Force decides to take rest; GOP to rerun Hoeffler

By Cheryl Moulton

As the political clock ticked away this week it was anyone's guess as to whose names would appear on the June primary ballot. Today is the last day for candidates to file petitions for the Primary and General Elections.

The Republican party announced Tuesday Ed Force will not run for a third term on the Township Committee, selecting Joseph "Bob" Hoeffler as the GOP candidate for the November election. Hoeffler, who ran unsuccessfully last year, was undecided until Tuesday, said a GOP source.

Republican municipal committee chairman Doug Nordstrom, in a press release to the Chronicle, said, "While it is a difficult decision for the Republicans of Cranford to embrace, it is certainly understandable for the mayor to want to take a rest." He indicated Hoeffler has continued to show "dedication to the concerns of the citizens of Cranford and his willingness to devote his time and energy to help the town deal with the difficult budgetary issues facing us all."

Force, who is in his second three-year term, has been mayor for three years. Rumors of a split within the GOP gave rise to speculation recently as to whether Force would seek re-election. Political strongholds within the GOP continue to spark animosity among GOP long-time members, although traditionally the party has remained intact.

On the Democratic side of the slate, Norman Albert of Claremont Place was selected to run for the lone seat on the governing body. Albert, an attorney with a West Orange law firm, was campaign manager last year for Democratic incumbent Carolyn Vollero, who scored a surprising victory in retaining her governing body seat in light of the fury over Gov. Jim Florio's tax package. While the Democrats have not held the majority on the governing body for more than 12 years, the 18-month administration of Democrat Florio may be a stumbling block in the path to victory in the fall election.

Throwing a political wrench into Albert's aspirations is the possibility another Democrat may run off the line. Lydia Allen, who resides on Walnut Avenue, is rumored to have thrown her hat into the ring, but as of press time the township clerk's office had not received the required petition. Although Allen asked to run as the Democrats' choice and was screened Sunday night by party's election committee, Albert was chosen.

Force, in his second three-year term on the Township Committee, has been mayor for three years. In recent weeks he has sidestepped inquires regarding a decision to seek re-election, and conflicting reports placing him in the running for country freeholder or state assembly failed to materialize.

Several controversial issues involving Force rose to the surface this past year.

FATHER AND SQN: Three-month-old Dustin Dertinger looks for his mother Vicky while father Steve holds him at temporary homeless shelter in First Presbyterian Church.

Baby's heart condition results in homelessness for young family of 4

By Peter Wamsteker

Steve and Vicky Dertinger are a typical American family struggling to survive in an uncertain world.

Like most families, they enjoy eating, playing and sleeping together. And like most families they are not immune from setbacks and adversity.

Steve was a truck driver and ride operator for a traveling carnival when he met Vicki in New York City three years ago. They married, had a son, whom they named Billy, moved to Florida, and began to build their lives around a burgeoning family.

Then, three days after the birth in January of their second son, Dustin, the first of several setbacks that would eventually lead them into a temporary state of homelessness occurred: Steve and Vicky were told Dustin would need open heart surgery.

Understandably concerned about the risks involved, they were relieved when told the operation was a success. But they were also told two more operations would be necessary before their newborn could hope to live a relatively normal life.

"He still has difficulty breathing and as you can see his skin is blue because his blood is not mixing the oxygen properly," Vicky said in an interview Sunday at First Presbyterian Church where they were living for two weeks as guests of the Interfaith Council for the Homeless. Dustin, lying wrapped in a blanket and drinking from a bottle, looked up at his mother while she was speaking.

"He'll never be an athlete. Certainly he won't be able to run around like his brother," she said.

Despite the successful operation, things changed from bad to worse very quickly for the family.

Steve chose to stay with his son instead of traveling with the carnival and consequently lost his job. Faced now with unexpected medical expenses and monthly visits to the doctor they moved from Florida to live with Vicky's mother in Newark. Steve immediately began looking for a job, one which would allow him to be with his family.

But no sooner had they arrived, when the landlord kicked them out. With no where to go the family was forced to live in their car for two days.

"We tried to get through to the Red Cross but they have an answering machine on the weekend," said Vicky.

By Monday the Red Cross put them in touch with the Interfaith Council, a non-profit organization dedicated to providing food and shelter for homeless families using a network of volunteers from more than 50 congregations of all denominations in Union County.

Established in 1987, the Interfaith Hospitality Network, one of four programs created by the Council, is comprised of approximately 25 congregations that serve as hosts to no more than 28 women and their families on a rotating basis four weeks a year. At the end of each week, the families move from congregation to congregation usually until they find a job and another more permanent shelter.

Town elders continue hearings on budget

By Cheryl Moulton

Budget hearings continued this week with a hodge-podge of budget decisions doing little to scratch the surface of a budget that comprises complex increases and major fiscal decisions on the part of the township.

Although the state sent notice the township will be given $720,408 in "property tax relief," the long-term effects on the township still remain in question. Governing body members are struggling to overcome the $800,000 fiscal albatross which hangs on the 1991 budget, but is hampered by staggering increases in health benefits and sewerage costs.

The 1991 budget is $900,000 over last year's figure, with $800,000 tied up in health benefits and sewerage increases alone and little chance the township can get out from behind the 9-ball. Adding to fiscal woes is the state mandated increase to the library which is set at $619,000.

Police and fire union contracts negotiations hinge on health benefits and raises, issues the township has not addressed to date. Town elders have said they are unable to assume the financial burden of a $355,000 increase in health benefit premiums, which could throw cold water on negotiations with the police and fire. Meanwhile the $364,000 increase in sewerage costs has tipped the budget scale to the point of no return.

Township finance director Tom Grady described the 1991 budget as "terrible." Stressing departmental cuts have been "significant," he emphasized "but we don't seem to be reaching any conclusions on what kind of tax rate there will be." Frustrated, Grady said governing body members had "some hard decisions to make."

The budget hearing of township administrator Ed Murphy left many stones unturned. Although the Citizens Budget Advisory Committee (CBAC) examined this particular area in great detail, questioning many of the expenditures and methods of revenue spending, many were ignored or passed over. The $367,878 administrators budget includes $213,687 for salaries and wages, and $152,991 for "other expenses." Murphy cut an additional $7,000 off the top of this during the meeting.

When Murphy was asked directly about several areas of the budget that remained cloudy, he said he "did not know" how the expenditures occurred. Dumbfounded, the CBAC was unable to

Chamber lists 'Pride in Cranford' and development award winners

Cranford Chamber of Commerce announced this week seven winners of its new "Pride in Cranford" award, which supplants the Citizen of the Year honor. Also named for improvements to their business properties were eight Development Award winners.

This year the Chamber decided to "spread the recognition" by selecting a number of volunteers who "make this community a better place." The public was invited to submit nominees.

The awardees include the late Bob Biach who served on a number of governmental boards until his death last July; DiTullio & LaCorte for the Chronicle building; Meryl Layton, owner of Cranford Book Store, who has been very active with the Downtown Management Corp. (DMC) and the Chamber; Tony Mack who served as DMC chairman for many years, leading it through several streetscape projects; Joanne McFadden, Girl Scout leader and PTA president at Walnut School as well as editor of the DMC's new publication Cranford Downtowner; Mavis Serafin, co-chairman of the River Maintenance Committee and active member of Common Sense drug awareness group.

Two groups also were selected for 'Pride' awards—Residents Against the Mall (MALL) for its persistence in fighting redevelopment of the former Beecham site into a mall by new owners Hartz Mountain Industries, and Sunny Acres Civic Improvement Association which also joined that fight. The latter group, the only civic association in the township, is celebrating its golden anniversary this year.

Development Awards will go to Joe Baldoni for streetscape improvements to his office building on S. Union Avenue; Crestmont Cleaning Services for an addition to its South Avenue building; Elberon Development Co. Inc., owners of the Drug Fair property on South Avenue; Harmonia Savings Bank for its new drive-in facility on Springfield Avenue; Mack again for his North Avenue business; Robert O'Sullivan and James Keefe, principals of K&O, for their new North Avenue office building. In addition the Cranford Baseball League will be recognized for its installation of lights at Memorial Field.

Awardees will be honored at a banquet April 24 at 6:30 Schering-Plough Corp., Kenilworth. The public is invited and fee is $40 a person for dinner and beverages. Checks may be sent to the Chamber of Commerce, 215 South Ave. E., Cranford.

Residents complain about ball field lights

By Cheryl Moulton

Residents living adjacent to the Adams Avenue baseball fields are crying foul, after the Cranford Baseball League (CBL) last week operated lights past the deadline hour set down by the Planning Board.

Although the saga of the CBL and the residents living near the Adams Avenue Baseball fields was thought to have ended last fall when the Planning Board granted approval for the erection of 14 40-foot lights on the field, residents claim the CBL is violating those rules and baseball season has not started yet. While the CBL received the go-ahead to erect the lights, the approval was based on set rules concerning the operation of the lights.

Last fall objecting residents took a dim view of 40-foot lights casting glaring light on their properties and fought to see the application defeated before the Planning Board. Residents and CBL members alike jammed the small meeting room to testify for and against the lights. The hearings were continued over several meetings but board members ultimately voted to approve the request from the CBL, laying down specific rules for the operation of the lights.

Among these was the time of operation, which was hotly debated by neighboring residents who expressed their dissatisfaction and concern over having to live with the lights which they said placed a burden on their quality of life. Planning Board members, however, fixed a 9 p.m. cutoff time for the lights, limiting operation to Monday to Friday, and eliminating use on weekends. While CBL members said the lights would help ease the tight scheduling of games, they hedged over a rigid cutoff time of 9 p.m. The lights also were not to be turned on prior to April 1 or after Father's Day. Loudspeaker usage was limited to emergencies.

A resident abutting the ball fields observed CBL members working until after 9 one night last week and until after 10 the following night, as well as using the loudspeaker. According to the resident, he called the police, who visited the site and had the lights turned out.

Ronald Polli, who has since sold his home on Adams Avenue, indicated this week the lights "put a blinding glare on the eyes as you drive up Adams Avenue." During the hearings last fall, residents objected to the CBL's requesting an exception to site plan for lights which township ordinance has determined should not be higher than 16 feet.

Judy Mazur, of the township building department and scribe to the Planning Board, indicated this week she has advised objecting residents to submit a letter in writing listing the use violations they have observed. Mazur will in turn advise the Planning Board of the violation.

Prior to CBL application hearings last fall, Thomas Conway of 102 Adams Ave. asked if the 9 p.m. cutoff time for use of the lights would be "written in stone," to which Planning Board chairman Henry Dreyer replied, "If the application were passed it would be made a condition of the resolution."

The application was unanimously passed by the Planning Board Dec. 19.

Zone board OKs garage, denies pool

In action involving residential applications last week, the Zoning Board of Adjustment approved construction of a garage addition for a Denman Road resident and denied construction of an above-ground pool sought by a Lenhome Drive homeowner.

Charles Leavitt's application for a front-yard garage addition at 236 Denman Rd. was approved unanimously. Robert Grausam's request to install an above-ground pool was rejected on the grounds that it would cause area drainage problems. Two area homeowners spoke out against the latter application, suggesting the drainage problems they encountered in recent years would worsen if the pool were installed.

On Monday at 8:15 p.m. the zoning board will continue hearing opposition arguments involving the variance sought by Waldbaum's to construct a supermarket on South Avenue.

Planning Board votes against bypass proposal for town

By Georgia Vosinakis
Chronicle associate

Last week's vote by the Planning Board on whether municipal development projects should be exempt from its review may prove to be a futile exercise of the democratic process should the Township Committee succeed in working its way around the planners' decision.

The board April 3 voted 5-3 against a proposal made late last year by township attorney Ralph Taylor that Cranford's Land Development Ordinance (LDO) be amended to allow township officials to bypass Planning Board protocol for projects slated for township-owned property.

Mayor Ed Force, however, suggested the Township Committee could "change the law" to accommodate what he called an "easier" method of planning board review by requesting the board submit "non-binding recommendations" to the Committee, as Taylor initially outlined.

"If we make a law, we can easily change it," he said of the committee's remedy to a Planning Board decision based on township law. Force had declared in November, however, that he did not believe the township should be above following its own rules and that he would never condone changing the LDO.

Board member Robert O'Sullivan attacked Force's candor about the power of the Township Committee to change laws and spotlighted a potential paradox.

"The Planning Board is non-binding because it can be overruled by changing the zoning laws (for instance)," he said and, addressing Force, he added, "It's a poor political move but (condoning) an informal review suggests you want to be able to do that (change laws) without having to be put in a position to have to change the zoning."

Force argued that the Committee develops township property "for the public good" and that even after a non-binding review, township officials "will still be held accountable" for their actions because, he said, "there's no indication that it (a township application) wouldn't be open to public scrutiny."

"Taylor made a good point that the public would be heard in either case," said board secretary Robert McArthur but, he added, "The Planning Board looks at development concerns whereas the Township Committee takes more of a view of political concerns."

Dreyer posed the question of making the change to the board's newest member because, he explained, Neil Magargal would have more of a public citizen's viewpoint than anyone else on the board.

"I like the checks and balances involved in coming before the Planning Board," said Magargal, even though, as Force pointed out, the planners are appointed by the Township Committee.

O'Sullivan agreed with Magargal, "I respect the function of an informal review but I think a vote (by the Planning Board) should stay in the process."

"It boils down to the Planning Board not (merely) giving its opinion to the Township Committee," said Dreyer, "but taking the facts presented and the input of the public and coming up with some type of finding."

The Planning Board's function in Taylor's scenerio could be likened to an advisory board for the Township Committee with no guarantee that its advice would be followed although Dreyer noted it has "always" been followed in the past. Under the existing process, facts and public input are considered unilaterally by the Planning Board before a decision, not just a recommendation, is made.

"The Township Committee gets ours with public input as opposed to ours and public input," concluded O'Sullivan.

Board member Carol Cappello pointed out that members of both panels may also learn from the public facts which otherwise may go unnoticed. Facts revealed before a Planning Board, however, may have a different impact when revealed before the Township Committee.

"Certainly the Township Committee doesn't have time to focus on specifics of a development application...given the other concerns the Township Committee has," said O'Sullivan.

"There are towns where the Planning Board is nothing more than a mouthpiece of the mayor," said Dreyer, suggesting public input before either board may not differ as much as suspected, especially when the mayor serves on both boards.

Cranford is one of two out of 21 communities in the county, according to Taylor, which have opted to retain a mandatory Planning Board review process for municipal projects. As the planners tried to recall the other town, O'Sullivan remarked that it was "probably another well-run town."

State DAR names Spinella Outstanding History Teacher

The New Jersey Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution has named Ronald Spinella, American history teacher at Cranford High School, the Outstanding American History Teacher of New Jersey. Spinella received a medal at the group's 99th annual state conference and will be entered in the Crane's national contest.

