

Public Disapproval Of Developer's Plan Causes Commission Confusion

Padula Denies Intention Of Introducing Resolution To Increase Pledge Lot Size From 40 to 58 Feet As Reported Following Saturday Conference

Belleville Town Commissioners met in an informal conference Saturday morning for the purpose of discussing possible courses of action the town could take concerning the development of the Pledge Farm area. The meeting was called after considerable public dissatisfaction had been voiced at last week's Town Commission meeting over the sale of the Pledge Farm to a Newark developer.

Attending the Saturday conference were Mayor Isadore J. Padula, Commissioners Kenneth D. Smith and Harry J. Sullivan, building inspector Thomas P. Greco, and Public Works administrative assistant Hugh Walsh. Commissioner Elmer S. Hyde was not present.

Some Belleville officials and private residents have expressed the fear that increased costs of schools and maintenance as a result of the proposed development would return the town to a class "B" status. Within law According to the town zoning law, lots in a class "A" residential zone must be at least 40 by 100 feet. Since the lots in the new zone are only 35 by 100 feet, the town eventually intends to build 275 homes on the 40-acre tract, of which 235 would be in Belleville and the remaining 40 in Newark.

Mayor Padula yesterday flatly denied reports that had been circulating that he had intended to introduce a resolution to increase the pledge lot size from 40 to 58 feet.

ROBINSON MARKS ANNIVERSARY IN "MIDDLE OF NIGHT"

When Paddy Chayefsky's love story, "Middle of the Night" celebrates its first anniversary on Broadway at the ANTA Theatre on February 2, Edward G. Robinson, star of the Joshua Logan hit production, can look back on his first year's absence from Hollywood in a quarter century.

In that year Robinson has re-established himself as a distinguished stage as well as screen star. His reunion with both the New York critics and with audiences who remembered his performances in some forty New York plays before he went to Hollywood was a most happy one to pursue memories of the audience, who knew him chiefly for his work before the cameras, he introduced himself as a fine actor in any medium.

Robinson's portrayal of the mature manufacturer of "Middle of the Night" in love with a beautiful girl many years his junior, was his first role in a Theatre presented by the Academy of Dramatic Arts.

"Middle of the Night" was newsworthy when it first opened last season not only for Robinson's return to the stage but also because it marked the Broadway playwright debut of author Paddy Chayefsky, who had won an Academy Award for "Marty" first presented on TV and then as a film. Since it opened, it has become newsworthy for still another reason—the performance of blonde beautiful Gena Rowlands, as the object of Robinson's affection. Gena was signed to a five year MGM contract solely on the basis of her work in "Middle of the Night" and thus has a movie career waiting for her.

So "Middle of the Night" took one star from Hollywood, and in return, will someday give life to a star. Which Chayefsky did, and that's the way it ought to be. Because Paddy Chayefsky's human comedy, the critics pointed out, is very much like life too.

Plans Petrean Dance

William Brickell, chairman, has announced that plans are being completed for the Petrean Club's 17th anniversary dinner dance, to be held on February 22 at the Robert Treat Hotel in Newark.

Letters have been sent out to all former members, and friends of the club are invited to attend. Serving on Brickell's committee will be Peggy Frey, Ann Stelata, Charles Treway, Mr. and Mrs. William Brady, Mr. and Mrs. Grace Sutter and Mrs. William Brickell.

It is also on the adult council of the Catholic Youth Organization.

The Belleville Adult School takes up a great deal of Starkman's time, as he serves as Brickell's chairman of the board of advisors, chairman of the curriculum committee, and is on the nominating committee.

Boy Scout work is something which Jesse Starkman finds most important. Recently he was named chairman of organization and extension, which involves setting up new scouting, club and explorer units wherever possible and whenever facilities are available.

Lay Advisory Committee Vice president of the Lay Advisory Committee to the Board of Education, has taken up some of his valuable time with serving on the board of directors of the Belleville-Nutley Tuberculosis Association has taken up a great deal more. He explained that the latter organization is mainly concerned with money from the Christmas seals, as the proper time, Rev. Hanson said.

