—Flattery is like champagne—it soon gets into the head.

—A man may be worse than he ought to be, but he cannot be any better.

—Stilted opera singers hold the mistaken idea that one must B flat to B natural.

—Brown says that the best way to retain a young lady's affections is not to return them.

—When a red-headed lady is cremated, nothing remains but a handful of ashes of roses.

—When pastors preach against the vanity of false things, the ladies know switch is which.

—If time is money most people have a good deal more money than they know what to do with.

—Do not run in debt to the shoe-maker; it is unpleasant to be unable to say your sole is your own.

—Why is a hungry man waiting for his breakfast willing to be made a martyr? Because he longs to go to the steak.

—The reason why the end of some men's noses are so flat is that they are always sticking them into other men's business.

—A little girl, hearing it remarked that all people had once been children, artlessly inquired, "Who took care of the babies?"

—There is a tradesman in New York who is so much opposed to pugilism that he refuses to advertise his goods, fearing he might hit the public taste.

—"How do you define 'black as your hat?'" said a schoolmaster to one of his pupils. "Darkness that may be felt," replied the youthful wit.

—She said, "I am going to the postoffice, John; shall I inquire for you?" "Well, yes, if you have a mind to; but I don't think you'll find me there."

—It makes a young man feel very much as if some things in the world were all vain to sing, "Come to my bosom, come, love," under a window, and then happen to see a sign "To Let" on the door.

—"How well he plays for one so young," said Mrs. Partington, as the organ boy and his monkey performed near the door; "and how much his dear little brother in the calico dress looks like him, to be sure."

—A young woman went into the office of a daily newspaper in New York to advertise for a kitchen-maid. She said, with a sigh and a wring of her daintily-gloved hands: "Oh, I do hope we'll get one soon; for it does almost break my heart to see mother wash dishes—with her rheumatism, too!"

—The baby rolls upon the floor;
Kicks up his tiny feet,
And pokes his toes into his mouth—
Thus making both ends meet.

The dog attached to a tin pail,
Goes howling down the street;
And, as he madly bites his tail,
He maketh both ends meet.

The butcher slays the pensive pig,
Cuts off his ears and feet,
And grinds them in a sausage big—
Thus making both ends meet.

CANDIDATES VS. PEOPLE.

We meet men every day brainless yet presumptuous enough to believe that they could actually fool the eternal gate-keeper Peter and pass into Heaven on the strength of some great and good men, upon whom the derelicts might have some slight claims, who were going the same way. We also meet, daily, creatures of a lesser grade whose selfish ambition and conceit applies only to earthly matters, and who feel they can easily deceive a generous and deluded public, and crowd into honored and exalted positions simply because, through the fickleness of State or county conventions, they become the associates of great and good men who are wanted by the people, and upon whom said creatures have no claims outside of party ties. Swaying the intention of the community by a simple nomination is at an end. This fact was painfully illustrated in this county in 1878, when it was proven, beyond doubt, that a candidate must be subservient and give way to the views of the populace, not the populace to the candidate. The great mass of voters have the say, and not the few who are seeking their suffrages. The terrible sacrifices made on that occasion must not be overlooked, nor must the responsibility be misplaced. The fault lay not with the people, but with the men endeavoring to thrust themselves where they knew they were not wanted, and where they would be neither useful nor ornamental. Many conceited and politic individuals have allowed an unnatural greed for fame and fortune to run away with whatever brains they possessed, and are ultimately ruined by an ambition which they had not the talent or calibre to maintain. We witness such cases every day—men who stop at nothing to reach certain goals, and whose greatest fortune is in failure, as success would only more plainly expose their unfitness to hold with credit the very positions they so earnestly seek. We have men in our midst to-day who belong to the very category we have just described, and if their blind ambition leads to ruin, let it, rather than the whole party be crippled for two years hence, and compelled to submit to Republican misrule in a Democratic stronghold of the magnitude and character of Hudson County. Nor should it be even necessary to select weak-kneed or vacillating representatives from our own ranks in a district abounding, as Jersey does, with as true and staunch Democrats as ever existed—men who would secure and hold the veneration of their constituents and defy the criticism or censure of our opponents.

