National Nite Out planned

The Cranford Police Department's Crime Prevention Unit will sponsor National Nite Out on Tuesday, Aug. 4. In the spirit of crime prevention, Cranford residents may participate in the annual anti-crime program by hosting a neighborhood watch meeting; organize a block party, and inviting a local police officer to speak about crime prevention measures.

In addition, residents should illuminate the exterior of their home or business with outside lights; trim overgrown bushes that conceal basement and first floor windows; and install dead bolts on their doors.

The police also advise taking a walk around your neighborhood with a friend and reporting any suspicious activity to the police at once; taking the time to speak with your children about being careful with strangers; reviewing the proper use of the telephone and how to answer the door; making a photographic inventory of your possessions, record serial numbers from VCRs, televisions, audio equipment and cameras; and checking your home owner's insurance policy to make sure that you have replacement cost coverage.

For more information, call the Cranford Police Department's Crime Prevention Unit at (908) 272-2222.

Cranford will host award

The Cranford Chamber of Commerce has announced that it is accepting nominations for its "Pride In Cranford" awards. The Chamber is encouraging all residents to nominate a township citizen or organization who stands above all others in their contribution to the community in 1991.

Nomination forms will be available at the Public Library, banks, Community Center, the Chamber office, and various downtown businesses.

Joe LaBracio, chairman of the event, said nomination forms should be mailed to the Chamber of Commerce no later than Aug. 17. The awards will be presented during a reception at the Coachman Inn Sept. 16 from 7-9 p.m.

Family Care needs help

Food donations will be collected at the Centennial and Orange Avenue pools, Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 3-4. Items should be dropped into the brown container at the entrance of each pool. Cranford Family Care suggests items such as canned meat, pasta, soups, tuna, cereal, personal hygiene items, baby food and formula, laundry and cleaning products.

Concert series announced

The county Division of Parks and Recreation's 1992 Summer Arts Festival concert series is underway Wednesdays from 7:30-9:30 p.m. in the amphitheater area of Echo Lake Park, Mountainside. Concert admission is free and patrons should bring lawn chairs or blankets.

Band and The Deirdre Shea Irish Dancers.

In case of rain, concerts will be held at the same date and time at Trailside Nature & Science Center, Coles Avenue and New Providence Road, Mountainside. Call 527-4900.

Waldbaum's a step closer to opening its doors

Committee rezoning vote clears use of South Avenue property for supermarket

By BOB SULLIVAN
THE CHRONICLE

The door has been opened for Waldbaum's.

The Township Committee voted 3-1 Tuesday night to rezone a section of South Avenue which allows conditional use of the property to construct and operate a supermarket. The rezoning paves the way for construction of Cranford's first food market since 1979.

The vote came after committee members refused to second a motion made by Commissioner Dan Aschenbach to postpone consideration of the rezoning ordinance. Mr. Aschenbach later registered the only negative vote.

The rezoning of the land means that the New York-based Waldbaum's Supermarket need not appear before the Board of Adjustment — which twice previously rejected the supermarket proposal — to gain final approval for its store.

Waldbaum's will be required to seek the blessing of the Planning Board before construction.

While registering his vote as a member of the Planning Board, Mayor Edward Robinson stressed that the issues which concern residents opposed to the plan will again be considered by the Planning Board when Waldbaum's applies for final permits.

"Whatever comes before us, we'll look long and hard at," Mayor Robinson said.

Commissioners Barbara Bilger and Carolyn Vollero cast the other two yes votes. Commissioner J. Robert Hoeffler excused himself from the vote, citing a potential conflict of interest.

Over 125 residents attended the meeting, many wearing Waldbaum's stickers on their clothes. After 90 minutes of public discussion, the mayor informally polled the crowd — about one-third opposed the zone change.

"I'm perplexed about why we're here," Shirley Gazsi of Cummings Street said. "I don't think if we had lost the first two times we'd be able to keep coming back. It's a classic case of the little guy against the big guy."

Several opponents said that nearby supermarkets in Garwood provide sufficient grocery services to Cranford and that a new store might hurt small businesses in the Downtown Area.

"If you approve this, you're going to have wonderful brick sidewalks in front of empty stores Downtown," Jeremy Berstein said.

Cranford has been without a supermarket since 1981, when Pathmark moved to Garwood. The former Pathmark building on South Avenue is now home to Drug Fair.

Supporters in the crowd applauded when the zone was approved.

"It's about time Cranford had this type of facility back in town," John Brown of Burnside Avenue said. "It will help a great deal of people who reside in the senior citizen center. They will not have to rely on the bus."

Sally Dennis is a working mother with a handicapped child. She said that trips to supermarkets in other towns can take as long as two hours.

"I have to find a babysitter to go shopping," she said. "It's ridiculous that a town this size doesn't have a supermarket."

The supermarket's original plans placed the store near a public storage facility and car wash on South Avenue, at the intersection of Hollywood Avenue. The 50,000-square-foot store would be supported by an adjacent parking lot of about the same size. There would be auto access from South Avenue of Hollywood Avenue.

In 1989, owners Daniel Peyton and Anthony Asalone applied for a use variance to allow construction of a supermarket in the area, which was zoned for research, office, and industrial buildings. Because the area had been limited to those uses, the use variance was then needed before Waldbaum's would buy the property.

School district will hire more minorities

By BOB SULLIVAN
THE CHRONICLE

The Cranford School Board recently announced an impromptu seven-step plan to hire more minority professionals.

The July 20 announcement comes on the heels of self-criticism leveled last week when the board announced that minimum minority hiring standards for the district had not been met.

To address the problem, the board discussed potential solutions and unofficially adopted a seven-step course of action Monday.

The primary focus of those plans involves an invitation to minority hiring agencies to tour the district. Para-professional jobs, which currently are offered first to in-district personnel, will now be advertised to the community at large.

A board member and the district's human resource administrator will now also be included as members of the Affirmative Actions Committee.

Cranford should employ at least 10 minority teachers and five minority para-professionals. These minimum standards are produced through an evaluation of the minority work force throughout Union County, according to Gilda Rorro of the Office of Equality and Educational Opportunity (OEEO).

Last week, that office said comparative statistics for other districts were unavailable.

But James Johnson, Chairperson of the district's Affirmative Action Committee, said the state office told him that "most of the 500 districts in New Jersey have not met their (hiring) goals."

Ms. Rorro added that it is "relatively common" for districts around the state to not meet hiring goals.

"We don't have large numbers of minorities in the educational field," Ms. Rorro said. "But we shouldn't use that as an excuse."

Mr. Johnson said that most school districts are having trouble competing with private industry for minority candidates.

He also complained that the minimum minority goals are based on old statistics. "Those are goals for 1984-1989," Mr. Johnson said. "The OEEO said they would be reissuing goals because the numbers are outdated. But they've been waiting for labor statistics from the New Jersey Department of Labor and that's not likely to happen soon."

Board Presidents Tom Bonhag expressed his disappointment with the district's minority hiring efforts.

"Last June the corrective steps we listed are the same we listed for this year...We have resources, but the resources aren't being spoken to," Mr. Bonhag said. "Our actions don't validate what's being said."

Later, President Bonhag said the board had taken "a step in the right direction."

Board member Patricia A. Martinelli suggested that new positions be opened liberally to Alternate Route minority candidates. The Alternate Route program allows uncertified professionals from the private sector to qualify for teaching jobs prior to gaining certification.

Other steps the board plans to take include a broadening of membership of the Affirmative Action Committee, quarterly board reports on Affirmative Action goals, and statement of minority hiring as a goal in the annual Affirmative Action report.

Value of proposed plant questioned at meeting

By BOB SULLIVAN
THE CHRONICLE

For weeks, Cranford residents have been arguing that the proposed cogeneration plant in Clark will have little benefit to Cranford.

Now there is some question of the plant's benefit to Clark residents.

For Clark, the strongest argument to approve the plant's construction was the cultivation of a corporate neighbor and a significant increase in ratable property at the Westfield Road U.S. Gypsum site.

The E.E.A Development Corporation, which hopes to build the plant, estimates that the facility will be assessed at about $10 million for tax purposes.

This year, the tax bill for a $10 million ratable in Clark would have been about $341,000 - $76,000 annually to municipal government, and a little more than $200,000 for local and regional schools. Clark's overall annual property tax bill is $24 million.

For a resident with a $100,000 home, that would have meant approximately a $45 annual tax break - or around $10 per tax bill.

Financial benefits of the proposed plant was one of the main topics of discussion at Monday's hearing, which was supposed to be the last session of public comment.

An additional session was scheduled for last night to accommodate the overflow of speakers, which included several attorneys and expert witnesses called by residents to opposed the plant. However, that meeting was held after The Chronicle went to press.

E.E.A. Development granted an extension of the approval period to the Board of Adjustment. The board's decision - due previously by today - must now be rendered at its Aug. 12 hearing or the approvals are automatically granted.

On Monday, over 400 people

Minorities seek Affirmative Action

By BOB SULLIVAN
THE CHRONICLE

Five years ago, Shirley Daniels quit Cranford Schools Affirmative Action Committee.

"It was frustrating. Year after year it was the same thing," Ms. Daniels said. "There were minorities looking to get jobs, people looking to step up - and they were overlooked."

Ethyl White is a 37-year veteran teacher who has seen talented minorities come and go because of their career aspirations.

"As far as I know, there has never been a non-white in a supervisory position here," Ms. White said. "A number of qualified people have left because they were looking for advancement. If they were aspiring to a supervisory position they would have to leave Cranford, obviously. Look at the numbers."

Both are Afro-American employees of the district and both are concerned that it will take many years to correct the district's poor minority hiring record.

Ms. Daniels, an office staff member at Cranford High School, is a 17-year veteran in the township's school district.

"If you look back at their past hiring practices and patterns, you'll see," she said. "It's frustrating. We never move anywhere on this."

Ms. Daniels has objected to the small number of minorities employed in the district for years, but recent discussion at Board of Education meetings has turned attention toward the situation. On July 13, several board members lashed out at the annual Affirmation Action Report which claimed the district was doing little to correct Cranford's failure to hire the minimum required amount of minorities.

According to that report, there are 273 certified educational professionals in Cranford, but only eight minorities. Of the district's 23 classroom aides, only one is a minority. Six of the 42 building services employees and three of 31 clerical workers are minorities.

Of the district's 27 administrators and supervisors, not one is a minority.

Ms. White is a special services teacher. She said that seven of the eight minorities are in specialized fields, leaving only one minority academic classroom teacher throughout the district.

"My biggest concern is the students," she said. "The only image they have of black people is a man with his hands cuffed behind his back the way they see it on television. Young people need to be exposed (to minorities). Some Caucasian teachers are doing a fantastic job with Afro-American history, but the kids really need exposure to people who are not white."

Ms. White said she did not leave the district because she was used to being one of very few blacks in the crowd. "I grew up around here," she said. "I was always an extreme minority, so it was not a real problem for me."

Despite her disappointment with the schools minority hiring practices, Ms. Daniels rejoined the Affirmative Action committee last fall. She is currently the only minority member of the committee.

"I decided that, if I wasn't doing anything to help the problem, I shouldn't be complaining," Ms. Daniels said.

She said that the committee members would more likely put their heart in their task if they felt they had support from the district and its administration.

Ms. Daniels also indicated that she felt good about recent board calls for stepped-up effort to hire minorities.

Driver stopped, drugs found

Police report

Tuesday, July 28

A routine motor vehicle stop led to a drug arrest early in the morning. At 1:36 a.m., Officer Greg Marino stopped a motor vehicle driving near the intersection of North Avenue and Alden Street. While approaching the car, he observed two passengers stuffing something under the car seats. Recognizing them as cocaine vials, Marino arrested Michael Blake, age 22, and Darren Johnson, 21, both of Plainfield. At press time, neither had posted bail.

Monday, July 27

Someone unsuccessfully attempted to steal a car parked near 351 Retford Avenue. The door locks and steering column to a 1990 Oldsmobile Cutlass were damaged, but the car left in place sometime overnight.

• • •

• • •

Curtis Weekes, 30, of Winfield was arrested and charged with possession of under 50 grams of marijuana at 9:15 p.m. Mr. Weekes was stopped in his motor vehicle near the intersection of Centennial Avenue and Wall Street. His passenger, Michael Udut, 43, Winfield, was arrested because he was wanted for three outstanding warrants.

Saturday, July 25

Several home appliances were stolen from a Lincoln Avenue apartment overnight. There was no sign of forced entry, but a television, a microwave over, and a VCR were taken.

Friday, July 24

Officer Tom Feeney arrested Kevin Royce, 22 Aberdeen, and charged him with possession of marijuana under 50 grams. Officer Feeney stopped Mr. Royce as he drove near the intersection of South Avenue and Centennial Avenue at 12:30 a.m. He was also charged with running a red light and driving without being in possession of his driver's license.

• • •

The Cranford Public Works Department reported vandalism to two recently planted red oak trees. The two new saplings on Myrtle Street valued at $150 each were snapped in half.

• • •

Three unknown youths tried to wrestle a bicycle away from a 10-year-old Cranford boy. The boy was punched, but able to prevent the theft, and the unknown youths fled the scene. The incident occurred near the Cranford Community Theater on Haskin Street.

The year Taft, Roosevelt both stumped in Cranford...

The most dramatic national political events in Cranford's history occurred 80 years ago when two presidential candidates spoke on the same site on consecutive days.

William Howard Taft, the incumbent chief executive, showed up on May 24, 1912, and his predecessor and rival, Theodore Roosevelt, came here the next day.

Taft was running for re-election as a Republican. Roosevelt was seeking the party's nomination, too. With a month he would fall short of the goal, bolt the party and "stand at Armageddon" as the standard bearer of the Progressive Party, mounting the famous Bull Moose campaign that resulted in a pivotal election in American history. Both men spoke from the front porch of the Munoz House near the corner of N. Union Avenue and Alden Street, which stood near Cleveland Plaza. Paradoxically, the former owner of the house, Mrs. Eliza Ann Munoz, who lived nearby on Miln Street was a descendant of another presidential contender, Henry Clay.

Historian William Bragdon called the events "a climax of political showmanship" in Cranford. Taft told 2,000 hearers that "wise precedents concerning the country's welfare are threatened by one man's ambition." He was talking about Roosevelt. The former president addressing most of the same people for 10 minutes a day later, stressed his campaign theme that it was "the people's cause" he was representing.

The Chronicle reported that both candidates were welcomed heartily and cheered enthusiastically by their hearers. What each had to say, and what he did say, was known in advance by every intelligent voter in town. It is probable that little was done in the matter of converting progressives into stand pats, or vice versa.

With most of the attention locally focused on the Republican battle, little heed was paid to Woodrow Wilson, the governor of New Jersey, who acquired most of the delegates to the Democratic convention on the same primary day.

In a pre-primary "Ballad of Battle" on May 23, The Chronicle anticipated Wilson's fortunes. "The Democrats are dancing with glee," it rhapsodized, "to see a scrap that coats with tar the GOP, when rogues fall out, the people rise and apples are torn from blinded eyes; good government becomes our prize when Teddy comes honking in." It predicted that "The Taft Club will to the timbers take" and that "stand pats will shiver in their shoes."

