UJC SCIENCE BUILDING — This is an architect's rendering of the $1 million science building Union Junior College plans to construct with the aid of a federal grant of $307,000. The two-story structure of contemporary design will be adjacent to the main student parking lot. To the left are two back-to-back lecture halls seating 100 and 75 persons, respectively. Other facilities include three biology laboratories, geology laboratory, engineering drawing laboratory, six classrooms, 13 faculty offices, computer room and science reference center.

Completing Plans for $1 Million Science Building at Junior College

Final plans and specifications are nearing completion for Union Junior College's proposed $1 million science building, it was announced today by Dr. Kenneth C. MacKay, UJC president.

The college received final approval last week from the Office of Education of the Health, Education and Welfare Department for a grant of $307,330 under the Higher Education Facilities Act.

Dr. MacKay said the architectural firm of Elsass & Miller of Union is completing final plans for the building, so that a building permit may be obtained as soon as approval is given by the Cranford Planning Board.

The science building is planned as a wing to the Nannahagan Building adjacent to the main student parking lot. A two-story structure is planned.

Six classrooms, a geology laboratory, an engineering drawing laboratory and seven faculty offices are planned on the first floor. The second floor will provide three biology laboratories, one for microbiology, one for zoology and one for general biology with preparation rooms, cold storage room, constant temperature room and dark room, greenhouse, six faculty offices, computer room and science reference room.

Two back-to-back lecture halls are proposed to the rear of the building. One will seat 75 persons and the other 100 persons.

Dr. MacKay said the science building will enable Union Junior College to eventually increase its enrollment by about 30 percent to a total of about 2,000 full-time and part-time students.

Cranford Jaycees Marking Tenth Anniversary

The Cranford Jaycees will celebrate their 10th anniversary at a meeting Monday evening at the P. Ballantine & Sons Brewery in Newark.

"Ten years ago this month, 12 young men of vision and pride founded the Cranford Jaycees," Charles J. Stevens, Jr., president, noted in announcing the anniversary meeting. "Since then, the membership has grown to over 100 men between the ages of 21 and 36."

Outstanding activities of the local chapter have included the preparation of an industrial brochure which has aided in the development of Cranford Industrial Park, revival of the town's colorful River Carnival, establishment of the Cougar's Den, recreational and (Continued on Page 8)

Swim Pool Cards Available Tuesday

The 1,500 family members of the Cranford Municipal Swimming Pool may pick up their admission cards at the recreation department office in the basement of the Municipal Building beginning Tuesday. It was announced yesterday by Robert Shupin, superintendent.

Approximately 60 families have been drawn from the waiting list to fill out the 1,500 membership quota, it was announced. Sixty families who paid the initial $10 deposit failed to pay the balance of the annual membership fee by Tuesday, which was the cut-off (Continued on Page 8)

Need for Science Building Stressed by UJC President

A special faculty committee, the board of trustees and its education, finance and ways and means committees, and the board of fellows all played a role in formulating plans for the proposed $1 million science building at Union Junior College, it was reported this week by Dr. Kenneth C. MacKay, UJC president.

"The need for this building has been firmly established," Dr. MacKay said. "The faculty committee wanted it yesterday. Our science instructors are now forced to operate under cramped and crowded conditions and with extraordinary schedules."

Union Junior College will be unable to play its legitimate and responsible role in New Jersey's higher educational growth if additional science facilities are not provided, Dr. MacKay said.

"It is the policy of federal, state and county officials that existing colleges must expand their facilities if higher education is to provide anything like enough room for all qualified young people," he added. "Expanding existing institutions obviously is the major path higher education must take. While new institutions must and will come, the present burden falls on those of us now in operation."

The UJC president said his institution does not wish to grow just for the sake of growth. "Our faculty and our trustees feel an obligation to those Union County residents who must look to us for a start in higher education," he declared. "We must attempt to continue to serve at least the same percentage of the college population we have always served. This can only be done by adding a science building."

The UJC president pointed to a report in 1961 in which the trustees suggested that Union Junior College's maximum enrollment should be 2,000 students. The science (Continued on Page 8)

FREDDIE THE FREELOADER — Ellen Siegel, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. Siegel of 712 Willow St., feeds baby robin named Freddie. The new pet, found wandering in the neighborhood four weeks ago, has adopted the Siegel home as his permanent nest. Despite repeated attempts to give Freddie his freedom, the friendly robin returns daily for a free handout of bread crumbs, bits of meat, water, milk, and pre-dug worms.

Realtor Board Votes to Accept William Tyree as Member

William E. Tyree, a local real estate broker, was elected to membership in the Cranford Board of Realtors by a vote of 13-2, with one abstention, at a meeting of the board last Thursday at Union Junior College.

The action came 18 months after Mr. Tyree's first application for membership, which was rejected on the ground that he did not have the required sponsorship of two members of the board.

A second application filed last April also was turned down on the grounds that, in addition to lacking the required sponsorship, he had not answered questions pertaining to the number and value of realty transactions he had handled in Cranford.

Following charges by the Cranford Open Housing Committee and the Cranford Clergy Council that the realtor board was hedging on Mr. Tyree's application because he is a Negro, Mayor H. Raymond Kirwan arranged for a meeting of the interested parties to discuss the matter.

After this meeting, Mr. Tyree agreed to answer the questions required by the realtor board's by-laws, the board decided to act as a whole in sponsoring Mr. Tyree, and he was invited to re-submit his application for action at last Thursday's meeting.

"I am glad that the controversy is over and I am extremely grateful to the many organizations, individuals, officials, brokers and especially the realtors who backed me," Mr. Tyree said after the favorable vote on his application.

Irving Adams, president of the Cranford Open Housing Committee, issued a statement declaring that his organization was "very happy that the Cranford Board of Realtors has at last accepted its moral obligation to admit Mr. Tyree to membership."

Mr. Tyree, who operates a real estate agency from his home at 138 Cranford Ave., has been in the real estate business for 14 years, including 11 years as a broker. Prior to that, he worked for 14 years as a carrier-clerk in the Cranford Post Office.

Michael Colaneri, fund drive chairman, announced that contributions thus far in the current drive have passed the $12,000 mark, the highest amount ever received before members canvassed the town for collection of coin cards.

Coin card collections will start this Saturday, with one team starting in the area of Raritan Rd. and another on the north side and working toward the center of town.

