Commissioners Reject Water Main Ordinance

DINNER HELD IN HONOR OF PATSY TORTORELLO

Testimonial At The Fountain
Attended By Commissioners
And Many Other Notables

A testimonial dinner in honor of singing mailman, Patsy Tortorello, was staged at the Fountain, Watessing Avenue. It was a "fantabulous" affair, highlighted by the appearance of Claire Tortorello, Patsy's granddaughter, who displayed her dancing artistry. Claire gamboled prettily, accompanied by Tommy Vance, professional hooper, who was a part of the evening's entertainment. Other performers were Chang Lee and the Triads, a rock 'n' roll impersonating group; the Leed twins, Starline singers; Vance; Mr. Nick Van Settan, and a fellow designer, presently president of the Magician's Organization; and Ray and Rita, a fine pair of ball room dancers, recently off a tour through many of the best New York hotels, including the Waldorf-Astoria, the Condon, the Normandy, and a recent try-out at the Copa Cabana, where they were the only team out of 300 entries asked to return.

Seated at the head table along with Mr. Tortorello and his wife, Mildred, were Commissioners Robert

Vote Is 4-1 As Smith Approves Payment Of $59,000 Because Of Possible Impending Implications

By a vote of 4-1 the Belleville Town Commissioners confuted an ordinance, on second reading, propounding the payment of $59,000 to the Rutan Estate Development for water mains. When the point was brought before the citizens, James J. Golden and George Tortorello expressed their objections.

Golden, the town critic, ebulliently protested his proposal, stating that the payment would be closer to $70,000, because of carrying charges and the cost in assessing his condemnation. Golden said that in Nutley, the developers would pay for the water mains, but in Belleville, they would not.

Tortorello, representing the Citizens Tax Council, calmer, but as equally straightforward, protested opposition to it.

Sandwiched between these two individuals was Mayor Sherman, Mr. Sherman stated his case thus: "The point was that the revenues received from these mains, 'will augment' proportionately the formerly mentioned sum. He said that the taxpayers would not be bearing the burden."

Commissioners Grubbin, Sullivan, Hyde, and Mayor Padula voted "no" when the ordinance was brought to a vote. Commissioner Smith was opposed. His argument was that should this matter be brought to court, it would cost the Town in the long run. Sherman had stated that the town will be forced to pay for the mains. Town attorney Lawrence Keanan was asked his legal opinion on the matter, and he stated that past "trends indicate" that the town would be forced to pay. One of these "trends" was the case of Parsippany - Troy Hills case, brought before the Supreme court.

Commissioners Hyde, Grubbin, Sullivan, and Mayor Padula voted originally for the resolution because they said that it stated that all expenses would be assumed by the developer.

Following the voting, a Mr. Rodman Effron, Rutan attorney, made a formal demand that the town pay for the water.

Case was brought before the Commissioners. The case was Samuel Vuono, who owns a tavern at 112 Main Avenue, and Norman Wilcox, Jr., a worker in the Shoprite Store Inc. in Bloomfield.

Wilcox was the first witness. He stated that he and his two friends, Thomas Weir, 18 and Joseph Cupoli, 18, had purchased a pint of a fifth of Vodka at Vuono's Tavern. Neither of these boys saw Wilcox go into the back room, being circled around the corner. Wilcox said that he and his two friends drank some, and threw the rest out. Cupoli, 231 Brighton Avenue, West, 55 Birch Street, both of Bloomfield, indicated in agreement with Wilcox.

Investigator O'Connor the next day, from an Alcoholic Beverage Control, explained that he had taken Wilcox back to the bar, and saw Vuono as the man that had served him. Vuono denied this charge.

Vuono's attorney Robert Wolfe presented his case to the Commissioners, bringing up two patterns of the bar present on March 12, the date of the alleged sale. These men were Bert Henry Jr., 113 Garden Avenue, and a George Frost, 144 Wilford Avenue, Nutley, who stated that they never saw the boy come in.

When asked for the evidence, namely the bottle, the ABC investigators could not produce it, saying that they didn't look for it.

A motion was raised to drop charges against Vuono, and declare them not true. The vote was unanimous.

Fishing On All Fronts

All fishing seasons in New Jersey will be in full swing for Belleville sportsmen tomorrow when the exciting bass season officially opens at sunrise.

