be immune.

This is a time when colds, even common colds, should not be neglected or ignored. Persons can weaken suddenly and seriously under the influence of a bad cold, and thus become susceptible to grave illnesses.

Take no chances with a bad cold. Do not get the idea that colds can be "shaken off" by paying no attention to them. The wise thing is to go to bed—until the attack subsides. That is the only safe way to "beat" a cold.

NEW MOVIE RECORD

The motion picture theaters of the nation have just passed their banner year of all time. A total of 4,180,000,000 tickets were sold by the theaters, and it is estimated that the public paid $1,000,000,000 into the box offices. Another estimate is that the average price of the movie ticket last year was 25 cents, as against 20 cents in the year before, while the number of movie-goers was 12 per cent higher than in 1935. The figures show the extent to which the movies have captivated the theater-goer.

A. J. Crowhurst Declares Strike At Plant Not Due To Dissatisfaction Among Workers

Charges New England "Organizers" Is Cause Of Demand For "Closed Shop" At Leather Works

A. James Crowhurst, president of A. J. Crowhurst & Sons, Inc., of 35 Mill street, made the following statement in answer to an inquiry concerning remarks made at the last meeting of the Town Commission as regards a strike at the Crowhurst plant:

"My sons and I have been engaged in business in Belleville for a considerable period of time. For the past five years, we have given continuous employment to at least 150 men. Our scale of wages and working conditions equal or excel the wages and conditions of others engaged in a similar line of business here and elsewhere in the United States.

Maintained Fair Wage
"During the entire depression, we maintained a fair rate of wage and in spreading our work as far as possible, gave continuous employment to the maximum number of men. For example, our payroll has never been less than $200,000 annually during that period of time. Our relations with our men have always been friendly.

Union Organization Planned
"Our present difficulties are due not to any dissatisfaction on the part of our workmen with respect to rate of wages or working conditions but rather it is the result of an attempt by a union organizer from New England inducing a demand for a 'closed shop.' Last August, we were presented with the same demand by another union organizer. At that time and today, we state that the proposal of a 'closed shop' is inconsistent with the policy of this company.

Insist Upon Rights
"We insist upon our right to do business with whom we desire and to employ and engage in our plant willing workmen irrespective of their affiliation with unions. On the other hand, the men, if they so desire, may become members of a trade union and we will not discriminate against them. This, in the final analysis is precisely what was understood between the men and ourselves when they returned to work in August, 1936. We feel that in settling the problem in that way, we recognized that it is within their province as citizens to do so and by the same token, we insist that we have the same rights and privileges to maintain our business without interference from a union.

Demand Closed Shop
"However, last Wednesday, another strike was called and demand made upon us by some of our workmen that we would be compelled to operate a 'closed shop' if we desired them to continue working. All of our employees did not join in this movement. Those who wished to remain and work, did so. These men are now in our plant supplemented by others who applied for work and received it. We are operating with these men, 75 per cent of whom are employees of ours who were with us before this present dispute arose.

No "Plug Uglies" Hired
"It is not and will never become the policy of this company to employ 'plug-uglies' or professional strike-breakers. Any statement to the contrary is untrue. Our workmen must be a credit to the town and to ourselves and it is on this basis that they are employed in our plant.

Police Protection Not Too Great
"With respect to police protection, we believe that we are receiving no greater protection than to meet our requirements. Our plant covers approximately three acres of ground. Through the good offices of the town, we have received adequate police protection. We feel that it should be maintained for it seems to me to be far better to protect against the probability of personal violence and property damage than to wait until injury or damage has been done and then seek to apprehend those who are responsible, but may we say again, that we do not anticipate any such events. We are willing to employ those men who desire to return to work and to the best of our ability through the good offices of the town, we trust that their rights as citizens to do so, will be respected and protected."

Criticism of police methods in handling strike conditions at the plant was made Tuesday night by Town Commissioner Waters after Joseph Massidda, union organizer, had appeared before the commission with a plea for fair play by police.

During the discussion Mayor Williams and Commissioner Gerard offerred to act as mediators. Massidda charged "plug-uglies" were being imported as strike-breakers, alleging that many carried guns. The commission agreed the workers should be checked.

The organizer denied his men had anything to do with violence, which has seen the homes of non-striking leather workers stoned, and an automobile burned. He blamed the "plug-uglies."

"Today," Massidda contended, "there were two sergeants and four cops there. The taxpayers are paying for that."