Board to Grant Sabbatical Leaves Under New Policy

Leaves of absence for professional growth through study and/or travel, leaves without pay for rest and recuperation for long service employees, and a system of leaves without pay for educational and/or cultural activities are some of the recommendations of the superintendent's committee on personnel policies adopted Tuesday night by the Board of Education.

They are included in a 36-page report recently submitted to the school board. The committee, comprised of secretaries, custodians, teachers from elementary and secondary levels, and administrators, has been meeting regularly for the past 18 months to work on personnel policies for all employees.

Committee representatives met four times with the school board to review their recommendations. Anthony Terregino, who heads the committee, said the report brings together in one place many of the state laws and written and unwritten policies regarding regulations with all categories of employees.

Under the committee's recommendations, sabbatical leaves for professional growth through study and/or educational travel could be granted to any full-time employee with seven or more continuous years of satisfactory service in the Cranford public schools. During the leave, the employee would be paid one-half of the salary which would have been paid for satisfactory service.

Turadian Sworn In as Board Member to Replace Gutierrez

Z. Robert Turadian of 59 Fairfield Ave. was sworn in as a member of the Board of Education on Tuesday night in Lincoln School by George Sauer, board attorney, to replace Gus Gutierrez, board member for five years who resigned last Wednesday.

Mr. Turadian, a resident here for nine years is employed as assistant sales manager by Avers Laboratories, Division of American Home Products Corp., New York. He has been with the firm for 17 years.

In his letter of resignation, Mr. Gutierrez said, "The last five years as a member of the board have been some of the most gratifying and stimulating periods which I shall always remember."

A letter was received from the Cranford Adult School asking the board to waive rental fees for the fall and spring terms next year. Bernard Littwack, board president, said the request will be held in abeyance until board members meet with Adult School officials and members of the Township Committee to discuss financial arrangements because no funds have been included in the school budget to cover this rental cost, about $1,200.

A representative of the Union County Unit of the New Jersey Association for Brain Injured Children urged the board to begin thinking about the possibility of a special class for neurologically impaired children.

Circus Theme for Graduation Program at Geraldine School

The 25th annual graduation program of the Geraldine Nursery School, Forest and North Aves., will be held this Sunday in Sherlock Hall, across from the school.

Opening the program, theme of which is "The Circus," the senior students will present songs and rhythms descriptive of elephants, circus ponies, dancing clowns, a lion tamer and lions tamer and lion tamer and lions, and "The Man on the Flying Trapeze."

The juniors will appear as acrobats, portraying tight-rope walkers, tumblers and jugglers, and singing about their trick dogs and cats.

Making up the circus rhythm band, the freshmen will imitate the strong man and bareback riders and end with "The March of the Midgits."

Concluding the program will be the presentation of diplomas to the Class of 1965 and singing of the school song.

The regular school session will close tomorrow, and the summer day camp will open on Tuesday, July 6, and continue until August 27. The fall session will open on Wednesday, September 8.

Completing Plans

(Continued from Page 1) The college will be unable to substantially increase its enrollment until additional facilities are provided. He said the present facilities are now being used to their capacity.

In a report to the board of trustees and the board of fellows last fall, Dr. Kenneth W. Iversen, dean said:

"We must expand our facilities, especially our science laboratories, if we are to continue to serve more young people. Our science laboratories are extremely overtaxed to the point where we must utilize our biology laboratory on Saturdays for the first time in our history and our other laboratories into the early evening to accommodate day session students."

At the same time, Dr. Albert E. Meder, Jr., chairman of the education committee of the board of trustees and vice-provost and dean of administration of Rutgers—the State University, said:

"Union Junior College's utilization of its present facilities is extraordinary. It's the most in-the top of the list for future vacancies, it was announced.

Mr. Shupin said yesterday that both the contractor and architect reported that construction of the new $400,000 pool adjacent to Orange Avenue Junior High School is proceeding on schedule and will open on July 1.

The main pool is nearly complete and concrete was being poured this week in the wading pool. The bathhouse was well underway with electrical installations and interior work nearing completion. Grading was proceeding on the large parking area and the erection of the fence around the 11-acre property is nearly completed.

Dr. Iversen also reported that 785 day session students were taking more than 1,000 courses in science during the fall semester.

"In our philosophy of higher education, all students are required to take courses in science and mathematics regardless of their major," Dr. Iversen said.

"This means that just about every full-time student is taking at least one science course and that those majoring in science and engineering are taking two science courses."

The UJC dean explained that the curriculum is based primarily on what four-year colleges and universities demand of transfer students.

"Every study made in the past decade indicates that New Jersey is falling by a wide measure to meet its obligations in higher education," Dr. MacKay said.

"It is the responsibility of every degree-granting institution to help to meet this challenge. We feel an obligation to Union County, which is looking to us for help in meeting the crisis which confronts higher education. To do less would be to fail in our trust to the people of Union County."

"What concerns us is the fact that we turned away many qualified students, advising them not to apply because we could not accommodate them. It is not our role to turn away qualified young people, but we had no choice. We are attempting — like most of our sister institutions in New Jersey — to help meet the great wave of students headed toward college."

Swin Pool

written extensively in this area. His citation stated that his name "will for a long time be linked with the fundamental practices which have emerged in supervisory training."

Need for Science

"What we do in the way of expansion must be considered in the context of New Jersey's total needs," Dr. MacKay said. "In 1962, the State Education Department published its now famous Strayer Report, which predicted that the number of young people seeking opportunities in higher education in the state would more than double between 1961 and 1970. This report estimated a total full-time student load by the fall of 1970 of 104,308. This represents an increase of 53,318."

The UJC president pointed to the number two priority given Union Junior College by the Commission for the Higher Education Facilities Act as adequate proof that a real need exists for the science building.

"Obtaining the $307,000 grant from the federal government is only the first step in making this science building a reality," he declared. "We must now go out and raise the remaining $800,000. This is a task we will and must do."

Cranford Jaycees

The new officer slate headed by Mr. Stevens was installed at a dinner meeting Saturday night at the Echo Lake Country Club in Westfield. Other officers for 1965-66 are: First vice-president, Kenneth Sharp; second vice-president, Eugene Denman; secretary, Robert Schreiber; treasurer, Dale Jones; directors, William Lynes, Matthew Sorts, Paul Bauknight, Victor Alvarez, Paul Sowa and Henry Fallon.

Mr. Stevens issued an invitation to all former members of the Cranford Jaycees and prospective new members to join the present members as guests at the June 21 meeting. "Buses will leave from the municipal parking lot at Springfield and North Union Aves. at 6:15 p.m."

