Hibson, Huston, Bates, Powell, Bachman, Barry, and Heleker.

Comrade Mendell Home Again.

Justice W. W. Mendell, who went to Chicago to attend the 34th National Encampment of the G. A. R., returned home Saturday after an absence of just one week. He was one of the 1350 delegates to the encampment, and he reports having had an excellent time.

While in Chicago, Justice Mendell was quartered in Meyer's hotel, where the other nine delegates from New Jersey were located. He took part in the G. A. R. parade on Tuesday and on both Wednesday and Thursday he was present and took part in the proceedings of the encampment which was held in Studebacher's theatre. He says he was treated in a royal manner wherever he went and that nothing was to good for the veterans.

On Thursday he had the pleasure of helping to elect Leo Rassieur of St Louis, Commander in Chief of the G. A. R. Comrade Rassieur was hailed as one of the men who kept Missouri in line for the Union during the troublesome times of the early '60s., and he had no opposition for the office.

While the next encampment was voted to be held at Denver Col., it will depend on whether the railroads will carry the delegates there and back on a one cent a mile basis. If they do not, then the reunion of the G. A. R., which has just ended, may be the last.

Trustee Naylor Has Resigned.

L. P. Naylor, who was elected to the Board of Education in March 1899, has sent his resignation as a member of that body to District Clerk Brundage.

Mr. Naylor is quoted by as having given as his reason for taking such a course that he no longer wishes to be indentified with a body where so much unseemly language is indulged in at the meetings.

Efforts are being brought to bear upon Mr. Naylor to induce him to change his mind. Since his election to the board he has taken great interest in its proceedings and he has labored assiduously in furthering its objects and in helping to advance the cause of education in Cranford.

Echoes from the Links.

The foursomes played on the golf grounds yesterday was one of the most exciting matches seen there this year. The regular teams, composed of Messrs. Lyons and Webb, Schilling and Fouquet, were opposed by Messrs. Fiske and Denman, Townley and Knight, who under the direction of L. A. Madden, have been in almost daily practice since early last Spring. It was their first appearance in a match game and much interest was therefore taken in the result. All the teams played well, but the Fiske foursome finally won with four up. Their score for the 18 holes was 100, which is the best yet made this season.

Sneak Thief Steals Silverware.

The residence of Mr. Fernback, of North avenue, was entered by a sneak thief last evening between the hours of 7:30 and 8:30 o'clock, and silverware valued at over $100 was taken. There is no clew to the perpetrator of the deed.

Entrance to the house was gained by means of the back door, the lock of which was forced. Mrs. Fernback had gone with her children to the depot of the Central Railroad to meet her husband, and it was while she was waiting for him that the deed was done.

The silverware taken, consisting mainly of presents stood on a sideboard at one corner of the dining-room. On the supper table were several other silverpieces, but these were not touched, nor was any of the food, clothing or other valuables in the house disturbed. The thief helped himself to the most valuable silverware; and tearing down one of the handsome lace curtains, he wrapped his plunder in it and skipped.

The Cranford police were notified soon after the robbery, but although they searched the house and premises, they were unable to locate the thief or his ill gotten booty.

Mrs. Fernbach said this morning that they had only just removed here from Detroit, and that her husband has charge of the tuning department for the Votey Organ Company. The articles taken, she said, were all gifts from dear friends, and were therefore priceless. She feels their loss very much.

Obituary.

Jacobus Hammell, of Holly street, died early yesterday morning at the age of 74 years.

Mr. Hammel had been a resident of Cranford since last May, when he moved here with his wife and daughter from Brooklyn. His death was the result of a severe attack of brain fever, which was superinduced by business troubles.

The funeral service will be held at his late home tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock and on Thursday morning his remains will be taken to Undercliffe, Bergen County, for interment in the family plot in the Valley Cemetery.

Victory Thrice Achieved.

The Rahway Y. M. C. A., were defeated by the Cranfords Saturday afternoon on the Roosevelt Manor Grounds. Rahway brought with them a great delegation of rooters who kept on encouraging their pet nine during the entire game, but without aiding them to win.

Cranford had a strong nine on the diamond who played good ball. Hennessey was in the box and was in good form. Doran was behind the bat, catching a good game, making a number of excellent throws to second base and nailing three of the visitors very prettily at that spot, also knocking three good hits on which he scored three runs. Roe, the Rahway pitcher, threw a slow ball which could not fool the Cranford boys and from which they batted 14 hits.

