Plans Being Studied To Lower Number Of Accidents

Recorder Smith Suggests Elimination Of Progressive Traffic Lights; Clark And Chief Spoz Confer With Him

The town is considering numerous methods for the improvement of traffic conditions in Washington avenue. Their efforts were further speeded up after the accident Friday night in which Mrs. Robert Wagner of Overlook avenue was fatally injured when she was struck by a car, and her sister-in-law, Miss June Wagner, was seriously hurt. Commissioner Clark made public last night a list of recommendations which were submitted to him on Tuesday by Recorder Everett B. Smith.

The Public Safety Director, Judge Smith and Police Chief George Spatz conferred on Tuesday on possible solutions to the ever-increasing traffic problems along the Avenue.

Recorder Smith made the following recommendations in his letter:

Washington avenue should be more brilliantly lighted from the North Newark line to the Nutley line.

The progressive system of traffic lights now in existence should be eliminated in favor of simultaneous lights.

A safety aisle should be constructed the entire length of the street.

There should be a continuous drive by the police department on speeding.

Pedestrians should be educated to observe traffic rules and the sections of the State Motor Vehicle Act which pertain to them.

The judge's recommendations were the result of his study of the accidents and fatalities which have occurred on Washington avenue during the first month and a half of the year. He has also gleaned information from the evidence gathered in cases which have been tried before him.

In several of the cases, he commented, the evidence has shown that pedestrians were blinded by the glare of the lights from oncoming automobiles. This has led the judge to believe that the over-land lighting system is inadequate.

P. S. Making Survey
Commissioner Clark said he is having the Public Service make a study of lighting on the street and will probably act as soon as the survey report is completed. They are studying the possibility of putting longer arms on the air lights.

Through the elimination of the progressive lighting system, Judge Smith said he felt it would make them realize that they cannot drive all the way through town without having to make several stops.

"This would not hurt them a bit," he said, "and it would probably slow them down." This would mean that north and south-bound traffic would move at one time and all cross-town traffic at another.

The state is opposed to this plan, Clark said. He said that he had discussed the matter with Arnold Vey of the State Motor Vehicle Department. The opinion in Trenton is that the simultaneous system tends to speed up traffic.

Safety Aisle Would Help
A safety aisle would prevent cars from driving on the left side of the street and would offer the pedestrian "a haven of safety and would prescribe the proper manner for entering the avenue on a left turn," the recorder believes.

Intermittent speeding drives are ineffective, Smith said in his letter. They do not stop the speeding because they do not suffice to impress motorists. What was needed, he pointed out, is a continuous drive which will acquaint both resident and out-of-town drivers with the fact that they cannot speed on Washington avenue with impunity.

Smith was particularly emphatic on the need of education of pedestrians. "My own observations and those of many citizens indicate that pedestrians do not observe traffic signals and confine their crossing to walks delineated for that purpose," he wrote. "The statute provides that pedestrians shall not cross the roadway against the stop signal and, furthermore, that at intersections where traffic is directed by a police officer or a traffic signal they shall enter upon or cross the highway at no other point than a designated crosswalk."

All Vote Affirmatively
In School Election
History was made in Belleville on Tuesday when not one dissenting vote was cast at the polls in the adoption of the Board of Education's budget for 1940-41. There were sixty-two affirmative votes. The school rate will drop one point this year.

Here Is Another Winner

This is the second picture in the weekly contest being conducted by The News in which all of those who patronize local stores have a chance to win. The picture above was snapped Saturday afternoon in the self-service market of the National Grocery Company in Washington avenue near Overlook avenue. The woman whose face is ringed can claim a $5 purchase order good at the National store if she will come to The News office at 328 Washington avenue and identify herself. Each week The News photographer will take a picture in a local store on one of the weekend shopping days. If the $5 order is not claimed during the current week the award will increase to $10 next week.

Worst Snowfall

Town Digging Its Way Out Of Big Storm; Town, County And State Plows Out; Only Few Accidents Reported To The Police

The town is digging itself out of the worst snowstorm of the year this morning through the combined efforts of the town, county and state road departments and the individual householders who have tackled the job of clearing off sidewalks and digging out driveways. Town Engineer Matthew J. Sheehan ordered the town's five trucks out last night at 5. Shortly afterwards the county and state plows were out with the Public Service giving the latter a helping hand on Washington avenue.

There was a minimum of accidents reported up until early this morning despite the bad driving conditions.

One man was injured and several bus passengers were shaken up early yesterday morning in a collision which involved three vehicles on the slippery pavement at Jorammon street and Union avenue. John McKennies, fifty-one, of 252 Park avenue, Nutley, suffered a cut artery. The accident occurred during the early morning sleet and ice storm before the snow fall began.

According to police, McKennies was standing beside the car wiping the sleet from the windshield when a Route 92 Public Service bus approached the intersection. A sudden skid sent the bus crashing into the car, pinning McKennies' leg between the car and the curb.

A few minutes later, Angelo Mucci of 62 Cedar Hill avenue, driving a milk truck a short distance behind the bus followed its path and skidded into the rear of the passenger vehicle. No one was hurt in the second part of the accident.

Cut On Face
Alfred Ardizzone of 32 William street suffered lacerations of the head and face yesterday morning in the height of the snowstorm when his truck and that of Louis Lipsky of 243 Monroe street, Passaic, collided at the intersection of Washington avenue and Little street.

Ardizzone, driving north on the avenue, stopped for a traffic light at Little, and stepped out of the truck to clean his windshield. The Lipsky truck skidded into the rear of the other, throwing Ardizzone to the street. He was treated for deep cuts on his forehead, right cheek and left eye.

FIRST WINNER

Mrs. Hornak Claims Prize In News' Contest

Good and bad luck trailed Mrs. Clara Hornak of 52 Fairview place last week. The fact that she is a steady customer at the King Arthur Market on Washington avenue probably had something to do with it. Mrs. Hornak was on hand Saturday afternoon, February 3, when The News photographer snapped a picture of customers at the King Arthur Market in the first of a series of weekly contests.

Before the picture was snapped, the Fairview place woman had lost a $5 bill while she was shopping in the store. Her luck changed when her face was ringed in the picture which appeared in The News last week. Mrs. Hornak called at The News office Thursday noon and became the first winner in the contest. She received a $5 grocery order which is good at the King Arthur Market.

Arranged before Recorder Everett B. Smith, Olowski was turned over to the prosecutor's office for the action of the grand jury on a charge of causing death by automobile.

Mrs. Wagner, the former Miss Mary Coates of Eastover, S. C. had lived in Belleville since her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Wagner of the Beech street address, last August. Besides her husband, she leaves her parents, four brothers and two sisters, all of Eastover.

Funeral services for Mrs. Wagner were held at the Irving Funeral Home Tuesday with Rev. Mr. Walter Lake of Grace Baptist Church officiating. Interment was in East Ridgewalk Cemetery.

Town Seeking State And WPA Funds For The Avenue

Would Remove Car Tracks And Put In Four-foot Parkway Centerpiece; State Department Would Pay

Washington avenue stepped into the limelight in a different way yesterday when it was revealed that town officials have been negotiating with the State Highway Department to secure funds to carry out plans which, if realized, would make the thoroughfare one of the safest and most attractive in the state. Mayor Williams and Public Works Director Waters have been working on the idea with the assistance of Town Engineer Matthew J. Sheehan for several months and have made a number of trips to Trenton in an attempt to get the state's consent to the release of the funds.

Money for the project would come from the WPA State Aid fund appropriation. No estimate on the cost of the job was revealed, but since the Washington avenue is a state highway, final approval must come from Trenton.

Waters was reached at St. James Hospital in Newark, where he is recuperating from an attack of influenza, yesterday. He said that nothing was definite as yet, but added, "The plan offers the only solution for the safety and beautification of Washington avenue." The consent of the state may be given at any time, it was said.