At the request of Crane's Ford Chapter for a nominee, Spinella was chosen by his peers to enter the contest. He has been teaching American history for nearly 30 years, since 1973 at Cranford High School. He maintains his interest in American history by visiting historical sites, attending historical seminars, and participating in other history-related activities. He started the honors program in American History at CHS. In 1984 he received the James F. Murray Jr. Award from the N.J. Historical Society for his work with the school's history club. The club's analysis of stone carver Ebenezer Price's grave markers in local burial grounds resulted in a traveling slide show which appeared in programs at Abraham Clark Memorial House, Roselle, and the Westfield chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution. Related to the musical Vache family, the veteran teacher plays the saxophone in various local bands.

Spinella said he tries "to share his enthusiasm for American history with his students."

This is the second year Crane's Ford has entered teachers in this contest. At todays DAR historical meeting at the Cranford Historical Society he will receive a certificate of merit as well as a gift certificate from Cranford Book Store.

Board fires three teachers, supervisor to trim expenses

By Rosalie Gross

Three teachers and a department supervisor in Cranford schools will lose their jobs at the end of the term in June due to consolidation.

The school board approved the terminations Monday to meet the April 30 state deadline for notifying school personnel who are not being rehired. Schools superintendent Robert Paul said after the workshop meeting that additional "reductions in force" can be expected at Monday's monthly business meeting.

Lynn Sturman, chairman of the math and business education departments since 1988, will be terminated as part of a consolidation of supervisory personnel announced last month. As part of the proposal to reduce the number of department chairmanships by one, the math and science departments will be combined under one supervisor and the business and home economics departments will be led by one chairman.

In a related move, the board technically terminated science supervisor Fred D'Antoni and home economics chairman Ann Walsky since their positions will no longer exist after June 30. The new combined chairmanships will be "posted" for applicants within the district May 1 and D'Antoni and Walsky are expected to apply for each of the new dual-department chairmanships. The reduction of a supervisor will save $50,000.

Two special education teachers hired in September, Kerry Vardalis and Michelle Walfish, will lose their jobs due to a regrouping of classes. The board will save $61,000. The reduction will leave 30 teachers in the special education department. Vardalis teaches at Orange Avenue School and Walfish at the pre-school SNAPPY program at Livingston School.

Gary Cohen, part-time television production teacher since 1988, also was terminated. Paul said his two classes will be reassigned to other teachers.

The board also eliminated the position of business office manager held by Barbara Blendinger since 1983. The job, instead, will be scaled down to a bookkeeper in a move designed to save $20,000 in salary.

Record numbers for AP courses

A record number of 24 Cranford High School students have signed up to take a total of 43 advanced placement examinations in 10 subjects. The tests will be given in May to students seeking to waive introductory college courses in a particular subject.

Advanced placement courses were offered for the first time this year in English and Spanish.

State stamp of approval

Cranford school officials can breathe a little easier for the next seven years.

The district has been notified officially by state education commissioner John Ellis that the schools have received seven-year certification under the 1975 school monitoring law. The certification is good until April 1, 1998.

The official certification follows a two-year effort to rectify two failings in the monitoring report of April 1988. Monitors found all in order last fall and recommended state certification.

Reaching out

With a nationwide recession showing no signs of ebbing and unemployment figures at their highest level in six years, the prospect of losing one's job, savings and quite possibly home becomes all too real. Even a few setbacks, which by themselves may seem inconsequential, can together lead to catastrophe.

Homelessness can happen to anyone through no fault of his own. Most homeless people certainly didn't choose to be that way. Fire and other natural disasters can destroy a home. Sudden illness and unemployment can lead to the same results. The notion of being without food, clothing or shelter is frightening especially to anyone who thinks it can't happen if you plan right.

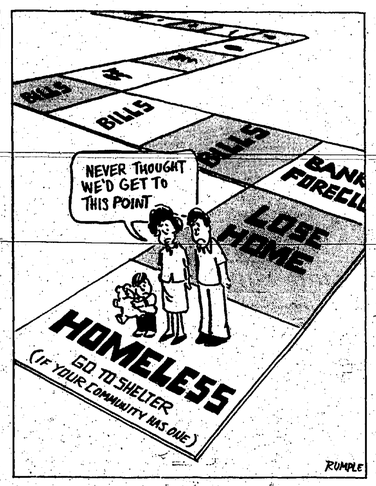
Fortunately several local organizations exist to help displaced families recover from unexpected disaster. They could use the support of everyone.

Cranford Family Care Association, based at the Municipal Building, has been helping individuals with food and clothing for years. Project Home, a Clergy Council sponsored program, is dedicated to paying the rent or mortgage for families in danger of losing their homes. And the Interfaith Hospitality Network has been providing shelter, meals and support through county-wide congregations including First Presbyterian Church here.

We salute these benevolent projects as well as a new one begun this year at Cranford United Methodist Church. Those without jobs can find help and take solace with others in the same situation at a series of ongoing job seminars at the local church.

Those able to help can reach out by volunteering or donating money or supplies to these various organizations.

Reach out and help someone.



A prized journalist

Each year since 1917, a select group of American writers has been awarded the Pulitzer Prize, which is the most coveted recognition of excellence in writing.

April 10 marks the birth anniversary of Joseph Pulitzer, one of America's most revered and respected journalists and the namesake of the Pulitzer Prizes. Born in Hungary, Pulitzer emigrated to the United States to serve for the Union Army during the Civil War.

After the war, Pulitzer went on to work for several newspapers in St. Louis, Mo. Eventually, he gained control of the St. Louis Dispatch and the St. Louis Post, the dominant papers in the city. He later purchased the influential New York World, which, under his direction, helped shape both public and political opinion and set standards for editorial policy that were used by many newspapers.

Pulitzer endowed the Columbia University School of Journalism before his death in 1911. With this gift, the school established the Pulitzer Prizes, which recognize outstanding writing in the areas of fiction, poetry, biography, history, drama, music and various categories of newspaper work.

In conjunction with Pulitzer's birth date, April 10 has also been named "Encourage a Beginning Writer Day."

An extra set of keys for Dad's car

Shenanigans

By Cheryl Moulton

I saw a teenager learning to drive the other day...her father patiently explaining the fine art of parking. It reminded me of the caper I pulled off when I was 16...going on 17...and suffering from an extreme need to exert my independence. I'm still being punished for that one.

Maybe I should start at the beginning. When I was growing up things were very organized. Mom kept an eagle eye on everything. In other words, there was little opportunity to get into trouble. She even knew when we were planning to be up to no good.

The summer Mom had to go into the hospital for an operation we kids listened for weeks about the "rules." Mom not only told us, but she wrote messages on every inanimate object in the house. One message taped to the refrigerator reminded one to close the door after use...and not to stand looking blankly into an open refrigerator for no reason because "it would let the cold out." A sign above the tub read, "Clean me after use." The toilet said "Please flush." By the time Mom left for the hospital there wasn't anything in the house that did not have a message on it. Mom was good, really good, but she forgot to put a message on one thing...the car.

It was not a premeditated crime. Contrary to popular belief, I did not secretly plan to hijack the car and go on a wild joyride. I was smarter than that. To me it was just a slightly premature foray into a world I would shortly step into. I had but a few months to go until I could secure my driver's license, but here I was with all the freedom in the world and no transportation. I suppose any normal God fearing, parent fearing teenager would have by-passed the opportunity to have a spirit of adventure...but I, who threw caution to the wind on a regular basis, who never flinched when faced with a challenge, never hesitated for a moment.

Dad decided to use Mom's car and left his car sitting temptingly in the driveway. There was only one problem...no keys. It seemed logical to me to call a locksmith and ask how much it would cost to make an extra set of keys for Dad's car. Who would be the wiser? I made the call, using my most grown-up voice, and was told it would cost $7.50 for the locksmith to come to the house and take care of the "most unfortunate loss" of "my" car keys.

I guess I never thought about the consequences...the law...or anything beyond driving the car. The man from the locksmith shop took a look at the ignition, and told me it would take about 15 minutes and I would be "all set to go." True to his word, 15 minutes later he handed me a set of keys and I handed him $7.50 in quarters, dimes, nickels and pennies. I stood in the driveway with the keys in my hand and decided to go for the gusto...live life in the fast lane...literally.

It never occurred to me that I did not know how to drive. How hard could it be? I had watched my father drive for years...not to mention observing the long, involved process we all had to endure while Mom learned to drive. It took so long...even my little brother knew how to shift when she finally got her license.

I climbed in the driver's side, adjusted the seat, put the key in the ignition...and started the car. Seconds later my little brother and I were sailing up the road, the wind ruffling our hair, my arm hanging out the window. During the two weeks Mom was in the hospital we took the car out every day. After a few days, we even drove to the hospital to see my mother, who immediately asked, "How did you get up here?"

Simultaneously my little brother and I said, "We walked," "We took the bus." He looked at me, I looked at him, and we reversed it.

With Mom sitting there looking at us and wanting answers, I said, "My friend brought us." Maybe it was the operation, or the pain killers but Mom's radar was off that day. While we held our breath...waiting for her to tear the covers off and leap out of bed to kill us...she smiled and said, "That's nice of your friend, dear." That's nice? This was easier than I thought...if I had known it was going to be this easy...I could have been having fun for years.

A week later Mom came home and life returned to normal. Until the day Mom announced, "The doctor said I can drive again," I had pushed the incident from my mind.

The next morning instead of getting in Mom's blue Chevy, Dad whistled as he made his way back past my window to his car. Half asleep, I heard him open the car door...and a few seconds later mumble "What the heck is wrong with this key...it won't fit." I was instantly wide awake. A few more minutes passed and my father began to yell...his words indistinguishable as he tore from the car...through the hedges and into the house...banging and bumping into furniture as he made his way to my bedroom.

There was no escaping. The door flew open with a bang. He stood there, face red, veins sticking out in his neck...hand in midair holding the set of keys that would not start the engine. "What did you do to my car?" he asked in a low guttural voice, not unlike Reagan in the "Exorcist," as her head was about to spin around. I cringed...knowing I could not get out of this one. He made it to my bed in one giant step, looked down at me and said, "You changed the ignition, didn't you?" So that's how the man came up with a set of keys to start the car, I thought as it occurred to me I was in deep trouble.

Dad grounded me for 30 years. Mom thought grounding for life was too strong. Besides I already was grounded for life twice before, she noted. I also was not allowed to get my driver's license when I turned 17. My little brother, turncoat that he was, claimed I kidnapped and "forced him to go," rendering him a mere "victim" of the crime, one Mom hoped would not "scar him for life." As far as I can figure, with all the punishments I racked up when I was kid, I should be "off" when I'm 124, give or take a few years.

Recycle phone books

To the Editor:

Before recycling was mandated in New Jersey, my family recycled newspaper. We collected it from various sources and, when we had enough to fill a van, we took it to a recycling center in Hillside. On one such trip, a phone book inadvertently got mixed in with the newspapers, but that was OK because newspaper is exactly what phone books are made of—minus the covers and glossy inserts.

So, this would seem to answer A.M. Gessler's question of March 28 as to what we are supposed to do with out old phone books. Recycle them.

Unfortunately, when this year my family tried to recycle our phone books at the curb, they were left there, on several occasions.

Why can the recyclers themselves accept the phone books with the newspapers, yet Cranford cannot? Well, Cranford, what do you propose we do with them?

'If it ain't broke'

To the Editor:

The commentary written in last week's Chronicle was factual and "hit the nail right on the head." The kamikaze approach presented by the Public Safety Department Research Committee regarding a public safety director will adversely impact on the already well-established, well-managed and well-respected Cranford Police and Fire Departments.

To my knowledge, it took the Township of Union four to five years of careful planning before they implemented a public safety director, yet today there are still many concerns. The City of Linden, on the other hand, implemented very quickly and today much controversy has arisen from this change.

The one Cranford meeting where this issue was described and presented was, in my opinion, an unprofessional, disjointed attempt at providing undocumented information to us to attempt to establish a positive solution to a non-existent problem. Personally, after serving as a Cranford policeman for 23 years, I don't want a "Band-Aid" approach. I would hope that the town fathers would take a good look at the "record" and take the time to arrive at factual answers in all areas. Please don't waste the taxpayers' time and money. Please, no smoke screens, no divide and conquer. It can't and won't work.

Don't break the county's best police and fire departments.

Bravo

To the Editor:

Hats off to the third grade of Harding School in the production of "Buttons and Bows." The show was viewed with sheer delight, and it touched everyone's heart. It was very overwhelming to watch the talent displayed by these young children. An enormous amount of time and preparation went into making this show a tremendous success.

Our special thanks go out to Mrs. Worthington, Mrs. Peterson and especially to Mr. Binder for all their time, effort and devotion. This was truly a wonderful learning experience for everyone that was involved, and we congratulate them for a job well done.

Flabbergasted by chairman

To the Editor:

Livio Mancino flabbergasted? Come on, Mr. Mancino, whom are you kidding? If you really want to talk flabbergasted I was appalled that three highly qualified, experienced, popular incumbent councilmen were forced to go the usual screening route. That they were expected to screen was understandable, in order to preserve the selection process. However, once having screened, the selection of Jeff Corcione, Gregg David and Al Testa should have been announced at the March 27 meeting of the Democratic Club. Instead, Mr. Mancino claimed that the final selections would be made after an additional screening date.

Why continue screening with three solid, incumbent councilmen on hand? On more than one occasion, in my presence, Mr. Mancino has stated that regardless of the committee the chairman makes the final decision. Why then keep these men dangling?

Jeff Corcione, Gregg David and Al Testa are to be applauded for declaring themselves Independents, responsive only to the will of the people of Kenilworth, and free of petty party politics. I fully support their decision and their candidacies.

Closing the budget gap

To the Editor:

There is no doubt that taxpayers and county employees are relieved that the Board of Freeholders along with the county manager found the better part of $12 million to close the budget gap. For this they are to be congratulated, maybe.

The full impact of the details on how they found the $12 million and/or what means they used will surface shortly. Only then, will it be determined if it was done with smoke and mirrors or through sound and practical measures that will have a lasting effect.

Before freeholder chairman Welsh, vice chairman Ertl, freeholder finance chairman Green and Ann Baran, county manager, break out the caviar and champagne, I suggest that the following questions be answered or look into:

If Union County government was truly facing 400 to 600 layoffs, as first reported in December, what is there to prevent the same problem in December 1991? What safeguards are being put into effect today for tomorrow? Has anyone thought of developing a master plan or who in county government is even thinking past the next headline, contract or election? Ms. Baran is blinded by her three-year contract and Freeholders Welsh, Green and Ertl are looking at Trenton for a possible run for the Assembly or a position in state government.