The Wesley Men's Club prepared and served the dinner for this meeting.

The injured man was struck by flying pieces of both the drum and the tank and burned by the near-boiling water and steam escaping from a broken steam line. The blast did little damage to the laboratory itself.

The other four men performing the test were unhurt by the explosion. Mape emphasized that the same test had been conducted without incident many times previously.

Two years ago President Eisenhower set up the White House Conference on Education. After long study, meetings in every state, and a general national conference, his committee—mostly outstanding national leaders—gave him the facts. They told the President:

If the pay for teachers could be raised high enough, the shortage could be quickly overcome. Doubling the pay (in real wages) of teachers cannot be done quickly, but in the opinion of this committee, such a drastic increase will eventually be necessary to attract the most capable young men and women to the school.

Cagers Lose Two During Week To Panthers, Irvington

Possession Tactics Almost Win In East Orange Game; Irvington Red Hot In First Period Spurt

by Dave Thaler

After losing two games over the past week, Belleville faces a "must" game tonight when they entertain Columbia. The Belboys dropped a decision to East Orange, 36-32, and then succumbed to an in-and-out Irvington team, 79-70. The two losses dropped the Blue and Gold record to 6-7, and leaves them in seventh place in the Big Ten standings. If they are to get an invitation from the Essex County Tournament next week they have to win, and win big over Columbia tonight.

East Orange was a thoroughly confused team Friday. The Belboys, playing possession basketball all the way, held the ball for the entire second period. Ray Kimble, Blue and Gold guard, stood at midcourt and held the ball for all but fifteen seconds of the second quarter. East Orange refused to come out to him and stayed in their zone. Kimble just held the ball for fifteen seconds left, the Belboys started to work the ball for a shot, and with five seconds left, Charley McFadden took a jump shot from the foul circle and scored the only two points of the shot. That's all. With fifteen seconds left, the Belboys started to work the ball for a shot, and with five seconds left, Charley McFadden took a jump shot from the foul circle and scored the only two points of the shot. That's all. With fifteen seconds left, the Belboys started to work the ball for a shot, and with five seconds left, Charley McFadden took a jump shot from the foul circle and scored the only two points of the shot. That's all.

Wants Freeze But although he welcomed the two points, Wische would have been willing to trade by four at the half. If he had his way, he would have frozen the ball in the final stanza trailing by four points.

The freeze cut down the Belboys' strategy almost worked. The Blue and Gold trailed by five with five seconds left in the third period which was about what they planned for. But then Bob Paris of East Orange heaved in a long one-hander, and Belleville was down seven points.

The referee opened the last quarter by opening the difference to nine points. Then the Blue and Gold started to cut the lead, little by little. First the lead became ten, then Dom Klein hit a jumper that cut the gap to eight. A foul shot by Jack Cullen made the deficit six. Sager, East Orange center, and Klein exchanged foul shots, two apiece, and the margin was still six. But when Cullen and Klein put in jump shots, the Blue and Gold was behind two markers.

Miss Chance The Belboys then got the ball with a little more than a minute to go. Cullen's set missed, and Klein who was fouled on the rebound, missed the foul shot. East Orange pulled the fast break, and they won by four, 36-32.

After their showing against East Orange, Belleville rated as heavy favorites for the Irvington game. According to the odds, it would take a good night for Irvington and a bad night for Belleville to cause the Belboys to lose. That's what happened.

Irvington had a tremendous first quarter, scoring 21 points, and Belleville had a miserable first quarter, scoring six points. From that point on, the Blue and Gold played a better game, but the game was lost. Three Belboys were prolific scorers in that game, however. Tom Candora, sixth man on the team, had his best night of the year, scoring twenty markers, and Frank D'Angelo hit for seventeen, playing less than three quarters of the game. Dom Klein and Jack Cullen, the two high scorers for the Belboys racked 16 each.