The "stand pats" were not dormant. Robert J. Mix, president of the Cranford Taft Club, introduced the President to the crows. Walter Scholes, a grocer, advertised double the amount of S&H Green Stamps on all purchases while Taft was in town. That was in The Citizen. He covered himself by offering the same for Roosevelt in The Chronicle. This provided another hometown touch, for in those days the Sperry Brothers of Cranford were expanding the stamp program throughout the country.

Thomas Sperry, the Green Stamp originator, had purchased the Munoz house in 1907 and Miss Richmond's private school occupied it at the time the presidents spoke here.

"Buzzy" Munoz, son of Eliza and Manuel Sr., previous owners of the house where the presidents spoke, was actively involved in the Sperry enterprise. (Munoz was divorced in 1902. By coincidence, his wife's son by a subsequent marriage, Alfred J. Munoz, was born in 1912. Alfred visited the well-known house of his grandparents, which was also known as "Fairleigh Villa," over the years. He died at the age of 75 last month.)

In November, Roosevelt won Cranford with 363 votes to Taft's 269.

Alleged racial slurs lead to driver's arrest

By BOB SULLIVAN
THE CHRONICLE

A Carteret man was arrested Monday after police allegedly observed him aiming racial slurs at six black youths in Cranford.

Edwin Markle, 43, allegedly screamed racial remarks out of a passing car for two weeks, while three black Hillside youths walked down Springfield Avenue, according to Detective Lt. William O'Donnell. After the incident was reported, police set up a surveillance and observed Markle's heckling, Lt. O'Donnell said.

The youths are attending summer school classes at Cranford High School. They are dropped off by bus at Union County College and walk down Springfield Avenue to get to the school.

Mr. Markle allegedly drove by the youths each morning in a rust-colored Mustang and screamed the insults.

"We're taking this incident - and any bias incident - very seriously," he said. "They were pleasantly surprised."

Mr. Markle faces a possible Grand Jury indictment for the harassment charges, which is a fourth-degree crime because it is classified as a bias incident, according to Lt. O'Donnell. No court datre has been set.

packed into a sweltering Brewer School all-purpose room. As at the last meeting, plant workers and Clark residents turned out to support the project, while other Clark residents and a sizable Cranford crowd continue to object.

Mr. M.O. Magnano, Jr., Clark's tax assessor, refused to evaluate the potential tax revenue the facility would generate.

"The facility will generate a sizable amount," he said. "I have no exact value. Actual benefit cannot be determined until the facility is substantially built. I don't use a crystal ball."

Board President Daniel Green pushed Mr. Magrano to make an estimate for tax revenue, but Magrano refused.

"Your input is extremely important. The tax ratable...is one of the affirmatives we're looking at," Mr. Green said.

Also at the hearing, the board heard testimony from an independent engineering firm, BCM Engineers of Pennslyvania whose two representatives said that the plant will not effect area air quality, but that it might emit annoying sounds.

"They will be way below the allowable limits (for emmissions)," Paul Rosenstock, a BCM engineer, said.

Harassment charges dropped in settlement

By BOB SULLIVAN
THE CHRONICLE

Harassment charges against Cranford's building inspector, a township contractor, and a construction fine were all dropped Tuesday evening.

Charges against inspector John Gall and builder Nelson Bilger were withdrawn before Garwood Judge William Boffa, Jr. Tuesday. As part of the settlement, the inspector aggreed to rescind a $600 fine levied against township resident Judy Mack for allegedly violating a building permit.

In June, Ms. Mack filed harrassment charges against township building inspector John Gall. Ms. Mack claimed that while the two were wrangling over building permits, Mr. Gall threatened her. Ms. Mack was later fined $600 by the inspector.

Three weeks later, Mr. Gall filed harassment charges against Nelson Bilger, the contractor Ms. Mack hired to do the garage work. Mr. Bilger is the husband of Committee member Barbara Bilger.

The court hearings were originally scheduled for June in Cranford municipal court. Because of Mr. Gall's close association with the township, the trial was postponed and moved to Garwood.

After three lawyers representing Ms. Mack, Mr. Gall, and Mr. Bilger wrangled outside the courtroom for more than two hours, the three arranged the settlement. Formally, Ms. Mack dropped her charges against Mr. Gall and he dropped his charge against Mr. Bilger. Mr. Gall also agreed to contact the Union County Office of Appeals by mail to invalidate the fine levied against Ms. Mack.

Ms. Mack said she was happy that the matter would be laid to rest, but disappointed it had gone so far.

"Maybe the township could have resolved this before we had to go to the expense of the attorneys," she said.

Mr. Gall said there would have been no point to bring the matters through trial.

"Generally, I'm pleased...but I have mixed emotions," he said. "All I ever wanted to do was my job."

'How-To' workshop to aid artists

Commentary

Who wins?

It's not Snoopy vs. Garfield on the ballot, but the enrichment of Cranford youngsters

Guess what more than 1,000 Cranford youngsters from pre-school up to age 14 have signed up for this summer?

Wrong, wrong, wrong. It's reading!

The hard-working team that runs the Cranford Public Library has come up with an election year "Elect to Read" plan that ties in summer reading time with the process of voting and electing a favored candidate.

It works this way: the young readers earn one vote for each hour they spend reading or being read to.

The youngsters' votes can be cast for either candidate Snoopy or Garfield. So far, more than 9,000 votes have been cast with Snoopy holding a slight edge over Garfield.

There are about three weeks left before the reading times must be officially recorded at the library on August 21. By that time, the voting power should be well into the five-figure range.

It is a credit to the library, the parents, and the thousand-plus young registered voter-readers that this much reading is occurring voluntarily amidst the well-known temptations luring youngsters away from the reading chair. The fact that they have amassed 375 days worth of reading hours already — the equivalent of more than a round-the-clock year's worth — is a marvel of the power of positive encouragement and the sheer joy of discovery through reading.

This is the ninth year for the summer reading program which, library managers report, has grown over the years. It's still not too late to register to "vote" and to reap the benefits of reading, and of attending the post-election carnival set for August 26 in the library parking lot.

Who wins? Not Snoopy, not Garfield, but the youngsters who, their parents, teachers and librarians pray, will take on or deepen a lifelong appreciation for that silent communication that can go on between author and reader through the medium of the printed page.

Even in difficult financial times like these joint buying is a hard sell to towns, schools

Call it home rule, call it local autonomy, call it an archaic mosaic, but taxpayers are losing a bundle because 567 municipalities, more than 600 school boards, 21 counties, and assorted vocational high schools, county colleges and sewerage authorities are allowed to buy everything from paper clips to front end loaders on their own.

The result is an inefficiency that keeps vendors smirking and taxpayers digging down deeper. It's not likely to change, either, because locally elected officials and their bureaucratic support staffs just are not inclined to leave their own political-budget turf to hustle some cooperative buying spirit among their peers.

The state has a buying co-op system in the treasury department that maintains a list of several hundred items for which it has negotiated prices with manufacturers. Police cars, copying machines, stationery and many more such items are included. Towns and schools can buy listed items from the manufacturers at rates discounted by sheer volume of sales statewide. Police cars, for instance, can be had at four percent less than dealers would pay for the same model car. The list is growing and more than 400 local entities have been involved to some degree or other over the years.

Counties, logical focal points for similar group purchasing co-ops, aren't much of a factor, at least today.

Somerset County for many years has regularly asked 15 of its 21 towns, the vocational high school and county college to join in buying items like rock salt, stationery and such. But no local school systems were invited to join, despite the mutual benefits of maximum volume in ordering materiel. There are only three items currently on the shared buying list today.

Middlesex County just plain doesn't have any agreements with its municipalities. Just doesn't.

Union County has no agreements with its communities. It used to, but halted the arrangements four or five years ago, as some towns picked up buying through the state program, and larger cities chose to go their own ways. The remaining small towns, hardest pressed for economies, didn't generate the needed quantity of goods to move vendors to offer major discounts.

The gravitational pull back to each inefficient little fiefdom buying its own little pile of rock salt seems omnipotent.

This is the first of a three-part series on how schools and towns might save operating expenses, while maintaining the ideals of local control/home rule.

In praise of Cranford's people, amenities, and downtown

To The Chronicle:

On a recent stint of jury duty, I happened to overhear several other bored-but-potential-jurors talking about Cranford. Naturally, I perked up and listened to some glowing comments about our little town. One young gentleman expressed a desire to "get in" to Cranford. I can't tell you how proud I felt.

Today, a co-worker and new resident of Cranford, expressed the same feelings to me. She compared our town to other pricey areas and felt that in many ways we were surpassing some of them. She seemed genuinely thrilled with how pretty our downtown area looks.

My comments won't take up much room in The Chronicle or much of your time to read, but I hope they make you feel as happy with Cranford as I do.

A tribute to Stu Awbrey's small-town newspaper artistry

To The Chronicle:

On behalf of Crane's Ford Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, I would like to pay tribute to "Stu" Awbrey for his dedication to the true purpose of a small-town newspaper.

Over the years he has been extremely supportive of our organization, its goals and its activities. He was aware of the value of a service organization to the community. It may have taken an issue or two before our material was published, but it was always in The Chronicle eventually, usually word for word as submitted. He was more than helpful in assisting us to advertise our many service projects and our emphasis on the preservation of our American History. Articles were published on our awards and medals to deserving 8th graders for good citizenship, high school seniors for excellence in American history, good citizens for their patriotism and devotion to community projects, library displays on all special historical occasions, and our overwhelming entry for the first time in the American history essay contest with two state winners.

He had a tremendous responsibility during this last time with us with several papers to edit and control. But he tried to bring back the local flavor despite many obstacles and criticism. We wish him well in whatever he does, but we will miss him. It is unlikely that he will really retire forever from the newspaper or editing scene; perhaps he will return as a special commentator about unusual or historical events. We appreciated his dedication to the preservation of our local history as well as our national history. Our sincere thanks and best wishes to him in whatever he decides to do.

Regent, Crane's Ford Chapter NSDAR

It's tough picking the best of the good at Cranford High

To The Chronicle:

I had the privilege of presenting two scholarship awards on June 9 for the Interfaith Human Relations Committee at Cranford High School. I was so impressed and proud of the students who were honored there that night.

The Interfaith Human Relations Committee is a sub-committee of the Cranford Clergy Council. It consists of 12 lay people from the different churches and Temple Beth-El. We also have three members of the clergy meeting with us.

This year we decided to establish a scholarship for a graduating Cranford student. The criteria is that the student be involved in their churches and be involved in their community in helping others. We really felt the need to acknowledge all the good done by our young people.

We received 13 applications and we had difficulty choosing one — all of them were exceptional. Two youngsters from Cranford High received the award.

If this is any indication of the quality of the youth in this country, we will all be in good hands. I am very proud of all these young people and I also applaud the work of their teachers and guidance people and support of their parents.

I was also very impressed and moved by the memorial awards presented that night. What a wonderful way to keep alive the memory of the young people that are not with us any more.

I congratulate all the wonderful graduating seniors. We are proud of you.

The wait for the bus may be long, but the project is alive

To The Chronicle:

I am concerned with The Chronicle editorial regarding the new senior citizen bus. The project has not been dormant.

In 1990, I proposed and the Township Committee established a fund-raising drive to raise private funds for a new senior citizen bus. I donated my Township Committee pay raise to set up the fund. While the recession impacted the level of other donations, the Senior Citizen Committee worked hard throughout 1990-91 to raise close to one-half the price tag for the new bus. With Frank D'Antonio's help and senior programmer Alice Fernandez' efforts, the seniors held fairs, raffles and other events. The original agreement with the Township Committee was that the private fund-raising would raise one-half the cost. We were close. The additional items of handicapped accessibility, air conditioning and seat belts added to the original price tag estimate.

The bus specifications, bid and delivery of the bus has taken longer than anyone wanted. I submit, however, that many of Cranford's seniors will be well-served by the bus. For many, it remains the only way our stores and churches are accessible.

Where was story on citizens worried about consolidation?

To The Chronicle:

I can't believe that Chronicle reporter Joanne McFadden and I attended the same Garwood Board of Education meeting. To read her article covering the event, you would think Christine Guerriero was the only one there. No mention is made of the 50 or 60 citizens who attended to voice their concerns about the consolidation. I would think that the fact that the hearing of the citizens went two hours (which, to my knowledge, is unprecedented for a non-budget related Board meeting) is newsworthy enough to merit coverage — or at the very least, a mention in The Chronicle's pages.

With regard to the matter of initiative and referendum, which the article did deal with, it's clear that Ms. Guerriero doesn't seem to have a very high opinion of the intelligence of the people she was elected to represent. According to the article, I & R rests on the "assumption that voters will research each issue and develop an understanding that will lead to an informed decision on how to vote."

One of the reasons, according to Ms. Guerriero, that this will be a problem is that there will be hundreds of pages of information contained in documents that are not written to be understandable to the general public. How can she make such a broad statement about the intelligence of the general public and the average voter? She goes on to add that this will be a problem because, "What will happen is that many voters will vote for issues they don't completely understand." Well, given everything that's happened at the board meetings since May, I would have to say that voters aren't the only ones who vote without completely understanding what they're voting for, it seems to me.

The article also states that Ms. Guerriero became involved in lobbying against I & R "after several Garwood residents, disgruntled with the redistricting plan, asked that the plan be put to a vote by the public." Why? What was she worried about? If the plan is as great as we've been told it is, it should have — would have — passed easily on its own merits, right?

Finally, Ms. Guerriero says, "Personally, I feel I & R is a cop-out. It's easy to say let the voters decide, but there's much more to every issue than just emotions." That's right, and we've been telling Ms. Guerriero and the rest of the board that since May. Many valid concerns were raised which were either dismissed or not addressed. Why? Who's being emotional here?

Ms. Guerriero concludes by saying, "It's our job as legislators to look at the big picture — to study all aspects of an issue and to make the decision after public input and debate." It is? You couldn't tell that by the way this consolidation (or redistricting) issue was handled.

I'd like to close by saying I still can't believe Ms. McFadden and I were at the same meeting. Given the focus of her article, I have to question her objectivity. The 50 or 60 citizens who attended are just as deserving of coverage as Ms. Guerriero.

Letter writer's criticism nets invitation to group meeting

To The Editors:

This letter is a response to a letter from Larry Zambito.

Most, if not all of the senior citizens of Kenilworth were very distressed with your severely critical although mostly inaccurate letter of July 16.

In order to address your "problems" as fairly as possible, we invite you to be our guest at our next regular meeting Wednesday, Sept. 2, at the Senior Center, 526 Boulevard, Kenilworth.

At that meeting, you will have the opportunity to speak to about 150 seniors in an open forum to discuss your concerns.

I anxiously await our meeting.

On quotas and goals, and objectives in employment

To the Chronicle:

I would like to point out an error in your July 16th article "Schools fail to meet minority hiring quota."

For the last 25 years everyone connected with Affirmative Action has been talking about "goals" and "objectives." By using the word "quota," you are implying artificial limits to the hiring process. Quotas in minority hiring mean that either qualified non-minority applicants need not apply for these positions, or that once the minority quota is filled there is no need to hire more minority employees.