The 1957 season for black (small mouth) bass and largemouth bass will extend uninterrupted to and including November 30. Under the 1937 fish code approved by the State Fish and Game Council last January, the legal minimum length for bass caught in all waters of New Jersey shall be nine inches. The daily bag and possession limit for both species of bass during the season shall be not more than five in the aggregate, according to this year's fish code.

The trout season in New Jersey, which started on April 13, extends to November 30, and the season for pike-perch (walleyed pike), pickerel, (eastern or chain), and pike, which opened on May 18, will also be continued until November 30.

Farm League Cozen Start From Zero

There are several dozen men giving their time and baseball knowledge to the kids of the Nutley farm leagues, and we think it's about time they were thanked for their efforts. These are the coaches of the Little League of all the boys who are not yet good enough for the Little League teams.

Problems of the farm-league coaches are entirely different even from those in the Little League. The farm coaches take the kids when they have not yet solved the puzzle of how to catch a baseball properly. These boys love baseball and want to play. But because of their ages and lack of experience, they just don't know the basics. They must be taught how to field a batted ball. The coaches must begin this by having the youngsters field balls thrown to them on the ground, then have them catch balls thrown into the air.

It's almost as if the boys never saw a baseball before. And they must be taught to keep a bat under control when trying to hit a pitched ball. Most of the youngsters swing with their right hand, trying for a home run on every swing. Of course, that is not the way to become a good hitter.

The men volunteer many hours of their valuable spare time to help teach the boys how to properly play like National Pastime. Many a time they probably feel like pulling their hair out but they gain a great deal of satisfaction seeing the progress which is made within the short span of two months.

Boxing Program A Fixture

The great success of the second annual St. Mary's "Carnival of Champions" at Park Oval, a fortnight ago assured Nutley activities for sports event on the yearly calendar. The boxing spectacle, sponsored by the Catholic War Veterans, was originated last year by Rev. Seymour B. Everett, of St. Mary's Church.

The CWV received tremendous backing from Nutley sports figures. Mickey Greb, John "Rozy" Ryan, "Rocky" Daniels, Johnny Nelson, and capt. Chester Simpson and Sgt. Gus Nagra, of the Police Department, all played important roles in the program.

"Kid" Gavilan, former welterweight champion of the world, was on hand and refereed several bouts. Vince Martinez, leading welterweight contender, was another referee. These two famous fighters will meet in an important match in Jersey City later on this month. Twenty-two bouts were staged. All the boys, members of the St. Mary's School Boxing Club, received trophies from the CWV. Father Everett, and the Nutley CWV Post, can take a bow for a worthwhile accomplishment. About sixty boys have been kept busy during the past several weeks completing a training course in boxing science. The kids had a wonderful evening. One they will remember for a long time.

It is no secret that the answer to a lot of today's questions lies in active participation for children. Active participation in sports events builds character, and directs boys' little minds along the right roads. The men who devoted their time, and efforts, to the "Carnival of Champions", have proved themselves to be first class citizens.

St. Mary's Eliminated In CYO

St. Mary's won't be sitting in the Essex County CYO grammar school baseball throne room another year, as it hoped it would. The Nutley team, winner of the Branch Brook Division championship, was beaten in a playoff contest by Our Lady of Lourdes, West Orange, last week. Our Lady of Lourdes was the North Suburban winner.

Last year the two clubs also won divisional championships but then Our Lady of Lourdes was ousted by St. Mary's, which went on to take county honors.

Belleville Crew Finishes Fourth In Nationals

Despite having lost all of their races during the season, Belleville's crew went to Washington D.C., May 24 with the dark horse tag hanging from their shell. The Belboys had won only one bad race during the whole season, losing to Kent, one of the weaker schools. They had weight and power in their shell.

The Belboys did qualify on the twenty fourth, but they could only manage a fourth place in one of the most thrilling races in the history of the National Schoolboy Championships.

The Blue and Gold oarsmen were highly touted in pre-season predictions, and rightly so. They turned in some great time, but the quality of the competition was too much.

Rowing against Columbia University's lightweight on April 6, they were encountering the best that Columbia had produced in a long time. The Lions had to race in a tremendous 4:28 to edge the Belleville shell by a deck length, which was about 100 yards, over the mile course for the first time.

The situation was no better in Boston where M.I.T. played host to the Blue and Gold rowers. M.I.T. had too much of an advantage for Belleville. They won by a length.

