'Near Blizzard' Costs Township $3,400 in Extra Labor, Equipment

The "near blizzard" which deposited 14.5 inches of snow on Cranford at the start of the week cost the township approximately $3,400 for extra equipment and labor used in the all-out fight to clear roadways throughout town and for snow removal work in the business center, it was reported by Township Engineer Patrick J. Grall.

Mr. Grall said he was warned of the possibility of a bad storm hitting this area by Harold Duflocq, meteorologist at the Union Junior College Meteorological Station, on Saturday and Mr. Duflocq kept in touch with the Public Works Department from that point on.

The snow started about 7 p.m. Sunday, and at 7:30 p.m. four PWD employees were assigned to attach snowplows to the nine township trucks. Six employees began spreading salt at traffic lights and on hills at 9 p.m. Sunday and worked on this until midnight.

A full crew was put to work plowing and salting at 4:30 a.m. Monday. Mr. Grall reported, and they continued on the job until the following midnight, a period of over 19 hours.

All streets were opened by midnight Monday, the engineer reported, and all parking lots had been opened up by 3 a.m. Tuesday. The township staff continued work all day Tuesday, widening streets and clearing intersections. Removal of snow from the business area started yesterday morning and will continue today with the aim of getting rid of as much snow as possible before there is any more snowfall to complicate matters, Mr. Grall said.

Five extra trucks for plowing (including two jeeps for clearing parking lots) were hired at a cost of $2,333, the engineer reported, making a total of 14 plows assigned this phase of the work.

Extra equipment for removal of snow from the business area (continuing today) was hired at a cost of $900, Mr. Grall said, and approximately $700 was spent for overtime and extra labor.

Removal work will be continued by regular crews and equipment on regular schedules. The engineer reported that four extra men hired for labor, plus all Public Works Department employees, numbering 23 men, worked an average of 20 hours straight through the storm period.

Mr. Grall said the work was made more difficult by strong winds which drifted the snow and necessitated return plowing visits to many streets. He said that the

Storm Fails to Halt Arrival of UJC Finals

Neither snow, nor sleet, nor anything else prevented the arrival of a day all students dread — the start of final examinations — yesterday at Union Junior College.

The near-blizzard on Monday and Tuesday caused the cancellation of classes in both the Day and Evening Sessions.

Final examinations will continue through January 24. The spring semester will open on February 7.

Sale of Tract For $92,000 Plant Slated

Township Committee last night authorized the public sale at its next meeting on January 28 of a tract of township-owned industrial property, containing approximately 7 of an acre, with minimum sale price set at $10,800.

Edward A. Cantor of the Cranfield Realty and Construction Co., Linden, submitted the offer for the property, which is located on Myrtle street, adjacent to Memorial Field. The successful purchaser will be required to acquire at his expense eight adjacent lots, not owned by the township.

Mr. Cantor proposes to build a one-story Colonial type office and industrial building for lease to the Everlasting Valve Corp. of Jersey City with construction cost estimated at $92,000. The tract will contain 20,000 square feet. The firm employs 40 skilled machinists, and George Hahn of 14 Hampton street is president, Phil F. Henchman of Henchman Real Estate represented the valve company and the builder.

Introduced and passed on first reading was an ordinance fixing fees to be charged by the police department for furnishing copies of certain reports under the recently enacted "right to know" bills. Public hearing is slated for January 28.

On recommendation of the Board of Adjustment, a resolution was approved granting a variance to Steve Zalik to permit modern-

A snowfall of 14.5 inches was recorded here in the near-blizzard on Monday and Tuesday. Harold Duflocq, meteorologist at the Union Junior College Meteorological Station, reported.

The storm caused destructive northeast gales, heavy drifting of snow, and hazardous conditions to motor traffic and pedestrians.

This was the heaviest snowfall since February 3 and 4, 1961, when 21.3 inches were recorded — a record for the UJC Meteorological Station.

Mr. Duflocq said the first indication of the storm in this area was a fall in the barometer at 11 a.m. Sunday. The barometer fell steadily all day Sunday and into Monday and reached a low of 29.40 at about 3 p.m. Monday. Mr. Duflocq said this indicated that the center of the storm passed over this area at about 3 p.m. Monday. Thereafter, the barometer started to rise slowly and the winds shifted to northwest, indicating the storm was moving out of the area.

The UJC meteorologist said the winds reached their greatest intensity of between 45 to 50 miles an hour at about 3:30 p.m. Monday.

Temperatures during the storm were unusually low, Mr. Duflocq said, as the mercury ranged between 18 and 20 degrees most of the day. The maximum temperature Monday was 20 degrees, and the minimum was 15 degrees. The northeast winds off the ocean kept the temperature constant, Mr. Duflocq explained.

Mr. Duflocq said the first sign of the storm was on Saturday when a low pressure area developed over the Canadian Rockies and moved southeasterly to the

Parkway Site Recommended For Municipal Swim Pool

A nine-acre tract of township-owned property bounded by Bloomingdale Avenue, Union School and Parkway Village has been "strongly recommended" to the Township Committee as the site of Cranford's $400,000 municipal swimming pool.

In a seven-page report to the governing body last night, the Cranford Municipal Swimming Pool Committee said the Parkway site was selected after careful consideration of all other available properties.

The pool would be financed, the committee report explained, through annual family memberships of $55 each by 1,500 local families.

Mayor H. Raymond Kirwan, who presided, announced that the report will be referred to the Planning Board and committee of the whole for study. He said he was hopeful an early determination could be reached.

Members of the pool committee, who have been studying sites and financing of a municipal pool facility for several months, include: Robert M. Crane, chairman; Robert M. Brooks, Stephen Lynch, George White, Albert Gessler, Genevieve Ellis, Charles Roberts, Anthony Isaac and Frank D'Fullio. The committee had narrowed the sites to the Parkway tract and Memorial Field.

The Parkway tract was selected, the committee reported, because the land is completely township-owned and an adjacent parcel, owned by the Board of Education, is desirable for parking. The report indicated that a paved area on the latter parcel would provide additional play and parking area for the school.

The pool committee urged formal approval of the site as speedily as possible so that the goal of having the pool in operation by summer could be achieved. It was further requested that, as soon as the site is approved, a communication be forwarded to the Board of Education asking that the Donatelli tract be ceded to the township for use in conjunction with the proposed pool project.

Among other reasons for selecting the Parkway site were:

"The terrain has natural drainage going back to the Parkway; future expansion of facilities is possible if vacant adjacent land is acquired, which is recommended; soil tests are favorable and conducive to pool construction and no soil will have to be replaced with compacted fill."

"The site is not located directly on a major road so that safety of persons traveling to and from the pool is good; the site is naturally screened which is very desirable for a pool operation; access to the parkway site may be from any number of existing roads; utility

School Budget Sets Tax Rise Of 66 Points

The proposed 1964-65 school budget will cause an increase of approximately 66 points in this year's tax rate, it was learned yesterday. Public hearing on the 1964-65 school budget is slated for January 28 and the annual school election at which the budget will be submitted to the voters will be February 11.

The amount of the school budget to be raised by taxation this year is made up of one-half of the 1963-64 school budget, amounting to $1,482,738.50, and one-half of the 1964-65 school budget, amounting to $1,679,530, for a total of $3,162,268.50.

Dividing the school requirements by the township's ratables of $38,882,775, the school tax rate for 1964 comes to $8.13 per $100 of assessed valuation, as compared with $7.47 in 1963.

Township Ratable Total $38,882,775

Cranford's ratables at the end of 1963, on which the 1964 tax rate is based, total $38,882,775, an increase of $2,398,472 over 1962, it was learned yesterday from Tax Assessor Edward P. Markowich.

The 1963 figures are gross ratables, whereas the 1962 figures reflected an adjustment for veteran and senior citizen exemptions. Because of exemptions of $50 for veterans and $80 for senior citizens were approved by voters last November, these exemptions no

Mr. Crabtree has been a nationally-recognized leader of the adult education movement in this country for more than 30 years as a teacher, supervisor, state director, writer, lecturer and attorney at law. Dr. Clyde Weinhold, director of the Bureau of Adult Education, said, "Few have done more to shape the thinking of both the professional and lay public concerning the character of adult education than he with his bold philosophy expressed in such articles as 'Adult Education and

Congressional Record Prints Kennedy Tribute Heard Here

A tribute by Rabbi Gershon B. Chertoff of Temple B'nai Israel, Elizabeth, to the late President John F. Kennedy delivered at a Thanksgiving memorial program at Union Junior College has been inserted in the Congressional Record.

The tribute was inserted with remarks by New Jersey's two United States senators, Clifford P. Case of Rahway and Harrison A. Williams, Jr., of Westfield.

"During the unhappy days after November 22, many fine tributes were paid to President Kennedy, and one of the most eloquent is the moving address which Rabbi Chertoff delivered," Senator Williams said.

"It was hard for all of us to think of giving thanks so soon after the tragedy which shattered the nation. But Rabbi Chertoff's inspiring address has demonstrated that this Thanksgiving was a time to be grateful for the heritage of reason and knowledge which President Kennedy left us, and to which we must now dedicate ourselves."

In his remarks, Senator Case

Critic Finds Taste, Technique Exceptional in Raditz Recital

By J. HAROLD GILBERT

In a rare display of taste, technique and musicianship, Edward Raditz, violinist, appeared Friday evening in a recital at Union Junior College. The concert was held in the theatre at the Campus Center and was the third in the current series sponsored by the Suburban Symphony of New Jersey.