And, as I'm sure we're all well aware, the "goal" of Affirmative Action is to hire the "best qualified" applicant regardless of race, creed, etc. Anyone connected with Affirmative Action will tell you there are no "quotas;" but if two applicants are "equally qualified," then preference should be given to the minority candidate. That is how its been working for the last 25 years, hasn't it?

By the way, has everyone noticed how much better America is now than we were 25 years ago? And how much our educational system has improved?

When will we ever learn?

Police push council for new chief

By JOANNE McFADDEN
THE CHRONICLE

Members of the Garwood Police Department came to the special meeting of the Borough Council Tuesday looking for a new chief and a new communications system. They got their radios, but they will remain without a chief until the Council's Aug. 4 meeting.

Heated words filled the room after the council returned from an executive session and announced there would be no action regarding the position which has been vacant since June 1.

The Council did set a meeting of the police committee, chaired by council member and police commissioner Walter Maszczak, for the following evening to discuss the vacancy.

"Is there a reason why that meeting was not held before this one," asked Patrolmen William Legg, a delegate to the PBA. "Why are we still without a chief? We are looking for answers, but we're not getting them."

Mayor Fred Strahlendorf fielded the questions.

"We are well aware of the problems it creates both within and out of the department," Mayor Strahlendorf said. "We will make it a priority at the committee meeting to come up with a recommendation."

"The police committee did make a recommendation two weeks ago and it was turned down by this council," added Mr. Maszczak, referring to the council's July 14 decision not to appoint Captain Joseph Alexis to the position.

PBA president Bruce Underhill reminded the council of the 1989 agreement that all appointments due to retirements would be immediate if the police union would agree not to bridge their time between years which would save the borough money.

"We agreed in good faith to give that financial bonus to the town, so that there would be no lapse in time between retirement and appointment," he stated.

The mayor, however, responded, "I will have to research that decision. We had every intention of filling the position, but the council could not come to an agreement."

According to Mr. Underhill, the safety of the public is not in jeopardy.

"The department continues to operate efficiently," he stated. "But we need someone in charge to take care of the superiors, act as a liaison with the country prosecutors office and the borough council, and to take care of the officers."

In addition, Mr. Underhill questioned the slow response time of the council in making an appointment.

"They knew months ago that the chief was retiring. They should have been grooming someone for a while now, and the chief should have stayed in contact with the commissioner. They didn't and he wasn't."

After the meeting, the Mayor stated that the search had begun in February but that no mutual decision could be reached.

The council did adopt a resolution accepted the $22,522 bid from T&G Communications of Cranford for a new radio communication system, which will be funded through a bond issued in 1991.

"It's about time," said Mr. Underhill, who previously criticized both the commissioner and council for tabling that vote at a prior meetings.

Parents still oppose grade division plan

By JOANNE McFADDEN
THE CHRONICLE

The Board of Education continued to listen to dissenters to its plan to house all pre-kindergarten through first grades at Washington School at both its July 21 and 28th meetings.

While over 50 parents turned out at the first meeting to voice their concerns with the plan, which will send second and third graders to Franklin-Lincoln School, only 12 turned out Tuesday to continue the discussion.

"You are taking away our neighborhood school," stated Loretta Spina, while asking board members to reconsider their vote. "You have no concern for their safety. The plan will bring about a detrimental, dangerous situation."

The plan was approved June 9th by a 6-3 vote. Board members Juanita Austin, Ralph Urrico and Linda Koenig voted against the issue.

Board president Steven Lefebvre responded, stating, "We have heard everything you have said, but we have also heard from many residents who support the decision based on its financial savings and educational opportunities."

Proponents have cited the educational benefits of relocating the second and third graders to Franklin-Lincoln School, including the availability of library services, computers, and gifted-talented programs. Students will receive a better education at Washington School too, proponents say, because the facility and teaching methods can be tailored for the young learner.

Opponents to the plan have cited the safety concerns of having students cross both North and South avenues.

"We can tell that you have the confidence in this program, but we don't have it yet," stated Pat Castaldi. "Let the children stay in the same groupings at the new school, make a strong approach to discuss safety with the borough council, and address the time scheduling."

In response, the board agreed to stagger the start of the school by 10 minutes with Washington School youngsters beginning first and agreed to consider the classroom placement requests of parents.

Both meetings were dominated with discussion of the issue.

"You have placed a very deep wedge between the community and the board," stated resident John Bartolick. "As a community, we are concerned that if this plan goes forward, it will go forward in the best possible way, and that the board plans for all possible contingencies. Rather than hope, we'd like to have confidence, but that is lacking."

Judy Schaeffer, past PTA president, addressed the board.

"It's the nature of the beast that the community and board never see complete harmony," she said. "I am totally thrilled and excited about these changes. We can make it work. The parents of this town need to come together and make it work. Then we can move on."

Mr. Lefebvre agreed. "Working together, we can make this a successful venture."

Board of Education maps out new year

The Garwood Board of Education has approved five educational objectives for the 1992-93 school year.

As part of the New Jersey Department of Education school district evaluation process, each school district must annually adopt educational objectives for each school year. The objectives must include the opportunity for public and staff input which was obtained in May.

"Our district has some truly educationally stimulating challenges before it," said School Superintendent Walter Boright. "We're looking at further academic growth, additional improvement of study skills, enriched environments for learning and better understanding of the need to respect others."

The five goals adopted by the board are as follows:

1. By May of 1993, at least 80 percent of students in grades 5-8 will attain a holistic scale score of 6 or higher on a social studies class research paper utilizing word processing skills.

2. By May of 1993, at least 80 percent of students in grades 2-5 will demonstrate, at least a 10 percent increase in their knowledge and application of study skills based upon the scope and sequence of the new district language arts curriculum guide as demonstrated on a teacher-developed post test.

3. Students will develop an awareness of the source of prejudice as means of developing a more cooperative attitude toward living and working together. By May of 1993, 80 percent of students in grades 2-4 will demonstrate an understanding that prejudice is a learned behavior that derives from a variety of sources by obtaining a score of at least 80 percent on a teacher-developed post checklist.

4. At the end of a three-year period, the results of the Early Warning Test (EWT) reading section will indicate 100 percent of eighth grade students, not identified as special education, limited English or basic skills, meeting or surpassing the state standard of proficiency based on the Spring of 1993 test.

5. In each year over a three-year period, teachers in grades pre-K, kindergarten and grade 1 will identify appropriate practices for early childhood education and with administrative or board of education approval as may be required, implement at least three appropriate practices each school term.

"We have excellent teachers and eager learners in the Garwood schools. I am confident that together all will be successful," Dr. Boright said.

Telephone fraud on the rise

An influx of inquiries about "high pressure" telephone solicitation has prompted a warning from the PBA to local residents.

Local 117 asks citizens to be on the look-out for outfits that claim to be police-affiliated, soliciting funds in support of a particular law enforcement organization.

President Bruce Underhill wishes to remind residents that while some of the solicitors may be bonafide, our local only runs one fundraiser per year. Any monies donated to "out-of-town" solicitors have no impact on Local 117 of Garwood.

Residents are urged to call headquarters with any questions as to the legitimacy of an organization.

Disabled swim program still open

The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders announced that there is still space available in the Division of Parks and Recreation's eight-week Aquatic Program for individuals with disabilities. The program is part of the county's year-round program of recreational activities. The swim lessons are Thursdays, from 7-8 p.m. at Ulrich Memprial Pool, St. Georges Avenue, Rahway through Aug. 27.

Blood donors needed

The North Jersey Blood Center has issued a call for blood donations during the summer months in order to effectively and adequately meet the need for blood and blood components.

According to Andrew Skrzynski, director of donor services, the need for blood is often overlooked by the public.

"People will be involved in accidents on the job, in automobiles, at home, and while recreating," Mr. Skrzynski said "Children with leukemia, hemophiliacs, and individuals suffering from cancer or trauma need transfusions regularly. This is why blood needs to be collected every day, every month, throughout the year."

Because of the short shelf life of blood, 42 days for red blood cells and just five days for platelets, constant participation from community individuals is needed to ensure that the center can provide blood for those who need it, when they need it.

The North Jersey Blood Center, the oldest and largest center in New Jersey, provides blood and blood products to patients in over 40 hospitals. The center collects, tests, processes, and distributes over 70,000 units of blood each year.

The Blood Center is sponsoring various programs this summer to encourage people to come out and donate. Individuals may donate at NJBC's centers in East Orange or Parsippany, or call toll-free 1-800-433-6522, ext. 40 to find a nearby blood drive.

After-school sports, clubs on the increase in Garwood

The Garwood Board of Education has approved a most exciting after-school activities program," said Superintendent of Schools Walter Boright, in response to action taken at the recent public meeting of the board.

On July 21, the board passed a resolution establishing 11 new after-school activities. They include both intramural basketball and crafts from September to November; modeling and styling, calligraphy and computers from November to January; chess and checkers, aerobics and machine and hand stitching from January to April; and volleyball from April to June. Two additional activities, golf and tennis, will be offered in both the fall and spring.

The programs offered are based upon the results of a survey of interests from both staff and students which was conducted by Randy Pratt, principal of the Lincoln/Franklin School. During the 1990-91 year, an after school computer club was popular and over subscribed.

The programs will meet after school one day per week for one hour in duration, with the exception of some activities which by their nature will take longer.

Spotfield Productions - It's the real thing - or is it?

LINDA O. EPSTEIN/THE CHRONICLE

By BOB SULLIVAN
THE CHRONICLE

Give them a few weeks and they can put a beach in your ballroom, a quicksand pit in your lounge, or a circus in your alcove.

It won't be the real thing, but it will be an incredible simulation.

Lifetime Westfield residents Rich Shapiro and Tony Sepe have been creating party atmospheres with authentic props and lighting for 14 years. Their company, Spotfield Productions, sets the mood for hundreds of corporate parties and meetings around the country each year.

According to Spotfield, Marilyn Monroe lives, and so do the 50s. It's only a few steps from the Old West to Hawaii to Africa and beyond.

In a dark warehouse set back from South Avenue in Garwood's industrial area, their collection of mood-setting props stand ready for viewing and renting.

Upon entering, visitors immediately find themselves on the beach - or rather standing on Aquavyrl, with sand sprinkled around the edges. Pier pilings, dock rope and an anchor are nearby, waiting for some unknown ship to return.

Just outside the water lives the Old West, with a covered wagon, various cacti, a coyote and a vulture.

Palm trees, a canoe, and a treasure chest are next, followed by carousel horses and the chasing lights of a circus. Just before the juke box and after the life size Marilyn Monroe figure is the Speakeasy entranceway, compete with slotted window.

"It's a playhouse for adults," Mr. Shapiro said.

Spotfield began 14 years ago as a meeting service subcontractor - connecting meeting planners to prop rental services and talent agents. But a taste for the unusual and sometimes macabre led Mr. Shapior and Mr. Sepe to open their own prop warehouse.

"There was no place to rent props from New York to Philadelphia," Mr. Shapiro said. "It was a natural, a perfect marriage for our company."

So three years ago, the pair took their collection of sideshow banners and opened a prop rental service for special event professionals. The banners, which are collector's items, were used in the baseball film "The Natural."

According to Spotfield, Marilyn Monroe lives, and so do the 50s. It's only a few steps from the Old West to Hawaii to Africa and beyond.

Since then, Spotfield has accumulated hundreds of items, from a six-foot-tall Statue of Liberty Replica to a Coke machine which dispenses long-neck bottles for 10 cents.

Mr. Sepe said their most memorable event was planned for Lipton Teas in Orlando.

"We did a safari theme for their sales meeting," he said. "And we made a quicksand pit. We took a four-by-eight block of foam and covered it with sand and mulch. Then we stuck the bust of a woman holding a box of tea in the middle, like she was sinking. People could walk in and get that sinking feeling. It was the hit of the party."

Along with corporations, rock bands are among Spotfield's bigger clients. Recently, the two men set up a casino backstage party with roulette tables and professional card dealers for Guns 'n' Roses and 100 close friends before their Meadowlands concert.

Spotfield was really the brainchild of Mr. Shapiro. He was working in various places as a clown when several people approached him looking for help finding unique party services. Because of his entertainment contacts, Shapiro was usually able to quickly find necessary talents and props.

"I used to do it for free, just to help people," he said. "Then I realized what I had going."

Soon after, he re-met Mr. Sepe at their 10-year Westfield High School reunion, and the two struck up a partnership. Now, they pride themselves on finding the most unusual props for any occasion.

"We always say that if Spotfield can't find it, it probably doesn't exist," Mr. Shapiro said. "A lot of people go to these meetings constantly and they all get to be the same, so planners really want something different."

Spotfield also rents materials to some local high schools theatre programs at lower rates, and they occasionally arrange smaller private parties.

Tours of the Garwood warehouse are available to interested customers by appointment through the Westfield office at 232-8586.

Methodists hold Youth Group movie night

The First Presbyterian Church and the United Methodist Church will sponsor Youth Group New Movie Night this evening at 7 p.m. at Reverend Berg's home, 33 Grove Street, Cranford. Movies and refreshments will be served, but those attending should bring a snack to share.

Summer Bible School will be held Aug. 17-21 from 9-11:45 a.m. Class size will be limited and the registration deadline will be Aug. 3. The program is being co-sponsored by the First Presbyterian Church (908) 276-8440 and the United Methodist Church (908) 276-0936.

A talent search is on for individuals, groups and organizations who express faith and spirituality through music, drama, dance, storytelling and other talents and who want to volunteer at the World Youth Day '93 in Denver, Colo. Aug. 11-15.

Organizers also are seeking persons skilled in facilitating group discussions which will include faith sharing and educational opportunities.

Religion

WYD '93 marks the fifth Vatican-sponsored international assembly.

Individuals and groups who wish to perform should send a brief resume, program description, name and address of a contact person, and when appropriate, a cassette of the performers displaying their talents to World Youth Day '93, National Office, 3211 Fourth St., N.E. Washington, D.C. 20017. For more information, call (202) 541-3001.

Candy sales go to rainforest

During intermission at The Jungle Book, which is on stage at Westfield High School on July 30 and 31, at 1 and 8 p.m., the Westfield Workshop for the Arts is taking the opportunity to raise people's consciousness about the environment and raise funds for its scholarship program.

On sale for $1 will be Rainforest Crunch, an all-natural buttercrunch candy that is the premiere product of Community Products Inc., the creation of Ben Cohen of Ben and Jerry's Ice Cream.

The cashew and Brazil nuts are harvested in the Amazon rain forest and shipped to Vermont where the candy is made. The profits are used to develop small Brazil nut processing factories that are cooperatively owned and operated by forest peoples.

The undertaking also is intended to show that the rain forest can be more profitable as a living rain forest than by cutting, burning and transforming it into plantations and ranches.

Club news

Thomas R. Boniello of Cranford was re-elected president of the Association for Retarded Citizens (ARC) of Union County for another one-year term at that organization's recent annual meeting.

Mr. Boniello, who is an attorney with the law firm of Sobel & Lyon, East Hanover, has been an active member of the association for six years and has served on its Board of Directors since 1987.

Also elected as officers were Harriet Callanan of Cranford (second vice president) and Barbara Katz of Scotch Plains (secretary).