In the fourth inning Crane, the Rahway catcher knocked the ball to left-field and reached third base on it, but Umpire Rudyard detected him in failing to touch second base which Crane did evidently with the intention of gaining a few feet and he was declared out. The score was as follows:

A DAY OFF.

Only a hungry man can enjoy a hearty meal, and only a hard worker is capable of experiencing the relief and pleasure that occasional holidays such as Labor Day afford. On Saturday afternoon the Chronicle force—editor, reporter, foreman and devil, dropped their blue pencils, pens, composing sticks, benzine cans with a bang, leaving the office and the news to take care of themselves until 7 o'clock this morning.

Consequently, the seven course, or rather seven column, banquet of news usually spread before our readers on Tuesdays, is omitted today. In its place is a pick-up luncheon which we trust will suffice until another bountiful and newsy issue makes its appearance on Friday.

THE NEW NAME.

The directors of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company are said to be dissatisfied with their corporate title for the reason that it gives an inadequate idea of the extent and importance of the system of roads that they have come to own and operate. As is well known, Mr. Riker and his associates have a complete or controlling interest in the Plainfield and Elizabeth line, four branch lines in the City of Plainfield, the Morris avenue and Staten Island Ferry lines in the City of Elizabeth, and the line running from Boynton Beach through Woodbridge, Railway and Picton to the junction with the Plainfield-Elizabeth line just west of Garwood. It is evident that for this vast system of surface roads the name, Westfield and Elizabeth will not do; and the problem of finding a suitable title is now awaiting solution.

"Union County Transit Company" has been suggested, but it is open to two objections; first, that it is not sufficiently comprehensive, as the system already extends far into Somerset and Middlesex Counties; and second, it is prosaic. The name finally chosen should be big enough to contain the roads now built, and also be capable of letting in others not yet constructed. It should, moreover, appeal to the esthetic sense.

Eureka! We have it, as the old Greek philosopher shouted. Call it the Noah's Ark Street Railway Company.

Perhaps the appositeness of the name may not appear at the first blush, but the following considerations will show why it should be chosen in preference to all others. Applying the first test, of comprehensiveness, what could better meet the requirements than Noah's Ark? The original ark contained, in its time, every human being and every warm-blooded animal living on the face of the earth; and if Mr. Riker's company grows until its lines gridiron the globe the name would still be big enough to comprise them all.

But there is another reason for the name, and this reason is found in the following notice, which has just been posted by the company: "Commutation tickets for dogs on this trolley line 25 cents a year."

No other trolley company in the world carries dogs, and therefore none can so appropriately call its cars arks. For did not our ancestor Noah transport dogs and cats and other quadrupeds as well?

The animals came in two by two
The elephant and the kangaroo.

No other name will answer. Let it be the Noah's Ark Street Railway Company.

HOW MORMONS PROPOSE.

How a Mother Acts When Asked to Give Her Daughter in Marriage.

Mrs. Hodson describes graphically what she saw and heard in a Mormon household during a significant visit from the elders of the church. Below is an extract:

Three men were ushered into the room. One was tall and of strong, well-marked features and dignified presence. The others were stout and florid and rather nervous in manner, brothers apparently.

Without waiting for a formal introduction, one of these motioned inconsequently toward me and said, "Is she of the Lord's people?"

The woman offered them chairs with a slight inclination of the head, that might have been taken either for answer or for an invitation to be seated.

Was she afraid? I could not tell. The men paid no attention to the invitation for the moment and ignored my presence. They had come upon urgent and important business, they announced, and would state it at once. It was their duty to bear a message to her, one that specially concerned her.

"Yes," said the tall and solemn elder, "it is indeed nothing less than a revelation received by the head of the church last night. It concerns both you and your daughter."

"My daughter!" gasped the woman in scarcely audible tones, and I saw one hand grasp the back of a chair convulsively.

"Your daughter who has now grown to womanhood," continued the elder, "and owes her allegiance to the church."

"What is the revelation?" the woman forced her drawn lips to ask.

"Through the grace of the all wise Father it has been revealed to his disciple, Brigham Young, that your daughter, Clarisse, should become the third wife of Elder W——, here present with us."

An awful silence ensued, and then a convulsive movement in the woman's throat, as if her voice refused to utter a sound, attracted the attention of all, and the men bowed their heads that they might not see.

