Proposed Master Plan Reflects Changing Character of Community

Arrests After Fracas Solve Burglary, Car Theft Cases

Arrests made in connection with a fracas at Warner Plaza opposite the Cranford Diner at 10:30 p.m. Friday led to the solving of cases involving burglaries at three local business establishments and the theft of a car, Police Chief Lester W. Powell reported this week.

Answering a call reporting the disturbance Friday night, Lt. Lawrence T. Bonnell and Patrolmen John J. Herzer, Steven D. Schlapak and Lawrence T. Thomas took into custody Shannon L. Rimer, 21, of 24 Doering Way, on charges of threatening to kill and carrying a concealed weapon.

Chief Powell said Frankie Rivera, 18, of Elizabeth, charged that Rimer threatened him with a pistol during an argument, and a search of Rimer's car by the officers revealed a .32 calibre automatic under the front seat.

Also arrested in connection with the altercation were a 14-year-old Cranford boy, who was charged with intoxication, and a 14-year-old Cranford girl, who was booked on charges of loitering and intoxication.

Detective Sgt. A. Frank Burr and Detectives Michael F. Pedraro and Edward J. Klubenspies, who had had the 14-year-old boy under surveillance as a suspect in several breaking and entering cases, then took over the case.

As a result of their further investigation, Rimer also was charged with larceny of a firearm and breaking, entering and larceny, carrying a concealed weapon (knife), breaking, entering and larceny, receiving stolen property and larceny of a motor vehicle.

The investigation also led to the arrest on Saturday of Allan R. Rappaport, 18, of 206 Thomas St., on charges of breaking, entering and larceny of a motor vehicle, and a 17-year-old Cranford boy on charges of breaking, entering and larceny.

Chief Powell said the investigation resulted in the solution of entries at Jackson's Blue Room, 228 Centennial Ave., on April 8, in which 25 cartons of cigarettes, a quantity of wristwatches, 95 blank checks and $274 in cash were reported stolen; at the Almart Bakery, 224 Centennial Ave., on March 26, in which baked goods and $2 in cash were taken, and at the Cranford Diner, which Patrolman Robert F. Hand discovered had been broken into as he was making his rounds at 2:40 a.m. Friday.

The diner proprietor, Nicholas Billias, reported an inventory revealed over $600 in cash missing there. Investigation by Detective Klubenspies indicated entry was gained by removing a window grating at the rear of the building.

Chief Powell reported that Andrew Stanczyk, 21, of Newark, now in the Union County Jail on motor vehicle charges, also will be charged here with breaking and entering and larceny in connection with the case.

Cleanup Week Dates Announced

The township's Spring Cleanup Week program will be conducted May 18 through 23, it was announced this week by Health Officer Nicholas J. Rice.

During that week, local scavengers will remove, without extra charge, anything and everything placed at the curb on regular collection days, Mr. Rice said. Articles heavier than two men can move will be picked up on a second call with additional help or equipment.

The health officer warned that it is the responsibility of the owner to see that doors are removed from discarded refrigerators.

Cranford's proposed Master Plan was evolved after consultation with many local groups and individuals. Howard M. Siegel, chairman of the Planning Board, told members of the Cranford Republican Club Tuesday night in the Municipal Building.

Public hearings on the Master Plan will get underway on May 18 in the Municipal Building.

Explaining that the character of the community has changed over the years—particularly since the rapid population influx following World War II—Mr. Siegel said Robert Catlin Associates, the planning consultants, endeavored to take all of these factors into consideration in planning for the future development of the township.

And, contrary to what some people may say, the chairman continued, Cranford still has a long way to go to complete development.

A number of residents, he noted, were not in favor of industry when they moved to Cranford several years ago. However, with the rapid rise in school costs, most of these same people today are very much in favor of the township's Industrial Park and Office-Building areas, Mr. Siegel declared.

He discussed the street plan which makes provision for peripheral roads, including the cutting of Galloway Hill Rd. through to North Ave., and also the opening of Ridge St., Columbia Ave. and Arbor St. to Kenilworth. These changes, he said, will help dilute traffic.

"We cannot isolate ourselves," Mr. Siegel stated. "We must live with our neighbors."

Touching on the controversial subject of apartment houses, the chairman declared there is a great difference of opinion as to whether apartment houses create additional "good" ratables. He said the Planning Board is of the opinion that the present apartment house facilities are adequate. In the new Master Plan, two new zones—R-5 and R-6—were created to recognize existing apartments and garden apartments.

He explained that the land use map provides the basis for the official township map. Once adopted, he said, the map implements the

Welfare Association Provides Assistance in Special Cases

"While it is true that most of us in Cranford live in comparative comfort in these days of prosperity, there are those in Cranford who cannot make ends meet without some help from others."

This point was made by Mrs. Arthur G. Lennox, executive secretary of the Cranford Welfare Association, in announcing that the association is making an appeal this week for funds to bring its 1964 budget up to a minimum level.

High School Librarian To Retire

The resignation of Elmer Weber, librarian for the past eight years at Cranford High School, was accepted, and appointment of nine teachers was made by the Board of Education on Tuesday night in Lincoln School.

Mr. Weber, who joined the Cranford school system in 1954, taught English for two years before becoming librarian. He is retiring under the new S-16 law passed last year by the state legislature, which permits certain teachers to receive the double benefits of pension and Social Security if they retire before July 1.

Mr. Weber has extensive teaching experience in Nebraska, Pennsylvania and New Jersey and taught at the University of (Conn.) Bridgeport. He received a bachelor of arts degree from Yankton (S. D.) College in 1926; master's degree in education from the University of Nebraska in 1934, and a master's degree in library science from Rutgers University in 1959.

Among the nine new teachers are two from Cranford—Mrs. Anne Bodnar who is serving as a long-term substitute in the high school mathematics department until the regular teacher returns from sick leave, and Mrs. Ida Eastburn, who will start as a remedial reading teacher in September.

Mrs. Eastburn, a reading teacher in the Millburn schools, has had extensive teaching experience in the elementary grades, special education classes, and remedial reading. She was an associate professor of special education last year at Newark State College. She holds a bachelor of science degree from Union College, Barboursville, Ky.; master's and Ed.S. degrees from George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tenn.

Hired as an instrumental teacher in the elementary schools is Gerson Horowitz of Irvington, who

Meetings on Swim Pool Set; Applications Pass 1,000 Mark

Cranford has a mandate from more than 1,000 local families to go forward with a municipal swimming pool, Mayor H. Raymond Kirwan said yesterday, but added that the Township Committee still has not decided on a location or final method of financing.

Wallace Vote Seen 'Shocking' By Thomas in Lecture Here

Norman M. Thomas, six-time Socialist Party candidate for president, called the substantial number of votes for Alabama Governor George C. Wallace in Wisconsin and Indiana primaries "disgraceful and shocking" in a talk yesterday to government students at Union Junior College.

"It is a lie to say he's fighting for state's rights; he's fighting for racism," Mr. Thomas told the UJC students.

The long-time figure on the American political scene said there are no moral or intellectual reasons to oppose the fight for equality.

"It is a chronically bad lie that we provide liberty for all as we profess in our allegiance to the flag," the speaker declared. "There was no genuine equality for the Negro even after the 14th amendment was adopted."

He said America has "a chance for a peaceful revolution" because of the non-violence of the Negro movement, which he said has no parallel in history.

Mr. Thomas urged the students to seek answers to the basic questions of the times in the areas of poverty, and war and peace.

"Intellectually we must examine what excuse there is for poverty in our time," he said. "We owe much to President Johnson for his war on poverty. Many of his plans are good as far as they go. It will be an expensive war, but a war that will bring immediate repayment."

The former Socialist presidential candidate said he would insist on two additions to President Johnson's war on poverty program: improvement in the minimum wage law, especially for agricultural and migratory workers, and a war against slums. He added that the war on slums will require planning and cooperation, but "it can be done if we care about it."

Mr. Thomas said the nation "has been cursed by slums." He added that a war on slums would "add to our cultural wealth."

The speaker offered the students a four-part foreign policy for the United States: General disarmament, international control of arms through the United Nations and other international agencies, wisdom in dealing with current crises, and a world-wide war on poverty.

He said he would change current American policy by accepting as fact that war is unthinkable in the body and the municipal swimming pool committee will be held tonight to discuss the entire project in light of the bonafide membership applications received as well as the sentiments of local residents who are opposed to the municipality building a pool.

A meeting also will be held later this week or early next week, Mayor Kirwan said, with representatives of the Bellingers Committee which opposed the Parkway site, the location recommended by the pool committee.

Robert M. Crane, chairman of the pool committee, indicated yesterday that his group still is of the opinion that the Parkway site is the "logical and best" location for the pool. He said any change from that site probably will result in "wholesale resignations" of members of his committee who have worked on the pool project for the past two years.