From Mill street to Riviera Park, the avenue will be converted into a parkway according to the plans. The half-paved-over trolley tracks would be removed. The street would be repaved and a four-foot dividing plot of grass dotted with low evergreens inserted in the place of the tracks. The final fifteen feet at each intersection would be cemented to offer a safety aisle for pedestrians. On each side of the center parkway two ten-foot lanes for moving traffic and an eight-foot lane for parking are proposed. It is planned to remove five feet of concrete sidewalk nearest the street, seed the plot and plant large shade trees.

The Mayor and Sheehan have visited Trenton together and singly for conferences with Colonel James Logan, state highway engineer, and Alex Muir, state maintenance engineer.

Explains Problems

Irving J. Engelman Tells Republican Women About Work in State Dept. of Institutions and Agencies; New Members Are Welcomed at Meeting

Irving J. Engelman, assistant director of the Department for the Investigation of State Institutions and Agencies, was the speaker Thursday at the meeting of the Woman's Republican Club at the Woman's Club. Mr. Engelman replaced F. Spenser-Smith, director of the department at Trenton, who was unable to speak as scheduled.

Engelman spoke of the nineteen agencies examined by his department especially of the child welfare group, which places orphaned children in private homes instead of institutions, the old age division which is also being taken care of individually insofar as possible, the insane, and other state charges. He noted particularly the new constructive attitude toward the asylums for the insane to which people are much more freely committed than formerly, thus giving them the comfort of proper care which they could not obtain elsewhere.

He explained the progress of the old age pensions and the social security set-up in relation to state institutions and pointed out how these would eventually absorb care of the aged. At the end of his talk, Engelman answered questions.

New members welcomed at the meeting were Miss Helene Sundheimer, Mrs. Chester Kraft, Mrs. Allan Lundy, and Mrs. Hazel L.

Broere. The next meeting will be March 14 at the club.

The associate feature is "Dr. Kildare."

Exclusively YOURS by Bill Myers

WHEN I stepped into John Renner's Red Top cab outside the Robert Treat the other evening for a quick trip to Caldwell, I walked right smack into one of the best human interest stories of the year. Renner has driven Newark taxi cabs for fourteen years. He's in his early forties, and he has a pleasant way of chatting with you as he negotiates the traffic on Broad street, and along Bloomfield avenue. He talks intelligently about the present war, because he served in the World War, and he can recall many of the major incidents of the Argonne Forest in which he played his part. "Taking you up to Caldwell," he said, "makes me think of my captain — Capt. Sullivan — a grand guy who certainly had his hands full with me. He lives up your way somewhere. The last time I saw him was back in 1918. I sure would like to see him sometime."

BY this time John Renner was re-living those old days — those days of bursting snarepail, shell holes, poison gas, wet, mud-soaked trenches, flares and rockets. "You know," he said, "I think Capt. Sullivan was one of the bravest, most tolerant men I ever met. Never wore a trench hat. He sure did have his hands full with me. Haven't seen him since 1918. Some day I hope I can meet up with him. He sure was one grand guy."

AT Caldwell we turned left off Bloomfield avenue and went down Gould place. We stopped at a house opposite Cedars road. It was lighted and we could see a family sitting around the dinner table. "This where you live?" John Renner asked. "No," I said, "this is where Captain Sullivan lives!" John Renner's face lighted up with an expression of supreme happiness that was wonderful to see.

WE rang the bell, and in a few seconds, there in the lighted hall the war veteran and his captain stood facing each other for the first time in twenty-two years! They clasped hands. The Captain patted Johnny on the back. They both remembered the other, and they both said that neither had changed a bit. The Captain asked Johnny to come up again to see him. Then Johnny took me home. "Gee," he said, "that was wonderful meeting the Captain again. That was the biggest surprise I ever got!"

WE went back further than the World War days this week over at the Alderney Dairy plant where there is a display of milk bottles dating back to 1884. The original bottle is of crockery with a fastener top like the old Mason jars used to have. There are all shapes and sizes in the Alderney collection, including one from 1895 that was hand made. There are seven or more bottles in the set which gives you the complete evolution of the American milk bottle. Dozens of visiting groups to the Alderney plant have viewed the collection with great interest. Tours of the Alderney plant by groups can be arranged by advance bookings at the Alderney offices. —Adv.

"Boy, It's Good" . . . Alderney Bottle Collection . . . "Have A Slice?"

Miss Dorothy Faeder on a tour of the Alderney Dairy plant in Bridge street, Newark, sips a glass of milk, poses with the Alderney collection of milk bottles dating back to 1884, and then cuts an ice cream cake as the cameraman "shoots" her from every angle. Second bottle from left, type used back in 1895, was hand made. Display is on view at the Alderney plant as a feature of the company's Trophy Room. Earliest bottle was made of crockery and had a clasp top like the old Mason jar.

I.Q. Isn't Everything

Our first introduction to the study of psychology was prefaced with the caution that in this science "all is change." Principles that may be basic today will have vanished in the next ten years for all practical purposes. In spite of this caution there are very few of us, we think, who did not embrace as final the measure of the Intelligence Quotient. It has come to be a stable fixture for most of us, and those who have young children show no mean interest in the figure with which their offspring is eventually tagged.

And now comes the hint of the change which may reverse this theory. Our magazine perusing this week reveals that very extensive research is under way to prove that heredity is not the potent factor that it has been considered; that environment may be stupendous in its influence, that the I. Q. can fluctuate considerably. It is unfortunate that articles dealing with these subjects have to depend for their material on the unusual or spectacular angles of the situation. Most of the work in this case has been done with the unfortunate offspring of those who were feeble minded or at least of a very low mental state. This might discourage most of us from making practical application of these new findings. But actually, the results with these children are so startling that the happy parents of normal children should be chafed over the findings.

Take for instance the children whose parents were below normal, some with criminal records, and who when adopted into above the average homes, developed into more than average mentalities. Kept at a high level and stimulated by association with brighter intellects, many of these children are destined to rosy futures. It was noted too that the children of the retarded areas, such as the mountain districts, develop well until they begin to feel the downward pull of their meagre environment and immediately progress is halted.

While the crying need of attention is for those who are in institutions, still the effects of this research on the normal child are to be worked for. How enormous are the possibilities! Evidently the child can be spurred on to increase his capacity for learning and can be maintained at his highest level. You will hear more of this from the field workers who are already starting to make their reports. In the meantime individual efforts to encourage the young, not to set a limit to their capacities even in your own mind, will reap a great harvest.

Keep The Dining Room

One of our leading magazines on the market this week warns our hearts with an article in defense of the dining room. It points out, of course, how the economy measures and the labor saving methods of the modern home tend to eliminate this most important feature. Of course, the large family has in most cases not relinquished its dining room and is thereby the richer; but small groups which started out with the novelty of breakfast in the kitchen, lunch in the sunroom and cosy dinners before the open fireplace in the living room have thereby become callous to the delights of formal dining and are doing without one of the most charming rooms in the home.

Good food, attractively served is universally condoned as one of the most effective restoratives at the end of the day. It can also dispel morning gloom and misgivings if served in an attractive setting devoted to nothing else. And thereby, in our estimation,

Be Your Own Decorator

with the aid of HELEN KOUES

In this country today, we are only just beginning to know the decorative value of wall pieces. An uninteresting room with plain walls and a stretch of unbroken wall, may be made most attractive by placing a piece of brocade, an interesting pattern of chintz, or one of the India prints back of a table, reaching from the top of the table to the ceiling. Chairs naturally group themselves at either side of the table. For the sake of variety, it is well to place a lamp at one side of the table rather than at the center. This gives a reading light for one of the chairs. A standard lamp between the chair on the other side of the table, and the table, gives another light and a decorative bit of color.

