Clowning around

Michael Teifer of Edison, top right, likes to clown around, but in a serious kind of way. The 23-year-old Teifer, a 1979 graduate of Michigan State University — in, of all things, poultry science — has decided to attend the famous Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Clown College in Venice Fla., beginning next month, to seriously pursue the subject of making people laugh. In the meantime he's been busy performing in the area as "Scratches" the clown, right. At one of those performances, at the Clara Barton Branch of the Edison Public Library, the children in the audience, above, seemed to love the show.

Volunteers sought for tax service

EDISON — Volunteers are being sought to assist low-income and elderly taxpayers who have difficulty completing basic federal income tax forms.

The Volunteer Income Tax Assistance program (VIAT), sponsored by the Internal Revenue Service, helps those who cannot afford private assistance and who are unable to use taxpayer service offices staffed by IRS employees. As participants in VITA, volunteers help low-income individuals and older Americans with relatively simple tax returns complete federal income tax forms. They also advise taxpayers on basic tax matters such as the
