Case Sees Need Of Aid For Low-Cost Colleges So All Can Be Enrolled

Junior Senator Urges Federal Funds Be Invested In Community Colleges To Handle Overflow Which Will Reach Millions By 1970

Warning that the bumper crop of war and post-war babies now crowding elementary schools will soon be seeking admission to colleges and finding again that there is "no room" for them, Senator Clifford P. Case, yesterday, urged consideration of an emergency program of Federal aid to provide classrooms at public community colleges for the more than half million qualified young men and women who will otherwise have no place to go in the next five years.

Senator Case proposed establishing and expanding two-year colleges through grants-in-aid to the states. Funds of $100 million to be distributed to states for the construction of new buildings and equipping academic structures would be distributed to states choosing to take part in the national drive to catch up with educational needs.

Community colleges, which have received the strong endorsements of several national citizens' and educational groups, are designed to meet these two particular needs at the lowest cost per student:

1. Provide two years of college credit education at a low-cost college in preparation for the final two years at a 4-year college.
 2. Provide a terminal program of two years of post high school general education with opportunities for vocational training for the subprofessions and occupations of a technical nature.
- "The community college, in effect, is the usual two-year junior college expanded in functions to meet the educational and cultural needs of the whole community," Senator Case said.
- "It would provide many young men and women with a college education at the lowest cost per student."

Rodino Takes Oath For Fifth Term

Supports Eisenhower's Plan For "Protective Shield" If It Works Through UN

Pledging firm support in Congress of the Eisenhower doctrine of throwing a protective shield of American military, political, economic and moral might around the Communist-threatened Middle East, providing only that all American action be channeled through the United Nations, Congressman Peter W. Rodino optimistically predicted a year of world peace in an exclusive interview with The Times-News.

Viewed Western Europe The Rodino prediction, based on his own observations during his recent official swing across Western Europe on a government mission, was made as he prepared to be sworn in for his fifth term as representative of the 10th Congressional District in Washington.

Rodino went to Washington for formal swearing-in as a member of the new Congress. He has again been assigned to the important Judiciary Committee in which he ranks seventh in seniority.

Park Commission Considers Plan Submitted By Smith

Proposes Essex County Park Bordered by River Banks To Compensate For Lost Land

A proposal is presently under consideration by the Essex County Park Commission which would substantially increase the area of public parks in Belleville if approved. The plan being considered was originally presented to the Commission by Public Works Director Kenneth D. Smith, largely to compensate for park land which will be lost when the Route 21 expressway is completed along the Passaic River.

In November, a letter to Robert J. Smith, secretary of the Park Commission, presented his plan. He pointed out that the construction of the new six-lane highway would eliminate a large area of park property along the Passaic River. In addition, Smith stated that Belleville also contains a large portion of the Branch Brook Park extension and the Branch Brook Golf Course which are tax exempt.

Barbone - Mosco Liquor License Draws ABC Appeal

Tavern Owners Group Plans Protest After Limitation Is Refused

Thomas Byrne, executive secretary of the New Jersey Tavern Owners Association, revealed this week that his group intends to lodge a formal protest with the ABC over the private club liquor license granted last week to the Barbone-Mosco Post of the Italian-American War Veterans Town Commissioners granted the license to the local post last week after considering the matter for the past month.

The permit was granted to the club for use at its basement headquarters at 25 Harrison Street. The organization has been using the site as a post headquarters until a new chapter house can be built. Plans for a new structure are underway and a site has been secured, although actual building has not been started yet.

The appeal to the ABC is the culmination of the tavern owners' attempts to limit the number of private club licenses in town. For the past five Town Commission meetings, Belleville tavern owners have asked Commissioner to issue no additional private club permits, and to eventually reduce the number of such licenses from eight to three. Byrne filed a petition on October 24 on behalf of 27 local tavern owners asking that a limitation be placed.