As of yesterday, a total of 1,027 applications for pool memberships, accompanied by $10 deposits, had been received in the office of Township Treasurer Dudley J. Croft. Although the deadline has officially passed, pool applications still are being accepted, it was said.

Mr. Crane said that with more than 1,000 bonafide applications now in hand, it is his opinion that the township is in a position to go to Trenton and ask approval of a bond issue and proceed with the project. His committee, he said, has secured from Harry Spies, pool architect, estimates for a smaller pool and smaller bathhouse. In all probability, if the project is undertaken with less than the 1,500 families planned initially, the annual membership cost will be increased about $10 a year to $85, he said.

However, both Mr. Crane and Mayor Kirwan were in agreement yesterday that once a definite site is selected and work gets underway, another 500 families will seek memberships.

The mayor said the governing

Observatory Decision Due This Evening

Board of Adjustment will hold a special meeting at 9:30 o'clock tonight in the Municipal Building to consider and render its decision on the application of Union Junior College for permission to construct a $100,000 observatory in the rear of the Nomahegan campus property. Two evenings of public hearings were held last month.

A decision also will be rendered in the application of Howard Development Co. for a variance from front yard and minimum lot area requirements to permit construction of a one-family dwelling at 702 Orange Ave. Hearing on this application was March 2.

At a meeting Monday night, the board voted to recommend the granting of a variance from minimum lot requirements to Linda Shawde and James DiFabio to permit construction of a one-family dwelling at 44 Spruce St. in a Residence-2 zone. Hearing was held earlier. Final approval must be voted by the Township Committee.

A postponement to June 1 was

Search for Old Photographs Yields One of First Mayor

As a result of a recent story in the Citizen and Chronicle, the Cranford Historical Society during the past week received a photograph of the township's first mayor, Sylvester M. Cahill, Sr., who served in 1871, the year Cranford was incorporated by an act of the State Legislature.

The Cranford Historical Society plans to present the pictures of Cranford's former mayors to the township for display in the Municipal Building.

The interesting manner in which the photograph of the first mayor and his wife, Mary Bigelow Cahill, was obtained was related this week by Roderick W. Smith, chairman of the Historical Society committee in charge of the project.

Mrs. Bertha Linaweaver of 33 Columbia Ave., reading of the society's search for pictures of former mayors, recalled that Mrs. James (Eloise L.) Wood of Long Branch had mentioned to her about a year and a half ago that she was a descendant of the Cahills. Contacted by Mrs. Linaweaver, Mrs. Wood found the photograph of Mayor Cahill and his wife in one of her family albums.

Mrs. Cahill was a sister of Wil-policemen to the UJC campus. Others who will participate in the opening exercises Monday at 8:30 a.m. in the theatre of the Campus Center are: Mayor H. Raymond Kirwan, Public Safety Commissioner Edward K. Gill and Dr. Kenneth W. Iversen, UJC dean. Police Chief Lester W. Powell of Cranford, academy dean, will preside.

This will be the first time the Police Training Academy has been conducted during the spring. The academy has been conducted at Union Junior College since the college moved to its new campus opposite Nomahegan Park in 1959. The academy offered full-time classes for the first time a year ago when the program was expanded from 190 to 210 hours of instruction. Chief Powell said the program conforms completely with the recommendations of the New Jersey Police Training Commission.

Instruction in police headquarters routine will be added to the curriculum this year, Chief Powell reported. He added that the emphasis this year will be on community and public relations, and patrol practice.

Instructors for the Police Training Academy will be provided by the Berkeley Heights, Cranford, Elizabeth, Hillside, Linden, New

'Motivation for Medicine' Discussed By Doctor Slated for TV Appearance

"Eight years of college... and who knows how many years after that! And besides, how can a boy of only 17 be so sure of what he wants to do 10 years from now?" Dr. Henry J. Mineur, president of the Cranford Board of Education, remarked in discussing the television program, "The Making of a Doctor," in which he is to be a featured "actor."

"While the years of education... and the tuition costs... would represent some cause for concern," Dr. Mineur continued, "they would probably be secondary to your thoughts about the wisdom of the decision. What would your reservations be as a parent?"

"It may be true that his guidance counselor in high school advised him to investigate the field of medicine, but how much does he know about medicine and what it takes to become a doctor? He may have thought of the kid as a doctor material, but then again, the boy may have sounded so inspired about the prospects that the counselor may have given support."

"Actually you would be representative of many parents who are finding it confusing to accept the bold determination of today's youth."

"The reason behind this determination is motivation, the motivation that comes at an especially early age in those aspiring careers in teaching and medicine. This can be attributed to the early exposure of youngsters to educators and physicians and the subsequent self-identification with a favorite teacher or the family doctor."

"A recent University of Pennsylvania survey found that the decision to enter the medical profession among students attending medical school was made somewhere between 16 and 18 years of age. And, it was also found that the decision was reached even

Fluoridation Benefits Told In Health Exposition Lecture

"All available public health reports indicate that tooth decay can be substantially reduced by early and adequate dietary fluoride administration," Dr. Edward M. Coe, local physician and president of the New Jersey Academy of General Practice, declared at a special program of the Public Health Exposition held in the Municipal Building on Sunday by B'nai B'rith.

Women in conjunction with CECA.

"Dental decay, one of the most prevalent and widespread diseases in the world," Dr. Coe maintained, "is not restricted by age, sex or economic status. At the present time there are more than 40 million people who have had a reduction in dental caries as a result of living in areas with sufficient fluoride in the water supply. At the same time, approximately 140 million people are denied this advantage, and it is estimated that 87 million individuals have decayed teeth requiring treatment."

As a physician, Dr. Coe explained, he equated the advantages of fluorinated water with those of other preventive measures such as those obtained from immunization procedures for diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough.

"Fluoridation of water is the 'shot' we must administer to our children if they are to have less decayed, missing and filled teeth," he said.

Dr. Coe further outlined the following approved methods of fluoride administration: 1) fluoridation of public water supply, 2) fluoride supplementation prescribed on an individual basis (tablets to be swallowed, dissolved in drinking water, or as a vitamin-fluoride product).

Among the pictures are water color renditions of the museum building as it looked in 1923, including a barn since removed, and the old police headquarters, formerly located on North Ave. across from the new Municipal Building, razed upon completion of the latter to make room for the new parking lot.

The lesson was evidently lost on one little boy who asked later, "Teacher, will you make me a chicken like that some day?"

There is a water color of the duct, 3) topical application performed by a dentist.

Regarding the safety of fluoride, Dr. Coe asserted that virtually all recognized scientific and professional organizations wholeheartedly endorse fluoridation, and that no recognized scientific group opposes it.

The local cost per capita of fluoridating the water supply, Dr. Coe estimated, is between 5c and 12c a month.

Prior to his talk, Dr. Coe showed a film, "A Drop in the Bucket," a documentary describing the efforts of a dentist in a small community to obtain a fluoridated water system and the procedures which he and others used to obtain public support and acceptance of the plan.

Historical Society Receives Gift Of Paintings

A collection of scenes of Cranford painted by the late W. Leslie Crump, local commercial artist, has been donated to the Cranford Historical Society by his widow, Alice M. Crump. The paintings have been on display at the society's Museum for the past several months.

Among the pictures are water color renditions of the museum building as it looked in 1923, including a barn since removed, and the old police headquarters, formerly located on North Ave. across from the new Municipal Building, razed upon completion of the latter to make room for the new parking lot.

There is a water color of the

Hinman house at 102 North Union Ave., which originally was the manse for the First Presbyterian Church located on the site of the portion of Alden St. from North Union Ave. to North Ave.

A view of Alden St. from Mith St. to North Union Ave. in the period of approximately 1923, and a painting of the central business parking area behind North Union Ave. before the creation of the new parking plaza; there, also are included.

Mr. Crump, until his death in 1962, was a commercial artist sharing since 1927 a studio in Cranford with his wife, a portrait painter. Although Mrs. Crump is still active, Mr. Crump was retired the last few years of his life, devoting his time to his hobby of painting oil and water colors of scenes he visited on his trips to Europe, primarily England.

Always interested in heraldry, when the Township Committee approached Mr. Crump to design a municipal seal in 1962, he contributed his services and completed the seal just prior to his death. Authentic in heraldic tradition, the seal is presently displayed in the Municipal Building assembly room.

Science Show at High School Draws 1,000 Parents, Youths

More than 1,000 adults and youngsters flocked to the CECA-sponsored science program at Cranford High School last Friday. Science and mathematics projects were shown by more than 200 students from the elementary and secondary schools to answer the question, "What does Johnny actually do in the science lab or math class?"

