No Gas In It, But Auto Disappears

Lawrence Brooks Finds Machine Four Blocks Away

"Spite work. That's what it is!" Thus uttered Lawrence Brooks, 120 Rutgers street, when he told police that he found his car at William and Cortland streets, Saturday night, which had been missing since early that night.

Mr. Brooks had as his aides in searching for the car, his sister, Miss Margaret Brooks, and Bert Nixon, both of Belleville.

The trio combed the valley section, believing that the car was in that section as there was no gas in it and it would naturally have to be pushed or driven down hill.

Mr. Brooks did not tell the police about it until after he had found the

Scouts Observe Twenty-eighth Anniversary For Six Days Starting This Sunday

Although Less Than 200 Belleville Boys Are Attached To Robert Treat Council, They Will "Hold Place In Sun"

By Joe McGarrick.

Sunday will be Boy Scout Sunday and for the six following days members of the khaki-clad movement will mark the twenty-eighth anniversary week of Boy Scouts of America, February 6 to 12.

Although there are less than 200 scouts attached to the Belleville district of the Robert Treat Council, the lads will hold their "place in the sun" with their brother scouts in the country who mass a total of more than a million boys—the greatest youth organization in the world.

Training the youth of the community toward a useful citizen and then, in turn, watching him serve his community is an important item for parent study today. The scout movement is doing just that in every known hamlet of the nation. From the time the lad joins at the age of twelve; he has new doors opened to him. New adventures, new experiences, both in the out-of-doors, in his troop headquarters—and even within himself.

Eagle rank—a challenge for the newest tenderfoot scout—not only is considered as the ultimate achievement of scoutdom, but stands as an ideal for the boy to conquer. The boy knows too that scouting is the open door to hiking, camping and woodcraft; that merit badges and other insignia are his to acquire.

Youth likes a uniform. Scouting gave it one. Sure, some can't afford it, and yet some of these non-uniformed boys make the best scouts. The doors of scouting are open to all creeds and classes—and it remains a non-military movement. In its twenty-eight years, Boy Scouts of America has touched the lives of more than seven million boys and men.

To become an Eagle Scout, the boy must, after attaining the first class rank, earn twenty-one merit badges. Thirteen of these higher awards

Bill Plays "Toot-toot" While Firemen Root

When Fireman Bill McKillop toots his tooter he usually toots from two-two to two to two. You're well tootin' that's some tootin'!

Bill's tooting, however, has a definite place in the firehouse, for he entertains the fire laddies with melodious tunes on his life. Among the favorites lulls are "Marching Through Georgia," "Smiles" and "I Wanna Girl." In his repertoire "Bill" has many others, which he plays skillfully and incessantly.

Trial of Girls in Local Bus Murder Starts Monday in Newark Before Judge Brennan

Story Supplied by Parnell, Attorney for Owens Girl, Provides Funds to Keep Family from Being Dispossessed

Plans have been completed for the trial of seventeen-year-old Genevieve Owens and Mrs. Ethel Strouse Sohl. Proceedings will start Monday morning before Judge Daniel J. Brennan in Newark, where jurors will be picked.

The young women are charged with the murder of William Barhorst, Totowa, North Newark-Rutherford bus driver, in Main street in December.

When told Saturday she had saved her family from being dispossessed, Miss Owens smiled incredulously from her Newark Street Jail cell, where she awaits trial, with Mrs. Sohl.

Without knowing it, she had earned $50 while in jail.

Former Newark City Commissioner Reginald C. S. Parnell, who is serving as her lawyer without fee, explained how it happened.

He was approached by Francis Robbins, New York writers' agent, who desired a story by the jailed girl. Exercising his power of attorney, Parnell supplied the story and forwarded the check payment of $50 to Genevieve's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Owens of 625 East Ferry street.

The check arrived a few hours before the time designated for dispossession action. Although Mr. Owens earns $20 a week as a truck driver for B. Cohen & Co. at Newark's Farmer Market, he is the sole means of support of his wife and seven children and was in arrears with his rent payments.

Railway Reformatory officials have been ordered by Judge Brennan to produce William Sohl, 23, husband of Mrs. Sohl, to testify next week at the trial of his wife and Miss Owens.

Judge Brennan Tuesday signed a writ of habeas corpus for the production of Sohl at the trial. The writ was obtained on application of Joseph Solimine of defense counsel.

Sohl, who is serving an indeterminate reformatory term on a check-raising charge, has declared he will fight to save his wife whom he has not seen for many months.

Waters Announces Re-election Candidacy

Tells Franklin Club Which Will Back Him He'll Run Again

The Franklin Political and Athletic Club of Silver Lake Monday night in its clubhouse, entertained Commissioner Patrick A. Waters, as guest of honor. The commissioner announced his candidacy for re-election at the town election in May.

Patrick A. Waters

Mr. Waters addressing members of the club, about seventy-five of whom were present, stressed the fact that he had made many appointments from Silver Lake section, outside WPA projects.

Town Engineer Matthew Sheehan complimented the commissioner on the work he has done in Belleville during his terms of office. Edward Abramson gave a brief talk on the law and promised Commissioner Waters his full support. Mr. Abramson declared that he will not be a candidate in this year's election. The members of the club pledged their full support to Mr. Waters.

The meeting was opened by the president, who turned the proceedings over to the toastmaster, Salvatore Russo, who introduced the speakers. Refreshments were served, after which Commissioner Waters engaged in a game of pool with James Constantino, as his partner against Mr. Sheehan and Mr. Abramson. "Jimmy" made a six cushion bank, which gained a victory for him and the commissioner.

"Rec" Camp Damaged By 'Destruction' Crew

Each Year Taxpayers Are Called Upon To Pay For Repairs

Depredations of marauders at camp Belleville cost this town $200 annually.

This is what Recreation Director Edward J. Lister told this paper yesterday, concerning the damage done to the mess hall, swimming pool and other parts of the camp on the Third river, during winter time.

The miscreants, who have not been apprehended, filled the drain pipe with sand and covered it with cement bags and then flooded the swimming pool with water. They tore down the brick structure housing the chlorineator, which luckily had been removed, allowing the six-inch concrete top of the small building to crash to the base.

The culprits tore the wainscoting from the mess hall, removed all surface electrical wires and cables from the mess hall.

The damage to the camp, according to Mr. Lister, has occurred each year and while there is nothing new in it more destruction has resulted this year than ever before.

Gets Two Rides In Ambulance Same Day

Two-Year-Old Falls and Then Chicken-Pox is Diagnosis

Two-year-old Joan Trengone, 81 Holmes street, had two rides in the town ambulance Saturday.

The first trip was to St. Mary's Hospital, Passaic, where she was taken after a fall from a chair in her home. She was still in a coma when taken to the hospital.

At the Passaic hospital it was discovered that the child was ill with chicken pox, although no injuries could be detected.

She was then taken to the Isolation Hospital, where her condition was reported as "good."

B. B. Shot a Puzzler

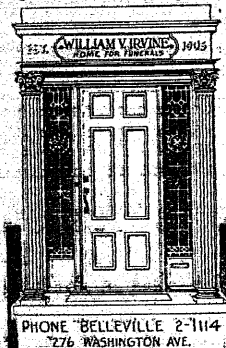

What the police want to know is how an air rifle propelled a BB bullet through two shingles on the house of W. H. Orth, 16 Nolton street.

Mr. Orth called police headquarters on the phone and reported that a BB gun cracked his window pane, Sunday.

Detectives Eddie Fletcher, James Lee and Motorcycle Officer Fred Singer were sent to investigate.

A sermon prepared by Rabbi Rubin R. Dobin of Congregation A. A. A., for the "From the Pulpit" column of the Belleville News.

My dear Friends:
Time and again we have been asked the question: "What do we mean by 'coming of age'?" Is it a certain age in a man's life? Does it change the manner and mode of man's living? Is it of any significance to the world? Once and for all we would like to give our answer to these questions. And in order to give a real answer we will have to go back to the very beginnings of man.

All of us are acquainted with the different phases of the creation. We all know that from "an unformed and void earth" was fashioned first light, then water, heaven and land. After this, we all know, plant-life came to be; then the luminaries, then animal life. Now, the earth looked more firm; it was taking on a definite form. Its land was covered with grass, fruit trees, vegetables, and with plants of every description. Animals of every shape and form roamed on the face of the earth; and winged creatures of every type flew here and there under the heaven. The waters of the sea were full of fish and all other forms of water-life giving them a semblance of activity and life-sustaining value.