Suitable Premises Byrne states that his protest to the ABC is based on a state regulation which requires that "suitable premises" be available before any private club license can be granted. Byrne pointed out (Continued On Page Six)

The Face Is Familiar: Mrs. Long's Activities Are In Scouting, Church Work

Within the last five years, a new face has become familiar to many people in Belleville. This is not because Mrs. William Long just moved here, it's because up until five years ago, she was strictly a business woman. Lately she's had time to devote to local civic, church and educational activities.

"The most important thing right now is the March of Dimes," she told us this week. She was recently named chairman of the Mothers March.

This means she is in charge of the campaign which will be held on January 30. On that date, volunteer mothers will canvass the entire town between the hours of seven and eight p.m. Mrs. Long has asked all residents to make sure that their front door lights are on during that time, in order to make the task easier for the town's mothers.

Scouting Work "I'm very proud of my work with the Girl Scouts," Mrs. Long said. She is currently serving her third term as president of the local Girl Scout council. "I feel that scouting gives a girl much that is important. It disciplines her and gives her a good sense of honor and integrity. It even teaches her the fundamentals of cooking and sewing." Mrs. Long revealed plans now being formed by the local scout council for a camp which will be held in May. "This will be to raise money for that (Continued On Page Six)

SPOTLIGHT on SPORTS

by Bob Gorlin

The last 12 months was a colorful period for sports in Belleville with the town taking more than its share of ups and downs and thrills on and off the field. It was a 12-month period that saw many unexpected happenings occur. So let's turn back a few pages and see if you recall some of the highlights of 1956.

1956 In Review

Belleville High School basketball team, coached by Coach Wische, didn't enjoy its usual success. It is seldom that a Wische coached team of the eight seeded teams in the Essex County Tournament but that's the way it goes.

When the Blue and Gold quintet would win a game, it was a game. There were times, however, when the team was really clicked on all cylinders. One of those was the return engagement against Bloomfield when the heavily favored Bengals went down to a stunning 72-51 defeat. Two weeks earlier the same two teams battled on the hardwoods and Bloomfield walked to an easy 40-40 cakewalk. John Bartlett scored the big basket with only six seconds left in the fray.

The Bengals finished the regular season with an eight won and eight lost record and Big Ten Conference competition finished in fifth place with a five and four mark.

Although Belleville didn't set the courts on fire Coach Wische received quite an honor when he was selected to serve as chairman of the 10th annual Essex County Tournament. It marked the first time that a coach was ever named to head the classic twice in the history of the event.

It was a quick exit for Belleville in the tourney as they took on strong East Orange with the Panthers winning, 65-53, as the third period proved to be the downfall.

In college basketball ranks, Al Wisniewski was elected co-captain of the Upsala College hoop team. Richie Veith starred for the Niagara University freshman team and Gordon Galtere and George Werper saw quite a bit of action for Lafayette.

In the Recreation Department's Girls League the Workettes topped the Cascades. The Dolphins and Drifters won first place trophies in the Rec Intermediate and Junior Boys' loops. School No. 1 won the Elementary League title.

In the spring Rollins College was again loaded with Belleville talent provided by Coach Ben Bennett. In the varsity shell for the southern college were Bud Bilenski, Ed Gray and Tom Dolan.

John Chiselko, of Somerville, continued to hold a tight grip on the feature 25-mile Tour of Belleville race. It marked the third time in four years that he walked off with the coveted honor.

The Blue and Gold crew came close to capturing the National Schoolboy Rowing championships. Belleville just missed out in its bid for the crown when the No. 6 oarlock broke. Belleville was actually rowing with only seven members in the homestretch against George Washington of Alexandria, Va. The Blue and Gold crossed the finish line only three-tenths of a second behind the Virginia crew and was actually closing the gap in spite of the handicaps.

School No. 10 finished unbeaten in the Rec Elementary League as No. 5 finished in second place.

Jim Apple was the spark on the B.H.S. baseball team and was selected for All-State honors. Apple batted an even 400 with 20 hits in 50 times at bat. A long ball slugger, he hit three home runs, four doubles and two triples. Against East Orange, Apple had a field day as he hit for the cycle. Joe Long, veteran infielder, was selected for second team All-Exsex honors.