In the chemistry laboratory, students performed experiments on molecular weight determination, anion and cation analysis, determination of the Avogadro number, titration and precipitation techniques, and others. Among the experiments shown in the physics laboratory were an oscilloscope showing waves and energy changes translated into electrical signals; experiments in photometry, and measurement of intensity of illumination as a function of distance. Special projects in biology included work on enzymes, comparison and histology of fresh and salt-water fish, a study of mutation in mice, a study of embryology in chicks, and a study of waking and sleeping habits of a chameleon and praying mantis.

The mathematics room exhibited numerous posters highlighting basic theorems and concepts, such as prime numbers and unusual number systems; lantern slides on the internal angles of polygons; charts of conic sections; examples of paperfolding, and geometry reports.

The biology exhibits featured work on photosynthesis, shell collections, pesticides, chromatography, and microscope slide preparation techniques.

General science drew on many fields for its exhibits, including work on the earth's atmosphere, evolution of the horse, oil in America, a Wilson cloud chamber, operation of a photocell, and utilization of Vitamin C in plants.

The elementary science room showed work on a wide variety of subjects ranging from charts of the human body to electric motors, dinosaur models to a Vanguard rocket model, weather instruments and magnets, a simple spectroscope and a homemade "constellation" projecting silhouettes of well-known constellations.

Report From Trenton

By STATE SENATOR NELSON F. STAMLER

The professional phrase makers and public relations men are at it again, softening up the taxpayer for the big kill. Now they're talking about a private "bi-partisan tax conference" to recommend the "broad base tax."

What they mean, of course, is a secret meeting of top politicians of both parties to choose between a sales tax and an income tax — or possibly both taxes. The huddle is supposed to last for five days. And meanwhile, nobody's allowed inside to find out what's going on — not even the press!

That way, when they break up the meeting and announce which tax they decided on, nobody can get blamed for it!

And to make the cheese absolutely binding, the announced plan is to steamroller some tax through the legislature and get it signed by the governor real quick — and this is a quote — "without partisan comment."

This means, very simply, that anybody who's against it better keep his mouth shut, or he commits political suicide.

Who do they think they're kidding? I for one will never stand for it. And I'm positive there are other responsible legislators in Trenton who won't knuckle under either.

They can call it a "bi-partisan conference" all they want, it still spells back room politics to me. And as much as I've had honest differences with Governor Hughes in the past, I don't be-

Luncheon Panel Looks

At Discrimination Areas

A panel discussion of "One Family Under God—Opportunities in Housing and Employment" was conducted at the annual May Fellowship Luncheon of the Cranford Council of Church Women last Friday at Osceola Presbyterian Church.

Taking part as panelists were Rev. John R. Dexheimer, pastor of the Cranford Methodist Church, who discussed two myths in housing; Rabbi Sidney D. Shanken of Temple Beth-El who aired the moral issues of racial discrimination; and Rev. and Mrs. Frank Williams of St. Mark's A.M.E. Church who discussed employment and the importance of dignity for all men. Mrs. Everett Brantley was moderator.

All panelists are members of the Cranford Committee for Open Housing. A question and answer period followed.

Well arranged time is the surest mark of a well arranged mind.—Sir Isaac Pitman.

tion with the breaks at the Blue Room and the bakery. The motor vehicle - larceny charges against Rappaport and the 14-year-old boy concern a car owned by Miss Carol C. Hutchinson of Scotch Plains which was stolen from its parking place at the Medical Center, 19 Holly St., last Thursday night and found abandoned on Chestnut St. at noon Friday.

Rimer and Rappaport were sent to the Union County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail, each, to await arraignment in Municipal Court here next Monday night, at which time Stansky also will be brought here from the jail for arraignment. The 17-year-old, and 14-year-old boys and the 14-year-old girl were released in the custody of their parents pending Juvenile Court action on the charges against them.

Chief Powell reported yesterday that a quantity of the loot in the three burglaries, including the cigarettes, a number of the blank checks and the wristwatches, had been found in a room in a Newark apartment and that a small amount of cash also had been recovered.

The chief said the investigation is continuing and it is anticipated that other suspects may be questioned, in connection with the cases.

Motivation for

earlier in those whose father or other relative was a practicing physician." The motivation required for medicine is depicted in a three-part film series being produced by National Educational Television called "The Making of a Doctor," to be telecast nationally May 12, 19 and 26. Dr. Mineur will appear as the family physician in part three of the series.

Aimed at giving both students and parents an idea of how much motivation it takes to become an M.D., the programs provide a first-hand itinerary through pre-medical and medical school education, and arduous years of internship and residency at a community hospital, and, finally, the soul-searching decisions of the young practitioner when he must choose between research, public health or private practice.

The increasing role of the high school guidance counselor has had a profound effect in recent years in channeling students' motivations toward a career in medicine, Dr. Mineur said.

"Cranford and other large schools today," he continued, "employ full-time people trained in the profession of vocational guidance to devote their efforts to conscientiously appraising the capabilities of young people and channeling their motivations towards an appropriate career. Obviously, keen observation and astute vocational knowledge are required to help a good science student select his life's work out of the numerous career possibilities in the fields of physical and biological science, medicine, or engineering.

"The esteem and the important contributions of the guidance counselor are not recognized everywhere," Dr. Mineur pointed out. "In some schools, advising students is still not given the recognition it should receive. Oftentimes, it is merely a job tacked onto regular teaching duties. As a result, many counselors, because of time limitations, are not properly informed as to what medical schools want."

"Yet, in these days of doing things young — young marriages, young decisions, young careers — a greater responsibility for directing appropriate candidates to medical schools will fall upon the person whose job it is to guide the young mind into a lifelong career — the high school guidance counselor."

Pictures of the following mayors, and the period they served, are still being sought: Henry Harrison, 1876; James McGowan, 1878; William D. Wood, 1879, 1881, 1883-84; John W. Banker, 1882, and Howard Cromwell, 1899-1900.

Mr. Smith reported that pictures are copied and enlarged to uniform size and the original copies are returned to the owners.

body presently is weighing other types of financing in light of some of the responses which came in from the community-wide mailing of the swimming pool brochure. One resident sent in $20, instead of $10, and said he would be happy to increase his check to $300 if it would help get the project underway soon.

In addition to the 1,027 applications, the township up to yesterday had received 250 replies indicating residents were in favor of the pool but were not interested in joining at this time. Some of these said they presently are members of other pools. A total of 125 replies were received expressing opposition to a municipal pool.

Applications for backyard swimming pools have dropped off this spring compared with the past several years, it was learned yesterday from the building inspector's office. This could be attributed, it was said, to the cool spring or to expectations of a municipal pool.

* Safety, Health Among Cleanup Benefits

The long-awaited arrival of sunny spring weather was accompanied this week by an announcement by Health Officer Nicholas J. Rice that the township's spring Cleanup Week program will be conducted from May 18 through May 23.

Through the cooperation of the Board of Health, local scavengers and the public works, fire and police departments, this program affords residents an opportunity to clear their homes, garages and yards of trash and clutter which might constitute a health, fire or safety hazard.

In preparation for taking full advantage of the coming cleanup project, we suggest that you give your premises a thorough inspection during the coming week and get rid of any trash and unwanted articles that have accumulated in the attic, basement, garage and other storage areas.

Old magazines and newspapers no longer needed should be discarded at this time, and also thrown out should be broken or outmoded pieces of furniture. Mr. Rice emphasized in his announcement that the scavengers will remove anything and everything placed at the curb on your regular collection days during the cleanup period. Articles too cumbersome for handling on regular pickups will be removed in a second call with additional help or equipment.

Get rid also of old clothing, mattresses, old pillows and other unused articles that have been taking up space and gathering dust in attic and closets. All these things constitute a fire hazard and also a threat through attracting of vermin.

Give your basement and garage the same searching inspection and throw out old paint cans, old paint brushes, oily rags and other unused articles and debris. This is a good time, too, to spruce up your yard, getting rid of leaves, branches, clippings and other debris. Loose materials should be packaged, tied or placed in containers for ease of handling.

The health officer pointed out that it is the responsibility of owners to see that doors are removed from old refrigerators put out for collection, to eliminate the inherent hazard to playing children.

Cleanup Week does much to improve the appearance of a community and the health of its inhabitants, but its most important contribution is in getting rid of trash and rubbish which provides a breeding place for fire. According to statistics provided by the National Fire Protection Association, every 12 minutes of the year an American home is destroyed or damaged by fire starting in rubbish, and about 6,500 people were killed in home fires last year.

To help cut down on this toll, the association suggests that you test yourself with the following Cleanup Quiz:

Do you dispose of ordinary trash and rubbish regularly?

