Jews To Observe Holiday Shevuos Feast of Weeks Begins at Sundown Tomorrow Until June 6

Jewry everywhere will observe the holiday Shevuos, the Feast of Weeks, beginning with sundown, Saturday and extending to sundown, Monday, June 6. This holiday which falls on the sixth and seventh days of the Jewish month Sivan, has great significance for the Jewish people. In ancient Palestine this period coincides with the time of the wheat harvest, and it has therefore become a tradition of the farmers of Palestine to bring the first fruits of their crops as a thanksgiving offering to the Temple in Jerusalem, when they make their tri-annual pilgrimage there. One of the more important reasons (Continued on Page Four)

Two Boys Bitten By Dogs in Town Newark Health Department Checks Up on One Rabid Animal

While riding a bicycle in Passaic avenue Monday Michael Blumenschein, twenty, of 35 Gless avenue, Nutley, was bitten by a dog whose owner has been warned to place the animal under observation. The boy was attended by Dr. Herbert B. Vail, who cauterized the wound. Belleville authorities were made acquainted Saturday by Newark Health Department officials that a dog from Silver Lake section of town, which had bitten a Newark boy, had died with rabies that day. The local police are trying to determine whether any one in this town, particularly members of the family which owned the dog, had also been bitten. Patrolman Singer Saturday tried vainly to locate the owner of a dog which had bitten James Lampman, five, of 75 Tappan avenue. Joseph Dunn of Malone avenue, asked the Town Commission Tuesday, to take some action to have a "dog catcher round up stray dogs." He said that the town is lax in this connection, pointing out that a police dog was recently picked up by the Associated Humane Societies and found to be suffering from rabies. The animal was unleashed, he said. "Our children are a little more precious than dogs," he concluded, adding, "I have a dog, but I keep him on a leash." Mayor William H. Williams pointed out that about this time of year he issues a proclamation on leashing and muzzling of dogs, which procedure will be followed out this year, warning residents of the danger of dogs running about the streets unmuzzled and unleashed. Clark Statement. "Due to the prevalence of rabies in adjoining towns, two cases reported here to date, it becomes necessary to remind the citizens of Belleville of an existing ordinance, which compels dog owners to either have their dogs securely fastened with a leash or properly muzzled," says Director of Public Safety William D. Clark. "While this may work a hardship on dog owners, one person suffering from the bite of a mad dog may mean death to that person and rather than have this misfortune occur, I am making this appeal to the public to co-operate both with the Police Department and the S. P. C. A., in seeing the provisions of the dog ordinance are properly maintained. "I have instructed both the Police Department and the S. P. C. A. to diligently enforce this ordinance."

Roth; processional, "Coronation March," from the "Prophet," G. Meyenbeer, with opening exercises as used for all local high school assemblies. The class song will conclude the program.

Lilore to the Rescue

Patrolman Jerry Lilore is a bearcat, it is said, at anything from being a good baseball player to farmer. Proof of this is seen in the fact that Jerry is champion cow shooer in Belleville. Friday a flock of bovines invaded the premises of Public School No. 2 in Mill street—for higher learning in the art of producing milk, perhaps. A neighbor felt that the cows had no right to become so high hat and straightaway Jerry was detailed to restore quiet to the section. He drove the cattle back to Bloomfield from whence they had strayed to Belleville.

Local Man's Car in Lyndhurst Fatality Woman Killed in Car Being Backed Out of Driveway

A fatality occurred Monday in a collision between automobiles driven by Otto Winger, 320 Greylock parkway, and James E. Whitelaw, 114 Central avenue, Hasbrouck Heights. Mrs. Anna Montana, of the Hasbrouck Heights address, who was riding with her son-in-law, Mr. Whitelaw, died at 2:40 A. M., at the Hasbrouck Heights Hospital, from injuries suffered in the crash. She was seventy-three. The accident occurred when Whitelaw was backing his car from the driveway, at 334 Riverside avenue, Lyndhurst. Two other women, and Whitelaw's wife, who were in his car at the time, suffered minor injuries.

Craftsmen Enjoy Johnny Neun's Talk Ray Kennedy Shows Movies And Ben Bengough Also Entertains

Manager John Neun, Coach Ben Bengough and Secretary Raymond Kennedy of the Newark Bears made Belleville Elks' Club an official stop in their good-will tour of Newark and suburban towns as guests of the local Craftsmen Club. Manager Neun was at his best when called upon to speak. Drifting from the "seriousness of baseball," Johnny found himself uncorking some fancy stories of the "Bus" leagues—any league under an A rating. Johnny declared he came up from the "sticks" and, to prove it, demonstrated the right and wrong manner in which to sleep in a bus, which type of travel is the bane of existence of every minor leaguer, most of whom ride 400 to 450 miles in a bus to play a ball game in a jump from one town to another. Johnny mastered the art of "baseball bus sleeping" and his players learned more than fly chasing. For instance, he said, each club, out where the alfalfa grows, has a champion tire changer. He added: "That is some accomplishment if you have ever tried changing one of the doughnuts on a Greyhound bus." Manager Neun had the 400 odd Craftsmen and friends falling in the aisles long before he arrived at the point of demonstrating his "patent for bus sleeping." "Don't let any one in on this because my patent bus sleeping method is pending in Washington," pleaded Johnny with the assemblage. Vociferously he was promised such would not occur. As the manager progressed his story exceeded in quality and tallness, anything that Al Schacht, baseball's comedian, ever produced. But, John's repertoire was different. (Continued on Page Two)

Little Volmer C. Hansen, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Volmer C. Hansen, Rutherford, formerly of 168 Greylock parkway, was elated over the part he had as Ignaz in the "Scenes from the Life of Franz Schubert," a play, which the Junior and Juvenile Music Study Clubs of the Eleanor Bacon Peck Studios planned to give Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock in Christ Episcopal Church. He had won the esteem of his friends in the school over the last three years since he had been studying music. Monday Volmer was injured in an automobile accident in his home town. He died Tuesday morning and his pals are too upset to go on with the program. Instead they showed their respect by sending flowers to the lad, whose funeral was yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. ## Board Votes Salary Increases with "No" Voiced by Parks Director Louis A. Noll Town Commission at Adjourned Meeting Also Passes Ordinance Amending Present Liquor Regulations

With Director of Parks and Public Property Louis A. Noll, casting a dissenting vote, his four colleagues on the Town Commission, Tuesday, at an adjourned meeting of the board, passed on second and third reading an ordinance increasing the salary of each of the five commissioners $250. The Mayor will now receive $2,750 and each of the other four, $2,250. The ordinance had passed first reading at the organization meeting of the board on May 17. The board also received two petitions containing ninety-one signatures objecting to the increase. Noll declared he would vote "no" on the passage of the ordinance "because it is not business-like when the tax rate is increased seventy-five points." He added that if the rate had been reduced and the members of the board put in the hours, they would be entitled to the increase. "With the future ahead of us, looking for higher tax bills, it is not the time to raise salaries," he concluded. Mayor's Reply. Mayor William H. Williams, who pointed out he had not intended to discuss the matter, did so, however. He said: "This makes about three-quarters of one per cent in the tax rate. It increases my taxes on a property assessment of $5,000 about twenty-five cents a year. I did not intend to pass any remark on this but the previous board, and the one before that, were responsible for five successive reductions in the tax rate. According to Mr. Noll's line of reasoning the board members should have had five annual increases. "I have received numerous calls and voluminous correspondence from substantial citizens and when the board takes this step, I feel it meets with respect from the great majority of citizens. "I am not exercised over that petition at all. I know the source of ninety per cent of the names. I know the inspiration of one of the speakers. He anticipated a job on the town payroll. His close personal friends came to me to see how he could be placed. Of course I can't be exercised over that type of criticism. "When we speak of hours, even you, Mr. Noll, are aware of the many hours we have put in here. You complimented me. I regret the (Continued on Page Nine)

Veterans Plan Honors For Aged Woman Mrs. Mary E. D. Corwin Will Be Center of Attraction on Flag Day

Mrs. Mary Ellen Druey Corwin, ninety-one, of 74 Mt. Kemble avenue, Morristown, will be honored by Essex veterans posts, auxiliaries, civic and fraternal organizations, at a Flag Day rally, June 12, at Military Park. A parade of these units along Broad street from Lincoln to Military Parks will precede the ceremonies. Mrs. Corwin is a direct descendant of Demos Ford, a brother of Colonel Jacob Ford, who owned the mansion at Morristown, and occupied by General Washington. The mansion is now a national museum, under the United States Government. Mrs. Corwin owns four of the original six chairs used in the dining room during General Washington's stay here in New Jersey. The other two chairs are retained by her nephew, H. A. Toner, and the other at the mansion. Mrs. Corwin, who remarried at the age of eighty-one, and who outlived both her husbands, is also a niece of Benjamin Bailey, who served in the New Jersey State Militia, and who provided supplies to George Washington's army. Bailey was enrolled as quartermaster and later was given the title of general by his neighbors. Benjamin Bailey, who served as warden at Overbrook Hospital was a direct descendant. Theodore D. Gottlieb, patriotic instructor of the V. F. W. of New Jersey, and chairman of the speakers' committee, has made effort to locate the grave of General Bailey for the War Department. Gottlieb also has been asked to locate the grave of Brigadier General (first name unknown) Doughty, who served in the militia at Morristown. Eighty organizations have already enrolled for the parade and rally. Arthur L. Millmore, of Lieutenant Leslie J. Rummell V. F. W., is general chairman.

Court Fight Seen in Department Stripping Noll's Attorney Gives Board Members "Five Days" to Answer Letters

With Director Parks and Public Property Louis A. Noll represented by Joseph Dallanegra, Newark lawyer, in an effort to have that portion of what he feels are his duties restored, other members of the Town Commission are willing to leave any court proceedings in the hands of Corporation Counsel Lawrence E. Keenan. This was made known Tuesday night after Mayor William H. Williams, at an adjourned meeting of the commission, declared that he had received "as no doubt the other members have a personal letter" from Mr. Dallanegra. "I believe we acted in full conformity with the Statutes of the State of New Jersey, and I want to inform other members of the board that we do not have to reply to the letters as a board. The individual members can answer as they see fit." The Mayor suggested Mr. Keenan could take care of the situation from a town standpoint. Director of Streets and Public Improvements Patrick A. Waters said: "I don't intend to answer it." When the board organized May 17, it took from the Department of Parks and Public Property the department which controls sale of town owned property and placed it in the Department of Revenue and Finance and maintenance of buildings in Director Waters' department. Noll contends, as does his attorney, that the other members of the board had no right, under the Walsh Act, to strip Noll's department, which, they contend, should have jurisdiction over Library Board and the Recreation Commission, both of which Noll now controls along with transportation besides that which was taken away. Dallanegra, who requested a reply to his letters "within five days," said: "If such action is lawful, a simple majority of any commission could 'strip' the minority members of all powers and duties, in which case they would receive compensation for doing nothing. It would also be a blanket approval of political manipulations." "If this action had been taken because of some act committed by Noll," he continued, "I might agree it was lawful, but Noll was given no opportunity to prove himself and hence there can be no reason other than political." In his letter Dallanegra asked the commissioners "to correct this error without the expenditure of the taxpayers' money to have it corrected by order of the court."

Old-Timers Gather At Vets' Party Days of '17 and '18 Are Relished at Lively Affair

"Old Timer's Night." This simple phrase on a post card sent to old timers in George A. Younginger Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Wednesday night brought them out in droves to a meeting in the pest headquarters in Belleville avenue. Commander George H. Westen and Herbert Scott, long active in the state and nation in veterans' activities, provided an affair that lasted well past midnight and resembled a gathering of veterans back in the war days. Mr. Scott arranged a meal that rivaled the best prepared by any A. E. F. mess sergeant. This was topped off with speeches by all of the old timers and a movie of actual scenes in France, shown by William G. Hunt. Among those who spoke were Past Department Commanders George Henderson, Charles Gilmour, Charles Peterson, Past Commander Eric Railroad Post Charles Scott, Mayor William H. Williams and Commissioner William D. Clark, Elmer S. Hyde, Department Inspector Henry Lang, Department Post Instructor Theodore Gottlieb, Department Inspector Harry Weisberg, Commander of the Disabled War Veterans James Reilly, who donated refreshments, Commander Leslie J. ## William V. Irvine, Director of Funerals, Has Model Funeral Home and Chapel Here

Popularly Known As "Bill" Among His Rotarian Friends, Dignified Director, Always on Alert for Improved Methods

William V. Irvine, dignified director of funerals, 276 Washington avenue, has established in Belleville, a model funeral home and chapel.

William V. Irvine

Mr. Irvine, who was brought up in Brooklyn, moved to Belleville thirty-six years ago, starting in the undertaking business in which he was associated with John D. Caldwell, who died in 1921. After an association of fifteen years, with Mr. Caldwell, Mr. Irvine took over the business in 1917, due to the ill health of the former.

The property on which Mr. Irvine's Funeral Home now stands, was owned by Arthur Sanford, a relative of Theodore Sanford, until 1905, when Mr. Irvine and Mr. Caldwell bought the land.

In a reminiscent mood, Mr. Irvine recalled that when he lived at 262 Main street, his mother always feared that a flood of the Passaic River would one day sweep away her home. Her fears were partly realized when the flood of 1903 completely buried the first floor of her home with water. The piano and the dining room table were the only objects which could be salvaged during the flood.

When Mr. Irvine and Mr. Caldwell opened an establishment on Washington avenue, they were setting a precedent, which many store owners followed, as Main street, and not Washington avenue, was the main artery of travel at that time. Trolley cars were just being installed on the avenue and Mr. Irvine was a step ahead of other business men in this procedure.

To him, his profession is his hobby and avocation besides being his vocation. He is constantly on the outlook for new and improved methods of funeral directing and instead of taking money out of the town, he puts it back into his business, which furnishes all who come in contact with him, a graphic picture of his improvements.

In 1921, he married Emma, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christian L. Volz, who was a funeral director. It was through contact with Mr. Volz, that he met his wife. He has one son, William V. Irvine, Jr., who is in his fourth year at Newark Academy; and of whom he is justly proud.

He is a member of the Belleville Rotary Club, Belleville Lodge of Elks, Belleville Lodge of Masons, Salaam Temple, Order of Shriners, and Belleville Council, I. O. O. F.

Nutley Solves Evil Of 'Drinking Glasses'

Health Officer Checked Up On Germs Spread in Establishments

Attention of the nation's health authorities centered on Nutley today, as health officers of New Jersey heard a story that could be duplicated anywhere in America.

A rigorous five-month survey had disclosed that Nutley's most conscientious taverns, restaurants and soda fountains had been exposing their patrons daily to germ-infested glasses.

Presenting the report for which his fellow health officers had waited eagerly since January, Richard V. Fellers emphasized that pathogenic organisms were recovered in nearly every establishment examined.

Mr. Fellers emphasized that the condition was in no sense the result of unusual negligence on the part of those establishments which co-operated in the survey, but rather was, in the light of similar tests made elsewhere, typical of public eating places throughout the United States.

"We were long ago justly concerned about the so-called 'common drinking cup,'" he said. "Yet today we must concede that conditions in some of our public eating and drinking establishments are equally if not more menacing. In my opinion, unsterilized drinking glasses are 'common drinking glasses,' and as such should likewise be banned."

