THE OFFICIAL EDITOR IN A DILEMMA.

When ex-Mayor Besson last spring, as the regular Republican candidate, opposed the Hon. John A. O'Neill for Mayor, it will be remembered the staunch support accorded him at the time by the so-called official organ, the Hudson County Democrat (?). This calls to mind the treachery of the same sheet in taking the name of the regular Democratic nominee from its columns and substituting that of the independent candidate for Assembly three years ago, even though they had advocated the former in previous issues of the paper. There must be some cause for this course, and the fact of two of the gentlemen who were interested in the aforementioned cases being now rivals, makes the present an opportune time to expose the real cause for such peculiar conduct. Ex-Mayor Besson, during his administration, was largely instrumental in swelling the claims of Bayer & Kaufmann against the city, and also prompt in approving of the same. For this reason, or in other words, for the purpose of securing a continuance of this patronage, so disastrous to the tax-payer, the Democrat (?) devoted columns to vilifying the Democratic candidate, and went so far as to publish an extra edition, with the hope of defeating him (the present Mayor) who was recognized as a life-long citizen and staunch partizan. Again, in 1877, the name of the Hon. Jas. Curran appeared with the regular Democratic nominations at the head of their paper for one issue only. The name of Col. Lewis being put forward as an independent, was immediately substituted and his election advocated. The principal supporters of Mr. Lewis at this time were Democrats who felt that the wishes of the majority had not been carried out, and presented sound logic for repudiating the action of the Convention. The official sheet had no objection whatever to Mr. Curran until his opponent appeared on the scene, who was more lavish in his expenditures for printing, and extended his patronage to Messrs. Bayer and Kaufmann, who immediately changed their views. Now that Mr. Curran is once more before the public, and his rival happens to be the particular benefactor of the Democrat (?), ex-Mayor Besson, can they consistently laud Mr. Curran, whom they basely sold out three years ago, or can they oppose the ex-Mayor, whom they so strenuously supported last spring? Mr. Besson was a Republican, as now. He has not changed, but the "official scribbler" has frequently; and in the present, as in past instances, the candidate requiring the greatest quantity of posters, gutter-snipes, etc., can rely on the temporary support of the Democrat (?), irrespective of party principles and honor.

THE TEACHERS' LIBRARY.

A few weeks before vacation a project was set on foot to establish a teachers' library, Principals Campbell and Rue being the prime movers. In the short time intervening, the proposed library has become an institution of very grand proportions. If not in the number of volumes, we are satisfied, in the quality of the works, that the collection will compare favorably with any in the State. The selections have been made with the greatest care, and from a catalogue before us, showing already 366 numbers, it would be impossible to select a single volume that would not prove instructive to any mind, as well as interesting in the same degree. The terms of membership are decidedly reasonable, and, as non-attachés of the School Department are also admissible as subscribers, many citizens have already added their names to the roll.

We regret that it requires more space than we can afford, to give even a brief synopsis of the authors represented, but suffice it to say that from the most eminent writers known to this and past centuries the best productions are culled.

We are not aware to what extent the female teachers have indulged or were inclined to indulge in the trashy and sensational "stuff" of the day; we believe, from what we do know, that this vice is not very prevalent, and, if it exists at all, there will be no excuse for its continuance. The mission of teachers particularly being to train the youthful mind, the best and only way to ensure success is to develop their own mental qualities first. If any, however, should hesitate about grasping at the opportunities offered in the new library they must be considered either as decidedly too intellectual to teach in an ordinary public school or otherwise so lacking brains as to not even realize how little they do know.

NO GREAT LOSS.

The Republicans have nothing particularly to rejoice over in their success in Indiana, nor have Democrats any good cause for regrets. It was simply a State issue, with an unpopular man at the head of the ticket, and the blame lies at the door of the Indiana State delegates who nominated Landers, and nowhere else.