Wall pieces were used abroad in the form of tapestries and very costly fabrics. Today, however, it is possible to get nice prints inexpensively. The India prints, for instance, which are very colorful, are quite inexpensive, ranging upward from $15. These prints are sometimes spoken of as bedspreads. These prints in the Paisley patterns (similar to Paisley shawls) have so many soft colors in them that they fit into almost any color scheme. It is also possible to use one or two widths of the chintz used for curtains, binding it with one of the colors in the chintz, which makes a nice contrast. In some formal rooms, brocade is used—most frequently in the Italian and Spanish rooms. In rooms of a French character, if brocade is used on the walls, it is set into panels. This is quite a different thing, and not to be confused with a wall hanging.

Just to tack these pieces to the wall, the proper way to hang them is to run a flat stick, like that used in a window shade, through a casing at the upper end of the piece. Small rings are sewed to the under side of this casing, and it is hung as a picture from the picture molding—not with cords but on picture hangers. Should there be no molding, the rings may be put over tacks which do not show, so that the piece is invisibly hung.

Any one with a love of flowers, usually feels the charm of potted plants in the house during the winter when flowers are out of the question for most people. An excellent substitute for this bit of color is ivy put in rather dull metal stands and allowed to hang nearly to the floor. Sometimes a pair of ivy stands placed in a wall space either side of a window have a delightful decorative quality. Or again, if there is a window on each side of a fireplace, they may be placed in front of the windows. Many women overlook the decorative quality they will add to a room by the use of plants. For a few dollars ivy or ferns may be purchased, which, if given ordinary care, will last the winter and perhaps go into the garden in the summer. In watering, soak thoroughly but not often.

LIVING ROOM POINTS

- 1—Livableness is the first quality required of a living-room. This is largely produced by arranging the furniture to give comfort.
- 2—Have a center of interest in every room. If it is the fireplace, place the chairs and the sofa comfortably near it with a lamp or light so arranged that it is possible to sink into a chair, turn on the light and, without moving anything, read.
- 3—Have the articles of furniture in the room which are necessary to produce comfort: a comfortable davenport and a number of comfortable chairs; a desk; several small tables; as well as a large table which will hold books, periodicals, ash trays, and flowers.
- 4—Lighting has a great deal to do with the livableness of a room. Do not have glaring lights which hurt the eyes and so that the bulbs will not shine into the eyes when sitting in the most comfortable chairs. Shielded side lights are desirable if possible. If there is an overhead light, cover it with a silk or parchment shade which will diffuse the light.

Oyster Pie

- 6 tablespoons butter
- 1 cup sliced mushrooms
- 7 tablespoons flour
- 1 1/4 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon celery salt
- 3/2 cups milk
- 1 pint oysters
- Pepper
- Pastry (sufficient for one crust)

Melt butter, add mushrooms and cook a few minutes. Stir in flour, seasonings and when well blended add milk. Stir over very low fire until smooth and thick. Cook five minutes. Add drained oysters. Pour into individual casseroles or one large one. Cover with crust. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for twelve minutes.

Potato Omelet

- 1 cup mashed potatoes
- 2 tablespoons milk
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 4 well beaten egg yolks
- 4 stiff beaten egg whites

Combine mashed potatoes, milk, seasonings, baking powder, and egg yolks; fold in egg whites. Pour into skillet which is very hot and in which a generous piece of butter has been melted. Cook over low heat until puffed and brown. Fold over. Garnish with parsley. This omelet may also be garnished with strips of crisp bacon. In this case fry the bacon first in the skillet, remove and drain. Pour off excess bacon fryings and cook omelet in same skillet.

FOUNDER'S WEEK

A&P Stores Are Participating In Eightieth Jubilee

Local stores owned by the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company with the super market in Washington avenue taking the lead, joined this week in the company's nation-wide celebration of the Eightieth Founder's Jubilee. During this week all stores are placing special emphasis on the sale of tea and coffee as they were the original stocks in trade of the food chain.

The company executives claim they are the world's largest retailers of coffee. The purpose of their drive is to show housewives that foods and beverages which once were luxuries have been made inexpensive items through the growth of the food chain. The A&P Company was founded in 1859 by George Huntington Hartford. The first red-fronted store was located in Vesey street in lower New York and was an immediate success because it offered customers savings in tea purchases.

Bedding Concern Offers New Type Of Mattress

The 20th Century Bedding Company of 394 Central avenue, Newark, opens today under the ownership of Max Rosberger, long identified with the bedding business. This new concern will carry a complete line of modern bedding, including the "20th Century Interchangeable Section Mattresses," a product designed by Rosberger. This mattress is constructed in sections, all connected with zipper fastenings thus making it easy to re-arrange without lifting the complete mattress. A pull of the zipper and it is in three sections while the reverse is true in re-arranging into one complete mattress. This new mattress is easy to clean and turn.

Gay And Colorful Plaids

Plaids like this are developed in a beguiling variety — some in tones of one color with bars of white or black for contrast; some in amazingly pretty jumbles of three or four electric colors; some in soft, muted pastels. Your favorite is among them in the classic two-piece model shown above or in one of the many types of suit which are described in Peggy Patterson's column.

Two and Three-Piece Costume Suits Will Be Spring Fashion

Gray Will Be New Favorite With Many Women; Blouses Will Provide Added Loveliness To New Ensembles; Delightful Liner Features

The two and even three-piece suits to which we have been so accustomed are augmented this spring by several new and clever arrangements — combinations for which women have long waited. The costume suit, consisting of a beautifully tailored dress with matching jacket or matching full length coat, is high fashion. Buttons, tucking or pocket details are identical on the dress and its partner so that they are referred to as "copy cats." Perfect together, they will also distinguish themselves when worn separately. Soft woolsens are used for the loose boxy type or coat-and-dress combination; and these are made up for the most part in hazy blue, rose and gray plaids or plain colors.

Other suave new materials, such as one tiny ribbed fabric with a rayon sheen, respond smoothly to the "dressmaker" technique in these costume suits. Flared skirts, high closing jackets, pocket flaps and covered buttons are but a few of the points which take these models out of the "sports" class. These materials are shown in plain clear colors and, again, rose and blue share the honors with gray in the race against the perennial "navy for spring."

A Practical Combination

The four-piece suit is something that every woman will find it hard to pass up. A smart, flared woolen suit with loose finger tip length jacket has a solid color silk crepe blouse. A matching silk crepe skirt is included. The blouse, with fitted hip band, and the flared silk skirt make an effective two piece dress, which apart from the suit can easily be varied with accessories. We do not have to point out to you the practical possibilities here. You have already figured out at least three ways of using this happy quartette and there are more!

Slick, man-tailored two-piece suits have evidenced no intention of taking a back seat for the newcomers. Their lines are slightly softened and rounded, the navy is dark and rich. And the three-piece suit is also on hand, as wearable and lovable as ever, smartest in a combination of plain color and plaid. Take for instance, a plain gray skirt with a rose and gray plaid jacket and matching plaid topcoat.

Gray To Be Popular

The new vogue for gray, incidentally, deserves mention.

Blouses Are Vogue

Now that we're wearing suits under fur coats and topcoats, blouses are more and more interesting. The knitted pull-overs and cardigans which have seen us through the winter so cosily feel a bit warm in offices and homes when we wish to keep jackets on all day. So treat yourself to the fresh coolness of silk. Even if you have not yet indulged in a new suit these lovely blouses will unite with your winter skirts and a jacket left over from last fall to give you an enjoyable new ensemble. The blouses are long and short sleeved, with and without pockets, collars are sharply notched man fashion or rounded on more feminine lines. Purest white flatters us all; but don't pass up the luscious blue, pink, lime green, and yellow; and now, the most delectable pin stripes and candy stripes in rainbow shades.