Two Local Residents Get FTR Long Service Pins Two Belleville residents have been awarded service pins and certificates by Federal Telephone and Radio Company, in recognition of 15 years of service.

Those receiving the awards were: John Caruso, of 55 Mt. Pleasant Avenue, model maker, and Thomas Eckert, 207 Passaic Avenue, electrician.

LITTLE LEAGUE LIFE

Edward A. Carney

The Organization of the Little League and The Recreation Department Farm League is now complete so far as the first few steps are concerned. Following are the steps that have been accomplished, and each Recreation Farm team with its managers and the Little League team that it is affiliated with.

Step (1) All boys who played Recreation Department Farm League Baseball last year were divided into two groups to coincide with Little League Franchise boundaries.

Step (2) Eight teams were established in each area division with definite thought given to retaining as many boys as possible on the same team they were associated with last year. Due consideration was given to all of this distribution so that the eight teams contained an equal amount of ability as a team. The Managers of the Recreation Department Farm teams from last year were left with with the teams they had last year.

Step (3) Each team was then given a number, and a drawing was held wherein each Little League Manager drew two teams as his Recreation Farm League Associates for this year. Changes in this distribution will be made at a later date if it is determined that an inequality exists to such an extent that an out of balance condition is proven.

The Recreation Farm League and its teams will be governed by the same playing rules under which they operated last year. These rules were made after much study and with consideration given to the safety of the boys playing and to the capabilities they were expected to have. The Little League rules are slightly different, and will be followed to the letter for they are set by Little League National Headquarters and must be strictly adhered to, if our League Franchises are to be retained.

Following is the organizations as it is presently set up. There will be some changes as to the managerial staff as vacancies occur and additional volunteers present themselves.

Little League - Commissioner Warren Knight, National League President, Leo Jackson, Vice President Adam Gasperik, American League President, Gil Howley and Vice President Robert Conway. Sec-Treasurer, Edward Carney and Recreation Department Robert Conway.

Recreational Farm League President is Ralph Baker.

One Man's Opinion

Strangely, Wastes of Wild Sinai Desert Worry
Moscow Greatly, Leading To Her Support
Of Egypt Among Arab Nations

By Ralph Eric Heinzen

Buried in shifting sands amid vanished glories of pre-Christian civilization, the Mideast is once again the troubled crossroad of the ancient and the modern world. Out of the sands which have buried the relics of empires and of civilizations which have wholly disappeared from this Earth comes oil to torture men and nations.

Essentially, nothing has changed in that Mideast, where racial hatreds have cursed mankind from the earliest days of humanity. Today, as it was when Christ was born, the tribes are in conflict from the shores of Galilee to the blue waters of the Nile, against the barren, burning sands of the Sinai desert.

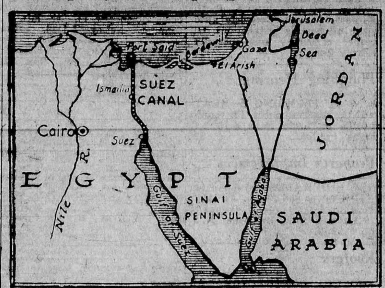

Today, alas, that tension of centuries has been worsened by man's scientific development and the A-bomb and the H-bomb have complicated a crisis already heated by modern man's dependence upon oil which, alas, just happens to be in rich pools under those same sands.

The Soviet Union, over the weekend, took pains to have published by Tass Agency and by Pravda an official warning that any Mideast or Far East lands which consent to allow us to build bases for our atomic military contingents—whether H-bomb bomber planes or atomic-warhead rocket or guided missiles launching bases—can expect nuclear retaliation by Russia in the event of war.

In the Mideast, that warning was aimed particularly at Turkey and Pakistan, and Iran and Iraq. It was a warning, not only to the four nations of the Baghdad Pact, but it was also intended to discourage Saudi Arabia, whose King Saud is now in this country, and any other Arab countries which might be enticed to line themselves up with the Western Democracies.