This year the Varsity Club broke away from its long standing tradition of having a football and basketball team. At the end of the scholastic season the sports organization honored all athletes except the basketball players at an All-Sports banquet. The football banquet was held as usual but the basketball affair made a much larger dinner so that more athletes could be honored.

Under the leadership of Bill Murphy, Belleville fielded a team in the strong Essex County League. It was rough competition but the team hustled all the way and although they finished in the second division, it was a promising first year effort. The team was sponsored by the Recreation Department early in the season but mid-way Murphy received the support of DeBacco's Sport Shop. Leading the Riders in the pitching department was Frank Sprioviro.

It was real disappointing start for Belleville football coach Ed Berlinski once the Fall season rolled around. The Blue and Gold, with a veteran line returning, were expected to be one of the better teams in the county.

Belleville got off on the wrong foot and dropped a tough one-point decision to East Orange and that seemed to get the Belboys only in deeper.

Before Berlinski could get his squad righted the grid aggregation went down to five losses in succession. All of a sudden, however, the tables quickly turned and before you knew what happened the Belboys actually had a winning streak going. Belleville went on to win four games in succession and took the big Thanksgiving Day finale against Orange to climax a season that had a disastrous beginning.

After the close of the season the Varsity Club honored the Belboy grid team and presented each of the graduating seniors with individual trophies.

Bloomfield Downs Belboy Courtmen By 72-51 Margin

Bengals Make Most Of Height Advantage As Local Cagers Encounter Trouble With Foe

Belleville traveled to Bloomfield Wednesday with hopes of taming the highly touted Bengals. But the Belboys soon learned that the Bengal is a man-eating tiger, and this particular group chewed the Belboys to a 72-51 defeat. Bloomfield displayed the biggest and the best in Essex County, and they looked just the bit in rolling up a tremendous half time total, and then coasting to victory.

On the other hand, Belleville could do little with the tremendous height problem. The Bengals are 6'3" in the average. They made full use of their advantage. They frequently took four or more shots at their basket. They completely dominated the game in the first period, and for the most part, that's where Belleville met its death, under the boards.

Bloomfield had a fabulous shooting average in the opening minutes of the game. They put away an early 11 point bulge, then slowly worked it into an 18 point margin. Belleville was doing easy shots, and the Bengals weren't giving them a second chance. The Blue and Gold was also losing the ball on bad passes, and infractions of the rules.

The Belboys settled down in the second quarter, but they had given away too much. Bloomfield kept the game out of reach, although the Blue and Gold managed to cut six points off their lead.

The Bengals had compiled an amazing 24 points in the first quarter, good for even a pro team. They cooled off in the second quarter as their lead shrunk. But Belleville couldn't stop the Red and White under the boards, and despite the fact that their shooting average failed off slightly, they continued to get the cheapies. Belleville started to move in the third period, after they had allowed the deficit to balloon. Charley MacFadden rebounded, Jack Cullen and Tom Candara executed the fast break, and Belleville brought the game within reaching distance. But the Belboys suffered a lapse, the lead swelled again, and Belleville's chances were dead.

Belleville did play Bloomfield even in the second half, but before anyone gets excited, it should be noted that the Bengals played without the services of Bill Quinn, their captain, and one of their best players. If not the best, this was not a Big Ten game, but after Belleville takes on Seton Hall, Tuesday, they play seven consecutive conference games. The stronger Big Ten team will be played at home this year.

Tuesday's game against Seton Hall could very well be the measuring stick for the rest of the season. If Belleville loses that game, it is bad for Seton Hall is not what it used to be. The Pony Pirates have been having their worst year, but they are steadily improving. If Belleville can soundly defeat them, things may take a turn for the better.

The Blue and Gold's record is 1-1 in the Big Ten, and if they defeat Seton Hall, the Belboys will have the second game of the home-and-home series in the Conference) as the Panthers of East Orange, they won't have a chance for the championship. But if they lose to Seton Hall it won't be the championship that they'll be worrying about.