Waters added: "Not one of the strike-breakers is worth police protection. If they try to cut living down," Recorder Smith Wednesday night dismissed charges of disorderly conduct brought against John Galanapoulos of 40 Nelson place, Newark, who was arrested for interfering with a truck driver entering the plant.

Galanapoulos, a picket, told the court he was merely telling the driver that a strike was in progress at the factory.

OVER $1,500,000 SAVING

Lower Electric Rates

Rates Step Down Quickly—Effective with Bills Rendered After January 1, 1937

NEW RESIDENTIAL RATE (PER KILOWATT HOUR)

A kilowatt hour (or a thousand watts of electricity used for an hour) is a measure of electric consumption. One KWH will light a 50 watt lamp for 20 hours, or run a 100 watt radio for 10 hours.

$1.00 Minimum Including 11 KWH

6^c For the Next 19 KWH

4^c For the Next 20 KWH

3^c For the Next 150 KWH

2½^c For All Over 200 KWH

Commercial Customers Will Receive the Largest Share of the Reduction

Under the new rates commercial customers with a monthly use over 70 KWH will participate in the saving, while those customers using 160 KWH or more per month will realize a reduction of $10.80 per year.

The rate for combined lighting and power service is now available to a much larger number of commercial customers and affords a much lower average rate to the long hour user of the service.

The new schedules have been carefully designed on an equitable basis for all classes of customers.

All municipalities will benefit by lower rates for lighting their streets.

The company believes that these attractive new rates will make possible a wider use of electricity, thereby encouraging better lighted homes and the enjoyment of more labor saving appliances, and at the same time, through lowered cost of electrical energy, bring substantial benefits to New Jersey's commercial establishments.

Since January, 1929, Electric Rates Have Been Reduced Eight Times trained employees, do not hire and fire personnel on whim or for political expediency, the mayor said that a plan which would keep trained employees at their posts, in spite of political changes, would result in better service and greater economy to the taxpayers of the town.

The complete text of his message follows: "Analysis of the number of employees of the town of Belleville and the board of education indicates a total number of 335 persons, of which 287 or 86 per cent now enjoy tenure or the right to earn tenure or have continuance of office, while sixty-eight persons or 20 per cent do not receive this consideration. This analysis and the exclusion of municipal employees from the benefits of federal and state social security and reasons detailed further on prompt me at this time to recommend the adoption of civil service regulations.

"Our taxpayers should not be expected to train new people every few years. Conducting public business is today recognized as requiring specialized training, which training can only be obtained by actually working for a municipality. Our colleges are installing courses in public administration as they realize the absence of available trained people to capably handle public business. Many of our employees have served from five to fifteen years. Our town has been repeatedly complimented on the capable type of public employees we have and on their thorough knowledge of their jobs and the laws pertaining to their jobs, which latter is far more important than many folks realize.

"Civil service will guarantee a 100 per cent merit system to Belleville taxpayers, assuring continuity of employment to the employee rendering consistent attention to his municipal job and assuring taxpayers of having on their payroll competently trained employees, free from political pressure from within and without their own departments.

"The adoption of civil service regulations will stabilize the present policy of this board and prevent return by any subsequent board or department head to the unethical or costly spoils system, thereby enabling taxpayers to concentrate on studying which candidates for public office are most capable of conducting public management problems and eliminate from consideration the untrained candidate who relies on gathering to himself a group of electioneering agents.

"The engagement, retention or dismissal solely on the basis of competent service must be as vital to the taxing stockholders of Belleville as it is to the stockholders of private corporations where training of adaptability control the selection and retention of employees.

Industrial and commercial leaders do not select for employees such persons as are able to gather up the most votes for the election of a president, treasurer or secretary of their corporation. They do select employees because of specific training for specific positions. With practically all of our employees now having specialized training on their various jobs, it appears lacking in the exercise of sound judgment to permit our staff of municipal employees to be disturbed because of what in the minds of some elected officials may be considered unfavorable performance. All municipal employees rendering competent service are as equally entitled to the opportunity to retain their positions as the 80 per cent now assured of proper protection and deserve as fair treatment as extended to industrial and commercial employees.

Church, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Bill Terry; Troop 50, Fewsmith Presbyterian Church, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Daniel Kelly; Troop 88, Christ Episcopal Church, under the leadership of Raymond Patrick, and Troop 92, Belleville Recreation House, under the leadership of Pearson A.
