A two-time world champion, Mr. Jennings is an integral part of the She studio, coaching and rehearsing with the students.

"Mr. Jennings is a certified instructor who will work with our championship students on an ongoing basis, teaching them the latest world champion material," Ms. Shea said. "He is a two-time Fidler category, the certified Irish step dancer who starred in Riverdance and is now featured in Lord of the Dance at Radio City," Ms. Shea added.

Mr. Jennings also will travel and perform with Irish musicians The Chieftains next week.

A champion in her own right, Ms. Shea has been step dancing since the 1960s under Peter Smith, the first certified Irish step dancing instructor in the United States. She has two first-place team world championships to her credit while with the Smith school and has been teaching in the Cranford area since 1989.

"Mr. Smith continues to put on an annual Irish dance show at Carnegie Hall. I have two students dancing in his show this year, Beth Gallagher and 9-year-old Meg Driscoll of Westfield," Ms. Shea said.

"It takes about six months to prepare and learn the 30 dances, which are all ancient steps more than 500 years old. It's the old school. You have to be perfect," Ms. Shea said.

Ms. Shea said Irish step dancing has burst into popularity, drawing young and old alike. At her Cranford studio, the calls don't stop. Offering instruction for every age and every level, Ms. Shea will soon start a Sunday program to accommodate the growing legion of dancers.

"It's fun and it's invisible exercise. You don't even realize you're exercising. Once you learn the music, you can put the steps together. You get a great sense of satisfaction from the art form," she said.

Ms. Shea's instructional staff includes Noirin Leslie and Sheila Ox. For more information, call 276-8181.

sure our students receive the best education Cranford can provide.

"Since I first ran for the board, we've made many technological advances and I'm looking forward continuing to make further advances as we move into the year 2000. While I don't believe in living in the past, we can always learn from our past. With a link to the past and an eye to the future, I'm running to make certain the basics of education are still important along with all the technological advances we've made. If a child can't read, he can't operate a computer."

MARY VENDITTI — "I have three children attending public school and my main focus is to do what's best for all of our children. I'm willing to devote my time and experience as an active PTA member for the last 12 years to make sure we maintain a high quality of education."

"Parental involvement in education is a key factor in every student's success. I am fortunate to have the time to devote to the Board of Education and would be proud to be an advocate for all parents and children in our district. I think every parental concern and question regarding the school system is important."

"I would like the opportunity to work with the other board members to provide a safe, healthy and academically dynamic education for all children."

Mr. Torre urged the students to pass along the message to their parents.

1951 CRANFORD GIRL SCOUTS

Scouts marking special milestone

Today is 85th anniversary for girls

By ELLEN M. FELICETTA

THE CHRONICLE

CRANFORD — All across the United States, Girl Scouts are celebrating the 85th anniversary of their organization today. Locally, the event is heightened as Scouts prepare for the 40th anniversary of Washington Rock Girl Scout Council's charter Thursday March 20.

The council, which Cranford belongs to, serves 21 communities in 24 towns with a total membership of 7,461 girls and 2,813 adults.

In Cranford alone, there are more than 730 girls and 200 registered adult volunteers in the Girl Scout organization. During Girl Scout Week, which runs through Friday, the organization's flag will fly over the Cranford Municipal building in honor of Girl Scouts.

Faithfully carrying out their mission of "inspiring girls with the highest ideals of character, conduct, patriotism and service" so they may become happy, resourceful citizens," the council works to make girls the catalyst for changing girls' lives.

"We provide a certain atmosphere to allow girls to reach whatever their individual potential will be. Every girl walks away feeling successful," said Susan Haustein, administrative volunteer and Cranford community manager of troops.

Susan, who has been involved as an adult in the organization for 10 years, said she loves the Girl Scouts.

"To join the scouts, all a girl has to be is a girl. She doesn't have to be a certain color, religion or economic background," she said.

Within the five worlds of Girl Scouting, girls learn firsthand about personal well-being, outdoors, people, today and tomorrow, and world of the arts.

"During the 85th anniversary there is a strong emphasis on 'Hidden Heroines,' which provides the impetus to encourage girls to look into women's history. Textbooks really don't give the true impact of what has been done in the world. We encourage them to feel proud of women's contributions," she said.

Reaching out to help those in need, the Scouts recently completed their annual Baby Bundle project, which distributes baby items to new mothers and their babies.

Finally, the girls collected items for the YWCA of Eastern Union County and Raphael's Lighthouse in Elizabeth.

On Sunday, March 23, 44 Cranford Scouts from about 17 denominations will be honored at the Girl Scout Religious Recognition ceremony at the Cranford Alliance Church.

The Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. encourages girls to be active members of their own faith. Each year we select a different house of worship for the ceremony so the girls learn to embrace each denomination," Mrs. Haustein said.

From Daisy through Senior, all are invited to the ceremony.

"Contrary to some opinions, we're not trying to make rocket scientists out of every girl. We just want to give them the opportunity — if they want to be," she said.

Wednesday Senior Citizens Club events are:

Today, speaker on estate planning; March 19, St. Patrick's party; March 26, bingo and hot dogs; and April 2, business meeting.