Unless these answers are developed or found, county employees and every taxpayer will relive the same scare tactics or confusion in government as witnessed over the past several months. Had this been the private sector, the pink slips would have been issued to the freeholder chairman, vice chairman, finance chairman and county manager first.

Ms. Baran stated the administration was able to save jobs, in part, by not filling vacancies "that aren't critical to government operation." What about reviewing many existing positions to see if they "aren't critical to government operations" as well?

Does Union County need expensive part-time employees, some with full benefits; a deputy county manager at $80,000; an ombudsman-county spokesperson at $41,000; a fist-full of confidential aides with salaries ranging from $20,000 to $50,000 or the positions that are held by family members of some freeholders? Is it politics or business as usual?

Why does Union County continue to pay a couple of insurance brokers in excess of $250,000 yearly in insurance commissions, while refusing to place the insurance needs of Union County out for public bid? Is it because the brokers are the largest contributors to the Democratic Party and/or because one of the brokers is the treasurer of the same party? Perhaps the freeholders will tell us soon.

Why the refusal, by Ms. Baran, to place $2 million worth of furniture out for public bid? Was there a conflict of interest on her part? Was her action responsible and professional not to insure that Union County received the most competitive price? Perhaps Ms. Baran will answer some of these questions soon.

Why has there been no movement to reduce the size of the county motor pool and cut back on portal-to-portal use of county cars and the consumption of expensive fuel that is used to bring any given employee to work and back home?

There must be some indication from Freeholders Welsh, Ertl, Green and Ms. Baran, as the leaders, that they are thinking ahead to 1992 and beyond. I firmly believe that concern and action must be taken in 1991 to cut positions "that aren't critical to governmental operations," revamp or correct the current purchasing practices, reduce or eliminate the many change orders that pop up on a weekly basis, review the use of expensive car phones and remove in total the expensive trips to conventions around the country.

It is a matter of common sense that every effort be made by the current freeholders and administration to develop the master plan mentioned above, that will insure that the scapegoat in 1992 will not be the taxpayers or the county employees again. The taxpayers and voters will judge the freeholders and their county manager on Election Day, Nov. 5. If it is anything like last year's election results, those incumbents or Democrats running have a great deal of work ahead of them and so does their county manager, Ann Baran.

Keep cats in attic

To the Editor:

I fully agree with last week's letter "Keep cats inside," which asked Cranford residents to keep their cats inside for protection. Fighting the harsh outside world can certainly take its toll on the life of a cat.

However, after thinking things over, I realize that there is another danger which our cats must face. In most houses, there are objects high up on shelves and tables. If a cat were to back into one of these shelves, a blunt object could fall and land on its head, killing the feline instantly.

So, to protect your cat, please lock it up in a little cage and put it in the attic where nothing can harm it.

Children gather eggs at hunt

Hundreds of youngsters scrambled for candy eggs at Saturday's egg hunt sponsored by the Capt. Newell Rodney Fiske Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 335. The annual event, originally scheduled for March 23, finally was held at Unami Park after two postponements due to rain.

In addition to the eggs collected by children, ages 3 to 12, 24 prizes were awarded to lucky finders. Winning bicycles were Christian Bass and Jennifer Devina.

Serving as egg hunt chairman was Ken Curtis, VFW senior vice commander.

Good old days and ways

By Lucille Hovell
Contributing writer

How good were those good, old days? Anyone old enough to give a qualified answer would, with a little thought, say that the good in the old days was that, personally, the old did not apply. Good grief, 50 years ago, a half century ago, I was young. The unbelievable, to me, fact of the matter is that I can clearly remember everything about it. Awesome. My children were not yet alive, my husband was. So were my mom, and dozens of people I loved.

Those days, those times, were wonderful. We had fewer choices, simpler amusements, less money, more responsibilities. No television, no credit cards, but a new house could be bought for $5,000, with all-inclusive monthly payments of under $30. However, people who bought them made about $25 a week. A new Ford car cost about $600, and with one car to a family, and gasoline 19 cents a gallon, most of us drove a decent used car. They could cost from 15 to 50 bucks. And on weekends, that four-cylinder little roadster took a starry-eyed young couple out into the country where bed-and-breakfast cost a dollar a night per room (guest-home owners stayed out of the one bathroom while guests were around).

With a smile and sigh of truest nostalgia I recall waking to the aroma of fresh brewed coffee, rolls and coffee cake in the oven, and home-cured bacon and ham a-cookin'. Freshly gathered eggs and home-made preserves rounded out the 50-cent breakfast. Those are the first things I remember when I recall what was good. And the Saturday nights when friends gathered together to play the piano, guitar, banjo and cornet. We sang. We danced. We drank 29-cents-a-pound coffee and ate home-made doughnuts. Good? Wonderful.

On the flip side of the coin, there were no antibiotics and no polio vaccine. Playmates had died or been crippled by polio, or died of rheumatic fever. My neighbor died of an infection the day after delivering her third baby. Friends and relatives died of pneumonia, or simple-seeming infections which became "blood-poisoning" and nightmare deaths. And, at that, my husband's mother told us how lucky our generation was. We had smallpox and diphtheria inoculations. As a child of 6 she had held her 2-year-old sister in her arms as the child choked to death, burning up with fever from the diphtheria which had killed their 4-year-old brother. The parents were at that moment attending the funeral of their only boy.

My mother died at the still pleasant age of a half-year under 100. She had said, apropos of our planning a great bash for next birthday, "I do not want to live to 100. No human being was meant to live that long. I'm not a cathedral, or a city. Human parts wear out. I should be able to say 'good night' to you all, turn out the lights, and simply go to sleep. It's time." Frankly, I've often thought she lay awake nights thinking up some of the best one-liners I've ever heard; though she was amazingly quick with the quip. When I said that she was the smartest person I knew, she looked up from polishing her nails between manicures, and replied, "No dear. Just the oldest."

The words "age" and "experience" possibly are interchangeable. Where does knowledge and learning sneak into your head if you are not actively pursuing it? Recently I watched one of my sons prepare pork chops. Tenderized with orange juice, seasoned with pepper and onion slices, cooked with carrots and potatoes in the skillet, as I had done for the kids a quarter of a century ago, I asked, "Did you figure out how to do that?"

He looked amazed at the question. "I used to watch you prepare dinner. Did you think that while we talked I closed my eyes? I can cook a lot of the things you make."

Aha. So that is how I learned so many things. I'd been exceptionally close to my mother. My father had been killed in an accident before I was 4 months old, and my brothers and sister all were in school before I was a toddler. I was sure my mother could not stand to have me out of her sight. That got me left back in kindergarten. I couldn't stand having her out of my sight. Naturally, I cried, softly, but a lot. I did not want to sit in the nice little chair, and sing little songs, and play little games. I was too little. I wanted my mommy.

We all had rather expected that our clever, capable mother, who had written when she was young, had been writing some of her recipes, experiences, fantastic solutions to innumerable problems, and how she had coped with life. All she had been writing were letters. I do that too. Almost on a daily basis I communicate with someone I wish I could be with more often. Years ago, I'd asked her to write. "I'm tired," she'd said. "You do it for me. You have always written, and have turned into a professional writer. Sit down. Remember, and write."

Yes, I could do that. From A to Z there are helpful hints. There are recipes, ideas, time-savers. Even the Q, X and Z have their places in my brain's file cabinet. Say any word, and often it's a buzz-word for a joke I recall. Put me in a kitchen and say, "I'm hungry, and there is practically nothing worthwhile in this house to eat," and I'll guarantee you a tasty meal. I've lived in the country, without a car. I've lived in New York City in a Riverside Drive apartment. I've cooked on electric, gas and oil stoves, and simmered a pot of soup on the top of a wood stove. I like to cook. I love to find solutions to problems. I glory in pleasing people I care about...and besides, I'm cheap.

There are petty annoyances and serious problems. There are the simple, and obvious ways of never having to diet, and enjoying everything you like to eat. There are problems of old age, and I come from a long-lived family. I'll be around for a long time, and there are enough not-goods in old-age without hanging onto the goods for dear life.

My mother, widowed a few years before she was 40, and in excellent health all of her life, did not cherish old age. She could no longer dash off on a trip, or be alone overnight. She admitted, apologetically, to being bored. She had outlived everyone of her generation, and my son's wife said once, "I suppose what you must miss the most in life as you get old are the people from your own generation." My blessed mother had said, without having to reflect, "No, my dear, my own century."

Mother never seemed to consciously teach us anything. How much we all absorbed is mind-boggling; from peeling an onion without tears, to knowing about nutrition by properly choosing harmonious food colors. My own experience with rearing a family, overcoming physical problems, to nursing someone till death did us part: I've learned that I'm probably more lucky than smart; and I was born with an ability to remember much of what I need, and how to forget what would be too painful to remember. You stay young only if you count the good years and eliminate the bad ones. My mother said that.

Independent and GOP hopefuls file for race

By Peter Wamsteker

In what appears will be a hotly contested three-way race for election in November, Councilmen Gregg David and Albert Testa announced today that they will seek re-election as Independents while second-year councilman Jeffrey Corcione will lead the ticket for mayor.

The candidacies come a week after their surprise announcement to split from the Democratic party. All three were pleased with the support they received following a whirlwind weekend campaign for petition signatures which has been filed with the county clerk.

The Republican slate will see Mayor Joseph Rego, who is finishing the unexpired term of former Mayor Joseph Benintente, at the head of the ticket. Seeking election for Council will be former Councilman Dennis Schultz and political newcomer Don Rica.

Meanwhile Democratic municipal chairman Livio Mancino has been scrambling for last-minute candidates following the Independent's decision last week to break from the party. Mancino has until 4 p.m. today to file the names of his candidates with the borough clerk.

Regarding his decision to run for mayor, Corcione said, "I feel it was the right thing to do at the right time. As Independents we can look at what is better for Kenilworth without the constraints of historical political devices."

Corcione, the current commissioner of public safety, and Council president David said they were very happy with the support they received over the weekend gathering at least 40 more signatures than was required.

Their candidacies already have been supported by at least one Democrat.

Writing in a letter to the editor which appears today, Phyllis Baldacchini, former councilwoman and mayoral candidate in 1987 and for the unexpired term last year, endorsed their candidacies and asked why Mancino did not announce the ticket at the March 27 meeting of the Democratic Club.

The Republicans will be led by Rego, a retired police lieutenant who served on Council from 1988 through last year when he was elected mayor.

Schultz, a former Council president, served one term from 1987 through 1989. He lost his bid for re-election with Lenore Jeans in 1989 to Councilmen Lawrence Clementi and Corcione.

Rica, a political novice, is a senior loan officer with Eastern Mortgage Services in Fairfield and East Brunswick. Rego introduced Rica to the Republican screening committee and has said that he will be a good candidate. "He really wants to get involved, he thinks that now is the time to get involved."

Rego re-introduces truck chassis restriction

By Peter Wamsteker

An amendment to the land use laws which would prohibit the repair, storage and leasing of truck chassis and cargo containers in a heavy industrial zone resurfaced Monday after it had been tabled last month by its sponsor, Mayor Joseph Rego.

Borough Councilmen declined to consider the proposal since Rego announced at a March workshop that he would drop his pursuit of the amendment and follow the Planning Board's recommendation to review and revise the entire code rather than specific portions.

The amendment, introduced last October when Rego was a councilman, was proposed in response to Flexi-Van Leasing Co.'s proposal to repair, store and lease truck chassis and cargo containers at its 43-acre site at N. 8th Street and Monroe Avenue. Hundreds of residents were opposed to the project while elected and appointed officials scrambled to lessen the impact.

But the amendment, drafted by borough attorney Bradford Bury, showed up again at Monday's workshop much to the consternation of Council.

"I thought we were in agreement to form a committee to make changes (to the code). Why are we doing this again?" said Gregg David.

Rego explained Tuesday that he re-introduced the amendment because he feared that Flexi-Van would be able to stack cargo containers beyond what the board restricted after five years.

But James Flynn, the Planning Board attorney hired for the Flexi-Van hearings, said Tuesday that any changes the leasing company wants to make to its site plan after five years will require that it appear before either the planning or zoning board.

Recycling of plastics is required

By Peter Wamsteker

Residents will be required to recycle plastic containers under an amendment to the recycling ordinance approved 4-1 Tuesday by Borough Council.

Under the amendment, plastic containers, such as milk containers and detergent bottles will be added to glass, aluminum cans and newspapers, which are now required to be separated from household waste and placed on curbside for collection. The new requirement takes effect immediately.

Separately, residents will be prohibited from parking on the Boulevard between 6 and 7 a.m. every Thursday so the county public works department can sweep the street. Councilmen unanimously approved the amendment to the parking ordinance without opposition.

In other Council action, longtime resident Kathleen Johnson was recognized for her 35 years of service as a school crossing guard. The resolution praised her for her devotion and dedication to the community.

Councilman Lawrence Clementi announced that Robert Wacker has been named Citizen of the Year. Wacker, a Korean War veteran, was instrumental in coordinating Saturday's parade for returning troops and other war veterans.

Public Safety chairman Jeffrey Corcione said a meeting between residents of N. 10th Street and the owner of Apples Tavern is slated for April 17.

Corcione reported that the police department has received a total of $7,000 in donations for the purchase of new bullet-proof vests. The department is looking for additional financial help.

Planning, zoning and ordinance chairman Sam Cavallaro said that recommendations for revisions to the master plan has been sent to Council for action. Mayor Joe Rego said he is organizing a 10-member committee to review and revise the entire local land use code.

Councilmen also announced that residents Robert Cox and Brian Deahl were appointed probationary firemen April 1.

Boro seeks grant for drug, alcohol prevention projects

The Municipal Drug and Alcohol Alliance Committee filed an application with the county April 1 requesting funding for several community projects.

The application, which seeks a $14,000 grant, was filed to continue established drug and alcohol education and prevention programs in the borough and seeks financial support to train committee members.

The committee, made up of police, businessmen, clergy, students, teachers and members of Borough Council, will not know how much funding it will receive until May.

If any money is granted, it will go to programs to educate elementary and junior high school pupils and senior citizens, according to alliance committee chairman Richard Dopf.

One program that will benefit from a grant will be "Here's Looking at You, 2000," a program at Harding and St. Theresa schools to prepare children to deal with the realities of drugs, he said.

Dopf hopes that funding will also go toward programs to help educate and prevent youngsters from using drugs and for prevention and intervention programs for senior citizens.

Two men fined for alcohol violations

During recent Municipal court proceedings a 30-year-old Cranford man pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated.

Craig V. Franz of 5 Bluff St. was fined a total of $406 and his driver's license was revoked for six months. He was ordered to attend the Intoxicated Drivers Resource Center for 12 hours by Judge Aldan Markson.

Franz was arrested at 12:48 a.m. Jan. 12 on the parkway.

Separately, a Roselle Park man pleaded guilty to being a disorderly person and the consumption of alcohol under the legal age.