Mr. Fellers then told his hearers that a new and inexpensive type of ultra-violet lamp, irradiating the same glasses, had killed in a few seconds' exposure the bacteria capable of causing disease.

The organism recovered in all glasses examined, Mr. Fellers said, was staphylococcus albus, one of the family of pus-forming organisms. Staphylococcus aureus and staphylococcus citreus were found in many instances, he disclosed; while considerable numbers of coli aerogenes, common intestinal organisms, were isolated in several samples.

Other pathogenic bacteria recovered included neisseria catarrhalis, gaffkyia tetragena, streptococcus pyogenes and streptococcus epidemicus, or septic sore throat "bug." Thousands of colonies were cultured from the rim of a single glass.

Temperatures of wash and rinse waters used in the places examined, he said, varied from ten degrees centigrade to seventy-one degrees centigrade; superheated steam, the only effective heat sterilizer, being impractical, particularly in summer. The survey consequently showed a marked relation between organisms recovered from swabs of glasses and those found in the wash and rinse waters.

Ultra Violet Radiation. Chemicals, the health officer pointed out, were often impractical, particularly in taverns and soda fountains, because the type of liquid contained in the glass precludes the use of chemicals or sufficient concentrations of soap. There remained, he said, only one practical way of obeying the statutes—now in force in forty-six states—requiring absolute sterilization. This method is by ultra-violet radiation, which long has been known to be bactericidal and can now be produced by a practical, economical unit.

Mr. Fellers then told of hearing of a new lamp developed by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company's Lamp Division laboratories in Bloomfield.

The health officer learned that the new lamp, called the sterilamp, did not generate heat, was in fact used in refrigerators; was inexpensive, requiring only about ten watts of energy; had a useful life of about 4,000 hours, and was simple to operate.

At his request, the Westinghouse engineers installed a special glass-sterilizing machine for the tests. The same glasses that had previously shown an alarming bacterial count became from 92.8 per cent to 99.9 per cent sterile after a few seconds' exposure.

Mr. Fellers then demonstrated the simple apparatus, showing how its endless wire belt carried washed glasses under two thirty-inch sterilamps, shaped like Neon tubes, and over three others, automatically stopping when a sufficient number of glasses reached the discharge end.

"The investigation," he concluded, "showed conclusively that a sterilizer using sterilamps as the sterilizing agent effectively reduces the bacterial contamination of drinking glasses, and that this form of sterilization is practical and adaptable to general use."

Mr. Fellers, who was introduced by Edgar H. Bostock, Nutley's Commissioner of Public Affairs, and chairman of the symposium, was followed by Dr. Harvey C. Rentschler, Director of Research at the Westinghouse Lamp laboratories, and Dr. Robert F. James, his associate, co-developers of the sterilamp. Dr. James told of other successful applications of the Rentschler-James Process. Dr. Rentschler showed microphotographs of parameria being killed by the sterilamp, which caused them to burst before the health officers' eyes.

A luncheon and demonstration of physical training by high school students preceded the symposium.

Entertains Nereid Group

Mrs. D. S. Tillou, formerly of Belleville, will entertain this evening for members of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Nereid Boat Club at her home in Harmonyvale.

It's In THE AIR by Bill Clay

Maybe we're wrong, but we think there's a trend toward colored entertainers to pull shows out of the red. Cantor's spot was flatter than "Blue Chip" Whitney's bankroll and he was thinking of giving away dishes or holding a bank night to get listeners when he caught the brass ring in Hattie Noel. Jack Jell-O wasn't doing too well, either, until he caught up with Rochester, who is funnier than a Casper Milouetoast at a physical culture convention. The latest to spring dusky talent on us is Al Pearce. His show was becoming as spotty as a leopard so he sent out and hired the rage some time back.

On With The New.

Horace Heidt is quite the pampkins on the air these days, but for a long time he was about as important as a Republican in Jersey City. In vaudeville's lush days his band was as good as the little boy the night before Christmas. But vaudeville went out like "Eugenio hats and Horace had a big organization and no place to put it. He didn't get too many dance engagements or radio spots because his outfit was built for novelty numbers and tricky orchestrations. Only when the handwriting on the wall was well written did he switch to the type of music which is now packing them in at the Baltimore.

There is a program which is streamlined especially for the nation's inveterate golfers and fishermen. Naturally enough any one can listen to the International Liars Fraternity in session, but it is right up the alley of the boys that neither typhoons nor monsoons can keep indoors. And the odd listener might be able to pick one up that his wife hasn't heard yet.

Fiddlin' Fellow.

If you've any suppressed gypsy in you, catch "Shander and His Violin" on Wednesdays and Fridays over WHN. He's an honest-to-Pete Hungarian and he can do more with a fiddle than your Aunt Jenny could with some dough and a baking pan. One minute he's jerking the strings of your heart, and the next minute he's got you tossing your crutches in the corner and hopping around on your gouty foot.

Radio's detractors, most of whom are urged by selfish impulses, shout that it hasn't outgrown its swaddling clothes, doesn't attract mental grown-ups and isn't a means of education. They point to the shows which draw the greatest audiences and query "Is that art?" Of course it isn't. Radio is an industry which furnishes entertainment and culture free.

The average wage-earner would find it impossible to buy what's offered him every day of the year in culture and entertainment. He has his choice of listening to a comic or a symphony orchestra. Is it radio's fault that he picks the comic? That radio attempts to raise the mental calibre of the nation can't be denied, when a casual check shows that the Mutual System devotes one-quarter of its coast-to-coast network time to cultural pursuits. Columbia and NBC aren't far behind.

Swing Carnival.

The jitterbugs and adolescents jittered to glory on Saturday and all because Martin Block (he's the announcer who makes a dance hall of your living room) got the idea of throwing a benefit for New York City's unemployed musicians. This was one of the greatest live shows of the year and you got thirty or forty Goodman for the price of one. The jam session was held on Randall's Island and the country's greatest "Name Bands" which are playing within a radius of 100 miles of the city started beating it out at 11 o'clock.

Former Mayor Samuel S. Kenworthy, executive secretary of the New Jersey State League of Municipalities, spoke over WNEW Wednesday afternoon in one of the weekly broadcasts devoted to the education of taxpayers.

Vets' Auxiliary Uses New Flag at Service

The Ladies' Auxiliary of George A. Younginger Post No. 275, Veterans of Foreign Wars, used for the first time Sunday at the memorial service in Montgomery Presbyterian Church, a new auxiliary flag, which has been purchased after many affairs held by the auxiliary, under the leadership of Mrs. John Gannon, president. The town commissioners also made contributions toward the flag purchase.

A committee from the auxiliary will serve refreshments at a party to be given Thursday for a "Seeing Eye" fund.

Final arrangements for delegates to attend the department encampment at Asbury Park, June 23 to 26, will be made at the next regular meeting Wednesday.

Slight Error.

Due to an error in copy submitted to us last week in an article concerning a poster contest, conducted in the grammar schools, a pupil, and contest winner, William Mackey, 252 Cortlandt street, was said to be in the sixth grade of School No. 7. He should have been listed from School No. 1.

Legion Plans Its County Convention

Posts and Auxiliaries Will Meet Two Days in East Orange

Essex County American Legion posts and auxiliaries and affiliated units are making elaborate preparations for the eighth annual convention to be held at East Orange, June 24 and 25. The convention committee will meet each Monday night at the Newark Post 10 rooms, 137 Broadway, Newark. Walter Taylor, commander of Public Service Essex Division, American Legion, is convention director. R. Graham Huntington, past county commander, and a member of East Orange Post 73, is local chairman. County Commander William J. Doyle and Mrs. R. Graham Huntington, county president, are honorary chairmen.

A dinner by the Essex delegates will be held at the Elks Club, June 24, prior to the convention proceedings. Directors' reports, awards, nominations and registrations will mark the opening of the business session. Mayor Martens and other prominent civic and American Legion officials will be speakers. The Saturday session at the Elks Club will be resumption of business and election of officers. The Essex auxiliary will open its sessions June 25, in the morning, at the Trinity Congregational Church, 26 Harrison street, East Orange. Posts are advised to submit their resolutions to Adjutant Peter Cohen, 116 Parkview terrace, Newark, by June 20.

A convention will conclude the two days' program. Belleville post and auxiliary will participate in the convention.

Craftsmen Enjoy (Continued from Page One)

It was dry humor that one would scarcely expect to find in a ball club manager.

Can't Talk, Eh?

"I can't talk very much this evening," Johnny started, "because I lost my voice out on the field today. We talk back to the umpire, who is always right, but the talk is never out loud or we would be chased to the showers. This talking is hard on the voice."

The manager told a few humorous stories that met with the approval of the assemblage and then detailed the seriousness of "this baseball business" and the strict rules that are laid down for players.

Bengough, also in a manner all his own, got across some tall yarns of bygone days, one in particular of the pitcher, whom he had been observing tossing up a straight, fast ball.

"Haven't you got a curve ball?" queried Ben.

"Certainly," came back the elongated twirler, as he chewed faster and more furiously on a quid of slippery elm. "Why, boss, when I try out my curve I aim at the catcher and nip the base runner off first."

Secretary Kennedy showed pictures of players and baseball events, which he has assembled as a hobby over the last few years.

George Walker, president of the Craftsmen, presided, and introduced Mayor William H. Williams and Coach Frank Smith of the High School. George Cox was awarded a radio. Mr. Walker and Frank Bangert arranged the affair, which was preceded by a regular meeting of the Craftsmen.

Mohican Exploring Expedition Experiences Difficulties in Week-End Trip to Camp

Bites Aplenty Are Recorded, Rain Pours Down, Truck Balks and Food Runs Low, But Boys Enjoy Themselves

The Mohican Exploring Expedition of Troop 92, Boy Scouts of America, assembled Saturday morning at the Recreation House and, with some difficulty, were stowed with their baggage and grub into a truck, the icebox with the meat being lashed to the front bumper.

In true explorer fashion, trouble developed at the start. Before Upper Montclair was reached the engine was boiling, and the truck put into port at Little Falls, for radiator repairs. It was after 12 o'clock, noon, when, with blowing of whistles and counting of noses, the journey was resumed, to reach Mohican in mid-afternoon and pitch camp in the Buecancer shacks. Dinner was eaten under difficulties, as a torrential downpour flooded the field kitchen and drowned out the fire.

Speaking of Bites.

On Sunday the storm had passed and the day was spent in various activities—a little brisk swimming, some hiking, some fishing, some loafing in the sun, and a softball game, winding up with a score believed to be 39 to 15 in somebody's favor. Scout Milano caught a fourteen-inch perch, but it bit the line and got away. Scout Huebsch caught a bat that bit him. Somebody else caught a blacksnake that bit him, and an unidentified scout caught a mesquite that bit him. Scout Noble stuck himself in the finger peeling potatoes. After first aid, he peeled onions instead.

Local Man Judge in Park Singing Contest

Although no quartets, as yet, have entered from Belleville in the Barber Shop Quartet Contest to be held Thursday, June 16, at the bandstand in Branch Brook Park at 3 P. M., Belleville will be represented among the judges by Charles W. Watson.

Mr. Watson qualifies as a judge because of his work as a radio sloop, a member of the Belleville Glee Club and he is first tenor of the Masqueraders' quartet.

Fire Transfers

There have been many transfers in the fire department during the past two weeks.

The major changes are Lieutenant James Dunleavy from headquarters company to William street firehouse; Lieutenant Walter Beresford, headquarters to Silver Lake; Lieutenant Michael Hanley, Silver Lake to William street; Joseph Oldham and William Comesky, William street to headquarters; Michael Basile, headquarters to Silver Lake; James Ellis, Silver Lake to William street and Carl Hundertpfund newly appointed to headquarters company.

Sunday evening a joint campfire was held on Buecancer Beach with Troop 7, Newark, and a patrol from Peddie Memorial. Mr. Dillon, the naturalist, was the speaker and Scout Harrison, Peddie, led the singing. Twilight faded into darkness, bright stars came out, marshmallows went around, the fire flickered low, taps were sung standing and the party broke up to turn in snug and warm against the chilly night.

Grub Runs Low.

Monday the grub ran low and an early start home was made. After an unevenful run the troop moved out at Recreation House at about 4:30 P. M. Attending were Scouts Calliope, De Neric, Tom Hart, George Hart, Hehlinger, Huebsch, Jones, McCann, Metzler, Meyers, Milano, Noble, O'Toole, Petro, Small and Spezzafano. Assistant Scoutmasters Thetring, Pirk and James were in charge.

Dailey Gives Paper At B. & L. Convention

Tells of Relations Between Secretaries and Boards Of Directors

The thirtieth annual convention of the New Jersey Building and Loan League, concludes tomorrow, having started yesterday at Haddon Hall, Atlantic City. John P. Dailey, secretary of the North Belleville Building and Loan Association, presented a paper before the secretaries' group session last night.

The matter discussed was the relationship between the secretaries and boards of directors. Mr. Dailey presented his paper about a month ago at the executive committee meeting of the secretaries' group in Bergen County. The paper was so well received that he was asked to present it again in Atlantic City.

Mr. Dailey's selection was based on the ideal relationship that exists between the secretary and the board of directors of the North Belleville Building and Loan Association, one of the few associations in the county whose shareholders' accounts are insured to $5,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

Judd Coulther Seeks Camera Club Members

Amateur Photographer, Who Has Had Photos Published, Calls Meeting

Judd F. Coulther, amateur photographer, 435 Washington avenue, has issued a call for members who would like to form a camera club, to meet at his house Saturday, June 11, at 7:30 P. M.

Mr. Coulther's interest in photography started four years ago when he was twenty-one, and since that time he has had pictures published in several newspapers and submitted sixty "Oddities of New Jersey" in a Newark Sunday paper.

He is very earnest in his desire to succeed as a photographer, and is thinking seriously of turning professional by opening a studio in this town.

He is employed at present as a plate printer for Tiffany & Company, and revealed the interesting fact that real sheepskin, imported from England, is used as a graduation diploma at Princeton University. The entire wording of the diploma is in Latin and sometimes a correction must be made by the engraver, who does it perfectly, despite the fact that he knows little or no Latin.

Jews to Observe

for the holiday is the giving of the Ten Commandments to Moses on Mt. Sinai. This holiday is therefore called "The Season of the Giving of the Law." The Decalogue is included in the service of the day. Because of this, Shavuot is also referred to as the anniversary of the Jewish religion.

Many beautiful and meaningful customs are observed on this holiday of Pentecost, which comes on the fiftieth day after the second day of Passover. The Synagogue and home are decorated with green plants, reminding of the agricultural significance of the festival. Dairy meals are featured in the homes during these days, because when the Jews were busy themselves with preparations for receiving the Ten Commandments they did not have the time to prepare lengthy meals.

Before reading from the Torah, a beautiful and inspiring series of verses is read. These poems are called "Akdomos" and they extol the beauties of the relationship between the Torah, Israel and God. The Biblical Book of Ruth is also read on this day.

Special Services.
The Congregation Ahava Achim Anshe will hold special holiday services to observe Shavuot at the Synagogue, 317 Washington avenue, on Saturday, Sunday and Monday evenings, and on Sunday and Monday mornings. The evening services will start at 7:59 P. M. and the morning services will begin at 9 A. M.

The service of the next day of Shavuot will be marked by the annual confirmation exercises of the Religious School. The girls who will be confirmed are: Reava Holzman, Lucille Paul and Henrietta Rader. Israel Rosen will act as Cantor during the service and other boys of the school will participate.