This spring's suggestion for reviving your black and navy "stand-bys" is the best of its kind, we think. A rather broad silk crepe girdle ties around your waist with a bow in the back. Depended from the girdle in front are two deep square pockets with envelope flaps and inverted pleats to make them more generous. These are called "cash and carry" pockets. Although they would hardly permit of a burden much heavier than a hankie, they will carry efficiently the burden of transforming a too-plain frock. The usual mouth-watering shades including a smart citron yellow which will glow on black. Beauteous crossovers in matching tones for the neckline will finish off the dress and give you a new lease on style.

There has never been a time when the swish of taffeta didn't do something for a woman; and when it's plaid taffeta — it's irresistible. Even if you do not care for a brilliant splash you can indulge, for it's petticoats we're talking about; with deep accordion pleated ruffles, in lovely color combinations. Put one under your severest dark dresses and you'll feel the difference. If a tiny inch should be in evidence occasionally as you whirl through your busiest day, so much the better!

If you have gifts to buy or can indulge yourself in a touch of luxury this month, the lingerie departments will show you the most exquisite night ensembles we have ever seen. Printed silk gowns have matching printed taffeta bed jackets, quilted, most effective in white with sprays of for-get-me-nots and other tiny flowers. The jackets are ideal for covering chilly shoulders while performing your beauty rites or for their more luxurious purpose of breakfasting in bed. Other more elaborate gowns in delicate solid color have long chiffon coats veiling them. Also noted was the new and expert styling of the more inexpensive cotton gowns with wide bands of lace and insertion to give them formal tops.

Contribution To Better Understanding

The Essex County Medical Society has made a valuable contribution to bringing about a better understanding and relationship between the medical profession and the public. Thousands visited the exhibit sponsored by the society in Newark last week. The layman was offered the opportunity through displays, motion pictures and lectures by prominent men in the profession to gain knowledge about which he was completely in the dark. Both the public and the profession gained through this type of educational program.

One of the biggest tasks that face medical men is breaking down the layman's fear and ignorance of medical facts and problems. Exhibitions such as those sponsored by the Medical Society will contribute greatly in spreading the doctrine that preventative measures which can be taken in medicine will go a long way toward eliminating suffering, unhappiness, big doctor's bills and a short life.

An outstanding example of the ignorance of the general public about the medical profession and its work is the nation-wide poll recently conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion. It was discovered that approximately one person in every three did not know that the dreaded disease of cancer is curable. Yet, it is a fact that

Rotarians Have A Birthday

The local Rotary Club will join next week with 5,000 other clubs in sixty-five countries in the celebration of Rotary Observance Week which coincides with the organization's thirty-fifth anniversary. It is upon organizations such as the Rotary Club that this community depends for the betterment and advancement of its life. It is a common medium through which ideas and thoughts may be exchanged in the hope that they may contribute some good to Belleville.

Rotary is not just a group of men who meet on Wednesday noon of each week in luncheon. They have made definite contributions to Belleville — some of them have been made known and others have been carried on quietly. We congratulate

The President Gets A Razzing

If George Washington could have stepped back into this world on Saturday afternoon and stood on the portico of the White House with President Roosevelt, he would undoubtedly have been shocked and amazed. In fact, there were many of the people in this country who were shocked when they learned that the President had been booed by those in a gathering of the American Youth Congress who had come to hear him speak. To our knowledge such conduct is unprecedented. We have never heard of a President being razed by a group which had invited him to talk to them in his own front yard.

Whether we may personally agree with Mr. Roosevelt or not, he is The President and is entitled to all of the courtesies that go with the office. Disagreement with his views or policies should not be cause for disrespect or rudeness. To us, the incident gives an insight into the American Youth Congress. Much has been written and said about this organization and its activities. From their goings-on in Washington last week and from some of the statements and literature which has been released by them, we would put them definitely in the radical category.

Young people are filled with zest and ambition which it is frequently difficult for their elders to comprehend. Often, youth will take a position and then find that it is deep in mire of its own making. The President gave them a scolding in his speech Saturday which was a bitter pill for many of them to swallow. Particularly,

Finding A Solution Is Difficult

All of us are pretty much agreed that something is wrong when four people are fatally injured in automobile accidents on Washington avenue in less than two months. But, the solution to this problem is a different story. Almost every person who is willing to talk about the situation has a theory, but few of them are practical or would be an improvement over the present system. After all of the conversation and discussion, it still adds up to the fact that the motorists and the pedestrians are the important factors.

What can be done with them? There are two methods—punishment and education. A number of motorists have been penalized through the payment of fines after they have been nabbed by the police. Some feel almost 30,000 persons in the United States are known to have been cured of cancer.

The American College of Surgeons had records at the end of last year which showed that 29,195 men and women have been treated by X-rays, radium and surgery, in whom cancer has not re-appeared after five, ten and fifteen or more years. A patient with cancer is considered cured when the growth has been arrested and has not re-occurred after five or more years.

There is a valuable hint for the public for all of their medical problems in the advice given by the New Jersey State Cancer Committee. Early treatment by competent practitioners is the keystone of a cure for cancer, and it follows that early treatment of more cases is essential if the death rate or cancer is to be reduced.

The Essex County Medical Society has set an example for all of the profession to follow. It is in effect the laying of the groundwork for a new and better relationship between the physician and his patients. The popularity of the Newark exhibit should indicate to physicians that there are many of the public who are eager to learn more about medical problems. To the public it should demonstrate that there is a willingness and an eagerness on the part of doctors to become advisers and educators.

them on their thirty-fifth birthday and trust that they will continue the good work which they have accomplished in the past.

Rotary bases its value on a program of service in club, business, community and international relations. Through its existence it promotes better friendship and understanding and is of service to business men. It is a medium through which they may learn to know of others' problems and successes. Any body of men organized with the prime motive of being of service to the community is a valuable asset. We are fortunate to have a group in our town—one which seeks to cooperate in the promotion of goodwill and peace.

when it came from the man who has befriended them and given assent to some of their undertakings. His remarks concerning the passage of resolutions and going on record as pledged to certain objectives or platforms carries a sound note of advice to many groups. He said in part:

"One final word: Do not as a group pass resolutions on subjects which you have not thought through and on which you cannot possibly have complete knowledge. This business of passing resolutions at conventions of patriotic societies, chambers of commerce, of manufacturers' associations, of peace societies, yes, and of youth congresses, is a perfectly legitimate American habit, just as it is a fact that there are many thousands, a great many thousands of organizations for almost every conceivable objective, organizations which are kept going unwittingly, on the part of most of the members, in order that some executive secretary, or legislative agent or lobbyist or other officer may find so-called employment."