It is very obvious that the Soviet Union spends many sleepless nights worrying about the advance we have obtained

Setting Of Seething Age-Old Hatreds

Sand and oil, sand and waterways and sand and bad blood dominate the Mideast crisis which, as the above map shows, lies its setting between the Mediterranean and the Gulf of Aden and the Red Sea. The newest hotspot, generated yesterday, is at the extreme tip of the Arabian peninsula near Aden. In that area, frontiers are defined only by shifting sand-dunes and in such uncertainty it was inevitable that a new quarrel has developed between the Yemeni government and the British government which holds a protectorate over Aden. The Yemeni authorities are encouraging the revolt against British rule of tribes within the Eastern and the Western zones of the Protectorate of Aden and which Yemen refers to as "South Yemen".

Early in hidden rocket-launching positions in an area as wild as he Sinai Desert. That is why Moscow has been pressing all of the Arab states to support Egypt in her demand that Israel, which conquered the whole of the Sinai peninsula, now give it back intact.

UN Buffer Strip

Yet in this "One Man's Opinion," the tentative proposal that the Sinai desert should be transferred into a neutral buffer strip under control of the United Nations meets more than passing consideration. As a buffer between Egypt and Palestine it is ideally situated, though no desert presents a permanent obstacle to aggression in this air age.

Sinai is roughly triangular in shape with its apex on the Red Sea and its base on the Mediterranean. Its total area being somewhat over 12 million acres.

About one third of that area, the southern end, is very mountainous, with granite peaks rising to over 5,000 feet and including the traditional Mountain of the Law near which the famous St. Catherine Monastery is situated.

North of the El Ti El Escarpment there is an extensive plateau, sloping generally to the north and forming the basin of the Wadi el Arish or "The River of Egypt" in Biblical terms.

Egyptian Since Pharaohs On the northwest corner, adjoining the Suez Canal, is a low-lying area of nearly a quarter million acres which constituted the basin of the Pelusium Branch of the Nile in Pharaonic times, terminating in the shallow littoral lake bordering the Mediterranean, now known as Lake Bardawil.

Egypt has already prepared a project for reclaiming that salty area, geographically a part of the Nile Delta, by syphoning Nile water under the Suez Canal. In such circumstances the Pelusium Basin must logically be considered an integral part of Egypt and be treated as such. So too should be included the mountainous western part bordering the Gulf of Suez where mineral and oil workings exist now.

The stir connected by New York City's Mayor Wagner took the headlines over the landing of King Saud, but the real news of happenings in the Mideast which should concern all Americans was buried deep inside. It told of a bitter denunciation by the Yemeni government of the British government for the alleged shooting down of "South Yemen" tribesmen by British planes.

That incident opens a new trouble center in the already troubled, sandy Aden peninsula. Yemen lies at the extreme eastern tip of the Arabian peninsula, beyond the empire of King Saud. The British government viewed a few tribal leaders to proclaim a Kingdom, a few years ago, after

American Red Cross In Action:

Doria-Stockholm Collision Highlights Disaster Role

Perhaps the most dramatic of all disasters is a collision of two great liners at sea. The collision of the Italian Steamship Andrea Doria and the Swedish Motorship Stockholm on the night of July 25 off Nantuxet, L.I. brought tragedy, injury and death to many passengers and members of the crews. It caused loss of a great liner and the greatest hurt to another.

The true miracle of that foggy night, however, was the evacuation of 1,700 men, women and children from a sinking ship at sea and the rescue and return to safe harbor of all those who were lost in the collision itself.

On every hand were heartfelt prayers of thanksgiving and gratitude for the relatively small loss of life. This almost unprecedented evacuation and rescue was accomplished by the skill and courage of officers and crews of the stricken vessels and of the rescue forces from other ships. But above all, by the courage and mutual help, initiative and patience and, yes, even the cheerful spirits of the passengers themselves.