Do you keep attic, basement and closets free of accumulations of old clothing, mattresses, curtains, drapes, lamp shades, old magazines and newspapers?

Are your oily mops hung up and oily rags kept in closed metal containers?

Do you empty ashtrays only when sure the contents are completely cold, and are ashtrays large and deep enough to keep burning cigarettes from falling out?

Do you have your heating equipment and chimney checked and cleaned at least once a year?

Do you check appliance and extension cords regularly for frayed insulation and loose connections, and repair or replace promptly when necessary?

Are paints and solvents stored in tightly closed metal containers, away from heat, and do you dispose of empties and near-empties promptly?

Is the garage kept free of clutter, and do you store gasoline only in tightly-capped, clearly-marked metal containers—never in glass jugs?

The prize for every "yes" answer is more safety for you and your family, and every "no" answer is a signal for action to be instituted during Cleanup Week and continued through the remainder of the year.

Dear Sir:

On the banks of what we call the Cranford River, just upstream from the old American Legion building, is a building that has been part of our town for many years. It holds many nostalgic memories for some of our older citizens, and fond memories for many Cranford mothers, who were once Girl Scouts. I'm referring to the old Girl Scout house across from the Canoe Club.

She is old, but far from her natural death. She has scars, but they don't hide her beauty. She recalls laughter and happiness that unfortunately are things of the past.

Many, including herself, are wondering why these joys have ceased. Some say that she is too old; others that she needs too many repairs. But no matter what the reason, she sits there unwanted and unattended.

I should say, almost unattended, for there still is someone who cares, someone who sees the beauty through the dirt, someone who is willing to spend most of his weekends tending to her basic needs.

John Patrick has lived alone at 211 Holly St. since the death of his wife. They both had had a love for that house, and had yearned to hear the songs and laughter, to see some renewed life, and others who cared.

That wish was nearly realized last winter. A fraternity of young men, who work during the day and attend Union Junior College at night, offered to repair her, paint her, make her youthful again, in their spare time and at no cost to the town. They would foot the bill completely, just for the right to use her for meetings, with the understanding that any other group could also use her, including the Girl Scouts. It seemed like the multiple answer to many wishes, but, alas, our progressive town is going to tear her down. You see, she is to be replaced by barbecue pits.

Dear Sir:

The whole month of April has passed and we have had no clean up week from the disposal service in this community. Just about all other towns in the vicinity have had two clean up weeks a year.

If there is no place to dump here, this should be taken into consideration when the disposal service takes the contract. Residents of Cranford should have two clean up drives a year when rubbish and other discarded items may be carted away without charge.

Dear Sir:

As High School participants in athletics in the school year 1963-1964, we would like to inform you of the situation concerning Memorial Field.

On Monday, April 27, we were host to a visiting ball club. One courtesy which we could have given them was an open gate by which to enter our field, but due to the lack of cooperation by the Board of Education, no one was present to unlock the gates, and both teams were forced to scale a wire fence. During this task, two home team members were injured; one required medical care.

Nature Notes

By FARRIS A. SWACKHAMER

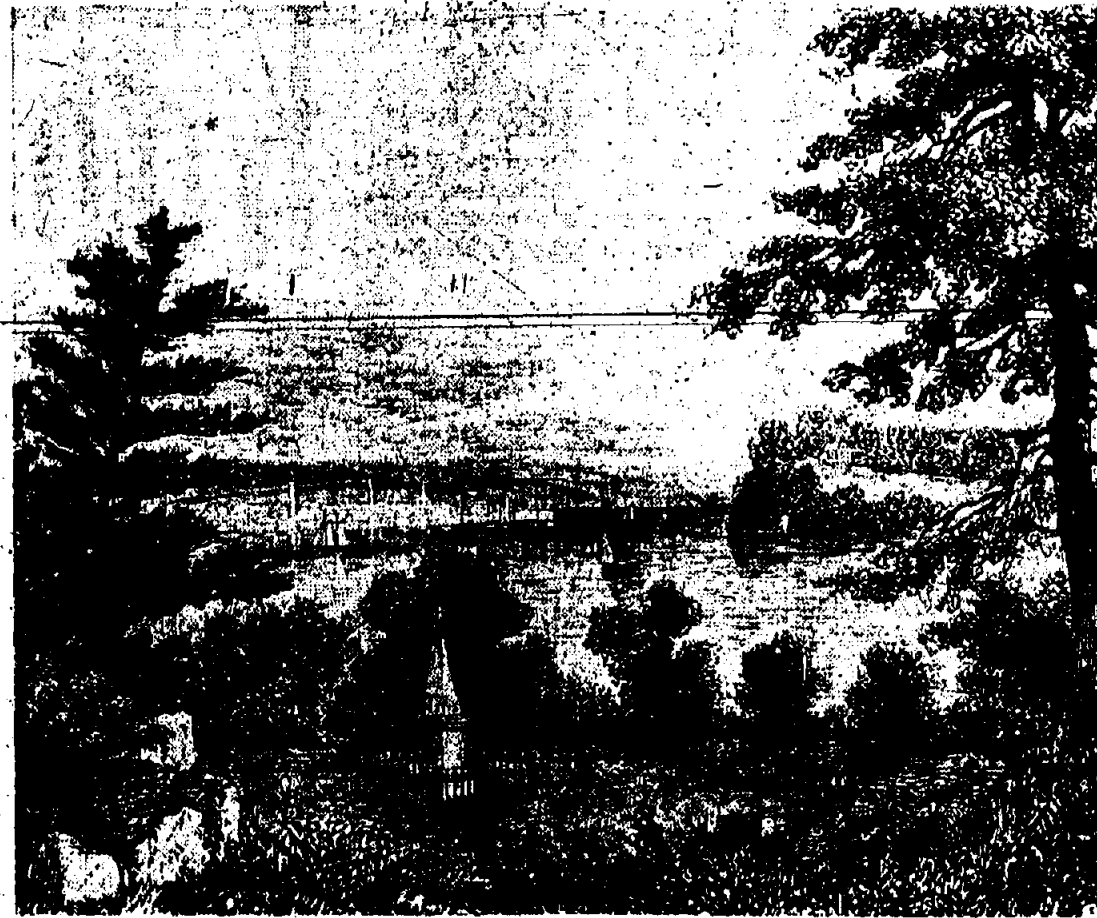

I've used a telephoto lens to picture soaring gulls and terns and a 40-foot release cord to take shots of chickadees on the feeder. Others use a blind, either at ground level or high on a pylon, to learn the intimate facts about the home life of an eagle. Ronald Austing in his "I Went to the Woods" describes a new technique. Using it, he photographed kingfishers catching minnows in the water.

Austing captured baby kingfishers, raised them, built a stream in his basement, stocked it with minnows and went to work. But this is starting the story in the middle. He had taken shots of kingfishers along the bank of a stream but his agent kept after him to take a "Kingfisher Catching Fish" series. So in March, 1958, he decided to try to get the pictures in his basement studio. Many birds had resumed their eating habits when confined, so there was no reason to suppose it wouldn't work with kingfishers.

The first step was to set up the camera and the strobe lights which would give a flash of 1/10,000 of a second. A sheet metal company built a two-foot-deep tank to simulate the river. When all the preparations were complete, Austing set out with trapping gear and in short order had a male kingfisher and a good supply of minnows.

For two days, Austing sat behind the studio wall, eye glued to a peephole, hand on the remote control button to fire the camera. But the better he looked, the more reluctant to play his part. His attention was used up trying to find an exit. All efforts to feed it by hand failed too. So the bird was released back to the wild.

Later in the summer Austing had another idea. Why not raise some baby kingfishers? The only catch to this was the possibility that the parents might have to teach the young how to fish; but it was worth a try. So two weeks (Continued on Page 3)

IDEAL DUELING SITE — Etching made in 1874 shows Weehawken dueling ground, where grassy niche carved into the cliffs, just 11 paces long and accessible only by boat, earlier had proved ideal spot for those bent on duels, "for they could be about their business and gone before the forces of law and the pleaders for peaceful settlement could interfere."

Tercentenary Tales

Weehawken's 'Bloody Ground' Famed as Scene of 14 Duels

By JOHN T. CUNNINGHAM

Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr, accompanied by seconds and attendants, rowed across the Hudson River to Weehawken on July 11, 1804, climaxed a rickety flight of stairs to a grassy niche carved into the cliffs and prepared to kill or be killed in a traditional affair of honor.

The principals watched as their seconds measured 10 full paces, examined one another's loaded weapons and took their places. Both fired their pistols and Hamilton collapsed against a boulder, mortally wounded. Burr left immediately for New York; seconds carried Hamilton across the river to die.