The regular writers have been relieved of the pleasure of writing this column on account of the holiday. To each of them, the Managers, the Executive Board and all the players of the Little League are very grateful for the excellent job that has been done in the past year. We hope that this vacation period will replenish their desire to continue this good work. The writing of the column is a honor and opportunity that is open to any student of high school age within the sophomore and junior classes. Any boy or girl desiring to take part in this activity may do so by contacting editor Harold Brandman. There is room for everyone for no activity can succeed without an able staff. We could use reporters and typists so anyone who has a sincere interest, please do not be backward but come forward and allow yourself the pleasure of seeing your own writings in the press.

The year 1956 has been good for the Belleville Little League. We were able to field eight fully uniformed teams, provide them with adequate supervision, equipment and rewards for the efforts they expended. Nineteen fifty-six saw the 1955 champions repeat but it also showed a more equal balance in the rest of the teams so that the 1957 season should bring greater competition and very possibly new champions in each league.

Our All Star teams were again something to be very proud of. The American League presented a group that was semi-finalists in the District Championship, and the National League provided the finalists. These teams were so closely matched that the District Championship could very well have gone the other way. This point is emphasized by the outcome of the local World Series which did go to the American League pennant winners.

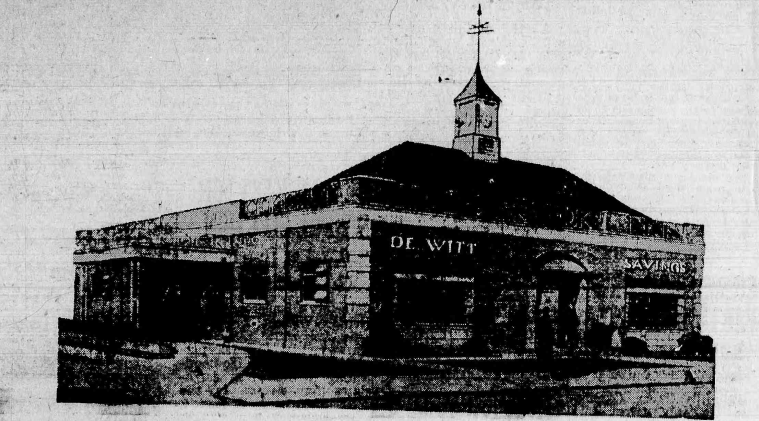

Any operation must have financial support. For 1956 financial support was received from our sponsors in a more generous amount and a portion of that expense, i.e., umpires, bats and balls, was absorbed by the Recreation Department. In addition, contributions to the Little League on

GREATEST YEAR IN OUR HISTORY!

As our mid-year Financial Statement showed, 1956 was well on its way to being a banner year for De Witt by any standard. Then, in October, assets and accounts of the North Belleville Savings and Loan Association were merged, adding to our own flourishing growth. The result — the greatest year in our history of nearly a decade and a half. Assets, reserves, savings and mortgage loans are all markedly higher than the year before. De Witt now serves a larger portion of the public than ever. We thank our friends and members — and invite all not yet doing so, to enjoy the facilities of the new, greater De Witt.

Town's Most Modern Classrooms Found At School Seven's Addition

The "new look" comes to School No. 7 where children and teachers alike agree they never had it so good. Here Mrs. Beula Goodenough's class enjoys the furniture and equipment found in all new classrooms at the school's new addition.

The new look in education has hit Belleville. Specifically, it's at School No. 7, where the most modern classrooms in town can be found.

The new addition was opened on November 23, after months of work. On that memorable day, students in kindergarten through third grade went to class expecting to find the routine desks, chairs and blackboards. The desks and chairs were there, in modern blond furniture, the blackboards turned out to be green, and many other additions greeted students and teachers.

Cloackrooms were hidden from the visitor's eye, by sliding doors which look like the rest of the wall. Each room has its own sink; kindergarten rooms have their own toilets. All rooms have more than adequate storage space and bookshelves.

Something new in blackboards is found in every room. All are green, and all are of aluminum, which is magnetized. This enables teachers to teach number concepts with colored discs which stick to the boards. Around the rooms, wall space for bulletin boards enable youngsters to display work and achievements.