Elect to Read at Cranford Public Library

Over 1,000 children have registered for the Cranford Public Library's Summer Reading Program, "Elect To Read." Children earn one vote for each hour they read or are read to. They can then cast their votes for either Snoopy or Garfield. With over 9,000 votes cast to date, Snoopy holds a very slight lead over Garfield.

The program will culminate in a carnival to be held Wednesday, Aug. 26, in the library parking lot (rain date, Aug. 27). All reading time must be recorded at the library by Aug. 21, for children to receive credit toward carnival tickets. Tickets may be picked up in the Children's Library on Monday, Aug. 24, and Tuesday, Aug. 25. Call 709-7272 for more information.

TOWNSHIP OF CRANFORD
CRANFORD, NEW JERSEY
ORDINANCE NO. 92-24

BOND ORDINANCE PROVIDING FOR IMPROVEMENTS TO CENTENNIAL AVENUE POOL IN AND IN THE TOWNSHIP OF CRANFORD, IN THE COUNTY OF UNION, NEW JERSEY, APPROPRIATING $40,000 THEREFOR AND AUTHORIZING THE ISSUANCE OF $40,000 BONDS OR NOTES OF THE TOWNSHIP FOR FINANCING THE COST THEREOF

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CRANFORD IN THE COUNTY OF UNION, NEW JERSEY (not less than two-thirds of all members thereof affirmatively concurring) AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. The improvement described in Section 3 of this bond ordinance is hereby authorized to be undertaken by the Township of Cranford, New Jersey. For the improvement or purpose described in Section 3, there is hereby appropriated the sum of $40,000, such sum being inclusive of a grant(s) in the sum of $0.00 from the State of New Jersey. Such assistance shall be supplemented by the Township authorized hereby and by the Township Clerk of the Township, as more fully set forth in Section 5 hereof.

Section 2. In order to finance the cost of the improvement or purpose, negotiable bonds are hereby authorized to be issued in the principal amount of $40,000 pursuant to the Local Bond Law. In anticipation of the issuance of the bonds, negotiable bond anticipation notes may be issued pursuant to and within the limitations prescribed by the Local Bond Law.

Section 3. (a) The improvement hereby authorized and the purpose for the issuance of the bonds or notes of the Township is the improvement of Centennial Avenue Pool, including, but not limited to, the filtration system, the heating system and the piping of the plumbing as more fully described in the plans and specifications on file in the office of the Township Clerk and made a part hereof by reference.

(b) The estimated maximum amount of bonds or notes to be issued for the improvement or purpose is as stated in Section 2 hereof.

(c) The estimated cost of the improvement or purpose is equal to the amount of the appropriation stated therein in Section 1.

Section 4. All bond anticipation notes issued hereunder shall mature at such times as may be determined by the chief financial officer, provided that no note shall mature later than one year from its date. The notes shall bear interest at such rate or rates and be in such form as may be determined by the chief financial officer. The chief financial officer shall determine all matters in connection with notes issued pursuant to this ordinance, and the chief financial officer's signature upon the notes shall be conclusive evidence as to all such determinations. All notes issued hereunder may be renewed from time to time subject to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 40A:2-8(c). The chief financial officer is hereby authorized to sell part or all of the notes from time to time at public or private sale and to deliver them to the purchasers thereof upon receipt of payment of the purchase price plus accrued interest from their dates to the date of delivery thereof. The chief financial officer is directed to report in writing to the governing body at the meeting next succeeding the date when any sale or delivery of the notes pursuant to this ordinance is made. Such report must include the amount, the description, the interest rate and the maturity schedule of the notes sold, the price obtained and the name of the purchaser.

Section 5. The capital budget of the Township of Cranford is hereby amended to conform with the provisions of this ordinance to the extent of any inconsistency herewith. The resolution in the form promulgated by the Local Finance Board showing full detail of the amended capital budget and capital program as approved by the Director of the Division of Local Government Services is on file with the Clerk and is available there for public inspection.

Section 6. The following additional matters are hereby determined, declared, recited and stated:

(a) The improvement or purposes described in Section 3 of this bond ordinance is not a current expense. It is an improvement or purpose that the Township may lawfully undertake as a self-liquidating purpose, and no part of the cost thereof has been or shall be specially assessed or specially paid by benefited persons.

(b) The period of usefulness of the improvement or purpose, within the limitations of the Local Bond Law, according to the reasonable life thereof computed from the date of the bonds authorized by this bond ordinance, is 10 years.

(c) The Supplemental Debt Statement required by the Local Bond Law has been duly prepared and filed in the office of the Clerk and a complete executed duplicate thereof has been filed in the office of the Director of the Division of Local Government Services in the Department of Community Affairs of the State of New Jersey. Such statement shows that the gross debt of the Township determined as provided in the Local Bond Law is not increased by this bond ordinance, and that the net debt of the Township determined as provided in the Local Bond Law is not increased by more than the amount of the obligations authorized hereunder will be within all debt limitations prescribed by that law.

(d) An aggregate amount not exceeding $20,000 for items of expense listed in and permitted under N.J.S.A. 40A:2-20 is included in the estimated cost indicated herein for the purpose or improvement.

(e) This bond ordinance authorizes obligations whose term to maturity for purposes hereof in accordance with N.J.S.A. 40A:2-39 exceeds five years. Obligations authorized herein are to be issued for a period not to exceed the term of the self-liquidating purpose of the improvement or purpose, as stated in Section 7 hereof.

(f) The estimated maximum amount of bonds or notes to be issued for the improvement or purpose is as stated in Section 2 hereof.

(g) The estimated cost of the improvement or purpose is equal to the amount of the appropriation herein made therefor.

Section 7. The full faith and credit of the Township are hereby pledged to the punctual payment of the bonds or notes and of the interest on the obligations issued pursuant to this ordinance. The obligations shall be direct, unlimited obligations of the Township, and the Township shall be obligated to levy ad valorem taxes upon all the taxable real property within the Township for the payment of the obligations and the interest thereon without limitation of rate or amount.

Section 8. This bond ordinance shall take effect 20 days after the first publication thereof after final adoption, as provided by the Local Bond Law.

Are Your Bank's Checking Fees Based on Your Minimum Balance?

...there's a better way.

Average Balance Checking from

RockBank

Does your bank charge service fees if you drop below a minimum balance? They're holding YOUR money hostage, because you get charged a fee even if you dip below that amount by one cent for one day; that minimum balance is untouchable money.

RockBank is better. We use your AVERAGE BALANCE, which means that your checking account balance can go up and down -- like accounts usually do. As long as your average balance for the month is over $700, you pay no service fees.

Come into RockBank – we'll be glad to show you proof of how average balancing works to YOUR advantage.

George H. Nordstrom, 79

Retired sergeant in National Guard

CRANFORD — Chief Master Sgt. (retired) George H. Nordstrom, 79, the former chief of aircraft maintenance in the New Jersey Air National Guard, died July 26, 1992 at his home in Fort Pierce, Fla.

Sgt. Nordstrom was born in Brooklyn and lived in Cranford before moving to Piscataway in 1950. He later lived in Rye, N.Y., and since 1977 had resided in Fort Pierce.

He joined the National Guard in 1931 and was assigned to the 119th Observation Squadron at Newark Airport. The squadron was activated in 1940 as part of the Army Air Corps; Sgt. Nordstrom was a maintenance chief for a squadron of B-29 bombers on Saipan in the Pacific during World War II.

After the 119th was deactivated in 1945, Sgt. Nordstrom was discharged from the Army Air Corps but re-enlisted in 1946 as a member of the 108th Fighter Group. He joined the headquarters command of the New Jersey Air National Guard in 1954 and retired from his maintenance position with the rank of chief master sergeant in 1973.

He became a consultant dealing with aircraft components after leaving the military.

Sgt. Nordstrom was awarded the Bronze Star, Air Force Commendation Medal, Army Commendation Medal, and Meritorious Service Medal. He was named Airman of the Year in 1969 and belonged to an American Legion post in Rye.

He also was a lieutenant with the U.S. Power Squadron in Fort Pierce and a past exalted ruler of Lodge 1457, B.P.O. Elks, Marnaroneck, N.Y.

Survivors include his wife, Mary Cottrell Nordstrom; a daughter, Lee Bach of Holmdel; a stepdaughter, Catherine Holzemer of Cottage Grove, Minn.; four grandchildren; four brothers, Richard Nordstrom of Renton, Wash., Kenneth Nordstrom and Donald Nordstrom, both of Stuart, Fla., and Arthur Nordstrom of Westfield; and three sisters, Marion Cymbaluk of Cranford, Jean Smith of Shrewsbury, and Doris Jensen of Edison.

Funeral services were held yesterday at the First Presbyterian Church. Burial was in Fairview Cemetery, Westfield.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the George H. Nordstrom Memorial Fund, care of Lee Bach, 10 Fairmount Road, Holmdel, 07733.

Arrangements were by the Gray Memorial Funeral Home.

Philip J. Morin, 83

Founded and headed New York firm

CRANFORD — Philip J. Morin, 83, who founded the El-Mor Manufacturing Corp. of New York City and was its president for 25 years, died July 15, 1992 at his home in Normandy Beach.

He was born in Danbury, Conn., and lived in Cranford before moving to Normandy Beach in 1962.

More recently, Mr. Morin had been a real estate consultant at the Normandy Beach office of Weichert Realtors. He graduated in 1926 from St. Benedict High School, Newark, and was a member of the U.S. Power Squadron in Watchung.

Surviving are his wife, Catherine Morin; a son, Philip J. Morin Jr. of Cranford; two grandchildren; and three brothers, Emil Morin of East Keansburg, Dr. George Morin of North Bellmore, N.Y., and Joseph Morin of Closter.

Another brother, Henry Morin, died in June of this year.

A funeral Mass was offered July 18 at Our Lady of Peace Roman Catholic Church, Normandy Beach, of which Mr. Morin was a parishioner. Burial was in Gate of Heaven Cemetery, East Hanover.

Arrangements were by the Timothy E. Ryan Home for Funerals, Lavallette.

Agnes Brown, 80

Was missionary

CRANFORD — Agnes Brown Fish, 80, a missionary with the First Baptist Church on High Street and an American Cancer Society volunteer in Union County, died July 18, 1992 at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

She was born in Cranford and lived in the township before moving to Roselle in 1932.

Mrs. Fish belonged to the Roselle Chapter, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and the Blue Triangle Club of Roselle. She also was a member of the Flower Club at the First Baptist Church.

Her husband, George Fish Sr., died in 1967.

Survivors include seven sons, George Fish Jr. and Frederick Fish, both of Linden, Harold Fish of Plainfield, Howard Fish, Roderick Fish, Walter Fish, and Barry Fish, all of Roselle; three daughters, Geraldine Walker and Justine Fish, both of Linden, and Elizabeth Fish of Roselle; 51 grandchildren; 48 great-grandchildren; and two great-great-grandchildren.

Also surviving are two brothers, Alfred E. Brown Sr. of Linden and Richard Brown of Cranford; and five sisters, Marie Green of Roselle, Sarah Pierce of Cranford, Rosalie Hendricks, Dorothy Douglas, and Mildred Redd, all of Asbury Park.

Funeral services were held yesterday at the First Baptist Church. Burial was in Rosedale Cemetery, Linden.

Arrangements were by the G.G. Woody Funeral Home, Roselle.

Theresa Bacigalupo

Sears saleswoman

CRANFORD — Theresa F. Murray Bacigalupo, a former saleswoman with the Sears, Roebuck & Co. catalog store in Linden, died July 21, 1992 at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

She was born in Brooklyn and moved to Cranford in 1973 from California.

Mrs. Bacigalupo was on the Sears sales staff from 1975 until her retirement in 1991. She was a parishioner of St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church.

Surviving are her husband, Jerome J. Bacigalupo; and a daughter, Joan Wolf of Millstone, Monmouth County.

A Mass of Christian Burial will be offered tomorrow at 9:30 a.m. at St. Michael's Church, Alden Street.

Junior Musical will present 'The Jungle Book' tonight

Feet will tap and fingers will snap when the curtain rises on Junior Musical's full-scale production of The Jungle Book July 30-31 at Westfield High School, 550 Dorian Road, Westfield.

Matinee performances will begin at 1 p.m. and evening performances at 8 p.m. both days.

The show features young actors from Central New Jersey who are enrolled in the Westfield Workshop for the Arts' (WWA) theater program. Cranford residents Tammy English, Kate Wilson, Martin Coakley, Ray Johnson, Bernard Jacob Solomon and Rebecca Dolan are members of the cast.

Tammy stars as Begheera, the loyal and pragmatic panther. Tammy has studied dancing, acting and piano and has to her credits Hideway Haven and Snoopy. She attends Orange Avenue School in Cranford and is in the eighth grade.

Kate has the role of King Louie, the jazziest monkey of them all. A ninth grader at Cranford High School, Kate has appeared in Snoopy and Hideway Haven, and has studied dancing and gymnastics.

Martin plays Colonel Hathi, the leader of the elephants. Also a ninth grader at Cranford High School, he was seen last summer in Junior Musical's smash hit Mary Poppins and also appeared in Tom Sawyer, Hideway Haven, Snoopy and others.

Ray plays two roles: a vulture named Flaps and Lazy Wolf. Bernard plays Toomai, an elephant child; Rebecca plays Lieutenant Shah, an elephant officer. To showcase the talents of all 32 cast members and ensure that each child gained experience and exposure on stage, veteran director Drude Roessler of Westfield modified the story made famous by the Disney film. Ms. Roessler developed some of the minor characters and reintroduced others who appear in the original text written by Rudyard Kipling.

Accompanying this revised script are five original songs written by WWA alumnus Matthew Sklar, the production's musical director. Ms. Roessler wrote the lyrics.

The Jungle Book traces the adventures of Mowgli, the little boy raised by a pack of wolves. With the help of such unforgettable animal friends like Baloo the bear, who knows the "Bare Necessities" of life, Mowgli finds his way back to the man-village.

Tickets for The Jungle Book are $5 for adults and $4 for students and seniors. For more information call 320-5065.

CRANFORD BASEBALL LEAGUE
All-Star Tournament Games
11-Year-Old Division
Cranford 7, South Hunterdon 1

In the championship round of the Reading-Ton Tournament, the Cranford 11's advanced into the finals by defeating South Hunterdon 7-1.

Cranford took a two run lead in the first as Chris Baran walked and scored on Tim Meyer's double. Meyer then scored on Craig Frost's single. In the second, Cranford picked up two more on singles by Pat Maher, Kevin Fontana, Tom Lucash, and Rob Segear.

In the third, Frost singled, advanced to third on Terry Donovan's single, then scored on a fine bunt single by Fontana. South Hunterdon scored their run in the fourth as Carro walked, and scored on Gallegor's double. In the sixth, Cranford put the game away as Maher doubled, Eric Schreiber walked, and both came in to score on hits by Ben Grad and a fielder's choice by Lucash.

The hitting stars for Cranford were Maher, Meyer, Frost, and Fontana with two each while Lucash, Segear, Donovan, Schreiber, and Grad each had one.

The pitching was effectively handled by Baran and Lucash who combined to throw a one hitter while recording nine strikeouts.

The Readington Championship Final will now feature the undefeated Cranford Squad against the tournament host, Readington.

Cranford 14, Readington 3

In the finals of the Readington Tournament, the Cranford 11's completed their perfect season by defeating Readington 14-3 in a well played game.