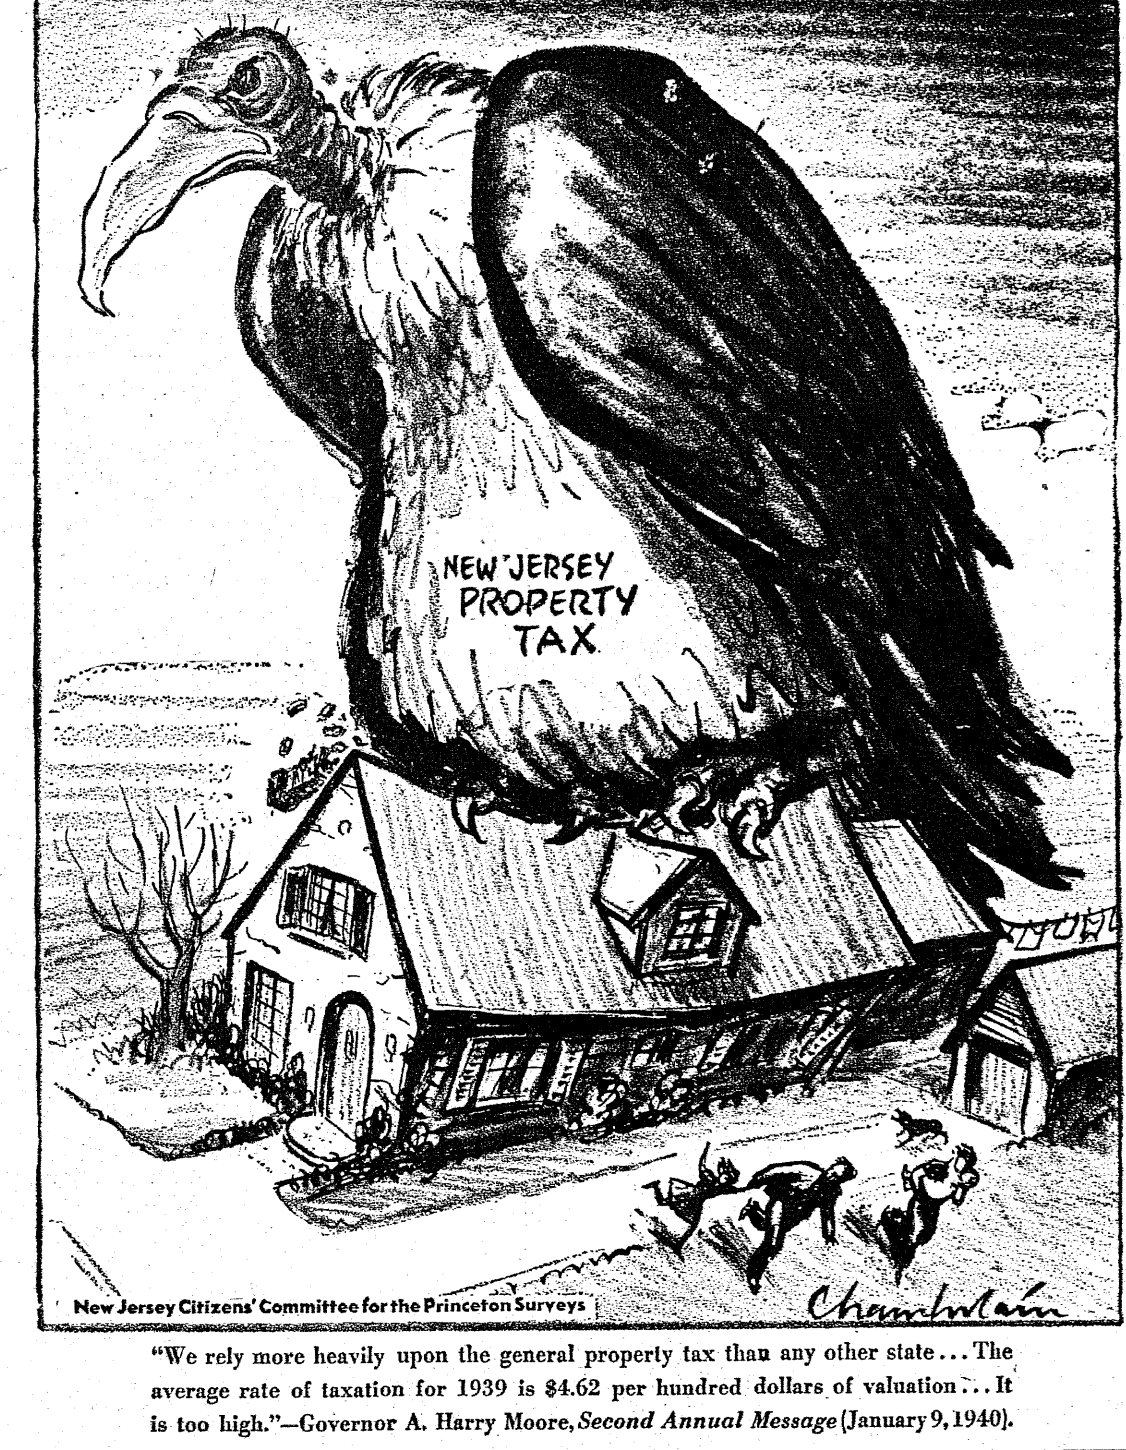

Decisions should not be made, he told them, until they have been thought through, carefully studied and analyzed from all sides. The Youth Congress is a product of the unrest and the period through which this country has passed during the past ten years. We have no objection to youth organizing for its betterment, but we are somewhat doubtful of the real motives of this particular organization. Does this Communist tendency that is talked about stop with their permitting the Young Communists' League to be members or is there a greater and more powerful understanding or relationship with the Soviet principles?

the police should arrest more. Unfortunately, there are only a limited number of men available for traffic duty and they cannot be Johnny-on-the-spot every time some motorist decides to put his foot down on the gas pedal.

Education seems to us to be the best way to accomplish the greatest good with the automobile driver and those who walk. The latter are not free from criticism in this problem. Many pedestrians fail to give the motorist much consideration.

The town is apparently determined to tackle the problem from all angles. This is as it should be for it is no credit to Belleville that in less than two months there have been as many fatal accidents on Washington avenue as there were in the entire town all of last year.

Too Big For The Roost

THIS BUSINESS OF GOVERNMENT
by Samuel S. Kenworthy
Executive Sec'y N. J. State League of Municipalities

"In New Jersey it has been shown that the lobby is today as much a part of the legislative process as are the political parties. Outside pressures upon the Legislature account for ninety percent at least of what is done." So says Dr. Dayton David McKean of Dartmouth College in his book, "Pressures on the Legislature in New Jersey." As a member of our lawmaking body during the 1934 and 1935 sessions, Dr. McKean was in a position to know. Continuing, he says "Other things being equal, a legislator will naturally listen more attentively to a leader of a large group. He may want to know whether he is dealing with a significant segment of opinion or he may care to know how many votes an organization may have. No matter what his reasons, numbers will affect his response."

In his study the former Assemblyman discloses that at least 164 separate groups are actively engaged in an effort to influence legislation. Thirty-nine are branches of national organizations and sixteen are organizations representing veterans. Also included in this great number of lobbyists are representatives of public utilities, agriculture, real estate, liquor interests, the State Chamber of Commerce, State Taxpayers' Associations, county government, municipal government and many others which lack of space does not permit us to enumerate.

Various Methods Used

Various methods are used in an attempt to have bills adopted or defeated. These also are too numerous for us to consider, however, history discloses how productive some of these efforts have been both from the standpoint of constructive legislation and that which is detrimental to the best interests of taxpayers. However, the statement made by Dr. McKean must appear startling to the average citizen who has been led to believe that measures adopted by the Legislature have become law as the result of the individual or partisan thought of the members who are supposed to reflect the views of their citizens back home.

To thoroughly understand the importance of this subject one should clearly realize the fact that legislative action largely controls the well being of our citizens. It should also be understood that with an average of 1,200 measures introduced annually and with meetings invariably held only on Monday evenings, it is humanly impossible for members of the Legislature to thoroughly digest the contents of every bill which is introduced. If the legislative process is so definitely influenced by the activities of pressure groups, it is important to both our lawmakers and the taxpayers whom they represent to know that these groups are motivated by a desire for common good.

From time to time efforts have been made to regulate and control the activities of lobbyists. Last year Senator Charles A. Loizeaux of Union County introduced a measure which would have provided a system for registering the lobbyist and which would force the organization he represented to file a statement with the Secretary of State setting forth the purposes of the organization and, more important, its sources of revenue. The bill immediately ran into strenuous opposition on the part of various groups which have for years been active in their efforts to influence legislation. The measure remained in committee.