The British had surrounded their military stronghold of Aden with a protective zone called Eastern and Western Protectorate.

As that time, Yemen was a joke kingdom. Alas, it has come of age. By neglect, the British never got around to defining the exact frontiers of their protectorate and the Yemen government, spurred by the grave Arab crisis and, doubtless, worked over by emissaries from Cairo, has now attacked the British for killing "South Yemen" tribesmen. In the absence of defined frontiers, "South Yemen" happens to be inside the Protectorate of Aden.

Many Arab tribesmen have fled from the Protectorate across the rugged frontier into Yemen and that has added to the tone of hostility. The British government announces its intention of attacking any raiding Arabs, coming from Yemen, by strafing from the air. The situation is bound to get worse as Pan-Arab agitation intensifies.

LETTERS To The Editor

Editor, Belleville Times-News:

The most startling information released by the Belleville Conference was the position of its President, Mr. Arvidson. It seems that since his favorite candidate could not muster enough votes to get the recommendation from the Conference, he becomes angry and refuses to support the candidates selected by a majority of the group. In other words, the Conference is merely a conduit set-up to endorse individuals of their own choosing without regard to their qualifications, abilities, and background. The antics of Mr. Arvidson have been rather odd. For example, he appeared as an unauthorized agent before the Board of Commissioners concerning school matters, he ostentatiously conducted surveys, always advocating higher taxes for unneeded new schools, he runs the Conference and then fails to support the recommendations of the group. This type of so-called leadership is not conducive to a better Belleville. By his action the Conference has lost all prestige or prestige and should be permanently dissolved for the good of the community.

These are the reasons which caused many good civic organizations in this town to abstain from joining the so-called Belleville Conference.

How antiquated tax laws penalize progress in New Jersey

An "old hat" tax system, begun in 1884, is today imposing an overwhelming burden on one of the vital arteries of New Jersey's economic life—its railroads. Back in the last century, when this system started, railroads were almost the only form of transportation. They were big business. They were prosperous. They could afford high taxes.

Since then—automobiles, trucks, airplanes and barges have taken over half of the transportation business in New Jersey. Because they use public-provided facilities, none of them pays the heavy property taxes paid by railroads. Result: Railroads are losing money every year in New Jersey—their taxes alone are more than their earnings.

But New Jersey needs its railroads. They are vital to the operation of New Jersey's factories, businesses, and farms. 150,000 New Jersey men and women depend on the railroads every day for business and pleasure travel. And 34,000 New Jersey citizens earn their livelihood in railroad jobs, earning $122,000,000 annually, most of which is spent or saved in the State.

Obviously New Jersey's prosperity could not long continue... and advance... without the day-to-day operation of the railroads. That's why many of New Jersey's leading citizens say the railroads must have tax relief because they want better—not worse—railroad service for New Jersey. That's why railroads say New Jersey needs modern tax legislation that will place them on an equality with other forms of public transportation.

If you agree, write to Railroad Information Bureau, 11 Commerce St., Newark 2, N. J. We ask your support.

RELIC OF 1884—New Jersey's railroad tax system is a crazy-quilt legacy dating back as far as 1884. It has been repeatedly criticized by both political parties, as well as by impartial tax experts. For the good of New Jersey, the doors to railroad progress should be opened by tax relief.

Letters To The Editor

Editor, Belleville Times-News:
In recent weeks much publicity has been given to efforts by many groups in New Jersey to have local Sunday laws enforced, and to seek a strong State law with penalties attached. I am sure that these people sincerely believe they are doing something favorable to God and beneficial to man.

Little attention, however, seems to be paid to opposing views, so I am writing in hope that another side may be seen to the Sunday closing problem. As one, who has studied the problem rather carefully, I would say that:

1. Sunday laws are unconstitutional in that they violate the first amendment which says: "Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion." Making the sacred day of the majority of Christians a legal day of rest would certainly put such a law in this religious category, which violates the constitution.