Turadian Sworn

(Continued from Page 1) classified as neurologically impaired rather than mentally retarded, cerebral palsied or emotionally disturbed. With special training some of these children can return to regular classes. It was noted.

The resignations of six teachers also were received. Other appointments included: Mrs. Ruth Diamond, part-time secretary; Mrs. Estelle Sienkiewicz of 335 South Union Ave., 10-month secretary; Mrs. Carol Donahue of 209 Scherrer St., teacher aide; and Michael Hurst, custodian. The resignations of Mrs. Ruth Battaglini, teacher aide, and Martin McKeown, custodian, were received. A leave of absence was granted Mrs. Carol Brandes.

Appointment was made of the upper and lower summer school staff.

The board authorized bowling as an activity for boys and girls in the intramural program and for boys in the interscholastic program in the secondary schools. The students will provide their own transportation to Clark Lanes, and faculty members will coach the program.

The board authorized Insurance City Life of Hartford, Conn., to continue its student accident insurance program and football accident policy. The board appointed Harold J. Seymour, tax collector, as custodian of school funds for a year.

Authorization also was given the president of the board to appoint a committee to review the by-laws of the board and recommend revisions. The final report of the committee will be due January 1, 1966.

The local board has been asked to name committee members to study the possible revision of the budget format as published in February prior to each school election. In May the board sent a resolution asking simplification of the format to the State Federation of District Boards of Education. The state group has asked for names of possible committee members.

Ample Water Is Assured For Area

Assurance that "water supplies for your community appear to be completely adequate to meet all demands this summer and in the future" was received by Mayor H. Raymond Kirwan recently in a letter sent by Robert W. Kean, Jr., president of the Elizabethtown Water Co. to the mayors of all communities served by the company. Mr. Kean's letter read in part as follows:

"There are no present restrictions on the use of water in your community and we do not believe there will be any reason to place any restrictions in effect this summer."

"You may well ask why Elizabethtown seems to be the only oasis in the midst of an area plagued with shortages. The answer is that our basic water supply is from the Raritan and Delaware Rivers, supplemented by wells. Eight months of the year the rivers contain ample supplies of water. In fact, millions of gallons per day go past our filter plant at Round Brook and out to sea during these months. In the summer, when river flows are lower and our customers' needs are greater, the Raritan will be supplemented with water from the Round Valley-Spruce Run reservoir system, part of which (Spruce Run) is already at 100 percent of capacity."

"Over the years, Elizabethtown has constantly expanded its filtration, pumping and transmission system to keep abreast of demands. Since 1950, more than $40 million has been spent on expansion. This is far more than all nearby water systems have spent together. Because our engineering staff has done its job in planning ahead, we should be able to continue delivering water to our customers without any difficulty. We also anticipate being able to help other water systems who may face shortages this summer."

"We also expect to continue serving your community with all the water it wants in future years. The recent decision by the state to release all of the water from Round Valley-Spruce Run into the Raritan River means that our basic water supplies will be ample for many years to come. We will continue to expand our filter plant and transmission facilities to meet demands. This year we are spending more than $3,000,000 on additions. Plans are already on the drawing boards for our 1966 construction program."

Miss West Wins Degree, Fellowship

Miss Barbara West, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William H. West of 35 Central Ave., received a B.A. degree in health education at the 35th commencement at Jersey City State College.

Miss West received the degree at the conclusion of a five-year program in which she also was the recipient of her R. N. at Elizabeth General Hospital School of Nursing. She has been awarded a fellowship by Jersey City State College to work for her master's degree in special education.

One New Ambulance Received by Squad

One of the two new Sayers and Scovill ambulances ordered by the Cranford First Aid Squad has been delivered and the other is expected to arrive in the near future.

The new rig already here is being stored in the meeting room of the squad building. Upon arrival of the second one, radio and other equipment will have to be transferred from the old ambulances before the new rigs can be put into operation.

Delivery of the new ambulances, originally scheduled for April 1 and later postponed to May 15, has been delayed as a result of the strike of automobile workers last fall and other troubles concerned with the manufacture of the vehicle, it was reported by Peter Majuspa, squad president.

Expressions of satisfaction at the outcome of the Tyree case were heard from all sides this week.

Eighteen months after his first application was filed, William E. Tyree, a local real estate broker, last Thursday was finally accepted as a member of the Cranford Board of Realtors.

Members of the realtor board maintained that the only reason for the delay in acting on Mr. Tyree's application was his failure to comply with provisions of their by-laws calling for sponsorship by two board members and the answering of questions pertaining to the number and value of real estate transactions he had handled in Cranford.

The Cranford Open Housing Committee and the Clergy Council, on the other hand, contended that the realtor board was hedging on Mr. Tyree's application because he was a Negro.

Thanks to the good offices of Mayor H. Raymond Kirwan in setting up a meeting of the interested parties for a face-to-face discussion of the difficulties involved, Mr. Tyree agreed to answer the required questions, the realtor board decided to act as a whole in sponsoring Mr. Tyree, and the matter finally was settled without recourse to the unfortunate threat of "direct action" made at one stage of the controversy.

All parties involved are to be congratulated on the fair play exhibited in presenting their respective sides of the problem and on the restraint exercised in reaching an amicable solution.

• Protect YOUR Children From Hazards of Fireworks

Although the Fourth of July is still more than two weeks away, Police Chief Lester W. Powell reported this week that there have been a number of cases in which the police have had to confiscate fireworks and institute juvenile complaints against young people using them. In one instance, two boys were found placing firecrackers in bottles and exploding them, with the resultant hazard of fragments of glass flying through the air.

Chief Powell pointed out that it is against the law in this state to sell, expose for sale, possess, use or explode any type of fireworks, except in authorized public displays. Members of the police department have been given orders to enforce this law strictly.

Pointing out that there were several injuries from fireworks here last year, Chief Powell expressed the hope that strict enforcement measures and the cooperation of parents may prevent such injuries this year.

The chief also warned recently of the dangers inherent in a torpedo-type of fireworks made in the form of round colored balls. He noted that there have been cases in which younger children mistook these for candy balls and were injured when they exploded in their mouths.

It hardly seems necessary to have to hope for the cooperation of parents in the drive to prevent injuries by fireworks. In addition to the illegality of their purchase and use, it would seem that the possibility of serious injury and disfigurement would automatically deter all thinking parents from buying fireworks for their own children, or permitting them to buy or use them or to associate with others who do.