That duel shook the civilized world, for Burr was Vice-President of the United States and Hamilton had been Secretary of the Treasury under President Washington. The happenings of July 11, 1804, would have been enough to etch the Weehawken dueling ground into permanent attention, but dueling had been going on there before Burr met Hamilton — and continued long after.

Nature had worked overtime to make the Weehawken cliffs lovely. The rocky precipice seemed to rise straight up from the river, and just south of the dueling ground a stream dashed wildly through a deep ravine. Twenty feet above the Hudson River, a grassy shelf lay under a towering cedar tree.

Men whose hurt feelings could be soothed only by the exchange of gun fire discovered that idyllic spot. To their delight, it measured exactly 11 paces long — just enough, with one pace to spare, to permit duellists to exercise their skills.

No path led to the ground at river level and access from the heights was impossible, meaning that combatants came and went by boat. That perfectly suited those bent on duels, for they could be about their business and gone before the forces of law and the peaceful settlement could interfere.

The land was owned by one Capt. Deas, whose home was set atop the cliff. According to Charles R. Winfield's "History of Hudson County" (published 1874), Deas was "a peace man."

Winfield wrote:

"Whenever he scented a duel, Deas would hurry to the ground, rush in between the parties and by his suaver in modo, heal their wounded honor and establish peace."

Capt. Deas apparently had a deficient "duel sencer," for men clashed so often on his grassy plot that the Weehawken location became known as "the bloody ground." Winfield recorded 14 duels fought on the spot between September 2, 1799, and September 28, 1845. Five of the meetings resulted in deaths.

Burr himself fought the first duel in 1799, meeting John B. Church, Alexander Hamilton's brother-in-law. Church's pistol ball passed through Burr's coat, whereupon Church apologized for slandering Burr and the men shook hands.

The Burr-Hamilton animosity threatened through all the early dueling at Weehawken. On November 22 and 23, 1801, George Eacker fought duels with Stephen Price and Alexander Hamilton's son, Philip, who together had insulted Eacker and a lady (Continued on Page 6)

'300 Years at Crane's Ford'

(This is one of a series of articles in which Dr. Homer J. Hall, president of the Cranford Historical Society and chairman of the Cranford Tercentenary Committee, will present an outline, prepared from many sources in the society's records, of the story which will be told in Cranford's Tercentenary Day Pageant in Nomahegan Park on June 14.)

Cranford Village and Township, 1865-85

By DR. HOMER J. HALL

The village of Cranford as first laid out in 1865 consisted of a two-block square between Holly St. and Union Ave. Alden St. took the first name of Alden Bigelow, the developer. It ran up to the front door of the old Presbyterian Church near the railroad. Miln was likewise the first name of Miln P. Dayton, one of the partners in the real estate development. Eastman was the remaining partner in the firm. A square street grid was completed by opening up Springfield Ave., straight through to Union.

The street pattern thus established was parallel to the edges of the Crane farm, and to the original lines of the West Fields of Elizabeth. This in turn makes it parallel to the ridge of the Watchung Mountains, as is true also for the original street plans of Springfield, Westfield and Plainfield.

North and South Aves. did not exist until after 1871. The Old Road to Springfield along the east bank of the river was renamed Riverside, between Crane's Ford and the original site of Crane's grist mill at the dam in what is now Riverside Park.

Union St. east of the river was offset a hundred yards from the main street portion, because the original surveys all stopped at the Rahway.

The old road from Crane's Mills to Elizabeth crossed at a ford just north of the present Union Ave. bridge, below the dam. This crossing can still be traced past a row of large trees west of the river. These trees, in the private park area maintained by Gray's Funeral Home, are in line with Union Ave. east of the river. Elizabeth Ave. retained its original name from Union over to the site of the old Lincoln Ave. crossing, stopping now at North Ave.

Two fine residences fronting on Main or Union St. were built and occupied by Alden and Charles Bigelow. The Alden Bigelow property is now Cleveland School grounds. The long curving sidewalk is a reminder of the original drive, past trees planted in 1865, and the school building stands near the site of the old homestead. This was named as Marlboro House, after the town from which the family came, and Marlboro St. over to North Ave. was a straight drive leading up to the front of the property. This was offset a hundred yards from the end of Springfield Ave., which was later cut through on a diagonal line.

By 1868 the population had grown to about 800, from the 50 adults of 1850. The Presbyterian Church building of 1851 seated 80 people, which was much too small. A new church was built on the present site at Union and Springfield, a fine corner lot belonging to John Grant Crane. The original building was then moved back of the church, to serve as a chapel.

A new school district was set up in Cranford in 1867, including townspeople on both sides of the river. This was apparently the first official recognition of the growing village as a separate community. The Old Red Schoolhouse had become far too small, and a site on the new village streets at the corner of Holly and Springfield was donated by Mr. Bigelow, Mr. Cahill and Mr. Crane. Taxes for the new school came from old Westfield District No. 2, plus part of Clark and part of Union Township. Mr. Bigelow, Mr. Crane and Orrin Plerson were elected the first trustees. They arranged to rent the new Presbyterian church for a year, as a temporary district school.

A four-room schoolhouse was built on the site of the old Grant School building (now used by the Cranford Falsy Center). This was a graded school and it served as Cranford's only school building until 1884, when a two-room wing was added.

The location of schools and churches was recognized as an important factor in determining where the town would grow. The Methodist Church also needed larger quarters by 1868, and church records preserved by Mrs. W. W. Mendell tell an interesting story. The Cahill farm east of the Rahway was largely undeveloped and a large free lot was available there, on the corner of a paper street. If the church was willing to move, this was rejected as too far out of town. On the other hand, the Bigelow development already had one church and a school, so property there was available to another church only by expensive purchase.

The chapel on Lincoln Ave. near the railroad was likewise felt to be too far from the new center of town. The committee on church location finally chose property on Walnut Ave., the site of the present Cranford Public Library, as best on the basis of present value and predicted future growth.

Development properties were frequently sold almost as soon as they were occupied. Charles Bigelow sold his home to Alex Purves in 1869, and various members of the Bigelow family were almost constantly on the move from one house to another. The developer who opened up Central Ave. was Dr. Phineas P. Lounsbury, whose patent medicine manufactured in the old sawmill house was known as Dr. Lounsbury's Malt Extract. According to Emmor K. Adams, Cranford's first tax collector, "it smelled like ale, it looked like ale and acted like ale after taking a few bottles." Business was good, and the doctor did well enough to appear as No. 1 in the tax rolls for the village area during 1869 and '69.

The first development east of the Rahway was Forest Ave. in 1870, parallel to the river, and Cranford Ave. from Forest over (Continued on Page 3)

5 Years Ago

In one more definite step toward the new school building program, the Board of Education hired Eppie and Seaman of Newark as architects.

U. S. Senator Harrison A. Williams, Jr., of Westfield was to be guest speaker at cornerstone laying ceremonies for Union Junior College's new building on Springfield Ave.

10 Years Ago

Four battles between the "regular Republicans" and members of the newly-formed Good Government Republicans of Union County resulted in major victories for the "regulars" for leadership of the Republican Municipal Committee. Thomas A. Albans was elected municipal chairman by an 18-16 vote over George Berry. Other winners were Mrs. Marion Jones, vice-chairman; Mrs. Mary Jackson, secretary; and Mrs. Anne C. Graham, Good Government Republican, who was elected unanimously following the withdrawal of Harold Dankel following a tie vote.

A pledge of over $10,000 toward erection of a new educational building was received as the Alliance Church observed Building Fund Sunday. The proposed two-story building was to house younger Sunday School departments and provide facilities for young people and fellowship.

Following approval of a five-year renewal of the lease on the present municipal offices by Township Committee, Public Safety Commissioner Clarence L. Fritz suggested that plans be started for the construction of a new municipal building by 1980 when the lease would expire. The voters had defeated a referendum on the proposed construction two years before.

Bids were to be put out for the clearing of land for a quarter-mile track to be constructed in the rear of Cranford High School. The track was part of the board's long-range plan to improve playground areas of public schools.

15 Years Ago

Plans for an early start on a new $325,000 church building for St. Michael's Church were completed by the Rev. William B. Donnelly, pastor, in a conference with Frank J. Ricker and Louis A. Axt, associated architects of West New York. Father Donnelly said work on the project was expected to get started by July. Plans called for tearing down the frame church building, the cornerstone of which was laid in 1901, to make way for the new church, entrance to which was to be Alden street.

Victor D. Shaheen of 2 Summit road, president of Builders' General Supply Company, had been named executive chairman for the 1949 United Fund Campaign. It was announced by James P. Duffy, president. The drive was scheduled for the fall to benefit the Visiting Nurse Association, Boy and Girl Scouts, Welfare Association and Cranford Boys' Camp.