William Milligan, 19, of West Colfax Avenue was fined a total of $335 for both charges in connection with an incident March 31 at Holiday Inn. Police were called at 1:30 a.m. after Milligan, who had been drinking, began kicking doors and walls and was screaming. He then ran outside and was arrested by officer Richard Wood in the middle of the Boulevard, said police.

Jewelry, electronics stolen in break-in Computer equipment, jewelry, a VCR and diamond engagement ring together worth approximately $24,000 along with $2,000 cash was reported stolen Sunday from a Monroe Avenue residence.

Investigators said the burglary occurred between 6:30 and 11 p.m. on the 300 block of Monroe Avenue. Police have declined to release the name of the victim.

Entry was gained after breaking a screen window on the second floor leading to the master-bedroom, said police. Cash was taken from a bureau drawer and the room was ransacked. Investigators believe the burglar used a fire escape to leave the house. There are no suspects.

Republicans Morgan, Strahlendorf are seeking re-election

Republican Borough Council members Barbara Morgan and Fred Strahlendorf will run for re-election this year. Morgan has served two three-year terms; Strahlendorf is completing his first term.

The incumbents have been endorsed by the Republican Municipal Committee for the party's nomination in the June 4 primary. Today is the deadline for candidates to file for the primary.

Morgan, who is Council president this year, has been a borough resident 41 years. She and her husband, Calvin, live at 253 Locust Ave. She graduated from Arthur Johnson High School and attended Union County College and Union County Vocational Center. She completed a real estate course at N.J. Realty Institute in Garwood and is employed by Coldwell-Banker Robert Michael Realty in Clark.

While on Council, she has chaired the finance, laws and license, building and grounds, police, fire, and recreation committees. She was vice president of the Garwood Woman's Club and is a member of the county Cooperative Extension Service and Garwood Republican Club. She is Council liaison to Garwood Library and previously was president of the library trustees.

Strahlendorf has lived in the borough 27 years. He and his wife, Dottie, live at 114 Winslow Pl. and are the parents of two children, Jon and Carol, and have a grandson. A graduate of Jefferson High School, Elizabeth, the candidate attended Albright College. He is retired from the N.J. State Police after a 26-year career in which he held several supervisory positions in regulating the casino and liquor industries. He also was a certified instructor at several police academies in the state. Since leaving the state police in 1984, Strahlendorf has been employed with Marriott Corp. as director of security and loss prevention at Newark Airport. He is a Korean War veteran, having served with Army Special Services.

Strahlendorf is chairman of Council's police, laws and licensing, and industrial and commercial committees. He formerly was on the Planning Board and was treasurer of the Public Celebrations Committee. He was president of the parish council at Church of St. Anne and has served the last several years as director of church lectors. He is a member of American Society of Industrial Security and is a life member of the state PBA.

The councilman said he is seeking re-election because it will "provide me an opportunity to continue with and complete pending issues and concerns. I strongly feel that with fellow Republican Mayor Tom Dolly at the helm and the Council support he generates, that many positive issues can be effectively addressed and that problems, whatever they may be, can be appropriately solved by a Republican majority."

REPUBLICAN candidates for Borough Council are incumbents Barbara Morgan and Fred Strahlendorf.

Democrats still unsure

Democratic municipal chairman Frank Spera said the party has only one potential candidate for the Borough Council election, but was not certain as of press time yesterday whether the person would accept the party's endorsement.

Spera said if the Democrats fail to come up with a candidate by today's filing deadline, he expects there would be write-in nominations for Council candidates in the June 4 primary election.

$220 boost predicted for average taxpayer

By Rosalie Gross

There's good news and bad news for municipal taxpayers this year.

The bad news is that property taxes are expected to increase by $220 for the owner of the average home assessed at $100,000. The good news is that the increase could have been $100 more, but thanks to a one-time infusion of $180,700 in state aid under the amended Quality Education Act, the average taxpayer will be spared 10 points of increase.

The tax projections were unveiled with the introduction of the 1991 municipal budget at Tuesday's Borough Council meeting. The municipal budget totals $3.8 million, an increase of $21,559 or 5.7 percent over last year's $3.78 million budget. Despite increases in salaries for municipal employees and a 24-percent increase in health insurance, Council was able to hold the line on municipal spending due to significant reductions in the costs of sewerage flow and garbage dumping.

The municipal portion of the tax levy will be reduced by four tax points due to the state property tax relief. The amount to be raised by taxes to support the budget is $2.418 million compared to $2.491 million last year, a reduction of $72,105, which represents four tax points or an average of $40 per residential property.

However, increases in school and county tax levies will increase taxes overall by 22 points or $220 on the averge $100,000 assessment. The tax rate is expected to increase from $3.75 per $100 of assessed value in 1990 to $3.96 in 1991.

The municipal budget portion will decrease from $1.38 to $1.34. However, the local school tax levy is expected to increase by 17 points from $1.01 to $1.18, the regional school levy will go up six points from .62 cents to 68 cents and the county tax will increase by three points from 73 cents to 76 cents.

Thirty-six percent of the municipal budget is earmarked for salaries at a total of $1.383 million, an increase of $118,416 or 9 percent. Employee health insurance will go up by 24 percent from $192,500 last year to $239,00, an increase of $46,500.

The borough will save money, though, by reductions in waste disposal costs. Due to corrected meter readings, the borough assessment to Rahway Valley Sewerge Authority will decrease by 65 percent from $578,000 in 1990 to $350,000 this year, a saving of $228,000. The cost of garbage dumping also will be lower by 11.6 percent from $385,000 to $344,994, a difference of $40,000.

There will be an increase in the amount of money used for capital improvements from $100 last year to $56,000 in 1991.

On the revenue portion of the budget, the borough is applying $450,000 in surplus funds, a reduction of $50,000 over last year.

The budget will be printed in the May 2 edition of the Chronicle. The public hearing and final Council adoption will take place May 14.

Public questions school board at hearing on $2.9M budget

By Donna Hendel
Chronicle associate

At Tuesday's Board of Education public hearing on the proposed 1991-92 school budget of $2.9 million, community members spoke up with questions and concerns.

Bill Nierstedt of Hickory Avenue dominated the forum, questioning almost line by line items on the proposed budget. Responding slowly and carefully were board president Stephen Lefebvre, school superintendent Walter Boright and business administrator Louis Cirangle.

Nierstedt wanted to know: How much does Garwood still owe on bonds? ("It's down to $315,000," said Cirangle); What does no fund balance mean? ("It means there's no savings and nothing to carry over," said Lefebvre); What is being replaced with the proposed $61,000 under the maintenance category? ("Those funds are for the purchase of new computers, a new fire alarm system, a sound system for Washington School and a gas heat conversion," said Boright), and other questions.

"I want to make sure we get what we're supposed to get out of this budget," said Nierstedt. "I want the money we do spend to be spent wisely."

Ralph Urrico of Fourth Avenue, a candidate in the upcoming school board election, expressed concern about the increases in dollars and percentages. "There don't seem to be any real decreases except for pupil transportation and maintenance of plant. I'm worried about the ultimate cost."

Cirangle responded, "We won't know exactly until the auditors come in."

Pam Plummer of Second Avenue commented, "I'm concerned about cuts in the resource room program, although I see increases are everywhere else throughout this budget. Something's got to be done." "I think we residents should be given a bigger opportunity to speak out on these matters before the budget gets to this point, such as in a planning session," said John Conlin of Hemlock Avenue, the borough's former representative to the regional high school Board of Education for 32 years. "I don't think we're spending enough in this community." Conlin said the lowest per pupil cost is in Garwood and that teachers' salaries are near the bottom. Referring to a recent lecture in Garwood on individual self-esteem, Conlin, said, "We need community esteem here. This is a very modest budget. Maybe we should ask for a cap waiver," he said, referring to the state-imposed ceiling on increased spending of 5.0 percent. Amidst applause, Conlin concluded, "I want these schools to be better and better, and I'm willing to pay for it."

"The board really worked hard on this budget and it would have been twice this amount, but we had to get it under the cap," Lefebvre said. "Nevertheless, I think this is a good budget. I'm proud of the educational program we're turning out here. At the same time, we're trying to be fiscally responsible to the town."

The current expense portion of the budget will require an increase in property tax of nearly 11 points plus another 3.5 points for $60,942 in debt service, bringing the projected tax rate to $1.155 per $100 of assessed value, up from last year's rate of $1.01. Since the school board's fiscal year starts July 1 instead of Jan. 1, the second half of the 1990-91 budget must be paid this year, bringing the total projected school tax to $1.18 or an increase of 17 points or $170 on the average $100,000 house.

The board approved the $2.9 million budget and $2.16 million tax levy for submission to the voters in the April 30 school election.

School survey backs current schedule in 5th, 6th grades

During the workshop portion of Tuesday's Board of Education meeting, schools superintendent Walter Boright reported on the results of a survey of fourth and fifth grade parents.

With more than 50 percent returning questionnaires, parents almost unanimously voted to continue a modified self-contained class schedule for pupils. Parents of children in fifth grade were very strongly in favor of continuing this arrangement in sixth grade also.

Boright also announced that principal Gail Wovna has been asked to participate with past recipients of the Governor's Teacher Recognition Awards to work on the committee and be a presenter. She and her former Monmouth County school district in 1987 were recipients of the award, which was $15,000 to package a reading and writing program.

Bids have been received to mend the leaky roof over Lincoln School and Garwood Library. Also under consideration is the purchase of a new lawn mower to replace one that was stolen recently.

Suspended driver is fined $357

During recent Municipal court proceedings a 27-year-old Elizabeth man pleaded guilty to driving with a suspended driver's license.

Wallie Rodriguez was fined a total of $357 and his driver's license was revoked for one year. Municipal Court Judge William Botta Jr. ordered him to serve 10 days community service.

Rodriguez was issued a summons at 5 p.m. Feb. 21 on South Avenue near New Street.

Academy Award-winning movies got their start as books

By Irma S. Mirante
Contributing writer

I was intrigued by how many of the 1991 Academy Award winners and nominees had their start in books (with few exceptions they are now available in paperback).

"Dances with Wolves," Michael Blake's first novel, was published in 1988 and he wrote the screenplay. The book makes especially enjoyable reading for one who has seen the movie because the reader can visualize the vastness of the great prairie that Lt. Dunbar likens to a religious experience or falling in love when he first encounters the open country. The book is mainly in journal form and you experience Dunbar's loneliness when he reaches the abandoned fort; his determination to clean up the fort as though he were just another man at the post; his first fumbling, wary meetings with the Sioux and his final realization that the heroic, dignified Sioux, whom he admires, are doomed. This is a story of native Americans told with humor, sensitivity and compassion.

Blake's own life would make a good book. He worked in factories, as a dishwasher, newspaper deliveryman, lived in his car, and all the time wrote screenplays. It was his friends, Michael Wilson and Kevin Costner, who encouraged him to write this book and then produced it as the award-winning movie. Blake said reading "Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee," the Dee Brown classic, inspired him. His book first published in paperback is due to be published in hard cover. He has shunned the usual book tour to visit with children in schools and libraries to encourage them to read, hold on to their dreams, and never give up—offering his 25 years of rejection as proof that dreams do come true.

"Wise Guy—Life in a Mafia Family" by Nicolas Pileggi is the basis for the Martin Scorcese-directed film "Goodfellas" and won for its author the British Academy of Film and Television Arts award for best script. It is the story of Henry Hill, a man whose ambition from the age of 12 was to become a gangster, and who later became part of the Justice Department's federal witness protection program in 1980. The author was chosen to write the story of Hill's life in what he and his friends referred to as being "Wise Guys."

Hill's life of crime began when as a young boy he got a job running errands for a mob hangout at a taxi stand across the street from his home. He picked up such an assortment of knowledge as "Never put your name on anything," how loan sharking operates, how to tote up the ribbon for a policy bank, and the specific location of bookmaking joints. Henry Hill was smart and quick and even was trusted at age 13 to park the mob's limos.

When he appeared in a pin-striped, double-breasted suit as a young teenager, his shocked mother screamed, "You look just like a gangster" and Henry felt he had really arrived. As the author says, "He was learning about that world and there were no adolescent aspiring samurai or teenage Buddhist monks who took their indoctrination and apprenticeship more seriously." The book is a non-fiction journalistic treatment of the subject and the violence does not seem as repellent as the graphically violent movie.

When I bought and read "Mrs. Bridge" by Evan S. Connell Jr. in 1959, I was impressed by a review by Wallace Stegner: "Mrs. Bridge' is as real and as pathetic and as sad as any character I have read about in a long time, and when I go fishing around in my mind for literary portraiture of the sureness and the ambiguous rightness of this I come up with names like 'Madame Bovary.'"

I did not read "Mr. Bridge" until after I had seen the movie. Both the books and the movie are brilliantly detailed and subtle portraits of Kansas City's upper bourgeoise between the Depression and World War II. The respectable Walter and India Bridge are neither truly happy nor unhappy but serve rather chillingly as middle-aged, middle-class citizens in middle America. It is significant that "Mr. Bridge" begins with a quotation from Wallace Stevens, the insurance executive poet:

"I was the world in which I walked, and what I saw or heard or felt came not from myself; and there I found myself more truly and more strange."

The movie makes both characters more poignant and understandably sympathetic than in the books, for we have the advantage of superb performances by Joanne Woodward and Paul Newman. Some friends found the movie rather depressing, others like myself found it a complex story of times gone by, done with extraordinary insight. Both the books and the movie are gentle, perceptive classics.

Thanks to John Malar of Cranford Library, I was able to read his copy of "The Grifters" by Jim Thompson. Although Thompson had a large cult following and was greatly appreciated in France, when he died in 1977, not one of his 17 books was in print in his native country. Thompson was one of the crime writers with a focus on a new hard-boiled style, almost existential violence, from the viewpoint of the anti-hero criminal. "The Grifters" is the story of three tough seam artists: Lilly, who works for the mob by intricate racetrack betting; her son Roy, who tries one-shot con tricks, and his girlfriend Myra who is trying to get into big-time swindling. These chiselers never get a break and don't give anyone else a break. It has been said that Thompson books make good movies because the dialogue is so crisp. "The Grifter" is like the novel—fast-moving, dark, gritty and uncompromising and undoubtedly helped by the script-writer, Donald Westlake, himself a mystery writer and a winner of an Edgar Allan Poe Award.

Despite the splendid acting by Robert DeNiro and Robin Williams in "Awakenings," I found the remarkable book by Dr. Oliver Sacks much more moving. The extraordinary compassion shown in his treatment of his severely afflicted patients by this famed neurologist was totally absorbing. In the movie I was frequently aware of the acting, and reading about these patients stirred me much more.

Perhaps I should end with the great subject for high school debate—Resolved: It is better to read the book before seeing the movie. What is your verdict?