When we visit the kindergarten rooms, children were resting on cots, while listening to musical stories being played on portable phonographs — also part of the "new look." Musical education has not been neglected in other rooms, where upright pianos are part of the standard equipment.

Not only the furniture and equipment is easy on the eye at School Seven's new addition, each room has been painted in soft shades of green, beige, pink and blue.

Rooms formerly classified as sub-standard at the school have now been converted into part-time units for various purposes. They were told by principal Seymour Grossman. In the basement we found rooms which will now serve as a student library, a teachers' lounge and kitchen, a conference room, and offices for principal Grossman and his secretary.

As we walked from room to room, frank smiles of pleasure greeted us. They came from the people who work hard in these rooms every day.

All seemed to agree, "teaching is fitting better every day."

Starlit Town

the glittering Dipper hangs upside down.
the heavens swing in majesty.

Castor and Pollux on the roofs of schools and churches shine aloof.
The Goat, Capella, leads her young beyond the Lynx; and Procyon follows the Little Dog who scrambles through the Milky Way's bright brambles after the Big Dog, over all white houses and the red Town Hall.

The lighted trees in dooryards burn while the Eve of Christmas turns toward midnight; and the children keep their grave smiles even in their sleep.

A Tribute To Rodino

On the occasion of his taking-oath for a fifth term in Congress, the Italian Government singled out the 10th District Congressman for an unusual honor, his designation as Commendatore in the Order of the Italian Republic, as a tribute to the role Rep. Peter W. Rodino, Jr., has played in bettering the relations between Italy and the United States.

This honor, the fourth bestowed upon him by the Italian Monarchy and the Italian Republic, rewards the Congressman's real accomplishments in encouraging a better understanding in America of America's policies and motives and of setting clearly the case for Italy in this country.

None can forget that it was Congressman Rodino who suggested and led a vigorous letter-writing campaign on the occasion of the Italian national elections four years ago which saw the defeat of the Communists. In that campaign, Rodino asked Americans of Italian origin to write to their relatives and friends in Italy and tell them the truth about American motives in answer to a campaign of calumny inspired by the Italian Communists.

The Italian Government is not alone to appreciate the merits and the accomplishments of the very able legislator. Regardless of political faith, Belleville which has elected him to Congress with ever-increasing majorities appreciates the way he has represented this district in Washington without ever allowing his Democratic affiliation to curb his action or warp his judgment.

The Times-News which raised the suggestion several months ago, feels more deeply now than ever before that Congressman Rodino should be the Democratic nominee for the U. S. Senate in the election, this year, for the seat of Senator H. Alexander Smith, the Republican incumbent. Rodino has proved, in action, an efficiency which could but raise the standard of government in the Senate and a bipartisan understanding of what is best for the United States.

Grab, Grab, Grab

The Essex County Park Commission is embued this Christmas season, with the spirit of "grab, grab, grab." With selfish disregard for the interests of the taxpayers, the County Park Commission, last week, adopted a $1,805,000 budget for 1957, the absolute limit allowed by law under the one mill formula, and then decided to postpone its approval of the budget pending the filing of new assessment figures with the County Tax Board by the 21 municipal tax assessors next week.

By law, the Board of Freeholders is authorized to allot up to one mill of county assessments to the Park Commission. Since the county is still growing, it is to be expected that the rateable will rise and the Park Commission's "cut" will be higher.

To be sure and spend every cent of its allowance, the Park Commission granted, last week, pay raises up and down the line, the budgets ranging from $145 to $200, to cost an additional $50,000 a year. Only the county park police got no pay raise but that is because the $5,300 maximum for park patrolmen is one of the highest in the county.

A few raises here and there on the Park Commission's payroll might have been warranted, but for what it does the Commission already takes too big a cut of our county income. The idea, apparently, has not sunk in there that it is time to cut taxes, not waste them. The Park Commission appears not to understand that the taxpayers want economies.

The Supreme Court Decision

As the centuries-old statute of New Jersey says, in so many words, it is a basic principle that on the seventh day we shall rest from our labors. Our activities are restricted by a text which forbids us to engage in "worldly business" on Sundays "except in works of charity or necessity."