The race that Belleville usually counts on winning when making up the schedule is the contest against Rutgers on April 6, but as this was the year for Belleville's competitors, it so happened that Rutgers' Freshman crew, the smallest man being six feet tall. That smallest man, by the way, was Bob Layne, an ex-Belbo. Rutgers, as they did to all their opponents this year, overpowered Belleville, and won by a length.

The handwriting was on the wall when Belleville went to Philadelphia to race a lower Merion. The Belboys had been losing, but they had been losing to college competition, and that was no shame. The Merion was a high school, and they were going to enter the Nationals. Belleville had a boat crew of 14, they were to have a chance in Washington.

The Belboys, rowing in one of Lower Merion's shells, couldn't turn the trick though, and dropped the race by half a length.

Still wondering how they lost that victory was to come, Belleville next traveled to Connecticut, to race Kent. If it were a crew that Belleville was supposed to beat, Kent was it. But the Blue and Gold oarsmen picked this day to row their worst race of the year and were beaten by their hosts.

That defeat prompted a few changes from Coach Bill Bennett, the Belleville mentor. Ed Anderson was moved up from the J.V. to the B team. The line for the end of the shell, Norm Jacobson was elevated to stroke the boat. The line for the bow, Fred Colonnio, Bob Medall, Nov. 3; Bill Kintzing, Nov. 4; and Nov. 5, Jim Edling, 6; Rich Abbott, Nov. 7; and Jacobson, stroke.

ST. PETER'S AND ST. ANTHONY'S WIN OPENERS

Petreaux Forfeit, While Klein Hurls Three-Hitter In Whipping St. Rocco's

Two Belleville teams, St. Peter's and St. Anthony's came out on top in opening games in the Essex County CYO Intermediate Baseball League this week.

Competing in Division 1, St. Peter's picked up a forfeit victory over St. Patrick's, Newark. St. Anthony's was a 4-2 victor over St. Rocco's, Newark.

St. Peter's will be idle this weekend but St. Anthony's will be called on to face St. Gaimery's, Newark. That game is slated for Newark's Memorial Stadium at 3:30 p.m.

Don Klein was the winner over St. Rocco's, beating Charley Adams in a pitching duel as he fanned 14 men and gave up but three hits. St. Anthony's, meanwhile, was a collecting nine-sided ball, but couldn't launch them together after the early innings. Still, a single run in the first and two more in the third gave them plenty of elbow room.

It became 3-2 in the fourth when St. Anthony's St. Rocco's tapped him for a home run. Homering for St. Anthony's was Dick Valesa. An insurance run in the fifth for St. Anthony's ended the scoring.

Ten teams have entered the Division 1 league and twelve divisions have been set up. In each, a split season has been scheduled with the top two divisions winners bound to meet for the divisional championship. Divisional winners then will play for the county title and a berth in the archdiocesan tournament against the winning clubs from Hudson and Union.

REC ARCHERY CLUB IMPROVES SCORES

Members of the Recreation Department Archery Program have shown nice improvement in their scores during the last week. Bob Cook, nearly every score last week showed a gain from the week before with some more than doubling their previous tally.

Jim Pigninelli gained from a 30 to a creditable 74, Paul Emory from 30 to 64, Cynthia Richter from 26 to 62, and Mary Jane Richter from 40 to 60. Ralph Palmbo scored 72, a 1st place finish. The boys' scores for the week before with 23 arrows. Cook believes in training young archers at short range, so that they can hit the target and thereby correct their aim. As their scores improve the distance will be increased.

LaMorte Receives Television

Anthony LaMorte, left, of Alto Motors, Inc., 25 Washington Avenue, receives a portable television set from J. Joseph DeGeorge, New York district sales manager, Lincoln Division, Ford Motor Company, for establishing an outstanding sales record during March and April of this year at his dealership. The award was one of 15 to winning Lincoln salesmen in 20 counties in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut who set sales records during the two-month period. In presenting the award at a special luncheon in the Essex House in New York, DeGeorge revealed that Lincoln car sales in the New York marketing district in March were 54 per cent higher than February and that April sales exceeded March sales.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL PLANS ARE COMPLETE

Plans for the annual daily Vacation Bible School, sponsored by the Belleville Council of Churches, have been completed with classes to be held at Montgomery Presbyterian Church, Grace Baptist Church and Wesley Methodist Church from June 24 through July 5.

A record registration of children 4 to 12 years of age is expected this year by Mrs. Edward Rochau, chairman, and Rev. A. Lawson, co-chairman.

The theme will be "Wide Relationships" featuring workshops, handicraft, visual aid and Bible study in co-ordination with the problems, customs and religious education of children throughout the world in their daily lives.