We have, for instance, in this city W. W. Shippen, Esq., who would accept the Gubernatorial nomination, and be elected beyond any doubt. He would also prove a worthy and fitting associate of Hancock and English, and would administer proper government; a thorough, scrupulous, successful, upright and accomplished business man; a name which no conscientious voter would be obliged to scratch, and one who would not steal into power or be elected on any other man's merits. He is opposed, however, by the "only" Hoffman and his prevaricating sheet, which stated in its last issue that "he was no politician," "he lives in New York," "he would hardly bother his head," etc. The first charge we promptly and gladly admit—Mr. Shippen is not a politician according to "Windy's" base ideas of politics. The second statement is a barefaced untruth, and a fair sample of this fellow's presumption. The idea of an upstart like Hoffman, who dare not call his soul his own, denouncing a man a non-resident who represents interests in this city and county the annual tax upon which would purchase the complete worldly possessions of Hoffman and his candidates, and leave a good margin. Apart from that, Mr. Shippen, like many other gentlemen, spends his summer abroad, or where he chooses. It is a pity indeed that he does not worry about "Windy's" opinion and obtain from him permission to spend a few months in the country occasionally. The third reason advanced by the "official scribe" against Mr. Shippen's nomination, which runs "He would not bother himself," etc., appears to our mind the strongest ground imaginable why he should be so honored. It has been already admitted, however, that Mr. Shippen is no politician, nor probably does he care to become one. If he sought or accepted the Governorship of New Jersey it would be for the honor of the position as well as for the welfare and interests of the people, and not for any emoluments that accompany the office. He consequently does not need to worry, and can get along as well, and probably better, without the position than the politician can get along without him, unless some selection is made other than Hoffman's favorite. Another very strong point in favor of Mr. Shippen is that he is opposed by the prophetic "Al," one of the surest omens of success on record, and in every instance of corresponding misfortune to the candidate of the brainless scribe whose friendship and support have always proved fatal. There are at least two others who are even more objectionable, yet whom, we understand, are again on the verge of demanding favors from the voters which they will never receive. While their course may cause a little annoyance and more definite action, the people will, as in the past, assert their power at the polls and forever bury such pretenders in oblivion. We will give a personnel of this brace previous to the State and county nominations.

"Don't Do As I Do." Etc.

Messrs. Bayer & Kaufmann, of the Democrat (?), were arrested on Wednesday morning and held in $1,000 bail for malicious libel, the charge being preferred by Chairman Buckley, of the Common Council. It is a pity that it cannot be made Hoffman instead of Kaufmann, as the latter has little or nothing to do with the "filthy" department of the sheet. If some person who is well posted should decide to give a synopsis of the rowdyism of "Windy" and his gang, during their several trips to Trenton, it would make Councilman Buckley appear in the light of a saint. With the "official" scribe and his "boss" it is "Don't do as I do, but do as I tell you," or we'll make you, if there is any convincing influence in our blackguardisms." A nice pair to preach morality.

Attempted Suicide.

Sarah Wilson, a young married woman of No. 29 Garden street, is the latest advocate of suicide. It appears that Mrs. Wilson was married three years ago, and her husband, though no fault of his, was out of employment the greater part of the time. The couple had one baby only six weeks old, and Mrs. Wilson has lately imagined that she was suspected of plotting to rid herself of the child. This preyed on her mind to such an extent as to cause temporary aberration. Her husband, on returning home Tuesday evening, discovered, to his horror, that she had attempted to cut her throat, producing a painful wound. Dr. Pindar was promptly on the scene, doing all in his power for the relief of the unfortunate woman.

LACONICS.

—The Equitable Social Club pic-nic at Pohlmann's Park on next Monday week.

—The members of the Amity Social Club have invited a number of friends to accompany them to Oscawana Island next Tuesday.

—Chief Donovan arrived home from the Catskill Mountains yesterday, looking healthier and stronger than ever. We tender him a cead mille failthe.

—The Rev. D. R. Lowrie will preach in the First M. E. Church to-morrow morning. Subject: "Beautiful Gardens." In the evening, "The Model Man."

—The Rev. D. B. F. Randolph, pastor of M. E. Free Tabernacle, will preach to-morrow morning on: "The Law of Love," and in the evening on: "The Race for Glory."

—The members of the New York Ferry Engineers' Association and their friends will spend next Wednesday at Oriental Grove. The Steamer General Sedgwick and barge Caledonia will leave Fifth street dock at 8:30 A. M.

—Alexander Jackson, of Bloomfield street, visited Coney Island last Sunday. The next time he seeks the beach he will leave his new "ticker" at home and bring the chain only—last Sunday he left the time-piece on the Island and brought home the chain. Some unknown friend probably needed such an article.

—Officer Flattery is entitled to more than mere mention for his heroic efforts in saving Margaret Cuddy from drowning last Monday at the Eagle Dock. The brave officer risked a valuable and useful existence to rescue a fellow-creature's, and there should be some tangible recognition of such noble acts on the part of the authorities.