The earth, my friends, was created, the world was a reality; yet, it was not complete. It was not yet perfect; there was something lacking. All these accomplishments seemed, not as ends in themselves, but they seemed as parts of a definite series of events leading up to a greater, a more consequential event. And then we read—"And God said, 'Let us make man in our image, after our likeness.'" Now, with the creation of man, the world is complete. Now, with the coming of the human being, has the Lord finished his work of creation. Now, with the appearance of man on the earth, it reached the stage of perfection, the highest point of its original development. It is this creation of man—the problems he produces, and his solutions to these problems that will constitute our discussion at this time.

Returning to the Biblical account we read: "And God said, 'Let us make man.'" To whom did He address these words? Whom did He ask for assistance? Why did He not ask for help when creating the many other creatures? One of our most illustrious commentators, Rabbi Joseph Kimchi explains these questions as follows: "God said to the earth, 'You and I will create man. You, earth, will contribute your substance, your product, your matter, and I will present man with a portion of My spirit, My image, My likeness.'" In this way, man will have more than one characteristic. In one instance he will be like any other creature, he will be earthly; in another instance, he will be above other creatures, he will be endowed with speech, with intellect, with reason. Instead of animal ruling man, man will rule the animal.

My friends, from very humble beginnings, like these, man has advanced through many ages, through many civilizations, through many eras—always striving, always progressing, always changing. We say he is coming of age—but can we, in reality, place our finger and point to any period in a man's life and say: "At this period, man comes of age?" Can we mortals indicate by vague allusions the outward aspects of coming of age? Our problem, my good friends, is not the hopeless task of tearing apart the make-up of man to find how he operates, how he runs. This is a fool's work, for it can never be done. Rather is it our attempt to discover and discuss those greater motives that activate man; those more meaningful qualities in any human being that denote true manhood and true womanhood. Our discussion of "Coming of Age" then will not concern the exact time in one's life when he or she does "come of age," but will dwell on those trends of human endeavor to a fuller and a more personal realization of what constitutes real manhood, and along what lines of human thought and endeavor it lies.

Our Mishra and our Talmud are replete with stories depicting very beautifully and very clearly the trials and tribulations of the first man and of the first woman—Adam and Eve. One story is told: As soon as the sun set on Adam the first day, he and Eve sat down in a fast and cried all night. Adam said to Eve: "Woe is unto us, because I have done evil, this darkness has come to earth, and it will revert to a void and unformed entity." But as soon as the morning star arose, he said: "There is nothing to fear, for such is the custom of nature." As Adam learned the realities of nature, by the same process that he discovered the truths of its processes—so have learned his hundreds of millions of his descendants. If there is something that is not understood, man seeks to find methods to make it comprehensible; and after duly proven, he proclaims, as did Adam, "Such is the custom of nature."

From this little experience of Adam and his wife, from the first problem, has emerged the great and unquenchable thirst for knowledge. Throughout the ages man has tried his utmost to arrive at the truth. He has approached every problem with an open and intellectual mind. His impulses have always directed him along the path of truth and right. Here, then, is the first quality of manhood—an intelligent and inquisitive mind, always seeking the complete truth.

Scouts Close Week With 'Live' Exhibits

This Is Part of Scouts' Contribution to Safety

As their contribution to the cause of accident prevention and safety, Boy Scouts of Belleville, joining with more than a million Scouts and leaders throughout the country, will devote the concluding day of their Boy Scout Week celebration February 6 to 12, to "living demonstrations of safety."

"Scouts are undertaking their visual safety education project, not only to inform you and me and our friends of safety methods and to make the streets and highways of Belleville safer places, but they have in mind to render this public service as their 'Good Turn,' their thanks to us grown-ups who, through our support of Scouting, make this program continuously possible," declared Douglas Clark, chairman.

"Building a stronger generation" will be their slogan in developing "living" exhibits to demonstrate, not only how to live safely, but how, through the Scouting program, they themselves are acquiring both worthwhile skill of finger and attitude of mind in preparation for the responsibilities of manhood just ahead," added Mr. Clark.

So that all may witness these demonstrations of Scoutcraft and Safety, Scouts will hold their "Live Expo" in other words a Scout exposition, in store windows, on street corners, upon sidewalks where all may easily see without loss of time or personal inconvenience.

The "Expo" will be held on Saturday, February 12, beginning at 8 A. M. and continuing until 5 P. M. The Scout's "live" exhibits will be in operation in all main shopping centers throughout Belleville, according to Arnold Sorenson, scout executive.

Samuel Miller Heads Belleville Art Club

Election of Officers Held at Home of Montclair Painter

Samuel Miller of 380 Washington avenue was elected president of the Belleville Art Club at the annual election of officers held Friday night in the home of the former president, Matthew Geddes, 260 Park street, Upper Montclair.

Other officers elected are: Vice president, Theodore Kraus, West Orange; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. James Swan, Nutley.

The new president is a commercial artist. He has studied art at the University of Goshen, Ind., Newark School of Fine and Industrial Art, and Academy of Art and Illustration. He also studied with Professor Schleising, famous portrait painter to the former imperial court of Germany.

The club is now embarking on its fifth year and meets each Tuesday evening in the Recreation House, Jordanmon street. It is open to anyone interested in sketching, drawing and painting.

Works for Bowes

Horace "Maas" Terhune, 102 Smallwood avenue, is now engaged as an accountant in Major Bowes Enterprises, in New York City.

Mr. Terhune, who formerly lived at 63 Van Houten place, likes to tell how he was dubbed "Maas."

It seems that Frederick Trost, of De Witt avenue, on hearing Mr. Terhune's first name thought that it was Morris, which became shortened to "Maas," through constant use.

Mr. Terhune with five other boys organized an orchestra, in his high school days, known as the Collegiate Six. The members were Ernest Stricker, Jacks Hicks, Charles Tedesco, Walter Groner and Percy Karner.

He is a graduate of Belleville High School, class of '25.

Visit Here

Mrs. Henry Hirzle of Kingston, N. Y., who has many friends in Belleville, has arrived at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. B. Brink, Stephens street.

Mrs. Edward Belker of Saugerties, N. Y., was a Saturday guest at the same address.

Visitor From Germany

Miss Elsa Marie Horbach of Dresden, Germany, is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gemeinhardt, Sr., 23 High street. Recently, Miss Horbach spent two weeks with relatives in Halsenberg, Col. Miss Horbach expects to return home in the spring.

FROM THE PULPIT

No one of us can consider himself a man who has not learned to seek the truth. We cannot call ourselves real men and women if we do not give and give and give unselfishly and unflinchingly to the greater and all-embracing cause of the world. We have not come of age, my friends, if we have not discovered true love and genuine devotion in our lives and in the lives of others. These qualities belong to us as men, they belong to us as Jews.

Today, more than ever before do we need men, whole men, inspired men, enthusiastic men. Men do we need in our Churches and Synagogues, men do we need in our pulpits, who never ask whether truth, half-truth, or falsehood will best advance their own interests; men do we need who do not cringe before the powerful, who do not cater to every fad of the day, and who do not change their views with every turn of the tide. Men of decision do we need, who, like our prophets of old, possess the boldness and courage to teach a vital, broad, all-embracing life, based on the principles of service, sacrifice, righteousness, freedom, justice, and truth. Men do we need who do not sell their convictions for a mess of pottage; who would rather be right than popular; who lead and are not led; and who dare to ignore the applause or the ridicule of ignorant or unprincipled critics. Men and women do we need who, amid the ravages of ambition, the mean aims of egotism, and under the burden of great trials and tribulations spurn the fairest gifts of fortune in the pursuit of duty and the vindication of the cause of humanity. Men do we need who, in this age of materialism dare to believe that purity of motive is not a dream of fancy, but that it is placed within our reach and is the very end of our being. Such men, my friends, and such men only will make our communities and our pulpits an attractive source of inspiration and a power for spiritual elevation. They will contribute toward the spread of real living and will hasten the Messianic time when "righteousness will flow like water and justice like a mighty stream." Men like these do we need, women like these do we need, if we are to revitalize our civilization and make it a part of the present and the future instead of a relic from a forgotten past.

Here then, my friends, is my answer to the question, "When do we come of age?" We come of age when we learn and follow the real path of manhood and womanhood. Let us all, my friends, follow this path. Let us all really come of age. Let us become real men and real women for the sake of the world, and for the sake of humanity. Amen.

WHAT DO YOU LIKE TO DO?

We'll bet a plugged nickel that you have some story tucked away that your teacher thought was pretty good, but never was printed. Or, perhaps you take to writing verse. We like both serious and humorous poems. Bring whatever you have to one of the editors and when you pick up a News the next Friday you may see your masterpiece on the high school page!