Robert M. Crane was named to succeed Dr. Carl G. Hanson as president of the Rotary Club. Other officers named were: Vice-president, Cyril W. Perley; secretary, H. Stanley MacClary; treasurer, Joseph Minton; and directors, Dr. Hanson, Dr. Wilmar Lange, Roy MacBean and Dr. Kenneth C. MacKay.

20 Years Ago

A community-wide collection of waste paper, old newspapers, magazines and corrugated boxes was planned under auspices of Cranford Chapter, American Red Cross, and the Cranford Defense Council. Proceeds were to go to the local Red Cross chapter.

Appointment of a rehabilitation committee to help find employment for local men returning from Army service was announced by Mayor George E. Osterheld. Committee members were: Daniel J. Heyburn of Cranford Post 212, American Legion; S. E. Klunder, Capt. N. R. Fluke Post 335; VFW; Harry R. Heins, Lions Club; G. Nelson Kling, Rotary Club; Joseph A. Plummer, president of the Board of Education.

25 Years Ago

Plans for a Cranford Day at the World's Fair were initiated with the appointment of a special committee to set the date and arrange trains and other details of the community's attendance at the fair. The Civic and Business Association planned the event. William Austin was chairman.

John Parker Hansel landed a 14-and-one-half-inch brook trout in the Rahway River to win the annual trout fishing contest, final event of the Youth Week observance sponsored by the Rotary Club.

Top honors in the second annual salon of photography under auspices of the Photography Club of Cranford were won by Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Oddy and Leslie B. Bradford.

Samuel Stein, well-known dry cleaning executive in New Jersey, leased a plant at 44-46 North Ave. E. The business was to be called Swan Cleaners and Dyers.

The Village Improvement Association, one of the oldest and most powerful women's organizations in the community, met in the Municipal Building to discuss the future of the association. There was a feeling among some members that the civic group had outgrown its usefulness in Cranford, while others felt that the need for guidance of civic effort in the community still was present. It was decided to continue the organization for another year. Mrs. Jacob Stanley was elected president.

"No Work, No Relief" was the slogan of the office of the overseer of the poor. It was stated by officials of the department in streaming that relief had been refused to those able to work.

played at home, but due to the fact that "our" field, or even the Junior Varsity field, was not ready for play, we were forced to play away. We happen to know that no other school in the area, or even in the state, has to play under such conditions.

As yet we have not been able to practice or play baseball on the Varsity field. We have been forced to play on the Junior Varsity field which is really not suitable, while the J.V.'s have been forced to play on a makeshift field.

When is our Board of Education going to get on the ball and give us a field that we can call "our own?"

Very truly yours,
James Downing
John Keppler
Sheldon Mittleman

211 Elm Street
Cranford, N. J.
May 4, 1964

Dear Sir:
I am writing this letter to bring to your attention the neglect shown by the Cranford Board of Education to the Cranford High School Baseball Team and to Cranford Memorial Field.

The reason for this, as I understand it, was to facilitate the improvements which are needed, and to which the citizens of Cranford recognize this need, as evidenced by their approval of a capital outlay of $10,000 in the last school budget referendum. Since the transfer of authority nothing has been done to bring about these improvements other than padlocking the gates to the field.

The board said that the field would be opened to all recognized groups. Yet the Pony League has been inconvenienced in their attempts to practice, the varsity baseball team has been forced to use the very poor junior varsity field, and the junior varsity has been forced to use a makeshift diamond on an all grass portion of the field. This is not the worst. Last week, for a scheduled game with Rahway, when Cranford's team arrived at Memorial Field, they found the gates locked. The team was forced to climb the fence to play a game at their own field. One member of the team got caught on the fence and injured his hand and his leg. It is my contention that the Board of Education is wholly responsible for this injury and for the embarrassment and inconvenience caused to the baseball team, Cranford Schools and the Township of Cranford.

I am of the opinion that the Board of Education has a responsibility to see that the Cranford schools and part of that responsibility is to see that the athletic teams have the best possible facilities. I feel the Board of Education is shirking these responsibilities when they fail to meet the basic needs of the baseball team.

I feel that if the Board of Education cannot fulfill the obligations involved in the operation of Memorial Field they should return it to the jurisdiction of the Township Committee and the Public Works Department, who, although they have much more work to do, always made an honest effort to keep Memorial Field in the best condition possible.

Sincerely Yours,
Frank J. O'Donnell

old babies were taken from the nest and reared by hand. They soon earned the title of "Little Gluttons" by eating all the fish in sight.

When they learned to fly, the stream was again stocked and the watching begun again. It was observed that the young kingfishers fish by instinct but that was as far as the experiment went. The clumsy fishermen missed every fish and finally had to be forced. They were just as wild as the adult male and had to be sent back to nature without a single usable portrait. Further field study revealed the fact that kingfishers take their quarry in only a few inches of water. Perhaps the tank was too deep. Another pair of subjects were captured and the watching began again. However it was to no avail.

No more young were available that spring, so a year went by. The next attempt was a family project. The birds were kept in the kitchen and the children allowed to feed them anytime. They grew tamer by the day. Finally they were taken to the basement studio and, without hesitation began to fish. Patience had paid off.

Austin's book is in the Cranford Library. This tale is only one of the fascinating parts of it.

The goldfinches are now in their bright yellow plumage for spring. Nancy Sechrist of Hampton Rd., who is 12 and a seventh grade student in Orange Avenue Junior High School, reported this after seeing one in her backyard.

to Elizabeth. This, however, was all part of Union Township. Residents of the area had to go to Connecticut Farms to vote. Those southeast of the river and the railroad had to vote in Linden, which was part of Rahway, until 1881.

The growing community was thus on the fringes of five neighboring towns, half of it in Westfield, spilling over at the north and south into Springfield and Clark Township.

Agitation to create a separate local government began to take shape during 1870. A committee of seven men was set up to make surveys, assemble tax rolls and petitions, and determine procedures. These seven were S. Cahill, F. A. Fisher, E. K. Adams, F. P. Lounsbury, N. G. Foster, Moses T. Crane and A. B. Bigelow. Their negotiations took well over a year. The Township of Cranford was officially created by an Act of the New Jersey State Legislature on March 14, 1871.

Expansion of the new township continued. North and South Ave.

running parallel to the railroad were opened in 1871 and 1872, and 50 self-feeding oil lamps were ordered to light the streets. Forest Ave. was cut through to North Ave., and the corner lot there was taken up by a new Episcopal Chapel organized under the name of Trinity. The number of school-age children increased from 80 in 1868 to 200 in 1872, and 213 in 1873.

But, there was trouble ahead. A post-war depression had hit the country, and it kept getting worse. School budgets hit a peak in 1874 and dropped steadily to half this amount over the next five years. Tax collections fell off, and some of the developers were caught short when property sales began to drop. Lots on Orange Ave. were donated to St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church in 1872, but the congregation could not build on them until 1877.

The situation became so serious that a series of bills was privately introduced into the legislature to split up the township and give it back to the original communities. This aroused the populace so much that the offensive bills were quickly withdrawn, but financial troubles continued. The City of Rahway defaulted on its municipal bonds, the mayor of Cranford went bankrupt, and the local Methodist Church lost its building title under a mortgage. Foreclosures were all too frequent, but in each of these cases and in most others like them, title reverted to the original owners under a compromise settlement, because no buyers could be found.

Recovery from this period of hard times was slow. By 1885 things were well under way again and normal growth was continuing. This is about the date which marks the earliest memories of Cranford's oldest inhabitants. Many interesting stories of this time are told by Harry Crane, who was born on South Walnut Ave. 90 years ago and started to attend the District School in 1879.

Cranford in the early 80's was still an open village, with a population which grew from 1184 in the Census of 1880 to 1,717 in 1890. The farms and country estates in town had an average size of well over two acres. Shopping for items like haircuts or meat was done in Rahway or Westfield, although the local store, run by George Totten, was well supplied with staples. Farmers in the village grew their own wheat, corn and oats. This was ground for flour, hominy grits and stock feed at Vreeland's mill, on Raritan Rd. at Centennial. The former Vice-land's mill on High St. was busy as Bonnell's Sawmill, and elm logs were at a premium in Rahway, where they were used to manufacture carriage hubs.

The street lights ordered in 1872 were finally installed in 1884, but there were no sewer lines, water or gas. Electricity and telephones were still to come, and streets were dust or mud, depending on the season. Wooden sidewalks were privately owned, like fences, and in times of spring flood they all floated away together. The newest invention was the bicycle, and the roads became so crowded with them in a few years that it was sometimes unsafe for a person to walk.

Named Regional Hadassah Officers

Two members of the Roselle-Cranford Chapter of Hadassah were elected to regional offices at the spring conference of the North Jersey Region of Hadassah last week at the Fallsview in Ellenville, N. Y.