—An enterprising "culler gemmen," at Fort Lee, has transformed himself into a target—three shots for a nickel, baseballs being the ammunition provided. He has either a very hard head or else figures on the scarcity of professional ball throwers about his premises. "Big Beau" should give him a call and burst up such brutal pastime.

—The steamer Marion, of this city, commanded by her owner, a practical navigator and engineer, has been long recognized as foremost in the ranks of staunch and carefully conducted excursion steamers. Capt. Carnie having established this reputation for his vessel, she is now carrying more people to Rockaway Beach than any other steamer of her size in the business.

—Major Timken has been so taken up with Councilmanic troubles and civic affairs of late, that he forgot all about $2 which he owed Gus Mechler for posting his election notices. Mr. Mechler has been obliged to sue for the amount. It would be a hard task for any person to forge, they owed the gallant (?) Major $2. He would not afford time or opportunity for any such glaring negligence.

—Great preparations have been made for the first annual promenade and pic-nic of the Bachelors' Club at the United Schutzen Park next Tuesday evening. It is only necessary to remind our readers that the happy John Geayer and the genial Billie Parslow are among the prominent members and projectors of the affair as a guarantee that guests from this district will be well cared for.

—The Hoboken Schutzen Corps passed Monday and Tuesday at the Schutzen Park, it being their annual fest. Mr. H. Luttosch was crowned King, he having made the highest score, and Miss Miller, of this city, who performed the ceremony, delivered a neat speech. Delegations were present from several shooting and singing societies, and a pleasant time was the result in spite of the inclemency of the weather.

—The numerous friends of Peter Collins, of the Fourth Ward, have decided to get up a pic-nic for his benefit, which will take place at Otto Cottage Garden next Thursday evening. Peter has had more than his share of misfortune lately. Himself and wife had been inmates of St. Mary's Hospital for several weeks, and the latter was buried only a few days ago. Peter is unable to do any manual labor and is a complete wreck, physically. No matter what may have caused this state of affairs, this is not the time to conjecture. "Peté" has been a good friend to many in the past, and that is the only thing that should be remembered in his present misfortunes.

—It appears now, from remarks made by late employees of the ill-fated Hudson River Tunnel, that leaks were frequent, on one occasion as many as four occurring in one day. Two men were specially employed to constantly watch and attend to the very responsible duty of stopping the same. It would seem, from the very start, that the construction of the tunnel has been a most dangerous undertaking, requiring the greatest care and watchfulness. What had occurred so frequently before and been stopped without accident might suggest that on the present unfortunate occasion the same care and promptness was not practiced.

—On the moonlight excursion of Hoboken Engine Co. No. 1, last week, a new club was organized and given the rather peculiar sobriquet of "The Ancient Order of Jolly Corks." The genial Sam Evans was unanimously elected President; Dennis Sullivan, Vice President, and John W. Barnitt, a New York banker, was made Secretary. There was apparently no necessity for a financial secretary or treasurer, a number of corks constituting the only thing in the way of assets. Any member discovered without the ordinary bottle stopper in his possession is fined, the penalty being a "schooner," which goes to the member making the discovery. So far the organization has been productive of much merriment.

COUNCILMANIC NOTES.

A very large number of citizens occupied the Council Chamber last Tuesday evening, in anticipation of another "circus," as the majority term it. It was understood that Chairman Buckley would reply to the article in the previous issue of the Democrat (?), and that Councilman Timken would endeavor to explain his position in the Up-town Street matter. It was also understood that Bayer and the reporters would take their places inside the railings, and take chances of being "bounced" for the second time. Chairman Buckley was absent, so was "Barney," and the gallant (?) Major T. was by no means the attraction that was expected.

Councilman Mehan took the chair, and was scarcely in position when Councilman Timken arose and requested the privilege of refuting certain charges made against his reputation by the Chairman. Councilman Quirk objected, owing to the absence of Mr. Buckley. Mr. Timken promised to say nothing derogatory towards the absentee, and was allowed to proceed. He then proceeded, in a rambling, incoherent manner, to explain that he was a gentleman and a responsible citizen, and was only a member of the Committee on Streets and Assessmen's during the famous Up-town Streets frauds. He endeavored to place the blame on the shoulders of A. L. Du Puget, City Surveyor at the time, and wound up with the extraordinary and modest assertion, "I am like Jesus Christ—I forgive them because they know not what they do." Mr. Timken after announcing himself again and again an honest and respectable man, sat down.