What do most boys do in study period the day before a test? They draw airplanes! And the girls are drawing pretty faces! Well, why not share these pictures with others? We could use a few.

If you don't take to any of these arts, at least you have opinions. Every one does!! Put these in the form of a letter and we'll print them (provided, of course, they are interesting to the majority of the students).

Come on! Turn in something, and see what a kick you get out of seeing it in print!

For Musicians and Musicians Only

By Al Vado

Pietro, the Daddy of the Piano Accordion.

Pietro Deiro was one of the early pioneers of the accordion who blazed the trail which others were to follow. Born in Salto, Italy in 1888, he began his musical studies in his native country. His first accordion was merely a toy, but even with this limited instrument he was able to play all folk tunes of the country. Realizing that his musical ambitions were being thwarted by such a limited instrument, he persuaded his father, after much pleading, to purchase a larger one, which had sufficient scope to enable him to learn his favorite operas. Equipped with a repertoire of operas, Pietro traveled to Germany, where he continued his studies, earning his living by working during the day at various commercial jobs, and playing in the evenings at the cafes and beer gardens.

Earning sufficient money for his passage to America, Pietro first settled in the Ebn, Washington, where he lived with an uncle and studied with a well known band leader. His previous experience enabled him to get a position as a professional accordeonist, and this encouragement decided him on his present career.

Pietro's next step was on the vaudeville stage in San Francisco. With no music published for the accordion, he found the game a hard one because he had to arrange all his own numbers. It was this lack of music which made Pietro continue his marvelous arrangements. Today he has over five hundred arrangements and compositions published for the piano accordion.

During his next twenty years he made a terrific hit. His activities were not confined to the stage, alone, for he became a Victor recording artist.

It was at his suggestion that the accordion was fitted with the modern piano keyboard from which the instrument takes its name. In 1909, Pietro presented the first piano accordion concert at the Washington Square Theatre in San Francisco.

A few years ago Pietro retired from the vaudeville stage to devote his time exclusively to the school which bears his name, but continuing his wide activities in the radio and concert field.

By Jerry Ferrara.

As fictitious as it may seem, Coach McBride has at last found a jayvee wonder team. The Belleville Jayvees have opposed seven opponents and have as yet to taste of defeat. They have played Dickinson, Lyndhurst, Kearny, West Orange, Good Counsel, Bloomfield and Hillside jayvees, respectively. Keep up the excellent work, boys, we're all with you.

Strange Facts About Composers

In the space of two years Schubert wrote 239 songs.

Haydn learned to play a drum on a meal barrel covered with cloth.

Debussy had to give a piano lesson in the morning to have enough money to pay for his wedding breakfast that day.

Erik Satie earned for himself the reputation of a musical exhibitionist. Once for instance, he set out to give a piano recital wearing a fireman's helmet.

Bach's fist was so gigantic he could stretch a twelfth with his left hand and perform running passages between the three inner fingers.

Music Activities

By J. Marian Schleckser and Jean Schetlick

Many students are planning a trip to New York City on April 14. They are going to the Metropolitan Opera House to see "The Barber of Seville."

Rossini's opera, "The Barber of Seville," tells the entertaining story of a barber, Figaro, who wins the love of Rosina, a young girl for his friend, Lindaro. The opera is filled with amusing complications since the girl's guardian, crabby old Count Bartolo, also loves the girl and is so jealous of her youthful suitor, that he refuses to allow the unhappy young man in the house.

But, Lindaro will not be so easily put off and with the help of his resourceful barber friend, steals in to see Rosina in the guise of her music teacher. He is, of course, discovered but the opera ends happily for the young lovers after no end of misunderstandings.

The Interrogator

Should there be a formal senior farewell dance?—Adele Conroy.

Mildred Entz—Yes, I think there should be a farewell dance, just for seniors at the end of the year.

Muriel Somers—I think there should be a senior farewell dance. It would be somewhat of a finishing enjoyment of your senior year.

Bernice Becker—I think there should be a farewell dance in June and should be formal.

Helena Zarro—I think so. When you go away you like to have the last thought of high school a pleasant one.

Evelyn Corino—I think there should be one. There should be at least one senior in every couple, boy, or girl.

1-MINUTE SAFETY TALKS

By Don Herold

Don't Be A Statistic

We can read that 36,800 people have been killed by an earthquake in Japan, and it doesn't make as much of an impression on us as mashing our own finger in a screen door.

We read that 36,800 people were killed, and 967,840 injured in automobile accidents last year, and it isn't so very impressive or depressing, because they are fairly well scattered and remote. Just a lot of people we don't care about.

There is nothing much in such figures to stir us emotionally to fear or caution or to a resolution to drive with exceeding care, ourselves.

Nature, darn her, blesses and curses us with a feeling that WE are going to be exceptions. It takes an unusually intelligent man to read statistics and say: "I'm just as liable to trouble as one of these 967,840. I'd better watch out, or I'll be a statistic, myself, some day."

I mean to make you cringe. I mean to make you hurt a little when you read these automobile accident figures, issued by The Travelers Insurance Company. I mean to make you subject yourself momentarily to the painful process of imagining one of those 36,800 or 967,840 to be your own child.

Then multiply that wave of anguish by 36,800 or 967,840. Every one of those bleak human units was a precious bit of life to someone. What a major national calamity our automobile toll is when we consider it in this light!

Why try to get home a half hour sooner on Sunday night, why attempt to add 25 miles to your day's trip, why go 70 or 80 miles an hour, just for the fun of it, when you should be doing 50 or 40—when the gamble is with life as precious as the life of that youngster in your own back seat or that somebody else's youngster chasing a rubber ball into the street, or even the life of a fairly cheap adult?

When you read these accident statistics, remember you are not reading of toothpicks or matches; you're reading of 36,800 times your own little Bill or Mary or John or Anna.

To Win Bike Laurels

Will Put Aside His Books in June for Banked Saucer

By Charles Feeney.

Dave Martin, senior, will put aside his books in June, to make ready for the 1933 season in which he hopes to take the "National Senior Bike Title."

Martin, who held the junior title for two years, in 1935 winning at Atlantic City, and in 1936 at St. Louis, is a great threat to the larger boys at the tape. The speed and ability that Martin packs are going to mean a great deal to him when the championships come along.

Martin, who is known all over the country for his sprints has given some last minute thrills at the tape to other riders. Here's hoping for the best.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1938

Mankind is wandering in heart-breaking perplexity, bewildered by many false prophets and discouraged by many false hopes.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

UNSCRUPULOUS

Through depredations of persons, who are believed by recreation officials to be grown-ups, approximately $200 worth of damage is occasioned each year at the summer camp along Third River near the Nutley line. This is disgraceful and shows a complete lack of decency on the part of those responsible. Taxpayers gladly support the camp, but when some one willfully causes hard-pressed home owners to "dig down" each year for unnecessary repairs, the culprits should be apprehended and, at least, made pay for the damage. The recreation camp is an asset to Belleville. The depredations consist of mutilating the mess hall and tearing bricks from a structure, housing a chlorinating machine. This is a serious matter and the marauders should be held up to public scorn.

WELFARE FEDERATION PRESIDENTS

Due to pressure of business, Recorder Everett B. Smith was not a candidate for re-election Tuesday evening as president of the Welfare Federation. In his place Floyd Bragg was named.

In leaving Recorder Smith is to be complimented and thanked for his efforts in behalf of the federation and its activities. He gave, as he always does, unselfishly of his time and ability for the good of the town. He felt it his civic duty. He is replaced by another sterling man in the person of Mr. Bragg, who, likewise, has always worked for Belleville's civic good. The job is held without remuneration. Belleville is better off for men of the type of Messrs. Smith and Bragg.

SLOWING RECOVERY

Washington, for several weeks past now, has been the scene of almost daily conferences designed to bring about better cooperation between government and business as a means toward lifting the Nation from a recession bog. From all indications, the talks have served to bring about a better understanding, if nothing else.

Almost to a man, every business leader invited to the Capital City to express his views on the economic problems has urged that the tax burden on business be lightened as one of the most certain means of rousing the recovery march, and that the competition of government in business with its own citizens should be curbed.

These business men know—as the government should know now—that money paid in taxes cannot be spent for wages; that the same dollar can't go into the tax 'till and the pay envelope at the same time. This philosophy isn't something new to be heard around Washington—Congress had the same idea last December when it was in special session.

Everyone seems to be in accord on the matter—that stifling taxation must be ended; that tax money, if unleashed in the business field, will go a long way toward providing jobs for unemployed workers. Why, then, should there be any further delay in taking this important step toward industrial recovery?