An inspiring service has been planned for the occasion. As part of the service, each confirmation will present her confirmation theme to the congregation. Reava Holzman will speak on "Palestine, the Land of Israel." Lucille Paul will deliver a talk on "Hadassah." Henrietta Rader will have as her topic: "The Youth Aliyah—the Future of European Jewish Youth." Rabbi Rubin R. Dolin will present the charge to the confirmants, and will give them their confirmation certificates. Philip Lempert, chairman of the Synagogue School Board, will present a white Bible to each confirmant, as the gift of the board. Edward J. Abramson, president of the congregation, will extend greetings on behalf of the Jewish community.

The Yizkor memorial service will be recited at the holiday service of Monday morning. Rabbi Dobin will preach on the topic: "Life Eternal." The Yizkor will start at 10 A. M.

Eggs Taken from Under Setting Hen

A weasel may have pilfered eleven eggs from under a setting hen owned by Mrs. Anna Williamson, 284 Ralph street, but it seems next to impossible that this occurred. Ordinarily a weasel or other animal with egg taking ways leaves the shell behind.

At any rate Mrs. Williamson called upon the police Saturday to try to unravel the mystery and the department's demon sleuth, Officer Scott, was detailed to investigate.

Hints to Gardeners

New Practices

CERTAIN old-time practices in gardening are just as good today as they were fifty or a hundred and fifty years ago. But just as surely, certain others should be put aside as experience proves them unwise and impractical.

Gardeners, for instance, should no longer follow the practice of allowing all vegetables to grow as large as possible. This may give a higher yield in pounds, but with many vegetables it destroys quality. Some, of course, like tomatoes, must be mature to be palatable; but carrots, cucumbers, beets, summer squash, rutabaga, radishes and other vegetables like them are more tender and tasty when hardly more than half grown.

Deep hoeing, once practiced by the majority of gardeners, is now generally frowned on as having no real purpose and being damaging to plants. Many gardeners now use the hoe only to scrape off weeds. Deeper hoeing is unnecessary, and often breaks off hidden lateral roots.

Few gardeners save flower seeds nowadays as they did years ago. Fine flowers in the home garden very often are cross-pollinated by other flowers of the same species, making flowers grown from their seed inferior and untrue because of contamination of strain. Commercial seed growers devote much study and planning to prevention of cross-pollination in their crops.

The practice of planting vegetables only in the spring is likewise becoming unpopular. Gardens prove more profitable when successive plantings of favorite crops are made every two or three weeks, to keep fresh vegetables coming to the table over a period of many weeks. Numerous crops are planted even in late summer, for fall use or for storage.

More intelligent use of manure and other fertilizers is becoming prevalent as gardeners learn that limited, measured amounts often do many times the good done by unnecessarily heavy applications.

Thank You

June 3, 1938. Editor, Belleville News: On behalf of the printing department and students taking printing, we would now like to take this opportunity to thank your organization for the permission to visit your plant. This visit makes it possible for the theoretical knowledge gained in the classroom to be made in reality by the actual observation of present season operations being carried on by experts in industry.

We hope that it will be possible for this department to have the same privilege for incoming students in another year. Thanking you again for this cooperation, I am

Very truly yours, JOHN S. CHARLTON, Printing Instructor.

Robert Glynn Honored

(Special to the Belleville News)

DURHAM, N. H., June 3.—Robert Glynn, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Glynn of 12 Overlook avenue, Belleville, N. J., was honored yesterday afternoon when Dr. Englehardt, president of the University of New Hampshire, presented him with the Fairchild Memorial Prize. This award of $50 is made each year to the senior who has done the most to promote dramatics during his four years at the university. This prize is given in memory of Edward T. Fairchild, late president of the university.

Glynn, a pre-med, receiving his B. S. degree on June 13, was one of the outstanding figures during his four years at New Hampshire. He was president of Mask and Dagger, the dramatic society of the university, having participated in seven productions. Bob was also leader of the undergraduate dance orchestra that played for all social functions. He is known to have earned more money than any other member of his class.

Bob was voted most popular on graduating from Belleville High School in '34, where he was drum major of the band, and active in dramatics and debating. In the fall, Glynn will continue his medical career at the St. Louis University, School of Medicine.

Closing Meeting Held

The closing meeting of the 1937-38 season of the Junior Music Study Club was held Saturday afternoon at the Eleanor Bacon-Peck Studios. The business was marked by the election of the following officers: President, Bernice Van Sickle; vice president, Paul Deckenbach and secretary, Patricia Plummer.

Mrs. Peck presented the prizes for the year. The repertoire award for the pupil playing correctly the most number of pieces from memory, went to Patricia Plummer, who played seven pieces. Donna Feuerstein won the prize for the student showing consistent improvement throughout the year. Paul Deckenbach received the award for the pupil making the best average in the theory and harmony work done at the club meetings.

Two members, Grace Duffy and Dorothy Noone, were advanced to the Junior Music Study Club.

Each member took part in the program. Refreshments were served. The table decorations were in yellow and violet. Adell Sutherland is counselor for the club.

NEW JERSEY TODAY

Tax Delinquency and Land Use Problems.

Prepared for the Belleville News by Dr. Maurice P. Neufeld, acting secretary, New Jersey State Planning Board.

Most of the tax delinquent land in the municipalities designated by the New Jersey State Planning Board as Study Area I was not farmed. With no productivity, there was no income, and taxes on this land were consequently a drain upon the resources of the owner. That portion of the tax delinquent land which was worked was divided into farms too small to be run economically and showed little diversity of production which might supplement the farm income.

Study Area I contains eighteen municipalities scattered through Burlington, Camden, Atlantic and Gloucester Counties. These municipalities ranged in population in 1930 from forty to 7,656.

Seven of these municipalities had more than thirty per cent of their total land area tax delinquent. In contrast, were three townships in Burlington County which had low percentages of delinquency. In the seven highly delinquent municipalities, all except one showed more than fifty per cent of their delinquent land was not farmed. The percentage range was from 58.2 to 96.6. An examination of delinquent properties in those municipalities which had the highest percentage of tax delinquent land not farmed revealed that many delinquent properties were small. This would seem to indicate, in all probability, that the owners of this idle property of uneconomical size were attracted by high pressure sales methods which held out unfounded hopes of an independent future on the land. In this Study Area, however, 44.25 per cent of the unfarmed tax delinquent land was held by development companies or in holdings of over 100 acres in single ownership.

An analysis of the soil potentiality of tax delinquent parcels showed, moreover, that in some of the municipalities with high percentages of delinquency a large percentage of the delinquent land was unsuited to most types of farming except possibly poultry farming.

In the three Burlington County townships which had low percentages of tax delinquency, the percentage of tax delinquent land not farmed was low except in one case where it amounted to fifty per cent of the delinquent area. However, when the average number of acres of crop land harvested in these three townships is contrasted with similar figures for the seven highly delinquent municipalities, the effect of the uneconomical size of farms upon tax delinquency becomes clearer. The highly delinquent municipalities showed an average acreage of about fifteen, while the three municipalities of low delinquency ranged from forty to fifty-two acres. In addition to a large average number of acres of crop land harvested, the three low municipalities showed a fairly large average number of chickens per farm. The highly delinquent municipalities showed, in general, a large average number of chickens per farm, but the low average acreage of crop land harvested would indicate dependency upon poultry farming and lack of sufficient diversity.

In this area, then, we have the spectacle of a large part of the delinquent area with no income because it is put to no productive use. In many highly delinquent areas, large percentages of the land are unfitted to agriculture. Where land is farmed moreover, farming is conducted in such a way that success is impossible. This situation was probably aggravated by the fact that the tax per acre of farm land in the municipalities in question bears little or no apparent relation to the potentiality of the soil. The average tax per acre on land and improvements, from 1930 to 1936, in six municipalities, similarly placed, for which information was available ranged from $2.58 to $5.05. This variation is remarkable in view of the fact that a general examination of the soil types in the six municipalities did not disclose any differences marked enough to justify such variation. No general examination can, of course, establish whether or not assessments were inequitable, but the results of this study should be regarded as sufficiently significant to warrant a more detailed examination of the problem on a state-wide basis.

That these fundamental maladjustments lead to great administrative difficulties is disclosed by the fact that in ten of the twenty-one municipalities studied, no tax sales were recorded since 1930, while in the remaining municipalities only irregular tax sales were held.

Study Area I contains eighteen municipalities in four counties. This means that there were altogether eighteen different ways of handling tax collection and tax sales. Analysis, reveals, however, no facts to show that the great differences in percentages of tax delinquency were due to differences in administrative methods. Rather, an examination of the facts indicates that tax delinquency in this Study Area was closely connected with the fundamental problem of the proper use of land.

Our good old country rolls on, ever greater, ever advancing.—James A. Farley.

DOING A SPLENDID JOB

Essex County and Belleville, in particular, should feel proud that our own Assemblyman Homer Zink, along with Senator Powell on the Appropriations Committee at Trenton, have wielded the curtailment axe to the extent that some $1,400,000 has been sliced from the amount that taxpayers will be called upon to pay to operate the State financial program. Assemblyman Zink and Senator Powell, in all probability, will not receive any bouquets from their constituents, many of whom in the higher bracket salaries, will feel the sting of pay cuts. It is an even gamble that Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public, too, will be lackadaisical about the splendid job the pair have done, because far too few, who "pay the freight," understand anything about government. We hear on all sides numerous protests about poor management of government set-ups, but very little praise. Our local representative and Senator Powell have burned considerable midnight oil and devoted week-ends to their job—and all Homer gets for his effort is $500 per year. With the public paying scant attention to the herculean efforts of the pair and politicians bound to place them on the taboo list, a good turn is apt to be lost in the shuffle that makes politics the grab bag of American life. In our humble manner, let us say hats off to men in public office like Zink and Powell, who have courage enough to do the right thing for the public.

RABID DOG PRECAUTIONS

The time of year has arrived when the rabid dog scare is brought to our attention. Already Belleville authorities say two cases have been reported.

We all like dogs and those of us, who cherish them most, take good care that they do not annoy other folks. But there are others, who permit their dogs to run at large with little regard to the rights of other residents of town. The town has regulations that require dogs to be on leash and muzzle in streets at this time of year. It is intended to enforce the ordinance. No matter how much we care for our canine friends it is just possible for them to go haywire, endangering lives. Let us all be a little more careful. We can enjoy the company of dogs and at the same time respect our neighbors. Let's not have anyone die in Belleville because we did not exercise proper caution. Forewarned is forearmed.

HENRY FORD WAS RIGHT

In the midst of the last depression Henry Ford made the profound remark that "there is no such thing as overproduction." It was a startling contradiction of the general assumption at the time that overproduction was the cause of the depression. Now that depression has caught up with us again this same overproduction fallacy is being trotted forth to account for it, and most assiduously, by the administration.

The idea seems to be that production and purchasing power, instead of being synonymous, are somehow in conflict, and that if we give the wage earner and the farmer more money for less work and sweat the taxpayer to provide incomes for the unemployed, recovery is at hand.

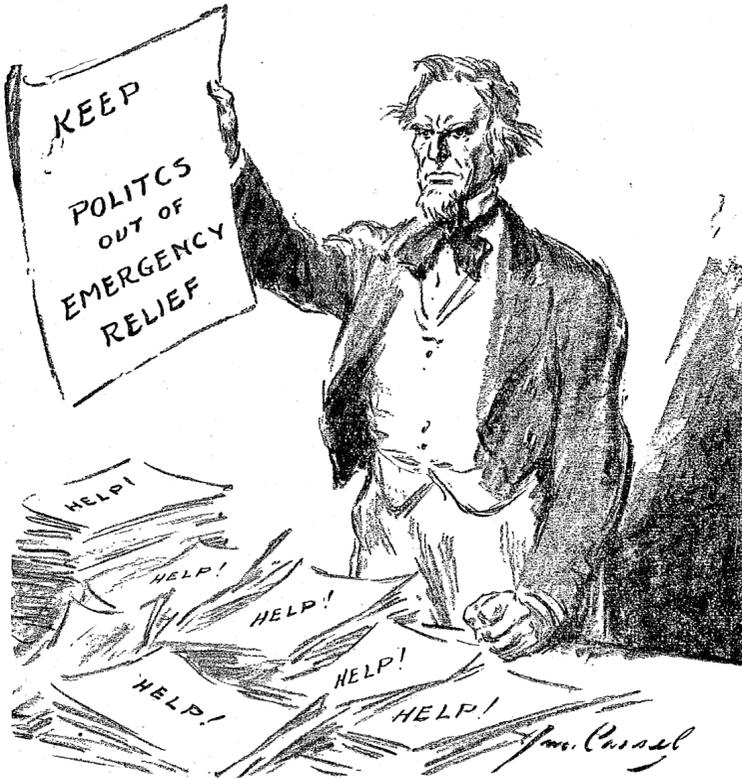

Excessive labor cost is, of course, another term for overproduction. So it is evident that a major cause of the present depression was not overproduction but underproduction, not underpayment but overpayment of the wage earner, and it is a major reason why the depression continues.

Every disinterested economist is aware that an equitable distribution of the national income is essential to a stable prosperity, and that another essential is the health and happiness of the working population, which means a fair degree of leisure. But we have yet to find one who believes with the administration that wage and hour rates which choke industry and restrict production are the answer or that any good can come from priming a pump thus frozen. Henry Ford was everlastingly right.

THE BEAN BALL

A PUBLIC DEMAND!

THIS WEEK

By "GUARDIAN"

The views expressed in the column, "This Week," are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

Wednesday evening we listened on the radio to an address before a gathering of Democratic women in the State of New York by the Postmaster General of the United States. In the course of his talk he spoke about the wages and hours legislation which is currently in the law mill in Washington, and about which we made comment last week. In discussing the bill, he said in effect—"What the bill means is more pay for less work."

MORE pay for LESS work!

That is a cockeyed philosophy, and not even the Postmaster General can believe it, for he is a man of brilliance and comprehension. More pay cannot come from less work unless that lesser amount of work brings forth a greater amount of production. Money is but a token of exchange for goods delivered, for services rendered, and for work performed. The fruits of the work performed and services rendered are paid for in money, and unless more goods are produced, there cannot be more money for more pay.

The tendency for centuries has been toward shorter working hours with greater compensation for the shorter hours than was received for longer hours—but that has been only because of improved mechanisms and methods of production which have permitted a larger volume of goods to be made or produced in a shorter period of time.

Many of us, when we were youngsters, read the boys' stories written by that British novelist, G. A. Henty, and we recall his account of the riots and labor difficulties which took place in England when machine looms and steam were substituted for the more laborious, slower, and cruder methods which existed before. We recall, too, that in those days seventy-two hours a week was not an unusual work week; and we have seen the work week come down to 48, 44, and even 40 hours and less; and we have seen wages go up so that for forty-four hours a week now the average workman receives many times more than his forebears, received generations before for seventy-two hours work. But it has always come as a result of increased production and the availability of more goods to be exchanged for the money to give to the workers in exchange for their labor.

If the Postmaster General and his associates in Washington will cooperate with labor and with business to bring about more production and to remove the various halts which are now preventing a wholesome and free exchange of goods and services for money, then he will speed up the day when there is more pay for less hours of work because of more production in those fewer hours.

