

The Quill

You hear a lot of talk about the problems of "spot zoning" -- but a classic example is School Street in Clark.

Monday evening's hearing on the Board of Adjustment variance for a car wash to be erected by Alfred Prosperi at 1076 Central Ave. should be interesting.

The residents of School Street have strongly opposed the car wash, which would have the entrance through School Street and the exit onto Central Ave.

The residents of the street seem to be solidly against the proposal -- although some are more vocal than others. They are angry, many say, because they've been told that if the car wash doesn't go in there -- something they'll want even less will be built.

But you don't have to be a resident of School Street to question the wisdom of putting a car wash in an already congested area.

We'll wait to see what is said Monday evening in answer to the question of traffic on School Street (a very narrow street which is already jammed at times) and Central Ave. which is the busiest intersection in the county.

With plans for changing the Central Ave. and Raritan Rd. intersection being worked on now -- it hardly seems possible that anyone would want to erect a car wash in the midst of the construction area.

It's almost graduation time -- so look for our last "On the Teen Scene" feature next week. Our student editors will take "summer vacation" until the fall. But they're planning a bang-up farewell page!

If you drive past the Clark Municipal Building at night now you'll see Old Glory flying proudly above the township. Through a new provision, the flag may be flown day and night -- even above your own home.

And while we're on that -- how many times a year do you think the township has to use a new flag on the flagpole outside the municipal building? The average now, that is, before it was possible to fly the flag day and night, is 12 or 13 flags a year.

The practice of flying the Stars and Stripes at night will continue only for the duration of the Vietnam War. The flag is flown as a tribute to our boys who are serving the cause of peace in Vietnam -- and we hope the time is near when all of them will be home to see Old Glory every day.

Cupid's not stupid -- he sure knows how to get things done. And in this day and age -- he's not relying on a bow and arrow anymore.

Our classified ad section this week features an ad for Computerized Matchmaking!

That's certainly a sign of the times. Looks like from now on it won't be I LOVE YOU -- but IBM -- I've Been Matched.

Mother's Day is coming up -- and you have the opportunity of winning a gift for your Mom and one for yourself, too.

The second annual COLOR ME MOTHER contest, sponsored by the "Rahway News-Record/Clark Patriot", is being sponsored by twelve Clark businessmen.

So get busy -- get your crayons out -- and COLOR ME MOTHER. You may just be a winner.

Clark Kiwanis Hear Report On Police Methods

Newer methods being employed by Clark Police in the discharge of their duties were outlined for members of the Clark Kiwanis Club last week by Lt. John Waterson. Special emphasis was placed on the methods used in determining the effects of alcohol on those suspected of drunken driving.

In Clark, this is done by taking a sample of the suspect's breath with a breathalyzer. Lt. Waterson demonstrated the instrument and discussed interpretation of the results. Several Kiwanians were tested for demonstration purposes.

The success of the First Annual Kiwanis Arbor Day program in Clark, held April 29, was reported. Preliminary plans to continue this municipal beautification program were made. Polls Open 1-9 Tuesday; Hours Lengthened For School Vote

Referendum for the Clark school building program is scheduled to be put to a vote next Tuesday. Polls will be open from 1 to 9 p.m. at the following locations: Ward 1 - Frank K. Hehly School; Ward 2 - Charles Brewer School on Westfield Ave.; Ward 3 - Valley Road School and Ward 4 - Abraham Clark School at Ritter Place.

The Board of Education has appeared before 8 different groups in town during the past month in order to explain the needs of the school system and how the referendum meets these needs. A brochure explaining the referendum is being sent to every home in Clark through the mails.

Brewer PTA Board Backs Referendum

Members of the Executive Board of the Charles H. Brewer School Parent-Teacher Association unanimously endorsed support of the school referendum that will be held May 16. It was reported today, Mrs. Arthur Purdy, a member of the Clark Board of Education outlines the construction plans for the board at their meeting this week.

The $1,200,000 referendum calls for the construction of twelve new classrooms, a library, gymnasium, cafeteria, administration offices, and maintenance center at the Mildred Terrace site.

The $1,200,000 referendum calls for the construction of twelve new classrooms, a library, gymnasium, cafeteria, administration offices, and maintenance center at the Mildred Terrace site.

2. Adding to the present Mildred Terrace School now may jeopardize future plans for another building on this site. The State Board of Education is considering increasing the land recommendations for new school buildings. If 12 rooms are added now to the Mildred Terrace School, this would provide a school for about 800 pupils. The remaining area on this 21 acre site would then be large enough for only a 300 pupil school according to present state recommendations.