When the success of the gallant and chivalrous Hancock is the issue, a very different vote will be the result. Democratic conventions often make the same mistake here, differing only in that the offices are not so important, but the consequences were the same as Indiana—for instance, in 1878. We do not give up old Hoosierdom yet, and if she does go back on old-time principles, we will have to win without her, and will.

—"I have not thought of being despondent," was the reply of Gen. Hancock to one of his visitors on Thursday. The General evidently remembered Gettysburg; and the success that followed the first failure was an omen in point.

—We have heard a good deal of the popularity of Indiana whisky, but just at present Porter seems to have the preference.

The New City Hall.

The new City Hall is already assuming such appearance as augurs well for what the structure promises to be, on completion, the most elegant and substantial in our city. The Mayor and Council, who were mainly instrumental in overcoming many obstacles which appeared even after the bill was passed, are entitled to much credit, and have succeeded in accomplishing that which will not only be of great benefit to the city, but will be a lasting monument to the perseverance and energy of the present local administration.

It would be unjust to deal with this subject without making mention of the principal contractors, Messrs. Sanders and Carroll, who, indeed, seem to be imbued with the same spirit of progress as has characterized our officials. The gentlemen referred to are pushing the work with a vim, and yet the most minute particle is never overlooked or neglected by either of the very practical and enterprising firm, who undoubtedly take individual pride in the work, and intend to prove, by the result of their labors, that they thoroughly understand their business. One or the other of the firm is constantly on the ground, and oftentimes both, Mr. Sanders, however, giving particular attention and being very seldom absent. It would not be necessary to apprise a stranger that the new building was to be a novelty to Hoboken. A visit to the locality would be sufficient, where the number of self-constituted citizen inspectors always present might lead one to believe that not only was the structure to be a novelty, but a great curiosity. Dozens every day pass hours in contemplation of the "hod-carrier act," which so far has been exhibited on terra firma only. When they get to "ladder act" we presume the audiences will largely increase. We refer to this feat simply because we think it is somewhat of a nuisance and because the majority of S. C. I.'s do not, by any means represent the heavy tax payer or reputable citizen.

"How's This?"

It is rumored that several old-time citizens and Democratic voters have been put to much trouble at one of the Third Ward registration offices Tuesday. What is more, the Supervisor is of their own party, and has, without any authority, introduced the "Davenport business." Men who have registered and voted for years have been refused recognition and sent after their papers, etc. Such petty annoyances, if actually existing, should be promptly investigated and the perpetrator brought to a sense of his position and its duties.

LACONICS.

—The German Conference Committee have announced their various clubs solid for Hancock and English. Bully for the G. C. C.

—There was a large Hancock & English demonstration at Weehawken Monday evening. The leading feature in the procession was a club of juveniles.

—The body of the man, apparently a sailor, found in the river near the ferry slip Sunday, was not identified and has been interred by the authorities.

—Hancock will loose one solid 300 pound vote in the person of Captain Herman D. Busch, who is disporting himself on the Pacific Coast, having arrived at San Francisco last week.

—The ferryboat Moonachie, while crossing to Christopher street last Sunday, struck a heavy floating timber with her starboard paddle, and the latter was so damaged as to necessitate docking the boat for repairs.

—Henry Seeligberg, Secretary of the Second Ward Club, aspires to the vacant police commissionership. Henry is a nice young man, but his friends insist that he is too "modern" for so responsible a position.

—Miss Ellen, second daughter of ex-County Clerk John Kennedy, was married at the new Catholic Church Thursday evening to Mr. Fred Hill. A large number of friends of the contracting parties were present.

—Deputy Poundkeeper Broker of West Hoboken, was set upon by a mob of men and women on Tuesday, while impounding a flock of geese, and severely maltreated. He has sworn out warrants against the entire party.

—Henry Lang, a young amateur gymnast hailing from Monroe street, was doing a trapeze act on the end of a coal cart Tuesday, when he fell and dislocated his arm. No more circus for some months to come for Henry.