* * * * * * * * * *

Ranged along the wall in a solemn row sat the brother of the bridegroom, his mother, his daughter and the mother of the bride. Clarisse's mother was but the ghost of herself of yesterday; then strong and erect and content; now trembling in her chair as if she would again fall to the floor, her appealing eyes unheeded, for her daughter had been placed so that she could not see her mother.

Almost as quickly as the company was seated—no time being permitted for scenes, that were disliked by the head of the church—the voice of Brigham Young rang out loud and confident. Addressing the first wife, he said: "Are you willing to give this woman to your husband to be his lawful wife for time and for all eternity? If you are you will signify it by placing her right hand within the left hand of your husband."

The broken, wretched wife reached across the altar, and lifting the delicate hand of the girl with her own work-stiffened fingers laid it in the broad outstretched palm of her husband. Thus was the plural marriage consecrated and the holy institution of Christian wedlock desecrated, in Christian America.

Long afterward I knew that I had witnessed one of the tragedies in what was known among the Mormons as the Reformation and among the Gentiles as the Reign of Terror.—Lippincott's Magazine.

UNCERTAIN TELEPHONES.

They Are Cheap in Switzerland But They Drive Strangers Mad.

"I noticed some reference in the paper the other day to the cheapness of telephone service in Switzerland," said a New Orleans broker recently returned from an extended visit abroad. "I can vouch for the fact that the tolls are very low, but the way the exchanges are run is well calculated to drive a man to drink. While I was at Berne last fall I desired to 'phone to a friend who was in a small village in the adjoining canton, although forty miles distant. I was told that I would find a public instrument at the post-office, and with a good deal of difficulty I located the 'bureau,' as they termed it, in a suite of rooms up stairs. A very military-looking old gentleman with a white moustache received me and listened politely to my request. It was then about ten in the morning, and he informed me with many apologies that I would have to call again, as the line was only open between two and four. I was annoyed, but presented myself on time, and was then put through a course of interrogations that reminded me of an application for life insurance.

"When I had satisfied the old gentleman that I was a harmless American crank, and that my intentions were strictly honorable, he called up the village exchange and directed them to send a messenger to the hotel after my friend. Another long wait ensued, and when the bell finally rang the manager had a mysterious confab in monosyllables with the other end of the line. 'I am very sorry,' he said at last, 'but your friend will not be permitted to use the telephone today; he has forgotten to bring his passport.' That was the last straw, and I—well, I said things, picturesque things, lurid things. The old gentleman told me it was necessary to observe precautions to prevent the service being used by military spies. I never got to talk with my friend, but learned that the charge would have been only four cents for three minutes."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

BLACK WALNUT GOES ABROAD.

States Along the Mississippi Are Searched for Fine Trees.

The great size often reached by the black walnut, the richness of the dark brown wood, the unique beauty of the grain sometimes found in burls, knots, feathers and in the curl of the roots, all conspire to make this the most choice and high-priced of our native woods.

Twenty-five years ago walnut was extensively used in the manufacture of fine furniture and finishings in this country, but manufacturers adroitly drew attention to the beauty of darkly stained quartered oak, and the use of the rarer wood has greatly declined.

But all this time the search for the fine black walnut logs has gone on systematically, though quietly, the trade attracting little attention, though the volume of lumber handled has been large.

The great source of supply has been the central portions of the Mississippi valley. The walnut is at home in the rich alluvial bottom lands of the western streams and in the stony limestone soils of the hills and mountains, and in such localities the buyers have left few trees unsurveyed.

Throughout eastern Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas, as well as the States along the Ohio and its tributaries, may be seen a few logs at this little station, a car or two at that, with carefully hewn sides and painted ends, ready for the market.

If you ask where this market is you will find that the great bulk of this rare lumber goes to Europe.

While we have been led into an enthusiastic admiration for fine oak, stained according to the degrees of antiquity it is supposed to represent, our European cousins have been paying fancy prices for the rich black walnut that we have allowed to go "out of the fashion."—Borea Quarterly.

ANNOYED HER MAJESTY.

TOBACCO LOST HIM THE ORDER OF THE GARTER.

How the Duke of Teck Smoked a Pipe at Windsor Castle—Even the Prince of Wales Could Not Appease the Queen.

The Duke of Teck was a great smoker, and seems to have been privileged to smoke on all occasions, and even in the houses of his illustrious reations, when other guests had to be most strict in their conformity to the rules of tobacco.