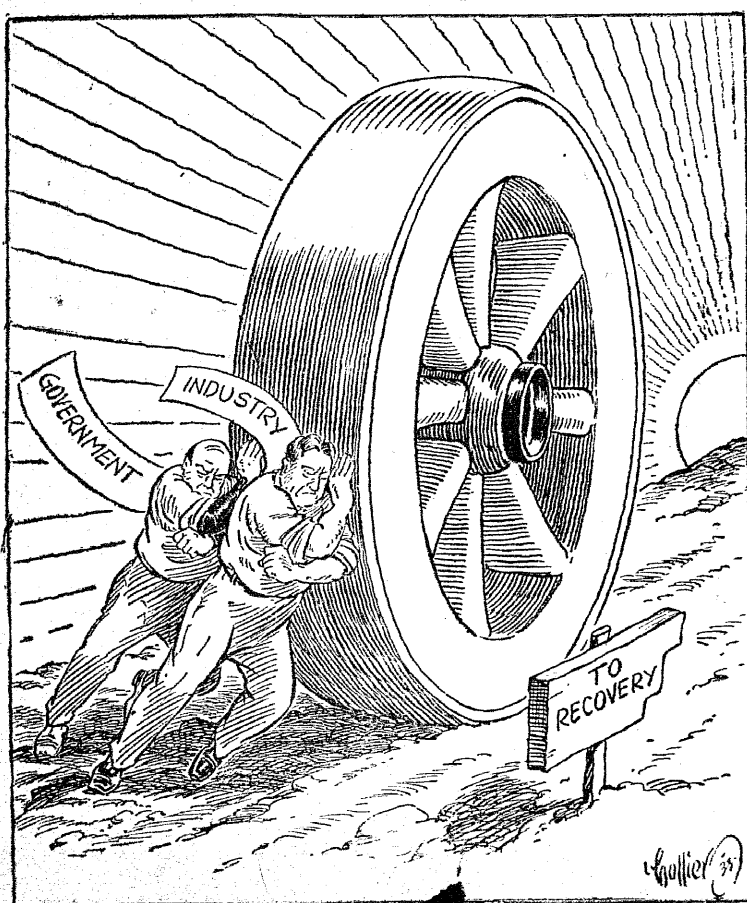

FEED THE BIRDS

A most urgent appeal has been made by the Audubon Society to kind-hearted people to feed birds, which are facing starvation because of the recent snowfalls. Both the friendly birds, which may be seen outside of the window, and the game birds may be in real distress. A few bread crumbs or grain left around for the birds to get at would prove a salvation for these feathered friends. This is a kind act in which every one can participate.

SNOW DISAPPEARS

Even as we were growing accustomed to the ermine mantle of the snow, along came the wild horses of the warm gale to challenge January's supremacy with a taste of March. With strident clamor it thundered in from the shore line, nearby, washing the snowbanks into gurgling rivers and bringing out, as if by black art, the hidden ground from the hyperborean scene. The weather changed the landscape.

ALL TOGETHER, NOW!

SCHOOL DAYS

By DWIG

THIS WEEK

By "GUARDIAN"

This week some friends with whom we are rather intimately acquainted, celebrated a twenty-fifth jubilee anniversary—and that naturally started us thinking about the progress of this world of ours in the past twenty-five years. We, quite reluctantly, are forced to the conclusion that despite some epochal developments in the world, the years 1913 to 1938 inclusive, have not brought much real progress.

There will be those who will vehemently disagree and point out the very material progress that has been made in certain fundamental lines of human endeavor. We will agree and will try to point out some of the fields in which real strides have been made, but nevertheless in the basic thing of life that makes progress in the world—the relationship of man to his fellow man—we have, if anything, retrogressed.

In the fields of science there have been new discoveries, upon some of which we have touched in previous columns, which might in the future change our whole technical conception of sources of energy, especially if man's ability to obtain useful power through shattering the atom advances. We have the Einstein theory of relativity—we have made marvelous strides in industrial chemistry. We have found ways of making synthetically products equal to and oftentimes better, than the products of nature.

There have been great improvements in technical equipment, in office appliances, in telephone service, in radio and general communications. We have seen some wonderful books and poems produced and one or two great plays.

We have learned more about nutrition and the part played by the vitamins that have now been isolated and can be obtained in concentrated form, and in the fields of medicine and public health have probably made as great strides as in any other quarter of a century in the history of mankind. Probably it is in the field of medicine, with the new intelligence that the medicine profession has as to ways to prevent and cure the ills that beset human beings, that our greatest progress has come in this period—great strides having been made even against the two greatest enemies of the human body—heart disease and cancer. Certainly out of the developments of a quarter of a century comes the hope that even these, too, will soon be controlled.

And we have seen millions of automobiles come, magnificent highways, speedways, bridges and tunnels, skyscrapers and marvelous buildings and many, many other bits of progress that to the eye give evidence of a world going ahead.

Twenty-four years ago the world launched into the World War. Since then Governments have fallen. New theories of government have placed dictators, intoxicated with power, in position to slaughter those who disagree with them. Whole races of people have been subjugated and tyrannized. In many sections of the country, benevolent relationships between employee and employer have been torn asunder—class is aligned against class and the whole world seems to be rushing ahead toward another Armageddon that does not spell hope for the immediate future.

However great our material progress has been in this past quarter of a century, certainly there has been little progress in man learning how to live at peace with his fellow man—and that would seem to be the most important element in our life in which progress should be made.

But just the same it's a wonderful world in which to live and few, if any, of us would exchange the past twenty-five years for any other twenty-five years, even if we could.

Yours 'til next week,
"GUARDIAN."

BOY SCOUT WEEK

During next week, from February 6 to 14, the Boy Scouts of America commemorate their twenty-eighth anniversary and invite all civic-minded persons who have the interest of youth, and their community at heart to participate.

It is encouraging that during recent years, while so many nations have planted the seeds of hatred and war in the minds of their children that in this country the Boy Scouts, dedicated to peace and international amity, through mutual understanding and tolerance, have moved steadily forward.

The silver lining of the cloud of crime that is enveloping our country is the negligible number of Boy Scouts—and others who are, or have been, members of youth organizations—who are among the offenders.

Unfortunately Belleville is trailing far behind many communities in the most important work of a community—the only work which can perpetuate our good name and safeguard our future—the character building of our youth. This one organization, the Boy Scouts, with a potential membership of approximately 1,000 boys has, due to inadequate leadership, a membership of only 150.

No more constructive task exists than the training of youth for the responsibilities which tomorrow will be theirs. No greater contribution to the well-being of our town and the peace of the world can be made by any man than that of devoting a part of his time to helping those of less mature age to discover, and appreciate, the finer things of life.

May we suggest to the civic-minded men and women of Belleville that they lend their moral support to the Boy Scouts by attending the church services and other affairs which will be held during their anniversary week.

But more than moral support is needed. There is work to be done if we are to give our boys the training which will create social and civic-minded men. Fortunately this is work in which most any man can participate and it is to be hoped that, during this week, more Belleville men will be inspired to join the vanguard of progress by volunteering their services to the Boy Scouts of America.

New Jersey Today

Suicides Decline in Largest Cities.

Prepared for the Belleville News by Russel Van Nest Black, consultant-director, New Jersey State Planning Board.

Figure out the why of it for yourself, but the fact is that there are proportionately fewer suicides in cities of over 500,000 population than in smaller cities. Perhaps it is partly because the great centers of population are becoming stabilized and so giving more thought to city planning with the purpose of making them healthier and more comfortable and happier places in which to live.

Again, the lowest suicide rates are found in New England and the East South Central regions, while the highest rates are on the Pacific Coast. According to the Urbanism Committee of the National Resources Committee which compiled the data, this latter may be accounted for in part by the noted tendency of fast-growing cities to have a higher rate.

Every year in the United States, approximately 22,000 persons take their own lives, it is said. For the past thirty years, the rate of suicide in urban places of 10,000 population and over has been about fifty per cent higher than in the smaller cities and rural areas. The incidence of suicide for the county as a whole increases directly with the increase in the size of the city, up to a certain point: from a rate of 15.9 per 100,000 population in cities 10,000 to 25,000 population to 19.9 in cities of 25,000 to 50,000 population. There is a noticeable decline for cities of over 500,000 population.