French students need hosts

By ELLEN M. FELICETTA

THE CHRONICLE

CRANFORD — For the first time in many years, residents have the opportunity to open their homes and board for the students.

From April 11-19, 30 French foreign exchange students will visit Cranford to explore American customs and the American way of life.

The program is sponsored by the International Education Forum (IEF), is coordinated by Cranford resident Michelle Weiman.

"The students range in age from 14-19 years old. They all speak English. We have some homes, but more are needed," Ms. Weiman said.

The students, which come from in and around the Lille section of France, will spend one-two days at Cranford High School, tour local towns and visit New York City attractions. The students travel with IEF escorts.

Volunteer host families are asked to provide room and board for the students. If a private room is not available, Ms. Weiman said a student can share a room with the same gender.

All families will be provided with a detailed profile of the student they host, Ms. Weiman said.

"IEF serves countries all around the world. As a host, your son or daughter would have the opportunity to become a foreign exchange student in France or other countries the organization serves," she said.

IEF is a nonprofit organization, serving about 10,000 students each year. Exchange programs run from one week to a year.

To host a student or for more information about IEF, call Ms. Weiman at 703-0325.

The town didn't prove any evidence, he said, and we showed in his absence a period of "no relationship," he said, adding the departments worked cooperatively with the township in the 1993-95 contract.

"In that last contract, where the 200-day benefit was first offered, we lowered our state salary by roughly $100,000 and added another step," Officer Sutk said.

Officer Sutk also said some employees have passed on the benefit, not opting to take early retirement. The officer also said if the township intended to offer the benefit for only one contract, it should include it under a sunset clause.

Clarification

KENILWORTH — In an article in last week's edition of The Chronicle regarding the recent award of the terminal leave benefit in the police and fire departments' new contract, comments from Cranford PBA President Officer James Sutk were inadvertently omitted.

Officer Sutk said the state-appointed arbitrator, who awarded the departments the right to keep the benefit, agreed with what they stressed all along, that the retirement option saves the town money in the long term.

"The town didn't prove any evidence, he said, and we showed in his absence a period of "no relationship," he said.

Officer Sutk also said some employees have passed on the benefit, not opting to take early retirement. The officer also said if the township intended to offer the benefit for only one contract, it should include it under a sunset clause.

He began his career as an English teacher at Seton Hall Prep in 1969. He coached freshman baseball in 1970, freshman and later junior varsity before becoming Prep's varsity basketball coach in 1971.

His best team ever was the 1971 squad that won the Essex County and Parochial A crowns, winning 31 games in a row before losing to St. Anthony's of Jersey City in the Tournament of Champions.

Some of his great players through the years have been Frantz Volcy, Class of '86, who later played for Seton Hall University when the Pirates finished second in the 1988 NCAA tournament; Jim Bowman, Class of '91, who later played at Providence and the University of Pennsylvania, where he was named Ivy League Player of the Year last season; Brevin Knight, Class of '93, an All-American selection at Stanford; and Mike Malone, a 1988 grad, who played for Loyola University.

Farrell's wife, Suzanne, is a 1971 graduate of Trinity College and currently an executive with HGI International, a real estate organization.

She played girls basketball at Benedictine Academy in Elizabeth. Daughter Erin, 20, is a '94 graduate of Cranford High, where she played both basketball and softball. She now attends the University of Maryland.

Younger daughter Kelly is a senior at Cranford High, where she's played basketball and field hockey.

Going after a state crown, Fekete knows his head has to be in it for him to win it

By MARK WEGRYN

THE CHRONICLE

It might all come down to the mental aspect of wrestling.

When a high school grappler makes it to Atlantic City in mid-May, it's not that he's among a select few in New Jersey. Everybody is strong, everybody has talent and everybody has a chance to win. At this level, anybody can beat anybody.

What might possibly set the wrestlers apart is mental preparation and focus. Who wants to win the state title more?

"I think I want the state title bad enough — this is what I've been shooting for all year," said Fekete. "My goal when I get on the mat is to make the other guy work very hard and I think I was able to do that in the regions."

Fekete is working on his mental preparation for Atlantic City.

"I ask myself, 'What will make me able to beat the guy I'm wrestling?'" said Fekete. "I convince myself that I'll work harder than the guy. I'm wrestling and I'll do what it takes to win."

Although other grapplers in Atlantic City may be rated higher than Fekete, he believes he'll overcome all obstacles and return a champion.

"I have a strong feeling I can beat the kids that are rated even more highly than I am," he said. "I'm ready to go and excited about the chance that I could do very well."

Billy Crecca, Cranford's 103-pounder, also has a chance of going to Atlantic City after placing third in Region 3.

Fekete, a heavy favorite in the Region 3 tourney, feels he's rounding up top form at the right time

"I was very confident going into the regionals that I'd do well," said Fekete, who improved to 30-1. "I'd pinned Infantini in a meet I took the 189-pound title."

Fekete believes the mental aspect of wrestling is extremely important. He believes most of the mental work is done in the days leading up to the match.

"I've been working toward this by working out eight days for the past three months. I wrestled all summer and this is the reason why."