Spectators witnessed a scoreless game after three innings of play, during which both squads made stellar defensive plays. In the top of the fourth, Cranford came alive with four runs as Chris Baran walked, Tim Meyer singled, and both scored on Craig Frost's double. Terry Donovan then tripled home Frost. Readington came back with one on a homerun by Lewis.

In the fifth inning, Cranford picked up four more runs, but Readington answered back with three of their own and was looking to score more as they still had the bases loaded which set up the confrontation as Cranford's Bull Pen Ace, Rob Segear, entered the game and ended the threat by striking their clean up hitter.

Cranford added six more in the sixth while Segear and the Cranford defense recorded Readington's final outs to give the 11's the Championship. The hitting stars for Cranford were Meyer and Maher with three, Lucash, Segear, Frost, and Donovan with two, and Baran, Kevin Fontana, Ben Grad, and Jesse Harris all had one each. For RBI, Frost led with four, Meyer and Maher had 3, Baran had two, and Segear and Donovan had one. The pitching was once again solid as Baran, Lucash, and Segear scattered four hits and recorded five strikeouts. The Cranford 11's completed this tournament undefeated, winning seven consecutive games.

12-Year-Old Division
Cranford 15, Kenilworth 1

Faced with the prospect of playing a Kenilworth squad who earlier had defeated the Cranford and Readington Tournament Champion 11-year-olds, the Cranford 12's wasted little time showing their superiority, blasting out 15 first inning runs on 11 hits as they coasted to a 15-1 no-hit-out in four innings.

Pat Pepe, Chris Thee, and Kevin O'Donnell pitched brilliantly for Cranford in a game where the starters were substituted for after the first inning of play.

Pepe had a fine offensive game, picking up four RBI on two hits. Joe De Candia singled home two runs on two singles. Kevin Feeley blasted a long two run double as did Joe McComb with a single and two runs scored. Brian Weingart walked and singled before being replaced in the second inning. Andy Nordstrom picked up a RBI on a sharp single. Thee and O'Donnell picked up singles.

Cranford 8, Hillside 1

The Cranford 12's continued their solid play as they notched their second consecutive win in the Fords Tournament with another convincing no-hit pitching performance.

Pat Pepe pitched four innings, striking out an impressive nine batters. Rich Horn mopped up the final two innings, allowing no hits, striking out three while pitching to only seven batters.

Joe McComb had a good day, scoring twice while getting two hits. Kevin O'Donnell singled in two RBI. Kevin Feeley again powered a long double to center and scored twice.

Brian Beirne singled in a run and scored before leaving with an injury. Andy Nordstrom, Brian Wiengart, and Horn all picked up run-scoring singles. Chris Thee singled in his only at-bat appearance.

Cranford 9, Sayerville 0

Solid pitching and suffocating defense remained a 12-year-old trademark as they dominated a good Sayerville squad and rolled to a 9-0 rout in the Fords Tourney.

Pat Pepe, Kevin Feeley, and Chris Thee combined on a two hit shutout backed by the great defensive plays of Thee, Rich Horn, and Joe McComb.

Hitting for Cranford was Brian Weingart who singled and coupled in 2 RBI. Kevin O'Donnell and Chris Fallouter slugged long doubled while Horn worked out three walks and scored twice.

With this victory, the Cranford 12's improved their record to a formidable 18 victories against five defeats as they stayed alive in their quest for the Fords Tournament Championship.

13-Year-Old Division
Tournament team second in town tourney
Cranford 8, North Edison 7

Cranford came back from a 6-3 deficit in their first game of the finals last Tuesday of a town tournament to defeat North Edison 8-7. Ryan McKenna pitched the complete game, escaping many North Edison threats.

Leading the Cranford hitting were Josh Evans, Andy Tobe, and Eric Messner with two hits each. Greg Bazilus, Brendan Keeley, Gave Stein, and Phil Gallifiol also hit for Cranford. Cranford came back with five runs in the fifth to take a 8-6 lead. Evans singled and McKenna walked. Messner, Bazilus, and Keeley then singled. Ryan Mattosz hit a sacrifice fly and Brian Cumisky grounded out which produced the five runs. In the bottom of the seventh, North Edison had the tying run on base twice but Mattosz threw out one runner and Messner nipped two runners at first to end the game and preserve the victory for McKenna.

North Edison 12, Cranford 8

Cranford played in the championship game last Wednesday and came up with a 8-8 tie. The game was resumed on Saturday and Cranford came up short as North Edison won 12-8 in eight innings.

Cranford was forced out to an 8-3 lead after four innings with Josh Evans, fresh off his four hit shut-out on Monday, back on the hill again.

The top of the order of Eric Messner (2 hits, 2 runs), Greg Bazilus (2 hits, 3 runs), and Brendan Keeley (2 hits, 3 runs) did most of the damage. Brian Cumisky also had 2 hits and 2 RBI. The remaining Cranford hits came from Evans, Andy Jobe (2 RBI) and Ryan McKenna. Evans pitched six innings in a gutsy performance on two days rest while Messner came in and pitched out of a bases loaded, no out jam in the seventh. Dan Holland made three fine defensive plays in nightfield and McKenna added solid defense at second base to aid the Cranford cause in the late game.

SOFTBALL

Wildcats score win

Laurie Matticola and Kelly Burns plowed through batting orders this past weekend to give the Forbas Wildcats a 4-0-1 record in the Clark Wildcat girls softball tournament.

Cranford's Erin Malkowski had a key single in the first and later scored. Later in the game the Cats scored on a perfectly executed suicide squeeze by Cranford's Jessica Dreyer. Dreyer later added an RBI single.

In Saturday's action, the Wildcats swept two games from the Chips of North Jersey. Matticola pitched the Cats to a 4-2 victory and Burns fired them to a 6-1 triumph.

In the seventh inning of that game Dreyer worked a walk, advanced to second on a sacrifice bunt and scored on a single by Malkowski.

SCOREBOARD

Cranford 11-year olds take first in Reading baseball tournament

The Cranford 11-year old All-Stars took home the first place trophy at the Reading Tournament. The team compiled a .497 batting average while driving in 81 runs to its opponents' 11. The pitching posted a 1.94 ERA.

Once again Chris Baran led the offense with 18 RBI, three home runs and a .688 average. Pat Maher top the rest with a .667 while other top hitters included Rob Segear (.619), Craig Frost (.611), Tim Meyer (.600 with a homer), Ben Grad (.500), Terry Donovan (.500), Kevin Fontana (.400), Tom Lucash (.381 and a home run), Jason Harris .333, Eric Schreiber (.314), and Bob Haber (.314).

The pitching staff of Baran, Lucash, Maher, Meyer, Segear and Frost was again spectacular. The group recorded 48 strikeouts in 34 innings and allowed only 31 hits. Baran led the way with a 0.58 ERA.

Stellar defensive performances were turned in by Maher, Frost, Baran and Schreiber, while Donovan was once again a powerful presence behind the plate, throwing out five would-be base stealers.

Once again congratulations to the team and the coaching staff of Bob Segear, John Baran, Joe Fontana and Luke Lucash for a perfect season.

no shortstop," said Nichols. "In the beginning of the season a ball hit to shortstop was an adventure.

"When he (DeRosa) came out, I didn't know what to expect from him. But he improved incredibly and really made a contribution."

Finally, Kenilworth got its clutch hitting from an unlikely source. Second baseman Pete Accomando, a Brearley graduate who attends Montclair State, led the team with 16 RBI. He began the season like Ryne Sandberg, driving in 13 before the All-Star game, but finished like Carl Sandberg, plating only three in the second half. Defensively he was steady throughout.

"He was very good for us at second," Nichols said. "He was fundamentally sound. Nothing spectacular, but he made all the plays."

Consumers should be aware of false promises

Consumers who receive offers to join the travel agency business by paying a sizable fee, for which they are promised travel agent ID card and status as an outside agent, should be wary of fraudulent promotions of that nature, according to Christine Clyburn of Unique Travel, a member of the American Society of Travel Agents Inc. (ASTA).

"While the promotions are glib and the promises of travel discounts are attractive, unsuspecting consumers need to be aware that they may come up empty-handed when they go to cash in on the so-called travel perks that these operations deceptively promise," Ms. Clyburn said.

"The suppliers of travel — the airlines, hotels, tour operators, cruise lines and car rental firms — are taking an increasingly closer look at the form of travel agent identification being offered," she continued. "Consumers are paying hundreds of dollars for these phony ID cards in the belief that they will then be eligible for various travel discounts. Any consumer looking to do this is taking a risk of being turned down by those suppliers."

Multiple listings help in buying homes

Shopping for a new home? Looking for a buyer for your current home? Wouldn't it be great if you could group a large number of homes on the market together for buyers to browse? A multiple listing service (MLS) does just that.

"Whether you're in the market to buy a home or sell one, an MLS can be the key to a speedy and satisfying transaction," according to Pinkie Luerssen, President of the Westfield Board of Realtors.

A multiple listing service consists of a compilation of listings and market statistics for a given area and is a mechanism by which listing brokers make offers of subagency or cooperation with buyer agents to the other participating firms. The concept is over 100-years-old, and time has proven its success. All details of the home for sale, including price and special features, are compiled. This information is entered onto a form and then published in an MLS book or in a computerized data base which is leased or sold to participating agents.

Working with an agent, buyers define their needs and wants within their price range. For example, a homebuyer may be looking for a three-bedroom home with a fireplace within a certain area. The master bedroom, however, must be located on the first floor and the buyer cannot spend more than $200,000. Using the MLS, the agent can determine which houses currently on the market and listed in the MLS satisfy these requirements.

The sellers of these houses may or may not be represented by the agent with whom the buyer is working. With a multiple listing service, however, everybody benefits. Buyers have a wider selection of homes to consider, and sellers have more buyers looking at their homes, bringing the best possible price at the best possible terms.

"Some homebuyers will ask to borrow the MLS book so they can review the homes currently available," said Ms. Luerssen. "This violates the MLS rules the agent has agreed to abide by. In addition, photocopying the listing book violated the copyright laws. Good agents will not violate the rules and regulations of the system they have the privilege of using."

Research from the National Association of Realtors reveals that 86 percent of all real estate companies are members of at least one MLS (many subscribe to several) and 59 percent have computerized MLS access. A computerized system generally will allow for more variables to be considered when defining the buyers' interests and, of course, can speed up the search process.

"The Westfield Board of Realtors has offered MLS to its customers since 1946," said Ms. Luerssen. Over 150 offices and 1,000 agents currently participate in the Westfield Board MLS.

UNATTACHED SWF— seeks unattached employed male, 31-38, Approx. 5'8, 6'1", firm/slender build, Earth sign (pref. TAURUS). She'll find you exciting & appealing because you're spontaneous, imaginative, passionate, independent, seductive, unconventional, devilish. You know what you want & aren't intimated by, but admire strong personalities like yourself. You're kind, considerate, tolerant, honest, fair and dependable. You've deep and lasting affections. You express your feelings directly, and are determined in love. You know what to do and say to make her feel special. You're gentle and charming to all, faithful and true to only her. You're attracted to comely, fascinating women, but qualities that most appeal to you lie deeper. You like being surrounded by soft, comfortable, familiar things. Friends, family, harmony and well behaved children are a must. You're a bit stubborn, but compromising. You've purposely eluded being your heart fully because of apprehension and suspicion. But now you want to take a chance for something more - something profound. You desire a woman who is loving, resourceful and giving - a "Mother Earth" who has your qualities, desires and hungors. She's outspoken, passive yet aggressive, conservative and spirited, serious but daring and playful. She's comfortable in silk or denim, heels or barefoot. She's a cautious Capricorn who's also escaped capture for she'll not settle. She knows you well, as you know her. You are the same, both fuel and flame. She's 5'4", light blue eyes, blond, with a slender, shapely figure and appealing features. ext. 3885.

That house is conveniently located on a 80X389 foot lot near the Ash Brook and Shackamaxon Golf Courses, as well as the Union County College Branch and Union County Technical Institute and Union Catholic High School.

The interior consists of an easy-flow floor plan with all large rooms.

The main level has a modern work-ease kitchen, formal dining room, living room and a huge family room with sliding glass doors leading to a large double-tiered door overlooking a fenced wooded lot in a parklike setting.

The second level of the house features three bedrooms, with potential for a fourth, and two full bathrooms.

An attached two car garage is equipped with bessler stairs to a large storage area, and more space is available in the high full-sized basement.

DARYL STONE/FORBES NEWSPAPERS

This colonial at 809 Raritan Avenue in Scotch Plains, listed at $264,900, has many luxurious features.

An open house will be held at the property Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 1 and 2.

The house sits in the prime residential community of Scotch Plains, which includes nearly 21,160 residents spread over 9.41 square miles.

Students attend the highly regarded Scotch Plains-Fanwood school district which has five elementary schools, two middle schools and a high school.

Education is also provided at two parochial schools and five preschools.

Private agencies provide garbage collection, and water service comes from Elizabethtown Water Company.

Gas service is provided by Elizabethtown Gas Company, while Public Service Electric and Gas serves electrical needs.

The borough of Scotch Plains is considered an appealing and lively town rich in history, culture and fine homes.

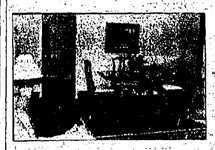
ABSOLUTELY CHARMING



The grounds of the original Sperry Estate are as lovely as ever! From the Sperry's sunken garden area to the interlaced pathways which meander through the 3 acre courtyard and perimter flower gardens. The grounds of ENGLISH VILLAGE are a haven for peaceful and serene relaxation or socializing.

A private enclave is created by the estate fencing which surrounds this gated "Village." Come see and experience ENGLISH VILLAGE!

Skillful planning has resulted in large splendidly proportioned corner, library sized entry foyers. Old World styled wooden floor and ceiling moldings, plaster walls and archways, solid oak parquet flooring, separated by cosmos decking. The quality and charm of Old World construction combines with skillful renovations to provide Cranford's best condo value in 1, 2, or the last 3 bedroom and with private screened terraces. Elevator serviced units or walkups available, garage/on site parking available.

DARYL STONE/FORBES NEWSPAPERS

Florence L. Kuckley of Rockaway Township, left, was one of 275 guests who took part in last Saturday's Subaru test drive held at Timberfield, the estate of the late Malcolm S. Forbes. She drove the Subaru Legacy Sedan through the back roads of Bedminster. Roni Marzelli, right, of Houston, examines the spacious interior of the Subaru Legacy while Pat and Joe DeCrescenzo of Staten Island look on.

New Subaru owners have something to cheer about

The latest line in Subaru automobiles has something for everyone. From the 1992 Subaru SVX to the classy Legacy and Loyale wagon, this line of cars caters to lovers of a sporty model to the efficiency of the family wagon.

SUBARU SVX: To the serious car enthusiast, the Subaru SVX conveys quality and distinction inside and out. Its 3.3 liter, 230 horsepower, horizontally opposed 6-cylinder-dual-overhead cam 24-valve engine complements the sleek aerodynamic design to make the car economically fuel efficient.

The SVX features an electronic direct ignition system that eliminates high maintenance components such as the distributor, rotor and points. Instead, individual high-voltage coils are fitted to each platinum-tipped spark plug to ensure abundant spark energy for both hot and cold weather.