They are Mrs. Jess Bernstein of 115 Pawnee and Mrs. Arnold Levine of Roselle, who were named vice-presidents.

An award was presented to the Roselle-Cranford unit for having over-subscribed its national quotas by 10 percent.

Attending the conference from the local chapter were Mrs. Bernstein, Mrs. Levine and Mrs. Kurt A. Metzger.

International trade plays a vital role in the economy of New Jersey. Firms throughout the state export a total of $900 million in manufactured products annually, which have required 94,000 workers to produce.

Girl, 4, Undergoes Successful Heart Surgery at Deborah Hospital

"Successful heart surgery has been completed and Anne is recovering splendidly."

This was the report received by Mrs. Howard Siegel, president of Suburban Deborah League, of the operation undergone by Anne Gibson, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gibson, 311 Casino Ave. Surgery was performed at Deborah Hospital, Browns Mills, on Friday after complete diagnosis and evaluation by the hospital staff.

Observatory Plans In Last Stages, UJC Board Told

Edward Aborn, chairman of the physical planning committee, told the board of trustees of Union Junior College last week that plans for the William Miller Sperry Memorial Observatory "are in the last stages."

Mr. Aborn said the plans are being prepared by Architect Fred Elsas and Associates of Union. He added that construction of the $100,000 project cannot begin until a use permit is obtained from the Cranford Board of Adjustment.

The observatory will be built with a gift from Mrs. Frederick W. Beinecke of New York City, and William S. Beinecke of Summit in memory of their father and grandfather, William M. Sperry, a long-time Cranford resident and a past president of the Sperry and Hutchinson Company, distributors of 5¢ U.S. Green Stamps.

Union Junior College and Amateur Astronomers, Inc., will operate the observatory, which is believed to be the first on a two-year college campus. It will contain the largest telescope in New Jersey and two of the largest along the northeast coast of the United States.

Dr. Kenneth C. MacKay, UJC

president, distributed copies of the report of the Union County Advisory Committee on County Colleges. The report recommends that Union County "utilize" the well-established Union Junior College for Union County residents to take college level work in liberal arts, engineering, and business administration at a cost lower than the full tuition. The committee also recommended the establishment of a college-level technical institute.

The recent meeting of the American Association of Junior Colleges at Miami was the largest in history, Dr. MacKay reported. The UJC president attended as one of six national directors of the association. More than 800 junior college representatives attended.

"The meeting in Florida gave the junior college representatives an ample opportunity to visit the new state system of junior colleges in that state, now one of the largest in the country," Dr. MacKay said. Other reports were presented by Dr. M. L. Crossley of Plainfield for the finance committee; and Harry Cooper of Rumson for the ways and means committee.

Dr. Thomas Roy Jones of Westfield, chairman, presided.

Exposition Displays Cite Health and Welfare Services

A heightened awareness on the part of local townspeople of the health and welfare services provided by public and privately supported agencies was the result of Sunday's Public Health Exposition in the Municipal Building, sponsored by B'nai Brith Women, Kadimah Chapter, in conjunction with CECA.

The Community room was the site of the special displays, which utilized many colorful visual-aid materials in pointing up health, welfare and pharmaceutical services available to Cranford residents.

In addition, outdoor displays featured the First Aid Squad's ambulance as well as display tables of the squad and its Ladies' Auxiliary. Among the items shown were first-aid equipment and special citations received by the squad. The auxiliary's exhibit highlighted the handiwork of wives of squad members in preparing cancer dressings and supplying special items such as laundry bags and bibs to hospital patients.

The First Aid Squad, which received B'nai Brith's citizenship award three years ago, featured a poster indicating a total of nearly 7,000 calls answered since its inception 10 years ago.

Also outdoors was the fully-equipped truck of the Civil Defense and Disaster Control organization, as well as an indoor exhibit showing special radiological equipment used in determining radio-activity.

Largest indoor displays were the joint offerings of the Cranford Welfare Board, Welfare Association and Board of Health. The latter display used a wide variety of visual aids, including an electrical quiz on alcoholism.

Other organizations and agencies with displays included the N. J. Association for Retarded Children, Union County Unit, featuring handiwork of retarded children, the Homemakers' Service and Visiting Nurse Association, each of which utilized a doll house and specially-uniformed dolls to point up their services.

Other groups including American Red Cross, Cerebral Palsy Association, Union County Psychiatric Clinic, Union County Mental Health Association, N. J. Dental Society, Cranford Board of Education (school health program), all presented displays and free literature. J. B. Williams Co. and Merk & Co. offered displays of their products.

Members of B'nai Brith Women who served as receptionists were Mrs. Bernard Bernstein, Mrs. Martin Friedman, Mrs. Martin Radley, Mrs. A. M. Ehrlich, Mrs. Eugene Lemansky, Mrs. Bernard White, Mrs. Martin Cohen, and two representatives of B'nai Brith Girls.

friend in a New York Theatre. Eacker and Price met first on Sunday, November 22, at noon, and exchanged four shots each without effect. The next day Eacker and Hamilton journeyed to the ground, and proceeded to prepare themselves in silence. They fired simultaneously, but only Eacker's shot struck home. Hamilton was wounded seriously and died the next morning.

John Swartout, a friend of Burr's, and DeWitt Clinton, political ally of Hamilton's, clashed at Weehawken on July 31, 1802. Swartout was wounded slightly, causing Clinton to remark: "I didn't want to hurt him, I had the principal here." He referred to Aaron Burr — but Burr became Hamilton's responsibility.

The outcry following Hamilton's death made dueling more difficult, but the little boats laden with sensitive men still made their way to Weehawken. Isaac Gouverneur, scion of a prominent New York family, was shot to death by William H. Maxwell at Weehawken on July 8, 1815, but rather than hurt socially-prominent people, Gouverneur's family announced simply that he had died "after a short illness."

Duels and killings continued, although occasionally Capt. Deas prevailed in peaceful settlement. Constables also stepped in; on October 19, 1835, Henry Aitken and Thomas Sherman were arrested at Weehawken after they had laboriously clambered up to the dueling rendezvous.

The 13th recorded duel took place on May 18, 1837, when "a Spaniard from Guatemala and a Frenchman living in New York" emptied their pistols. The Spaniard was wounded slightly, but that 13th duel was a lucky duel at that, at least from the viewpoint of those who believe disputes can be settled peacefully or legally.

Dueling came to an end on September 28, 1845. Two thoroughly angry young men rowed across the Hudson, climbed the Weehawken stairs and listened while seconds soberly agreed to rules. Seconds withdrew and by mutual agreement loaded the pistols with cork rather than iron bullets.

The resulting fire seemed to muck all the "affairs of honor" which had defaced the Weehawken cliffs. Presumably everyone saw the joke and went off laughing, although history sadly has neglected to record the aftermath. At any rate, Weehawken never again knew the sounds and sights of a formal duel.

Prof. McHarg will discuss the Prof. David G. Fables Memorial Wildplant Sanctuary to be established on the Union Junior College campus. The open house is being sponsored by the Friends of Union Junior College and the landscaping committee.

Mrs. Bedford H. Lydon of Cranford, head of the Friends of UJC, and Mrs. Thomas Roy Jones of Westfield, chairman of the landscaping committee, are in charge of arrangements.

Following the lecture, tea will be served in the student lounge. Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Horace K. Corbin, Jr., of Llewellyn Park, West Orange, and Mrs. Henry J. Mineur of 325 North Union Ave. and Mrs. Donald McGinnis of 724 Linden Pl. will pour.

The program also will include guided tours of the campus, special floral arrangements prepared by members of local garden clubs under the chairmanship of Mrs. Matthew D. Hall of Cranford and an exhibition of art works by Wendy and Harry Devlin of Mountain-side.

Prof. McHarg, who prepared the first basic outline for the Fables Memorial Wildplant Sanctuary, is considered one of the leading landscape architects in the United States. He is a graduate of Harvard University, where he earned a bachelor of landscape architecture degree in 1948, a master of landscape architecture in 1949, and a master of city planning degree in 1950.

From 1950 to 1954, he was planning officer for Scotland's Department of Health, and he assumed his present position at the University of Pennsylvania in 1954. He is director of the Rockefeller Research Project in Landscape Architecture.

Prof. McHarg conceived and moderates a television series, "The House We Live In," shown in 52 cities by National Educational Television. Assistant Scoutmaster Christian Peterson and Committeeman John Elliott accompanied the hikers, each of whom will be awarded a medal provided by the Jockey Hollow Trail Committee at troop ceremonies in the near future.