It has been alleged that Vice President Garner observed—and he was reported not to have denied it—that "business reminded him of cattle on the range, so driven and harried by thoughtless herdsmen that they had no chance to thrive." If he said that, good for him—for the reports that emanate from usually reliable sources in Washington to the effect that the inner circle of the administration is at the moment probably more interested in reform than in recovery—are disturbing.

That's the difficulty with most business today. The leaders of business are navigating in a fog without a chart showing their course and without a compass. That is because they do not know what to expect next. Can't some one, won't some one for the good of the whole country please sit down and lay out in comprehensive form the absolute final objectives of the New Deal in so far as our social and economic life is concerned? We have had generalities about objectives; we have had platitudes about the forgotten man and about the under privileged; we have had bits of planning and philosophy here and there; but never, so far as we know, have those who are in control of the policy-making functions of our government, given us the benefit of a clean-cut blue print of their ultimate objectives and the ways and means by which they propose to get there. If business knew what the goal was to be and the route by which it was proposed to reach that goal, then the fog would clear, business could settle down to sensible navigation, and every one would be the happier.

We are disturbed, too, about this week's developments in Belleville, and we trust that the comments in the papers to the effect that Commissioner Noll is going to ask the courts to force his fellow commissioners to give him more authority and responsibility and more things to do—are erroneous, no matter how much justification there may be for the position he takes. The citizens of Belleville elected the five present commissioners to serve them in the interests of the whole town. It is not going to be to the interest of Belleville to have a court fight. It isn't going to help Commissioner Noll and it isn't going to help the other commissioners, and it certainly isn't going to help Belleville's reputation and standing in the community. If there is an argument or any washing to be done, the place for the argument and for the washing is within the membership of the commission, and not in the courts. Anything else would hurt Belleville.

Yours 'til next week,
"GUARDIAN."

LET'S REMEMBER

Another Memorial Day has come and gone. The new flag flew. Thousands walked Monday the shaded paths where solacing peace returned. Solemnly, the living honored the memories of the departed. But, the rest of the year? Will they remember? In such a fevered world, where hates are now so high, anything can happen before the year is out. It is the duty of Americans, who so eloquently paid tribute to those who died for the peace of the world, to remember them and hold their tongues, keep their hands off wars of others and stop striving to make those wars our own. Thus, in another year, we can visit again the green hillsides and still say, "We have kept faith."

PIQUANT POLITICS

By MEADOR WRIGHT

The views expressed in the column, "Piquant Politics," are entirely those of Mr. Wright and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

NO vote by a legislator in the present session at Trenton has caused as much speculation as that Assemblyman Homer C. Zink cast in opposition to the Newark charter bill. Zink explained his vote on the simple grounds that he believed there were laws enough to grant Newark relief if its citizenry wished to invoke them. Although stunned by his action, Clean Government strategists were hardly surprised. Zink's independence is proverbial. Never in his entire legislative career has the Belleville lawyer taken a decision from any one.

Even though he had no part in the decision, Pearce R. Franklin is very appreciative, no doubt, of Zink's stand in the matter, and this appreciation may have its bearing later. Clean Government strategists are watching Zink with the eyes of a hawk to detect any overt act. They are more afraid of Zink's participation in an opposition movement than of any other man in the county. They are afraid of the reason that Zink can run on a platform of economy as genuine as any that Clee, himself, could mount. His leadership in the present movement to reduce the amount of the appropriations bill has impressed the public as distinctly as Clee's leadership in the repeal of the sales tax. Moreover, Zink's friendship and general sympathy with Clee's program is known. He was by the latter's side in opposing the horse racing referendum. My guess is that Zink would not oppose Clee in a primary contest for senator, but should the latter step aside, it would be almost impossible to prevent Zink getting the party's nomination for the post. He is gradually building himself into a position whereby he can exert a balance of power in Essex, not unlike that which Clee has exerted for several years. He has an advantage even over Clee in that he has the confidence of all the major groups within the county. How this influence will be exerted this year is probably known to no one other than Zink, himself, but it is easy to imagine circumstances where his support might decide who would control the political machinery of the Republican party in Essex.

ably with that of its opponents. Furthermore, it must have a political strategist who can display at least part of the skill of a Jim Farley. That such a combination will be found by 1940, either in New Jersey or the nation, appears extremely unlikely at this writing. Whether the New Deal has failed or not is beside the point, politically speaking. It is in power and will remain until an opposition develops that a majority of the voters are willing to entrust with the powers of government.

Try as I may, I see scant indications that the Republican party can turn itself into such an instrument of public confidence. If there were such indications, they would appear in party interest in candidates for Congress this fall. It is in the type of men who will be selected in the Republican primaries during the next four months that progress can be seen in a new party orientation. But in New Jersey, at least, congressional nominations are being put up for public auction in the same old patronage game. It seems that the idea has never dawned upon Republican leaders that the party will be judged in 1940 largely by the type of men it elects in 1938.

It is not my intention to tire the readers of this column by too frequent references to the Twelfth Congressional District. But the apparent determination of some of the Essex leaders to prevent any candidate other than Robert W. Kean of Livingston having an open chance for the nomination, has more than casual significance. If persisted in, it is bound to have a serious effect on the whole Clean Government movement. Already Russell C. Gates of Montclair has announced his intention of bolting the ticket if Kean is endorsed over Col. Dallas S. Townsend of that city. Others very likely will follow suit. It is up to men of the progressive leanings of Dr. Clee to see that the movement is at least as good as neutral in the matter of selecting congressional candidates.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

The views expressed in the column, "Washington Snapshots," are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

The Washington braggars aren't bragging about it (and for obvious reasons) but Mr. U. S. Government is fast becoming the biggest private real estate proprietor in the world.

Right now he has approximately 142,000 private homes and about 10,000 farms on his hands—acquired via the mortgage route. A breakdown of real estate holdings as of March 31, shows:

Home Owners Loan Corporation has seized 141,543 houses and properties valued at $551,290,623, and is acquiring more at the rate of about 5,000 every month; is renting many of them for a monthly income of $1,500,000. The Farm Credit Administration has 9,969 farms valued at $36,722,630. The Federal Housing Administration (with the best record) was holding on that date 187 properties valued at $518,299. Defaults in the HOLC operations are running about ten per cent and in the FCA about fifteen per cent.

Thus, in a country where more people own their own homes than in any other nation, Uncle Sam is now coming to the fore as the world's biggest, private landlord.

And that leads to another item about government competition in the private field: Apparently there is to be no letup in competition with business, as is indicated in a behind-the-scenes tussle over the spending spree bill. An effort by the minority group in the House to insert a clause in the bill prohibiting the new spending in fields where it would be in competition with industry was immediately scuttled by the majority forces. In the Senate, the Appropriation Committee has inserted a clause limiting competition with privately owned public utilities.

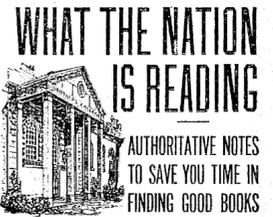

Incidentally, the majority forces in the House decided it would be better to have the new spending audited by the WPA (where most of it will be spent) instead of by the expert bookkeepers in the Treasury.

Some of the side-line spectators in Washington are predicting that another effort is to be made to reform the courts—that the administration is about ready to tear the lid off the sealed packing case and try to revive the corpse therein.

They are basing their prediction on the fact that the Secretary of Agriculture has made two recent statements on the occasion for a verbal roadside at the court. This was followed by a broadcast speech by a member of the Labor Board cracking at the court.

The better informed observers agree with the prediction, but believe the new attack is only to keep the issue alive and that the real fight won't come until after the fall elections.

In the matter of elections, the thinkers have thought up a new one for the citizenry to ponder. The suggestion is now afloat on the political pond that we change election day to "citizens' day," on which occasion Citizen Jones would go to the election center and transact all his business with the government while voting. He would supply the government with "important" statistical data on changes in business, crops, cattle conditions, whether he rents or owns his home, and similar information. The thinkers think Uncle Sam could thereby eliminate a lot of

WHAT THE NATION IS READING

AUTHORITATIVE NOTES TO SAVE YOU TIME IN FINDING GOOD BOOKS

The war to make the world safe for democracy was a failure if there ever was a failure. Since the war democracy has been destroyed in a large part of the world and almost everywhere it is on the defensive. Even here in America, where its tradition is so old, it is being attacked, and if there are still many people who are inclined to believe that it can't happen here they should remember that, according to the late Huey Long, "Fascism in America will arrive on an anti-Fascist platform." It is a commonplace that democracy is only possible where the citizens have the information necessary for intelligent action.

All those who want to be good citizens will be grateful to George Seldes for his little inexpensive book, "You Can't Do That" (Modern Age Books, N. Y., 50 cents), in which he presents the facts concerning the precarious situation of democracy in contemporary America. He does not preach, he gives names and dates and sources, all the evidence the critical reader may desire. Many readers will be surprised to learn how many are the foes of democracy and how many of them are masquerading as democrats. All, of course, wear the cloak of patriotism. A selected bibliography on civil liberties in the United States and an index increase the usefulness of the book, which is written in the easy and lucid style of the experienced journalist. It is journalism at its best.

"China and Her Unfinished Revolution," by Helen Pratt. "Japan—Where Ancient Loyalties Survive," by Helen Pratt. New York, American Council, Institute of Pacific Relations, 1937. $2.00 each.

We recommend these two books heartily to those who are seeking to interpret "the signs of the times." They are carefully prepared and accurate manuals, giving historical background and present day situations. Information is packed between their covers. Each volume has less than 200 pages, and historical outlines and maps add to their value.

Two broadsiders who were absent from the brakeless machine ranks last season, will be back in competition Tuesday, when they compete in the second meet of the current campaign on the Paterson track.

The other motorcycle racing star who is making a comeback this season is Gordon "Dutch" Schautz, skillful Bloomfield rider, who was on the absent list last year.

Kulkovich Back At Laurel Garden Man of a Thousand Laughs Has Been on Sidelines

Local wrestling fans will welcome Henry Kulkovich, the man of a thousand laughs, back to the Laurel Garden mat on Friday, when he comes back after being on the sidelines for a long time, because of a leg injury.

Heading the card is a return battle between Vic Weber and Duke Schult. Vic ended the bald headed villain's winning streak last week, but Dutch claimed that the referee had given him a bad deal and demanded another meeting with his conqueror.

The two men will be battling for the right to meet Dave Levin, former world champion, in the feature bout which opens the new Meadowbrook Bowl and the outdoor mat season on June 10.

Count Karl von Zuppe, the funny man of wrestling, comes back in the semi-final to battle John Egnar. Zuppe's facial expressions and his contortions with his body make him highly popular with the fans, who have welcomed him back after a long absence.

Dr. Dropkick Murphy will have his work cut out for him in the main supporting bout, for he must tangle with Walter Percy, clever Englishman.

Steve Zagursky, who made a hit in his debut last week, comes back to tangle with Luigi Bacigalupi. In the other battle Vanka Zelezniak collides with Juan Olaquival.

Irvington Outhit, Wins from Bellboys

Big Fourth Inning for Camptowners Settles Game Here

Irvington High School's nine had its hands full Saturday afternoon in taking a 5-3 decision over Belleville at Clearman Field.

The Camptowners quickly got their big bats into action, bombarding the locals' ace right-hander, Adolph Paul, for seven hits, including two triples and as many doubles in the third and fourth frames, to sew up the ball game.

Stan Wnek, burly Irvington catching veteran, was Paul's particular nemesis. The big Camptowner receiver crashed out a double and triple to spark both of Irvington's scoring innings. He added two singles to his collection to account for four hits.

Coach Frank Smith's charges found Irvington's moundman, Bud Farrell, easy to hit most of the time but not in the pinches. With the lone exception of the seventh, when the Bellboys pounded out five consecutive safeties for their three runs, the scoring drive was missing.

Nick Zuzzio's double and singles by Bob Jackson and Pat Tortorella were the run-producing blows of Belleville's "lucky seventh." The hits by Zuzzio and Jackson were their first of two for the afternoon.

Every Belleville regular contributed at least one safety to the cause. The fine play contributed by twirler Farrell and his mates to stop Belleville in the pinches may be best described by the fact that twice double plays, one started by Farrell himself, and three times strikeouts, ended Belleville rallies with men clogging the base-paths.

Bill Browne, veteran Irvington left fielder, saved Farrell some embarrassment in the sixth by coming from nowhere to pull down Paul's wicked liner, which seemed to be labeled base-hit.

Bill Holland Back At Union Speedway

Won Third Straight Race at Half-Mile Track Last Sunday

Record-breaking Bill Holland returns to the Union Speedway big car races Sunday afternoon for his fourth consecutive automobile victory.

Holland has done what no other big car automobile racing driver has been able to do at the Union Speedway half-mile track in the five years that racing has been conducted.

Last Sunday he won his third straight feature, and also broke a track record that has been standing since July, 1936.

Holland was clocked in 10:05 4/5 for the ten-mile feature race last Sunday. The old record for the track, which was set by Tommie Himmerschitz of Philadelphia, during the promotion of AAA competition, was 10:30.

By virtue of the three straight victories Holland now leads by a comfortable margin for the Union Speedway Gold Cup Stakes. His competition Sunday will include Joe Verely of Bound Brook, Eddie Shaw of Montclair, Cliff Hemingway of Camden, Len Duncan of Long Island, Eddie Saucio of Elizabeth, Buster Williams, Chet Gibbons and Harry Scheeler of Paterson and Charlie Miller of Linden.

Three serious crashes have marred the last three meets at the half-mile track. Dan Olivo is reported to be recovering from the accident last week in which five cars crashed. Duncan, Shaw, Red Moore of New Brunswick, Henry Steger,

Flashy Second Sacker

"Ham" Schulte, flashy little second baseman of the Newark Bears. He was present Wednesday night at the Elks' Club as a guest with other members of the Newark Club of the local Craftsmen's Club. Belleville Elks were also guests.

Schulte Abbreviates Name for Papers

Bears Second Sacker Felt Name Was Too Clumsy For Scribes

One of the new comers who broke in as a regular with the Newark Bears this year is Herman Joseph Schulte. The little second baseman cut his name to Schulte to save baseball reporters and printers from headaches, because he figured his right name was too clumsy.

Schulte came to the Bears full of confidence, fully realizing he was to fill a large pair of shoes left vacant by Joe Gordon, the Bears' second baseman of the wonder team.

When the season started the Bear was a little nervous. He got over his stage fright and settled down to business. Since then his work has been of high order in the field and the fans no longer wish Gordon was back on the team.

Schulte won't be twenty-five years of age until September. This is his first year in the East and has yet to see the Yankee Stadium, in New York. He hopes some day to have that place as his summer address.

The way he is performing, maybe he will. The Bear was born in St. Charles, Mo., and attended Iowa University from which he was graduated with a B. S. Degree in Commerce. Having majored in commerce, he is applying some of his learning to baseball, for he decided that to be successful on the ball field one must study at all times.

In the winter time he lives with his parents on a farm and takes delight in raising young steers. His father owns a large cattle ranch and Ham hopes to when his playing days are over. He says his greatest thrill so far was the day he got five for five against Columbus in 1936, and when Bob Seeds hit seven home runs recently in two days.

Steve O'Neill and his Buffalo Bisons come into Ruppert Stadium next Wednesday for a four-day stay. The Bisons have a lot of power and are regarded as one of the dark horses. Some experts think the Bisons might cop, but that opinion is not held by Manager Johnny Neun and his galloping Bears.

narrowly escaped serious injuries in the crash. Racing was held up for fully one hour while the track was cleared of the cars.