Urban areas with the highest percentage of adults, old people, males and particularly elderly males, tend to have a higher incidence of suicide than other urban or rural places. Similarly communities with large percentages of foreign born, Japanese, Chinese and Mexican, tend to have higher rates. However, the incidence of suicides among Negroes is extremely low. In 1930, their suicide rate was 5.1 per 100,000 population, as compared with 15.6 for the total population. Suicides are more frequent at the extremes of the economic scale than in the middle, which might in part account for the rural and urban differences in suicides, since extremes in wealth and poverty are found more often in the city.

Suicide increases markedly with business depressions. The suicide rate in urban areas, and for that matter in the country as a whole, is likely to decline as the economic and social security of the population increases, as mental and physical health is improved, as wholesome recreational facilities are provided, as the population becomes more stable, and as family and community solidarity are furthered.

PIQUANT POLITICS

By MEADOR WRIGHT

"SEE how far that little candle throws its beams. So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Had the Bard of Avon not composed his immortal simile when he did, some New Jersey columnist might well have conceived it to describe the public reaction to Governor Moore's appointment of Newton H. Porter of Montclair to the State Supreme Court.

The unanimous commendation that has greeted the selection reveals how disgusted the public is with the practice of permitting judgeships to be used as political pawns in the sordid game of politics. What is more important politically, Governor Moore has won credit for smartness as well as virtue. It was one more example of his subtle understanding of Essex County sentiment. Neither Harold G. Hoffman on one hand, nor Dr. Lester H. Cleo on the other, has Moore's intuition for tactful diplomacy in making Essex appointments, or not making them, has done him more harm politically than can be easily calculated. Although his technique is entirely different, Dr. Cleo has displayed a similar lack of understanding about how people feel here. There is the verdict of the voters to substantiate both cases.

An example of the ineptitude of both men is supplied by the vacancy in the district court of Orange. Hoffman named Harry Green, an able lawyer but not popular in Orange. On all sides there was resentment. It was felt that an Orange office was being used by the Governor to pay a personal debt, and that the selection was just one more example of Hoffman trying to ram something down the throat of Essex that was not wanted. Here was a chance for Cleo to strengthen himself in Orange and at the same time uphold his principle of an unbossed judiciary. Tact was required. But in adamantly insisting that only William A. Calhoun, incumbent, must be named. Cleo won a reputation for stubbornness rather than virtue. When he persisted in his stand to the length that no Republican could be appointed, even though Hoffman through the intervention of Senate President Loizeaux was willing to name a veteran Clean Government leader, Joseph Magrino, Cleo made enemies in Orange that will bother him for years to come. Different Essex communities require different treatment in matters of patronage, but neither Hoffman nor Cleo has shown much skill in appealing to any of them.

Porter is one of the most likable judges in the whole state. His kindly sense of humor, his complete lack of judicial pomposity, and his shrewd reliance on common sense rather than legal erudition to decide difficult cases, makes his popularity unique. He has a smile for the humblest juror or spectator, yet retains a judicial dignity equal to that of the sternest disciplinarian. Although he lacks the intellectual elegance of an Oliver Wendell Holmes, he has the same spirit of broad humanity that characterized this, perhaps, greatest of American judges. A great office has found a great man.

The Hudson vote probe continues to be the main topic of political conversation as these lines are being written. How the imbroglio will turn out is beyond my province of guessing. There is dynamite enough in the investigation to blow more than one political party to pieces. Already the probe has won headlines enough for the Cleo camp to justify its inception. Regardless of guilt that may eventually be proven, I am inclined to guess that enough public sentiment will be aroused to force voting machines in Hudson. There is one school that insists that such installation is the primary object of the investigation. Unless they believe that they can actually keep the poll books out of the Assembly committee's hands, it seems poor strategy to me for the Democrats to oppose it getting them. Cleo can build a house of victory out of newspaper headlines, even if there are few stones of truth in the edifice. Whether he likes it or not, Hague is now living in a glass house. The whole world has its eyes on him.

It is interesting to observe how completely Hudson's affairs have pushed Essex off the map. Although Newark's mayor is under indictment along with two dozen of his political associates, almost nothing is being heard or written about this local scandal. The public appears extremely bored with the whole affair. This, no doubt, is very much to Mayor El-lenstein's liking. Inertia has undone many a grand jury indictment. "It is a long time between headlines," might be a welcome toast from the mayor of Newark to the mayor of Jersey City.

But if the general public is oblivious to the Newark affair, certain individuals in the Clean Government camp are very sensitive about it. Time marches on, and very soon the day of reckoning will come. The trials, and the evidence they will produce, may very well shake the foundations of Newark's present scheme of government. Both Republican and Democratic camps are expecting this, and are preparing for the future.

It is the hope of William H. Seely and those about him that Clean Government can capture control of Newark because of the reputation of the Essex County government under its leadership. Hence plans are being made to force a new charter through the legislature that will permit a referendum for a change in government. Democratic leaders, so far, have merely watched these maneuvers. Thoughtful strategists in their camp, however, have been taking careful stock of assets. Main one of these is Joseph M. Byrne, whose civic reputation has grown appreciably during the past year.

It is the consensus of all opinions that the central power of any new government should be lodged in a mayor who must be elected at large. With this basic agreement reached, both Democratic and Republican strategists are watching Byrne, the former hopefully, the latter fearfully. Some Republicans are asking if the net result of a new form of government would not be turning Newark over to the Democrats through the election of Byrne as mayor. Democrats are thinking the same thing, and upon the decision reached will rest the other decision of whether a referendum will be pushed by the Republicans or opposed by the Democrats.

The public hearing to be called this evening by the East Orange police commission will center attention on one of the fiercest bits of controversy that has engulfed East Orange in a decade. The hearing, which concerns the conduct of the police department, in general, and Detective Joseph McGinley, in particular, in handling the Linarducci case, will weigh the validity of the adage that 75,000 East Orangenians cannot be wrong. Unfortunately for Mayor Martens and Police Commissioner Kramer, more is demanded than McGinley's scalp. It's East Orange's rather happy way of competing with Jersey City and Newark for public attention.

Voice of the People

Appreciates Ambulance.

Editor News:

When my son, Theodore L., was taken ill Wednesday night with an acute attack of appendicitis, and the doctor found it necessary to summon the town ambulance to transport him to St. Barnabas' Hospital, the ambulance was on duty promptly and the courtesy of the policeman and firemen, who assisted the doctor, was noticeable. These men went out of their way to assist our family and I want to extend my appreciation. If this is a sample of the cooperation from the town in such matters, I, for one, want to voice my approval and sincere thanks. The men were very kind.

Sincerely,

Samuel Miller, Denied Ambition to Become A Physician, Is Now Expert Ceramist New President of Belleville Art Club Recently Sold Landscape Painting to Resident Of Brookdale

Denied his ambition to become a physician through the death of his father, Samuel Miller, 280 Washington avenue, branched out in other fields and is now an expert ceramist for an enameling company in Bloomfield.

Mr. Miller was graduated in Walnut Creek (Ohio) High School, and imbued with the idea of becoming a surgeon, to which end he entered Goshen College, Goshen, Ind.

His father died while he was in his second year at the college and he was forced to leave school. An ardent artist, Mr. Miller, upon coming to Belleville over eight years ago, studied under Professors Schlesinger and Matz at the Newark School of Fine and Industrial Arts in High Street.

Mr. Miller was elected president of the Belleville Art Club at a meeting at the home of Matthew Geddes, 260 Park street, Upper Montclair, which shows his popularity and ability in the field of art.

While in Ohio, he learned taxidermy from a friend and he is now very proficient in this work. Last year he stuffed eight deer heads, a few pheasants, squirrels and two grouse.

But it is in the realm of art that Mr. Miller is most interested. A landscape painting was sold to Louis Trebour of Brookdale recently. On a trip to Ohio a year ago he disposed of seven of his paintings, to friends and well-wishers in Walnut Creek.

He believes that his best field in art at present is in the portrait line, to which he is devoting most of his spare time.

At an exhibition of paintings of the Belleville Art Club at the local library, recently, Mr. Miller submitted a "Portrait of a Hindu," which was viewed with admiration by many persons.

He is athletically inclined and plays golf in which he breaks ninety consistently. Tennis, hunting and fishing round out his activities in sports.

His wife was formerly Miss Lois Forshee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Forshee of this town. They have been married three and one-half years.

Scouts

must be required subjects before the honored badge is presented. There are few more than 100 from which the scout may choose to earn. In preparing for this "most talked of award," the scout puts to use more than any number of hobbies, not to test his ability, but to train it; and there is a great deal of difference between the two.

At times much research is required, to conquer the more advanced merit badges. Bird study is in this class. Forty species of wild birds not only must be studied—but sighted in the field and identified. Their color, habits and benefits to mankind also must be cited. Civics merit badge also takes careful study. Interest in municipal and national affairs must be classified.