Mr. Raditz is concertmaster of the Suburban Symphony Orchestra and is an instructor of string instruments in the Westfield schools.

The program featured a duet for violin and cello by Beethoven, Sonata No. 5 in F Major ("Spring") by Beethoven, and Sonata in A by Cesar Franck. An original work by Mr. Raditz, a string trio which was listed on the program, was omitted because of the illness of one of the assisting performers.

The Beethoven duet was a delightful introduction for what was to follow. On this selection Mr. Raditz was ably assisted by Avery Rosengay, cellist.

The "Spring" sonata was highlighted by the poetry of the second movement, described as adagio molto espressivo, and the rhythmic frolic of the third (scherzo) movement. It was handled with all the classic delicacy and alert, spirited musicianship Beethoven demanded in this composition. In this sonata the great master wrote an accompaniment which is so highly integrated with the solo part that it seems to be of equal importance and requires no less a performance than that of the soloist. Mr. Raditz received on this occasion a fine and sensitive accompaniment from Randolph Masters, pianist, of Westfield. In Cesar Franck's Sonata in A, Mr. Raditz also showed a gift and flare for the romantic as he swept

Jaycees to Hear Mickey Walker At Bosses' Night

Mickey Walker, holder of the world's heavyweight boxing championship from 1922 to 1926 and middleweight champion from 1926 to 1931, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Cranford Jaycees at the Locust Inn, Roselle, Monday night.

The program also will feature the annual Bosses' Night festivities as well as presentation of the 1963 Outstanding Young Man of the Year award.

Any young man between the age of 21 and 35 interested in civic activities is invited to attend.

Mickey Walker is a native of Elizabeth, but resided for many years in Cranford. One son, Jimmy, is a graduate of Cranford High School. Mickey's career as a boxer began in 1919 and ended in 1935. During those 16 years, he won 148 fights, 58 by knockouts.

Bosses' Night affords employers of members of the Jaycees an opportunity to discover the latent abilities of their employees and their service to the community in which they live. It also gives the bosses an opportunity to discover the goals of the Jaycees and the means utilized to attain those goals.

The third phase of the program will be the presentation of the Outstanding Young Man of the Year award by Mayor H. Raymond Kirwan. The 1963 award went to Frank DiTullo, a member of the local Jaycee unit.

Issuing Summonses For Uncleared Walks

Police Chief Lester W. Powell warned today that residents who have not yet cleared their sidewalks of snow and ice are in violation of state law since they have had more than 12 hours in which to do so since snowfall ceased.

The chief said that members of his department are touring the township in search of violators and will issue summonses to those who do not comply immediately with instructions to clear their walks.

Bus Trip Slated To Conference On Religion, Race

Plans for bus service to the New Jersey Conference on Religion and Race in Atlantic City have been announced by the Rev. John Dexeimer, president of the Cranford Clergy Council and pastor of the Cranford Methodist Church.

The bus will leave Calvary Lutheran Church at 6:15 a.m. Monday, January 27.

Union County Trust Reports Net Earnings Over $1 Million

The Union County Trust Co.'s net operating earnings exceed $1 million for the first time, President Raymond W. Bauer reported at the annual stockholders' meeting Tuesday at the Westminster office, Elizabeth.

The bank earned $3.36 per share, also a new record, and 11 percent better than 1962 on an equivalent share basis.

Both gross income and costs of operation established new high totals, the president continued. The major upward influence on earnings stemmed from a higher level of deposits during the year, which permitted an increased investment in mortgage loans, and tax-exempt securities. Trust department operations reflected a record volume of fiduciary service and contributed to improved earnings.

Mr. Bauer noted that the Union County Trust Co. pioneered financing retail automobile sales contracts and that such "paper" represented 60 percent of all installment loans at year end. He said his institution services more than 100,000 customers, many of whom are franchised dealers. The bank paid cash payments of 30 cents a share on May 1 and November 1, totaling $295,000, and serve more people, more profitably, than in any year of our history.

Telephone Co. Reports Greatest Plant Expansion

The New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. carried out the largest plant expansion program in its 38-year history in 1963, exceeding $100 million in annual expenditures for the third time in the past four years.

E. Hornsby Wasson, president, reported that company construction costs throughout the state reached a record $118 million during the year just ended. He said continuing demand for service will call for an even greater expansion during 1964.

The development of new and more complex telephone services plus the ever-increasing usage of day-to-day communications facilities requires constant addition to plant, the president noted.

UJC Students Hear Freeholder Director

Freeholder Director J. Andrew Stemmer of Clark was guest lecturer last Wednesday for government students at Union Junior College.

He discussed the operations of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders. He pointed out that the freeholder board is not a legislative body. It can only do what the state authorizes it to do.

Freeholder Stemmer said counties have been given additional duties in recent years by the state, such as the new county college program. He said county government is in a position to do some things municipalities can not, such as flood control and air pollution programs.

He told the government students that the county must pay for and provide space for courts, but has no control over them. He explained that the courts are run and coordinated by the state.

Freeholder Stemmer was introduced by Raymond Warner, government instructor.

Parkway Site

tips are close to the site and readily available, which is a cost factor, and there would be no conflict of activities.

In reporting on the Memorial Field site, the committee said this tract does not have adequate drainage facilities and three to five feet of fill would have to be removed, both of which would increase costs more than $31,000. Building footings also would have to extend below the fill area, which also would add to the cost.

There could be a conflict of activities with the public school program at Memorial Field, the amount of land available is limited to minimal facilities, screening is impractical and would cause a safety hazard to Parkway motorists, and this site is in the industrial tract which would further augment traffic on Myrtle avenue.

Piping of an open ditch which crosses the field would cost about $15,000 and because the site is in the bottom of a bowl, there is no means of natural drainage for discharge into a storm sewer.

The committee referred to Centennial avenue as a very heavily traveled county highway, particularly during the hours when peak pool attendance is anticipated, and said children traveling on foot and by bicycle would be exposed to the dangers of vehicular traffic. It was also pointed out that high tension lines cross the property.

It is proposed to build a pool having an area of 15,244 square feet which will conform to Olympic and AAU dimensions. The facility will have three separate areas: Intermediate, with depths of two to three feet; swim, and non-swim area, four to six foot depths; and diving area, 12 foot depth with two one-meter boards and one three-meter board. There also would be two separate wading pools with a combined total of 1,674 square feet.

The bath house would be of contemporary design with locker and shower facilities for men and women, toilet facilities, life-guard rooms, manager and entrance office and storage and snack bar areas.

Additional facilities on the grounds would include a landscaped picnic area, two tennis courts, shuffleboard court, parking space for 300 cars.

The committee estimates that the pool can be financed over a 10-year period by floating a township-guaranteed bond issue. At the end of this period, the portion of the annual income used for payment of interest and principal would revert to the municipality.

Cost of the land has not been included in the overall cost, the report continued. All land within the site selected is owned by the township or Board of Education. When the facility is fully paid, Cranford will have an attractive facility that will be paying a substantial return each year to the township. Based on present estimates, the pool could, after 10 years, be contributing $50,000 to the township for recreational or other purposes.

Because the project is self-liquidating, the township will not be affecting its net debt by guaranteeing the bond issue the committee report stated. To comply with requirements of the State Commissioner of Local Government as to suitable evidence of membership participation, a $10 deposit will be required of all applicants when the membership drive is opened with the balance of $45 to be paid within a specified time.

The committee estimates first year income of $86,000 as follows: Memberships $82,500; guest fees, $1,500; snack bar, $1,500 and commission on vending machines, $500.

Expenses and bond reduction, totaling $86,000, are estimated as follows: Salaries, $12,300; payroll taxes, $500; printing, stationery, badges, $900; utilities, $1,500; pool supplies and testing, $2,000; maintenance and supplies, $1,500; insurance, $3,000; accounting and legal fees, $500; equipment replacement, $1,000; miscellaneous expenses, $1,000; interest on $400,000 at 4 1/2 percent, $18,000; bond redemption, $30,000; and contingency, $3,800.

The death of President Kennedy should certainly strengthen our resolve to root out prejudice and unreasoning distrust wherever we find it," he added.

The text of Dr. Chertoff's address was published in the December 3 edition of the Cranford Citizen and Chronicle.

Dr. Chertoff, who is a member of the board of trustees of Union Junior College, delivered the address on November 27—five days after the assassination of President Kennedy at Dallas, Tex.

"We must always watch the secondary storms, because they are the ones which cause destructive forces," Mr. Dufloque said.

He explained that they steal the warmth from the first disturbance and develop intensity along the coast. If it had not been for the secondary storm, this area would have had nothing more than an ordinary storm.

fine snow also was blown under the hoods of the trucks and temporarily disabled three of the vehicles with ignition trouble.

He added that 30 cars were found abandoned in municipal parking lots, making the clearing work much more difficult there, and that numerous cars parked on the streets complicated plowing and snow removal work.

The storm resulted in the closing of all local schools, including Union Junior College, on Monday and Tuesday. Some business firms were closed on Monday and many permitted their employees to make an early start for home in the afternoon. Trains and buses were delayed and local residents with out-of-town employment arrived home late, some by several hours.

Fire Chief Bernard A. Doyle reported that members of his department worked a double shift Monday night and Tuesday to be ready for any emergency. He added that by yesterday the men had cleared snow from more than 350 of the town's 387 fire hydrants. The chief asked that residents assist by clearing hydrants in their own property areas, or at least to refrain from covering them up in their snow shoveling work.