In last week's Supreme Court decision, in a test case in which several owners of new automobile salesrooms and used car lots chose to dispute the constitutionality of a state law forbidding Sunday sales of automobiles, the old statute was upheld -- with modern trimmings. The Supreme Court's opinion was based more on the threat to public safety, from the angle of the traffic hazards caused by roadside car lots, than on the moral issue of observing the Sabbath.

The purveyors of new and used cars, obviously, have screamed their indignation at being singled out for prohibitive action over the keepers of amusement parks, hamburger stands, outdoor movies, gas stations, motels and other commerce which clutter the roadsides of most of our public highways.

In the case of Sunday automobile sales, there was a law. That law was tested and the automobile salesmen lost. There is no law governing most of the other roadside stands, even though they may be just as great a traffic hazard as are used car lots.

Now that many big business firms are quitting the high-traffic commercial districts of our towns and are clustering up the countryside with new salesrooms which boast of their acreage under one roof, there should be restrictive legislation.

One such general store has opened not far away on Route 46 and advertises, that it never again will shut its doors. Rain or shine, all day and all night, seven days a week it will offer its wares. That is wrong, because during the hours when traffic is heavy such establishments are definite traffic hazards. It is wrong, too, under the old statute because their "worldly business" on Sundays can hardly qualify as "works of charity or necessity."

By an easy stretch of the imagination, a hamburger or a hot dog, a tankful of gasoline and even a motel bed might be called a "necessity", though certainly not a "charity". Such businesses could, perhaps, be allowed to function on Sundays but their operations should be controlled. Unless we return to the "Blue Laws", movies, indoor and outdoor, cannot be shut on Sundays but, definitely, there should be restrictive legislation as regards the sale of general merchandise.

The sale of a suit of clothing, a kitchen cabinet, gas range, radio or television set or dishware, silverware or underwear in such places on Sundays, day or night, is neither a "necessity" nor a "charity". It is just a pursuit of the dollar. Their blatant appeal to the Sunday motorists is wholly commercial, smacking of an irreligious intent to acquire as many times thirty pieces of silver as is commercially possible.

The Times-News contends that the Essex County legislative delegation in Trenton should seek a law forbidding such Sunday commercialism.

One Man's Opinion

With Soviet Russia Busy Patching Leaks In Its Iron Curtain, There Need Be No War During 1957

By Ralph Eric Heinzen

New Year's 1957. Can there be peace, or shall there be war?

In its perpetual speculation about life coming twelve months, the world, with more at stake than ever before in our twenty centuries of Christian civilization, can, in this "One Man's Opinion", be confident there is as good a cloud on our horizon which, within twelve months should blow up a major war which might involve us.

On the other hand, alas, conditions are such that there can be no solidification of peace. An armed truce more accurately describes the situation because, even if there is to be no real war, there is definitely a state of conflict in international relations which will continue the present cold war.

In this "One Man's Opinion", this conflict will neither be dissipated nor worsen during the year ahead. This must be a year of caution; not a year of decision or of action for ourselves and the west.

On the other side of the Iron Curtain, 1957 must be a year of decision. If the Soviet Union wants to retain its satellite empire, it must proceed with what Moscow's pundits choose to call "the normalization of the revolution."

Communism cannot survive another rapidfire revolution such as that which occurred in Poland. Nor could it survive another bloody repression such as that which is in process in Hungary. During the year ahead, the Kremlin will feel, often, the cruel consequences of its impetuous reaction to the Budapest "national Communist" uprisings.

The coming year should be a successful year for the United Nations. The Suez Canal dispute can be settled without blood and bullets; if that vital waterway, itself, can be cleared of sunken ships and reopened to traffic, the United Nations stature, the year ahead, the implementation of peace will have been established -- for the good of the world.

The coming year should be a successful year for the United Nations. If the Suez Canal dispute can be settled without blood and bullets; if that vital waterway, itself, can be cleared of sunken ships and reopened to traffic, the United Nations stature as an implement of peace will have been established -- for the good of the world.