The car employs an aluminum alloy rather than a cast iron block to reduce weight for improved fuel efficiency and performance. Pickup is no problem for the SVX. The car accelerates from 0-60 mph in 7.3 seconds.

The quiet ride is made possible by extensive anti-noise measures. The hood is lined with acoustical insulation. Soundproofing is integrated into the dashboard to minimize vibration and noise. Steel panels between the engine and trunk compartments and passenger cabin are blanketed with sound absorbing materials. Road noise is also effectively absorbed by multi-layered flooring with thick carpeting.

The SVX is available with a wide variety of amenities and conveniences.

SUBARU LEGACY: Car and Driver said Legacy was "going to create some surprisingly big ripples." ... and it did. Legacy quickly became the best-selling All-Wheel Drive Sedan and Wagon. In fact, one out of every three All-Wheel Drive cars sold in America in 1990 was a Legacy.

> One out of every three All-Wheel Drive cars sold in America in 1990 was a (Subaru) Legacy.

With a reputation like that, it isn't hard to see why car buyers trust the Subaru Legacy with their families and to get the job done.

The limited edition model, the Legacy LSi Sedan, features luxurious soft-grain leather along with room for five and a 4-speed manual transmission. It also features an 80-watt electronically tuned stereo/cassette with equalizer and CD player. For added comfort and convenience, power windows and door locks, cruise control, a power moonroof and dual side electric side-view mirrors can also be found on this model.

The steering wheel not only houses the optional driver's side air bag, it is also adjustable for an optimum driving position and "remembers" the previous setting. The dash features easy-to-read, no glare instruments.

On the Legacy LS Wagon, one of the best looking station wagons ever built, the 2.2 liter, 130 horsepower, 16-valve, fuel-injected engine delivers smooth, reliable performance and safety. Four-wheel disc brakes and a 4-channel Anti-lock Braking System (ABS) help make for smoother stops.

SUBARU LOYALE: The Loyale is the compact model of the Subaru line in both price and size. It doesn't skimp, however, on the standard features and is the embodiment of the Subaru philosophy of more for the money.

This car features a fuel-injected, 1.8 liter aluminum alloy engine and power-assisted rack and pinion steering for more precise handling. It's loaded with standard comfort and convenience features including a 15 cubic foot trunk, one of the largest in its price range. Among the extras available to Loyale owners is "on demand" All-Wheel Drive.

The spacious interior is filled with amenities as air conditioning, power windows and door locks, dual electric side-view mirrors, retractable cargo security cover, and an electronically tuned AM/FM stereo.

SUBARU JUSTY: The fun-to-drive, All-Wheel Drive, stylish, bargain Subaru Justy is both affordable and good looking. A lively 9-valve overhead cam engine surprises owners with its power and torque.

Add performance features like a sporty 5-speed manual transmission, multi-point fuel injection to boost horsepower output, and 4-wheel independent suspension for better handling and control, and the highway becomes an exciting place to be. But when the driving fun turns serious, the Justy GL 5-door lets you turn to the standard "All-Wheel Drive" system.

When driving the Justy GL 3-Door, drivers know spirited performance when they feel it. It gives you the power, handling, and control features you want.

Its roomy interior is furnished with comfortable fully reclining front bucket seats. The GL 3 door is equipped with a standard electronically tuned AM/FM stereo radio. The car offers the choice of smooth, reliable front wheel drive or the extra safety through traction of the available "On Demand" All Wheel Drive system.

All Subaru models are available at local Subaru dealer including Flemington Subaru, Route 31, Flemington.

Star-party hearty with the gang at AAI

Central Jersey residents with an interest in astronomy are particularly lucky to have one of the biggest astronomy clubs in the country right in Union County. The Amateur Astronomers, Inc. at Union County College in Cranford is the largest organization of it's kind in New Jersey (roughly 400 members) and they are extremely accessible to the public.

And they have one heck of a telescope.

The Sperry Observatory (one of only three major observatories in the state) is owned by the college, but it's run exclusively by AAI," said club president Linda Horning. "And we're open to the public every Friday night. They can come down and look through our telescope (normal hours are 8-11 p.m., but they stay open later if the crowd is up for it), we have astronomy classes and we can teach them how to take photographs. And once you join and are qualified, you'll have full access to the telescope. We also go to conventions and we even build our own telescopes."

The AAI has an information hotline, 276-STAR, that will give you up-to-date sky information on a daily basis. If you want to find out more about the club, leave a message and they promise to get back to you.

On a clear day, as the song goes, you can see forever. But on a clear night, you can see even farther.

Almost everyone, at one time or another, has cast his eyes towards the heavens and contemplated the vastness of the universe. Not many of us make a habit of it, however. Those who do are known as astronomers, but they do more than contemplate. They make a day — well, make that a night of it on a regular basis, hauling out their telescopes, star charts and bug spray, and get together with their fellow astronomaniacs for what is known as a star party.

Bet you didn't know that scientists like to party. It's starting to sound better already, isn't it? Well, read on, it gets even better.

Astronomy may be the most sensible of hobbies. After all, the subject matter is, in the truest sense of the word, infinite, and while you can run up quite a tab with fancy telescopes and travel to remote corners of the globe, most of you can get started in your own back yard with equipment you already own.

After talking to some amateur and professional astronomers, the first rule of astronomy seems clear — DON'T BUY A DEPARTMENT STORE TELESCOPE. "They're worthless," said Gerome Vinski, director of the Planetarium at Raritan Valley Community College in North Branch. "You can probably see as much with a decent pair of binoculars as you can with a cheap telescope. Remember, it's not the size of the lens, but the quality of the lens that makes the difference."

A good telescope will cost you $500 or more, but so will a set of golf clubs, and with astronomy, there's no greens fees.

The RVCC planetarium is as good a place to start your star-gazing as you could ask for. A state-of-the art facility that is visited by over 20,000 students and adults each year, the Planetarium combines projection and video technology, expertise and a sense of humor to initiate (and recruit) astronomy neophytes into the ranks.

Two of their main weapons are special presentations. "The Space Bus" is a introduction to astronomy for children ages 10 and under shown every Monday and Wednesday at 1:30 and 3 p.m. through August 19. "The Space Bus" is a lively, animated story that follows a group of students from the Asimov Elementary School (and their cranky bus driver) on a fun-filled trip through the solar system, with stops at the planets and the various space phenomena along the way.

For the older crowd, "The Light-Hearted Astronomer" is an equally-effective recruitment device that is more to the point — yes, it's an fun, easy watch — but it also gets right down to business as the Will Rodgers-throated narrator offers amiable advice on how to get started on your own.

"It's laid-back, very practical and a lot of fun," said Planetarium assistant director Lonnie Buinis. "You'll go away with plenty of information to help you really enjoy the night sky."

After the show, the next step is to head for the great outdoors for a look. There are drawbacks for serious star-gazers in the summer (the sky isn't as clear as the winter, it doesn't get dark until late and there's too many bugs) but summer is also the most-comfortable time and there's still plenty to see.

"The summer is the best time to see the Milky Way, which runs directly north and south, and the (yearly) Perseids Meteor Shower is usually around the second week of June," said Buinis. "And to see it (the meteor shower), you don't even need a pair of binoculars. The best way is to find an open area so you can see as much of the sky as possible, and just relax in a lawn chair. You'll probably want to be facing south, and on a good night (the event lasts about a week) you can see up to 50 meteors per hour."

You can do that, can't you? Just keep in mind that one of the biggest problems for an astronomer to overcome isn't air pollution, it's light pollution, and New Jersey has as much of one as it does the other. For prime viewing of the Milky Way, the Perseids Meteor Shower or any other celestial body, finding a dark, open area is key.

"I like the Northwest portion of the state, places like High Point," said Buinis. "A lot of state parks are pretty good. There's a scenic overlook on Route 78 in Pluckemin that's pretty good. That's where I saw Halley's Comet."

Other ways of combating light pollution, according to "The Light-Hearted Astronomer," are to put red cellophane over your utility flashlight (you need it to look at your star charts, but an uncovered flashlight is too bright and will affect your night vision) and go to the bathroom before you go outside (there's a bright light in your bathroom, too, at least there better be).

If you like what you see of the Perseids Meteor Shower, and you want to see more, perhaps then will be a good time to invest in a telescope. After all, there's an infinite number of subjects out there awaiting your perusal. You might not need the telescope for the Geminids Meteor Shower (which appears traditionally around Christmas), but there's also a full lunar eclipse scheduled for December 8. As previously mentioned, you'll want to avoid the cheap telescopes and seek out the real deal, which will cost you as much as $500 or more, but so will a set of golf clubs, and with astronomy, there's no greens fees.

Unfortunately, there's not a lot of stores that specialize in telescopes. The best idea is to purchase copies of the two most popular astronomy magazines, Astronomy and Sky & Telescope, study the information and then look in the Yellow pages for the authorized dealer of the model you like. After that, what happens next is between you and the stars.

'Dali-Mania' exhibition and sale is extended

Due to public demand, a major show and sale of Salvador Dali's graphic art will continue through August 16 at Howard Mann Art Center in Lambertville.

The show is an opportunity to see an impressive selection of the master's graphic output all in one place at one time outside of museums. The collecton of lithographs, etchings and woodblocks includes some of Dali's most famous and beautiful images. Howard Mann, a personal friend and associate of the artist, started collecting his work in the 1950s. Many items are very rare today, such as Dali's studies of horses and butterflies; portraits of famous artists and literary figures; a self-portrait, and a portrait of his wife, Galal woodblocks illustrating Dante's Divine Comedy and studies on Dali's obsessive theme of time and it's passage.

The Howard Mann collection has been one of the largest ever put together. But the available supply has been rapidly dwindling because of large purchases by European, Japanese and American Museums and collectors anxious to acquire major Dali graphics while they still can. The present upsurge in Dali's longtime fame,was sparked by the opening of new Dali museums in Europe, the Orient and the United States, and by new books recognizing the artist's importance in the history of world art. The result has been dubbed "Dali-Mania."

All works are fully authenticated, having been acquired directly from Dali or his authorized agent. Some were published by Howard Mann Art Center in collaberation with Dali, or co-published in collaberation with Lublin Graphics, Dali's longtime agents.

SALVADOR DALI SHOW AND SALE, through Aug. 16 at Howard Mann Art Center, 45 North Main St., Lambertville. (609) 397-2300.

Camden too far? Try the aquarium at Pt. Pleasant

By VALERIE DRACH WEIDMAN
WeekendPlus Writer

Look out, Batman! There's a small colony of penguins who are alive and well and living on the board walk in Point Pleasant Beach.

For more than one year, Jenkinson's Aquarium has been a welcome addition to the rides, arcades, miniature golf, hot dog stands and pizzerias already found on this one-mile stretch of boardwalk. Raising its substantial pink roof above Point Pleasant's carnival atmosphere, the three-story aquarium provides solid entertainment and education to families enjoying a full summer's day in the surf and sand. Although the eight black-footed penguins residing in a glass-encased sanctuary are the aquarium's most popular attraction, they are also known to be argumentative and ornery towards their human handlers.

In contrast, the 30-member aquarium staff, including 20 marine biologists, are all very hospitable to the public and are eager to answer questions about all the flora and the fauna in this well-designed facility.

And in the spirit of please-touch-museums, this aquarium offers a touch tank that allows children and adults to feel live nurse sharks, horseshoe crabs, starfish, spider crabs and sea anemonies with the help of the staff. As soon as you walk into this cool and darkened environment, it is as if you have entered the depths of an underwater sea world. After you view the cartoon antics of the penguins at the entrance, you can get a glimpse of an alligator or large sea turtle in the wooden dock area. The centerpiece of this atmospheric aquarium is the original boat that was used in the 1935 film Mutiny on the Bounty.

The large tanks above the dock offer a first-hand look at the sea life that a warm water coral reef supports, three different kinds of sharks, (nurse, sand tiger, and brown sharks), and sea anemones -- brilliantly-colored, tentacled creatures that attach themselves to soft coral and hard rocks.

On the top floor, harbor seals entertain the public daily with a training show at 3 p.m. and their dining hour at 8 p.m. Lucille, a favorite of the three female seals, was given to the aquarium after she was attacked by sharks and beached at Point Pleasant. Local children raised funds to help her recovery. Three macaws and a Moluccan cockatoo also make their home here and historical photos of the Jersey shore dating back about a century give the aquarium a local flavor.

Jenkinson's Aquarium is open daily from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. during the summer and tickets are $5.50 for adults, $3.50 for seniors and children 12 and under. Admission for infants and toddlers is free. Schools, camps and tour groups are given special rates. Don't forget to bring lots of questions to this exceptional staff, which can easily tell you on which hemisphere penguins live, the 17 varieties of sharks and what they like to eat best (luckily, human flesh is low on their list.)

You probably won't be able to leave Point Pleasant without taking the kids on the rides located (strategically) at the entrance of the boardwalk. The "Tornado" roller-coaster, "Crazy Bus," and the ferris wheel will thrill older children while the younger ones will clamor for the more sedate merry-go-round, small boats, helicopter, motorcycle and car rides that go in endless small revolutions.

Books of tickets can be purchased for $40, $10 and $5. Bumper cars, train rides and miniature golf can also be found in the amusement area. The boardwalk has an endless array of indoor arcades exploding with skeeball, video games and dozens of booths with dazzling arrays of stuffed animals that are almost impossible to win.

Beach passes can be purchased daily for $4 to $5 for adults and $1 for children age 5 and under. For those who want to stay the night, there are about a dozen moderately-priced motels and a larger variety of guest houses that can be rented for the week or season. For more information call the Point Pleasant Chamber of Commerce at (908) 899-2424.

Points of departure

Up and away to Pittstown

If you didn't get enough hot air at the recent Festival of Ballooning in Readington, take off for the Up, Up, and away Balloon Festival, which will take place Aug. 7-9 at the Alexandria Airfield.

In addition to the expected balloon, airplane and helicopter rides, the festival will offer skydiving demonstrations, stunts, and races to go along with rollerblading, bungee jumping and Karaoke sing-a-longs. There will also be arts and crafts, pony rides, gymnastics demonstrations, children's programs, food, live music, fireworks and more.

Alexandria Airport is located off Route 625 in Pittstown. For more information, call (908) 735-0870.

Porsche patrons plan a picnic

The Northern New Jersey Region of the Porsche Club of America will hold their annual picnic on Sunday, Aug. 2, at the pavilion area of Schooley's Mountain Park in Washington.

All club members, Porsche owners and their families are invited to attend the festivities, which run from noon until 6 p.m. Admission is $12 for adults (Children ages 10-and-under admitted free) and includes food and drink. Activities include softball, volleyball, horseshoes, kid's games and a cake-baking contest. For more information, call (201) 292-9681.

WDHA announces 'Rock the Park' concert series

By WILLIAM WESTHOVEN
WeekendPlus Editor

An impressive lineup of new stars and old favorites will play a series of free concerts being staged in New Jersey parks by WDHA-FM.

The series, known as "Rock the Park," will feature prominent national recording acts sharing the stage with popular local rockers from the Garden State. There's a little something for everyone — headliners include country rockers Webb Wilder and pianist Johnnie Johnson, Tom Cochrane and alternative favorites like the Spin Doctors and the BoDeans.