The fire department received only two minor calls during the storm period, one for an automobile fire in which wiring was damaged and the other for a smoking kitchen stove in a home.

Police Chief Lester W. Powell reported there were no serious accidents during the storm and said that traffic was kept moving successfully, although slowly, throughout the snowfall period.

The Cranford office of the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. reported 106,143 calls originated from the local office, which includes the Cranford and Garwood exchanges, on Tuesday. On Monday, there were 91,447 calls, as compared with a daily average of 84,000. The peak day here was on December 31, 1962, when 116,643 calls originated at the local exchange, according to Charles Riley, business office manager.

Magistrate Charles J. Stevens postponed Monday night's session of Municipal Court until next Tuesday evening because of the storm.

Township Engineer Grall said that complaints from residents were at a minimum during and after the storm, and that his department even received a number of telephone calls congratulating the men on the good job they were doing under adverse conditions.

Under the new formula, Cranford will be required to add more than 40 points to its budget this year to pick up the two exemptions.

The township has a total of 2,742 veterans who will receive $137,100 in exemptions from their tax bills this year and 395 senior citizens whose exemptions will total $31,600.

Tax Office Receipts Up, Budget Down

While the amount collected and disbursed through his office has increased nearly $2 million during the past seven years, the operating budget of the township's tax office is less today than it was in 1957.

Tax Collector Howard Cowperthwaite reported this week. In 1957 when $2,600,000 was collected and disbursed to the treasurer the total operating budget for the tax office was $24,550. Mr. Cowperthwaite said. In 1963, with collections totaling $4,560,000, the tax office operating budget was $24,340 and more than $3,000 of the budget was unused and will be reappropriated.

The collector said he is proud of the efficient and economical manner in which his department functions and he gave full credit to his employees for their fine cooperation. The office issued approximately 8,000 tax bills seven years ago as compared with 7,500 bills last year. The difference, Mr. Cowperthwaite explained, is due to the fact that household personal taxes were discontinued two years ago.

In addition to his duties in the tax office, the collector is required by law to serve as custodian of school funds, which entails signing checks and reconciling the general account, the salary account and the bond and coupon accounts monthly. These combined accounts run into millions of dollars annually.

Dog License Deadline

Warning Issued by Chief

Police Chief Lester W. Powell reminded residents today that January 31 is the deadline for obtaining new dog licenses. They are now available at the office of Township Clerk J. Walter Coffey in the Municipal Building.

Starting February 1, the police chief warned, members of his department will conduct a house-to-house canvass and issue summonses to those found harboring unlicensed canines over seven months old.

New Republican Legislators Free to Act For Benefit of People as Whole: Stamler

The people of Union County and of New Jersey generally, are fortunate in that their newly-elected Republican legislators do not owe their victories to any particular special interest group, but are entirely free to act in a manner they feel will be beneficial to the people as a whole.

This statement was made by State Senator Nelson F. Stamler as guest speaker at a recent meeting of the Cranford Young Republican Club at the home of Mayor and Mrs. H. Raymond Kirwan.

Noting that it is a heavy responsibility for these men to carry, especially with so many of them being new to the legislative scene, Senator Stamler urged people throughout Union County to make their opinions and feelings known to their representatives for guidance in their actions.

In referring to his reputation as a "maverick" during a discussion of party loyalty and political responsibility, Senator Stamler described his duties as being first to the state, then to the county and thirdly to the Republican Party.

During open discussion following the talk, the question of taxes arose: Senator Stamler stated that he personally did not feel that any new state taxes would be necessary this year.

He went on to say that the feeling seems to exist that the state budget can be financed by increasing certain existing state taxes and attempting to effect certain economies in governmental operation, especially in those areas where duplicate services exist in different state departments and between the state and federal governments.

In connection with the former, the senator came out against an increase in state corporate taxes or a lengthening of the racing season, while in regard to the latter he noted that such reforms are, in many cases, difficult to accomplish because many of the departmental employees involved have tenure.

Senator Stamler went on to say that when the question of the desirability of a broad-based tax arises, he presently feels that the question should be decided by a state referendum.

A social hour followed the meeting.

CECA Committee Meeting To Assess Progress to Date

THERE IT GOES WINNING MORE HEARTS AGAIN!

Every time a Cadillac goes by, it seems someone falls in love with it.

Last year, for instance, more people moved up to Cadillac than ever before in history. And the way 1964 is starting off, Cadillac is going to attract more owners than even its beguiling predecessor. Why? We think the answer is easy.

Each year Cadillac simply lengthens its margin of product leadership—by introducing advancements and improvements that are entirely its own.

In 1964, for example, we've combined the heater and air conditioner in a single unit—with a single control. You set the thermostat at your favorite temperature just like you do at home—and the interior of the car holds it winter and summer. We call it Comfort Control.

*An extra-cost option.

Then there's Cadillac's new Twilight Sentinel®. When it's time to turn on the lights, they switch on automatically... and then turn off when sufficient daylight returns. And in the evening, the headlights can be set to light your path from car to doorway and then turn off automatically after you have entered the house.

There's a lot more about the 1964 Cadillac, just as new and just as exciting. Take performance, for example. There's the exciting new 340 h.p. engine—the most powerful in Cadillac history—combined with the smoothness of an improved Hydra-Matic or the completely new Turbo Hydra-Matic transmission.

Give in to your heart and get behind the wheel. Let your authorized Cadillac dealer introduce you to America's most desired motor car.

• Will Making—Simple But Important Step

Figures in the annual report of the Union County surrogate's office as issued during the past week by Surrogate Mary C. Kanane indicate that Union County residents are becoming more conscious of the importance and convenience of making a will. The report shows that of all those who died in the county during 1963, those who had made out wills outnumbered those who had not by a two-to-one ratio.

Even on the basis of this favorable ratio, however, the indication is that there still are a large number of people, who, for some unknown reason, have not made out wills.

The reason is hard to fathom, for, no matter how little or how much one accumulates in a lifetime, it would seem natural to want to make arrangements beforehand for the distribution of your worldly goods after death in the way you want it done, instead of making it the subject of time-consuming litigation and principal-depleting legal and court fees.

It also makes it much easier and less nerve-racking for those left behind, to have a will which spells out everything in detail, thus eliminating disrupting questions and nagging doubts and making the probating of the estate an orderly and dignified matter.

The making of a will is not a complicated procedure. It is a relatively inexpensive matter and takes only a brief time to consult an attorney and have him draw up a legal statement of your wishes with regard to the disposition of your estate.

Now is a good time to resolve to make sure your estate is in order by having your will drawn, or, if you have had one for some time, to consult with your legal representative and have it brought up to date.

• You Can Give the Gift of Sight to a Blind Person

The Cranford Lions Club in an advertisement in this issue of the Citizen and Chronicle points out that one thing which should not be included in your will is the bequest of your eyes for use by an eye bank after your death—the reason being that wills are not read until after it would be too late for the eyes to be of any use.

If you do wish to make the great gift of sight to a blind person after your death, you can make arrangements through the Cranford Lions Club to sign up with an eye bank which will take care of all details. Participants are provided with a card telling that they have donated their eyes and that the eye bank is to be notified immediately after death, for the eyes must be removed within three to four hours after death by a trained surgeon.

It does not matter in most cases how old the donor is, the cause of death or if you wear glasses or have defective vision, as long as the surface film of the eye is unscarred and healthy. The Lions Club reports that there is no disfigurement when eyes are removed after death, and that authorities of all major religions have given their full approval to the sight restoration program.

As a result of years of medical research and improvements in surgical techniques, it is now possible to transfer the cornea or window of the eye from one person to another successfully, so that sight can be restored in many blind persons.

Eye donations for this process fall far short of the need. However, and there are 30,000 blind people in the United States today whose sight could be restored by corneal grafting if the necessary eyes were available today.

If you are interested in the eye bank program and the miraculous work it is doing for the blind, you may obtain further information from Sylvanus J. Shaw, Jr., of 26 Tulip street, or Dr. Gelson Hindman of 107 North Union avenue, members of the sight conservation and blind committee of the Lions Club.

Dear Sir:

We would like to take this opportunity to thank you and the merchants of Cranford for the wonderful gifts they gave to our son, Kenneth, the first baby of the New Year in Cranford. We greatly appreciate the generosity of the Chamber of Commerce and all persons who contributed to the contest in any way.

Dear Sir:

I deplore another instance of "the chipping away at the stone"—now the discontinuance of the traditional baccalaureate service. A baccalaureate service is solemn, profound and reverent. On which count is it objectionable? People of other denominations, to whom I have spoken, share my view. Therefore, whom are we trying to please—or appease?

This in itself may not seem important but in time, when we are dismayed by the indifference of our youth to certain values, let us remember that their attitude was not fomented by any one thing, but by a series of "insignificant" things which we, through our complacency, have encouraged.

I feel that the shocking events of the past two months forcefully illustrate that we must not only maintain our traditions and principles but guard and strengthen them. Where young people are involved, it is vital. If we are indifferent to small changes, we must be willing to accept all deviations.

One wonders who benefits from these changes. What exactly does he gain and more important—who is the loser?