The following scouts spent the weekend camping on private property in Chatham under the direction of Scoutmaster Donald Betzler:

Bruce Bell, David and Donald Betzler, Steven Dole, Robert Dinmore, James Higbie, Warren Kress, Scott Martin, Kenneth Peterson, Douglas and Elmer Widman, Steven Wilner, Richard Beyer, Raymond Willard, Douglas Grube, David Silver, Charles

Radis, Steven Gale, William Pfaff and Kenneth Wheeler.

Assistant Scoutmasters Higbie and Peterson joined the group after the hike. Committeemen Bruce Bell, Corwin Beyer and Lester Willard spent the weekend at the camp and assisted with the outdoor activities.

In line with the recommended policy of a campout every month, the troop will spend the weekend of May 16 and 17 camping at the Worthington tract. Several of the older scouts will spend time canoeing on the Delaware under the leadership of Assistant Scoutmaster Higbie.

Students Stage 'Madame Curie'

"Madame Curie," a play written by Bette Jane Kowalski, was presented at the Cleveland School assembly by Mrs. Marion Eschen-lauer's sixth grade. Cindy Herman and Karin Stiff were narrators.

Sally Petrick played the part of Madame Curie as a little girl in Poland. Bette Jane Kowalski portrayed her as a student and scientist in Paris and as a visitor in America. James Wright took the part of Pierre Curie; Thomas Beadle, Professor Henri Becquer; Joseph Juve, Warren G. Harding;

Scott Gibson, Prof. Sklodowska.

The parts of children, Hela, Joseph and Bronya, were taken by Christine Brzoska, Gary Estabrook and Mary Ann Chippotta. Students were Thomas Gill and Henry Koehler. Kazia, a friend of Marya Sklodowska, was played by Mary Jane Knauer. Scott McCullough took the part of Bronya Sklodowska's husband in Paris.

Barbara Jones and Pamela Sugiaski played Irene and Eve Curie. Terry Mineur acted as Mrs. Melony. Polish, French and American flag carriers were Gayle Norris, Trudy Waugh and Ross Garlick. Jacquelyn Depew and Holly Nietzel were American college girls; Dave Mann, president's page; Chris Parker and Paul LaCorte; Polish and French ambassadors; Gary Estabrook, Thomas Gill, Henry Koehler and Scott Gibson, newspapermen. Chris Parker was stage manager, and Mrs. Russell Herman was in charge of makeup.

UJC Freshman Roster Includes Girl Sharpshooter

Miss Joyce Givens of Roselle, a freshman at Union Junior College here, is a real sharpshooter. In fact, she is among the leading junior rifle shooters in the United States, and she has the trophies and medals to prove it.

Miss Givens has been shooting for only four years. She began her career with the Roselle Rifle Club, which has a range in the basement of Abraham Clark High School, Roselle. While other co-eds spend their Friday nights at dances, basketball games or fraternity parties, Miss Givens is at the range practicing.

Miss Givens, however, looks more like a co-ed than a "tomboy" rifle shooter. She's really both.

In her four-year shooting career, Miss Givens has won more than 20 trophies and between 25 and 30 medals.

"There are too many to count," she said modestly.

"I always liked guns," the UJC freshman added. "I guess I'm a tomboy in that respect."

In a recent match in Raritan—something akin to a state championship — Miss Givens had the best score of all girls entered and the second-best score overall as she shot a 374 out of a possible 400 in the prone, sitting, kneeling and offhand positions. Her outstanding score helped the Roselle Rifle Club win the junior club championship.

Miss Givens admits her shooting career has been slowed down this year while she grapples with the books and aims for better grades in her science program at Union Junior College. She is aiming toward a career as a science teacher or a medical technician.

When time permits, Miss Givens shoots with the Roselle Junior Rifle Club, the Roselle Senior Rifle and Pistol Club, and the Perth Amboy Senior Rifle Club.

Miss Givens got into rifle shooting through her father, who formerly shot with the Civil Defense team in Roselle. She credits her instructor, Frederick Egner of Roselle, with helping her to improve her scores.

Varsity Nine Splits One-Run Tilts With Clark, Woodbridge

A tough Clark baseball team defeated the Cougar nine 5-4 at the Crusaders' field last Saturday, but the locals managed to outscore Woodbridge by the same score Monday afternoon at the victors' home field.

In the Clark game Mike Della Rosa was the losing hurler in relief of Skippy Burr. Della Rosa gave up only one hit. Staziani was the winning pitcher even though he gave up seven hits.

The Cougars received their runs in the first inning when Jim Downing, Booney Mazzella, and Rich Koppler all singled. Downing scored on Koppler's single and Mazzella came in on an error. Cranford scored again in the second inning with two outs as Downing reached base on an error, stole second and scored for the second time on a Mazzella single.

The Cougars scored for the final time in the fourth inning. Downing was hit by a pitch but he was caught stealing. Mazzella reached base and stole second and third before coming in on an error by the catcher.

The Crusaders scored in the second inning when Scott doubled and Clot reached base on an error by Lingerfeldt. An error on George Goodwin loaded the bases. Spaziani singled driving in Scott and Clot. Clark rallied again in the fourth and fifth innings to emerge victorious.

In the Woodbridge contest, Skippy Burr was the winning pitcher, and Frank Buglovsky took the loss. Jim Downing and Paul Lingerfeldt each hit well for the Cougars. Jim Ezewczyk had a pair of hits for the losers. John Watters collected a triple which drove in a run and Mike Higgins doubled in another two markers.

Cranford scored in the third inning. With no outs, Lingerfeldt and Vogel singled before Jim Downing walked. Mazzella singled in Lingerfeldt and Vogel. Keppeler then doubled Mazzella in and Shelly Mittleman sacrificed in the fourth run of the inning.

Cranford collected the winning run in the seventh inning as Keppeler scored on an error.

Clark scored in the fourth, sixth, and two runs in the final frame, not enough to overpower the fine Cougar performance.

Rotary Club Hears Talk On Law Day

In a talk in observance of Law Day last Thursday before the Rotary Club, former Mayor Ira D. Dorian declared that citizens have responsibilities to obey the law, to respect the rights of others, to serve on juries when called and to assist law enforcement agencies in carrying out their duties.

Mr. Dorian, a past president of the Rotary Club, explained that Law Day was inaugurated in 1958 by the American Bar Association to combat the May Day celebrations of the Communists. The main purpose, he said, is to foster in this country an increased respect for laws.

"Law is a man-made development of rules to control actions of people," he said. "Whatever freedom we have is due to a law which restricts someone else."

He said that laws are created by the consent of those who are governed and therefore law is the servant of the people. As social attitudes change, so does the law. Any principle of law is being tested and retested almost daily through usage and in the courts.

Harry W. Lawrence was program chairman and President Lewis F. Laird conducted the meeting.

Past President Peter J. Clark reported that he had received a reply from a letter to a postal employee in the Venice, Italy, Rotary Club. Members of the local Rotary Club are corresponding with counterparts in the Venice club.

Congratulations were extended to Howard Cowperthwaite, a member of the club, and Mrs. Cowperthwaite on the observance of their 50th wedding anniversary.

"President Laird reported that 13 members and their wives attended the recent district conference in Atlantic City. He also announced that the 75th anniversary program will be held at Westminster Choir College, Princeton, from June 19 to July 5.

State Check Shows Good Management At Cranford Dump

In a letter read at the City Council meeting in Linden last week, the State Department of Health reported it found in a recent check that the Cranford dump showed evidence of "good management."

The report added that an area 50 yards across was found open for fill but added that "we understand" this is closed over with dirt every night.

Noting that water percolating through the dump could cause odors, the letter reported that Cranford had been urged to see that a drainage ditch and two catchbasins were kept clear so that water would not accumulate.

"We trust this will be done," the report said, adding that "we understand" Cranford is looking for a new dump site.

Criticizing the use of the words "we trust" and "we understand," Linden Councilman Paul Werkmeister referred to the state check as "completely unsatisfactory" and

Exhibits Paintings at Union Co. Trust

Alice Judson Keating of Elizabeth is exhibiting a group of paintings at the Cranford branch of the Union County Trust Co. She has been a member of the Cranford Creative Art Group for two years and presently corresponding secretary for the organization.

She has exhibited at Trailside Museum, First Presbyterian Church, Elizabeth; Levy Brothers, Elizabeth; Cranford Public Library, Union Junior College, and at the outdoor shows or Memorial Green in Cranford.

Mrs. Keating teaches vocal music in the public schools of Linden. A former cellist with the New Jersey Symphony, she also teaches cello and piano.

said he would seek additional checks and inspections. He also said he felt there was a need for a state law to prohibit dumps from being located near "Class A residential zones."

According to the report to the police, some boys were shinning up the pole, near the bleachers, when it snapped off at a coupling and struck Mr. Duncan.