Southwest Civic Unit To Install

Installation of officers and the distribution of contributions to the Clark Library, Emergency Squad, Scholarship Fund and Youth and Family Counseling Service, will feature the May 15 meeting of the Southwest Civic Association. The meeting will open at 8:15 p.m.

3. An addition is not necessarily cheaper according to the architect because additional gym, cafeteria and other facilities may be needed.

Two Clark Agents Get Honor Rings From Allstate

Two Clark Agents for Allstate Insurance Companies have been awarded the "Honor Ring" certification for being among the leading producers from the ranks of more than 6,900 company agents.

Why do we need a central office area? At present, 14 Board of Education and supervisory personnel are spread throughout the five schools in conference rooms, remedial reading rooms, storage areas, etc. Their facilities are inadequate and their efficiency is lessened by being scattered throughout the system.

Valley Rd. School Holds Science Fair

A Science Fair was held recently at Valley Road School under the sponsorship of Mrs. Alice Compton and Mrs. Ellen Ahrens. Exhibits were submitted by students from grades 1 through 6.

Will we have split sessions if this proposal is defeated? Split sessions and overcrowded classrooms will be inevitable if we do not provide additional classrooms now.

So the success of the program will be measured by a decline in the number of mishaps among our students who ride bicycles. New officers to be installed are: President, Martin Scura; Vice President, Stanley LeWand; Secretary, Alma Kumpf; Treasurer, Anthony Panuello.

THE PLAY'S THE THING -- Rehearsing for "Sunday in New York", which will be presented May 13, 19 and 20 at 1:30 p.m. in the Hehly School are Mike Yarussi, Susan Ronnlund, and Director John Musum. The play is being presented by the Clark Community Playhouse and is performing for the benefit of the Clark Scholarship Fund.

Burger Issues Open Letter On Property Debris

Second Ward Councilman Richard Burger today issued "An Open Letter To The Residents of the Second Ward regarding an area at the corner of New York Ave. and Raritan Rd. The Councilman said that he had made many attempts to have the area cleared, had attempted to investigate possible ordinance violations, and had been trying to clear the area of what one resident termed "a sore thumb and an eyesore."

of their inspection. Residents of the area have been complaining that dead rats, maggots, trash, on the property and that a number of buses were parked there by the owner.

I want the people who've been calling me to know that this is the answer I've gotten the Councilman said. He said, though, that he's still working on the matter and will ask the members of Council to accompany him on an on-site inspection of the property. He said that two other members of the Council have visited the area and were "shocked" by the conditions.

Residents of the area have been complaining that dead rats, maggots, trash, on the property and that a number of buses were parked there by the owner. Mr. Burger said that he attempted by letter to have township officials inspect the area and request that possible violations be corrected. Although the process has been slow, the debris was removed from the land but many residents feel that a health hazard still exists.

This boy has just graduated from high school... and he's looking for a job to "help out" the family. He'll never make college... even though his father and mother had saved for it. Why? Because his kid sister needed a costly operation a couple of years ago... and it wiped out the college money. His parents had figured this could never happen to them (although 1 out of 3 families face a doctor/hospital bill every year)... and so they didn't have protection like New Jersey Blue Cross and Blue Shield. They "saved" annual premiums every year until all at once the kid sister needed the operation. That's how they gambled away their son's education. When he raises a family, chances are high he'll invest in Blue Cross and Blue Shield. His boy will go to college... Will yours?

Boy Scouts Aim For $500,000 In Camp Drive

"To insure a program of quality Scouting for boys in Rahway, Clark and other communities of Eastern Union County, an investment of $500,000 by area individuals, industry and business is vitally necessary."

That's the word from Gavin Spofford, Executive Vice President of the Summit and Elizabeth Trust Company and General Chairman of the Boy Scout Camp Development program which seeks to raise $500,000 through a capital fund campaign during May and June.

The development program will expand Winnebago Scout Reservation, program center for 7,900 boys of the Union Council B.S.A., including 1,093 Scouts, Explorers and Cubs in Rahway and Clark.

The Initial Gifts Division of the campaign was kicked off last week with the announcement of a $150,000 gift from the Charles Hayden Foundation of Manhattan for development of the 67 acre lake at the Scout reservation.

Local members of the Initial Gifts team now contracting larger industry and business in the area are: Fred Bartenstein, Jr., Vice President and John J. Radigan, Director of Employee Relations, both with Merck, Inc., Rahway.