Nature Notes

By FABRIS S. SWACKHAMER

STONE HARBOR—The causeway from the Parkway to Stone Harbor was under construction, so we turned off at the Avalon exit and came across the salt marshes there. The sun had gone down, but there was still enough light to spot a few birds. Laughing gulls, as usual, were the first feathered folk to greet us.

Then what appeared to be a black tern soared across in front of the car. Closer examination showed the trailing edge of the black wings to be white and the bill was longer than a tern's. Although it was too dark to distinguish the black-tipped red bill, I'm sure it was a black skimmer. If it had been daytime, we would have noticed the lower mandible jutting out a third farther than the upper. The bird skimmed low across the salt water, dipping its lower mandible in, cutting the water. Some fishermen call it "sheerwater."

Today is drizzly outside but we took a ride down to the Stone Harbor Sanctuary in spite of the weather. There were the usual common and snowy egrets, fish crows and glossy ibis. The William A. Fishers, who retired to Stone Harbor from Cranford a few years ago, told us that there were an unusual number of black-crowned night herons in the sanctuary this year. During the 10 minutes or so we sat and looked through binoculars at the familiar sight, we saw five of them.

Peterson says of the black-crown: "A chunky, rather short-legged heron. Adult: the only heron that is black backed and pale gray or white below; wings gray." It also has a black crown from which it takes its name. This bird, or "quawk" as some call it, is one of the most widely distributed of our herons. Closely related members of the same species are found throughout much of South America, Europe, Asia and Africa. It breeds from Florida and the Gulf of Mexico north to south Manitoba and eastern Quebec. It winters north to our area.

The bird deserves the name of night heron. Often its silhouette is outlined against the gathering darkness. It arrives on its nesting ground late in March or early in April. Like most herons the black-crown has a well-defined courtship ceremony. The male alights in the treetop beside or a little above the female and bows low leaning toward her. He erects his crest, neck, breast and back feathers in a striking display and she responds in the same way. Their red eyes glow. Using their bills, they caress each other and then assume a quiet pose side by side with the plumage smoothed down. If another male happens by, she urges him to chase it away. Parts of the ceremony are repeated when she comes back to the nest with food for the young.

Like their cousins, they build in colonies or rookeries. As many as four or five nests may be built in the same tree. Bent recounts that he once stood in a hollow near a rookery in Barnstable, Mass., and counted 275 nests in sight from the one spot. Most of the nests are crudely built platforms made of large sticks and lined with finer twigs or grass roots. Some are so small and insecurely placed that the eggs fall out in a wind. Others are located in a crotch where they may remain for years.

The black-crowned night heron lays three to five eggs on the average. Although they may be laid during the course of an entire week, incubation begins with the first one, accounting for the disparity in size of the young. In late summer the young and adults wander northward, so you may see them along the river in August or September.

Water Demands Increase, But No Restrictions in Area

Elizabethtown Water Co. supplied its customers with 2,771,400,000 gallons of water in May, an increase of more than 300,000,000 gallons over May of last year.

It was the second highest monthly demand in the company's 111 year history, exceeded only by September of last year.

About 400,000,000 gallons went to the City of Elizabeth, which Elizabethtown has been supplying since last winter to assist Newark, whose supplies are dangerously low because of lack of rain.

The daily average of the company was almost 10 million gallons higher than last May. In 1964, the May average was 79.8 million gallons daily, while last month the figure was 89.4 million gallons daily, a 12½ percent increase.

Elizabethtown Water officials said that their Raritan River supplies are in good shape and that, as yet, it has not been necessary to use any Spruce Run-Round Valley reservoir water to supplement river flows.

There are no restrictions on the use of water in the 28 communities in Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties served directly by Elizabethtown. This is one of the few areas in the northern part of the state without restrictions.

Elizabethtown officials attribute their present satisfactory water situation to adequate supplies from the Raritan and the expenditure of more than $40,000,000 since 1950 in expansion of pumping, filtration and transmission equipment.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir:

The Cranford Clergy Council notes with earnest gratitude the Cranford Board of Realtors' recent action in accepting Mr. William Tyree as a member in full standing. Leadership of this sort in the realm of human rights is leadership in which all of Cranford can take pride. It fits the facts of the turbulent era of promise through which mankind is living today.

Cranford's clergymen join me too in thanking the Citizen and Chronicle for its factual and fair news coverage of the events and opinions surrounding and leading up to the Board's constructive action. It was a sterling example of able journalism.

The Clergy Council's members are unanimously ready to cooperate with the Board of Realtors, with our municipal government, with citizens, indeed with anybody, in the continuing effort to guarantee human rights and to deepen better human relations in Cranford.

Cordially yours,
The Rev. John R. Dexheimer
President
Cranford Clergy Council

June 14, 1965

Dear Sir:

My letter of June 3, produced a response which seems to present an integrated image saying: "We are violently opposed to intolerance and we won't tolerate anyone else expressing a viewpoint different from our own."

I have expressed concern regarding our shift towards fascism through possible loss of property rights. The nature of several letters has convinced me of the need to discuss this subject further. May I reply to my critics as follows:

Miss Hamner: Your speculation that I would desire to be treated as a human being is correct. I don't know what you mean by a "McCarthy-like fear of poorly-understood 'isms'." I do not fear capitalism; I do not wish to live under any of the others. Poorly understood by whom? Please realize that fear can result from misunderstanding, as well as from misunderstanding, some people fear nuclear bombs because they understand their danger some people may fear socialism or fascism for a similar reason.

Mr. Lieberman: You state that "property rights have been subverted by a new morality-led by men of good will and a dedicated clergy." I am not questioning their will or their dedication; I am questioning their judgment and their understanding. You say "and now the freedom to discriminate in the sale of property is also gone." If you have knowledge of any such law I shall appreciate sharing it. I like your question "where will it end?" You raise a strong attack against bigotry; I can't find anyone who is advocating it — certainly not me. I am advocating a distinct concern for loss of individual freedom through loss, or subversion, of property rights. It is interesting to me that you attribute the loss of 6 million Jewish lives in Hitler Germany to racial bigotry and not to a dominant central government which dictated the moral policy of the individual. I believe these were calculated crimes of a powerful government such as I would not wish to see in this country, and which I believe your policy might create.