Yours truly,
Eugenie Miller

Colored Gulls

Some months ago the dyeing and banding of gulls along the New England coast as a part of a federal project was mentioned. I asked that you watch for them while at the shore or even while crossing the Hudson River on a ferryboat. Several readers sent in word of where and when they saw one of the colored seabirds. One person told of seeing an emerald green gull during an early evening cocktail party and thanked me for the warning that such birds were liable to appear.

The Newsletter of the Massachusetts Audubon Society for December, 1963, contains part of the report on the project:

"Our Director of Research, Dr. W. H. Drury, Jr., is presently on a trip to France where he will be on two missions:

"(1) At Nice Dr. Drury will be the delegate of the United States Air Force Office of Scientific Research at an international symposium to be held on November 26-27. His talk will be on birds at airports, and he will show his film of birds—notably Herring Gulls—as a potential hazard to air navigation. The meeting is sponsored by the Laboratory of Acoustical Physiology of the National Institute of Agronomical Research, and the symposium will deal with the problem of birds on airports.

"Drury will give the results of the one-year bird watch made in 1961 at Logan International Airport in Boston, under a Fish & Wildlife grant. The study gives a solution to the problems of some species of birds, including the Herring Gull. Under his supervision, 4,500 Herring Gulls were banded and dyed in 1961 and 1962, for the purpose of studying the population structure of gulls along the New England coast. It was found that the continued presence of gulls at airports is the direct result of garbage and fish dumped nearby. Due to the study, efforts are now being made to clean up these areas."

The Wonders of Wildlife
One of the Christmas presents my wife gave me was a copy of "The Wonders of Wildlife," a Studio book published by the Viking Press. This contains some of the most striking photography of birds, animals, fish and insects I have seen. Twenty-eight of the bird pictures, four in color, were taken by the master, Eric Hosking. A short commentary accompanies each photo and tells something about the individual pictured.

I have several favorites among the collection. One pictures a herring gull rising from the surface of the water with a fish in its bill. It is described, incidentally, as the "commonest of all European coastal gulls." All of the pictures were taken in Europe. One of Hosking's finest is of a male little tern offering his mate a small fish while she broods two dainty eggs. The caption points out that this is a reminder of the display ceremony when the male approaches the female with a silvery fish which he offers her again and again, which she finally accepts after hesitating for hours.

Another photo depicts a young great crested grebe hitching a ride on its mother's back while his (or her) brother (or sister) swims alongside. Two shots of kingfishers face one another from opposite shores. One was taken as the bird left the water. On this dive it only was able to swallow "tiny insect larvae." In the company, it is approaching the nesting hole in the river bank with a fish in its bill.

I hope someone on the staff of the Cranford Public Library reads this and orders a copy of the book so you can all take a walk among the birds of Europe without leaving your armchair.

100th Anniversary
This is the 100th "Nature Notes" to appear in the Citizen and Chronicle. I'd like to thank my publisher for putting up with me for so long, and to thank you who have been reading the column faithfully. Particular thanks are due those of you who have called with bits of bird news. Please continue to call. Your suggestions often suggest a spot to begin a new column. If you have any questions or comments that would form the nucleus of a "Note" send them along.

Report From Trenton

By STATE SENATOR NELSON F. STAMLER

I was down in Trenton on Monday to talk with the Law Revision Division in order to prepare some bills for introduction and met a friend of mine whom I had not seen for some time. He informed me that he had been quite sick and had been confined to bed in one of the big hospitals in New York. He suggested that if I wanted to do some good for the State of New Jersey and for the people generally, that the way to do it was to abolish the use of horns on all automobiles.

When he first said it I just looked at him for a moment and then suggested that it might be that getting rid of the horns would be a very dangerous thing, not quite as dangerous as raising the speed limits on the Turnpike or Parkway, but nonetheless dangerous.

Horn blowing is no longer a sign of immediate danger. It is employed generally to notify the driver ahead that the traffic light is about to change to green so you had better get moving; it is employed to give one-hand drivers something to do with the other hand; and it is employed to show disagreement with the thoughtfulness of a careful driver just ahead who has stopped while a Boy Scout assists an elderly person across the street. And, sometimes in direct annoyance when a policeman holds up traffic slightly to allow an ambulance or fire truck to go by.

More than 100 citizens in a petition presented to the Board of Education protested against the proposed construction of a fence around the Cranford Oval at a cost of $2,500, a proposal which was to be voted on at the school election. They stated that the fence would be unnecessary, unnecessary and expensive.

Tercentenary Tales

'Wurds' and 'Wurks' of a 'Fizzishun'

By JOHN T. CUNNINGHAM
No one in the class at Sandy Ridge School in Hunterdon County probably had one in the world for that matter, was as stupid as Cornelius Wilson, Larison.

Nine-year-old Cornelius stood helplessly as the schoolmaster berated him mercilessly in the fall of 1846. The schoolmaster warmed to his work. He put a dunce cap on the boy's head, placed leather spectacles on his nose and led him around the room as Sandy Ridge School rocked with laughter.

Years later, grown to manhood as one of Hunterdon County's most distinguished physicians, Cornelius Larison looked back on those "stupid" days when the spelling and pronunciation of the English language mystified him so much that a schoolmaster could make sport of him. Dr. Larison blamed his school troubles on a "bad alphabet" and the abominable spelling of English words.

Young Larison vowed that some day he would reform the "abominable" system, but first he had much to do. He became a school teacher, doctor, farmer, writer, publisher and printer—all at the same time.

Medicine began to rule his life in October, 1855, when he attended classes and autopsies at the College of Medicine in Philadelphia. Cornelius worked for professors, sold various wares on Philadelphia street corners and struggled to stay in the college.

He returned to Flemington High School (a private school) in April, 1856, to get a sounder background for medicine. As he studied, he planted peach pits on his father's farm and within three years owned 6,000 peach trees. The 18-year-old youth at this time had a cadaverous appearance. He carried only 96 pounds on his 5-foot, 10-inch frame. Underweight and under-financed, the Hunterdon farm boy took his slender prospects to Geneva Medical College, and earned a medical degree in January, 1863.

Within a month Dr. Larison rented a room in the Ringoes Hotel and settled down to 47 years of medical practice. The doctor's long medical career is warmly and fully told in "Country Doctor," by Dr. Harry B. Weiss (published in 1953 by the New Jersey Agricultural Society).

Hundreds of families depended on the slim physician. He drove a succession of horses and buggies over Hunterdon County roads until his flowing black beard grew grey, then snow white. He looked in late years like a patriarch, cloaked in a long black robe and a broad-brimmed, flat-top hat.

But Dr. Cornelius Wilson Larison never abandoned his love of teaching or his hatred for conventional spellings.

He was always teaching. Soon after he began medical practice, a stable boy named Ab Pittinger caught his fancy. Ab's detractors called him "the worst boy in town," but Dr. Larison patiently taught him to study and lived to see the once-incorrigible stable boy grow up to be a doctor.

Dr. Larison founded the Ringoes Seminary and the Academy of Science and Art, both notable Ringoes private schools. He worked hard at transmitting knowledge, building such things as a world globe five feet in diameter and a relief map of Asia, 80 feet square, in his garden. He took students on rambling wagon tours of central New Jersey.

Then Dr. Larison took on the "world" of "spelling." It "became" his major "work." The "Fizzishun" founded the Fonic Publishing House in Ringoes and took out after the English "lang-wag."

Both spelling and pronunciation had to be completely reformed and simplified, Dr. Larison argued. He listed and constantly to lecturers and criticized their pronunciations. He interviewed all the professors at Princeton and found every one deficient in speech, by his standards.

Dr. Larison wrote delightfully, then published his books in "simplified spelling" (with one "i"). His biographer says regretfully that Dr. Larison's personalized spelling kept people from reading him.

The doctor published such books as "Reminiscences of Scul Liff," "Reminiscences of a Teacher," "Is the Sol a Substantz?" and "A List of Wurds Which are Not Alwaz Pronounced in the Sam Wa—Even Bi Gud Cartful Specerz." (The spellings or mis-spellings, take your choice, are Dr. Larison's; that last word is "speakers" for those not phonically inclined.)

Dr. Larison was not unreasonable in most matters. He attended his medical practice seriously and well, but in phonic (or "fonic") spelling he devoted both time and energy that even his wife at times found difficult to understand. His fees from medicine went into "spelling" when he died in 1919 he left more debts than money.

REPORT TO THE PEOPLE FROM YOUR CONGRESSWOMAN

FLORENCE P. DWYER

It hardly seemed like a beginning at all, on Tuesday of last week, when the second and election-oriented session of the 88th Congress convened. There was little that was new. The problems, the politics, and the personalities had not changed in the short time since the grey dawn of the day before Christmas when we faced each other across the battle lines of foreign aid. Presidential politics were still with us and cast even broader shadows over the assemblage. The problems facing the country and the policies proposed to deal with them were the well-known and still controversial ones, though President Johnson set them in an intriguingly new mold. And there was the President, already the familiar occupant of the world's most powerful office, standing before us confirming in his first State of the Union address what he had promised just six weeks before in this same forum, that he would "translate into effective action" the ideas and ideals of his predecessors.

On the other hand, there is always change. And it was in the person of the President—the southern-western manner, the distinctive voice which reveals the odd combination of cowboy earthiness and sophisticated shrewdness—that the paradox of change and continuity was strikingly illustrated. Lyndon Johnson, the legislative technician and political master of Capitol Hill, was now adopting as his own a program on which many of his old colleagues had previously gagged. And in the process, much as both the man and the program remained essentially the same, both were beginning to take on new features and a distinctive appearance.