Spring home & garden

Insulating in the spring cuts fall heating bills

Insulating key areas of your home this spring can help keep next winter's heating bills from "going through the roof."

Insulation can also help save on utility bills year-round, according to Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation, a leading manufacturer of energy-efficient materials.

Insulation decreases the amount of energy you use. When you use less energy, power plants burn less fossil fuel which, in turn, helps protect the environment and natural resources.

Homeowners also know that adding insulation in their homes for increased energy efficiency or when remodeling helps increase the resale value of their homes.

The attic, exterior walls, basement and crawlspace are key areas of your home to insulate. To maximize your energy savings, insulate up to the U.S. Department of Energy's latest insulation R-value recommendations.

Attics in most American homes need R-38 (12 inches) of fiber glass blanket insulation, according to DOE. The DOE also recommends R-19 (6.25-inches) of fiber glass blanket insulation for crawlspace walls or floors for most areas of the country. The government recommends either R-13 (3.5 inches) or R-11 (3.5 inches) of fiber glass blanket insulation for walls in existing homes.

To find out the government insulation R-value recommendations for your specific area, you can check with your local building material retailer, or call Owens-Corning's insulation hotline 1-800-GET-PINK (1-800-438-7465).

Insulating the attic

One of the most cost effective energy saving projects can be insulating the attic, Owens-Corning officials say. Insulating a typical-1,000-square-foot attic with R-25 insulation costs an average of only $350 when the homeowner does the job himself. Prices vary, and higher R-values mean greater heat-saving efficiencies in the cold months.

Fiber glass blanket insulation is the most commonly used insulation materials for do-it-yourself attic projects. Attic insulation comes in R-values of R-19, R-25, R-30 and R-38 (available unfaced or with a vapor barrier for moisture control). If your attic currently has no insulation, install faced (with the vapor barrier) fiber glass blanket insulation. The facing helps control moisture and should be installed down toward the warm-in-winter side of the ceiling.

To install fiber glass blanket insulation, you'll need a sharp knife, a straight-edge and a measuring tape. For comfort, wear a mask, a long-sleeved shirt, a pair of working gloves and safety glasses.

Start by laying a piece of temporary flooring to kneel on while working. If your attic already has some insulation, add unfaced R-25 Attic Blanket insulation to the existing insulation starting at the outer edges of the attic.

If the existing insulation is a few inches below the top of the joists, lay the new unfaced insulation directly over the existing insulation, in between the joists. If the joist cavity is already filled, install the unfaced R-25 Attic Blanket insulation perpendicular to the existing layer. Put in the long runs first, and place the leftover pieces aside for filling up smaller spaces later. If you encounter wiring, cut or split the insulation to fit underneath it. Make sure to butt each section of insulation tightly up against the adjacent section for a complete thermal barrier.

Keep insulation a minimum of three inches from recessed ceiling fixtures, and use unfaced material in the space between a masonry chimney and wood framing.

Basement walls

The easiest way to install R-19 Premium Wall Insulation or R-11 insulation in basement walls is inside a framework of 2x4 studs installed 16 or 24 inches on center. Assemble the framed walls on the floor if your basement is level; if your basement is not level install the top and bottom 2x4s and then the upright studs. In either putting added strain on the Republican-majority governing body. Most recently Force's strong support of the consolidation of the police and fire department under one public safety director triggered dissension among the rank and file in both departments. Both publicly announced their objections to consolidation and have inferred they would boycott Force's re-election if he sought the governing body seat this year. Although the eventual formation of a public safety department still remains unclear, the majority of the governing body has indicated support of such a concept if certain guidelines were included.

Republican governing body member Ed Robinson who ran with Hoeffler last year has not always supported Republican-backed issues. A nonconformist, Robinson refuses to vote along party lines when he does not agree the decision is best for residents, and so has fallen into disfavor with some of his party.

If the Republicans maintain a majority on the Township Committee in November, Robinson is the likely candidate for mayor in 1992. A Democratic win would provide the stronghold needed by governing body members Vollero and Dan Aschenbach to begin projects they have been thwarted due to a Republican majority. While Aschenbach has been on the governing body longer than Vollero, there are indications Vollero would seek the mayoralty herself.

prod the governing body into delving further into how Murphy controls other areas of municipal government expenditures which fall within his control. While many of the CBAC recommendations involve cost saving measures the township could incorporate, little headway was made to implement or investigate the cost saving measures which could potentially save over $500,000.

Governing body members seemed to sail past the line item expenditure for seminars, never approaching the fact the township has instituted a freeze in this area. Puzzling is the recent combination seminar and two week vacation Murphy took to Florida during a critical time in police and fire union contract negotiations, as well as delaying the search for a new pool utilities director, both of which were put on hold until he returned.

Also called into question was over expenditure in subscriptions and periodicals for the administrative department. Murphy, while explaining some of the subscriptions, was unable to substantiate going over budget in 1991. When asked by governing body members if he could elaborate on how the money was spent, Murphy responded, "I don't know."

The CBAC said this expense line should be more closely managed. Starting in 1989 this expenditure was 26.2-percent over budget. In 1990 it was overspent by 40.4-percent. Governing body members asked Murphy to supply a complete list of current periodicals and subscriptions for evaluation.

Murphy was also called to task by Mayor Ed Force who questioned a $4,000 over expenditure in major equipment. "You bought a computer that was not budgeted?" said Force unbelievably.

To this Murphy replied, "I wanted to get it out of the way."

Next week, a critical decision by Mayor Ed Force regarding the library could save residents significant tax dollars. The township recreation department comes under fire but weathers the storm, despite changes which loom ahead.

Insulation

case, the bottom studs should be pressure-treated lumber so they will not rot the completed framework should be anchored to the floor with masonry nails and nailed directly to the joists overhead.

Insulation blankets should be measured and cut on the floor and then fitted snugly between the studs. If your material is faced with a vapor barrier, keep the facing towards the warm-in-winter side, and staple the edge of the paper facing to the studs. with unfaced fiber glass blankets, be sure to install a separate vapor barrier, such as polyethylene, over the insulation and staple it to the studs. Complete your project by installing an appropriate interior wall finish such as paneling or drywall.

To insulate the bank joist, the area between the top late of the framework and the floor above, cut pieces of insulation to fit the dimensions for the areas and wedge them in. Leftover pieces of insulation should be used to fill small spaces, such as the areas around windows and doors. This is especially important for exterior walls.

Crawlspace/floors

To insulate foundation walls in a heated crawlspace, begin by measuring and cutting small pieces of unfaced R-19 fiber glass blanket insulation to fit snugly against the band joists. Then, using long furring strips, nail long blankets of unfaced insulation to the sill or the band joists. Make sure to use enough insulation to cascade down the wall and extend two feet along the ground onto the crawlspace floor.

Faced insulation, with the vapor barrier, cannot be used within the crawlspace, because the facing is flammable and should never be left exposed.

On walls that run parallel to joists, it is not necessary to cut separate header strips. Simply use longer pieces of insulation nailed directly to the band joist.

Finally, lay a polyethylene film under the insulation and over the entire floor area. Use bricks or rocks to help hold the insulation in place on the ground.

For floors over unheated crawlspaces or basements, install faced R-19 fiber glass blanket insulation between the floor joists with the vapor barrier facing up toward the warm-in-winter side. To hold insulation in place, use metal insulation supports.

SAFE? Lady Cougar Laurie Colarusso slides into second base, contributing to Cranford's victory over Scotch Plains-Fanwood last Thursday.

Lady Cougars victorious in softball openers with Malkowski on mound

By Laurie Colarusso
Team correspondent

The Lady Cougars opened their 1991 softball season with three wins, a 4-3 victory over Rahway April 3, a 15-5 rout of Scotch Plains last Thursday and another 25-8 over Summit Monday.

At Rahway Nicole Demarco and Erin Malkowski combined to pitch seven strong innings to hold their hosts to three runs, with Malkowski picking up the win. With the game tied going into the sixth inning, Kerry Williams' grounder brought in the winning run. Also hitting for Cranford were Michele Merola and Malkowski, each with a single and an RBI.

Cranford had another strong outing when defeating Scotch Plains 15-5 at home. Demarco pitched a fine game, picking up the win and Malkowski getting her first save. Laurie Colarusso led the hitting attack with two singles and two RBI. Aileen Daly contributed with a triple and two RBI. Also contributing to the Cougar attack were Merola, Malkowski, Fran Litterio, Kerrin Reilly and Robyn Frank.

At Saturday's North Brunswick Invitational Tournament, Cranford defeated North Brunswick High School 9-2 in the semifinal. Malkowski pitched seven strong innings and scattered seven hits to pick up her second win of the season. In the second inning, Cranford sent 10 batters to the plate and scored seven runs for an 8-0 lead. Daly led the Cougar rout with an RBI single and a two-run triple. Also contributing were Malkowski with three singles and one RBI, Williams with two singles and one RBI and Litterio, Colarusso, Merola and Kelly Quigley, each with a single and RBI.

Cranford then advanced to the final round of the tournament and suffered a tough 2-1 loss to Kearny. Cranford picked up its only run in the second inning on a single by Quigley. The Cranford defense held Kearny scoreless for four innings.

The Lady Cougars were scheduled to host Hillside Tuesday and Shabazz yesterday. They will travel to Union Catholic Monday and host Clark's A.L. Johnson Wednesday at 4 p.m.

HERE COMES THE PITCH: Nicole Demarco, who posted the win, hurls toward the Lady Cougars' second victory of the past week, a 15-5 rout of Scotch Plains-Fanwood.

Shooting baskets pays off for hoopster at CHS

By Georgia Vosinakis
Chronicle associate

Shooting baskets has paid off big time for one Lady Cougar. Anne Degenhardt has been offered a four-year college scholarship, according to girls' basketball coach Gene Melleno.

"She's the first girl from Cranford to receive a full basketball scholarship," Melleno said, noting she averaged 10.4 points per game, the highest average for the team.

Eldest daughter of Paul and Bette Degenhardt of Brookside Place, the senior hoopster has announced her acceptance of a four-year athletic scholarship to Bryant College, Smithfield, R.I. She said that tomorrow she will sign a letter of intent directed to the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Degenhardt plans to major in business management at Bryant and hopes that the Division II college team will be a good one.

"I'm psyched that I got this (scholarship) and I've been given a chance to play on a college team," she said. "I'm looking forward to doing well."

Degenhardt said Bryant College coach Ralph Tommasso saw her play during the past summer at Tall Girl Basketball Camp in Oneonta, N.Y. The weeklong instructional game camp is known for attracting college coaches who "scope out the players," as Degenhardt put it.

Degenhardt started playing basketball for a recreational team when she was in the third grade and noted that recreational teams are "a good place to start." She offered advice to young girls interested in playing basketball on a more-than-recreational scale.

"You shouldn't get discouraged by mistakes," she said. "It's just like going for anything else you really want. You have to work hard and just keep doing it."

Although she has been playing recreationally since third grade and has attended basketball camps since eighth grade, Degenhardt said she was surprised when she was chosen for the varsity team in her freshman year. The nearly six-foot tall Degenhardt considered herself to be weak offensively on the court and still believes she is a better defensive player.

"I had to work hard on my offense," she admits and credits coach Melleno for her improve-

Bears outscore diamond opponents 45-4 in season's first three games

By Al Lies
Sports writer

The Bears won their opening three games on the diamond, outscoring their opponents 45-4. They blasted Jersey City's Academic 14-1 Saturday at home after overwhelming St. Mary's 15-1 in Elizabeth last Thursday and St. Patrick's 16-2 at home April 2.

In Saturday's contest the Bears had 13 hits, including a round tripper by senior left fielder Tim Kaufman, three hits by senior third baseman Chris Parkhill and two hits by senior catcher Mike Archibald. Senior Kevin Bell was outstanding on the mound, striking out eight and allowing one unearned run on two hits.

The Academic Cougars scored their only run in the first inning on two Bear miscues. From that point on, pitcher Bell was in complete control backed by excellent Bear fielding including a double play in the fifth inning from sophomore short stop Bill Picone to junior second baseman Ron Cagno to senior first baseman Luan Ahmetaj.

After Academic scored its one and only run, Brearley came right back in the first. Parkhill walked and stole second. Senior Bear Don Dayon got hit by a pitch. Archibald flied out to left, then Ahmetaj tripled to left scoring Parkhill and Dayon and senior Chris Carey followed with a single to center, scoring Ahmetaj. The inning ended with the score 3-1 in the Bears' favor.

Brearley tallied three more runs in the second. Parkhill singled and scored on a triple by Dayon who then scored on a single by Archibald, then Archibald scored on a sacrifice fly by Ahmetaj, upping the score to 6-1.

Brearley continued to pound the ball in the third. Kaufmann, Cagno and Parkhill all got hits and, coupled with several Academic errors, five Bears crossed the plate. Then it was 11-1 Bears.

The big blast in the fourth was a lead-off home run by Kaufmann. The Bears got another run on an infield hit by Cagno, who scored all the way from first on a double by Parkhill. At the end of four it was 13-1 Bears.

The final run was scored in the fifth when Bear sophomore Lou Kruk was hit by pitch, moved to third on a pick off overthrow to first and scored on a single by junior Mike Emery.

The starting line-up for the Bears was Parkhill, third base; Dayon, centerfield; Archibald, catcher; Ahmetaj, first base; Carey, short stop; junior Jose Rodriquez, designated hitter; Kaufmann, left field; Bell, pitcher; and Cagno, second base.

Other varsity players are seniors Peter Accomando and Don Sammet, juniors Dan Russonello and Joe Corbo, and sophomore Bill Picone.

Bear coach Ralph LaConte said, "We've gotten off to a good start, but it's a long season. The next few games will tell more about how our season will be. The team will be facing stronger opposition over the next few weeks and I expect the boys will be up for the challenges."

The Bears were slated to host Bound Brook at home Tuesday, Manville today and New Providence Monday, all at 4 p.m. They will travel to Middlesex Tuesday and Roselle Park next Thursday.

Cougars demonstrate batting talent in diamond opener tie vs. Rahway

By Al Lies
Sports writer

Because of April shower postponements the first baseball game of the season for both Cranford and Rahway was played at Memorial Field April 3. And as luck would have it neither team came away with a win. Due to darkness the game was called in the sixth inning with the score tied at 10. The Cougars then split their next two games, beating A.L. Johnson 10-9 Saturday and losing to Summit 6-1 Monday.

One thing is for sure, Cranford can hit, at least at this early stage of the season. The Cougars had 14 hits in their opener. Sophomore Chris Dorsett banged four, senior Luke Lucash three, seniors Joe Carney two and George Schmidt also two, including a two-run homer.