The program Sunday afternoon will include three heats; two consolation races and the feature Union Speedway Stakes event. In addition, there will be a special match race with six of the fastest cars entered. There will be no time trials and the first race will start at 2:30 o'clock.

Eagles Split Two Over Week-End

Bloomfield Cardinals Win, But Belleville Cardinals Lose

The Belleville Eagles split two games over the week-end, losing a 6-1 decision to the Bloomfield Cardinals on Sunday and defeating the Belleville Cardinals, 8-5, Monday.

Behind the four-hit pitching of Reynolds, the Bloomfield Cardinals defeated the Eagles by scoring runs in the first and second, one in the eighth and three in the ninth. Reynolds fanned ten Eagle batters, while his mates were pounding Goglia for twelve. Faulty fielding again led to Goglia's downfall.

Monday afternoon the Eagles came back and defeated the highly touted Belleville Cardinals. Johnson, who allowed five hits and struck out fifteen batters, was in good form as he had the visitors eating out of his hands.

The visitors scored two runs in the first inning and the Eagles came back with two when Danski singled and was advanced to second on infield out. Gonnello walked. Both scored on Costello's double to right.

Trailing four to two going into the last half of the fifth, the Eagles tied it up when Johnson doubled to left and scored on a wild pitch. Braeaglia walked, stole second and scored the tying run when Kurpinski singled to left.

The Eagles went ahead in the sixth when Caruso beat out a hit to third and stole second. S. Goglia hit to third and both runners were safe, when Tierney tried to get Caruso at third. Johnson singled, scoring Caruso. An error scored Goglia from second.

The Eagles sewed up the game in the seventh, when Gonnello singled and scored on Costello's double. Costello scored on Caruso's sacrifice bunt.

Batting stars for the game were Johnson and Costello, with two hits apiece, while for the Cards, Smith connected for three.

Sunday afternoon the Eagles will play a doubleheader with the Vaux Hall Orioles, first game at 1:30 P. M. S. Goglia and Johnson will twirl. Kurpinski will catch.

Bill Parmer Hurls Two-Hit Game at Grove Street Oval

By Edgar Bloemke. PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 3.—One more automobile racing classic will be staged at Langhorne speedway this season, Hankinson speedway officials have announced here with Sunday, June 19, set as the date for a 100-mile program, in which the nation's foremost stars will compete.

Hankinson scouts are now in Indianapolis, securing the entries of the drivers who shared in the $60,000 purse in the Memorial Day 500-mile race. Rich bonuses are being offered the winning stars to secure their signatures on Langhorne entries.

Plans are also being made to stage a four cornered match race between the four greatest drivers in the country with each driver posting a $500 entry fee to be added to the $2,000 purse with the winner taking all. Two drivers already named for the event are Bobbie Sall of Paterson, who shattered all world's mile track records at Langhorne on May 22, and Billy Winn of Detroit, rated by many to be the greatest dirt track star in the country.

It will be the last race meet of the season at Langhorne, Ralph Hankinson, owner and operator of the big Bucks County speed plant announced. Later racing activities will be confined to meets at agricultural expositions throughout the middle west and east.

Co-operating with the Hankinson organization in securing the best speed talent in the nation for the Langhorne classic, is the entire staff of the contest board of the American Automobile Association. Every licensed driver in the United States will receive entry blanks and generous cash bonuses will be paid to the winners of the Indianapolis 500-mile race to induce them to bring their speedway machines east for the event.

difference of opinion on such a small matter. I hope the time will come when taxpayers will approve of a really substantial salary, commensurate with the integrity—the character—the energy and accomplishments of the board.

James Leonard, 16 Howard place, was the only one aside from those who signed the petitions, to address the board, opposing the measure. He stated that with large industrial firms reducing salaries and wages of employees who pay taxes, it "was more or less an unsportsman-like thing to do."

Edward J. Abramson, representing the Tavern Owners' Association, said he feared that the change might permit other taverns in town. The tavern owners do not oppose the change, insofar as the veterans are concerned, but they do object to additional taverns. Mr. Abramson was advised by the Mayor and Director of Streets and Public Improvements Patrick A. Waters that D. Frederick Burnett's ABC office said the only way the veterans could get a license would be through an amendment to the ordinance. The board is in accord that no more taverns will be licensed.

Albert Bianchi was named a constable in the Fourth Ward. A conference on WPA projects, which was scheduled, has been indefinitely postponed.

GROUP PUTS OUT PROTEST LETTER

Two Complaints Aired By Taxpayers-Civic Association

"A nice bit of combined humor and sleight of hand."

This is how the Belleville Taxpayers and Civic Association, in a statement, looks upon the $450 pay increase each Town Commissioner will receive as a result of a recent action of the board, Director of Parks and Public Improvements Louis A. Noll, voting against the measure.

"It is your money they are pulling out of the hat and the joke is on you," continues the broadside distributed to members and taxpayers.

The association also takes issue with the "stripping of duties" from Noll.

"When you elected Louis A. Noll, did you intend him to be a mere figurehead?"

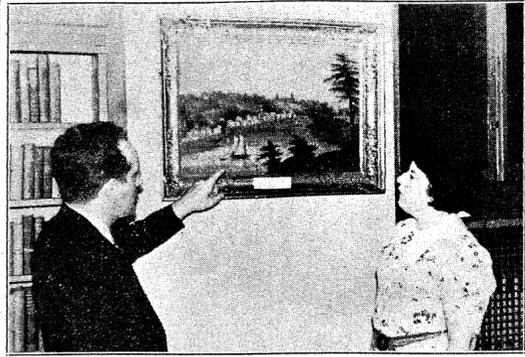

"Mr. Noll has now begun legal proceedings to test the right of the mayor and the other three commissioners to deprive his department of the functions to which the same is normally entitled. The most beautiful part of the matter is that if a suit is brought, the Big Four will be compelled to defend their actions in court, but not at their own expense. The honor of paying the bill will be entirely yours," the notice reads.

Local Girl Recognized As Outstanding Senior Gets Chalmers Cup

nized as the outstanding senior in Boston University's college of practical arts and letters, Muriel Beresford, of Belleville, president of the Student Government Association, was yesterday awarded the Thomas Chalmers Cup, given annually to the girl who has done the most for her class during her college career.

During the war Mr. Kelly was $1 a year man and was the first builder to arrive in Washington at the call of the late President Woodrow Wilson in 1917. He arrived one day after war was declared.

Other houses built by Mr. Kelly included a $596,000 home for William Barstow at Great Neck, L. I., and a house costing $250,000 for Amos Stone Mather, at Chagrin Falls, Mich.

On April 17, 1893, he married Miss Mary Maguire of Jersey City, which was the culmination of a childhood romance.

The Kellys came to Belleville in 1918, living for fourteen years in a big white house at Rutgers street and Washington avenue. They moved to the present home fourteen years ago.

In his youth Mr. Kelly was quite a swimmer and he proudly displayed a gold watch that he received from the father of a child who fell overboard from a ferry boat. Mr. Kelly jumped in the water and saved the child from drowning.

His most recent job was the building of a $70,000 home for Professor Greenway of Yale University.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly and their son and daughter, Walter and Florence, spent many happy hours at their 400-acre farm near Washington, N. J.

SERVICES FOR CHARLES H. KELLY

Local Man, Prominent As Builder, Died of Heart Attack

A requiem mass was held at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in St. Peter's Church for Charles H. Kelly, sixty-eight, 463 Washington avenue, vice-president of the George A. Shedden Co., building contractors of New York City, who died Friday of a heart ailment. Burial was made in Holy Cross Cemetery, North Arlington.

Born in Jersey City, Mr. Kelly was educated in public schools there. He was a resident of this town more than thirty years. The town with which he was connected for twenty-nine years built the Belleville Town Hall.

During the World War Mr. Kelly built the Village of Yorkshire, now Fairhaven, N. J. He supervised construction of 1,600 homes for workers in an emergency shipyard near Camden.

Mr. Kelly was a member of the Belleville Elks and the Holy Name Society of St. Peter's Church. He leaves his wife, Mary A. Kelly, a son, Walter, and a daughter, Miss Florence Kelly, all of Belleville.

During his twenty-eight years as vice-president of the Shedden Company Mr. Kelly has built many mansions and public buildings. His biggest enterprise was a $9,000,000 home for Senator William A. Clark at Seventy-second street and Fifth avenue. This is believed to be the largest home ever constructed for one family.

Mr. Kelly was one of the organizers of football banquets in town. With August Plenge, Henry Mason, the former principal of the High School, Charles L. Steel, Mayor William H. Williams, Harry Hardman and Arthur Martin, Mr. Kelly held the first such meeting at his home in December, 1924, to have a citizens' committee sponsor the dinner.

Town Faces Quiet Fourth Minus Celebration Plans

Committee Discouraged With Response To Donations Last Year

Unless public spirited residents feel the urge to raise funds there will be no Fourth of July celebration in Belleville this year, and with a town ordinance in effect prohibiting the sale and use of fireworks on the occasion, the town may find itself as noiseless as any other Summer day in Belleville.

Last year, through efforts of the Civic League and other townspeople the annual celebration was held at Clearman Field, but the subscriptions to the fund fell up the shortage from an un-short and the Civic League made pended balance from a previous year.

Those who had been responsible for the display here in years gone by, last year following the display, asked the Town Commission to provide funds. The board agreed it would try to include the item in this year's budget, but it was not possible to make the provision when it was found the tax rate would jump, a spokesman for the group which previously put on the show, avers.

Many who previously worked ardently in behalf of Belleville's celebration are sitting by this year with little inclination to assume responsibility for raising funds.

SCHOLARSHIPS GO TO ART STUDENTS

Misses Wanda Rogers and Genevieve Holland Are Honored

That the students of Belleville High School Art Department, under the direction of P. Webster Diehl, can give a good account of themselves in competition with high school art students anywhere in the metropolitan district, was demonstrated today when Genevieve Holland and Wanda Rogers, high school seniors, were notified that they had been awarded a scholarship and special mention for outstanding ability, respectively, by the American School of Design, New York City.

This scholarship, which is good for half tuition for two years in the school, was won by Miss Holland in competition with several hundred selected students from leading high schools in the metropolitan district. Previously she was the first prize winner in the World's Fair Poster contest in the Belleville school district and of many local contests.

Dwight Morrow High School, Englewood, won the full scholarship.

Miss Rogers, winner of the award for outstanding ability, has a straight "A" average for art in her senior year in Belleville High School. She has contributed much time and art work to aid school plays, scenery production and other school activities.

Main Street's Past Offers Historic Points Of Interest

Relics of Revolutionary Days Are Crumbling Along The Passaic

by JUDD F. COULTER

The past century has inflicted much damage to the old Dutch structures along the first street of Belleville or Second River, as it was known in the days of the Schuylers, Van Ripers and Sandfords. A recent visit to the three very old burial grounds along this ancient thoroughfare showed many old names of sturdy Dutch stock (on not-so-sturdy tombstones). They were among the first settlers here. Some of these grave-markers are now barely distinguishable, among them, near the southwest corner of the now deserted and crumbling Christ Episcopal Church, may be seen the broken marker of one Arent Schuyler, early settler, gentleman, and beloved by all of his day who knew him.

The first blacksmith shop of Belleville, said to have been located just south of the old Christ Church, was owned by Cornelius Van Riper and the place that cannon shot was prepared during the Revolution to fire at the British besieging Belleville from across the Passaic River. He was strongly patriotic and, having exhausted his supply of iron suited for this kind of shooting, gave the gunners first his hammer and then his sledge to be used as shot.

The British, upon discovering the kind of shot being used, were heard to call out loudly to their comrades, "Get out of the way, for God's sake, before they give us the anvil." A plaque, erected

CLOSE CALL

Frank Rovell, 333 Ralph street, had a narrow escape when he was put on the operating table recently in a Newark hospital preparatory to an appendectomy. An interne rushed into the operating room with an X-ray showing that Frank did not have an inflamed appendix but merely a small stone in his kidney.

Subsequent treatments removed the stone and Frank is back on the job again as a member of the Signal department, of the town.

MAYOR OUTLINES RECREATION PLAN

Director Noll Would Establish Sixteen Play Centers Here

Mayor William H. Williams last night announced his recreation plan at a joint meeting of the Town Commission, Recreation Commission and Board of Education in Public School No. 8. The Mayor feels that existing school buildings and grounds should be utilized to their fullest extent to provide an adequate recreational program for five years.

A survey, which was recently made by Town Engineer Matthew Sheehan, was told by Director of Parks and Public Property Louis A. Noll. Fred B. Hanlon of the town real estate department assisted in the survey.

Noll envisions a broader base for recreation. He suggested last night that WPA labor be utilized to construct sixteen play centers in town, four of which would be at strategic points and of major proportion.

Other guests included Charles P. Gebhard, Scout commissioner H. E. Stickle, William Terry Kingston Apgar, Joseph Monaghan, Don C. Roviello, Herbert Robinson, Raymond Patrick and Charles Chambers, several of them Belleville Scoutmasters.

Scoutmaster and assistant scoutmaster insignia also was presented by Mr. Tiernan to the assistants, Robert Edelman, Henry Ohlandt, James Tiernan and Edward Ecker.

The sponsoring adult committee responsible for the rapid stride made by the Scouts includes: Mr. Anderson, chairman, and Mr. Dailey, Earl Germond Sr., George Bird, Cy Tygett, Miles Monaghan, Charles Schevcha, Robert Brown, W. E. Austin, Adolph Kurl and John P. Fagan. All troop leaders are employed in the Wallace & Tiernan plant.

by the New Jersey Historical Society, stands at this spot near Belleville Bridge.

Although a fine highway now replaces the old dusty Main street of long ago, one cannot help visualizing a Concord type stage with double team clattering across the wooden bridge from New York toward the inn located between William and John streets.

Before the coming of the white men, Belleville, and its surrounding territory was the coveted camping ground of the Indians. In the year 1668, William Sandford purchased this land, estimated at 15,308 acres, for 170 fathoms of black wampum, 200 fathoms of white wampum, nine-ty-six match coats, sixteen guns, sixty double handfulls of powder, ten pairs of breeches, sixty knives, sixty-seven bars of lead, one jug of brandy, three half kegs of beer, eleven blankets, thirty axes, twenty hoes and two dozen cooking pots. Presuming the beer was tax-free the figure would be not more than $200.

The first settlers, with their religious groups, chose the fields along the Passaic River, north of the Second River, as the most inviting. In 1720, John Hendrick Spier and his wife, Catryna, gave the land on which later was built the still standing Dutch Reformed Church, the oldest place of worship in Belleville. The history of this church is lengthy and interesting, many streets of Belleville now bearing the names of those connected with it. Christ Episcopal Church traces its organization to a charter granted by King George II in 1746. The first meeting place is said to have been

INDUSTRIAL TROOP GETS CHARTER

Many Parents and Visiting Scouters At Affair Held Here

by Joe McGarrick

Scores of parents and visiting Scouters of the Robert Treat Council witnessed one of the most impressive vestiture Scout ceremonies ever held in Belleville last night when Troop 333 officially received its unit charter as the first "industrial troop" of the Newark-Belleville-Irvington area.

The program was held in the Wallace & Tiernan Products Co. plant in Mill street where the Scout meet each week.