The Change From JFK to LBJ
The President's State of the Union message reflected this subtle transition. As I listened to this address—a very effective one, politically—and then read it again and thought about it, these three important changes became evident:

★ A greater insistence on priorities. President Johnson has, in effect, reshaped his inherited program by putting first things first, by indicating some order of importance among the numerous and varied programs recommended by President Kennedy.

★ A greater emphasis on economy and efficiency. Whereas President Kennedy placed greater stress on new ideas, unmet needs, and a "new frontier" of available opportunities, all involving federal action of some kind, his successor has emphasized the limits of federal resources and the need to hold the line on federal spending by increasing the efficiency of Government operations.

★ A more urgent demand for action. Secure, perhaps, in the confidence born of years of legislative leadership, President Johnson has cast aside what many critics saw as President Kennedy's too-cautious approach to Congress. He has insisted that his program be voted on as soon as possible, either yes or no, and has gone so far as to suggest specific time-tables for the tax reduction and civil rights bills.

In each of these changes can be seen President Johnson's highly sensitive understanding of the moods of Congress and the people. To this extent, he seems to have reacted positively to the criticisms many of us here had directed to the previous Administration and its Congressional leadership. Whether anything better will come of this remains to be seen. President Johnson's skill, determination, and good judgment will be tested severely in the months ahead—as it should be—by a Congress which will not play dead but which will continue to be careful and critical.

A Time To Act
Certainly, however, the President's program demands attention and consideration. However much individual members of Congress may disagree with the specifics, one must concede that the President has identified many of the real needs of Americans—for protection of civil rights, for a reduction of taxes and the added jobs this should create, for better housing and transportation, for a broad-scale attack on the scourge of poverty in the midst of abundance, and for a workable way of providing better health care for more of our older people.

There are, and should be, differences among us as to how best to achieve these objectives. The President will have to demonstrate that his way of doing things is superior to others and he must show that these needs can be met effectively and responsibly within the limits of our national resources. This is his big test.

As important as our domestic problems are and as much of the President's time and effort as they demand, our new Chief Executive has been forcefully reminded, for the first time in his Administration, that the United States cannot ignore the rest of the world, even for a moment.

Whatever happens in the aftermath of the explosion in Panama, and however widely the blame may be shared, our own part in this tragedy has hurt us badly. We have known for a long time the nature of the danger there, yet we were unprepared when it came. We had no Ambassador there. Our other officials could not even prevent their own people from violating the agreement with Panama governing the flying of flags, the salute to the flag. Our two big (Continued on Page 3)

One of the best kept secrets in town was the program and tea planned by members of the Cranford Methodist Church in honor of the Rev. Albert Allinger, pastor, and his wife, who had served the local church 15 years. Tributes were paid to the couple for their long service, and gifts were presented to them.

In addition to the adult pool, a wading pool was to be provided for youngsters as well as a play area.

A total of $1,616.89 was spent on a snowstorm which hit here during the week leaving a 1.7 inch snowfall. A new bulldozer with plow attachment was put to work for the first time. Patrick J. Grall, township engineer, reported.

New passenger service was planned by the Jersey Central Railroad beginning April 20. Improved and entirely new passenger service for all communities between New York and Hampton, with coordinated service to Newark was announced. Four self-propelled, modern "Budd cars" were to operate on long hauls and provide hourly service during the day for stations between Jersey City and Cranford.

A record school budget totaling $709,542.07 and representing an increase of $87,678.73 in the amount to be raised locally by taxation was approved by the Board of Education.

Announcement was made by the Board of Education that the voters at the school election would be asked to approve a $28,000 bond issue to acquire sites for construction of two elementary schools at some future date. One of the proposed sites was in the rear of the high school, running through to Brookside place, and the other fronted on Bloomingdale, Albany, Adams and Haskin avenues.

The Citizen and Chronicle reported that 100 years previously, on January 1, 1839, the Central Railroad of New Jersey had inaugurated its railroad service, and crowds lined the road from Elizabethtown to Plainfield to watch the passage of the first train to travel the road and complete the journey in one day. Fares were six cents a mile.

Property loss by fire in Cranford in 1938 was $3,125, a drop of $702 under the 1937 loss, according to the annual report of the Fire Department. The department answered 168 alarms, of which 20 were for property fires.

The Fenway Hat Co., formerly located in New York City, began operations in its new plant located in the Shaheen Building at 381 Centennial avenue. The company employed many Cranford people and was included among projects brought to Cranford by Capt. N. R. Fliske Post 388, VFW, to help alleviate the unemployed situation here.

More than 100 citizens in a petition presented to the Board of Education protested against the proposed construction of a fence around the Cranford Oval at a cost of $2,500, a proposal which was to be voted on at the school election. They stated that the fence would be unnecessary, unnecessary and expensive.

Anniversary Lecturer Holds Variety of Claims to Fame

Mrs. Anna Chennault, who will speak at the Cranford Adult School's 15 Anniversary Lecture on Monday is not only an author, lecturer and widow of a famous military man, but also a dress designer.

Mrs. Chennault will speak at 8:15 p.m. in the theatre of Union Junior College's Campus Center. Her topic will be "The Changing World of Asia."

Many of the great true love stories in history, tell of obstacles overcome and love finally won, but few can boast of hurdles so numerous and so high as those faced by Anna Chan and L. L. Gen. Claire L. Chennault of the Flying Tigers when they fell in love in China in the closing days of World War II.

In her book, "A Thousand Springs: The Biography of a Marriage," Mrs. Chennault relates with great tenderness and admiration for her late husband how he maneuvered his forces on many fronts before they could accomplish marriage. To mention only a few of the obstacles, there was the fact that to her family, none of whom had ever married outside the Chinese people, the general was a foreigner and on that score alone not at all suitable as a husband.

There was his firm decision to remain a Baptist. She was Catholic, and there was a further church problem for her because he was a divorced man. In their positions, he was a world-famous general, while she was a virtually unknown newspaperwoman in China.

Yet their life together as man and wife from 1947 for the short 11 years before the general's death in 1958 came to be regarded by all who knew them to be a marriage "made in heaven."

The title of Mrs. Chennault's best-selling book, "A Thousand Springs," comes from a Chinese poem by Wong Wei: "In the mountain established with the late President Kennedy's blessing to aid Chinese refugees in Hong Kong. She also is president of the General Lee Chennault Foundation, an organization to bring a closer relationship and understanding between the East and West.

Chinese Refugee Relief was organized in Washington in June, 1962, when between 15,000 and 20,000 new refugees turned up in Hong Kong and Macao in a mass exodus from Communist China. Mrs. Chennault's first move was to make a first-hand trip to the Far East to assess refugee needs and attitudes.

"Our idea is not just to send food and clothing to the refugees, though that is important, too," she explained. "But what we really want to do is to help them help themselves. These people have come out seeking freedom. We must try to make them our friends and keep them on our side. This will encourage people who are under communism to keep fighting."

Each year Mrs. Chennault returns to the Far East and to her second home in Taiwan to keep abreast of developments in that sensitive area. This year is no exception. She will visit Japan, Thailand, Hong Kong and the Philippines to sound out Asian attitudes.

Mrs. Chennault makes her home in Washington, D.C., with her two daughters, Claire Anna and Cynthia Louise. Working at Georgetown University, she has produced two new Chinese dictionaries, simplifying that complex language for machine translation research at the Institute of Language and Linguistics.

Despite these intellectual pursuits, Mrs. Chennault is feminine enough to be a dress designer, too. Much in demand for her creations, which fuse Chinese and American style, she recently completed a series of fashion designs shown widely in the United States and Latin America.

A militant fighter against the communism that strangles her homeland, Mrs. Chennault works ceaselessly for freedom's cause. That end, she is president of Chinese Refugee Relief, a private program established with the late President Kennedy's blessing to aid Chinese refugees in Hong Kong. She also is president of the General Lee Chennault Foundation, an organization to bring a closer relationship and understanding between the East and West.

MOD Drive Hitting Stride

Union County postmen will be loaded down with mailers for every occupant in the county this week as the month-long March of Dimes campaign hits its stride.

Contributions returned in these envelopes said Union County Chairman James M. McGowan, will be used to supply funds for medical care for birth defects and arthritis patients as well as for research into these diseases.

He pointed out that until recently, uniformly good care for birth defects and arthritis patients was difficult to obtain. Now thanks to the March of Dimes, there are nearly 70 March of Dimes medical centers across the nation providing not only new, but improved treatment for these conditions.

At these centers, too, Mr. McGowan explained, trained specialists work with families to aid them in helping the patient to lead a more useful life in a home environment.

"When you return your March of Dimes mailer this January, you will have the satisfaction of having helped to make the future brighter for all disabled persons," Mr. McGowan said.

Dr. MacKay Returns

Dr. Kenneth C. MacKay, president of Union Junior College returned last Wednesday after a three-day stay in Nassau—but it wasn't any vacation. He attended a meeting of the board of directors of the American Association of Junior Colleges. They made plans for the association's annual meeting to be held late in March in Miami, Fla. Dr. MacKay is one of the six national directors of the AAJC.

essions to the soundness of positions some of us have been urging.

The appointment by the President of a high-level government committee to review foreign aid and recommend specific ways to reduce spending and improve the effectiveness of the program—a tacit admission that reforms proposed by the Clay Committee have not in fact been implemented.