A worship training course has recently been completed by the teachers and cadets (teen-age girls who help the staff) at First Presbyterian Church, in Newark.

Children will be expected to attend the school at one of the churches mentioned, nearest their homes, but if transportation is needed, the committee will arrange it if parents will contact them through the Sunday School superintendents of their church.

This yearly project of the Church Council has been growing in popularity and the committee and staff are anticipating serving the children of Belleville.

Last Week of School

Children have slipped the leash of discipline. These last few days before vacation starts. The soft June breezes ruffle restless hearts. So teachers smile, and let their charges win. The classrooms have a party feeling here. And study, sugar-coated, if at all. Relaxes, leaves its urgency for fall; School is enjoyed, now that release is near. Corridors buzz with eager summer plans, laughter explodes like popping corn, all day. And teachers smile, themselves a trifle gay. With freedom that the sober school term bans. Yet as each child runs down the velvet hill, A kind of learning goes beside him still!

"Bleeding Heart" vs. "Bleeding Pocketbook"

Partisan opposition is the basis of the American political system but when that party belligerence degenerates into mudslinging and name-calling, it's time to call a halt and to start all over again.

During this past week, Governor Robert Meyner has told us that Senator Malcolm Forbes, his Republican opponent, was a "daring young man on a flying trapeze" encumbered with a "holier-than-thou" spirit. In retaliation, Senator Forbes told us that Governor Meyner is a "liar," a "faker," a "fraud" and a political "bleeding heart." None of that is very convincing and we are still five months away from the election. How deep into the gutter can these rivals dig themselves between now and November?

By resorting to personalities and name-calling, both candidates would seem to have us believe that this campaign is devoid of real issues. By their emotionalism and their intellectual immaturity, they would make it seem that this is a private fight between two men who hate each other.

This gubernatorial election, obviously, is not a clash of two men. It is a clash of two rival political machines—and it is, also, a show down between a Republican record in the State Legislature, which the party has controlled these past four years, and the Meyner record in the chair in Trenton. A serious campaign based on a comparison of those two records would, in our opinion, be preferable to a fight in the gutter.

The Republican record is not too bad to stand on. True, much has been left undone on a state level but, by-and-large, the Republican-dominated legislature has given us sane legislation, devoid of all spendthrift pab and avoiding state socialism like the peste. It is the kind of a record that the Republican Party can be proud of and that the Democratic Party would be hard put to finger a flaw.

The Meyner record is, inevitably, sullied by his administration's silence and secrecy in some unhealthy happenings in the insurance field. It is under a handicap, too, from the over-fat Meyner budget which has had to be trimmed of its multi-million dollar waste. There is not the slightest doubt that unless the budget is compressed and kept that way, New Jersey cannot hope to pay its way on its present sources of income. The only alternative to such wasteful spending would be the widening of the state's tax base—and that can mean only a state income tax or a state sales tax, or both.

It is on those issues, on those records that we would like to see this campaign fought and a new Governor elected. That one or the other candidate has a "bleeding heart" or is a "daring young man on a flying trapeze" leaves us indifferent. We want to know how the rival candidates stand on our future tax bills. We want to know how they propose to finance the state's future.

On the basis of his 1957 budget, Meyner is wide open to attack. What is Forbes waiting for? —R.E.H.

Keep The Russians Out!

We should draw a lesson from the precipitate and obviously compulsory departure from New Jersey for the Soviet Union of a number of Slavic "refugees" whom we welcomed in recent years to our hospitable land from the concentration camps of Europe where stateless drifters were assembled, awaiting new homes. The prime lesson should be that we should pick and choose more carefully, henceforth.

I saw exactly the same thing happen just before Hitler made war on France in 1939. Suddenly, a month before the war, there was a mass exodus of thousands of Germans who had been living in France, as music teachers, waiters, wingrowers or laborers. When Hitler conquered France and his Nazi armies marched in, those same Germans came back to the towns they had left, but they came in the uniforms of German "gauleiters," military governors, to rule over the people who had been their neighbors.

As many of these Russian "refugees" leave, escorted to departing airplanes by functionaries of the Soviet Embassy, they pretend that they are going home at the call of their Russian relatives. Many of them leave behind their wives and children. They are hardly the type of emigrant we ever wanted. We should put up bars against any more such Slavic "refugees," because in the Russian scheme of things they may be the Communist "gauleiters" of tomorrow.