I myself have seen the Duke of Teck driving tarough the Strand, accompanied by the princess, his wife, and by the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, puffing furious clouds from a huge cigar between his teeth. I have also seen him, on the terrace of Marlborough House, standing amid a group of his royal' highness relations of both sexes, not only smoking, but the only one smoking. Indeed, it is said that this habit of his for a cigar lost him the Order of the Garter, which he very nearly received at the time of his daughter's wedding.

There had been a family dinner at Windsor, and the Tecks were present, and had also been invited to sleep at the castle. The rooms assigned to the duke and duchess were in close vicinity to those of her majesty. Now, the queen never was a lover of tobacco. Her late husband was not much of a smoker. She was brought up in an age when tobacco never came near a lady's drawing room, and certainly remained very far from her boudoir. Her son, the Prince of Wales, and his brothers, are all smokers, but it is stated that they never smoke in their mother's presence, except in the open air.

On the particular night of the family dinner mentioned above, after the queen had retired to bed, and when presumably she had made up her mind that Francis of Teck should be told the following morning at breakfast that he should have the garter, she suddenly detected the smell of smoke. Her majesty at once touched the bell beside her couch.

"Who dares to smoke in the castle?" exclaimed the queen.

The two bedchamber women gazed at the great old lady with fear and amasement, but they were soon ordered to find out, and for the next few minutes there was a dreadful commotion in that particular corner of Windsor castle.

There was ringing of bells, tramping of sentries, rousing of deputy assistant chamberlains from their beds, a hasty summoning of the lord high controller of the household and scurry into garments on the part of equerries and deputy gold and silver sticks in waiting. "The queen smells smoke!" was bandied from mouth to mouth. "Tobacco smoke!" At last the smell was traced, and definitely traced, to the apartment occupied by his highness, the Duke, and her royal highness, the Duchess of Teck. The lower court officials, such as equerries and chamberlains, scarcely ventured to hammer the ducal door, but the grand controller of the household did venture to knock, and he hammered with such effect upon the panels that the Duke of Teck himself opened the door, attired in pajamas somewhat short in ankle, and, awful to relate, a short briarwood pipe in full operation clenched between his teeth.

His highness looked surprised, naturally. Then he asked what was the matter, and the chorus of royal myrmidons yelled: "'Tis the pipe, your highness, the pipe. Her majesty smells smoke!"

But the next morning, when the Prince of Wales ventured to remind his royal mother of the Duke of Teck and the garter, he was peremptorily silenced with: "No, Bertie, no; I am very angry with him. He woke me up with his awful tobacco." And the Duke of Teck had to die garterless!—London Letter.

THE AFGHAN.

Lord Roberts Thought It Advisable That He Be Scrubbed.

The following story on Lord Roberts gained great currency in the British army a few years ago. The dirtiness of the Afghan is proverbial, and it is said that on one occasion General Roberts captured a soldier who was so exceptionally dirty that it was thought necessary, for the safety of the whole camp, that he should be washed. Two genuine Tommy Atkinses were told off for this purpose. They stripped the prisoner and scrubbed at him for two hours with formidable brushes and a large quantity of soft soap. Then they threw down their brushes in disgust and went to their captain.

"What is it, men?"

"Well, sir," they replied, somewhat excitedly, "we've washed that 'ere Afghan chap for two hours, but it does no good. After scrubbing him, sir, until our arms were like to break, blessed if we didn't come upon another suit of clothes!"—Collier's Weekly.

Fay: "Mrs. Ayers talks of going to Alaska this summer."

May: "Goodness! What's her idea in that?"

Fay: "Her husband has promised to give her a sealskin sacque on her birthday, which falls on the third of June."—Catholic Standard and Times.

WAYS OF COURTSHIP.

Odd Customs in Some Parts of Pennsylvania.

Time and progress have obliterated many of the social customs that were established in the colony that Penn founded. In the county of Bucks, where many of Penn's descendants reside, and where he owned vast tracts of land, the ancient customs appertaining to courtship and marriage are still largely observed.

First of all, the country swain is not qualified to pay court to the girls of his neighborhood until he has a horse and carriage, and that is generally his first possession, either by gift from his father or the result of the hoarding of small savings. The team acquired, the young man is prepared to become the lover. He drives usually, not to some girl's house, but to church or a public gathering of both sexes, where he picks out a maiden who suits his fancy, and if she has not her escort and is willing he drives her home, and that is the opening for future calls and drives.

The country singing school and the lyceum, now nearly mere memories, have been the occasion for the beginnings of dreams of love that later led to matrimony.