The announcement by the Administration that because of available funds from previous appropriations foreign aid spending this year could continue at roughly existing levels—which amounts to agreeing that Congress' cut in foreign aid funds from $4.5 billion to $3 billion did not "cripple" the program.

The news that the first big sale of wheat to the Soviet Union was concluded by private American grain dealers and approved by the Administration on an entirely cash basis—testimony to the fact that our position opposing the use of Export-Import Bank credit to finance the deal would not necessarily have prevented its consummation.

None of these developments made headlines, but they provide encouraging evidence that our positions on these issues were reasonable and responsible ones.

comes not only from Union County but from Middlesex, Somerset, Morris and Essex Counties. Because of the multi-county problem the original suggestion does not seem to be quite fair.

In conjunction with the Department of Conservation and Economic Development and whatever report comes from the Corps of Army Engineers there will have to be a solution to the problem. But, there is no reason why it has to cost the taxpayers of Union County 5 million dollars. By the time they get through paying for the new Court House and the suggested new county jail, they will have incurred a debt of great size.

'Nature Notes' Author Addresses Green Thumb Club

Finance Commissioner Farris S. Swackhamer, author of the "Nature Notes" column appearing in the Citizen and Chronicle, spoke on "Bird Watching in New Jersey" at a meeting of the Green Thumb Garden Club last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. William Gray of 127 Horning avenue.

The talk was illustrated with slides taken in bird sanctuaries of the state and maps showing bird migration routes.

Mrs. Gray was assisted by Mrs. Martin Ross as co-hostess. The table arrangement was by Mrs. Robert Outcault.

Mrs. Albert Baird of 15 Dunham avenue will be hostess for the club's February 12 meeting, which will feature a program on the care of trees, shrubs and evergreens in this area.

Local Artist's Work Selected For N. J. Exhibit

The work of Mrs. Elizabeth Sharpe of 407 Manor avenue is included in the eighth annual Exhibit of Contemporary New Jersey Art which opened Monday and will continue through February 8 at Bamberger's, Newark.

Selections for inclusion in the show were made by the following panel of internationally famous artists: Gregorio Prestopino, Jacob Lawrence and Leo J. Dee, Jr.

Thought for the Week A Living Masterpiece

WHAT a wealth of beauty there is in the paintings of the old masters! One is impressed by the colors, the forms, the proportions, and by the meticulous attention which the artists have given to each small detail. The paintings show a deep devotion to an ideal, an unselfish consecration to a purpose, a striving for perfection.

Those who have been truly great in human history have made their lives masterpieces by the same devotion to an ideal, the same consecration to a purpose and meticulous attention to detail. Surely the life of Christ Jesus was such a masterpiece. He knew his mission was to reveal the true nature of God and man, to demonstrate God's presence and power, and to reflect by his full thought and energy to that purpose. His was a steady, earnest endeavor, moment by moment and hour by hour, to be perfect, to do his duty, to bring glory to God, to bring the knowledge and understanding of God and man to those who were ready to receive it.

People brought to Jesus for healing were healed; those who questioned him were answered patiently; hungry multitudes were fed; tax money was provided. The devotion of the Master to his life purpose culminated in victory over death, and his earthly experience has remained, and will remain the outstanding masterpiece of all time.

Does not every man wish to make his life a masterpiece? In order to achieve that ideal, would not every man welcome a textbook that would show him the way?

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, is just such a textbook. Mrs. Eddy searched the Scriptures, studying the minutest details in the life of Jesus, the lives of his disciples and of the Old Testament prophets so that she might learn how they accomplished their mighty works, how their lives became masterpieces which have lived through centuries to inspire us today. Thus Christian Science is in accord with the Scriptures. In Science and Health, Mrs. Eddy gives the results of her findings, a key to the Scriptures, a means by which all may carve out lives that express nobility.

In answer to the question, "What is God?" Mrs. Eddy writes in Science and Health (p. 465), "God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love." She also explains that man is made in the image and likeness of God, as the Bible states, and that the purposes of God are reflected by man and manifested through him. These qualities of Mind, then, are ours to use on every occasion. As we realize the presence and power of infinite Mind, God, we quickly listen for His guidance, and wisdom comes to us to show us the right decision, large or small.

God as Spirit impels man to strive to reflect the qualities of God. For instance, man is the reflection of all-intelligent Mind. The wisdom, knowledge, intelligence, understanding, that constitute Deity are reflected by man and manifested through him. These qualities of Mind, then, are ours to use on every occasion. As we realize the presence and power of infinite Mind, God, we quickly listen for His guidance, and wisdom comes to us to show us the right decision, large or small.

As we realize the presence and power of infinite Mind, God, we quickly listen for His guidance, and wisdom comes to us to show us the right decision, large or small.

This, then, is the real man God created him — the real self, God of each one of us. Students of Christian Science acknowledge this real self as their only true self, and they strive to put off the false mortal sense of man and find the spiritual. In "Pulpit and Press," Mrs. Eddy quotes the Master as saying, "The kingdom of God is within you," and she writes (p. 31), "Know, then, that you possess sovereign power to think and kind rightly, and that nothing can dispossess you of this heritage and trespass on Love." And Jesus counseled (Matt. 5:44), "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."

As one consecrates himself to learning all that he can of God and the real man, dedicates his life to expressing his real selfhood, and strives to perfect each small detail of human experience, his life will become a living masterpiece. —The Christian Science Monitor.

Mrs. Anna Chennault, writer, journalist and widow of Gen. Claire Lee Chennault of Flying Tiger fame in World War II, will be the guest lecturer.

John L. Blach was the Cranford Adult School's first director, in 1949. He served until 1951, when Mrs. Charles Redden, who earlier had headed a committee of the Board of Education named to gather data on the need for an adult education program and to gauge local interest in such a program, was elected. In 1954, Mrs. Redden was given the dual role of director and president.

Channing Rudd served as president-director in 1955, and a year later Dr. Kenneth W. Iversen, dean of Union Junior College, was elected president-director of the school.

Dr. Iversen today issued an invitation to all Cranford residents to attend the 15th Anniversary Lecture. There will be no admission charge, Dr. Iversen said.

"This lecture is being presented to the community as a gift in appreciation of 15 years of patronage by Cranford residents," Dr. Iversen said. "We hope all our former students will attend the lecture."

The lecture is part of the observance of Continuing Education

Local club members also have been asked to save bleach labels, which will be redeemed: Pamphlets on the Children's Aid and Adoption Society are available from Mrs. Robert Shinkus of 330 Myrtle street, Garwood.

Local residents may help by donating layette clothing and maternity clothes in good condition, bleach labels or baby powder. Arrangements can be made with Mrs. Shinkus to have the donations picked up.

Junior Achievers Present Owl to UJC

The 775 high school students who participate in Junior Achievement in Union County have presented an owl to Union Junior College.

Not a live owl—which is the college mascot—but a wrought-iron sculpture of wrought iron. It has been installed in the main lobby of the college's new Campus Center building.

The owl was designed by Harry Devlin of Mountainside, a free lance artist.

Participating in a recent presentation ceremony were three members of the board of directors of Junior Achievement, Carlton Bunker, president of Diamond Expansion Bolt Company, Garwood; H. G. Willard, chairman of the board of directors of White Laboratories, Kenilworth; and W. Emlen Roosevelt, president of the National State Bank of Elizabeth; Dr. Kenneth C. MacKay, UJC president, and Mr. Devlin.

The owl was made up by Metall Fabricating Co., Elizabeth, to Mr. Devlin's specifications. "It was executed from a line drawing and expresses a contemporary feeling," the artist said. "Of course, an economy of line was required. I attempted to get an enigmatic quality open to a vast amount of interpretation."

Mr. Devlin prepared 35 to 40 variations before selecting the one executed.

Earlier in the evening, in a surprise ceremony, Mayor Kirwan was elected to honorary membership in the club. In nominating Mr. Kirwan, incoming President

Art Association, Mrs. Behlert paints in both watercolors and oils. She recently won third prize in traditional watercolors at the 1963 Trailside Museum art show. Currently she is doing free-lance mural work.

Pictures on exhibit at the Union County Trust Co. are: "Jamaica," in oils, and "Early Morn Adventure," "Mystic Seaport 2," "Ducks at Dawn" and "Dockyards," all in watercolors.

HERBERT W. LAYCOCK

Laycock spoke of the mayor's long service to the club, noting that he had served as president of both the Cranford and Union County organizations. Outgoing president, John Durfee, praised the mayor for his efforts in behalf of the Young Republican movement on the state, county and local levels, for his aid to Republican candidates, his civic work and his record with the Township Committee.

Mayor Kirwan was then presented with a gift by the club as a whole. In expressing his surprise and appreciation, the Mayor stated that he owed a great deal to the club for the start it gave him in public affairs and assured it of his continued interest and assistance.

TELEPHONE PROGRESS REPORT 1963

Over $118,000,000—a record sum—was spent for new construction to provide telephone facilities for a growing New Jersey. For example, thirteen new central offices were finished and seven others enlarged. And to keep pace with business growth plus the many new homes and families, about 125,000 new phones were installed throughout the state.

Pioneering in new communications technologies continued: Telstar II was launched; installation work began at the first electronic central office; a new transatlantic cable was begun from Beach Haven; and Touch-Tone, the brand-new push-button phone that resulted from Bell Laboratories research, was introduced in Summit and Chatham.

Over 4,000 young men and women began careers at the Telephone Company during 1963. The total annual payroll of the company is approximately $150,000,000—a sum that's important to local economies.