Rahway's first batter, Mike Hilyard, started off the game with a single to center. He stole second and moved to third on an error at short stop. Then Indian first baseman Brad Edwards singled to right for the first run of the game. Catcher Jim Caffery grounded to third for the first out, but Rob Kersting reached first on another Cranford error, giving Rahway the second run. The next two batters popped out to end the inning.

Cranford came right back in the first inning scoring three runs. Center fielder Adam DiPaolo struck out but second baseman Chris Polito followed with a walk. "Big" George Schmidt blasted a double off the third baseman's glove. And with Cougars on second and third, catcher Joe Carney rapped a clean single past the short stop, driving in both Polito and Schmidt. Chas Eicke skyed out to center field, but Lucash smashed a single to center scoring Carney and putting Cranford ahead 3-2. Then designated hitter Dorsett reached first on an infield but Sean Slattery ended the inning by grounding out to first. The see-saw continued in the second inning. Rahway's first batter popped out, but the second batter walked, stole second and moved to third on a single. With runners on first and third a ground ball was hit to third, but a wild throw allowed both Rahway runners to score. The next two batters popped out to end the inning at Rahway 4, Cranford 3.

Then came Cranford again. In their half of the second the Cougars scored two runs. Catcher Cort Montross walked, DiPaolo struck out, Polito grounded out to third, but Schmidt blasted a home run over the left field scoring Montross ahead of him. Carney grounded out. Now the score was Cranford 5, Rahway 4.

Things settled down in the third inning. No runs crossed the plate for Rahway. Lucash and Dorsett both singled for the Cougars but nobody scored, leaving the score still 5-4.

The roof caved in on Cranford in the fourth. The Indians came out smoking with 10 batters coming to the plate and five scoring runs. During the debacle, starting pitcher Montross was replaced by Sam Carpenter who was replaced by Schmidt. During inning the score became 9-5 in favor of Rahway.

The Rubies opened the 1991 season with a 14-run explosion in their last two at bats for a come-from-behind 20-7 victory. Tricia Polito led the Rubies with a two-run triple and a three-run double. Megan Lighcap and Leslie Buccine led the Emeralds with two hits apiece. Playing well for the Emeralds were Megan Kasatka, Laura Schuesterman, Kristi Pisciotta, Jessica Moltisanti, Corey Saftias, Sally Flaxman, Jenny Groelias and Jessica Schreiber.

Carrie Gordon recorded the win, while striking out one and walking only four batters. Leading the Rubies on offense were Melissa Murray with two hits, one double, two RBI; Eileen Losi, two hits, two RBI; Megan Yesko, two hits, one RBI; Gordon, one hit, one RBI; Donna Polito, one hit, one RBI, three runs scored, Mindy Weiss, one hit, three RBI; Patti Turowski, one hit, one RBI; Carlin Fernandez, one hit; Christine Stiles, one hit; Mandy Rose, two RBI; Megan Conelly and Cindy Ross, one RBI apiece.

The Rubies took advantage of 21 walks and some timely hitting to stage their comeback after the hitting of Schustermann, Lighcap and Buccine staked the Emeralds to a 7-5 lead. Polito's triple put the Rubies in front to stay in the top of the fifth and the Rubies put the game away with a nine-run sixth on hits by Losi, Gordon, Weiss, Yesko, Stiles and Tricia and Donna Polito.

Kean College baseball team out Chapman, gains Hensler

Kean College baseball team leader and second baseman Brian Chapman of Garwood was injured during a recent tournament in Florida.

It is the second consecutive year in which Chapman, a senior at Kean, was injured; he will miss at least five weeks of this season due to the knee injury.

Chapman's injury occurred during the Florida Invitational Tournament when a base runner slid into him to break up a double play. The runner hit his knee and stretched the ligaments.

Last season, Chapman broke his finger in the 11th game of the year and missed the rest of the season.

Kean completed the Florida tourney with a 6-1 record after an 11-1 victory over NJAC powerhouse William Paterson College, a 6-3 win over Division II Florida Institute of Technology, which is ranked ninth nationally, and a victory over nationally ranked Ohio Wesleyan College.

The Cougars were 9-1 after three more wins outside of Florida and are off to their most successful start in at least 10 years.

"This is the gutsiest group of guys I have ever been around," said first-year head coach Joe Lynch. "They play their hearts out every game and just refuse to lose."

The team is hitting .344 and has scored 70 runs in 10 games. Every starter boasts a batting average above .290. Among the team's newcomers is outfielder Chad Hensler of Cranford.

PAL wrestling

Cranford PAL wrestlers competed successfully in two recent competitions.

At the N.J. State Scholastic Tournament March 23 and 24 at Union High School Cranford Police Athletic League had six wrestlers competing.

Wrestling in the midget division Craig Frost, returning state champ, won first place in the 75-pound division. Nick Fekete won first place in the heavyweight category. Sean Fitzpatrick took second place in the 90-pound weight class. Also wrestling well in the midget division were Jim Zielenbach, George Fulling and Tony Richardson.

In the bantam division for Cranford Joey Grecca at 50 pounds won third place.

Wrestling in the intermediate division Sam Richardson, a three-time winner, placed first. Also wrestling were Ken Hartman, Vinny Grillo, John Cucculo and Jason Schultz.

Five PAL wrestlers qualified for the regionals in Virginia by placing among the top three in their class at district competition in Pemberton.

Midget 50-pounder Brian Harnos took third. Frost took first in the 75-pound division. In the junior division Josh Evans took first at 75 pounds. Pat Gorman took second in the 82-pound division and Fekete took first place in heavyweight. Also wrestling well for Cranford was Willy Corbesiero.

Cranford netmen split opening two matches

By Daniel Aaron
Team correspondent

Cranford High School netmen split their opening two matches.

After losing the first two singles April 3, the Cougars rallied to beat Union Catholic 3-2. Jeff Gittlin won at third singles 6-3, 6-4; the doubles team of sophomore Daniel Aaron and senior Dan Clancy won 6-2, 6-0. The second doubles team of junior Leo Rinaldi and sophomore Andy Laddy provided great drama by winning 7-6, 7-6 with two tiebreakers. Friday's scheduled match with Shabazz was rained out.

Cranford lost a tough match Monday to Linden, again 3-2. Unlike the first match, all three singles contests were lost while the doubles teams won again.

Winning at first doubles were senior Joe Cassidy and Clancy 6-0, 7-2; winning at second doubles were Aaron and senior Seth Markowitz 6-0, 6-2.

The Cougars were slated to face Rahway yesterday. They will travel to Scotch Plains tomorrow and Summit Monday and host Metuchen Tuesday and Irvington Wednesday.

Bear weight men victorious at MVC relays

By Jimmy McMenamin
Team correspondent

The weight men of the Brearley track team worked extra hard at the Mountain Valley Conference Relays in Bound Brook Saturday.

The shot put team of senior Jon Strahlendorf, juniors Mike Fajardo and Jimmy McMenamin took first place with throws totaling 126-2 ¼. The discus team comprised of Fajardo, Strahlendorf and senior John Anglim also won with a total of 346-5.

Brearley also did well in the jumping area. Senior Victor Vierno and junior Jason Fennes took second-place in both the long jump and the high jump. Fennes, classmate Jon Chango and sophomore Mark Leibowitz placed in the shuttle hurdles and fourth in the intermediate hurdles.

The Bears will host Roselle Park today at 4 p.m. and travel to A.L. Johnson Tuesday. They also will compete in the county relays Saturday.

Soccer action in the area

Cranford boys

Division IV

PATRIOTS 7, SUMMIT 1

The Cranford Patriots enjoyed their strongest offensive game to date by defeating an older Summit team. Tim Meyer's strong penalty kick toward goal initiated an opening score from Mike Tretola. Midfielders Dan Higgins, Ron Kulik and Meyer's aggressive support helped John Healey to net two more for a three-goal halftime lead.

The Patriots opened the second half with an exciting breakaway style offense. Tretola put the game out of Summit's reach with his second and third goals of the game.

Summit picked up the offensive pace but Andy Hubbuch, Brian Harley, Rob Brunner and Pat Mamrack constantly thwarted any opportunities with solid defense.

Although unseasonably warm temperatures slowed the pace, Healey was able to add his third. Both Ryan Kulik and Jeff Baer added offensive excitement with Baer scoring from his midfield position. Gennaro Somma turned in a solid performance as goalie.

CENTENNIAL 1, MAPLEWOOD 0

Centennial met the Maplewood Cougars with another consecutive shutout.

Both teams were equally matched with the difference of Centennial utilizing wings. Justin Mehalak crossed a ball from right wing to Willy Corbisiero, scoring the only goal late in the second half.

Centennial had several shots on goal from Eric Ferreira, Robby Habbuch, Brent Heck, Pietro Somma and Tim Bielick.

Playing tight on defense were Brian Turowski, Mike Venditti, Mike D'Agostino, Matt Evans and Billy Crecca. They did a good job clearing the ball and keeping it downfield in Maplewood area.

Adding a second shutout to his record, goalie David Feder had only one attempted shot on the Centennial goal.

Division II

WARRIORS 1, HILLSIDE 1

Although Cranford completely dominated the game, the Warriors had to settle for a tie in a very physical home game. Right halfback Peter Ditmar opened the scoring 11 minutes into the game on a rocked shot from the right side of the box. Hillside got the equalizer near the end of the second quarter to tie the game at 1-1 at halftime. The forward line of Jeremy Platt, Randy Weeden, Kenny Hartmann and Timmy Ryan continued to bombard the Hillside goal in the second half. Midfielders Scott Friedman, Mike Swieckhamer, Matt Kawczynski and Ditmar demonstrated superior ball skills and ran well to control the tempo of the game on a hot day. Goalie Jeff Muckseavage had another strong game against defense Jason Michaels, Danny Vazquies and Bubba Baker played aggressively and stopped the few opportunities the Comets managed to create throughout the game.

Cranford girls

Division V

MAGIC 4, EAST BRUNSWICK 1

Cranford Magic overpowered an aggressive East Brunswick team. Becky Taylor scored early for the Magic with the support of offensive players Laura Johnston, Nicole Starace, Bethany Ditmar and Tracey Mulvaney. Goalie Andrea Rosenkrans prevented East Brunswick from scoring by rejecting several shots.

Magic exploded with three goals in the second half. Megan Zambell scored on a crossing pass by Taylor to open the half. Sweeper Samantha Morano scored on a penalty kick and Laura Johnston converted a pass by Devon Murray for a score.

Bethany Gallagher played an exceptional defensive game by repeatedly turning back several attempts. Goalie Christine Bender led the defensive unit of Shannon Murray, Andrea Rosenkrans and Samantha Morano.

Division IV

SOC-HERS 1, BRIDGEWATER 0

Playing an older team on a stifling hot field, the Soc-Hers defeated the odds and their opponents in a steady defensive battle.

The Soc-Hers' lone goal was scored in the first half by left wing Abby Dreyer on a shot off a corner kick which sailed past the goaltender.

The entire Soc-Her team played tough competitive soccer the entire game. The forward line of Jill Redlund, Heather Simpson, Diana Richards, Regan Stempkiewicz and Dreyer had many shots on goal. Midfielders Erica Platt, Kim Kaltreider, Lynsey Borges and Jenny Sands kept the ball moving well while defenders Ann Doty, Amy Pidgeon and Amy Matz helped keepers Liron Freind, Sands and Kaltreider record the shutout.

Degenhardt wins basketball scholarship to Bryant College

ment. "He was a great help and he was right by my side the whole time. He was very supportive and gave me advice that helped me play better."

Melleno noted that Degenhardt worked hard both on the court and in the classroom. He said academic performance is important for scholarship consideration and she had to pick up some of her grades in order to qualify.

"Anne is an average student but through the past year, her steady improvement in basketball has given her the incentive and motivation to be a good student as well as a good athlete," said her mother, who also played basketball in high school. "I'm extremely proud of her."

Degenhardt said she received calls from 40 colleges. The first one was the University of Vermont but, as with all the other Ivy League colleges under consideration, she ruled them out because she believed they were for her "academically out of reach."

"I wanted a college where I could be able to do both—play basketball and do my studies," she explained.

Degenhardt applied and was accepted to seven colleges including Ithaca (N.Y.) College and Ryder College, Lawrenceville. Among the seven schools she visited, Bryant was the first and she said she "fell in love" with it at first sight.

"I'm very excited about it," said Degenhardt about attending Bryant in the fall on a full scholarship "and everyone at school is happy for me."

Indeed, according to school officials, many of the other Cranford High School students are excited with the news that someone from their hometown has won a full athletic scholarship to college.

Even former Cranford High School basketball star Carol "Blaze" Blazejowski, who brought fame to the Montclair State College basketball team and is known for starting the Cranford basketball program, had not received a full athletic scholarship upon her graduation from the high school in 1975.

CHS baseball opener

The Cougars didn't score in their half of the fourth and Rahway was shut out in the fifth. But the Cougars bounced back in their half of the fifth. Lucash singled to start the inning, then Dorsett singled, sophomore Nick Letteri, who replaced Slattery, struck out. Montross walked and DiPaolo banged out a two-run single. Polito ended the inning with a strikeout, bringing the score to Rahway 9, Cranford 7.

Rahway added a run in the sixth. But the Cougars wouldn't give up. First Schmidt walked, Carney doubled, Eicke struck out. Lucash reached on an error. Dorsett singled. Letteri reached first on a fielder's choice before it was over. Cranford scored three to tie. Montross made the last out of the game which the umpire called due to darkness.

Cougar coach Norm Koury said, "We need to work on getting up to our grade level of play. We have a young team. I was impressed with our hitting but we need a lot of work on fielding."

The Cougars were scheduled to face Hillside this past Tuesday and Shabazz yesterday. They will host Union Catholic Monday at 4 p.m.

The Bears were missing half of the starting lineup due to injuries and sickness, but expected the players back this week for Tuesday's game at Bound Brook and today's at Manville. They will travel to New Providence Monday and host Middlesex Tuesday and Roselle Park next Thursday.

CHS tracksters win four first places at relays

By Maggie Morrow
Team correspondent

The Lady Cougars opened their spring track season successfully at the Suburban Summit Relays Saturday with four first places.

The first win of the day came from the sprint relay team of junior Kristi White and seniors Denise Pechillo, Carolyn Gardner and Maggie Morrow, who were able to keep a substantial lead over the second-place Summit team. White and Gardner teamed to win two more in the high jump and the long jump. Gardner jumped 4-4 in the high jump and 16-1 ½ in the long jump while White jumped 4-10 high and 15-1 ½ in the long jump. Cranford earned its final first place in the distance medley relay. Sophomores Jennifer Schulze and Leah Hunt teamed up with Pechillo and Morrow to take the win from second-place West Orange.