The open spaces, the root of scouting, has always attracted the youth. Two other required badges for Eagle include Pioneering and Camping. Training for the latter, the scout must spend fifty nights in the open. Sleeping may be in tents, however, but ten over-night hikes are scheduled, at which time the boy must prepare his own food and shelter. Tents are to be properly pitched and the bed made of native material of nature upon the bare ground. A well balanced menu too is planned.

Pioneering requires the building of a lean-to and the erection of a small bridge held together by spar-lashing. Those wearing the highest award of scouting also are trained to care for themselves and others in water safety. Swimming and life saving with all its forms of rescue grips and carries are studied. Knowing his community is covered by the knowledge of street and building locations.

Yes, and he can cook, too. Cooking merit badge recipients proves the scout has showed his prowess in mixing dough and baking in his hand-made fireplace and oven. And he's right there when it comes to carving and serving at the dining table. In athletics and physical development merit badges, the scout trains in body and sport endurance.

Association with an Eagle Scout, one scout executive once said, will reveal him to be a "real fellow and not the half-baked one who must depend upon others." He is the scout who can do things for himself; he can travel his own road unaided and with all the faculties about him so that he may aid others about him should the occasion ever arise.

Sonja Henie Stars In Proctor's Film Ice Skater Now Playing At Newark Movie House

Sonja Henie, queen of the skates, returns to the screen at Proctor's Theatre, Newark, today in her new picture, "Happy Landings," in which she is co-starred with Don Ameche. On the same program is "Change of Hearts," with Gloria Stuart and Michael Whalen.

Supporting Miss Henie and Ameche in "Happy Landings," are Jean Hersholt, Cesar Romero, Ethel Merman, Billy Gilbert, the Raymond Scott Quintet, Wally Vernon, Leah Ray, the Peters Sisters and the Condos Brothers.

Ameche and Romero break into a bride's festival at a small Norwegian village when they make a forced landing while flying from New York to Paris. Romero is a publicity seeking band leader, Ameche his manager.

Because he dances twice with Miss Henie, Romero is considered her husband-to-be, according to the custom of the village. He, however, is in love with a singer (Miss Merman) in the United States, and leaves for Paris.

Sonja leaves to follow Romero. Ameche takes care of her, and they fall in love.

Miss Henie is featured in several spectacular skating numbers, among them a difficult single toe whirl which Sonja has just perfected.

In "Change of Heart," Whalen is a jealous husband whose golf crazy wife (Miss Stuart) frequently leaves him to take part in golf tournaments.

Whalen decides that his wife is showing too much interest in a friend of the family (Lyle Talbot). He tells her about this, so she leaves him to get a divorce.

In the cast are Delmar Watson and Jane Darwell.

YOU AND YOUR FINGERPRINTS

By JACOB LEVINE

In collaboration with Andrew Monaghan

There is no stigma attached to being fingerprinted. If your son was inducted into military service during the World War, he was fingerprinted. For nearly twenty-two years, his prints have been on file in the War Department in Washington. Has this ever humiliated or embarrassed him? Ask him. If you, or any member of your family is a Civil Service employee, if you or any of your friends has a Postal Savings account, they have been fingerprinted. Did this fingerprint record carry any stigma.

Finger prints are your permanent, unchangeable non-transferable, personal mark of identification. Every year the Navy Identification Bureau identifies about fifty unknown dead men who formerly served in the navy. This means that these men are given a proper burial and prevented from being buried in unknown graves. In marine disasters, explosions and hurricanes the identifications of navy's unknown dead has been of the utmost value.

In the hurricane in Florida, in 1935, all of the former navy men who lost their lives were identified. By these identifications it was possible to give each identification a suitable burial, and also prevented him from being buried in an unknown grave.

In the late war there were 50,326 John Smiths and 28,902 John Browns and thousands of other similar names, some of these men from the same city, of the same age, enlisting on the same day in the same organization. How were these men to be identified if it were not for their finger prints taken at the time of their enlistment.

Suppose you were struck down tomorrow by a motor car in a strange city and killed, rendered unconscious, or affected mentally.

It is unlikely your purse would contain anything definitely identifying (few women's purses do).

It might be apparent that you were of good family, a person of high standing in your town. But what town? What state? Who would identify you?

The local Missing Persons Bureau of the Police Department would be going immediately, of course, its patient work of trying to identify you.

THINGS FOUND IN BOOKS

It may be a hair pin, a dill pickle, a love letter, a lorgnette or any one of a thousand or more commonplace, or commonplace things, that get into public libraries, not as articles for use, but forgotten bookmarks, placed in books by readers. It is difficult to imagine a broader gamut of human emotions, human passions and other human elements represented, not even by the "lost and found" articles in street cars.

The most common book marks used are letters; letters extolling money-saving sales, letters demanding that accounts be paid, family letters describing the virtues of precocious children to doting grandmothers, and, of course, love letters. These personal letters are some times tragic, some times funny, but most of them are written with a sincerity that frequent bad grammar and indifferent spelling make all the more apparent. They are the small crises in the lives of average people, now dead, and good only to mark a place in a story not half so fascinating as the one they make.

Next to letters, snapshots and photographs litter the pages of library books. Snaps of that day at the beach, of a family reunion, a baby's first step, and commercial prints of matinee idols and movie actresses, all to find a final resting place in the bottom of some library waste paper basket.

Most of the public's book marks are easy to interpret, the bits of string, the occasional rusty nail or hair pin, the book of matches and the handkerchief. But some things left in books are a challenge to the imagination. A copy of Jack London's "Call of the Wild" comes back, its pages separated at frequent intervals with tooth picks. Can you picture a tired man settling down after a hard day's work and a good dinner, to a few chapters of adventure before turning in to gether strength for another day's lundrum existence? Or one of Kathleen Norris' love stories is returned with a lump in the middle, a patchwork square, put there perhaps by an elderly lady interspersing romance with the practicalities of life.

What could be the motive for marking a place in the thick, lush pages of "Anthony Adverse" with a strip of uncooked bacon? Did a busy housewife pause in her perusal of love and adventure in bygone days to prepare less spiritual food for a hungry family? Or how does one explain the dollar bill found, appropriately enough, in the pages of a copy of "Orchids on Your Budget?" Some day, a bright young psychologist will make his name with a thesis on the reading habits of the great American public, derived from source material, from the things they leave in books.

Books, Yes, said great American public is reading, reading books of individual ownership, on a big scale, but in greater measure reading books from public libraries. They are reading books during leisure, but also, apparently, in almost stolen moments, taken from the practical pursuits of life, as denoted by some of the book-marks. The story of bookmarks is also the story of the public library system in this country, a very real story of the widespread appreciation of books, and of the system that provides them for all who would read, whether able to buy books or not.

Clergy of All Faiths Urge Contributions To China Relief Fund of Red Cross

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 4.—Clergy of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths joined today in urging contributions for the China Relief Fund of the American Red Cross.

"We welcome the leadership of the Red Cross in enabling us to express our sympathy in effective ways," said a statement signed by twenty church leaders, issued by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, we hope that churches everywhere will assist the local Red Cross chapters in their effort to obtain substantial contributions."

Archbishop John J. Glennon of the St. Louis diocese of the Roman Catholic Church, said: "I heartily approve of the appeal of the Red Cross of the United States, sponsored by President Roosevelt, the purpose of which is to help in caring for the sick and wounded and helpless in China, and I hope all of our people will make a generous response."

Dr. Abram Simon, rabbi of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, pledged his support "to stand behind the humanitarian efforts of President Roosevelt so that the Red Cross relief program for the suffering men, women and children in China may be successfully pursued."

The Red Cross announced that contributions to a China Relief Fund would be accepted through its 3,700 chapters, following a request by President Roosevelt that the American public be given an opportunity to give a good will offering of as much as $1,000,000 for the aid of the millions of destitute Chinese civilians.

The Protestant clergy spoke through the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. Twenty clergymen signed the statement, which read as follows:

"Dire suffering and need among millions of innocent civilians in China make irresistible demands upon all Americans of good-will, for help. We therefore enthusiastically endorse the appeal of the American Red Cross for funds for relief and urge the churches to give it their whole-hearted support."

"Seldom, perhaps never, have we been confronted with a situation which called so desperately for help. The need grows more urgent from day to day. Over a vast territory normally inhabited by millions of people there is need for food, clothing, medical supplies and temporary shelter."