Other Bell System operations in New Jersey were—and are—important, too. For instance, in Kearny, Western Electric manufactured cables that contained 42 1/2 billion feet of wire—enough to circle a single strand 340 times around the globe. A big job—and a big contribution to our state's prosperity.

OPERA INTO BALLET — Members of the Chicago Opera Ballet are shown in characteristic scene as they tell the story of an opera in dance, using the opera's music as a dance score.

Chicago Opera Ballet Coming In Community Concert Event

The Chicago Opera Ballet will be presented on Sunday, January 26, at 3 p.m. in the Cranford High School auditorium as the second concert of the current season of the Affiliated Community Concert Association. Because of its repertoire of original works, choreographed and directed by Ruth Page, the ballet company is known as one of the country's most adventurous and creative troupes. The Chicago Opera Ballet was founded 10 years ago when the Chicago Lyric Opera was formed to revive grand opera in Chicago after a lapse of several seasons.

The idea of turning opera into ballet occurred to Miss Page many years ago and grew out of her dissatisfaction with the visual aspects of opera. She felt that it would be a beautiful thing to take the plot of an opera, cast its roles with young and handsome people who look the parts they are supposed to represent, dress them artistically, set them against evocative backgrounds, and let them tell the story clearly in dance, using opera's music as a dance score. The current tour of the company is covering 60 cities in 17 weeks. The repertoire of the company includes adaptations of "The Merry Widow," "Carmen," "La Traviata," "Die Fledermaus," "The Nutcracker," "Sleeping Beauty," "Walpurgis Night" (from "Faust"), "Pygmalion" and others. The January 26 performance will be open only to members of the Affiliated Community Concert Association and reciprocating groups. No admissions will be sold at the door.

'Electronic Ceramics' Topic For Science Seminar Tonight

Dr. John H. Koenig, director of the School of Ceramics of Rutgers University, New Brunswick, will discuss "Electronic Ceramics" at the Rutgers-Union Junior College Science Seminar for academically talented high school students tonight in the theatre of Union Junior College's Campus Center.

There are 275 students from 76 New Jersey high schools enrolled in the seminar.

"Electronic ceramics include a steadily increasing number of materials in which electrical conduction, polarization, and magnetization are not only properties of scientific interest, but are also properties responsible for the application of these ceramic products," Dr. Koenig said. "Progress in the development of these new materials in recent years is comparable to the spectacular growth of the electronics industry."

Dr. Koenig, who won his doctorate in 1938 at Ohio State University, has been director of Rutgers' School of Ceramics since 1945. Prior to joining Rutgers, he did insulation research for General Electric Co., was a research fellow at Ohio State's Engineering Experimental Station, was a research engineer with Hall China Co., and served in the Navy Department's Electronics Division.

Author of more than 70 technical papers, Dr. Koenig is a fellow of the American Ceramic Society. He won the Ceramic Association of New Jersey Award in 1958 for outstanding achievement in ceramics, the Lindbach award for outstanding teaching in 1963, and the Jepson Award in recognition of scientific achievements in ceramics in 1963. Dr. Koenig is president of the Sixth International Congress on Glass. He served as president of the American Ceramic Society in 1962-63, was director of the American Society for Testing and

Expanded Curriculum Marks Adult School's 15th Season

Seven courses never offered before will be available at the spring semester of the Cranford Adult School, which opens February 4 at the Orange Avenue Junior High School, it was announced today by Dr. Kenneth W. Iversen, president-director.

Dr. Iversen said the expanded and broadened program is being offered to mark the Cranford Adult School's 15th anniversary, and to cooperate with efforts of the Committee for Educational and Cultural Advancement to promote Cranford's educational and cultural resources.

The new courses are: Adolescent psychology, college admissions, advanced dictation, family planning, parliamentary procedure, the religions of man, and water coloring. Adolescent psychology will be offered from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. with Henry Rosal of the guidance department of the Hillside Avenue Junior High School as the instructor. The course will include discussions and explanations of the whys and wherefores of teenage behavior and the role parents must play.

Another teenage problem, getting into college, will be the subject of the college admissions course. Robert Blunne of Cranford, director of admissions at Newark-Rutgers, will be the instructor. The course will include lectures by college admission personnel, and a review of admission application procedure. Other topics will be the selection of colleges, study techniques, scholarships, loans and work opportunities.

Advanced dictation, designed for those who have had previous shorthand instruction and wish to increase their dictation speed, will be offered from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. The religions of man course will be available in two sections. The first section from 8:30 to 9:30 will discuss occidental religions, while the second part will consider oriental religions from 9:30 to 10:30 p.m. Students may sign up for either section individually or for both. The fee will be $10 for one hour and $15 for two hours.

Occidental religions will be an interpretation of the history of Judaism, Christianity and Islamism as they are lived in theory, in practice and mystically. Differences between Orthodox and Reform Judaism and Roman Catholic, Eastern Orthodox and Protestant Christianity will be discussed.

Oriental religions will discuss Hinduism, Taoism, Confucianism, Shinto, Buddhism and Zen. The course will consider the essence of each and how they are lived in Asia today.

David Basuck, a graduate student at Drew University, will be the lecturer for "The Religions of Man."

Water coloring will be taught by Miss Molly Marsh of the Westfield Art Association. The course will cover materials and methods of handling water color. Family Doctor Week Observance Slated Jan. 19-25

Governor Richard J. Hughes has issued a proclamation designating the week of January 19-25 as Family Doctor Week in New Jersey in connection with the annual convention of the New Jersey Chapter of the American Academy of General Practice, to be held in Atlantic City next week. During the convention, Dr. Edward M. Coe of 217 Holly street will be inducted as president of the state chapter. Dr. Coe has been serving as president-elect for the past year.

Pointing out that "the family doctor of earlier years symbolizes a cherished American tradition of self-dedication to the good of the community and the health of its people," Governor Hughes declared that "the general practitioner of today brings to his professional service not only an equal self-dedication but, in addition, a familiarity with most modern scientific theories and procedures, as well as a clear concept of his responsibility in serving the health needs of the whole family."

All that is worth reckoning is what we do, and the best of everything is not too good, but is economical and rich.—Mary Baker Eddy

For Those Interested in the Eye-Bank for Sight Restoration

Ten million children, women and men in the world today do not have this heritage; more than 350,000 of them in the United States alone.

Tragically, much of this blindness could have been prevented. Miraculously, thousands of the blind will see again, if you will help.

After death, you can help someone else see. This simple fact combined with years of medical research and painstaking improvements in surgical techniques, means that the window of the eye, the cornea, can be transferred from one person to another; that sight can be restored; that the blind may see. Of course it is a miracle; and you have the power to effect it.

You are indeed privileged to live in a world that permits so great a gift to your fellow men. Perhaps few will know of your generosity, but you yourself will live in the knowledge that you will have left a priceless legacy to someone now in darkness.

Eye donations fall far short of the need. There are 30,000 blind people in our country alone whose sight could be restored by corneal grafting if eyes were available today.

When you have promised your eyes, you will receive a card to be carried always in your wallet or pocketbook. It states that you have donated your eyes and that The Eye-Bank is to be notified immediately after your death.

The reason for the urgency of the card is that eyes must be removed within three to four hours after death by a trained surgeon. Most hospitals know The Eye-Bank's procedures and have doctors available to help. Within 50 miles of New York City The Eye-Bank will send a doctor, if necessary, to be sure eyes are removed properly.

They must then be examined at The Eye-Bank. The Red Cross Motor Corps, which generously cooperates, must be alerted to take the eyes to the hospital where the blind person's surgeon has arranged, on the shortest possible notice, to perform the operation. If the hospital is at a distance, airlines donate their services. The whole process must be completed within 48 hours. Probably you will have given sight to two persons. A patient receives only a single graft at a time and must have a second operation for the other eye.

It does not matter in most cases how old you are, or the cause of death, or if you wear glasses or have defective vision — provided the surface film of your eye is unscarred and healthy.

There is no disfigurement when eyes are removed after death. Authorities of all major religions have given full approval to the sight restoration program.

Your eye legacy should not be included in your will; since wills are not read until too late for the eyes to be of use.

There has never been a charge for The Eye-Bank's services. All activities have been made possible by contributions from foundations, institutions, and public spirited individuals. These contributions are used for:

PROVIDING EYES for the restoration of sight to the blind.

RESEARCH in laboratories devoted exclusively to eye damage and disease.

SURGICAL TRAINING in the techniques of corneal grafting.

CORNEAL SERVICE for referred patients from all over the United States who are seen at no charge if their economic situation warrants it.

Borough Hall Vote To Be Held on March 10

GARWOOD — A resolution setting March 10 as the date for a referendum on the proposed new municipal building was passed by Borough Council at its meeting Tuesday night. Voting in the special election is to take place between 2 and 8 p.m. at regular polling places.

Voted on at the referendum will be the question of whether an ordinance passed on October 8 and providing for a $320,000 appropriation for a new municipal building on Second Avenue shall go into effect or be nullified. Implementation of the ordinance was held up by the filing of qualified petitions for a referendum on October 16.

Mayor I. George Casabona announced that a series of meetings to acquaint the public with details of the plans for the new municipal building will be scheduled between now and the special election date. Meanwhile, he urged citizens to visit the present Borough Hall and acquaint themselves with the borough's existing facilities.