Cranford also captured two second places as well. Maria Vassalo, Schulze, Hunt and Morrow came in second for the two-mile relay, and Lauren Flynn, Amy Hegna and White finished second in javelin throwing 77-0, 69-11 and 65-10, respectively. Also, Flynn and Hegna joined Laurie Ondrof in the discus to gain a third place for the team. Freshmen Amy Golden, Jaime Saladino and Cara Macaluso teamed with junior Karen Bitz to take third place in the 4 x 220 relay. Chamblin Johnson, Ondrof and Hegna also competed in the shot put, throwing 22-8, 25-3 and 23-0, respectively.

The girls also competed well in the freshman-sophomore races by earning a first and a fourth place. Sophomores Lauren Flynn, Vassalo, Elissa Cagan and Liza Buenaventura formed the winning 4 x 200 team, and Flynn, Vassalo, Hunt and Schulze also took first in the mile relay. The sophomore sprint medley team of Buenaventura, Cagan, Saladino and Audra Dizikl took fourth place.

"The girls did very well," said head coach Ray White, "and each of them deserves a pat on the back."

The Lady Cougars were scheduled for a dual meet at home against Shabazz Tuesday and will compete in the county relays in Plainfield Saturday.

Lady Cougars split 2-2 in volleyball

By JoAnna Vita
Team correspondent

The Lady Cougars opened their volleyball season away April 1 at Newark's East Side High School. After a victorious first game, Cranford lost the day's second game to East Side. However, in the deciding game the Lady Cougars held their ground and won the match.

At home April 3 Cranford faced Irvington and once again came out on top in the first game but proceeded to surrender the next two games of the match to the visitors. Friday Cranford traveled to Rahway and lost that match in three tough games.

The Lady Cougars came back Monday against Newark's Shabazz High School and produced a victory. They swept the first game 15-2 and then won the second game 15-6 to take the win at home.

Cranford, at 2-2, was scheduled to host Summit Tuesday and travel to Union yesterday. The team will face a tough Westfield team at home tomorrow at 4 p.m. and Union Catholic in Scotch Plains Monday.

Baby's heart condition leads to homelessness to help them get back on their feet," said Shirley Pfaff, a volunteer program coordinator at First Presbyterian.

She said the church relies not only on volunteers from First Presbyterian to serve meals, provide food and do laundry, but also on help from Temple Beth-El, Kenilworth Community Methodist, Garwood Presbyterian and Osceola Presbyterian churches.

"The system works pretty well," she said. "You never feel alone or that you're handling this all by yourself."

Calvary Lutheran Church also serves as a host church and receives assistance from St. Michael, Cranford United Methodist and the First Baptist churches.

While the council strongly respects the privacy of families who depend on the program, Steve and Vicky said they agreed to share their story to show that homelessness is not limited to the poor and infirm or those persons who many of us see sleeping in train stations and bus depots.

"We're a normal family who has had some difficulties," Steve said.

Despite the adversity they now face, the family remains hopeful. Steve has been looking for work everyday and recently was offered a job as a bus driver. He said he is currently studying for his bus driver's license while Vicky continues to seek financial assistance to pay for Dustin's medical bills.

She said Welfare has declined to help her because she has two children from a previous marriage who are now in the custody of her mother. As a last resort she is counting on assistance from what she described as a Social Security supplement. It remained unclear as to what will happen if the supplement is denied but they remain optimistic.

On a warm, sunny Sunday morning last week Steve and Vicky, already prepared for their next move to the Presbyterian Church in New Providence, sat at a breakfast table in the large sun filled church gymnasium here; Billy sat in a high chair eating cereal and drinking juice. The delightful 18-month-old youngster quickly made friends with everyone while giggling and flirting with the nearest host. Soon he was off playing with a volleyball and running around the gym.

Meanwhile his brother lay wrapped in a blanket, his precious blue eyes looking straight ahead as he drank from a bottle. Any discomfort he was experiencing was noticeable from his heavy breathing.

Their story is but one of hundreds that volunteers think happen more often than is commonly believed.

"Many are faced with problems that are beyond their control," said one volunteer. "It could happen to anyone."

HELPING HANDS: Volunteer Esther Cummings of Kenilworth tries to comfort Dustin at church shelter.

PLAY BALL: Billy, 1 ½, and his mom play ball after dinner.

CHOW TIME: Billy enjoys eating and making new friends.

CONTENTED NOW: Despite a heart defect Dustin looks content as he wavers between sucking from his bottle and snoozing.

AFTER BATH: Vicky wraps Billy in a towel after his bath.

Lombardo's concerto to debut in Westfield

The world premiere performance of Cranford composer Mario Lombardo's Concerto for Oboe and Orchestra will take place April 20 at 8 p.m. at St. Helen Church, Westfield. The Rev. Alphonse Stephenson will conduct the Orchestra of St. Peter by the Sea with Oscar Petty as soloist.

Other concerts will be held throughout the state including the State Theater in New Brunswick April 21 and War Memorial Theater in Trenton May 4.

Stephenson, former conductor of "A Chorus Line" on Broadway, conducted the Festival of the Atlantic Orchestra in the premiere performances of two other orchestral works by Lombardo: "On the Move" and "Escapade."

Lombardo currently is working on the score to a one-act musical based on a short story by O'Henry with books and lyrics by John Lallis.

The 45-member orchestra also will perform the overture to Mozart's "The Magic Flute," Beethoven's Symphony No. 1, Dvorak's "Carnival Overture," a tribute to Leonard Bernstein, and an arrangement of Morton Gould's "When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again."

The concert will benefit Youth and Family Counseling Service, a non-profit family counseling and mental health center.

Tickets are $20 and $18 for senior citizens. They are available at Gina's Town and Country Card Shop in Cranford or may be ordered by calling 233-2042.

Lombardo, a former assistant professor in English at Seton Hall University, has composed more than 200 songs. His first major work was the score for a musical comedy, "Display a Little Style," in 1964. The show ran in Chicago and New York.

He wrote a rock and jazz work, "Rock 'n Rhapsody," in 1969 at the direction of former music director of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra, Henry Lewis, who conducted the work in 1970. In addition to other symphonic works, Lombardo composed the score for a children's tale, "Drakestail," which has been performed by orchestras all over the United States and Germany.

Lombardo's works during the 1980s included "Revival," an extended ballet score; "Spectrum," a work for orchestra; "On the Move," a march, and "Escapade," an orchestral work that also is scored for chorus.

The composer and his wife, Adele, reside on Makatom Drive. They are the parents of two daughters, Karen and Laura.

CDC to stage 'Annie' in April and May

Cranford Dramatic Club will stage the musical "Annie" opening April 26 and running until May 18. The show will be performed Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. with matinees May 5 and 12. Matinees are new for the club's major productions.

Based on the comic strip, "Little Orphan Annie," the play tells the story of Annie, an orphan who hopes to escape from the iron rule of Miss Hannigan and to find her "real parents." The time of the play is the Depression of the '30s. Annie finds her way to the home of Daddy Warbucks, who later adopts her. She is befriended by Grace Farrell, Daddy Warbucks' secretary and love interest. Annie's adventures include finding Sandy, a little orphan dog, and escaping the ne'er-do-well brother of Miss Hannigan and his girlfriend. Her adventures culminate in meeting President Roosevelt.

The cast includes 38 from Essex and Union counties, the largest cast ever on CDC's stage. Annie is played by Tania Lyons of Cranford, Daddy Warbucks is Anthony Chirico of Cranford, Grace Farrell is Liz Adams of Berkeley Heights, Miss Hannigan is Linda Guiditta of Westfield, Rooster is Brian Bellog of Bloomfield, Lily St. Regis is Theresa Nist of Cranford, and FDR is Charles Roessler of Westfield.

The show is directed by Drude Roessler of Westfield. Assistant directors are Sue Chandler and Eileen Skarecki, both of Cranford.

A special cast member is Duffy, the dog that will play Sandy in "Annie." Duffy was adopted from Somerset County Humane Association by owner and trainer Paul Goldie. He has appeared in several productions of "Annie" in both New York and New Jersey. Call 276-7611 for reservations.

Freehold is the destination for the April 27 field trip of Cranford Historical Society. A bus will leave from the Municipal Building parking lot at 9 a.m. with a docent aboard.

After a guided tour of the Monmouth County Historical Association museum, two historic homes will be visited. Covenhoven House, which was occupied by the British during the 1778 Battle of Monmouth, was built in 1752 and restored between 1968 and 1971 and partially furnished on the basis of the inventory taken at the death of William Covenhoven in 1790. It shows how a successful local farmer lived about the time of the Revolutionary War. Mariplit Hall dates to 1685 with additions in the 1700s.

The trip, including luncheon, costs $39 and is open to the public. For information or to make a reservation call 276-0062 and record a message on the answering machine if curator Pat Pavlak is not on duty.

College awards $6.98-million bid

Union County College board of trustees has awarded to Century 21 Construction, Clifton, a contract totaling $6.98 million for the renovation of the former headquarters Elizabethtown Gas Co. for its Elizabeth campus.

Century 21 Construction was the lowest of five bidders.

The project calls for the total renovation of the eight-story 100,000-square-foot building to provide facilities for about 4,000 students, including 40 classrooms, science laboratory, computer laboratories, office systems technology laboratory, library, learning centers, student and faculty lounges, theater, administrative and faculty offices, book store and food services.

A portion of the building will open in September and the project should be completed by next January.

The board had rejected all bids earlier because there were deficiencies in the low bid and because all bids exceeded the budget. The contract to Century 21 is about $200,000 lower than the previous low bid.

KHAN'S PALACE
19 ROUTE 22 AND ROCK AVENUE
GREEN BROOK, N.J.

You're in for a treat if you go to Khan's Palace in Green Brook and decide to try their Mongolian barbecue. I guarantee it's not like anything you have experienced before. It is a combination salad bar, Chinese buffet and barbecue. In fact, each of the three separate stations can be considered a meal in itself. It is your opportunity to try a multitude of different Chinese dishes and sauces. You are only limited to how much you can eat!

Dining at Khan's Palace, which opened last December, is indeed a unique experience. Even the pastel colors of off white, pink and light green are not what you normally see in a restaurant like this. The decor also includes beautifully framed windows, large hanging plants and matching pink and green tile in the barbecue kitchen area.

Manager Daniel Kero told us it took them four months to renovate what was once the Ponderosa Steak House. His wife chose the colors and furniture. The result is a spacious, light upscale dining room without the upscale prices.

The waiters are formally dressed in white shirts, cummerbunds and matching tie. They are both friendly and informative. Since Khan's does not serve alcohol, we brought our own bottle of wine. Our waiter brought us chilled glasses and a wine bucket. He always appeared when our glasses (both wine and water) needed filling.

Waiters can make the difference between a pleasant and an unpleasant dining experience. At Khan's palace they try to help you each step of the way, suggesting how much sauce to use on your barbecue, which one is hot or mild, and what mixes best with your choice of vegetables and meat.

The Mongolian barbecue costs $13.95 at dinner, $6.95 at lunch and $12.95 for a Saturday or Sunday brunch. In addition to the barbecue, Khan's also has a regular menu of over 80 items which even includes a special selection for weight watchers. Some of the house specialties are General Tso's chicken ($9.75) and Three's Company ($13.95) consisting of lobster, scallops, shrimp and vegetables in a spicy garlic sauce. Nothing on the menu costs more than $13.95, with most prices in the $9 to $11 range.

But the real story here is the Mongolian barbecue. You start off your meal with your choice of soup. I ordered the wonton soup and my husband had the hot and sour. We both enjoyed our soup.

For our next course my husband went to the salad bar and I chose the buffet counter. The choices at the salad bar included lettuce and dressings (all home made), salads, jello, fruit and shrimp.

The buffet counter, which changes daily, included such items as General Tso's chicken, pork Peking, mussels with black bean sauce, squid in garlic sauce, crab with ginger scallion sauce, pork fried rice, mixed vegetables, egg rolls and dumplings. I didn't try everything but what I did try, particularly General Tso's chicken, was excellent. My husband liked the mussels best.

Before going to the Mongolian barbecue your waiter will give you a tongue depressor with your initials on them. At the front of the table are large white and blue china bowls. You take one, fill it with raw vegetables, meat (choice of beef, chicken, pork and lamb) and top it with your choice of eight different sauces. As I mentioned above, a waiter is stationed there to help you with your choice of sauces and also how much to use (usually two scoops for everything except the hot oil sauce).

When you are finished choosing, you leave your bowl at the end of the table and a chef will cook everything on the round grill in front of you. When the food is cooked, your waiter will deliver it to your table.

You can try mixing sauces (spicy or regular), meats and vegetables, or choose the one combination you like best. And, you can go up as often as you like. If the barbecue is too chancy for you, although I don't think it will be, return instead to the buffet counter.

Whatever your choices are I'm sure you will enjoy your meal at the new Khan's Palace in Green Brook.

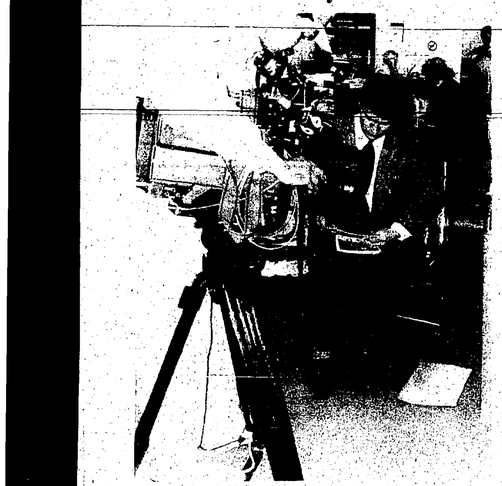
News of Rahway River cleanup work travels far and wide



FOR THE NEWS: Cameraman Jimmie Mitchell films newspaper photos of Rahway River cleanup for newsman George Lindsey Young at the Chronicle office.

News of local volunteers' efforts to clean the Rahway River has traveled far and wide.

George Lindsey Young, a reporter from WWOR-TV, visited Cranford April 2 to gather information for a news feature about the Rahway River and Cranford River Maintenance Committee's efforts to clean it and its banks. The resulting segment was shown on Channel 9 News that night and again the following day. It was picked up also by CNN. Young learned about the committee's work at keeping the river clear of debris and litter from publicity generated by the Rahway River Regional Conference held March 25 at Union County College.

The story featured Cranford health and recycling offices, the library, the Canoe Club and pictures from the Chronicle's archives. Township Committeeman Dan Aschenbach, Union County Freeholder Elmer Ertl and Mavis Serafin, co-chairman of the local river committee, were interviewed. Mrs. Serafin has received letters from persons from as far as Florida and State College, Pa., who viewed the segment through cable networks, and were excited by the committee's work.