A communication was next read from ex-City Surveyor Du Puget, which denounced Councilman Timken as a coward, liar and slanderer, and also challenging investigation of his action in the Up-town matter. He also insinuated that if a committee was appointed for that purpose he would guarantee some startling developments. Mr. Timken arose and was about beginning another harangue, when Councilman Curtin figuratively suggested a 24-foot ring, and moved to proceed with the regular business of the Council, which was carried.

James Geayer, ex Assistant Chief of the Fire Department, declined, in a communication, to return his badge of office to the city. Referred.

The complaint of Bowes Brothers, as to a second assessment on the Grand street sewer, was also referred.

S. B. Dod, of the H. L. and I. Co., notified the Council that, for sanitary reasons, he would delay draining the meadows until the fall.

The proposition of the Hoboken Land and Improvement Company to pay $40,000 taxes in advance, at 6 per cent. interest, was accepted on favorable report of the Committee.

The Committee on Public Grounds and Buildings granted Samuel Overton an opportunity to explain his claims for paving, on Monday evening next, which had been vetoed by His Honor Mayor O'Neill.

Architect Himpler submitted his plans and specification for the new City Hall, and the same were referred.

A supplement to an ordinance defining the duties of the Street Commissioner passed its second reading, after which the Board adjourned.

A Delightful Trip.

The members of Protection Lodge, No. 634, Knights of Honor, together with friends to the number of about four hundred, heartily enjoyed their second annual moonlight excursion last Wednesday evening to Coney Island and return—it having been postponed from the night before in consequence of the unfavorable weather. The commodious steamer General Sedgwick left Fifth street dock about 9 o'clock P. M. with as merry and select a party on board as that splendid vessel ever carried. The trip to the Island was passed in various ways, the lower cabin and Stone's full orchestra being monopolized by the votaries of terpsichore, while many of a more romantic turn of mind sought the upper portions of the boat and feasted their eyes on the beautiful moon to the strains of a steam caliope, which proved entertaining as well as novel music to many. The scene which Brighton and Manhattan presented from the ocean was gorgeous. A landing was made at the West End Pier and two hours of unlimited pleasure indulged in, after which the party started home, reaching this city about 3 A. M., the guests pleased with the sail and grateful to their entertainers, and the Knights proud of their success. Delegations of the order were present from New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City, Newark and Paterson, including Wm. C. Morris, Grand Dictator of the State of New Jersey, and family, of this city; District Deputy Grand Dictator Klee and family and Grand Reporter Mayhew and family of Newark. The committee of arrangements, consisting of Messrs. C. Pope, F. Clifford, W. Schaefer, D. Ranges and A. L. Moyer, were untiring in their exertions to please, and did good service under the leadership of the stalwart William C. Morris, who assumed full management and who thoroughly understands his business and sees that others attend to theirs.

An Honorable Record

The following highly complimentary notice we clip from the last number of the Hahnemann Journal, a medical magazine published at Philadelphia, and deem it worthy of reproduction owing to the fact that the subject of the sketch is a son of our esteemed fellow-citizen, the Rev. W. S. Goodno, pastor of the First Baptist Church, of this city:

"A NEW LECTURESHIP IN THE PHILADELPHIA COLLEGE.—A new lectureship on Histology and Morbid Anatomy has been created in the above-named institution, and Dr. Wm. C. Goodno, formerly Demonstrator of Surgery, has been elected to fill the position. Heretofore Normal Histology has been taught by the Professor of Physiology and Morbid Anatomy by the Professor of Clinical Medicine. The new arrangement will give the last mentioned Professor additional time for teaching physical diagnosis, and as the Professor of Physiology will now take the department of Sanitary Science, it will, to that extent, relieve the chair of Gynecology and allow an additional hour each week for practical instruction in this most important branch. Dr. Goodno is one of the best practical microscopists in Philadelphia, thoroughly conversant with the subject he is called upon to teach, and withal is unusually pleasing and lucid as a lecturer. Every feature of the new arrangement promises new advantages to the student.

A New Campaign Club.