2. Sunday laws would be tyrannical to those who believe in obeying the Sabbath command to rest on the seventh day (Saturday), and work the other six, which would include Sunday, the first day. I would suggest that protecting the consciences of the minority through no Sunday law is more just than endeavoring to use legal enactments to serve as a conscience for the majority.

3. The argument in regard to Sunday laws being necessary for the health of the citizens, breaks down because of the many exceptions which would have to be made, because no one is forced to work more than 48 hours per week, (many workers greatly desire overtime for the extra income), and because they could not restrain people from fatiguing themselves through other activities, at home. The health argument is only a smoke screen. The real reasons are religious and fear of business competition.

4. Sunday laws would be more of a hindrance than a help in promoting church attendance and the Christian life. Imposing fines and calling people "disorderly" for doing honest work on Sunday would only cause bitterness toward Christianity. Christ taught us to endure persecution, and not to inflict it. Would any of us look with pleasure toward a day when the Religion in American Life slogan might be changed from "Worship Together This Week" to "go to church or go to Jail."

This problem could be solved by clergymen and leading citizens forming committees to seek voluntary closing on Sunday. If this were done in a friendly spirit, no some drastic action is in order. A strong aggressive union of taxpayers is in order. Why should their welfare be left in the hands of arrogant public servants with a spend thrift complex.

This town should have an experienced, well paid mayor-manger, who does what the taxpayers want done, with a conservative, non political town council in the drivers seat. After all, he who pays the bills should be the boss and governor of the town affairs, that's only common sense. Throwing money around recklessly across the board for the benefit of privileged groups, has just about put Belleville dangerously close to the rocks.

My taxes have increased in 20 years $270, but the bad part is $170 of that increase occurred in the last three years; some leadership, which can only amuse a lunatic. If some taxpayers, and there must be the majority, have similar experiences, now is the time to speak up, so something might be done by the eighth of next month. I said, "might be." Maybe we will have to go home again with another bundle of sympathy under the arm, but there will come the day to set the score right. But if the taxpayers like the things as they are, and think George will do it, well that's that, and good luck.

The Belleville Times better start selling the drums a little and support the taxpayers a little with some helpful editorials, and above all, publicity for the good of the town. It's publicity that bad things can't stand. Unless the taxpayers can have such cooperation, the Belleville Times better stop calling itself the community paper, and hoist the flag it wants to sail under.

This is not intended as a nasty criticism, but anything that cannot stand being criticized is worth nothing; that saying is as old as the age. I have been told by some of my friends, that while they agree with me, they doubt whether you will show enough love to print the letter. It is their belief, that you are only "pro" for the expressions of certain groups, and completely prejudicial against all others.

I have no reason at this time to share their opinion, unless convinced otherwise. While the truth is not always welcome, it is always honorable and leads to better things, and they are most needed in our troubled world, so we might as well make a better town to live in.

Alfred K. Boerner
Editor, Belleville Times-News

I am submitting the following letter to you as an open letter to Mr. Ernest S. Arvidson:
I read your statements in the January 26th issue of the Belleville Times. I must confess that this article leaves me with mixed emotions and a keen sense of disappointment at the action which you have taken.

I cannot understand how you as president of the Belleville Conference could support a candidate other than the one selected by your own organization unless you have an ulterior motive which is at variance with the will of the majority of the conference.

As one who submitted his name and qualifications to the Belleville Conference for endorsement I believe it no more than proper that I ask for a clarification of your terse remarks since they affect me as well as every other citizen in this town.

However, in all fairness to you, before answering any of my questions let me tell you a story about myself so that the voting public may have an opportunity to form their own opinions before going to the polls.

I submitted my name to the conference because I was asked to do so by leading citizens of this community. My record both past and present will demonstrate that I am eminently qualified to fill the position on the Board of Education. Surely you must be aware of this record since it was submitted to the Belleville Conference.