Mr. Hogan: I like your quotation from Pope John XXIII. Until you interpret it I agree without reservation "it is established that men have from nature a right of privately owning goods—indeed, it is rooted in the very nature of things, whereby we learn that individual men are prior to civil society and hence that civil society is to be directed toward man as its end." Your examples citing government restriction placed on private property are interesting. Are you proposing that because government has placed some restrictions on the use of private property, therefore, property owners should not be permitted to add restrictions of their own? I see no racial discrimination involved in keeping government out of property ownership. Quite the contrary; the right to ownership, use, and disposition of property is the same for all men regardless of race, creed, or color. As long as government control is not permitted to deny man's God-given, human right of property ownership we may remain free men.

Mr. Dwyer: Your views were well expressed and worth reading. You suggest a distinction between property rights and human rights. I believe that property rights "are" human rights, and that one human right isn't more right than another human right.

I agree with your analysis of the Board of Realtors' moral position. I would like to see clarified, however, what I consider the important legal issue involved: is this board a private organization and does it have the right to determine its own membership? In brief: does anyone have the legal right to be morally wrong? I believe there will be as many different views on this subject as there are opinions on the purpose of government. I suggest that government should be permitted to do only those things which we cannot do effectively as individuals: coin money, make treaties, maintain armies, regulate interstate commerce, etc. Government officials should be allowed to do nothing except what is expressly permitted by law; private citizens should be free to do anything which is not expressly forbidden by law.

If you start with the premise that the Board of Realtors is a public organization it would appear that they have no choice, legally or morally, except to accept any applicant except for "cause." The burden of proof would be upon the board. If you start with the premise that the board is a private organization, it would seem to have the legal right to select its own membership. External pressure to influence its decision would appear to be morally wrong. I should like to distinguish here between salesmanship and pressure. The first, I consider, a proper means of persuasion; the second, I consider unacceptable. The difference between selling an idea and forcing it upon someone is as subtle as that between a contribution and an assessment.

Rev. Dahlquist: I resent your statement that I consider anyone inferior because of race. You criticize my logic; please explain yours in arriving at such a conclusion. You state "he tries to justify racial discrimination by mixing categories that can't possibly be mixed." My letter gave several examples to support my contention that "all" discrimination is not evil. How, by any process of logic can you distort this to be a sanction of racial discrimination?

I accept your argument that clergymen may preach properly on the subject of open housing for any other subject. I apologize if I gave any other impression. My comment about "leading this crusade" was intended quite literally. I view the physical activities of clergymen on this issue as improper — because I consider peaceful picketing and non-violent demonstrations as "revolution" at best and as lawless anarchy at worst. Neither of these roles do I consider proper for clergymen. Neither do I consider it proper to exert any more influence on a given issue than can be done from a pulpit, lest someone misinterpret guidance for pressure.

A "super-patriot" once said: "Though I do not agree with what you say, I shall defend to the death your right to say it." Similarly, while I do not believe in racial or religious discrimination, I shall defend anyone's legal right to practice either — so long as this right does not deny anyone else "his" legal right.

Jr. College Role in Aid To Higher Education Told

"The overwhelming problems which lie immediately ahead for our colleges and universities will require the full resources of all kinds of institutions of higher learning and a full pooling and partnership between our diverse types of colleges," Dr. Kenneth C. MacKay, president of Union Junior College, declared in an address presented as he received the honorary degree of doctor of science at Newark College of Engineering last Thursday night.

One of the nation's pioneering educators in the development of the two-year college program, Dr. MacKay spoke before an audience of 3,200 graduates and their parents and friends at NCE's 49th commencement exercises at the Mosque Auditorium in Newark. "The increasing selectivity on the part of the four-year institutions, and the greatly increased numbers of lower-division students who will attend junior colleges," he said, "demand a measure of partnership and precise articulation between baccalaureate and two-year colleges such as has never previously existed."

"That our system of higher education will become bigger" he continued, "is a foregone conclusion. That it will be better is less certain. The junior college must take its place in higher education, with its faculty and students feeling closer to the university than to high school. The four-year college must recognize that full utilization of the junior college as peer and partner provides our best and perhaps single hope in the critical years ahead."

Across the nation, Dr. MacKay said, 33 states have established systems of junior colleges.

"Nearly a million of our youth, attend such institutions — about a quarter of all undergraduates," he related. "Even New Jersey falls into line, a sure sign that the junior college looks convincing."

In recalling his earlier days at Union Junior College, Dr. MacKay thanked the NCE administration "for holding out to our fledgling and experimental college the hand of friendship and professional counsel."

"It was NCE," he said, "and a small circle of other distinguished colleges and universities that were not afraid to open the bridge of opportunity to those splendid, serious young men, nearly all of them GI's, who had completed two years of pre-engineering curriculum with us and stood ready to continue their education toward the bachelor's degree and often beyond, to graduate and professional degrees."

"Our two-year colleges would not be here today, any more than I stand here tonight, had not colleges like NCE had the vision and the courage and the superb good sense to recognize the great new resource these emerging institutions could bring both to higher education and eventually to our nation and society."

How a Blood Bank Program Works

By HELEN S. HOFFMANN

It takes time and patience to build up a blood donor's list.

It takes an educational process to enlighten a community on the advisability of establishing a good blood bank with a good supply of blood. It's better than money in the bank in time of an emergency. It takes community spirited people to recognize the needs of others.

It takes so little time to give a pint of blood.

In the first of these articles it was noted that the telephone committee had secured the names of 150 potential donors. Of this number there were some who failed to appear, some who did not pass the blood test, some who were ineligible because of past illnesses or medication. This meant the number was cut considerably and only 101 pints were collected. If one considers that open heart surgery will consume 30 to 40 pints of blood, we did not build up too many blood credits.

The blood bank was due to go into operation at 1 p.m. and the number one donor, Mrs. Mary Enz, was ready and waiting. Mrs. Enz, who resides at 8 Cedar St., has always consented to give her blood and is usually the first customer. Her initial experience was during the war when her husband was in the service. Today Mrs. Enz contributes because it gives her such a wonderful feeling. Indeed it must! For Mrs. Enz has now contributed four gallons and two pints of blood!

After speaking to Mrs. Enz I was curious to know why others had signed up to give their blood. Mrs. Carl Kirk of 16 Oak Lane expressed it succinctly: "By sharing the wealth of good health."

Seymour Herbst of 506 Riverside Dr. was instrumental in establishing a blood bank for Temple Beth-El. Further, he expressed his admiration for a worthwhile cause and the sense of well being one derives for having helped another, known or unknown.