None can deny that as between ourselves and the Russian Communists, the United Nations must suspiciously in our favor.

Outsmarting The Kremlin
By adroit, smart and fast stepping, at the height of the Suez Canal crisis, our State Department brought a swift, after six days, to actual hostilities. In forcing the evacuation of the French and the British from Egypt, we created a political and military vacuum which, for the and Estonia, and incorporate them in her borders. That followed the dismemberment of Poland, by the agreement between Hitler and Stalin, by which Russia's swollen borders were moved farther to the west.

The collapse of law and order in the Balkans and in Central Europe gave Russia the perfect strip of "proletarian" nations: Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Rumania. She was able to add to that the eastern half of a split Germany.

The Kremlin next tried to close the gap in the southern border by refusing to pull out of Iran. During the war, when Russia was woefully short of oil, the Iranian government agreed to allow the United States to deliver oil to Russia by rail across the whole length of Iran.

Under the pretense of "guarding" the railroad against Nazi saboteurs, Russia won permission to install her troops in Iran. She was pledged to remove them when the war ended. What took so long was need for Russia to guard the Iranian railroad, Russia was asked to withdraw her troops -- and released.

The first case the Security Council of the United Nations ever heard was Iran's protest that Russia refused to pull back her troops. I reported that story for the United Press from Hunter College, in New York City, where the Security Council sat. I watched Gromyko stage his first walkout, and I watched the Council find in Iran's favor and order the Russian army to leave.

That was the first setback; the second was Marshal Tito's pronouncement that there is more than "one road to Moscow" and that each Socialist state has the right to interpret Karl Marx as it chooses. That was heresy and treason, but there was nothing Moscow could do about it. The Belgrade defection was the first crack in the iron curtain. Now there are cracks in Budapest and in Warsaw.

That all leads up to the new phrase which dominates any speculation, among diplomats and strategists, about the Soviet Union and its unhappy "satellites" -- "normalization of the revolution."

The phrase constitutes the label for the manifold phenomena which are being reported these days, some all too factual, and some a largely apocryphal, from those countries which live under the so-called "people's democracy."

One of these phenomena is the starkly factual story of Hungary, of the working people of a country demanding by every means all their disposal an end to a dictatorship which had long since excluded them as a class from any effective share in power.

A dictatorship by a self-perpetuating and selfish oligarchy is certainly not normal and it is a normal thing in the post-revolutionary evolution of a country for the dispossession of the revolution to begin at some stage to regain a voice in the affairs of their land.

In this sense even what is happening in Hungary can be called a part of the process of a normal evolution away from the abnormalities of the Stalin era.

Yugoslavia was the first "people's democracy" to become relatively normal again after the throes of its own Communist revolution. In this sense Poland was a peaceful second, and Hungary a violent third.

Has this process become visible in the Soviet Union itself? President Tito has said so, but there is little hard evidence. There have been many recent reports of incidents involving university students and factory workers in Moscow and Leningrad. There must be some substance to these reports because Party Chief Nikita S. Khrushchev has publicly threatened to discipline students.

There is no hard evidence that there has been any disciplining of Russian students yet. Nor is there any hard evidence of any disciplinary measure having been taken against the Russian workers as the Kremlin forced the Kadar Regime to do in Hungary by shooting men and deporting university students to the salt mines of Siberia.

It is reasonable to believe from the reports that one rather interesting thing has developed among these two classes -- students and workers -- in the two most important Russian cities -- Moscow and Leningrad.

They no longer accept the doctrine of the omnipotence of the men of the Kremlin. Another way of stating it is that there has been a revival of the critical faculty among the youth of Russia who were born and raised under Communism.

It seems doubtful that any real wave of restlessness has yet swept through the Soviet Union. But there is little room for doubt that Communist ignorance has been a revival of the critical faculty among the youth of Russia who were born and raised under Communism.