"We welcome the leadership of the Red Cross in enabling us to express our sympathy in effective ways. We hope that the churches everywhere will assist the local Red Cross chapters in their efforts to obtain substantial contributions. The churches more than any other groups in the community may rightly be expected to take the initiative in promoting a prompt and generous demonstration of the good-will and practical helpfulness of the American people."

The signers are Bishops A. R. Clippinger, United Brethren in Christ; Paul DeSchweinitz, Moravian Church; Edwin H. Hughes, Methodist Episcopal Church; Paul B. Kern, Methodist Episcopal Church, South; John M. Moore, Methodist Episcopal Church, South; G. Bromley Oxnam, Methodist Episcopal Church; Rt. Rev. William Bertrand Stevens, bishop Protestant Episcopal Church; Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, presiding bishop, Protestant Episcopal Church; Rev. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary, Federal Council of Churches; Dr. Henry Sloan Coffin, president, Union Theological Seminary; Rev. Ivan Lee Holt, former president, Federal Council of Churches; Rev. Edgar DeWitt Jones, president, Federal Council of Churches; Dr. F. H. Knobel, president, United Lutheran Church in America; Rev. D. Clay Lilly, moderator of Presbyterian Church in the United States; Dr. Walter L. Lingle, president of Davidson College; Dr. John R. Mott, chairman, International Missionary Council; Rev. Albert W. Palmer, president, Chicago Theological Seminary; Rev. Earle V. Pierce, president, Northern Baptist Convention; Rev. George W. Richards, president, General Synod of Evangelical and Reformed Church; Rev. John R. Sampey, president, Southern Baptist Convention; Rev. Wynand Wickers, moderator of General Synod of Reformed Church in America.

Rabbi Simon addressed the following plea "to the sympathetic public":

"I am pleased to join my friends in an earnest appeal to stand behind the humanitarian efforts of President Roosevelt, so that the Red Cross Relief Fund for the suffering men, women and children in China may be successfully pursued. The cause is so urgent that words from the pulpit seem almost superfluous, but I am hoping that you will see by these lines my warm interest in the success of the cause which the President of the United States, in his official capacity, has made the cause of America and of freedom loving peoples."

FISH and GAME

By De Allaire

Last winter the sportsmen of the state were aroused by the slaughter of the striped bass in the Toms River hole.

The "slaughter" is being duplicated this year in Barnegat Bay where the fish are running in countless numbers.

The commercial fisherman, clam diggers and natives are reaping a vast profit of 25 cents per pound on each fish taken.

The "meat hunters" employ the use of poles with hooks fastened to the end and simply gaff each fish as they sight it. The fish lie on the shallow bottom in a petrified manner which enables the pseudo sportsmen to get as many as they desire in a short time.

The fish are reported to be perfect specimens, showing no sign whatsoever of disease.

Thousands of pounds of these fish which were taken in the vicinity of Seaside Park have been shipped to markets.

It seems a shame that these fish have to be destroyed in this way, but there can be nothing done about it. Steps taken last year by enthusiastic sportsmen to put a stop to the Toms River jigging were defeated.

What with the present lapse in fresh water fishing, now is the time to be putting your tackle in shape for the coming seasons.

Start with your poles, by testing the ferrules. Loose ferrules can be fixed by removing, then scraping the old cement off and putting on new. Be sure to replace the ferrules the minute the cement is applied in order that the cement may get a firm hold while it is still soft.

Check the guides, and if you replace them yourself be sure to wind the thread around them tight and then paint them with a couple coats of lacquer.

Now, if you are satisfied with your rod, start on your reel. Strip the line off and test it every few yards to be sure its strength is sufficient to hold all those big fish you are going to catch.

If your reel needs cleaning, make sure the old oil hasn't gummed and if so, wipe it all out and replace it. I, myself prefer a very thin oil to the heavier quality, as the latter has a tendency to gum and slow the action of your reel.

Lock over your lures and make sure the hooks are sharp and in good condition. Test the strength of snells and leader and replace the bad ones. Sort out your flies and make sure you have them where you can get them in a hurry. Test your net to make sure the "big ones" won't slip through the mesh.

There are many more things you can do to prepare yourself but I have tried to recall to you the most important items.

One thing fishermen shouldn't forget however, is to place their equipment where they can lay hands on it without waking the household, when going out in the wee hours of the morning.

Plan Double Feature For Laurel Card

"Big Name" Shows Continue At Newark Burping Academy

For the second in a series of "big name" shows, the Laurel Garden promoters have grabbed some of the best talent in the business to give the fans a talent-laden card tonight.

A double header feature tops the bill and brings Kimon Kuda and George Becker back in the one fall to a finish topper. This pair battled thirty sensational minutes to a draw last week and the fans gave them a five-minute ovation at the conclusion of their bout. The promoters have brought them back at once in order to let them keep grappling until a verdict is reached.

As a co-feature Jesse James returns after a three-week absence, to test Gino Martinelli, fast climbing young Italian. It is the biggest opportunity of Gino's career to climb to a top spot and the result should be a thrilling duel.

Topping the supporting card is a bout that may develop into a classic. Dean Detton, former world champion, is billed to grapple Sammie Fitzpatrick Cohen for thirty minutes. The styles of these two men assure a thriller from the opening bell.

Jim McMillen, former University of Illinois grid star, makes his first Newark appearance against John Sullivan, Irish goliath. McMillen holds the record for drawing the biggest gate ($70,000) in wrestling history for a title bout with Jim London.

Sammie Stein gets the toughest opponent he has yet faced here when he battles Chief Chewacki, the one-man riot. Chewacki never fails to cause plenty of excitement and endangers Sammie's streak.

Dick Daviscourt battles Bronko Valdez in the remaining bout of one of the greatest "name" shows ever presented in Newark.

Safety Record Held By Phone Company

Three Belleville Men Have Driven Ten Years Without Mishap

The big green fleet of telephone trucks and automobiles, which rolls nearly nine million miles a year over New Jersey highways, streets and lanes taking traffic and weather conditions as it finds them, has more than tripled the distance between accidents by an intensive safe-driving campaign extending over the last ten years.

Ten years ago an accident—and by an accident telephone drivers mean a scraped fender backing out of the garage, as well as a collision on the road—occurred to some telephone vehicles on an average of every 29,700 miles of driving. In 1937, for which driving records were made available this week, the fleet drove an average of 108,000 miles between accidents. Nearly 400 drivers have had no accidents at all during the entire decade.

Courtesy and care on the part of the drivers, as well as cars in good condition, account for the spectacular achievement, which runs counter to increasing accident ratio of all cars on the road, according to Chester I. Barnard, president of the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company.

"This is a record to be proud of," he told the drivers, "for it is one not easy to achieve. There is just as much dangerous traffic and careless driving on the road today as ever—possibly more. It is only by being continually more courteous and more careful as the years go on that we can hope to set up better and better driving records."

Among the telephone men living in Belleville who have driven without an accident since the company was formed ten years ago are A. R. Leonard, 363 Greylock parkway; M. E. Joyce, 15 Arthur street, and W. F. Martin, 13 Campbell avenue.

Ten Births Recorded at Vital Statistics Bureau

A daughter, Janet Harriet, has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Halsey Douglass, 124 Carpenter street. Mr. Douglass, who was a representative of the Newark Evening News in Belleville, is now employed in Montclair for that newspaper.

Other births reported at the Bureau of Vital Statistics are as follows: A daughter, Dorothy Georgia, to Mr. and Mrs. Victor A. Mertrude, 45 Charles street.

A daughter, Marilyn Helen, to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Crabbie Hilly, 283 William street.

A daughter, Geraldine Joane, to Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Merola, 531 Joramelon street.

A son, William, to Mr. and Mrs. William Foote, 68 Mill street.

A son, James Thornton, Jr., to Mr. and Mrs. James Thornton Metz, 18 Forest street at the Presbyterian Hospital.

A daughter, Pamela, to Mr. and Mrs. Ross Richard Burns, 242 Washington avenue, at the Presbyterian Hospital.

A daughter, Maureen Louise, to Mr. and Mrs. Paul McCoy, 87 Union avenue, at the St. Barnabas Hospital.

A daughter, Linda Mae, to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Edward Bartlett, Jr., 24 Agnes street, at the Homeopathic Hospital.

A son, Angelo, to Mr. and Mrs. Gerardo Veneziano, 12 Harrison street, at the Homeopathic Hospital.

THE LOW DOWN from HICKORY GROVE

Maybe I will get the Army and the Navy on my neck, but I will scribble any way. And the government, I reckon it cannot slap me in jail for same, like as if I maybe raised a row or two rows too much cotton. And what I got in mind, is Admirals and Generals, gettin' retired at 64.