Shouldn't Hide Information

There can be no serious objections to the enactment of a measure along these lines if the individual or organization which attempts to influence measures is really concerned with meritorious laws. Certainly any organization which actively engages in lobbying should be willing to permit the Legislature and the public in general to know its sources of revenue. To object to making such information available leaves it open to the suspicion that some ulterior motives are behind its activities. That such suspicion does exist is evidenced by the methods followed by one such organization in its attempts to influence legislation, has the following to say:

"The New Jersey Taxpayers' Association is both a state association and a federation of 270 local associations. If all of the 250,000 members paid even a dollar a year does the annual income would be enough to have a very great effect upon public opinion and legislation in the state. The income from the Association, however, is not known; neither membership lists nor accounts are made public. Individual memberships range from $5 to $250. The greater part of the membership is made up of small home owners who agree to support the policies and purposes of the Association. Most of them pay no dues, but make such contributions as they wish."

"From some source, at any rate, the Association seems to be amply financed, as it has entered into extensive publicity campaigns in the nine years of its existence maintains a suite of offices in the Broad Street Bank Building in Trenton, engages in extensive research and maintains a library of material on taxation. Its rivals say that most of its money comes from the railroads, but there is no way of checking this allegation. From whatever sources, it must get at least $50,000 a year to keep doing all the things it does."

Incidentally the Taxpayers' Association vigorously opposed the measure introduced last year by Senator Loizeaux and whether it means anything or not, it was one of the strongest advocates for the 1939 legislation which would have granted railroads a reduction of many millions of dollars in their delinquent taxes.

ODDS AND ENDS FROM OTHER PENS

With Fingers or Fork?

Being informed as to correct etiquette when eating asparagus is only one of the many subjects with which a foreign correspondent must equip himself, according to Pierre J. Huss, International News Service correspondent in Berlin.

At a luncheon given by the king and queen of Italy to Hitler during his visit in Rome, many of the correspondents cabled the menu and in particular what Hitler ate and drank, to their respective news services.

When it was mentioned that asparagus was served, a cable came back to almost all the correspondents—"Please advise did Hitler use his fingers or knife eating asparagus. Please be exact."

To all but a man they answered, "Hitler uses knife and fork, cuts each asparagus stalk into three pieces, eats with fork," but the one black sheep cabled that Hitler used his fingers to eat asparagus.

Editors all over the country immediately bombarded the New York offices of press associations for a clarification, and it took a lot of cabling and loss of sleep to convince finally the home offices and home papers that Hitler did use his fork.

Local Dealers Smile

Our two dealers in building materials, coal and lumber, are smiling without effort these days. Their feet are on pretty firm ground and business is beginning to lift from the slough in which a ruinous competition has kept it during the past two or three years.

During the time of stress in the supply trade, salesmen representing out-of-town firms have been practicing what has amounted to cut-throat methods in competing with local houses. Prices have been quoted in such low figures that no possible margin of profit was obtainable. Perhaps price cutting dealers have thought to tie down customers for future profits by selling at cost, but such has not been the case.

Now that the out-of-town dealer is raising his bids to reasonable levels, local business is again in the swim and showing a pickup. The idea of underselling a competitor, sometimes at a loss, is not good business. In fact, it hints strongly at being a little on the underhanded side.

MUSICAL SILHOUETTES

A Musical Commentary by Leon Carson

"He who touches art touches a man."

Walt Whitman

At Last:

The complaint is frequently heard, and with it we agree, that the creative development of American music is slow, because the composers cannot find sufficient outlet for it's hearing to encourage them inspirationally to compose.

Fortunately, the composers of instrumental music are each year being given greater encouragement through the medium of our major orchestras, particularly the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. Under the direction of its able young conductor, John Barbirolli, the recent record of American works played by the New York orchestra speaks for itself. It is something like this. During the 1936-37 season, works of Loeffler, Philip James and Fuleihan were produced; in 1937-38, symphonic numbers of Achron, Cadman, Barber, Mason, Porter, Read and Deems Taylor were heard; in 1938-39, compositions of Griffes, Sanders, Schelling, Hadley, Bonner and Hoyce were played, and to the current season creations of Mac Dowell, Lora, Kurthy, Foote, Barber, Herrmann, Carpenter, Powell and Gilbert have been given public readings. Surely not a bad record.

In the song field, our native composers have not fared so well,—but here's hoping!

We Wonder!

Last Saturday night the young Negro soprano, Dorothy Maynor, who was so suddenly and, shall we say, prematurely placed on the musical map by Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony, gave another recital, this time in the MacMillan Theatre in New York City. The house was sold out, at an

MUSICAL REVIEWS

The Realm of Music

The Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, under the assistant conductor, Rudolph Ringwall, pleased its youthful audience last Wednesday afternoon when a children's concert was held at the Mosque. As one child put it, "I wouldn't have missed it for anything," and that seemed to be the consensus of all opinions. The individual demonstration of three of the instruments, a la Walter Damosch, brought especial enthusiasm.

Mr. Ringwall made expalnatory remarks between the parts of Ravel's "Mother Goose Suite," which drew criticism from at least one quarter, for the children had heard all of the music on the records several times from records. They knew the stories connected with the music and had been instructed that the parts of a suite should be played with but a slight break between, and applause is proper only at the completion of the entire composition. (All of which is true.)

Project A Success

The Prelude to Act III of Wagner's "Lohengrin," and "On the Trail" from Grofe's "Grand Canyon" suite vied for first place in popularity, the more musical children preferring the former. On the whole, the project was such a success that our young people can look forward to similar programs next year.

The New Jersey Chamber Music Society held its second musicale at Griffith Auditorium in Newark Friday evening. Composed of professional musicians who live in New Jersey (most of them in Newark or suburbs), the organization is proving itself a worthy movement which should receive the fervid backing of all who profess to be interested in the musical life of the state. "The instantaneous attacks, unity of interpretation, and precision of the players was perfect," to quote one accountable listener. At the conclusion of the program friends gathered backstage, in the lounge, to congratulate the performers and discuss the music, carrying out the idea of informal sociability which should be a part of chamber music programs.

Music Study Group Visits Newark Museum

Sixteen members of the Junior Music Study Club of the Eleanor Bacon-Peck Studios visited the Newark Museum Saturday afternoon to view the exhibition of musical instruments from the primitive drums up to the piano and instruments of the modern orchestra.

A talk was given on the evolution, construction and uses of the various instruments, and three recordings, African tribal dance music, a harp composition, and an orchestral overture, were played so that the students might hear the sounds produced by the different instruments. The trip was made under the direction of Adell Sutherland and David Williams, counselors.

Arrangements have been made for the club to attend the exhibition at the museum on their meeting day, February 24.

Sports Before Your Eyes

by JOE DUVAL

Spring Is Here (Well, Maybe)

We don't need any groundhogs or vernal equinoxes to tell us these things are just incidental, just lures to attract the scientists, and they won't tell you when spring really starts. Ask any sportsman and he can tell you just when it comes — when the duffers and the pros get out the emery cloth and start polishing their clubs, when the kids around the corner stop tossing a basketball at a back basket nailed high on a telegraph pole and begin throwing baseballs at each other under your window on a Sunday morning, when the copy on our sports desk changes its subject matter from old goals and fouls to pitching staffs for the coming year, when the boys down at Nereid start talking about putting their float out.

When you see all these things, you know spring is nigh and we know them all in the past week — at then along came yesterday's snow. This hasn't jarred my thoughts much, but it stopped a clear case of spring fever.

The Cardinals started weeks ago getting ready for spring; now they're set and it can come any time. I'm just wondering how many of the other nines withstood the hibernation. Some of them started to hibernate along about last August. Whether they'll be in any position to wake up again is another question.

Now, however, is the time to lay plans for the renaissance of the diamond game in Belleville. The ever chart of the old sport has been going down steadily for years and, if a fire isn't lit now, the patient may die from extreme cold.