RAHWAY HOSPITAL CELEBRATES FIFTY YEARS

What Was It Like When The Hospital Began In 1917?

What was it like in 1917 when Rahway Hospital began? Russia was beginning a revolution...vaudeville was big...and television was nowhere. But that was the year that Rahway Hospital was officially incorporated -- and through 1967 electronics, taped memories of the era are being played for visitors to Rahway Hospital Golden Anniversary visitors this week. The following are some excerpts from the tapes -- but for the real "feeling of the time" stop by the hospital today or tomorrow and listen for yourself.

THINK BACK WITH US 50 YEARS, TO THE YEAR 1917.

- ... Woodrow Wilson was President.
- ... Born that year were Ingrid Bergman, Henry Ford II, Lena Horne, John F. Kennedy, Faye Emerson, Arthur Schlesinger, Dinah Shore, Andrew Wyeth, Lilli Palmer, and Dizzy Gillespie.
- ... Vaudeville was popular.
- ... Motion pictures were in their infancy. Silent films starred Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin and Douglas Fairbanks.
- ... There were 20 million horse-and-carriages compared to 3 million cars and only 250,000 miles of surfaced road.
- ... The Farmer's Almanac was on the best-seller list.
- ... On March 8 the Russian Revolution began.
- ... We purchased the Virgin Islands from Denmark.
- ... We entered World War I. On Good Friday, April 6, Congress passed a joint resolution declaring war on Germany. A general draft law was quickly passed.

WHAT WERE THE HOSPITALS LIKE IN 1917?

... Up to that time hospitals had been erected for care of certain specialties, rather than considering the patient as a whole.

- ... Some hospitals were for eye diseases alone, some for eye and ear, and some for eye, ear, nose and throat.
- ... The number of special institutions for tuberculosis cases was rapidly increasing, as well as hospitals for other contagious diseases.
- ... Convalescents' hospitals were considered the institutions of the future.
- ... Textbooks indicated that the perfect site should afford air of the utmost purity, a maximum of sunshine, and perfect quietude. However, opinion was divided between the central and suburban location.
- ... Certain diseases were treated out of doors -- not only cases of tuberculosis, but pneumonia, whooping cough, anemia, and insomnia. Progressive hospitals had open-air wards, sleeping porches, roof-gardens, sun-porches, and airing balconies.
- ... Patients were also carried out on the grounds in a box, with a wheelbarrow-like arrangement for transporting it.
- ... Contraptions called "window tents" engulfed patients' beds, except for openings through the window.
- ... Hospitals had been built following the pavilion plan up to that time -- groups of small buildings connected by corridors. Then two-storied and multi-storied ones were constructed.
- ... There was a new theory that carriers of infection were not air and dust, but various utensils and sleeves and aprons of the nurses.

- ... Kitchens were found in basements, top floors, half way between, and in separate buildings. Top-floor kitchens kept kitchen odors from wafting through the hospital. Also the theory was that it could be more easily ventilated and better lighted, and therefore was more sanitary and could be kept clean more easily.
- ... Hospital rooms contained patients' fruit closets in which to care for fruit sent in to patients.
- ... The metal beds had to be rust-proofed because patients slept outside so often. The recommended mattresses were hair mattresses, containing nothing but the best South American hair cut from live horses' manes.
- ... It was stipulated that only the best steam-cleaned live-geese feathers should be used for pillows, and each bed should have four pillows.
- ... Friends of patients were permitted to occupy private rooms at the regular rate, when the rooms were not wanted for patients. However, when the rooms were wanted, the friends had to vacate at once. A friend could occupy a cot in a private room with a patient.
- ... Hospitals indicated that there were extra charges for oxygen gas when used as a tonic, proprietary medicines, wines, mineral waters, and out-of-season food.

And we're sure Blue Cross wouldn't pay for them.

Taped Memories, Rare Books, And Nurses In Miniskirts Are Featured At Hospital Homecoming

Hundreds of visitors gathered at Rahway Hospital on Monday evening to observe Homecoming Day, in celebration of its 50th anniversary.

The reunion of individuals associated with the hospital during its years of service to the community was planned as the first of its National Hospital Week activities. Hostesses in the lobby directed guests to the conference room where they signed a register and indicated their role in the hospital's history. Each one received a special golden anniversary key chain as a memento. Guests included members of the Board of Governors, Medical Staff and Auxiliary; employees; former patients; volunteers; benefactors; and those who simply stated that they were friends of the hospital. Old-timers and newcomers gathered in groups around the punch bowl to share memories and anniversary cake.