Through a cooperative program using Clean Communities Act funds, Cranford hired a consultant firm, Maser, Sosinski and Associates of Matawan, to survey the entire length of the river starting in West Orange and continuing downstream to Cranford. The report suggests that much of Cranford's problems with the river stem from illegal dumping, dangerous industrial sites and debris from upstream municipalities. As a result, March's regional conference was held. Representatives from engineering, health and public works departments and mayors and township committees attended including Union County manager Ann Baran.

Speakers included David Donahue of the river committee, Bob Harsell of the Woodbridge Watershed Association and Bob Zientek of the Rahway Water Service. The keynote speaker was environmentalist David Moore, director of the N.J. Conservation Foundation.

The Cranford River Maintenance Committee took the opportunity to urge other towns to form river committees, activate their concerned citizens and motivate their environmental commissions in an effort to keep the Rahway River environmentally safe. It will hold its 10th major cleanup day April 27.

Michelle Casciano attends O'Brien leadership seminar

Michelle Casciano, daughter of Frances and Lawrence Casciano of 103 Spring Garden St., was this year's Cranford High School delegate to the state leadership institute sponsored by the Hugh O'Brien Foundation. The conference was held March 22 to 24 in Cherry Hill.

Michelle, a CHS sophomore, is a varsity cheerleader, a member of the school band and Drug Free Youth Program, and parliamentarian of the student government.

She also is active in her church youth group.

Each year a CHS sophomore is sponsored to the seminar by the Wednesday Morning Club, Junior Woman's Club and Village Improvement Association. Delegates are selected for their ability to work well with others and to think for themselves. The conference puts them in touch with leaders in business, sports, industry, education and government.

Police warn residents about about underage beer parties

With graduations and other causes for celebration approaching, police are reminding residents, especially parents of teenagers, it is illegal to serve alcoholic beverages to those under 21.

And with warmer weather already here, police anticipate more illegal beer parties following the arrest of an 18-year-old Lenhome Drive resident hosting one last Thursday.

Police charged the teenager, identified as Eric P. Dorninger of 47 Lenhome Dr., with offering alcoholic beverages to minors, after raiding a party of which he was the host.

Investigators said officers John Baer and Sgt. William Thormann responded at 9:40 p.m. to several complaints of noise emanating from the residence.

What they found were approximately 40 youth, ages 15 to 18, in the backyard, several containers of beer and a quarter keg of beer, already tapped, packed in a tub of ice.

The detective bureau Monday was investigating who sold the beer to the teenager. Dorninger told police that the party, which was held while his parents were away from home, was originally intended to be a small gathering that "got out of hand," according to the report.

Fire Department log

Cranford Fire Department responded to one following calls last week:

April 1: Firemen investigated a hazardous materials spill at Myrtle Avenue with assistance of state Department of Environmental Protection. Authorities determined the material was not hazardous. Firefighters made a public assistance call at Centennial Avenue. An alarm system malfunctioned on Jackson Drive.

April 2: False alarm came from Quine Street. Firemen extinguished a chimney fire at a Willshire Place residence and removed material which was blocking the flue; there were no injuries.

April 3: An electrical malfunction was the cause of a car fire on Centennial Avenue; no injuries were reported. Firemen assisted building owner in attempting to obtain emergency water source on Meeker Avenue while repairs were being made to normal supply. They investigated a defective chimney on South Avenue W. and referred matter to fire prevention bureau. A wood burning stove on Winans Avenue caused an odor of smoke in the area. Also on South Avenue W. firefighters extinguished a car fire confined to the engine compartment.

April 4: An alarm system malfunction occurred on Orange Avenue. Firefighters responded to false alarm for a brush fire along the Garden State Parkway.

April 6: Alarm system malfunction occurred on Birchwood Avenue. An illegal burning at Quine Street residence was extinguished by owner.

Police investigate weekend burglaries

Police are investigating a weekend burglary at Hillside Avenue School. Nothing was known to be taken but three rooms on the south side were entered and teachers' desks were ransacked. Investigators said windows were broken to gain entry. The burglary was reported at 7 a.m. Monday.

Separately, three Commerce Drive offices also were broken into over the weekend and $150 in cash stolen from one, said police.

During the course of the investigation at Majesty Inc., 11 Commerce Dr., at 8:18 a.m. Monday, detectives also discovered that two other businesses in the same building, Cedar Hill Management Inc. and Sterns Co., also had been entered. Petty cash was stolen from Sterns, said police.

Driver cited for DWI after hitting car

A 20-year-old Westfield man was charged Saturday with driving while intoxicated after his car struck a car parked on Lawn Terrace. There were no injuries.

The man, identified as Paris Takonis, 20, of Harding Street, was driving his Toyota Celica in reverse on Lawn Terrace at 3:26 a.m., when the passenger side of his car struck the front fender of a Ford pickup belonging to Richard J. Miller of 501 Elm St., police said.

Takonis fled the scene and was later stopped near the intersection of Lawn Terrace and Centennial Avenue, said police.

He was charged additionally with leaving the scene of an accident, underage consumption of alcohol, and improper maintenance of headlights.

Thieves strike lumber company

Two wooden planks placed between a railroad embankment and a chain link fence were used to gain access to a Centennial Avenue lumber company over the weekend.

Investigators said an undetermined amount of lumber was stolen from the east side yard of Builder's General Supply Co., 336 Centennial Ave., sometime between 4:30 p.m. April 2 and 7:30 a.m. April 3.

Police said two 2-by-10-foot wooden planks were used to gain entry and several pieces of wood was discovered outside the chain link fence. The value of the stolen lumber was not determined, said police.

Three flags stolen from Locust Ave.

Three American flags worth $50 each were reported stolen over the weekend from three separate residences.

Investigators said all thefts occurred on the 200 block of Locust Avenue.

One of the flags was handsewn using individual pieces of cloth, said police.

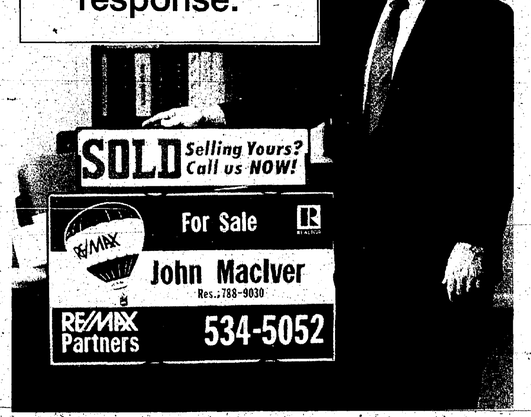
RESULTS



"Recently I have begun placing classified ads with your papers for some of my listings, in an effort to reach potential buyers east of us.

I am very pleased to tell you that every single ad has generated response. Your papers obviously reach a ready market, and the fact that your classifieds go into every home in your coverage area makes them by far the most efficient way for me to market listings.

I plan to continue to use Forbes as one of the main components of my advertising, since it is such excellent value. Keep up the good work!"

"You can enjoy using your investment while it appreciates," says Robert McMinn, co-author of 1991 edition of Edmund's "American Dream Cars, 1946-1972." "And, with reasonable care and maintenance your 25

Century 21 offices All to use recycled paper

The 6,000 Century 21 offices in the United States will begin using recycled paper for all business cards and stationery.

The Century 21 system is said to be the largest user of business cards in the world. An estimated 100,000,000 cards were used by the system in 1990.

"This is one small way that our office can contribute to the ecological well being of our community and planet," noted broker Dora S. Kuzsma of Century 21 D.S. Kuzsma in Cranford. "As the largest user of business cards, we feel this is a positive gesture."

In addition to business cards, all stationery used by the individual offices, regions and international headquarters will be on recycled paper. The changeover to recycled paper will begin next month.

More than 1300 call for homebuying video

In just two weeks, more than 1300 New Jerseyans have called 1-800-YES-IN-NJ (1-800-937-4665) to request a copy of Yes You can Buy a Home In New Jersey, a free 20-minute videotape being offered by the New Jersey Association of Realtors (NJAR) and more than 900 participating Realtor Home Information Centers throughout the state.

The videotape outlines the benefits of home ownership, the steps involved in buying a home, discusses financing and tax considerations, and other helpful homebuying information.

The 1991 "Yes You Can" program has nearly a third of the real estate offices in the state participating in the videotape program, says NJAR president Maurice B. Hoffman, who notes that the campaign is designed to help New Jerseyans learn about the benefits only homeownership can provide.

Hoffman adds that while 1200 copies of the videotape have been requested via the hotline, more than 10,000 are currently in circulation throughout the state. According to Hoffman, those copies are available from local Realtor Home Information Centers, who will distribute a no-obligation copy of the videotape to persons using coupons obtained from the hotline, local newspapers, or directly from their agency.

Realtor Home Information Centers can be identified by Home Information Center posters in their windows and logos in their advertisements. Additionally, New Jerseyans can call the hotline to obtain a list of participating Realtors.

THE "EMPTY NEST"

Updating an old myth: today, parents of grown children are not likely to be pining away in an almost-empty house, lost without their children. Mom and Dad appreciate their privacy. Grandma may be concentrating on her career — and Junior may have moved back in until he gets a better job.

Still, there may come a time when it makes economic sense to close up the old homestead, move into a smaller space, and turn the house equity into a nest egg for retirement.

There are two special ways we can help: by getting you the best possible price for our property, and then by making the transaction as trouble-free as possible. If you've lived in your home a while, you're probably emotionally attached to it, flaws and all, and may become defensive if a prospective buyer doesn't like your taste. We serve as buffer, emphasizing the good points and explaining away objections. We market the house and close the sale.

When it's time to sell, it's time to call in Barton Realty.

Ethics law to take effect next month

By Cheryl Moulton

A new state mandated ethics law which goes into effect next month will require township officials members of their families and volunteer board members to bare their souls and financial interests, as well as eliminate those from serving whose business is conflict of interest.

The law, 10 years in the works, applies to all those holding an elective office, anyone serving on a body which can enact ordinances, approve development applications or grant zoning variances and to municipal employees in a managerial position or who are aware of information of a confidential nature or anyone that does more than simply provide advice. Not covered under the law are the Board of Education and advisory board members. Although there is a separate bill covering school boards under consideration before the state legislature at this time, there is no indication of when it could be enacted.

The law also zeros in on conflict of interest and post-employment time restraints which no longer allow former officials or board members to represent anyone before a board, be awarded a no-bid contract, or be hired by the

Waldbaum's opponents point out 'darker side'

While proponents of a Waldbaum's supermarket proposed for 555 South Ave. have suggested that this development would bring a wide range of benefits to Cranford, opposing forces testified to the "darker side" of supermarket operations at Monday's public hearing.

"You have seen a rosy picture of a supermarket (presented by Waldbaum's.) In reality, a supermarket isn't an artist's color drawing—it's more than that," said Dennis Mahoney, attorney for Ronald Ginsberg. Ginsberg, opposing the Waldbaum's store, owns three Foodtown supermarkets in Union County, with the closest in Roselle.

Offering testimony to the Zoning Board of Adjustment as an expert in supermarket operations, Ginsberg with 40 years in the business, focused on Waldbaum's estimates on truck deliveries, the need for another area supermarket and conditions he observed at the Jersey City Waldbaum's store. Jersey City is the site of the only Waldbaum's supermarket in New Jersey.

Ginsberg said Waldbaum's had estimated 12 to 15 truck deliveries per day and that deliveries would be on a regular schedule. He refuted both claims, noting, "No supermarket of this size (46,000 square feet) could exist with this few truck deliveries." In one five-hour period in February at the Jersey City supermarket, Ginsberg photographed some 34 small trucks, 11 tractor-trailers and six cars and vans making deliveries. Regarding deliveries, Ginsberg said they cannot be scheduled for regular times, since deliveries depend on traffic, origination points and other factors. "Waldbaum's is living in a dream world if they think deliveries can be planned on a set schedule," Ginsberg said. He noted the same scheduling claims had been made for the proposed Waldbaum's in Union.

Questioning the need for another area supermarket, Ginsberg showed an area map pointing out 10 supermarkets within three and a half miles of the proposed Waldbaum's. Ginsberg said based on "industry standards," there was a sufficient number of supermarkets for area residents. Attorney Mahoney suggested other Union County towns in addition to Cranford, do not have supermarkets. Ginsberg said those towns include Scotch Plains,

Town auditor says 'property tax relief' to send taxes soaring

By Cheryl Moulton

The latest budget bombshell predicted the devastating effects of the state "property tax relief" program which will send taxes soaring two years from now, and render the township "broke."

Township auditor John Laezza could do little to soften the news he brought to governing body members at Tuesday's Township Committee meeting. He relayed the fiscal impact of the states's recent "tax relief monies" to a shocked and stunned room of listeners, many of whom said weeks ago the money would hurt the township in the long run.

The $728,000 sent by the state and designated to reduce residential taxes was tauted as a virtual "wolf in sheep's clothing," serving no longterm benefit to future tax problems. Two years down the road, said Laezza, if the township follows the state plan, taxes will "go out of sight." More frustrating is the fact the township must follow the state's intent for the money, or face not having the 1991 budget approved.

The state also is telling municipalities they must use their fund balance (savings account) to bring taxes down, a measure Laezza said will require the township to ultimately "have to" borrow in order to pay operating costs in a few years. At that point, he said, the township will be "broke." The use of all of the fund balance would cause the township to have "substantial cash flow problems, and therefore put the budget in "deep trouble." He said in three years there will be "total disaster in the state." While Laezza predicted a gloomy picture for Cranford, it was not as bad as the one other municipalities face. Of the 567 communities in the state, 357 are much worse than Cranford" from the state two-year "tax

According to Grady, the two-year plan by the state will send $728,000 to Cranford for two years. The state also requires the town-

Earth Day flower event on Saturday

Cranford is celebrating Earth Day this year by promoting the awareness that environmental concerns begin at home.

As part of the celebration, Cranford's downtown will become a farmers flower market Saturday as local florists, nurseries, farms and garden clubs display and sell spring-flowering plants from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Rutgers Cooperative Extension master gardeners will provide free leaflets, information and help in solving gardening problems.

Downtown Management Corp. (DMC) and Cranford Clean Communities committee also will distribute free recyclable plastic garbage bags for use in automobiles.

The DMC maintenance committee is sponsoring a poster contest for fourth grade pupils in Cranford schools to encourage them to think of Cranford when they think environmentally.

Each fourth grade will be able to submit up to five entries, which will be displayed in store windows of downtown merchants from Saturday to Monday. Posters will be judged Saturday in the following categories: funniest, most artistic merit, most clever use of a slogan, most imaginative, and recycling, conservation and environmental awareness in Cranford.

Judges include committee members Don Baines, Marge Bowman, Gloria Cotroneo, Owen Daly, Gerda Geiger, Gary Goodman, chairman Ruth Yablonsky, as well as Mayor Ed Force, Cranford High School art chairman Jay Smith, Chamber of Commerce president Paul LaCorte and photographer Antonio Conti.