Letters To The Editor

Editor, Belleville Times-News:

I want to express my appreciation to the people of Belleville for electing me "Citizen of the Year." It is an honor for which I am humbly grateful. I particularly want to thank my fellow nominees, Little Leaguers, and their parents for their grand efforts in seeing to it that I won the nomination.
I enjoy my work with the Little Leaguers, and with the help of God, plan to continue my association with them for many years to come.
Again, I want to thank and wish everyone a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Sincerely yours,
Edward O'Neill

Editor, Belleville Times-News:

I read with interest every week your article "One Man's Opinion" and find it very interesting and informative to the point mostly. I read your article however, you stated something which is completely false. You say Emperor William started World War I to recover the lost provinces of Alsace Lorraine for Germany. These provinces were recovered by Germany in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, and in World War I they were lost again to France.
Well, you should not feel too bad about it. You know the old saying, "Errare humanum est," but brush up your history and, "good luck in the future."

Home Again, Rodino Says:

"Open Door For Freedom Fighters"

Congressman Says He Will Support Eisenhower In Lifting Quota For Hungarians

GOP Regains Control Of Freeholders' Board, Able To Override Veto

Home from an official mission to Europe, studying the workings of international cartels in the string of oil shortages brought about by the closing of the Suez Canal, Congressman Peter W. Rodino, Jr., told The Belleville Times that he found Western Europe greatly encouraged by the Hungarian revolt against Communist oppression which many foresee as the turning point in Soviet Russian domination.

Rep. Rodino, who is a member of the House Judiciary Committee, which has charge of immigration laws, said frankly that he hopes Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who is expected to be elected, will urge the lifting of immigration bars to allow authentic Hungarian freedom fighters to come to this country.

Should Take More

"I do not feel that we should open our restrictive gates willy nilly to the refugees," Rodino has proven themselves, as have these Hungarians who risked their lives to escape Communism, we should take many more into our land," Rep. Rodino said.

The 10th District Congressman went to Washington this week to start dictating his report on European and world oil cartels which he will submit to the Judiciary sub-committee in charge of control of trusts. He is also, on a convention in various European countries regarding immigration matters.

"I found that many people in Europe feel we are not doing our share to relocate the Hungarian refugees," Rodino said.

"Using my best French," he talked to many typical "men in the street" in Paris and found that they are convinced that we are, in fact, politically, they believe, too, that business primes sentiment and humanitarian action in our laws.

"They believe for a big country we do not do our share in taking refugees in. If we lower the gates a bit more, for these Hungarian freedom fighters, it will greatly increase America's prestige in Europe."

STUDENTS HEAR JOURNALISM TALK

On Wednesday, December 12, thirty-five Belleville High School juniors and seniors interested in journalism, heard a talk by Arnold Bloom of The Belleville Times on "Journalism As A Career."

CHIEF SPATZ AIDS SAFETY PROGRAM

The Essex County Traffic Safety Committee of the Newark Safety Council is placing 5,000 posters in Newark and other suburban Essex communities in an effort to correct the faulty practices of pedestrians that are major factors in the mounting toll of pedestrian deaths and injuries in the county. Newark's Bureau of Traffic and Signals and the Police Chiefs of all the communities in the county are cooperating in the project.

Police Chief George R. Spatz will direct the placing of 50 posters at intersections and in mid-block areas in Belleville. At crosswalks the posters will remind pedestrians to "Cross With Green Light Only" and in mid-block to "Cross Only At Crosswalks."

Edward J. Foley, Jr., chairman of the committee, reports that of the 86 traffic deaths recorded in Essex County, to midnight last Sunday, 62 were pedestrians. While the major portion of pedestrian fatalities occurred in Newark still Police Chief Spatz and heads of police departments in other communities in the county are making extra efforts to prevent the problem from getting out of hand in their areas. The faulty practices cited by Chairman Foley as major factors responsible for the high rate of pedestrian deaths were: crossing in mid-block, attempting to cross from behind parked vehicles and crossing against signals at intersections. Police Chief Spatz called attention to the need for extra alertness on the part of pedestrians when crossing at intersections without signals as well as at signalized crossings. He also pointed out the need for extra precaution by pedestrians in the age group 65 years and older, particularly during periods of darkness.