Up to the time of my being asked I had no desire to run for the office because I did not want to become involved in political gymnastics. However, I finally consented to the submission of my name because I was told that the purpose of the Conference was to draw on eminently qualified people so that they could render service to their community without any political strings attached. This statement of Conference policy convinced me that I was conscience and duty bound to submit my name. I did so with enthusiasm and great ardor because here, I felt was the ideal organization, for whose existence I had prayed for many years. I for one would certainly be appreciative of such an organization because many years before I had been a successful political leader of the 13th Assembly district in Brooklyn, N.Y. I resigned from politics at that time because of the stench of political action and vowed that never again would I enter the political arena. I have kept that promise.

As a matter of fact when it became known that I intended to run for the Board of Education I had several political groups who approached me and asked permission to organize a campaign to elect me. They told me the Belleville Conference had ulterior motives and that it was more political than politics itself despite the conference alleged policy. Were they right?

My answer to these groups was an emphatic "NO!"

I told them that if I had been selected by the conference I would campaign actively and also do a conscientious and outstanding job if elected. If I were not selected then I would not be disappointed since I was sure the conference delegates would be outstanding people and I would support and stand behind those delegates.

However, shortly after the Conference had made its selection I read an article in the Newark News which said that despite the Conference selection many conference organizations would support other candidates. This was followed by your statement in the Times-News that you would not back Mr. Rubin because he was endorsed from "one section of town."

Now I must confess I don't know what you mean by this! What section of town are you referring to? You must mean any section of town because Mr. Rubin and I both live in the same section. If so what is wrong with my section of town? Is not one section as good as another?
Of course, I grant you that as an individual you are entitled to vote for the candidate of your choice, but as a Conference officer you should represent the will of the Conference and not attempt to influence its decisions. Further, I note that you had no criticism at the conference's selection of Mr. Brown. Why was the Conference decision acceptable for Mr. Brown and unacceptable for Mr. Rubin?

I want further to emphasize at this point that I personally am not criticizing Mr. Rubin. She has contributed her energy and time to our school system and certainly we citizens of Belleville should appreciate her civic spirit and unselfish devotion. I am only opposed to the tactics used and the implications which certainly deserve clarification.
I sincerely hope that you are not attempting to plant a seed of discontent among us, for certainly if this be your motive, it is un-American. If this is not your motive — what is? The voters of the town are entitled to know. You must remember that I am a relatively new comer to Belleville having lived here only six years so please excuse my not having your knowledge of politicians, political motives and political progress.

I await your answer with eagerness since its context will determine my future course of action.
Sincerely,
Sylvester R. Calabrese
Editor, Belleville Times-News

I have contacted many of the delegates to the Belleville Conference, and find they like myself, are amazed and disgusted with the apparent treachery of Mr. Ernest Arvidson, the group's president, in publicly announcing his refusal to support the conference candidates for the school board.
May we not challenge the principles of such a man? He selfishly appears attempting to use his conference position to further the election of his aspirant and personal choice. Rather than Mr. Rubin and Mr. Brown, who are the conference supported candidates. Having failed to get his chosen candidate endorsed, he now tries to discredit a fine organization, comprised of bonafide groups, such as veteran groups, their auxiliaries, civic, taxpayers and parent teachers associations. These organizations represent a wide spread area of our town. How dare this man disgrace these fine people? I know each delegate present cast a vote for the candidate of their organization's choice. I'm sure there were other disappointments in the final balloting results.

Mr. Arvidson apparently has no regard for organizational procedure, no respect for the majority vote. A different type story would have been given the press by Mr. Arvidson, if his candidate had been selected. He and I were conference members last year. Evidently this organization was outstanding then, since his three candidates were voted in, and he worked like a beaver for the conference cause on that occasion.
It should be made clear to Mr. Arvidson that by his improper conduct in this matter he has forfeited his right to claim further participation in the affairs of the Belleville Conference which devotes itself to the high purpose of advancing better Belleville educational administration.

There is no room for inactivity in this group, its aims are too lofty to permit the type of hypocrisy he appears to have practiced in this incident. He should resign from future conference activities.