Robert Wilhelm, whose age just made him eligible, resides with his family at 239 Third Ave. in Garwood and was impressed by the appeals for donors which appeared in the Cranford Citizen and Chronicle. The notices set him to thinking how dependent man is on his fellow man for blood to survive. It is not something that can be manufactured, or derived from animals. This was something he could do.

An employee of the White Laboratories in Kew-Forest has a daughter who will soon be undergoing open heart surgery. Robert MacNamara of Roosevelt Ave., a fellow employee, donated his blood for the operation.

John Robbins, a resident of Summit, established a company blood bank for Constellation Specialties on Winans Ave.

When Mrs. Theodore Mannes of 12 Princeton Rd. told of the experience they had in trying to obtain blood for a member of her family she expressed the frustration and desperation with which people come to the Red Cross office offering money in order to get blood. There is no charge for blood. But, as Mrs. Mannes said, it was blood that was needed and not money!

After the donors have given their blood, they are invited to have some refreshments during the fifteen minute wait before they can pick up and go again. It was at the coffee table that I asked Vincent Sarnowski, principal of Hillside Avenue Junior High School, why he was there. His answer was, "I believe in the Red Cross." He went on to relate his experience with the Red Cross and the expediency with which it was able to evacuate one of his men who was needed at home. Further, his troops often found themselves without the basic needs and comforts to which we are all accustomed, and a request to the American Red Cross made all these articles readily available. True enough, Mr. Sarnowski is speaking of World War II, but Red Cross people are serving in Vietnam today and fulfilling the same requests.

Mrs. C. K. Brown, a Canadian, recently moved to 108 Orange Ave., says there is so little we can do for others, but this is so simple!

As I spoke to Miss Diane Tuttle of 2 Fiske Ter., an 18-year-old student, "I was struck with the thought: Why this young girl, who is anxious to leave so that she can prepare for a history examination the following day at Bloomsburg College? Why this young girl when there are literally hundreds of others who could have been there? Here indeed was a picture of youth we don't get to see nearly enough, but which exists and adds tremendously to the moral fibre of our lives. Here was a girl with concern for others, and she was doing something about it. She was truly the epitome of the Red Cross motto, 'I Serve.'"

This was an inspirational hour spent with the people in our community who paused in their day's occupation to give so that others might live.

The people who worked at the blood bank also gave of their time, and they are: Captain — Mrs. H. I. Mitchell, blood program chairman. Nurses — Mrs. Harold Seymour, chairman; Miss Jane Seymour, Mrs. G. G. Gunderson, Mrs. Charles Wagner, Mrs. William Keenan, Mrs. John Papp, Mrs. Amelia Cooney and Mrs. John Batich.

Nurse's Aides — Mrs. Walter Rozman, Mrs. C. S. Arnold, Mrs. E. L. Robinsky, Mrs. William Boyd and Mrs. J. P. Sommerville.

Staff aides — Mrs. C. S. Arnold, chairman. Gray Ladies and Gray Men — Mrs. Dale Langley, chairman; Mrs. Albert Bensch, Mrs. Charles Dietrich, Mrs. G. G. Swanholt, Mrs. Russell Boettger, Mrs. John Uhrin, Jr., Miss Josephine Reiman and Charles Meyer. Blood staff aide — Mrs. Morris Schalek; Motor Corps — Mrs. John Starr; Canteen — Mrs. Benjamin Jones and Mrs. A. I. Dole, Jr. Volunteers — Miss Vicki Northcutt, Miss Jane Grall, Miss Ellen Meyer, Thomas Maxfield, James Burke, Vincent Welch and Howard Teese.

Doctors—Taras Shgedyn, Richard Lang, F. M. Offenkrantz, Henry Mineur, Lewis Brandwin and Edmon B. Lee.

Bridal Fashion Show Scheduled By Hahne & Co.

Autumn and winter brides-to-be are invited to Hahne & Co. for their first look at the new creations for their important day. Hahne & Co. will present a fall and winter bridal fashion show on Saturday, June 26, at 11 a.m. in Westfield.

Fashion predictions indicate that the traditions of the past will join with the look of the future in professional gowns for tomorrow's brides, bridesmaids and mothers.

Innovations include the coat-dress bridal gown. It features an elegant slim dress (perfect evening gown later) with a romantic full-length lace coat with slim long sleeves that button at wrist. The lace is patterned to look like a train. In Italian silk Dupioni there's an off-white coachman-look gown that's really dramatic. The double-breasted button bodice has gently shirred sides at the waistline to create a fluid-look skirt. Elegant ottomans, bengalines and broadcases appear with beautiful simplicity of line to enhance the magnificence of the fabric. A creamy ivory gown is resplendent with mink fur trim and mink headpiece.

Traditional white must now share its honors with the beauty of ivory. The medieval splendour of silk-faced satin, velvet, and the drapery beauty of worsted-and-silk all have intriguing new looks of royal radiance.

Bridal mantillas provide the perfect finishing touch to many a gown. Cathedral and floor length, they appear in the same Alencon lace that embellishes the gown, and in exquisite handmade Belgian lace.

Bridesmaids and bride mothers will join the procession in long gowns of regal beauty in rich, elegant fabrics — dramatic in their autumn foliage hues.

Richard H. Eyde, associate curator for the division of plant anatomy at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D. C., visited town recently, on invitation of Sylvanus J. Shaw, Jr., local tree expert, to examine the Cranford Pepperidge Tree.

"It was a beautiful day," Mr. Eyde wrote to Mr. Shaw, "and although I have not yet developed my film, I anticipate that I will have some fine color slides for lectures. Even though I had seen black and white photos of the tree in the clippings that you sent me, I did not anticipate that the tree would be so handsome."

"It is really something for Cranford to be proud of, and I think your committee deserves much credit for the initiative you have taken in preserving it."

Students Present Clothing Exhibit At Hillside Avenue

"Slumber Shop" and "Teen Shop" were the themes for an exhibit of clothing held recently by Mrs. Betty Dezort's classes at the Hillside Avenue Junior High School.

For the "Slumber Shop" exhibit, the triangular-shaped fitting room in the classroom was decorated to look like a bedroom, containing shelves with books and pictures. A life-sized doll was seated on the bed modeling pajamas made by Eileen Maine. Around the room were placed colorful summer pajamas decorated with lace and ribbons. The pajamas were made by seventh grade students.

"Teen Shop" was the theme for the eighth and ninth grade students. They displayed jumpers, dresses, parkas and suits. The committee made cardboard mankin heads, typical of the popular pop arts of the day.