Following deliberation of more than an hour in executive session, council voted a penalty of a 15-day closing, less five days for a non-vault plea, for John Chinchir, trading as Garwood Rest, 259 South Avenue, on a charge of sale of beer to a minor on November 8. The resolution directed that the tavern be closed from 2 a.m. next Sunday to 7 a.m. January 29.

Instructions from the State Division of Alcoholic Beverage Control with regard to the case pointed out that the usual penalty in such cases is a closing of 25 days, less five days for a non-vault plea.

In recommending the lesser penalty, Councilman John E. Gallagher, chairman of laws and licenses, reported that the minor said to have made the purchase here admitted making similar purchases in other taverns in the county and that "his method of operation and appearance proved successful elsewhere."

Police Commissioner Frank Wanca requested that a letter be sent to the Cranford Police Department (a member of which picked up the minor involved and two others with beer in their possession) to make sure that complaints are made against the three boys involved for possession of alcoholic beverages.

Councilman Edward S. Tripka declared there were conflicting statements in the testimony and said that there were doubts in his mind, "but due to the ABC laws I'm forced to vote for a penalty against my better judgment."

A communication was received from the Rahway Valley Sewerage Authority reporting that Garwood's assessment for 1964 will total $24,827.98, payable in installments due April 1 and July 1. Mayor Casabona praised Police Chief Fred Falgout and Patrolmen Mario Miccio and Joseph Alexis for success in an investigation. (Continued on Page 2)

Urge Strict Ban Against Snow Parking

GARWOOD — Following a report on difficulties encountered in plowing and snow removal during and after this week's heavy snowfall because of parked cars, Street Commissioner Edward S. Tripka recommended at Tuesday night's Borough Council meeting that Borough Attorney Bernard Steiner be directed to draw up "a strong, enforceable ordinance" directed at solving this problem.

Councilman Tripka suggested an ordinance "to the effect that all cars must be placed in driveways at the beginning of a snowfall, or if no driveway is available that they be parked on a designated side of the street until the opposite side has been cleared and then moved to that side."

A plea for a similar ordinance was made at the meeting by Michael Wilhelm of 239 Third Avenue, who pointed out that those who cooperate by parking in driveways during snowstorms are literally penalized by those who do not, because the latter prevent the complete clearing of some streets, cause accident hazards and impede the progress of emergency vehicles.

Following the start of the storm Sunday night, employees of the street department under Superintendent Joseph Stibler began salting and sanding intersections and trouble spots at 3 a.m. Monday, and plowing work began two hours later and continued through Tuesday.

"We have successfully opened up all streets except where parked cars prevented doing so," Councilman Tripka announced at Tuesday night's meeting. He added that "the men have worked hard and diligently in plowing the streets and keeping them open in the face of heavy drifting."

Snow removal work was begun on Tuesday, but here, too, the problem of parked cars was causing difficulty, the street chairman reported.

A payloader was put into use to remove snow from in front of fire hydrants on the north side are to be made today.

Street Commissioner Tripka resumed yesterday with collections on the south side of the borough, and the normal Tuesday collection. (Continued on Page 2)

Pen Pal Friendship Brings English Sailor to Borough

KENILWORTH — A pen pal correspondence started seven years ago with a student in Kenilworth, England, has started to pay dividends. It was reported this week at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield.

On Wednesday Bonnie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Banfield, of 735 Newark Avenue, received a call from Richard Percival, 20, of Kenilworth, England, who is serving with the British Merchant Marine and had docked that day at Port Newark. Richard is the brother of Joyce Percival, who is Bonnie's pen pal.

The Banfields entertained the youth and his cabin mate, David Angus of Glasgow, Scotland, at dinner here and bowling. In return the Banfields — Bonnie, Susan, 16; Walter, 17; and Douglas, 9, and their parents — were taken on a tour of the British freighter which is enroute to New Zealand and Australia.

Both sailors, apprentice navigators, will become full-fledged navigators in September. They are serving a four-year term, and have been at sea since July.

Mrs. Banfield reported the two youths spent most of their time eating while on land, and the two returned to the ship well laden with cakes and cookies made at the Banfield home.

Bonnie's correspondence started with her English friend in seventh grade when Bonnie was in Mrs. Virginia Aaron's history class at Harding School. The two have exchanged letters frequently and gifts at each birthday and Christmas.

Site for Shooting Range Asked by Kenilworth PBA

KENILWORTH — The Kenilworth PBA is expected to set up a shooting range for the Kenilworth Police Department on a 100 by 100 foot lot on Lafayette Avenue on the outskirts of the borough, it was reported at a meeting of Borough Council on Tuesday night in the Municipal Building.

The group has asked to lease lots 1 to 4 in Block 23 fronting on Lafayette Avenue, an area zoned for light industry. Council will auction the lease on January 28. The property will be given for 25 years at $1 yearly.

The lease will be given permission to erect a meeting hall and will be responsible for care of the building and grounds.

Council introduced an ordinance allocating $52,000 for the purchase and acquisition costs of a one-story building adjacent to the Municipal Building. The borough will pay $50,500 to Mrs. Margaret Wreeman of Elizabeth, owner of the unoccupied building. The remaining funds will be used for acquisition fees. Final hearing will be on January 28.

Councilman Peter S. Patuto, chairman of recreation, pointed out that the borough will now be in a position to offer a Senior Citizens' program in the new building. Senior citizens will be able to meet there for lectures, activities, and other social activities. The new building also will provide additional office space for borough offices.

On final reading council adopted an ordinance rezoning an area on Fairfield and Michigan Avenues to Residence B from Residence A. The area contains two-family homes, and the change was made in the zoning ordinance to conform with the present usage.

Councilman Frank Mascaro, council president, presided in the absence of Mayor William J. Ahern, Jr.

It was reported 10 youths had been hired through YES, Youth Employment Service, to clear snow from fire hydrants.

Councilman Mascaro complimented the public works department for its snow clearing operation. Four plows started work shortly after the storm began Sunday night, he reported. Eight employees operated the plows.

Drop in State Aid Helps Boost School Budget

KENILWORTH — Public hearing on the 1964-65 school budget of $557,854.75 will be held Monday, January 27, at 8 p.m. at Harding School, it was announced by Dory Himpele, finance chairman of the Kenilworth Board of Education.

The new budget, up $15,012.25 over the current year, will be voted on in the annual school election on February 11. The budget is printed on page 4 of this section.

Mr. Himpele reported that the amount to be raised by taxation will be $485,451.85, an increase of $42,301.90. This jump is attributed primarily to a decrease in state aid of $27,289 as a result of the increase in borough rates. Kenilworth received $99,492 in state aid for the current year, and has been allotted $72,203 for the 1964-65 school year.

The budget allocates $377,233 for instructional purposes, an increase of $17,648. Mr. Himpele noted that the minimum salary for a starting teacher with a bachelor's degree has been increased from $4,900 to $5,000. It is expected one new teacher will be hired next year to meet an increase in kindergarten enrollment.

The increase in the budget also reflects interest payments of $11,735 due on the new $350,000 bond to be erected on Harding School. The new wing was approved by voters last May. Mr. Himpele said the greatest bulk of the bonded indebtedness on the new wing will be absorbed in the new budget.

Other current expenses in the new budget include: Administration, $30,220; attendance and health services, $9,075; transportation, $5,025; operation of plant, $44,025; maintenance, $10,275; and fixed charges, $19,150. The board plans to hire a full-time janitor in order to eliminate the need for summer helpers.

...vocational schools

have an annual enrollment

averaging nearly 35,000 students.

New Jersey has 15 county vocational schools, 6 city vocational schools and 6 city schools with vocational departments, all of which provide private instruction in trades and industries as well as agriculture, home economics, and practical nursing. These schools, located throughout the state, have both day and evening programs and many other general high schools offer extensive vocational programs. Wherever possible, the subject matter is geared to the special needs of the area.

Thirty-six state approved private trade schools help swell the total enrollment in the vocational training program to over 88,000. There are 891 teachers and counselors in vocational fields throughout the state. Skilled labor attracts industry which in turn creates more jobs. Year after year, 85% of the graduates of the vocational-technical high schools are placed in the occupation for which training was given. This is indicative of the selectivity of students, quality of instruction and the ability of graduates to perform and progress on their job.

High Living Standard Seen Defense Against Communism

The best defense against Communism is an improved standard of living, Howard Tiger, a retired chemical engineer, told members of the Rotary Club last Thursday at Cranford Methodist Church.

With science and technology reducing the death rate, particularly among infants throughout the world, the speaker predicted that the world population of three billion will double within the next 40 years.

He explained some of the problems attendant on the rapid population increase, such as food, shelter, education and medical supplies. He suggested "planned parenthood" and birth control as one means of keeping the population explosion under control.

Mr. Tiger reported the gross national product in this country had risen from $2,100 per capita six years ago to $3,000 today, whereas in India and Latin America the GNP is around $50 to $60. He said the GNP in the Common Market countries of Europe is presently around $1,700. The speaker explained that in countries where standards are low to start with, such as in many of the underdeveloped nations, their percentage of growth in GNP would be much greater than in this country.

Mr. Tiger asserted that there must be "an alliance for progress throughout the world or there will be perpetual poverty" in the years to come.

Edwyn M. Lewis of the vocational service committee introduced the speaker.

President Lewis Laird announced that $4,135 has been sent to the flood victims in Italy by Rotary Clubs in this district. He welcomed back E. C. Wolford, a club member, who has been vacationing in Hawaii.