Notwithstanding the severe rain Thursday night a large number of prominent Democrats met at Odd Fellows' Hall and formed an association to be known as the Central Hancock and English Campaign Club of Hoboken by electing the following officers: President—His Honor Mayor John A. O'Neill; Vice Presidents—First Ward, Sam'l Webb, Wm. N. Parslow; Second Ward, Col. E. P. C. Lewis, Ramon M. Cook; Third Ward, Robert McCague, Jr., Daniel Donnegan; Fourth Ward, Lawrence C. Buckley, Fred. Kaufmann; Secretaries—First Ward, John R. McCullough; Second Ward, Wm. Seeligberg; Third Ward, Robert H. Alberta; Fourth Ward, James Sheridan; Treasurer—Wm. Mehan; Sergeant-at-Arms—Geo. Zimmermacher. In the absence of the regular speakers, Counselors Edward Russ, Jr., and William Stuhr, Jr., addressed the assemblage. The meeting was then adjourned until Monday, 26th inst. Odd Fellows' Hall has been permanently engaged for the campaign as the Democratic headquarters.

A Reporter's Discovery—How Our Minister Fooled Bismarck.

Bismarck's immortal Dalmation dog has just attacked still another diplomat calling upon his master, and the stupid papers, as usual, are full of sage advice to the great German statesman on the subject. The London papers gravely advise that the dog be carefully chained to the Premier's table hereafter, while those of the nationality of the bitten emissary shriek for its immediate poisoning. How the invincible old Teuton must smile at these suggestions. It seems incredible that any one should fail to recognize in Bismarck's truly remarkable dog act, as the programmes would call it, the particular invention in diplomacy upon which his future reputation will rest. Beaconsfield, for illustration, would be in power at this moment if he had only adopted this comprehensive method of getting rid of tedious and undesirable visitors. It is, indeed, a stubborn and courageous envoy who can persist in demanding compromising concessions with an eighty-pound bloodhound culling sandwiches from his leg, as it were.

One of the Post correspondents in Berlin was instructed to interview Prince Bismarck in reference to this dog question, and with true Yankee ingenuity made his preparations accordingly. When admitted to the Minister's private office, the latter was astonished at beholding our representative appear bearing a light step-ladder, which he instantly mounted, and, calmly getting out his tablets, winked knowingly at the statesman from the top step. Seeing himself thoroughly checkmated by this move, the Chancellor proceeded to give the details of his scheme. The dog was accustomed, when not diplomatically engaged, to lie upon a rug in front of the mantelpiece. This rug concealed the point of a needle, worked by a lever arranged beneath the flooring, and attached to a button under the prince's desk. The latter had only to touch this with his toe at the right moment, when the hound became instantly aroused and proceeded at once to haul the visitor around by the slack of his diplomatic trowsers.

After getting all he could out of the German official, including several schooners of beer, the correspondent retired, but, like a loyal American, proceeded at once to the United States Embassy with his information.

The next morning the American Minister waited upon Bismarck, accompanied by an armful of long-urged claims against the Empire. Instead of accepting the proffered seat he remained standing, while in a dignified manner he pressed the demands referred to. The Chancellor listened grimly until our Minister became a little imperative, and then his foot began to drift toward the button.

"I beg your Excellency will not give yourself any unnecessary trouble," said our national representative, with a meaning look. "I have a couple of sections of stove-pipe on underneath my pants.

The Premier gazed at him with generous admiration.

"There is no use trying to get ahead of you Yankees," he said. "I accede to everything you desire, but don't—I entreat you—don't give the business away to the other fellows."

Served Her Right.

Once upon a time, a young lady, who desired to get up with the lark in order to go on an eloping tour, adopted the English plan, and the lover was to be on hand at daybreak to give the signal. The string used for the pedal communication was a stout cord, and one end was dropped out of the third story window into the back yard, and the other end, of course, was attached to the damsel's great toe. And the legend runs that a healthy goat of the William persuation arose early next morning to look for the early worm, as it were, and wandered into the yard. After eating up all of the tomato cans, barrel staves, and broken crockery ware, he found the string and took that as a dessert. As soon as the cord was drawn tight, the goat stood up on his hind legs and gave the string an impulsive jerk. The girl awoke. The goat gave another sudden pull, and the maiden jumped out of bed with a smothered cry of pain. Then she stooped down to detach the cord just as the ridiculous beast gave another violent jerk, and she lost her equilibrium—and her toe too, almost, the cord cutting into the tender flesh. She sprang to the window, and called out in a hoarse whisper,—

"Stop pulling, Charles—I'll be down in a minute."

Then she made another effort to untie the cord, but the persistent goat gave his head several angry bobs, and each time the girl gave a cry of pain. Again she called out in the darkness,—

"Charles, if you don't stop jerking that way, I'll not come down at all."

She was answered by another savage pull, and the cry of anguish that broke from her lips brought her mother into her room, with a look of affright and a lighted lamp. The young lady fainted, and the elopement was nipped in the bud, and the disappointed maiden's big toe was sore for two weeks. The goat escaped.