Local opening acts for the shows will be Kilby Taylor, Soul Engines and Stagger Lee. A closer look at the shows follows. For more information, call at (201) 538-1250.

SUNDAY, AUG. 9

WEBB WILDER, JOHNNIE JOHNSON, KILBY TAYLOR
Schooley's Mountain Park
Long Valley

WEBB WILDER is part of the "new wave" of country acts that have added both a sense of humor and a hint of danger to Nashville. Their diverse influences range from hard rock to rhythm and blues to Elvis.

"We have open minds about all of this," said the band's namesake, guitarist Web Wilder. "We don't have a barometer that tells us which styles we can or can't combine. We just sort of feel like, well, if it smells right, trust us."

JOHNNIE JOHNSON is a little easier to pin down. Known for his extraordinary piano touches on Chuck Berry's classic early hits, Johnson has also boogied with the likes of Muddy Waters and Jimmie Reed in addition to his solo work and was featured along with Keith Richards, Eric Clapton and Linda Ronstadt in 1987 Taylor Hackford documentary Chuck Berry Hail! Hail! Rock 'n' Roll.

Currently, Johnson is enjoying a newfound popularity as the subject of two records in the Elektra Records American Explorer Series — Johnny B. Bad, where he's joined by NRBQ and again by Richards and Clapton, and Rockin' Eighty-Eights.

SUNDAY, AUG. 16

SPIN DOCTORS, KILBY TAYLOR, STAGGER LEE, SOUL ENGINES
Brookside Park, Bloomfield

[illegible] SPIN DOCTORS [illegible] New York City Punk-reggae-rock jammers are up for the singles of the year" honors as they continue to make noise, playing major concert venues while also enjoying the national exposure of an appearance on the David Letterman Show in June.

Rob "Chief" Chris Barron was born in Australia, but moved to Princeton, where he played in bands before moving to the city, where he met up with bandmates Eric Schenkman, Aaron Comess and Mark White.

Known for their bizarre stage theatrics, spontaneous jams and penchant for playing a different set every night, Spin Doctors built up a strong local following before recording Pocketful of Kryptonite, which drew rave reviews and continues to move up the pop charts. One critic described it as "Lynyrd Skynyrd backed by the Commodores' rhythm section."

After playing both Jones Beach and the Garden State Arts Center on the H.O.R.D.E. tour, which also included fellow "neo-psychedelic" up-and-comers like former Blues Traveler, another band with Princeton roots, the Spin Doctors are headlining several shows before heading out on the second leg of the H.O.R.D.E. tour, which, like the Grateful Dead, has attracted a following of fans that have been traveling with the show around the country.

SATURDAY, AUG. 22

TOM COCHRANE, TALL STORIES
Sussex County Fairgrounds, Branchville

Red Rider was an early staple of MTV programming, but Red Rider is no more. Singer-songwriter TOM COCHRANE, however, has emerged from the ashes to produce Mad Mad World, his first solo album, and "Life is a Highway," his first single, which has gone straight to the top of the charts in his native Canada.

Recorded in Memphis and produced by former Stax Records artist Joe Hardy, Mad Mad World goes a little more further down the classic rock and R&B highway than Red Rider ever did. Strong sales and airplay mark the solo career is off to a good start.

SATURDAY, AUG. 29

SoDEANS
Round Valley Youth Center, Clinton

With elements of new wave, classic rock and pop, the SoDEANS have been the darling of the critics for a long time now, but have never quite fulfilled the standout music people predicted. Showcased along with Peter Gabriel and U2 on Robbie Robertson's 1987 debut solo album helped put their name in the national picture, but despite several fine records, the BoDeans have never graduated beyond the club circuit.

Their latest record, Black and White, may very well change all that however. Recorded at Prince's famed Paisley Park Studio and produced by David Z., who also produced the Fine Young Cannibals' smash hit The Raw and the Cooked, the album is a polished edition of the BoDeans sometimes gritty sound. It's an interesting marriage, but whether you like it or not, the BoDeans always rock out live.

Music notes

Watts to play Waterloo

Internationally-acclaimed pianist Andre Watts will perform the Piano Concerto No. 2 in G Minor by Sait-Saens with Principal Conductor Gerard Schwarz and the Waterloo Festival Orchestra on Saturday, Aug. 1 at 8:30 p.m.

The concert will take place in the tent at Waterloo Village in Stanhope, and will also include Sensemaya by the Mexican composer Silvestre Revueltas, which will be performed in commemoration of the 500th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America. The concert will conclude with the Symphony no. 9, op. 95, ("From the New World") by Dvorak.

Tickets for the performance are $20 for tent seating and $15 for the lawn, or $17 and $12.75 for seniors and students. Admission to the concert is 6 p.m., and patrons are invited to dine or picnic on the grounds and stroll through the scenic village.

Duprees do Duke Island

The Somerset County Park Commission and Forbes Newspapers will sponsor a free concert starring the Duprees at Duke Island Park in Bridgewater on Sunday, Aug. 2, at 7 p.m.

The Duprees, who are all New Jersey natives, first hit the charts with the hit single "You Belong to Me," in 1962. Later hits included "Why Don't You Believe Me" and "My Own True Love."

Concert goers should bring their own seating. For further information or directions to the park, call the Park Commission at (908) 722-1200 Monday-Friday, TDD (Telecommunication Device for the Deaf) (908) 526-4762, or (908) 722-1914.

Natasha's Stars

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Accept responsibility at home, with partnerships, and with finances, at the first crack of the week. There is definitely a wild factor loose, and it could have an impact in all these areas.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Talk, make resolutions about how things are going to be, and know that a plug could be pulled at any time. This is a test to see how flexible you are. The next few weeks give you a readout on how your year is going.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20) Reflect on what could make your life better. What you find out is that strong action needs to be taken. Conversation, debating, and considering take up a large part of your week. Do some soul-searching before you leap.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your magnetic appeal is high, high, high! If you count only on this though, your week could go steadily downhill. Maximize your talents, and know others are in an uproar. A nurturing approach wins the day. Expect a hectic pace toward the weekend.

LEO - (July 23-August 22) You need to think carefully before leaping madly into action this week. Decisions made could be significant, though expect them to be thoroughly tested this week, too. Make time for a talk with a family member, roommate, or neighbor.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22) Be more upbeat and happy about news that is forthcoming. You may need to mull over a decision carefully before acting on it. You know which way to go and what you want. Keep conversations extremely loving, and you'll perk happily through the weekend.

LIBRA (September23-October22) Use enormous caution around your more possessive and needy side. You could do some self-sabotaging, if you are not careful. Be mysterious and allow another to come to you. Questions asked allow you to get a grasp of where another is coming from.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21) You have a very hard time settling in this week, and with good reason – you're full of daydreams and fantasies. You're happiest with large groups of friends, rather than with just one person.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December21) Be sensitive to a loved one and their concerns. You find yourself, one more time, in heavy money negotiations. Be careful and loosen up – you may be creating your own demons here. You're on the scene all weekend long, but really do enjoy.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19) Decisions made this week could have an impact on finances and partners. Open yourself up to the unusual which pops up in your life. Plan on a wonderful weekend away where you escape and enjoy.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18) Focus on work, because once the more playful side of you emerges this week, you won't be able to settle down. Listen to your instincts regarding a partner or money matters. The need for intimacy and intensity is high this weekend and demands attention.

PISCES (February 19-March 20) Who you are, and what you are about, comes out. Be more forthright about what you are doing and what you expect at work. You launch into the weekend early. Enjoy. Relationships are very special right now.

Damon Wayans' 'Mo' Money' pays off, but not in full

By JEFFREY COHEN
WeekendPlus Film Critic

Marlon Wayans (left) and brother Damon of Living Color fame con their way through the action comedy Mo' Money, which Damon also wrote and co-produced.

The new comedy MO' MONEY isn't really a movie; it's Damon Wayans' resume for Hollywood success. As such, it's not a bad movie.

Wayans wrote the screenplay and serves as one of the two executive producers on the film, and it's clear he's angling for bigger things. He manages to get in most of his successful characters from the television show In Living Color, makes it plausible for him to act like them (with one glaring exception) and otherwise shows off his sensitivity and likability as a leading man. What he hasn't done is write a script that holds together as a story.

Mo' Money suffers from a case of schizophrenia — on one hand, it's an outrageous comedy in which Wayans and his brother Marlon play scam artists happily cheating people out of money and food through sheer nerve — on the other, it's an action/thriller about scams inside a credit card company that includes a large helping of violence and makes very little sense.

The two halves of the script come together through coincidences that would make Charles Dickens blush — the cop investigating the credit card case just happens to be a detective looking after Johnny Stewart (Wayans) because Stewart's father was his partner and once saved his life. And when Johnny follows a gorgeous woman into an office building and applies for a job just to be near her, the job is with — surprise! — the credit card company. Uh-huh.

So the stage is set for all of this to come together, but the plot and the comedy never seem to be existing in the same universe, and what you end up with is a scattershot approach. First, there's a nasty plot scene in which somebody is killed or threatened. Then the Wayans' brothers perpetrate a scam on a store owner in which Damon is a lunatic throwing merchandise around and Marlon is explaining that he needs to "lactate," so the owner had better give him a turkey sandwich. The comedy is fine, but the mood is so grim that it's hard to change gears that fast.

Eventually, to win the woman of his dreams (whom he believes is above him in economic status), Johnny decides to pocket a few credit cards sent back to the company from deceased clients and charge up a storm. This leads to one scene in Wayans' character doesn't work — when Damon and Marlon enter a jewelry store posing as two gay men to charge an expensive ring, there's no reason for them to play characters. But Wayans appears to be nodding to the faction of his audience that expects him to trot out every familiar bit, so he throws this into the mix as well. It doesn't really hurt, but it doesn't exactly help, either.

It is refreshing that in a movie like this, the good and bad characters aren't perfectly split down racial lines. Every white person isn't a villain (the good cop is white), and every African American isn't totally virtuous (yes, Damon and Marlon are con artists, but we accept that because they're charming and live by their wits, but there's also an upwardly-mobile Buppie who's ridiculed). It is a little disheartening that the beautiful heroine (Stacy Dash, who needs acting lessons in a hurry) is light-skinned and has rather Caucasian features, while the comedic predator woman stakes out first Damon and then Marlon is dark-skinned and seen as ugly. A quick turn in which she proves to be a wonderful lover wouldn't have hurt, but this isn't a movie about racial issues, and such problems are secondary.

The real problem is the conflict between the comedy scenes and the action plot, and director Peter MacDonald hasn't managed to smooth the ragged seams in Wayans' script. The ending includes (what a shock) a car chase that goes on much, much too long without any new or funny twists on the traditional. They just couldn't think of a way to tie it all together.

Don't let the ads fool you — this just isn't a comedy with Damon Wayans. Some parents might think the "R" rating refers simply to some swear words (there are plenty) and let kids go, but there's much more than that. One character is stabbed to death, another has his neck broken, one is hanged and more than one is shot. There's also a supposedly artful sex scene which is so distorted that out of context it would be impossible to guess exactly what is going on. This is, in short, not a movie for the under-13 set.

Damon Wayans can now add to his resume: he's written a full-length screenplay, starred convincingly as a romantic lead (he was fine in The Last Boy Scout, but that was as Bruce Willis' sidekick, not as a star) and has translated his television characters onto the big screen. You can expect he'll parlay that into mo' movies, assuming the box office haul on this one is sufficient.

Foreign films at the Brook

Ralph Sirolli of the Brook Cinema in Bound Brook has announced his intentions to begin screening foreign and art films. Already scheduled for the four Sundays in August is the Bangladesh Film and Cultural Festival (Aug. 2, 9, 23 and 30 at 10:30 a.m.) which will include films never seen in America with the added attraction of exhibits and ethnic foods in the lobby.

Films in the series already shown include Mediterraneo (Italy) and Raise the Red Lantern (China). Currently, Howards End continues to enjoy a long run. Upcoming films will include The Best Intentions, a Swedish film directed by Billie August and written by Ingmar Bergman, Lovers, an adult tale from Spain about a landlady's efforts to disrupt a love affair of her tenant by her own plan of seduction, and The Hairdresser's Husband, a film of erotic obsession from France.

A LEAGUE OF THEIR OWN
•Penny Marshall (Big, Awakenings) directed this hopeful summer blockbuster, which stars Geena Davis, Lori Petty and Madonna as members of the All-American Girls Professional Baseball League, formed in 1943 when World War II decimated the ranks of the minor leagues. Tom Hanks co-stars as their crusty, befuddled manager. (PG).
— William Westhoven

A STRANGER AMONG US
•Reminiscent Peter Weir's Witness. Stranger Stars Melanie Griffith as a policewoman who goes undercover in Brooklyns Hasidic community to catch a killer and falls for a young Talmud Scholar. Sparks fly as the expected culture clash bubbles to the surface. (PG-13)

ACES: IRON EAGLE III

ALIEN 3
•Cynical, downbeat and relentlessly grim — in short, the best of the three Alien movies. Eschewing the gung-ho infatuation with artillery of Aliens, this edition has more of the squirmy-repulsive feel of the initial encounter, though unlike Ridley Scott's movie it also has the courage of its frosty convictions. This time Ripley (Sigourney Weaver), in a fetching Sinead O'Connor do, ends up on a prison planetoid and once again contends with that six-fingered, double-jawed, acid-bleeding, indigestion-spawning child of H.R. Giger's imagination. With Charles S. Dutton and Lance Henriksen. (R)

BATMAN RETURNS
•For what it's worth, better than Batman. Like some bloated Andrew Lloyd Webber stage spectacle, Batman Returns is a triumph of production design rather than storytelling. There are three villains this time, all nifty. Christopher Walken as a scheming industrialist; Michelle Pfeiffer as the vinyl-suited Cat woman; and Danny DeVito as the hissing, libidinous Penguin. But Michael Keaton is every more of a stiff than usual, and the Caped Crusader gets so little screen time the film might more properly have been titled Where's Batman? (PG-13)

BOOMERANG
•Eddie Murphy returns to the big screen in this romantic comedy, starring as a mate chauvinist who gets a taste of his own medicine from liberated beauty Robin Givens and finds true love with Halle Berry.

CLASS ACT
•Comedy starring rappers Kid N Play (Chris Reid and Christopher Martin). (PG-13)

COOL WORLD
•Animation and live action a la Who Framed Roger Rabbit returns in a adult oriented feature from Ralph Bakshi (Fritz the Cat, Heavy Traffic). Brad Pitt and Gabriel Byrne are "real," while Kim Basinger is a "doodle," at least for most of the movie. (PG-13)

HONEY, I BLEW UP THE KID

HOWARDS END
E.M. Forster brings out the best in the Merchant Ivory filmmaking team, who otherwise perform adaptations of literary classics with a curator's eye and a taxidermist's touch. Drawing on Forster's 1910 novel — arguably Forster's best — they produce something vanishingly rare in movies: a view of the classes (here in Edwardian England) that feels warm and forgiving while remaining cool and observant. The title refers to a pretty little country house that is the fulcrum for a series of encounters between the artistically inclined Schlegels and the Wilcoxes, a mercantile clan whose practical-mindedness has a way of grading into complacence and cruelty. Gorgeously photographed and directed, with performances that bring to mind a collection of finely crafted cameos. With Anthony Hopkins, Emma Thompson, Sam West and Vanessa Redgrave. (PG)
S.H.