Plant officials, headed by Martin F. Tiernan, president, and the visiting Scouters proudly sat on the sidelines with the Scouts' parents as twenty-two Scouts of the troop's membership of thirty-three boys were inducted with the solemn rituals of the movement.

The investiture ceremony was performed by Troop 7, Forest Hill Presbyterian Church, Newark, one of the leading troops of the North End District. The ceremonial team was headed by Scoutmaster Samuel P. Owen.

The charter presentation for the troop, which began its meetings only two months ago, was made by Dr. F. J. Tobey, chairman of the council's organization committee, to Mr. Tiernan. The official papers together with the new troop colors were in turn presented by Mr. Tiernan, representing the troop's ownership by the parent institution, to Russell Anderson, chairman of the troop committee. Charles J. Michelson received the material, as Scoutmaster, on behalf of the troop membership.

Ceremony alone did not hold the interest of Scouters and parents. The Scouts, surprisingly well-organized into four self-operating patrols demonstrated their early Scouting experience by performing a knot-tying contest. Earl and Bud Germond, member of a Montclair troop, demonstrated their efficiency with fire building, via the friction and flint and steel methods.

Motion pictures of Camp Mohican, the council's summer camp near Blairstown, were shown to the audience by Harvey W. Maden, assistant Scout executive who will begin his twelfth summer as camp director, there on July 2. The films were produced in technicolor. Other speakers last night were Arnold C. Sorenson, Scout executive of the Robert Treat Council; Douglas Clark, Jr., Belleville district commissioner; and William J. Orchard, general manager of Wallace & Tiernan and the plant's personnel manager and Scouter, John P. Dailey.

Other guests included Charles P. Gebhard, Scout commissioner H. E. Stickle, William Terry Kingston Apgar, Joseph Monaghan, Don C. Roviello, Herbert Robinson, Raymond Patrick and Charles Chambers, several of them Belleville Scoutmasters.

Scoutmaster and assistant scoutmaster insignia also was presented by Mr. Tiernan to the assistants, Robert Edelman, Henry Ohlandt, James Tiernan and Edward Ecker.

Fidac Purposes

Understanding among the people of different nations as a basis for lasting peace is the theme of the American Legion Auxiliary in its June activities, according to Mrs. Christie, Fidac chairman of the Belleville Unit. With special meetings, programs, pageants and garden parties, Auxiliary Units throughout the country are depicting the purpose of Fidac, the International Veterans Federation, friendship and good will between nations.

"Present world conditions emphasize the need for the activities of Fidac," said Mrs. Christie. "Understanding and good will among the peoples of the world is necessary if present difficulties are to be settled in peace. Fidac strives to replace propaganda of hate and fear with education in friendship."

Since the first charter was obtained for a bridge in 1790, there have been four to span the Passaic. About this same time one was built across the Hackensack and with the building of a turnpike road through the cedar swamps, now the meadows, gave to the citizens of Belleville and surrounding country the first direct communication with the City of New York. The corduroy road was made of cedar logs laid close together and forms the base of the present highway. The first bridge over the Passaic was destroyed by a flood in 1841, the

Washington Snapshots by JAMES PRESTON

The views expressed in this column are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

There's an old saying that there are more ways than one to skin a cat. And so there are more ways than one to "pack" the Federal judiciary with "friendly" jurists, the Washington schemers have found out.

When the plan was made last year that Federal courts were overcrowded with work "because some of the jurists were too old," and that additional justices should be added to the Supreme Court and the lower Federal courts, public sentiment balked the move.

The new plan, however, is to quietly circumvent public opposition with creation of a brand new branch of the Federal judiciary. It's a subtle move, but it's potent. To wit:

The new courts will be known as the United States Court of Appeals for Administration. It would receive, decide and expedite appeals from Federal commissions, administrative authorities, etc., in all cases in which the Federal government was a party or had an interest.

In other words, government agencies would take their legal woes away from old established courts and let the decision rest with a hand-picked court of its own.

A bill has been introduced in the Senate to make creation of the new court possible. It provides for a chief justice and ten associates, all to receive a yearly wage of $12,500.

Washington's cocktail and tea hour conversationalists would have a dull time of it indeed if it were not for such stories as the one of a top-rung brain-truster who reportedly wanted to have airplanes fly over the country dropping dollars for recovery's sake. The story has gone the rounds of the Capital in many versions, the most popular one being:

This certain gentleman (he is also credited with writing a good many of the Cabinet speeches) is supposed to have proposed the spending-from-the-skies program during a conference on spending ideas back in 1933. He purportedly said that the right way to restore buying power and bring recovery was to pour money into circulation in the greatest possible quantities at the highest possible speed. To do that he suggested that a fleet of planes be loaded with dollars and sent out over the country to drop their cargo where anybody who needed cash could pick it up.

The Capital spectators are speculating on a new potentiality. The C.I.O., it has become known, is quietly organizing the Nation's unemployed and relief clients. They are being taken into the C.I.O. fold as non-dues paying members—until they get jobs. They are admitted to this status on the condition that they will work as unpaid organizers for the C.I.O. and bring in memberships of dues-paying employed workers.

In return for their services they are also promised help in increasing their relief rations. In other words, the C.I.O. helps them get more relief from the public agencies. With the C.I.O. already dominating much of the relief dispensing, the speculators are wondering just how potent the organization may become if and when the organization of employed and unemployed alike is complete as one unit.

WPA "boondoggle" stories are going the Washington rounds and causing no end of criticism of the WPA among the conservative Congressmen. One story concerns a WPA project in Missouri, where it seems that $226,961.93 was spent to compile a Missouri guidebook. Now the project has been suspended without publication of the book because the WPA says it can't find a "competent" editor to assemble and edit the great mass of copy written by the relievers.

The Outdoor World by Bob Bangert

I noticed that some of the pupils of the High School Biology class are working on projects. There are many projects that can be worked out in this subject. I'll admit some of them are a little dry as that of cutting out pictures and drawing diagrams, but the interesting ones are many more than the dry ones.

About one of the most interesting projects that I ever saw was one in a camp museum. It was an ant colony. It was so arranged that you could see the rooms they had built. It is inexpensive and the ants are not allowed to roam all over the house to get into the food. Costume Party For Youngsters

Several novelties fetured a costume party Friday on the lawn of Mason and Teddy Ford, 235 Linden avenue, where they and Richard Berbig and Jacky Brokaw entertained a group of little friends with a merry-go-round and other party ideas.

The color scheme of yellow and green was carried out by streamers circling the yard from which balloons gaily waved, table decorations and a huge yellow crepe paper umbrella which hung down in the center.

BOY BADLY INJURED IN FALL FROM TREE

Seventeen stitches were required to close cuts on the chest and arm sustained by Benjamin Sesh, ten, 96 William street, when he fell out of a tree on property at the rear of 164 Union avenue. The lad was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, Passaic.

In the grand march at the beginning of the party there romped a dwarf clown, sailor, cowboy, Indian, Dutch boy, old-fashioned girl and others. The children particularly enjoyed pulling favors tied to long streamers out of the umbrella and chasing the balloons when they were cut loose.

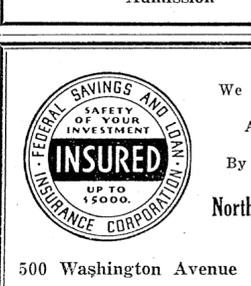

Among the guests, all from Belleville, were Eddie Bergamini, Barbara Birks, "Jiggy" and Harold Danziger, Stanley Faust, Patty Lay, Audrey Mason, Dicky Orr, Sonny Pendleton, Elnisa Strauss, Marilyn and Bruce Leuschner and Gerry Wilson. Catherine Mason served the tables.

Notable Record Achieved
By Italian Baptists Here

Silver Lake Congregation Has Attained Self-Supporting Parish

Silver Lake section of Belleville is surrounded by three municipalities, Newark, Bloomfield and East Orange. The Italian colony extends in all these. In territory, it is a large area and is not fully settled. This whole Italian center reaches over 20,000 persons.

The evangelical work at Silver Lake was originally an American work. It was started in a house near the Erie Railroad. Then the neighbors built an inter-denominational chapel. It was a farming land with a lake. The few native-born Americans were gradually replaced by Italian immigrants. The chapel admitted Italian children in Sunday school.

In 1880, the First Baptist Church of Bloomfield became interested and Mr. Maxfield held services there.

In 1910, the chapel burned down and the proceeds of the fire insurance went to the Bloomfield Baptist Church, amounting to $2,260. In 1911, the ground was sold on which the chapel was situated. This place was located at the corner of Belmont avenue and Franklin street.

Out of this work, in 1912, the Methodists built a church for the Italians in Berkeley avenue at North 8th street, Newark, near Silver Lake, and the whole congregation went to that chapel. The Bloomfield Baptist Church gave up the work.

In 1913, the only thing in the annual of the First Baptist Church, Bloomfield, was, "Silver Lake Chapel Fund, $4,769.45."

In 1914, Louis Stoiber insisted that a chapel should be built for the Italians in Silver Lake section of Belleville, and saw Dr.

Potter, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Bloomfield, who told him that if an amount equal to what they had could be raised, the chapel would be built. Mr. Stoiber offered over $1,000 himself, and raised $2,000 among his friends. The Sunday school was re-opened in a house in the Lake section. Mr. Stoiber's initiative is outstanding and he deserves much credit. David Garabrant also raised and contributed much, as did several other prominent persons of other denominations.

Rev. Benedetto Pascale was called to the work September 25, 1914, while still a student at the Italian Department of Colgate Seminary. In November 21, 1914, the chapel, costing $11,000, was dedicated. All activities were immediately undertaken, including religious, social, recreational and intellectual programs, and the work made rapid progress. As grown people continued to join the church, a permanent Sunday school was also established.

The erection of a social center was supported during the first fourteen years through the generosity of four agencies: the First Baptist Church of Bloomfield, the New Jersey Baptist Convention, the American Baptist Home Mission Society, and the Italian Baptist Church of Belleville.

On November 28, 1928, the First Baptist Church, Bloomfield, adopted a resolution turning over to the Silver Lake Baptist Church the entire property "on assumption of full financial self-support to carry on the work." The terms were accepted and an organized independent church started in 1929.

The church is the first Italian Baptist Church to attain self-support, in the Northern Baptist Convention. The present membership is 221 besides many adherents.

The Ladies' Guild will hold a dessert strawberry festival on the lawn this evening from 6 to 8 p.m.

The members and friends of the Girls' Friendly Society are reminded to get their applications signed early in order to make reservations for the desired period. The season will open July 2 at Delaware, N. J.

From THE LOCAL PULPIT

"Seeing the Unseen," a sermon by Rev. O. Bell Close, pastor of Fewsmith Memorial Presbyterian Church.

Text: "And he answered, fear not for they that are with us are more than they that are with them. And Elisha prayed and said, Jehovah, I pray Thee open his eyes, that he may see. And Jehovah opened the eyes of the young man; and he saw: and, behold, the mountains were full of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha." II Kings: 6:16-17.

In the dim distant past, a diminutive dictator, desperate and diabolical, at the head of a host of Syrian soldiers, harassed the Holy land and sought to enslave the people of Palestine.

A preacher, who dwelt at Dothan, defied and defeated this dictator. The same spiritual power that enabled his servant to see the silent spiritual "chariots of fire," fighting for freedom, blinded and beat back the invaders, paralyzing their power.

What a poetic picture for this day! This dangerous day! Not since the secession of the "Old South" have the plain people of our country been so certain, that, all the way from the Gulf to the Great Lakes, with brain and brawn, they must fight for their freedom.

The most devilish dictator, any nation has even known, lives in OUR land. His infamous name is INTOLERANCE. He came, unwashed, out of the Old World on a tramp steamer, slipped by quarantine and into port while our statesmen were preparing pork for consumption by their constituents and we, the people, were reveling in the insanity of our "isolation."

His royal highness, our Fascist-Nazi-Communist a la Americano dictator, INTOLERANCE, invades our alleys and appears in our parks in an unusual uniform; his dirty shirt is black before and brown behind, his pants are patched with repudiated promises to pay war debts; flying from the spike of his unscarred war helmet is a red rag; his filthy feet are still bare, but his boots are being "made to measure" from the hides of our millions on the relief rolls.

Our American Mikado, INTOLERANCE, defied by our demagogues, is never more elegant than in his epithets. With hate in his heart and treason on his tongue, he yells, "Scab, Wop, Harp and Kyke."

Our dictator educates and advises his people. Into the Catholic ear he whispers "Protestant Pagans." He prods the Protestants "into line" with "Rome will soon run our Republic."

Over at Washington, our big boss, INTOLERANCE, brow beats the boys on Capitol Hill and promises the President power, and more power with these words of wisdom, "Bludgeon business, beat up big business, tax the 'Torys' till their tongues are out, pry their profits away, bring them to their knees, with their money, provide jobs for jobless millions, whom they had to lay off and thus perpetuate your power.

To the boys in Wall street, to captains of capital and to the managers of the mills, where the legions of labor must earn what they eat, INTOLERANCE advises, "Shut up shop 'till the 'gang in Washington, are out on their ears."

To 148,000 college graduates, who will walk out from their American Alma Maters this week, disillusioned and disgrusted, INTOLERANCE whispers, "Congratulations, up an' at 'em, go get results, results or revolution, 11,000,000 unemployed are looking for leaders."

Newark is an old city; INTOLERANCE had to wait a long, long time for these "dangerous days" to come to enable him to recruit his rascals for an assault on a sincere citizen, who dared to differ.

The eggs that broke on the brain-filled brow and ran down over the cultured countenance of Norman Thomas in Military Park may yet reach a hot frying pan.

Yes, friends, these are "dangerous days"; INTOLERANCE, the low-bred high-handed dictatorship, that Europe dignifies and Asia defies must be "blasted from our borders." Please permit this prophet to predict, that when INTOLERANCE is buried in some international potter's field permanent peace will have arrived.

This humble prophet pleads, PRAY! PRAY for POWER to SEE the SILENT UNSEEN SPIRITUAL FORCES, which like Elisha's CHARIOTS of FIRE hover over our heads and our hearts, ready to strike dead the DICTATORSHIP of INTOLERANCE within and among us. "And behind the dim unknown, Standeth God within the shadow, Keeping watch above His own." —Lowell.

Statesmanship today is far more afraid than in times past of the consequences of war.—Evangeline Booth

NO FOURTH CELEBRATION

Belleville is faced with a quiet Fourth of July. A Town ordinance prohibits sale and use of fireworks for the National holiday

Unless some one comes forward, it appears that Belleville residents this year will have to travel to some other town to witness the evening display on the Fourth.

The committee, which attempted to raise funds last year, was disheartened with the response and made an appeal to the Town Commission to appropriate enough to put on a display, but a rise in the tax rate precluded inclusion of any such sum in this year's budget.

NEED MORE REST

Americans, with their business philosophy that calls for constant application and work, used to look with scorn upon the habit of people in some other countries to have an afternoon "siesta," but a noted professor in a New York medical college suggests that a little time off for a brief siesta in the afternoon would do a world of good for American business men.

GRADUATION NEARS

Spring is in the air and just around the corner is graduation day for some 350-odd Belleville High School seniors. Some will seek higher learning in colleges and universities—others will try to land jobs.

One thing, however, is certain. As the robins flit about and flowers are in bloom, there comes an occasion to be joyous. Particularly are the graduates in a mood brimming with thrills and happiness. Get the most out of this 1938 June, Belleville High seniors, because there will never be another like it.