But for any outfit that has its feet on the ground, I will nominate these two-fisted babies—and I will take my hat off to them. And at 64, they are not all washed up, by a long shot.

And these so-called old boys, they have had experience and were brought up on discipline, and they have built a navy and an army that has the world's respect—and when a tough job is on hand, they do it—not manna, but today.

No, instead of retirin' these brigadiers, etc., at 64, which is an insult, we better tack on another four years—and honor them, in places like Congress, and for Governors, etc. And the ship-of-state would gleam and shine, and go places, like a leather-neck with a job ashore.

Yours, with the low down,
JO SERRA.

Motorists Get Advice On Car Inspection

Magee Urges Owners to Wait for Official Notification

Desirous of speeding up inspections and avoiding long and tiresome delays in line, Motor Vehicle Commissioner Arthur W. Magee today appealed to car owners to await official notice through the mail before presenting their cars for inspection. More than half the cars inspected during the past two weeks were taken there voluntarily by well meaning citizens, he says.

"When the inspection system was set up" said the commissioner, "the basis used was the density of registration, which determined the number of stations necessary in each county, as well as the number of inspection lanes in each station. The foremost thought at all times was the comfort and convenience of the motoring public which could only be achieved if operation of the stations was accompanied with a minimum of congestion and delay.

"Several methods of notifying owners when to have their cars inspected were considered before deciding on the postal notice system, the chief advantages of which are that it permits a controlled daily flow of vehicles through the inspection lanes. With each station supervisor controlling his own flow of vehicles there could be no unnecessary delays or long lines of waiting cars.

"The department did not anticipate, however, the ready acceptance and the eagerness of the motoring public to comply with the new law, as shown by the records of inspections during the first two weeks of operation. More than one-half the cars inspected to date were voluntarily submitted by owners without waiting for official notice through the mails.

"This unexpected influx of cars has been the cause of the delays at some of the stations and has greatly inconvenienced those who came in response to official notice. In some instances the presence of those volunteering their cars for inspection has doubled and even tripled the time necessary to complete inspection, particularly if the line was unusually long and reinspection of cars was necessary.

"The department is reluctant to discourage voluntary inspection for psychological and other reasons. On the other hand, it is manifestly unfair to require an owner who responds to an official notice to wait in line for unreasonable periods of time before reaching the inspection lane.

"Under the circumstances, I earnestly appeal to car owners not to present their cars for inspection until they have received official notice through the mails. This applies generally except, of course, where there is some valid reason, such as the car being out of the state or some other contingency.

"I feel that the public will willingly cooperate with the department in this respect, but desire to warn that if voluntary appearances continue in such numbers that conditions are not relieved, it may be necessary to give first consideration in the lines to motorists with official notices. I sincerely hope, however, that this will not be necessary."

Mrs. Henke was awarded second prize in a contest in which several thousand people were entered from every state in the union.

Children in Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

A psychiatrist was assigned the task of assisting the parents of a delinquent girl in discovering how they themselves were responsible for her development of certain manifestations that led to abnormal behavior. This was the first time these parents had ever attempted to trace the source of such manifestations.

After the second interview the psychiatrist was able to point out certain conditions prevailing within the family which were responsible for her behavior. He emphasized the fact that these parents placed greater emphasis on physical hygiene and not enough significance on mental hygiene, symptoms which were indicated by their daughter's tendencies toward day dreaming, jealousy and self-consciousness.

Parental attitudes are exceedingly important, since the average child unconsciously adopts the viewpoints which the parents hold. Consequently parents frequently need assistance from a psychiatrist in working out their own goals of achievement, and also their own attitudes and relationships to each other and the other members of the family.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

To those who wonder just exactly what are some of the causes of the present feeling of uncertainty, Joseph P. Kennedy, retiring chairman of the Maritime Commission supplies an answer in his annual report:

"Despite the urgent need for new construction (in the shipping industry), private operators hesitate in the face of the present labor situation. Chaotic labor conditions, signalized by demands of the crew, 'sit-down' and 'quickie' strikes, and slipshod performance of duties are characteristic of the industry.

"No lasting cure will be effected until the jurisdictional strife now prevalent in maritime labor is terminated and a more cooperative working arrangement is reached by the unions and the ship operators."

A Washington wiscracker, after reading that, wondered if that is why Kennedy has been "promoted" from chairmanship of the Maritime Commission to the Ambassadorship to Great Britain.

How times do change! The recent court verdict convicting oil companies of agreeing to establish prices stirred up old memories in the minds of a flock of Washington newspaper correspondents.

It was less than five years ago that at General Hugh Johnson's order representatives of the oil industry were locked up in a room to stay there without sleep until they reached an agreement!

But that was in the days of the NRA! And what was mandatory then is a sin now!

Speaking of the NRA, a new organization has been launched in Washington. It is the Sick Chicken Club, and will hold its annual meeting each May 27, anniversary of the day the Supreme Court stopped the erratic flight of the Blue Eagle.

Hugh Johnson will be the "Great Thundering Rooster."

One Washington barber got a laugh out of the fact that somebody else discovered the advertising value of picketing.

Newspaper accounts said the Pennsylvania Museum of Art at Philadelphia was being picketed to entice visitors into the museum. The Washington barber tried that out a year ago. When his shop was first picketed because of union troubles, people who never before had noticed the shop walked in for service.

So when the strike was settled, the barber paid a friend for weeks to parade up and down with a sign saying: "This shop unfair to organized labor." Business finally got so good that he fired the picket.

Eaves-dropping used to be looked down upon, if our memory is correct. But when Louis Glavis, one-time chief investigator for Secretary Ickes, was on the grill before a Senate committee for tapping telephone wires, he objected to the phrase "wire-tapping." He said "eaves-dropping" would come nearer an accurate description of what he did. Thus spying upon employees becomes an approved practice when undertaken officially.

Folks who think the mysteries of Washington are simple should profit from the experience of Pasquale Carfagno, a member of the CCC camp at Annapolis, Maryland.

With some camp mates, Pasquale came to Washington on a sight-seeing trip. He got separated from his party at the Capitol. Hours later, foot-sore and weary, he showed up at a police station to ask his way back to Annapolis.

Asked what he thought of Washington, Pasquale replied he couldn't say because he had spent most of his time underground. He got lost in the labyrinth of subways under the Capitol and the Senate and House office buildings.

E. M. Gavey Outlines Safe Driver Plan

Local Insurance Man Tolls Of Rewards to Careful Motorists

A number of important questions regarding the new safe driver reward plan were answered today for local motorists by Eugene M. Gavey, insurance agent, local representative of a casualty and surety company.

The safe driver reward plan became effective in New Jersey, says Mr. Gavey, on Tuesday. The plan is applicable to all private passenger automobiles insured for both bodily injury and property damage liability on a specified car basis for a period of twelve months at regular manual rates.

According to Mr. Gavey, the basis of the plan provides for rewarding, individually and directly, the car owner who has no claims made against him. It is the answer to the appeals of careful drivers for recognition of the fact that they are entitled to individual preferential treatment in their automobile liability insurance costs and has been hailed as a "real contribution" to the encouragement of more careful driving.

Mr. Gavey says the plan guarantees to private passenger automobile owners who are insured for both bodily injury and property damage liability, a fifteen per cent refund of the premium for such coverage provided no claims are paid or reserves for claims set up under their policies during the twelve months the policies are in force. The reward will be payable by the insurance company, through the agent who wrote the policy, thirty days after the expiration of the insurance.

In the opinion of Mr. Gavey, this fifteen per cent reward should be a strong incentive to motorists to drive more carefully and should unquestionably bring about a reduction in the number and severity of automobile accidents. This, in turn, should further have a beneficial effect upon bodily injury and property damage liability insurance rates.

WRIT BITS by John E. Smith

"HEAR" AND "HEED"

The Conduct twins called "Hear" and "Heed,"

Are always at our beck and call;
They'll serve us very well indeed,
If we're inclined toward them at all.

The wisdom needed we all lack,
For situations that arise,
And there are chances to fall back
On those who're than ourselves more wise.

So many folks their ways had gone
Before we came upon the scene;
We, in their wisdom may go on,
On their developed knowledge, lean.
We for ourselves some things may learn,
Sometimes by efforts quite intense;
For other things, of course, we turn
To that source called Experience.

Advice, we find is very cheap,
Some of it may to us prove share,
And so, before we make the leap,
It's well we exercise some care.
While the experience of some,
We may regard a warning sign;
These faithful twins of Conduct come,
To help to guard your soul and mine.

To "hear" and "heed," 'tween them lies
What makes us prudent, sane, and wise.