The background music was a potpourri of songs popular during the last half-century, from "Barney Goodie" to "Moon River". In the lobby visitors could listen on ear-phones to a description of life in the United States in 1917, from trivia about entertainment to the trails of a troubled nation at war.

The electronic specialist who worked up the music and word tapes was unable to attend the celebration. He is the Assistant Director, George E. Argast, who had been suddenly hospitalized two days before the party. But the show must go on so the commentary on 1917 was completed in his patient room.

Mrs. Jane Kuzmich, Operating Room Supervisor, introduced members of the nursing staff in a fashion show of nurses' uniforms, from the black and white ones of the Revolutionary War period through the attractive gray-stripes and blue of the 19th century to the traditional white ones which were introduced about 1914. Ultra-modern ones such as culottes, pants suit and miniskirt were also shown.

A display of medical memorabilia attracted much attention. Included were 1900 obstetrical and gynecological instruments, 1910 ivory-handled ophthalmic instruments, a 1920 headlamp used for tonsil surgery, 1930 surgery clamps, and a box of old-time medicines called "Humphrey's Specific Homoeopathic Remedies." Medical kits were also on display, including one from 1879 filled with glass tubes from which the doctor prepared his own prescriptions. Items of interest were hand-blown glass figurines from Czechoslovakia entitled "The Physician" and wooden brass and ceramic mortar and pestles used by pharmacists through the years. Books included military manuals, 1778 and 1827 books on anatomy, and medical books used by the late Dr. George Orton, a founder of the hospital. Belongings of the late Mabel Hamel Pender the first Rahway Hospital School of Nursing graduate in 1924, included her textbooks, graduation picture and diploma. Newspaper clippings covering the early history of the hospital were also shown.

First A House -- Then A Hospital

The history of Rahway Hospital began with an idealistic dream in the minds of a small group of citizens who envisioned a hospital in Rahway to care for the sick and injured. Their institution began modestly in a converted private home on Jacques Ave. It was incorporated by the State of New Jersey in 1917.

In time, the house next door was purchased and a connecting bridge was built between the two houses. As the need for additional space became more and more apparent, a fund raising drive was conducted. At the final dinner of the campaign, it was announced that a tract of land between Jefferson Ave. and Madison Ave. had been donated as a hospital site by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Squier.

In 1958, following another building fund drive, a wing was added which held administrative offices and the snack bar on the first floor, and patient rooms above.

In 1963, a separate building was constructed to house the First Aid Squad and their former quarters were converted for use as an emergency center and offices.

Mrs. Ivy Livingood Mosher directed the hospital for 29 years, retiring in 1961. Her successor, George A. Van Gemert, resigned in 1966, at which time the present Director, John L. Yoder was appointed.

In 1967 -- Hospital

Opens Radiosotope Lab

A radiosotope laboratory for magnascanning was opened at Rahway Hospital on Apr. 24, under the direction of Alan Osborne, M.D., Radiologist. The laboratory is a section of the X-Ray Department and is open from 8 a.m. to 12 noon, Monday to Friday. Mrs. Diana M. Smith, isotope technician, assists Dr. Osborne in the operation of the laboratory. The special room is equipped with a magnascanner, a diagnostic unit which delineates the anatomical parts or organs under study. It indicates abnormal areas, such as tumors, and the extent of radiosotope absorption at a particular site. Scientists knew about natural radioactivity in certain elements such as uranium and radium over 50 years ago. Because of the scarcity of supply, no one considered putting the nuclear energy to practical use. In 1934 a method was discovered for making certain elements radioactive. The artificially produced radioactive elements were called radioisotopes. Radioisotopes are used for diagnostic procedures because their course can be traced through the body by sensitive instruments. Body functions such as blood flow, blood volume, digestion, metabolism and excretion can be measured easily and accurately. Detector equipment measures the radiations from radioisotopes in a particular organ because the amount taken up by it is directly related to its functional status. Certain radioisotopes react differently toward normal and abnormal tissues, enabling the diagnostician to localize tumors. At a suitable length of time after injection of a radioisotope, the suspected tumor site is scanned with detection equipment such as the magnascanner to pinpoint the location of the tumor. The pictures produced are called scintigrams or gamma-grams. Dr. Osborne said that the new laboratory is prepared to perform isotope studies on the thyroid, liver, spleen, brain, kidney, heart, and lungs. In answer to a question about the safety of radioisotopes, Dr. Osborne said, "The isotopes are used in such small quantities that they are not injurious to the patients. A patient undergoing an isotope study gets less radiation than he would from a chest x-ray."