WEDNESDAY CLOSING

Belleville merchants are planning again this year to close stores on Wednesday afternoons during July and August, and possibly the last two weeks of this month.

The Wednesday closing will benefit the owners of stores and employees a great deal if all, who legitimately can do so, will agree to turn the key in the lock Wednesday noon. Most stores here operate on a long hourly basis and the Wednesday closing will afford those thus tied down an opportunity to enjoy a little time off.

Most housewives are willing that the owners and employees should benefit by the relaxation and will make their plans for purchases accordingly. It is expected the Town Commission officially will pass an ordinance in favor of the closing.

WHOLEHEARTED SUPPORT NEEDED

Deserving support from every possible source is Governor Moore's recently appointed New Jersey Street and Highway Safety Committee, which hopes to coordinate various local and state-wide safety movements, and also attack the problem of safely guiding the 25,000,000 motorists expected to cross New Jersey next year on their way to the New York World's Fair.

While the World's Fair traffic presents a potential problem of amazing proportions which the new committee will attempt to solve through such means as extensive billboard advertising and distribution of pamphlets explaining traffic laws, the long needed coordination of various safety movements within the state is of more immediate and permanent interest to the citizens of New Jersey.

The effectiveness of organized attempts to curtail highway accidents already has been demonstrated in New Jersey by commercial motor vehicle operators, through individual company safety programs, and cooperation with various local safety councils, led by the New Jersey Motor Truck Association. Although their motor trucks consume forty per cent of the tax paid gasoline in the state, indicative of the road mileage covered, safety education and study which they stress was so successful last year that commercial vehicles comprised only thirteen per cent of the total vehicles involved in street and highway accidents in this state.

Governor Moore's new committee hopes to continue this progress by inaugurating a commercial vehicle safe drivers' contest. While this will duplicate many local and plant contests already operative, it undoubtedly will be welcomed by the highway transportation industry which has shown a laudable willingness to cooperate in any safety effort. It is to be hoped the committee will be successful in arousing equal interest among private motorists.

Headed by Col. Frederick Hickman of Atlantic City, the new committee includes traffic experts and business and civic leaders. Direction of the committee's campaign will be in the hands of Fred M. Rosseland and Frank J. Walsh who have been effectively directing safety council work in Essex and Hudson counties, respectively. By incorporating proven features of various local campaigns into a unified state-wide program, this new movement can do much toward curbing the deplorable annual loss of life and property on our streets and highways.

The greatest obstacle to be overcome is the apathetic attitude of the general motoring public, which shows evidence of growing callous to the terrible meaning of accident statistics. If this dangerous indifference can be replaced with wholehearted cooperation of all motorists, New Jersey will attract nation-wide attention as a highway safety pioneer.

HEISLEY LETTER

To the Editor of The News:

I have made a cursory study of the Presidents of the United States lately, and find several things of remarkable interest. It was said of Calvin Coolidge when he uttered that queer saying, "I don't choose to run," that the country would like to see him run, but did not want to see his eldest son feel to be bound to run in succession to him.

1825; Jefferson had succeeded himself (Adams); Madison had succeeded Jefferson; Monroe had succeeded Madison, and at length, John Quincy Adams had succeeded to what might be called the Adams patent on the presidency.

The nearest to a family patent on the presidency was Benjamin Harrison, who on March 4, 1889, who succeeded to the title of his grandfather, William H. (Tippecanoe) Harrison, who had been inaugurated in 1850, to live scarcely a month afterwards, the only president to die in the White House. Thus there were two family lines, the Adams and the Harrisons, distinguishing the history of the presidents of the United States.

The second question is, was there anything remarkable about the national anniversary, the Fourth of July, in the occurrence of the death thereof of three of our early presidents? Yes. John Adams died on that day in the year 1826, shortly after saying "Jefferson still survives," but he was mistaken for Jefferson had died a few hours earlier that same day at Monticello. Then, on July 4, 1831, James Monroe died in New York City, though a Virginian. The future developments of mental science may prove whether they were merely coincidental. It is easier to conclude that they were.

Perhaps the taking of the course, "the easiest way is the best," has so far proved the greatest deterrent to obtaining knowledge that would prove most beneficial. To me the coincidence is remarkable enough to point out a deep background of cause and effect. FREDERICK A. HEISLEY

Now, what is it all about? It is simply part of a broad campaign to grow better citizens—to reduce juvenile delinquency—to breed future citizens who will, through training and force of example, be able to be worthy citizens of this country and leaders of human

HELD UP!

THIS WEEK

by "Guardian"

The views expressed in this column, are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

Let us forget for the moment national politics, the egging of Norman Thomas, the Spanish aerial bombardment of French towns and British freighters, and the many world events of importance to everyone which have happened during the past week—and take a few moments to consider a development in Belleville which can well result in lasting benefit to our town, our county, and our state. Last evening, Boy Scout Troop No. 333—the Wallace & Tiernan Troop—received its charter from the Boy Scouts of America—the first Boy Scout Troop in the state of New Jersey sponsored by an industrial organization.

The troop committee, scout leader, and his assistant, are all men with varying degrees of previous scouting experience—ranging from that of assistant scoutmaster to scout commissioner and to vice president of an area Scout Council. The thirty-three boys who have enrolled in the troop—many of whom received their tenderfoot badges last evening—are Belleville boys who want the training and the education and advantages which will come to them from scouting.

It has long been an expounded theory of ours that to fulfill one's obligations in life a man (or woman) must do more than work at a job—must do more than live in a town and to pay rent or taxes. We have always felt and still feel that every individual has an obligation to the community in which he lives and to his fellowman to do things which will make his community a better place in which to live because he has lived in it—and that by so doing he will help pay his freight through the journey of life.

The men who own the industry which is sponsoring this troop—Wallace and Tiernan—and the men in their organization who are taking of their time and effort to establish this troop and who have dedicated themselves to the responsibility of seeing the accomplishments of the troop will justify its sponsorship—have the same philosophy.

thought in the years to come. And the Boy Scout movement, relatively a youthful movement (it was started in 1907 by Lord Baden-Powell), is doing just that. Many sincere studies which have been made have indicated that as boy scouting progresses in a community juvenile delinquency retrogresses—and all of us need to be concerned about the figures on juvenile delinquency which were released after Judge Hartshorne's conferences in Newark a week ago.

Boy scouting in Belleville and anywhere—girl scouting, too, in an equal or greater measure—will grow and develop in proportion to the number of men and women who are sufficiently interested in the principles of the scout movement and in the beneficial results which will be accomplished—to enroll themselves as troop leaders. This is a very definite plea to the men and women of Belleville interested in helping the home, the school, and the church to build character in our boys and girls to volunteer their services as troop leaders, or assistant leaders, as troop committeemen or women, or in any capacity where their qualifications will permit them to serve the youth of today—the citizens of tomorrow.

How can anyone fail to want to support a movement which has as its foundation a scout oath which says:

To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout Law.

To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight.

- And a scout law which says: "1. A Scout is Trustworthy. "2. A Scout is Loyal "3. A Scout is Helpful "4. A Scout is Friendly "5. A Scout is Courteous "6. A Scout is Kind "7. A Scout is Obedient "8. A Scout is Cheerful "9. A Scout is Thrifty "10. A Scout is Brave "11. A Scout is Clean "12. A Scout is Reverent."

Every man, every woman, every industry in Belleville interested in furthering the Boy Scout and Girl Scout movement in Belleville—interested in helping make Belleville a finer and better place in which to live and work can receive all the information they want by telephoning John P. Dailey, Belleville's vice-president of the Robert Treat Council, Boy Scouts of America, at Belleville 2-2785, or at Humboldt 3-6000.

Yours 'til next week. "GUARDIAN."

fairly high percentages of delinquency, Landis and Maurice River Townships, showed 72 per cent and 88.3 per cent of their tax delinquent land not farmed. In Landis, most of the plots were small and held individually, while the larger delinquent areas were held by improvement companies. Although the average size of tax delinquent plots in Maurice River was high, more than half of the delinquent area was held by one owner. The rest of the delinquent plots were small. In Landis Township, 68 per cent of the delinquent land was unsuited for agriculture, while 95 per cent of the delinquent area in Maurice River was little suited to any type of agriculture except poultry farming. Even Pittsgrove Township, which had the lowest delinquency in the area, showed 45.2 per cent of its delinquent land not farmed.

For the area as a whole, it was found that 79.68 per cent of the unfarmed tax delinquent land was held by improvement companies or in holdings of over 100 acres under single ownership.

Except for Upper Deerfield Township, all of the municipalities had a small average of acres of harvested crop land. The average number of chickens per farm was large, however, and indicated that poultry raising was perhaps the chief source of income. When this was threatened, the entire economy was upset. This fact would seem to be a partial factor in explaining tax delinquency in those areas which were farmed.

Information about the average tax per acre was available for three municipalities in this area. The tax varied from $2.03 to $3.30. The soil in one township, appearing as poorer on the whole than the soil in another was taxed $3.36 per acre as against the low $2.03.

Tax sales were held irregularly, and in two municipalities no tax sales had been held since 1930. The highest percentage of tax delinquency in the third area was 30 per cent, while in all the remaining municipalities the percentage of delinquency was below 20. The problem, therefore, was not as acute here as in the first area under consideration. These ten municipalities are located in Warren and Hunterdon Counties with a population range of 735 to 4,410.

The two highest percentages of tax delinquency were found in Alexandria Township, with a delinquency of 17.51 per cent, and in Kingwood Township, with a delinquency of 30 per cent. In Alexandria, 21.4 of the tax delinquent land was not farmed, and in Kingwood Township, 19.3 per cent of the tax delinquent land was not farmed. In the latter municipality, however, 40 per cent of the tax delinquent land was unsuited for agriculture. Of the tax delinquent land unfarmed only 25.33 per cent was held under single ownership in holdings of over 100 acres.

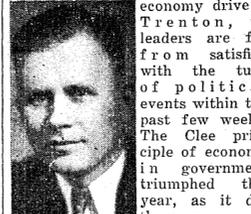

The tax delinquent problem in the municipalities of this area is obviously not connected with non-productive tax delinquent land, nor can any relationship be established between tax delinquency of crop land harvested because the municipalities with the highest percentage of delinquency have a fairly large acreage of crop land harvested. Similarly, no relationship can be established between delinquency and the lack of supplementary income through the raising of poultry and production of dairy products. In all

Meador Wright's PIQUANT POLITICS

The views expressed in this column, are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

WHO HATES WHO

While the Essex Clean Government movement is credited in the public mind with much of the success of the economy drive at Trenton, its leaders are far from satisfied with the turn of political events within the past few weeks.

Meador Wright

There are several reasons. In the first place, the present economy drive was captained in the senate by Dr. Clee's bitterest foe, Senator Powell. The enmity between Clee and Powell is more intense than that between Clee and any other member of the Senate. Senator Stout from Hudson and Senate President Loiseau from Union are both opponents of the Rev. Dr., but their opposition is professional. Stout, frankly, is Hague's representative at Trenton. Loiseau, in the same manner, the spokesman for the Hoffman wing of the Republican party. Clean Government is at bitter odds with both groups.

C. G. Enemies Are United

The major thorn in the side of Clee's political happiness is the losing war he has fought with Governor Moore over patronage. In every tilt this year Clee has come out second best. The final battle has not been fought at this writing, but I cannot see how the Essex Senator can salvage anything. For weeks he has been trying to have Assemblyman Herbert Eber of Maplewood placed on the County Tax Board, either as a member or as secretary. On Monday the Board elected Commissioner Ballantine of Irvington its permanent secretary at a salary of $5,000 a year, even though a majority are Republicans and Ballantine is a Democrat. It was a perfect example of the teamwork between Anti-Clean Government Republicans and Democrats.

Eber was so disgusted at the turn of events that he announced that he would not be a candidate to succeed himself in the Assembly, and the party faithful throughout the county shrugged their shoulders and wondered when an Essex Republican would again have a chance at the trough. It looked to many as though the patronage recession had become a full-fledged depression—and with no WPA. Eber's disappointment was a symbol of a wider discontent.

Pilgrim As Leader?

That discontent is expressing itself in one of the most determined semi-pro drives in the history of the county, with wresting control from Clean Government as its objective. Meetings have been held regularly during the past few weeks. While no one leader has yet emerged, the name of Charles Pilgrim is heard most often when the Anti-Clean Government movement is mentioned. Meeting with Pilgrim have been men like Christopher R. Morrow of East Orange, Councilman Hauck of Bloomfield, Mayor Young of Nutley, Louis Gunther of Newark, E. Garfield Gifford and Peter A. Smith of South Orange, Commissioner Kruttschnitt of Irvington and others.

As I gather the picture, not much has been accomplished so far at these meetings. Their main objective so far has been a formula that would enable the various hostile groups to form a united front against Clean Government. Not yet within the orbit of the Pilgrim group is that led by William C. Cope of Glen Ridge, but it is expected to join soon. At the same time, other meetings have been held by members of the old Jesse Salmon following, which includes men like Fred W. Fort and Abe H. Rachlin of Maplewood, Mayor Doesch of Caldwell, William A. Shaw of Montclair, and any number of others. Still a third group which gives first allegiance to Harold G. Hoffman is under the leadership of David Kent of Newark and Mrs. Edith Kreutinger of Montclair, with Pierce R. Franklin and his numerous followers in the background.

Meanwhile, Clean Government leaders are observing the silence of a Trappist monastery. The order for silence came from Arthur T. Vanderbilt. His reasons can be summed up in an adage: "give your opponents time enough and very likely they will talk themselves to death."

With bated breath we pass these dark secrets along. Ben Bernie never appears before the mike without his Dohrmans, Adolph and Herman, who are loosed on the audiences which fail to panic when he mentions his pal, Walter. Joe Penner pins hose on his script to get sock into his lines. George Burns sprays himself with "Heavenly Night" perfume to counteract not too fragrant odors his jokes create. And Walter O'Keefe has his studio sprayed with laughing gas.

We wonder if television isn't being held in abeyance because of the shellacking capital, invested in stadia, movie palaces, etc., will take if only a minute portion of its potentialities is utilized. Mass entertainments and the dependent industries are doomed and the resultant unemployment will be tragic. On the alkaline side though, Sally Rand would be nice with meals.

If you'll tear off a few box tops we'll see what can be done about the Don Wilson bell-ringing foolishness. It cooked the odd giggle at first but subsequent repetition killed the gag. His business takes the four minutes which could be used advantageously by having Crosby gurgle another clause.

The clap-trap in those super-colossal programs from Hollywood make less sense than monkey-house gibberish. Jane Ace mouths too many malapropos, and like restaurant soup, a little goes a long way. Harriet and Ozzie are nice people but the Mahruwar Bluster's printers' devil is a better interviewer. Edward G. Robinson is being poisoned slowly by the weekly potion of baldersdash he has to spout. Woman's these municipalities the average was high.

In view of the fact that in six of these ten municipalities no tax sales have been recorded since 1930, it would seem not unreasonable to assume that the wide range of the percentage of rural tax delinquency was due in part to varying diligence in tax collection and tax sales. In three municipalities for which information was available, the tax per acre ranged from $3.5 to $1.73.

place is in the home, particularly when her husband is a ranking comic.