It is obvious that it was too easy for the Communists to plant their spies among us by taking advantage of the milk of human kindness which is in the American breast. Now those spies are being recalled to make their reports. America should pick and choose and give new homes only to the really stateless, the heroes of the resistance or the freedom fighters who have proven themselves to be worthy of our helping hand. —R.E.H.

One Man's Opinion

Nasser's Dilemma Is Starvation, Not Arab Content, And His Use Of Pan-Arab Nationalist Agitation Is Merely An Antidote To Poverty

By Ralph Eric Heinzen

Caught between the pincers of a sell-out to Soviet Russia and rampant Pan-Arab Nationalism, Lieut. Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser is a man with a dilemma. It is not a new dilemma. Egypt's Sultans, before him, have had it for years and they were no more able to solve it than he has been.

Egypt, in size, is a land as big as Texas and California combined and it has a population seven times as great as New Jersey's. Its 23 million people are among the poorest, most undernourished in the world. Only 5 per cent of Egypt's 363,000 square miles, or 18,000 square miles, can be cultivated. It represents the thin green banks of the Nile river and the Nile delta. All the rest of Egypt, or 95 per cent of its area, is desert where there is no life but the nomad Bedouin tribes.

Egypt's 23 millions are packed into that slim finger of green along the Nile, one of the densest human concentrations in the world enduring one of the lowest standards of living in the world. Ninety-nine out of every hundred Egyptians are "fellahin" or peasants. The other Egyptian exploits the ninety-nine, generally as a landlord and Nasser has not been able to break down a tradition of centuries. The great masses of "fellahin" are chained by permanent debt to their landlords.

Wealthiest Arab Land
Most of these Egyptians—at least 17,000,000 of them—are fellahin, peasants, raising the cotton and other crops which provide Egypt with 90 per cent of its exports and which have made the land of the Nile the wealthiest of all Arab lands.

For centuries the peasants of Egypt have paid usurious rents to a comparative handful of immensely wealthy landlords who worked the land which the peasants worked and who provided the peasants with seed, fertilizer, and transport for the harvest. These conditions chained the bulk of Egypt's peasantry to permanent debt to their landlords.

It was partly to eliminate this age-old oppression of the fellahin that Colonel Nasser and his "Free Officers," led by Nasser, promulgated a land reform law which seized 656,140 acres of land from the landlords and distributed it among the peasants.

Point Four Aid
In addition, the new Egyptian Government set up land reform projects financed partly by the United States Point Four program, at Fayoum, southwest of Cairo, and at Belgha, in the delta region south of Alexandria.

On a vaster scale the revolutionary regime began work on a 600,000-acre tract of land in the Western Desert. As land in this formerly arid land of desert was brought under cultivation it was made available to landless peasants.

Nasser and his cohorts sought foreign advice on the expansion of Egypt's industrial base. Jute, paper, and automobile tire plants were selected to join Egypt's already established enterprises in the fields of cotton textiles, steel manufacture, food processing, and the making of chemical fertilizer.

But the most stupendous achievement of all was to be the construction of a new Nile River dam at Aswan designed to increase the Nile's water supply. Nasser refused to commit himself to the Aswan Dam, despite the offer of Anglo-American funds to begin the project.

Nasser Lost Courage

Faced with facts, many observers believe, Nasser lost heart. To implement so gigantic a program would have required a total political and economic commitment on Egypt's part. Even at the end of the 19th century, it required to build the Aswan Dam, Egypt's people might not prove to be much better off than they were before the program was begun.

With no adequate cadre of trained Egyptian social and agricultural technicians to back him up in the implementation of this vast program, Nasser, it is believed, turned partly away from the reforms to which he publicly had set himself.

This required him to seek out other avenues of action with which to distract the attention of his people from the fact that Egypt's program of internal reform was not rolling as it should have been.

The British, by now, were gone from the Suez Canal Zone, and therefore no longer existed as a possible scapegoat. The Egyptian leader addressed himself anew to the Arab world's strained relations with Israel. Through his speeches, through Cairo Radio, through his agents in every Arab land, Nasser worked to establish himself as a champion of the Arabs against Israel.

As a concomitant President Nasser sought arms for the Egyptian Army. When he was rebuffed in this search by the United States he turned to the Soviet Union. A deal was signed whereby Moscow sold Egypt $200,000,000 worth of Communist weapons for the bargain price of $80,000,000. It now was inevitable that Egypt's economy would become increasingly dependent upon the Communist bloc in order to pay for the arms which had been bought.