The committee for the exhibit included Nancy Playle, chairman; Deborah Dunkowski, Judith Goldberg, Jean Nelson and Sally West. Doris Korse and Linda Church, who wore dresses they made in their home arts class, were the hostesses.

Local Man On CG Cutter In Rescue at Sea

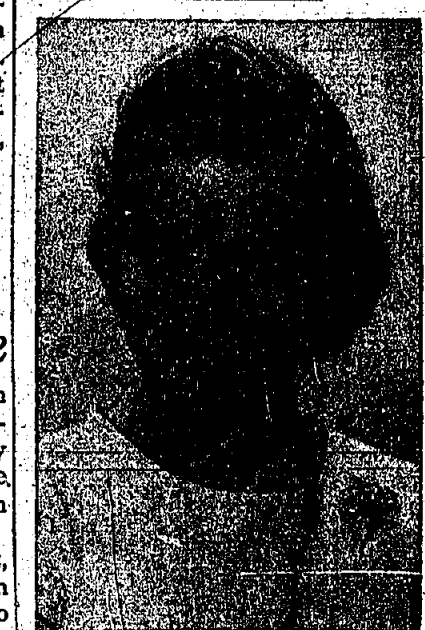

Phillip C. Holmqvist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Holmqvist of 4 Algonquin Dr., is a fireman electrician's mate aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Sebago, which participated in the rescue of the Greek freighter SS Evangelos last month.

Answering an SOS received on May 17, the Sebago made contact with the freighter in heavy North Atlantic fog about 700 miles west of the Azores. The Evangelos was found drifting without power following severe fire damage in her boiler room.

Assistance parties from the Sebago gave first aid to five injured men on the freighter and made repairs to provide emergency lighting and radio capability. These repairs also improved the freighter's stability and living conditions.

The Coast Guard cutter stood by the Evangelos until a Dutch salvage tug arrived on May 23.

The Sebago had just been relieved after 21 days' duty at Ocean Station Echo as a rescue and weather reporting vessel when the SOS was received.

EVER RUN OUT OF HOT WATER?

End waiting. The way to heat water today is with oil. A modern oil-fired water heater generates hot water 4 times as fast as a gas heater, 7 times as fast as an electric heater. Gives all the hot water a family can use for all baths, clothes washing, dishes and other needs.

You save plenty, too. Oil water heating costs 46% less than gas; 68% less than electric.

Rotary Club Given Briefing On Initial Teaching Alphabet

An explanation of the Initial Teaching Alphabet which will be introduced in all elementary schools here next fall to teach beginning reading was presented at last Thursday's luncheon meeting of the Cranford Rotary Club at the Holiday Inn, Kenilworth, by Frank Martz, director of curriculum and instruction in the Cranford Public Schools.

Introduced by Harry Lawrence,

Mr. Martz said the ITA system was developed in England about five years ago and the results have been so successful that it has spread rapidly.

Basically, Mr. Martz explained, ITA is a series of 44 symbols, some being the same as letters of the alphabet, but each representing only one sound.

The system stirs self-motivation and self-interest among youngsters which has not been evident in past methods of teaching reading, Mr. Martz said. Parents of several youngsters who were taught the new method on an experimental basis this year have volunteered to tell of how rapidly their children are learning to read and write as a result of the ITA system, he stated.

Mr. Martz told of many new developments initiated here since the space problem has been solved by the construction of new buildings. He reported a new system of evaluating pupil progress is well on its way to a successful conclusion and that it will produce several improved guidelines for assisting pupils.

The local schools are studying the drop-out problem at various levels; a great books program has been introduced in the third, fourth and fifth grades, and a critical thinking project also is underway in the elementary schools. He said the latter two programs have resulted in excellent work by local youngsters.

MISS JUDY LIEBERMAN

Judy Lieberman Recipient of Twin Honors

Miss Judy Lieberman, of 39 Rutgers Rd., a senior at Cranford High School, is the recipient of a National Honor Society scholarship awarded by the scholarship board of the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Miss Lieberman, who will attend Radcliffe College in the fall, also has been selected for a special six-week summer course in physics for high school students, "Adventures in Physics," at Cornell University.

She will receive an honorary scholarship from the Scholarship Board of the principals' association "in recognition of outstanding academic achievement."

"In being selected for this award, you have brought high honor to yourself and your school. We wish you success and happiness in your college studies," Ellsworth Tompkins, secretary-director of the Scholarship Board, told Miss Lieberman in informing her of the award.

T. J. Peterson, Jr., director of Cornell's "Adventures in Physics" program, said there were over 400 applicants from whom 38 were selected.

"Since all of the applicants were ranked in the upper 10 percent of their classes, the finalists were in all cases outstanding," Mr. Peterson said.

The program at Cornell will run from June 30 to August 13. It is designed to impart to the students some of the exciting adventure of physical science in our present-day culture, facilitate self-evaluation of the student's personal interests in science, and provide a meaningful first exposure to the academic atmosphere of college.

During the six-week period, Miss Lieberman and the other 35 students will attend a two-hour lecture each Monday morning by a senior member of the Cornell faculty, attend four two-hour discussion and recitation sessions on Tuesday through Friday mornings, and attend five two-and-a-half-hour laboratory periods each week where they will perform a series of experiments appropriate to their own interests and abilities.

Operator Lorraine T. Cross: tracer of missing persons

Mr. H. W. Haldeman wrote us:

"On Thursday morning of this past week I was in Camden on business and received a call from my secretary advising me that my sister out in San Francisco had called me at the office to say she was rushing to the hospital — her husband had just been involved in a very serious accident. Unfortunately in her distraught condition, she failed to give my secretary the name of the hospital before she hung up, so I had very little information to go on.

"I called the local operator and told her my problem, saying I could give her nothing but my brother-in-law's name and that he must be in an emergency ward somewhere in San Francisco. She was most cooperative, and assured me she would do everything possible. To make a long story short, this remarkable young lady of yours had me connected to the doctor in the particular hospital who was in charge of the case in no more than 20 minutes. Armed with such meager information as she was, I think this was an outstanding example of efficiency and service!

"I trust that you will be able to see that she receives a 'well done' for her excellent detective work over the long line. I am always appreciative of special service — this I believe was a most outstanding example."

At New Jersey Bell, all our operators know we believe in giving that extra bit of special service. After all, the best possible phone service — that's our job.