MAN TROUBLE
•Raise is the stinker that stars Jack Nicholson; but this one's a real snoutful. His Jackness stars as a guard-dog trainer hired to protect opera diva Ellen Barkin. Romance eventually develops, but the plot doesn't. Set this one out and wait for Hoffa. (PG-13)
W.W.

MOM AND DAD SAVE THE WORLD
— W.W.

MO' MONEY
W.W.

PATRIOT GAMES

PINOCCHIO
Walt Disney's second feature is the best animated movie made while old Walt was in charge, though troubles with production and wartime distributions made it a dead loss for the studio when first released in 1940. (The staff had so much trouble animating Pinocchio, a puppet whose form couldn't be stretched and squashed in the usual cartoon manner, that at one point Disney threw out six month's accumulated work.) Carlo Collodi's original stories, written as a series for an Italian children's magazine in 1881, could be pretty rough stuff — e.g., the original talking cricket is a dull moralist Pinocchio crushes with a hammer — but Disney's crew found ways to soften the Florentine journalist's most grotesque touches without weakening the story's punch. A lot of Disney re-releases have been diminished with time; this one is, if anything, even more impressive, with some of the most charming and most intensely frightening moments Disney ever created. Jiminy Cricket's voice is provided by Cliff Edwards, a former vaudeville performer and radio singer known as "Ukelele Ike." Mel Blanc, the voice of Bugs Bunny and Elmer Fudd, adds a single hiccup to the soundtrack as

REVIVALS

MEN
•Written and directed by Doris Dorrie, Men is a wise, witty comedy about men written with an "objectivity" that could only come from a woman director/writer. It's the story of an ad executive who goes off the deep end when his wife starts seeing an unemployed artist. The husband decides that artists must be alluring to women, so he moves in with the unsuspecting artist, and the two exchange everything — including personalities. Wednesday, Aug. 5, 7:30 p.m. at the Highland Park Library as part of "Wednesday Nights at the Library."

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST
•The New Jersey Shakespeare Festival's Monday Night at the Movies summer series continues on August 10 with the cult classic Theatre of Blood, (color) starring Vincent Price and Diana Rigg. Future offerings include Orson Welles' Chimes at Midnight (black and white), a 1967 release that has been dubbed his finest Shakespearean film (Aug. 17); Sidney Lumet's 1968 version of Anton Chekov's The Seagull (color), starring Vanessa Redgrave and James Mason (Aug. 31); and Shakespeare Wallah (black and white), an oddball film by director James Ivory (Room With a View) that takes the audience behind the scenes of a decidedly quirky family of Shakespearean actors as they tour through India (Sept. 21). General admission seating for each film is $7. Tickets available at the Browne Theatre box office, Drew University, Route 24, Madison. (201) 408-5600.

E Street lives on

Max Weinberg joins with GSAC for a good cause

By WILLIAM WESTHOVEN
WeekendPlus Editor

While Bruce Springsteen lives in California and tours the country with a new band, members of his former ensemble, the E Street Band, are still in here in New Jersey, keeping busy doing their own thing.

Mighty Max Weinberg, for one, has a full dance card, one which recently added the title of official spokesperson for the 25th anniversary season at the Garden State Arts Center. In a recent interview, the popular E Street drummer and a Central Jersey resident for almost 20 years, spoke of his fondness for the amphitheater that has been bringing great musicians into his extended neighborhood for a generation.

"I've always loved the Arts Center since the first show I saw there — the Band in 1969," said Weinberg. "And I want people to know what a great place it is to spend a summer night."

As part of the anniversary festivities, the Arts Center has put up a collage of clippings, schedules and ticket information from past seasons, including announcements of long engagements by such performers as Judy Garland, Diana Ross and the Supremes and Sammy Davis, Jr. Weinberg, as have many patrons over the years, appreciates the diversity of musical styles the Arts Center has presented over the years.

"I have broad musical tastes myself, and remember one of the best shows I ever saw there was Liberace," he said. "And Frank Sinatra."

Ironically, Springsteen and Co. never played the Arts Center, although, as Weinberg put it, "Bruce practically lived right behind it." Both Weinberg and the Boss, however, were guest performers at Ringo Starr's appearance there in 1989, while Weinberg has also kept time on the GSAC stage with Jackson Browne and the Beach Boys.

As part of his spokesman duties, Weinberg has lent the GSAC a special recording, "Summer on Signal Hill," which is being used as the official GSAC theme and is part of a two-song cassette being sold at concession stands, with the proceeds going to benefit the Big Brothers and Big Sisters of New Jersey.

The song, written by Springsteen, is an appropriate theme song for several reasons.

"The Arts Center is located at what is actually Telegraph Hill, but Signal Hill is what the local people called it because a long time ago, people from Bell Labs went there to study what was supposed to be radio signals from space," said Weinberg. "Bruce wrote the song in the early '80s, and we did play it in concert, but we never recorded it. So I did, and I got the idea of aligning it with the Arts Center."

> 'Bruce wrote the song, and we played it in concert, but we never recorded it. So I did.'
> — Max Weinberg
> E Street Band drummer

The recording project eventually included friends Jon Bon Jovi, The TonightShow bandleader Branford Marsalis and the Beach Boys. The impromptu ensemble was dubbed "Mighty Max and Friends" and the song was originally included on Weinberg's recent album, Killer Joe and the Scene of the Crime, released by Weinberg's own company, Hard Ticket Entertainment.

"The great thing about the song is that it's played in that classic way; it's really got that Jersey Shore/E Street Band sound," Weinberg promised.

So if you couldn't get a ticket for Springsteen's run at the Byrne Arena and you're desperate for a fix of Bruce Juice, take in a show at the Arts Center and take home a tape. And don't forget to tell them Max sent you.

In addition to his recent post-Bruce recording projects, Max Weinberg of the E Street Band has signed on as the official spokesman of the 25th anniversary season at the Garden State Arts Center.

Summer shedliners

After a slow June and early July, the lineups at the major New Jersey summer concert venues has started to heat up. On Friday, July 31, Harry Connick, Jr. completes a three-show run at the Garden State Arts Center, while Emerson Lake and Palmer perform with Bonham on the field at Waterloo Village in Stanhope.

For more easy listening, the GSAC offers the Boston Pops on Aug. 1, Dolly Parton on Aug. 2, and Steve Lawrence and Edie Gorme Aug. 3-4. For the dance crowd, Paula Abdul and Color Me Badd team up for two shows — one at Waterloo on Aug. 2 and another at the GSAC on Aug. 7.

And for those who just want to boogie, George Thorogood and Little Feat co-headline a show making stops at the GSAC on Aug. 5 and Waterloo on Aug. 7.

For information on the shows at the Garden State Arts Center, call (908) 42-9200. For Waterloo information, call (201) 847-4700.

Jazz n' laughs at the Hyatt

The Hyatt Regency Hotel in New Brunswick will offer a special night of jazz and comedy on Friday, July 31.

Two shows are planned, 7:30 and 10 p.m., with hors d' oeuvres being served at the former, while dancing will be provided for the latter. Corporate networking will be available at both shows.

The music will be provided by jazz artist Najee, while the laughs will come from comedian B.J. Smooze. Tickets are $25 and are available at the door or through Ticketmaster. For more information, call (908) 873-1234.

STAGE

Making the grade

'The Graduate' is revived onstage

By MICHAEL P. SCASSERRA
WeekendPlus Theater Critic

Benjamin (Mark Jupiter) and his mom (Wendy Merrit) have a heart-to-heart in Stageworks/Summit theatrical production of The Graduate.

Stageworks, a bold professional theater group currently completing its second season in residence at the Kent Place School in Summit, has made a specialty of producing overlooked scripts.

Currently on the boards is the world premiere of Producing Artistic Director Robert Pridham's adaptation of The Graduate, based on the novel by Charles Webb which was in 1967 the basis for the classic American directed by Mike Nichols. To adapt such a popular work is indeed an act of aplomb for a regional theater.

Even the most casual moviegoer knows the story of Benjamin Braddock and Mrs. Robinson. Ben, the hapless hero who freely admits he has "no values left," returns to his parents' upper-middle-class home after his college graduation having refused a scholarship for graduate study. Disenchanted and alienated, Ben rejects the career which has been mapped out for him. He talks about hitchhiking around the country for a few years, but instead spends most of his time floating on a raft in his parents' swimming pool and, later, secretly escaping to a posh hotel to carry on an illicit affair with Mrs. Robinson, the bowing but attractive wife of his father's business partner. His parents fret until Ben finally sets his sights on a goal: to woo and marry Elaine, the Robinson's daughter.

Nichols' film, which arguably contains some of the greatest images of the American cinema, enhanced Webb's novel by brilliantly utilizing filmic technique. To expand on the original source material, Pridham utilizes inventive staging devices almost as skillfully as Nichols film utilized cinematic language.

Exploiting the remarkable timelessness of Webb's work, Pridham's text specifies no time setting. Deferring to contemporary standards, though, the playwright has added a casual reference to "safe sex" in the form of a condom package Ben proudly tosses to Mrs. Robinson before their initial encounter.

The character of Ben is extraordinarily recreated by Mark Jupiter. As the screen version of Ben, a relatively unknown Dustin Hoffman emerged as a gifted character actor with a touch of the leading man, Jupiter, conversely, is a leading man with touches of quirky character. His often deadpan line readings are consistently amusing, his timing expert, his every hopelessly pained expression worth a dozen lines of dialogue. As he undresses for his first tryst with Mrs. Robinson, his hopeless sighs and hesitant body language comically externalize Ben's moral confusion. He takes center stage throughout the course of the evening and, though his fiddling and hand gestures occasionally border on excess, he very successfully makes the role his own.

Kate Schlesinger successfully maintains Mrs. Robinson's masterfully manipulative moves, but she simultaneously suggests the bitterness beneath the brass of a woman too intelligent to have passively accepted for herself such an empty life.

As Elaine, Jacqueline Knox gracefully combines innocence with a cynical edge. Like Schlesinger, Knox's characterization knowingly hints that beneath her character's surface lies a touch of the frustrated rebel.

Wendy Merritt is both amusing and effectively baffled as Mrs. Braddock. As a woman usually more attentive to a loose thread on her son's shirt than she is to the fact that he is, in fact, coming apart at the seams, Merritt is quietly moving in her vain attempts to understand her son's spiritual crisis and morose lack of direction. Completing the cast are Michael Coerver and Jonathon Bell who as, respectively, Mr. Braddock and Mr. Robinson, are properly patriarchal and buttoned-down.

Perhaps due to the challenging nature of the project, this Graduate does have a few inevitable flaws. After a basically well-paced first act, Pridham's text becomes jumpy and his pacing increasingly frenetic. The concluding scenes are particularly problematic. Unlike the film, the play's final confrontations are less powerful than earlier ones and the conclusion lacks the scope and the sense of ceremony so important to wrapping up the themes in Nichols' film. John Hindman's nondescript, all-purpose set design, a carpeted square which suggests a boxing ring, hinders some of the staging.

But Pridham's production, like many of Stageworks' past endeavors, is a bold work deserving of future development and refinement. Pridham and his cast are to be congratulated for reconceptualizing The Graduate rather than simply impersonating its earlier cinematic incarnation.

THE GRADUATE through August 8 at the Arts Center Theatre, Kent Place School, Summit. Tickets $12.50/$10.50 Thursday; $15.50/$12.50 Friday-Saturday. (908) 273-9383.

Stage right

Dey vant your blood

How's this for a clever idea? Plays-in-the-Park in Edison will hold a blood drive on from 3-6 p.m. on July 30 that will coincide with their evening performance of Dracula in Roosevelt Park.

Anyone donating blood on that day will be allocated a reserved spot on the lawn for the performance, which begins at 8:30 p.m., and Dracula himself will be on hand to greet the public.

Dracula, by the way, will conclude its run on Saturday, Aug. 1. Plays-in-the-Park continues its summer entertainment series with Annie Get Your Gun, which opens on Wednesday, Aug. 12, and Dance in the Park, which runs Sept. 10-12. For more information, call (908) 548-2884.

'Lovers' wanted for audition

The Trilogy Repertory Company of Basking Ridge will hold auditions for the comedy Lovers and Other Strangers at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 9; Monday, Aug. 10 and Wednesday, Aug. 12 at the Liberty Corner firehouse on Church Street in Bernards Twp.

Cast requirements for the production, which consists of five short plays about male-female relationships, are as follows: three men and three women in their early 20s to late 30s and two men and two women in their early 40s to late 50s. Those auditioning will be asked to read from the script. Familiarity with the play is not required, but would be helpful.

The performance dates are Oct. 2,3,9,10,16 and 17. For more information call director Bruce Jones at (201) 543-5493.

WINE WITH REASON

What would be your description of the perfect Summer Wine? I asked several people I know this question and got the following info:

1. It has to be cold
2. It should be easy to drink, no real complex
3. Low in alcohol, so you don't get whoozy in the sun
4. It should be bone dry
5. It should be a bit sweet

This may seem like a tall order, but German wines will fit the bill each time. The majority of the wines we import from Germany are whites made from the Reisling grape. They are definitely best chilled. Alcohol contents are very low, usually between 7% and 11%, and will not make you feel immediately groggy. This is the reason I prefer to serve German wines before dinner; they whet the appetite with their racing acidity and don't make you feel heavy before a meal. This is perfect for summer situations, when the heat already makes us sluggish.

Many people begin delving into these wines by trying Blue Nun, Black Tower and Zeller Schwartz Katz. And then, because they think a German wine label is too complex to read, they stop there. Don't worry, not being able to understand these labels is just a potassium deficiency, so you'll have to drink more wine. But, let's attack one part of the label that will help you find the degree of sweetness you want in a wine.

On some German wine labels you will see the words Qualitatswein mit Pradikat. This means the wine has "special merit". The merit, in this case, is the amount of residual sugar left in the wine and this is put into five categories: Kabinett (dry,dry) Spatlese (just perceptively sweet), Auslese (sweet, but not cloy), Beerenauslese and Trockenbeerenauslese. These last two are very sweet and could be considered dessert wines. But the Kabinetts and Spatleses will fit the dry or slightly sweet requirements, and the 1989 vintage are just fantastic! Tips From Liz

After cooking for many patrons for almost twenty-five years, I now would like to share some of my talents with you.

During these hot summer months, barbecues are fired up and the aroma of chicken is in the air. To avoid burning your chicken (which is a common problem), try this simple trick. Early in the day cook the chicken pieces in boiling water for about 30 minutes or until white inside. Do not overcook or you might end of with soup. Cool, blot and dip chicken in you favorite barbecue sauce. When you are ready to barbecue, place chicken on grill and cook only until it is brown and crispy. This takes about 10 minutes on each side. Your family will delight in juicy, tender chicken without the charcoal black coating.

My staff and I would like to invite you to try our delicious foods and country atmosphere. Saturday night can get busy, so expect a little wait. If you have any questions, please call or just drop in and experience Italian food at its finest.