The high school is also filling up with baseball talk these days. More as balm for sore wounds ripped in it during football and basketball season, the school is banking on the nine to drag it back to the depths of the local athletic depression. Whether it can do it or not remains to be seen. Three pitchers, whose combined records last year amounted to five wins and five losses, will turn in here and there all over the field will be veterans. But in the end they actually get out on the diamond again, they will be a question mark.

Back To The Family

Jack Walker, who stood out in Belleville's second triumph Tuesday night, is not a new student at the high school. Nor has Jack Marks left Washington and Holmes. They are one and the same man and it is not a Jekyll-Hyde combination. It is a long story but briefly it happened something like this. Walker made his registration in the freshman year as John Marks Walker, his full name. Somehow the Walker got lost in the shuffle and he became Marks on report cards, notices and all the etc. Now that he has come into his own as a court star, papa John S. "Monty" Walker mentioned to a friend one day that it would be nice if some of the fame should accrue to the family name. So that is how, after four long years, Jack Marks has been metamorphosed into Johnny Walker.

Dudley Hack Represents Scouts At Council Luncheon

Dudley Hack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hack of Preston street, represented Belleville Scouts Saturday at Newark's celebration of Boy Scout week. Dudley, a member of Troop 350 of Fowsmith Presbyterian church, was guest at a luncheon tendered by the Robert Treat Council. There he met Terry Kilburn, youthful star of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" and "Swiss Family Robinson," who was made an honorary member of the Council.

Irvington Win 'Hypo' To Zebras

SPORTS IN THE NEWS

BELLBOYS SINK IRVINGTON HI; ORANGE WINS

McNally And Walker Leading Figures In Second Win Of Season

For the second time this year Belleville can boast a week's record of won one and lost one. For Tuesday night the Bellboys gained their second victory in thirteen starts, trouncing the daylight out of Irvington, 46-29. It was the second decision of the year over the Campdowners, the first one scored 27-26 in the foreign court several weeks ago.

There was nothing disputable about the Blue and Gold triumph. It was clean cut and decisive and achieved by superb teamwork and deadly accuracy. It was the first time this season that the local quintet has really clicked in scoring, defensive work and floor play. Held almost to a draw in the first half, the Bellboys came back after the intermission to hit the visitors with everything but the scoreboard.

The first half was nip and tuck. Johnny Walker, the erstwhile Jack Marks, lobbed in a pop shot and followed it with a perfect foul to put the homesters in the van 20-19 as the whistle blew. George McNally and Bill Handley were the scoring sparks during the first sixteen minutes, "Casey" dazzling the gallery with three of his "impossibles" near the basket.

What Al McBride whispered into their ears between the halves is not known but it had its effect. After the score worked itself to 22-20, Irvington never had a chance. Russ McDermott, Harry Plenge and McNally combined to give the Zebras a six-point flurry in the space of fifteen seconds. A minute later Jack Malcolm, Walker and Handley split up five points between them in another quarter minute and it continued that way until the end of the game.

The game marked the real debut of Walker. Playing second fiddle to the starting five all season, he found himself near the end of the first half and played one of the nicest games, offensively and defensively, that the high school gym has seen all year.

Led by lanky George Maginness, also flashing into prominence for the first time, the jayvees withstood a terrific second half battering at the hands of the Campdown understudies and won their fifth decision in six starts, 31-27. "Muggsy" was all over the floor and racked up six field goals during the game. The scores:

Orange On Top 33-30

Orange stopped a rally just in the nick of time last night but one of its own in the last few minutes to take the Bellboys into camp 33-30 at the winners' court Friday.

Belleville started out well and jumped into an 8-7 lead by the end of the first quarter. The second period was Orange's by a big margin, the third was Belleville's and the payoff round went to the Cowboys. The Blue and Gold did not surrender without a fight. It was only by virtue of two last minute goals that the Orangemen were able to snatch the win out of the fire.

For all-around play the palm went to little Johnny Calichio. He was the outstanding man on the floor for speed and fight. He also topped the scorers with a trio of doubledeckers and fouls.

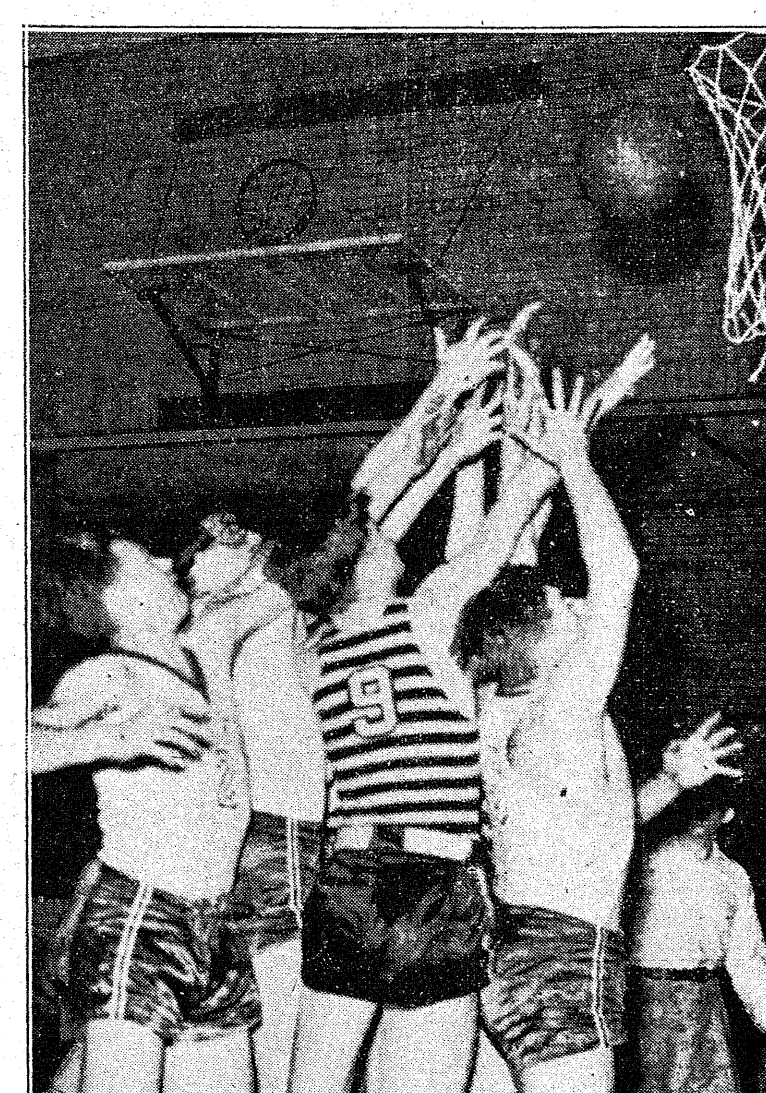

Jayvees Dumped

After copping four straight the Belleville jayvees state humble pie from the hands of the Orange understudies 34-19. Held scoreless in the opening stanza, the minor Bellboys never recovered. They rallied briefly in the second to narrow the margin to three points but from there in were outclassed. Jack Higgins topped the local scorers with five points. The score:

Scrambled Basketballers

Looks like it is anybody's ball. This shot was snatched just as a mob of Bellboy and Irvington players were making a scramble for the ball as it shot toward the locals' basket. When the final scramble was over Tuesday night at the H.S. gym, the Bellboys won 46-29.

ROLLER RACES

Belleville B. C. Pedalers To Hold Sprint Series Saturday

The Belleville Bicycle Club will hold the sprint division of its roller championships at Kopsky's, 9 Franklin street, Saturday night at 8. There will be about twelve starters.

The boys will engage in a battle against the watch first. The eight fastest will be the starters in the quarter-finals. So that two fast men do not race each other in the quarter-finals, the club has ruled that the first fastest and fifth fastest, second and sixth, etc., will race each other.