Mathis Asks New Trial

A new trial will be sought by Marvin R. Mathis, 29, of Union, who was convicted of the Lincoln's Birthday murder in Kenilworth of Stanley Caswell, 42, North Plainfield insurance agent.

Robert P. McDonough of Elizabeth, court-appointed attorney for Mathis, served notice Monday on Union County Prosecutor Leo Kaplowitz, that he plans to go before Union County Judge Chester A. Weidenburner to ask a new trial on the grounds that the verdict of the jury was against the weight of evidence.

Mathis was found guilty by a jury which deliberated nine hours, and was immediately sentenced by Judge Weidenburner to die in the electric chair during the week of July 18. Mr. McDonough said he would ask for a stay of execution pending the appeal.

In his notice Mr. McDonough said the state failed to prove how or who set fire to a small foreign make car in which Caswell's charred body was found in a swampy, wooded area in Kenilworth. Caswell also was shot four times, the state contends.

Prosecutor Kaplowitz, who presented the state's case against Mathis at the trial, will oppose the move for a new trial.

Mr. Powell maintains he suffered injuries to his shoulder, neck and throat when struck by a tripper which apparently flew off a Reading train.

Tempest in a Coffee Pot: Forum League Charges Bring Reply From Gill

A charge by the Cranford Forum League that on-duty firemen have been required to prepare and deliver coffee for Republican meetings was denied at Tuesday night's Township Committee meeting by Public Safety Commissioner Edward Gill and John Haviland, president of the Cranford Firemen's Club.

The charge was made by the Forum League in flyers circulated last weekend. The league, headed by Edmond Kiamie, said members of the Fire Department have been forced into "involuntary servitude" by being required to become "private caterers for the exclusive benefit of the Republican party."

Commissioner Gill and Mr. Haviland declared that whenever firemen served coffee it always has been on a voluntary basis. Commissioner Gill added that the accusation "smacks of political overtones."

"They were challenged by Mr. Kiamie who insisted the practice is 'not voluntary.' Mr. Kiamie also offered to debate the matter with Commissioner Gill at any time."

Mr. Haviland, a former member of Township Committee, said the firemen used to brew the coffee owned jointly by the club, a group of volunteer firemen, and the FMB, an organization of paid firemen.

Mr. Haviland said the preparation and serving of coffee at meetings in the Municipal Building has been done "voluntarily." He added that the firemen "have a very deep interest in the community" and that "the serving of coffee is a service we performed for the community."

He noted he was speaking only for the firemen's club, but declared that a similar feeling is shared by the president of the FMB, Leonard Dolin.

Asserting the firemen resent being referred to as being "in involuntary servitude," Mr. Haviland declared that "from now on we're going to hide behind our coffee pot."

Terming the Forum League article as "irresponsible reporting," Commissioner Gill said he had made inquiry and was informed by the fire chief that the providing of coffee to local organizations by the firemen is a custom of long standing, going back some 37 years.

"It is purely a friendly gesture on their part and is done in a spirit of community participation," Commissioner Gill continued. "At no time have they been directed or ordered to do it and the nominal cost for the coffee is borne by the organization or donated by the firemen. In the past year the firemen have been asked to cooperate, in this respect, with the Red Cross on three occasions, the Civil Defense and more recently by the Cranford Historical Society. They point out that they were willing to provide the service to any organizations — all in the spirit of community service or helpfulness."

"They are disturbed as I am," Commissioner Gill concluded, "at the unjust criticism which has been leveled against them."

The commissioner said he will leave it to the discretion of the firemen "whether to continue this long standing practice." He said no public funds are expended and

Opening of Municipal Pool Now Scheduled for July 10

Opening of Cranford's $400,000 municipal pool, scheduled for next Thursday, has been delayed to Saturday, July 10, it was announced yesterday by Harris Spies, architect.

Although all phases of work on the pool project, located adjacent to the Orange Avenue Junior High School, are progressing, decision to postpone the opening was made yesterday in order that the facility will be fully completed before it is put into use.

During the next two weeks, pool members and other residents have been asked by the architect and contractor not to visit the pool site. In addition to slowing down the work, there are many areas of the pool which inadvertently could be damaged, it was explained.

Paving of the parking lot is expected to be completed this week and the erection of the fence around the 11-acre plot is about 75 percent finished.

Rough pouring of concrete in both the wading and main pools has been completed and the contractor is at work laying the tiles in the pool and on the pool deck. No definite date has been fixed for filling the pools with water.

Work on the bathhouses is going along well, the architect reported. The electrical work has been completed; the roof will be finished this week, and the plumbing presently is being installed.

Robert Shupin, superintendent of the Cranford Recreation Commission which has overall supervision of the pool, reported the full 1,500-family membership quota has been met. Forty families were invited from the waiting list to replace residents who did not pay the remainder of the $55 family membership fee by June 15. There presently are about 275 families on the waiting list and vacancies will be filled first from this list.

Mr. Shupin said membership cards for pool members are now available in his office in the Municipal Building and should be picked up there. A number of families already have picked up their cards, he said.

Summer Sing to Open For Third Summer

The third annual Summer Sing program will start Monday under the sponsorship of the Cranford Recreation Department.

James Lomney, director of vocal music at Cranford High School, will direct the popular summer program which he initiated in 1963. The singing group attracts hundreds of high school and college students each summer.

The group will rehearse from 7 to 9 p.m. each Monday night in Randolph Hall of the Cranford Methodist Church. All young people, 16 to 25, are invited to take part. Mr. Lomney announced that two evening concerts are planned this summer.

Welfare Camp Program Starts Saturday

The magic day for many underprivileged children of Cranford is Saturday, when the first group departs for Bonnie Brae Camp as part of the camp program provided by the Cranford Welfare Association. Each week a different contingent will be sent to the various camps until a total of 90 children have enjoyed the fun of a summer vacation.

The entire program was made possible by the funds from the Carrie C. Grady Memorial Fund Welfare Association Office, Room 6, Municipal Building.

The Cranford Kiwanis Club has contributed a campship for a child for Camp Endeavor and the association will provide 10 campships to this fund from the memorial fund. Each week thereafter a group will depart for one of the following camps: Bonnie Brae, The Salvation Army Camp, Girl Scout Camp, Boy Scout Camp, Cranford Boys' Camp and Camp Endeavor.

If anyone wishes to participate in this way, their contributions, large or small, are most welcome and may be sent to the Cranford Welfare Association Office, Room 6, Municipal Building.