Then, too, the team comes in advantageously during the Sunday school picnic season, the woods meetings conducted by the Methodist churches, and for dance parties and other social occasions.

The wooer's team has in the past been the cause of much worriment on certain occasions. Some evening, when he was spending the time pleasantly in the house of his sweetheart, his friends, having located him, proceeded to take the carriage apart and carry the sections to the roof of the barn; or, perchance, on top of a haystack, and there put the vehicle together. The wooer, coming for his team after the last lingering farewell to the object of his adoration, would be amazed to see his carriage in the place where his tormentors had left it. His only alternative was to walk home or bestride his horse and return the next day for his carriage, meanwhile being the subject of merciless raillery.

Sometimes the pranks took the form of reversing the wheels on the carriage, placing the rear higher wheels in front and the lower front wheels in the rear. Again, the horse might be unhitched from the carriage and placed back in the shafts, with its head towards the vehicle. These pranks have been abolished, however, as they became so annoying that arrests resulted, and the "fun" was discontinued.

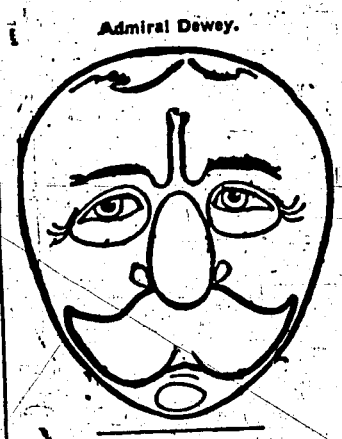

Sometimes it was the custom to watch for the bride and bridegroom on their first drive after the wedding, and stretch a rope across the highway and "hold up" the couple until the demanded price was paid. This money, too, went for tipple at the nearest public house.

All this has been changed where more modern ideas prevail, but the calithumpian band still exists in even the more refined communities.

If the young husband is without means he frequently goes to reside with the bride's parents, and often becomes an employee of his father-in-law. Where there is some wealth the couple are sometimes started in life on a farm purchased by the bride's parents or by the husband's family. Both sides, if financially able, contribute the house furnishing. Very often this outfit includes family relics handed down from generation to generation.

Thus does a Pennsylvania rural family become established in the community in which perhaps both husband and wife were born, and where their ancestors dwelt in peace and happiness before them.—Phila. Press.

Admiral Dewey.

Not Dazzled by Youth.

"Yes," said a rich Oklahoma farmer to G. Lowell Miller yesterday, "I am proud of my girls, and would like to see them comfortably married, and as I have a little money they will not go to their husbands penniless. There's Mary, twenty-five years, and a real good girl. I shall give her $5,000 when she is married. Then comes Bet, who won't see thirty-five again, and I shall give her $10,000; and the man who takes Eliza, who is forty, will have $15,000 with her." G. Lowell, reflecting a moment or so, then inquired: "You haven't one about fifty, have you?"—Oklahoma State Capital.

Handy.

Maud—Luther is a nice young man.

May—Yes; but Harry wears button shoes.

Maud—What of that?

May—How convenient it would be if we were married! I would be sure to misplace my button hook and then I could just borrow his. If the two were misplaced we could both use hairpins.—Chicago News.

...for the score of 11 to 5, and in the afternoon the State of Newark were bested 23 to 7.

The Lindens came from Chesterville chock full of confidence of defeating Cranford. They put in the box a new twirler, Brownmiller, who was formerly the crack pitcher of the Perth Amboys. He was easy meat for the home team, however, and he was replaced by Higgins in the sixth inning. Linden made many errors and landed only three hits from Burchell's delivery.

Burchell pitched seven innings and struck out nine men. As he wanted to catch the noon train, he retired, and Tabor took his place. In the eighth inning Girtanner pounded out a home run. Bolich, formerly captain of the Cranfords, relieved Hall on first after the seventh inning to give the latter a chance to rest for the afternoon game. The score:

In the afternoon game the Cranford team made monkeys out of the crack Star A. C., of Newark. The Newark team's regular pitcher failed to turn up and they started out by putting Scane in to pitch, but he only lasted half an inning and was succeeded by Bill Smith, who formerly was a good pitcher and who did fairly well. The Newark nine had with them a team of players composed of excellent ball tossers, but they went to pieces entirely. Hennessey pitched excellent ball, striking out ten of of the visitors.