Bob Crosby is a favorite in our book. His singing is as smooth as the head of the man in the front row, and his band is swinging and salubrious. He was tonsiling with a crew at Ben Marden's and the customers liked him so well that he was urged to remain and form his own unit. He climbed rapidly because he had the ability to send a good one home at the right time.

When you heard the studio audience go hysterical as Fred Allen was interviewing the organ grinder and wondered why, it was because the monkey stuck his fist skyward when the grinder granted: "Mussolini!"

A friend liked the "Shandor and His Violin" programs so much that he went down to the east side Hungarian restaurant where Shandor's playing. He had a good time and intends to take fiddle lessons. When the Tokay bouquet starts to work the paying customers toss money at the maestro who isn't above bending for it. All greenbacks, too. No clanging stuff.

What happens to the page boy who neglects to raise the "applause" sign when a comic gets off a gag?

Who started the ugly rumor that Philco fired Boake Carter because his attitude toward labor was unfriendly? Must Clem McCarthy inject a "gee whizz" note into a recitation of the scores of a Brooklyn-Philadelphia game?

Can you name one person who was ever called to the phone at the request of the Crossley rating bureau?

What happened to the seven year contract Eddie Fivoga signed with that oil company last year?

STACCATO OOPS—we're sorry! Guy Lombardo has two yachts, not one, as we mentioned. Jack Costello, NBC's, has the most convincing manner of any of the spiliers. Bob Bazooka, like a wart, grows on you. One of the best amateur programs, short and civilized, is put on by the Tommy Dorsey troupe. Ran Wilde is one of the best musickers coming out of the west in years. Shep Fields is a graduate of the Borscht Circuit. Gertrude Niesen, too.

Land That's Yours and Mine

Words "More or Less" in Deed Does the description of your land in your deed contain the words "more or less"?

The words "more or less," when applied to a distance given in a description of land, are used to cover any variations in such a distance which may appear on remeasurement or recalculation.

Theoretically, surveying is an exact science, but this does not always hold true in practice. Personal skill, variations in temperature, slight errors in the manufacture of measuring tapes, the tension applied to tapes in the field and slight inaccuracies in the reading of instruments all have their effect in making property surveys only relatively accurate.

In describing a course between two points on the ground there can be only one correct distance, of course, but no one is justified in assuming that the distance measured by the surveyor is absolutely correct. It is the actual distance that one wishes described, and the property owner is not concerned that the distance given by the surveyor is the exact distance, provided the actual distance is possible of determination.

For example, a deed may read: "Beginning at an iron pipe due north 100 feet more or less to a cross cut in the top of a monument of brownstone one foot square and two feet long..."

Measuring that distance, a surveyor may find it to be 102 feet, and assume that the first surveyor made an error. But does he change the property lines and monuments in accordance with the description? Of course not. He has no right to change the actual distance and the words "more or less" in the deed give the owner complete rights to the additional two feet.

However, if the vital words "more or less" had not been included in the original description, the owner might have difficulties in the future.

As Bill Parmer hurled three-hit ball, the Belleville High baseball nine was defeated for the second time in that week by the count of 2 to 0 by Barringer High of Newark at Clearman Field Friday.

'PINKY' MAY PLAYS CONSISTENT BALL

Bears' Third Baseman Is In There Every Day

Some baseball players possess plenty of color and their work draws forth plaudits from the crowd. Others lack that magnetic appeal but are consistent performers and often superior to their more flashy co-workers.

What May lacks in color he makes up for in real ability. He is an improved player over last season and is recognized as the premier third baseman of the International League this season.

May is a winning type of a ball player, a hustler, a good influence on a club and anxious to learn. Determination and confidence are his two greatest assets.

Should the Indian University graduate continue his fine work, it is certain he will be ready for the big show within a year. Several major league clubs could use him.

Merrill is a modest chap on and off the field. Baseball is his chief topic and then comes farming. During the off season he helps his dad run a big farm they own in Indiana.

With a long home stay in front of them, the Bears expect to pick up a lot of valuable ground. They realize they are the prize target of the other clubs. Word has gone around the circuit to "Stop the Bears."

Tells of League Fizzle

Editor, News: I wish to take this opportunity to express my sentiments as regards failure of some of my players to appear at a meeting of the Belleville Twilight Development League on last Friday night.

This situation was brought on myself by attempting to rejuvenate the playing of hard ball games in town.

I wish to thank William D. Clark, director of Public Safety, the Board of Education, Recreation Commission, teams represented, Maglia and Bison clubs and persons who assisted.

Gets New Job

Leonard V. Kachel

Named for a one-year term as coach of the football team of North Plainfield High School, Leonard V. Kachel, assistant mentor of the Belleville High School team, succeeds Earl Hoagland, as head coach.

The new North Plainfield coach weighs 240 pounds and towers six feet two inches. He gained all-city honors at Central High in 1930, as a fullback.

Transferring from Dickinson High to Central High, he played three years of varsity football, baseball and basketball, at the former. He was mentioned for all-state honors and accepted a four year scholarship to Bucknell University.

He played professional football with a Pennsylvania team for a season. At Belleville High School he was assistant to Coach Frank Smith and the latter has nothing but words of praise for his aid.

LOCAL CARDS BEAT NAMESAKES

Game Played At Bloomfield, While Rain Came Down

Determined to play their scheduled game, despite frequent downfalls of rain, the Belleville Cardinals and Bloomfield Cardinals engaged in a game at mud-soaked Wright Field, Bloomfield, Saturday afternoon.

It was the eleventh victory of the Belleville team who topped their Bloomfield namesakes into the loss column for the first time this season, 12-11.

Belleville jumped off to an early lead, when Van Dyke scored in the first inning after hitting a triple to deep right field, but the home team came back in their half of the frame to get two runs on Dusek's double, free passes that were issued to Westfall and Newbold, and an error by Evans, who overthrew first on Scherman's grounder.

The lead changed hands several times after that till the sixth frame when the Belleville lads put on a four-run spurge to take the lead and retain it till the end.

GEIGERS CARD CARDINAL CLUB

The Geiger Bros. All-Stars, a team composed of many old-time well-known ball players, have accepted the challenge issued them by the Cardinal A. C. and will play the latter club in Branch Brook Park on June 18.

The All-Stars have a record of no defeats so far this season, while the Cards have dropped only three to date. Coach Herb "Pop" Orban, who is well known to all fight fans for his pugilistic ability which carried him to the top of the amateur heaves in 1928, says that if his ace pitcher Charlie "Fireball" Gripp is in shape the fans can look forward to a possible no-hit game.

Included in the Geiger line-up will be Bob Irwin, Frank Mansie, Abe Abramowitz, Johnny Williams, Lou Hari and Joe Hart. The team has also been fortunate in obtaining the services of Chas. "Watch-it-curve" Wasserman and Irving Hickey, who formerly made a name for himself while catch-

EMERALDS IDLE OVER WEEKEND

Two Games Are On Tap For Local Club This Weekend

The Emerald A. C. was idle over the past weekend due to the showers on Saturday and Sunday. Saturday's game was to be against the Park A. C., while Sunday's contest was to be played against the North Newark Rangers.

On Saturday the Emeralds will travel to Hackettstown, where they will oppose the American Saw Mill team, while on Sunday the Emeralds will oppose the Montclair Normals at Mountain-side Park, Montclair.

A survey of the Emeralds' record to date shows the club to have engaged in fifteen games, winning nine and losing six.

EAGLES IDLE DUE TO RAIN

Belleville Eagles were rained out Sunday afternoon after one inning had been played with the Vaux Hall Orioles with whom two games had been scheduled.

Johnson was on the mound for the Eagles and had retired the opposition with three strike-outs. In the Eagles' half of the first, Damski singled and went all the way to third when Badga, left fielder for the Orioles, left the ball go through his legs.

The Eagles are preparing for two all-star tilts which are scheduled July 4. They will tackle the former Brighton-Belwood teams in what is considered the biggest thrill on the Eagle schedule.

In the Rock Garden

WITH the rush of the spring and early summer planting season over, this might be a good time to consider rock garden problems.

Although most annual flower seeds should not be planted until next spring, the time is approaching when the garden may be economically dressed up by planting seeds of perennial favorites for early bloom next spring.

This is, moreover, the time of year when many gardeners find time to build that long desired rock garden, or to rearrange the old one. Discussions here may be helpful to them in their planning.

Selection of flowers can make or break the rock garden. It is important to select only those plants that grow among rocks in their native haunts and those that seem to belong among stones.

Use judgment in placing the various plants. Creeping plants should be allowed to make carpets of color in the larger soil pockets.

Marines Prepare For Flag Day

Proudly waving over our nation for 161 years, Old Glory will celebrate another birthday on June 14. Our forefathers gloried in this beloved symbol, which has been handed down from generation to generation as the price-less heritage of a liberty-loving people.

Born amid the first flames of America's fight for freedom, it has continued to wave through troublous or tranquil times, and to lead the way to our nation as year by year it has marched with a renewed hope and a high resolve along the Road of Destiny.

Much of our flag's early history is shrouded in mystery. We know that a flag of thirteen stars and stripes was adopted by the Continental Congress on June 14, 1777, but we do not know positively by whom it was designated or where it was first flown.

Another flag was fabricated a few weeks later by the defenders of Fort Stanwix, N. Y., when an officer donated his cloak for the blue field, soldiers gave their shirts for the white stripes, while the red stripes were fashioned from the petticoat of a soldier's wife.

Old Glory first floated over a fortress of the Old World, when Lieutenant Presley N. O'Bannon, of the Marine Corps, and Midshipman Mann, of the Navy, raised our flag over the captured fortress at Derne, Tripoli, where it was flung to the breeze on April 27, 1805.

Nearly every schoolboy knows that "by the dawn's early light" on September 14, 1814, Francis Scott Key saw the Star-Spangled Banner still waving over Fort McHenry, at Baltimore, and composed the spirited song which is now the national anthem.

From time to time slight changes in the flag have been authorized by Congress. The flags displayed at Tripoli and at Fort McHenry had fifteen stars and stripes, a departure from the original thirteen stars and stripes design.

Two new stars and stripes had been added when Vermont and Kentucky came into the Union, and our flag was of that pattern from 1795 until 1818.

Realizing that too many stripes would mar the beauty of the design, Congress then authorized a return of the flag to its original form of thirteen stripes, one star being added thereafter for each State entering the Union.

Gone are the earlier flags of colonial days; the rattlesnake spreading its coils over thirteen stripes with its slogan of defiance, "Don't tread on me"; the Grand Union Flag, bearing the British crosses of St. George and St. Andrew, where the white stars in a blue field now appear. Anchors, pine trees, beavers and other colonial flag symbols in infinite variety have vanished, save as they remain as a part of the insignia in State flags.

Forty-eight gleaming stars, representing a united nation, shine among the fluttering folds of Old Glory as it passes another milestone on its march through the years.

FOOD IDEAS

CANAPES GIVE ZEST TO SUMMER DRINKING

Whether it's an iced cocktail before dinner or a cool glass of beer in the evening, the hostess likes to provide a touch of something eatable. The prime requisite of such food is daintiness and a sharp flavor. It must be a contrast to the beverage so that food and beverage give each other added zest.

Date Stars

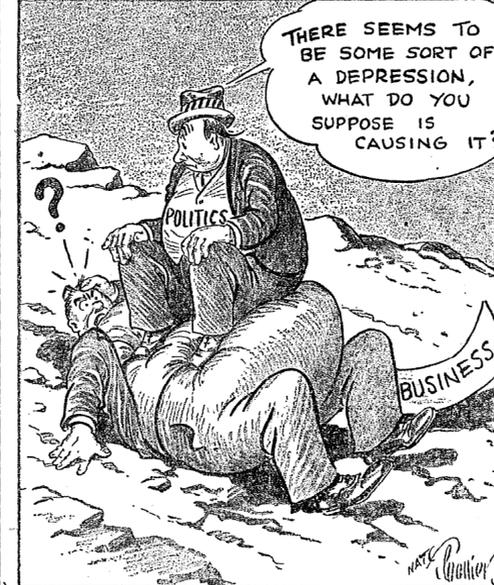

2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
1/2 cup dates, seeded and finely chopped
Blend mayonnaise, cream cheese and dates. Cut thin slices of bread into stars with cookie cutter and cut an equal number of circles about half the size of the stars.

Roquefort Cheese And Almond Sandwiches
1 cup Roquefort cheese, grated
1/4 cup mayonnaise
few drops Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon almonds, finely chopped.

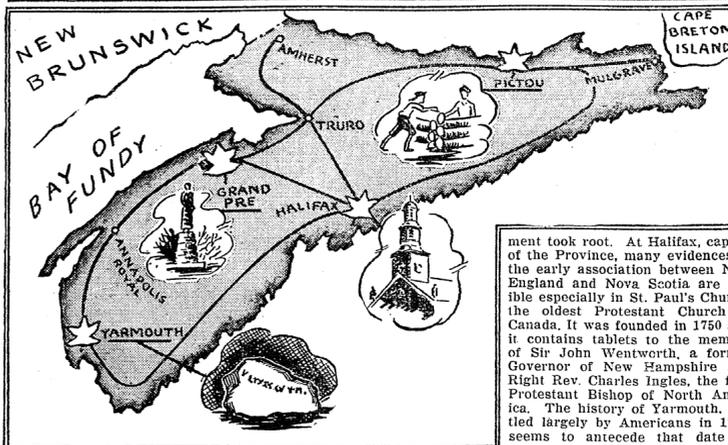

FOOD FACTS

Did you know that:
-1200 packaged food items are now distributed in the grocery trade.
-Milk is the national drink of America, according to a recent report in NEWS-WEEK.
-Potatoes used in chip manufacture are heat treated at 90° for two weeks before frying.
-Select winter squash according to weight rather than size.

FOOLISH QUESTION NO. 41144

HIGHWAYS OF HISTORY

ment took root. At Halifax, capital of the Province, many evidences of the early association between New England and Nova Scotia are visible especially in St. Paul's Church, the oldest Protestant Church in Canada. It was founded in 1750 and it contains tablets to the memory of Sir John Wentworth, a former Governor of New Hampshire and Right Rev. Charles Inglis, the first Protestant Bishop of North America.

THE thousands of American tourists who visit Nova Scotia each year are, historically at least, on home soil for the early events in the New England States and Nova Scotia so shaped themselves that their histories are inseparable. It is difficult to go anywhere in Nova Scotia without finding, in one form or another, something which is associated closely with the dramatic early days of the American Colonies. A few of these points are illustrated in the sketch map above. Pictou, now a picturesque summer resort on Northumberland Straits was founded in 1767 by a company of settlers from Philadelphia. Benjamin Franklin was a backer of the movement and it was one of his few failures. The colony did not prosper and it was not until a group of Highlanders arrived from Scotland in 1773 that the settle-

CHOOSING the site. Before obtaining the drawings of a house, many things should be considered that will have a direct effect upon the design of the building. First, the site should be studied with reference to its surroundings and its probable future development.

The parts of which a house consists may be considered under three different groups: living, sleeping and service groups.

The living group includes the living room, dining room, library, den, porch, and other parts of the house that are used for the comfort and enjoyment of the family and guests.

The sleeping group comprises bedrooms, sleeping porches, bathrooms, closets, etc., that are generally placed in the upper floors, except in bungalows, where they are on the ground floor.

The service group consists of the kitchen, pantry, store-rooms, laundry, cellar, etc., all of which parts should be conveniently grouped as far as possible.