After the quarter-finals, the four winners will draw for opponents in the semi-finals. The two semi-final winners will meet in the final for first place and the two losers will race off for third.

This race is but one of the club roller championships. The winner of Saturday's event will get five points toward the championship, second, three; third, two, and fourth, one. These points will be repeated in the pursuit and handicap.

A special match race will be held in addition to the regular card Saturday. Joe Kopsky, the former six-day rider and present advisor to the club, has agreed to meet Ray "Slug" Bryan in a special half-mile match race, and hopes to teach the lad how to ride rollers.

Musciotto slammed in an even dozen field goals and added a foul shot for twenty-five points, a new record for the recreation leagues. Isolantite, which has fallen far from its erstwhile championship status, forfeited to Hanlon & Goodman in the other game, keeping the latter in second place.

Lost To Kearny Last Month, 48-42; Will Clash With Highly Rated Emerson High Next Tuesday Night

The high school basketballers, inspired by their rousing 46-29 victory over Irvington High Tuesday night, look ahead to the coming week with more optimism than they have had all season. They get another crack at an old rival tomorrow when the Kearny Cardinals come over the river to the Bellboys' balliwick. The outlook is rather dark for a victory on Tuesday night for the locals will be hosts to the highly touted Hudson County quintet, Emerson High of Union City. Sporting a quintet of tall, rangy eagle-eyed basket shooters, the Emerson boys are ranked as one of the best in the state.

GETTING READY

Emeralds Or Pitt Minors Will Have Fifteen Veterans

Fifteen players are expected to return to the line-up when the Emeralds — or Pittsburgh Minors — take to the baseball field this spring. This was made known this week by Henry Lubben, manager and booking agent. He announced that the first meeting of the club will be held Monday night at his home at 38 Lincoln avenue, Newark.

The team was known as the Emeralds during the first nine years of its life, but changed to the Pitt Minors last season for booking purposes. This year the members of the diamond nine decided to use both names, traveling as the Minors on Sundays and playing at home at Branch Brook Park on Saturdays.

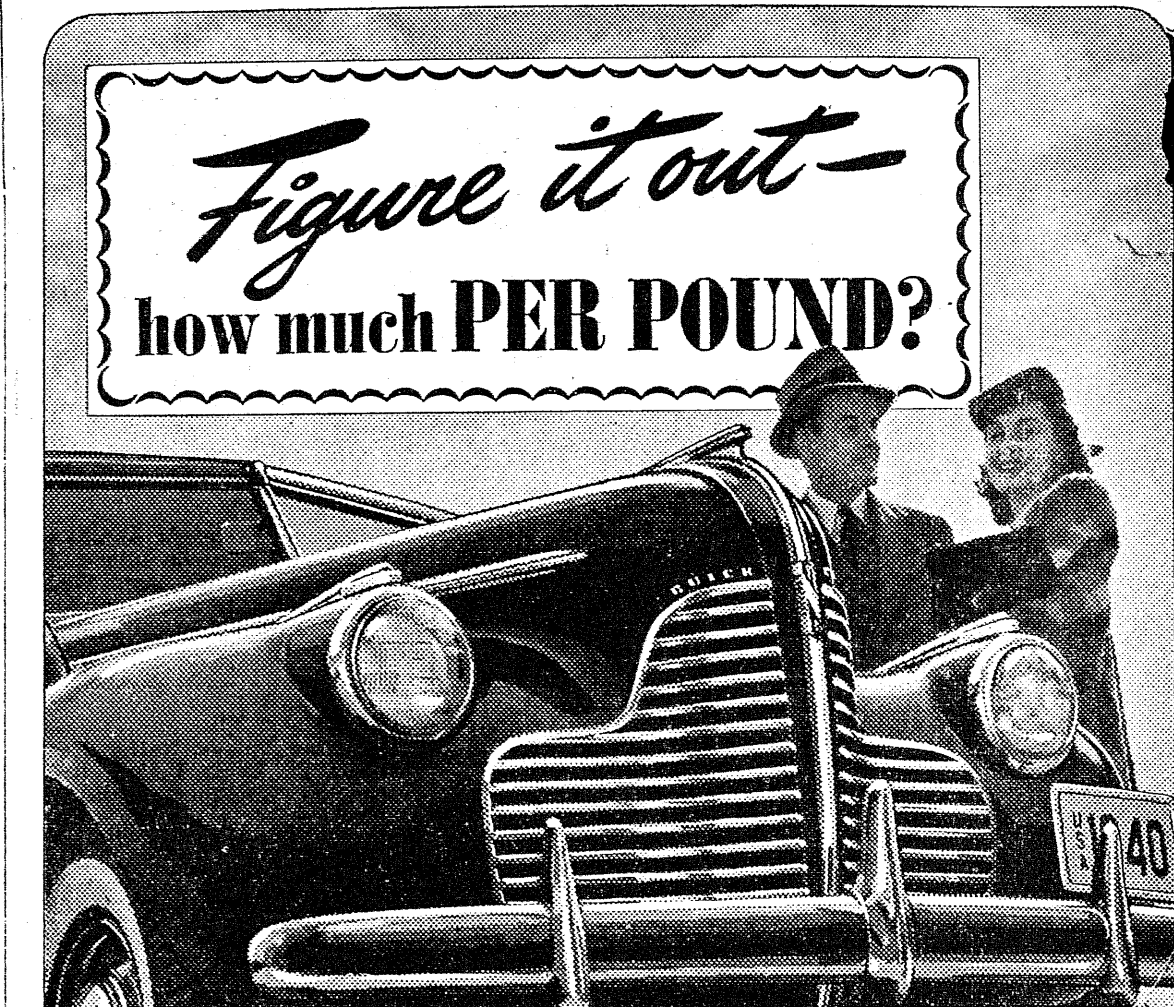

Expected to rejoin the club are pitchers, George Wiggins, Bill Lynch and Arnold Clarke; catchers, Bill Cavanaugh and Jerry McGlynn; infielders, Jim and Frank Lynch, Bob McManus, Ed Coppola, Ed Fiske and Marty Williams; outfielders, Bill Lister, Roy Walker, Don Graham and Walter Cody. Manager Lubben is seeking new talent, particularly in the mound staff and the infield.

Beat Memorial High

Emerson did their most noteworthy job of the season when they bounced the undefeated Memorial High of West New York for the North Hudson County championship. West New York has been played up as one of the teams to be most heavily counted on in the state championship tourney.

WARM UP

Mrs. H. K. Baldwin Does So Quickly When She Wins

Mrs. Horace K. Baldwin of 160 Hornblower avenue didn't like last week's snow blizzard because the warm climate of Florida was still fresh in her mind, having returned from the southland a fortnight before. But, Mrs. Baldwin warmed up considerably when she picked up last week's issue of The News and found that her face had been ringed among those shopping at the National Grocery's super self-service market in the picture taken by The News' photographer.

It was on Saturday afternoon, February 10, so Mrs. Baldwin hurried down to The News' Office at 328 Washington avenue to claim her $5 purchase order which is good at the National Grocery store.

Mrs. Baldwin is the former Miss Esther Forbes. Both she and her husband were born and raised in Belleville and attended Belleville high school.

The News' photographer will be out this afternoon, tomorrow or the next day visiting in some local store to take the picture of a group of buyers. One of them will be the fortunate person whose face will be ringed when the picture appears in next week's issue of The News.

East Orange Man Convicted Of Drunken Driving

Continuing his drive on motor violations, Recorder Smith levied a fine of $200 plus $25 costs against Hubert Adecock, thirty-three, of 65 Edgerton street, East Orange, when Adecock was tried on a drunken driving charge Friday morning. His license was suspended for two years.