The Newark boys were not bad at the bat, but their fielding was miserable. The home club started the game by making eleven runs in the first inning. The score of the game by innings was as follows:

Cranford	11	0	1	1	6	0	4	0	x	24	14	6

BASEBALL NOTES.

Next Saturday the Knickerbocker Athletic Club, of N. Y. are scheduled to play at Cranford. The Knickerbockers defeated Cranford early this season by a score of 5—1.

The Carteret A. C. were scheduled to play at Cranford yesterday afternoon and the game was so advertised, but at almost the eleventh hour the game was unexpectedly cancelled by Carteret. The Star A. C. were then booked. Manager Smith brought a strong team with him, but for some reason his stars failed to shine very brilliantly at the game.

GARWOOD NEWS.

It will be several weeks before the Votey Organ Company, which occupies the building just erected by the Aeolian Company, will be able to manufacture any instruments. The company's machinery is all in place, but it is now said that it will have to be reset on account of the settling of the building. The ground upon which the building stands is not of the firmest, and it is claimed that the foundation was not made massive enough to sustain the great weight of brick placed on top of it. The settling, while almost unnoticeable, it is said, will require the leveling of all machinery in the structure and this will delay operations for some time. When the machinery is once in running order the factory will have a capacity of 200 instruments a month, or 100 more than the company was able to build in Detroit, from which city the plant was brought here.

The employes of the Votey Organ Company are complaining because of the rents they have to pay in this vicinity. In Detroit they were able to rent 7-room houses with all improvements for $18 a month. Similar houses are almost entirely lacking here, and those with improvements in Cranford and Westfield are larger and command rents ranging from $25 upwards.

It is said that Garwood's name may not be changed to Æolian after all, on account of objections which have been made to the proposed change by the proprietors of the other factories in town.

The Arions of Plainfield came here on Saturday and defeated the local club by the score of 11—4. The home team was beaten twice on Labor Day by the Pond Tool Works team from Plainfield.

Members of the German Sick Benefit Association of New Jersey, to the number of 300, enjoyed a picnic in Huber's grove yesterday.

The cake walk and buck and wing dancing for the championship of New Jersey, which was held at the Union County Hotel last evening, drew a crowd that filled the well-known hostlery to the doors. The festivities began at 8 o'clock when the cake walk was run off amid much excitement. A number of contestants took part in it, but Ed Connors and lady of Rahway were the victors and were awarded the prize of $15. The buck and wing dancing was also well contested, but Eddie Quinn scooped both championship and the prize of $25. Prize waltzing and a general dance followed, music for which was furnished by Roberts' orchestra from Detroit. The affair was such a success that it will be repeated in two weeks' time.

Keep Coughing

We know of nothing better to tear the lining of your throat and lungs. It is better than wet feet to cause bronchitis and pneumonia. Only keep it up long enough and you will succeed in reducing your weight, losing your appetite, bringing on a slow fever and making everything exactly right for the germs of consumption.

Stop coughing and you will get well.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

cures coughs of every kind. An ordinary cough disappears in a single night. The racking coughs of bronchitis are soon completely mastered. And, if not too far along, the coughs of consumption are completely cured.

Ask your druggist for one of

Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Plaster.

It will aid the action of the Cherry Pectoral.

New Orange News.

Upsala College will reopen for the fall term tomorrow morning. At 10 o'clock the chapel bell, which has been silent since last June will ring out its peal of welcome, and the work of the institution will be begun.

During the summer vacation the college building has been given a thorough overhauling and it is now in first class condition. New shades have been placed at all the windows by W. N. Gray, of Cranford, the woodwork has been revarnished and the floors have been scrubbed until they fairly shine.

The attendance of scholars at the college this year promises to be unusually large. Many new applications have been received, and there is fear that the boarding accomodations may be crowded. An addition has been made to the faculty by the engagement of Prof. Stolp, "Mus. D.," of Rock Island, Ill., who is a fine musician and a composer as well, and who will have charge of the musical department.

Dr. Beck, President of the college has returned to his post of duty, and under his direction its affairs will be conducted as intelligently and successfully as heretofore.

PLEASE DO NOT BELIEVE IT,

That small laundrys are the only ones who do handwork.

There is more and better handwork done in our grand establishment, than you imagine. We have skilled workers and the best facilities to turn out handwork.

People coming every day telling us that since they send their laundry to us, their garments are not spoiled so much.

We have the finest machinery that's true, but the same time no place can compete with our handwork.