Nasser's espousal of a strongly nationalistic tone against Israel found ready response among dissatisfied Arabs throughout the Middle East. Soon the Egyptian President was riding high as the champion of the Arabs of the streets.

Even as he rode, however, Nasser's steed began to turn in to the classic tiger, from which the Egyptian leader no longer safely could dismount. In the meantime the alien Arab lands, fearing the attraction of their own peoples to the colonel of Cairo, began to shy away from too close involvement with President Nasser.

We Drop Nasser
Already Britain and France had become disenchanted with Nasser's efforts to undermine the remaining Anglo-French positions in the Middle East and North Africa. The United States became disturbed when Colonel Nasser refused to commit himself to the Aswan Dam, despite the offer of Anglo-American funds to begin the project.

When the Egyptian leader finally signed his readiness to talk concretely about the dam, Washington had become convinced that Nasser was too far exasperated by the weakening limb of Arab nationalism. America's offer of aid was withdrawn abruptly.

Egypt's angry nationalism of the Suez Canal Company followed. A train of events was set in motion which led to the Israeli and British-French invasions of Egypt, and finally to the splitting away of Saudi Arabia and Jordan from the Egyptian camp.

Nasser, acknowledged by most observers to have been an idealist in 1952, had reached a far different point of view by 1957. He was still only 38 years old, but turn cannot be foreseen, however, that no one is more deeply concerned with the future of Nasser than the Egyptian President himself.

Alienating Western Friends
It can be assumed, however, that no one is more deeply concerned with the future of Nasser than the Egyptian President himself.

And in the background stand millions of Egyptian fellahin, still awaiting the kind of systematic, overall approach to land reform and land reclamation which alone has a hope of lifting their overwhelming burden.

Even Premier David Ben-Gurion of Israel spoke hopefully of the young Arab officer who had overthrown King Farouk and the entrenched landlord system of Egypt.

Today, five years later, Nasser has become a world figure. But the policies which he put into practice may have alienated a majority of the nations of the world.

Three countries—Israel, Britain, and France—have made war against him. Iran, Jordan, Lebanon, and Saudi Arabia have rejected President Nasser's self-proclaimed leadership of the Arab world.

Even within Egypt there are rumblings of discontent. Some officers of Nasser's armed forces are critical of the Egyptian Army's poor showing against Israel in Sinai last fall. Egyptian business and financial circles deplore Egypt's anti-Western policies, which have led to the freezing of Egyptian assets in Britain, France, and the United States.

Plenty Of Enemies
And lurking in the background as quiescent but potential opponents, waiting for the moment to pounce, are the Moslem Brotherhood and Communist Party.

Progressively, more policies have estranged the Western world, Nasser has drawn closer to the Soviet Union, until today a substantial portion of Egypt's cotton crops are mortgaged to Moscow to pay for the Communist weapons with which the Egyptian army continues to be supplied.

If Nasser continues in his present close dependence upon the Soviet Union for economic and military support, the Egyptian President may find himself isolated from virtually all nations except those of the Communist bloc.

Thus the Egyptian President finds himself confronted by possible paths of action, each of which appears thorny, each of which threatens a precipitate decline and possible eclipse to his meteoric career.

What has happened in the past five years that has carried Nasser to present impasse? The question has meaning far beyond the future of a single man, for Egypt still is the center of the Arab world, and what happens in that country in the coming months will directly affect the stability of the Middle East.

The answer to that question, in this One Man's Opinion, can be found at least partly in Egypt's internal conditions and in Colonel Nasser's reaction to those conditions.

To The Editor

Dear Editor:

I have a gripe that I just have to get out of my system. I was taking my wife to 12 o'clock mass at St. Peter's this morning when I ran into one of the most inconsiderate and discourteous drivers I have ever seen in my lifetime.

I had to stop behind another car at Clinton and William Streets, because of the traffic going to and returning from Church.

My wife left the car at this point and walked rather than wait for traffic to move. This porcine individual behind me blew his horn impatiently and when I made a right turn followed after me.

At Union and Belleville Avenues, it was necessary to wait for traffic to move. I mentioned decided he was too much above our town and state laws, so he took the left of 4 he standing in two lanes, and continued on through the red light making a right turn and forcing two women crossing Union Avenue to stop, or be hit.

We may be thankful that there are few of this type of driver on our streets. May the good Lord protect anyone riding with him.