—The trouble at the new City Hall building between the contractor and the masons has been very much magnified. The differences were only such as frequently occur, work being resumed by all hands in less than an hour after the difficulty.

—The New York Aquarium furnishes more genuine enjoyment for the money than any place of amusement in New York. To their immense collection of piscatorial specimens they have added two woolly baby elephants and a hippopotamus or sea horse. A visit to the Aquarium is at all times interesting.

—The Rev. D. B. F. Randolph will preach to young men to-morrow evening in the M. E. Free Tabernacle a special sermon preparatory to the winter's work of the Young People's Lyceum. Prof. Aylea is giving a very successful course of instruction in vocal music at the Free Tabernacle on Saturday evenings.

—Owing to the great favor with which the praise service, introduced at the First M. E. Church by the Rev. D. R. Lowrie, was received last Sunday, it will be repeated to-morrow evening. In the morning service the pastor will preach on "The Two Forces," and in the evening the subject will be "The Great Cross."

—The operetta of "Golden Hair and the Three Bears" is still in rehearsal and will be presented at Steven's Institute next Thursday and Friday evenings under the able management of Mrs. Leon Kendrick, which is sufficient guarantee that the rendition will be perfect as well as highly entertaining.

—The regular meeting of the Hancock and English Central Democratic Club was well attended last Thursday evening. Mayor O'Neill presided and made a stirring and brilliant address and succeeded in arousing much enthusiasm. This organization will make its power and influence felt in the coming struggle.

—City Clerk Alberts had a sort of a little pyrotechnical display all to himself Tuesday evening, no less than three gas globes exploding in less than an hour. Robert wasn't scared, but still would prefer a little more ceremony on the part of the lamps in the future. The rumor that he fainted and fell into his assistant's arms is unfounded.

—The timely arrival of Officers Kerrigan and Doorley, Thursday evening, prevented what might have been a very disastrous conflagration. Mr. Lacroth and wife were tending to a sick child when the mosquito netting caught fire. The officers noticed the flames and arrived in good time. They were highly complimented for their prompt and brave action.

—A large crowd assembled at the West Hoboken Monastery to witness the ceremony of blessing the twelve new Stations of the Cross, which were made in Europe expressly for the Monastery, and were only put up last week. They were kept veiled until Sunday. Rev. Dr. McGlynn preached an interesting sermon on the Stations of the Cross.

—We understand that Hoboken daily sends a large number of visitors to the American Institute Fair, at present in progress at the corner Sixty-third street and Third avenue, New York. This speaks well for the good taste of our citizens. No resort in the big city furnishes so many novel, entertaining and instructive features as the great Fair.

—Sunday school workers throughout the county are requested to attend the 18th annual convention of the association, to be held at the Reformed Church, corner of Communipaw avenue and Pine street, Lafayette, on Thursday, the 28th inst. There will be a session at 2:30 P. M., a social reunion at 3:45 P. M., and an additional session at 7:45 P. M.

—The entertainment at the First M. E. Church last Wednesday evening, given by the colored jubilee singers, proved in every manner worthy of the high encomiums awarded these artists by the press of many of the larger cities. The church was crowded, and the audience, though very select, frequently and emphatically insisted on encores, and were obliged.

—"Our First Families" continues the attraction at Daly's Theatre, Thirtieth street and Broadway, New York. It is likely, owing to the position it occupies in public favor, to enjoy a long run. This is not surprising, considering the elaborate setting of the piece and the faultless manner in which the various characters are represented. We predict for it a fair share of Jersey patronage.

—The past week at Weber's has been very successful. Miss Lavina and Miss Etta Morris, together with Charles Shay and the Millers, being the attractions. For next week Manager Alworth promises the biggest card which has as yet appeared this side of the water in the person of the miniature Commodore Foot, who is undoubtedly the smallest and among the best general performers in the country.

—The Rev. Mr. Hafferman, late of the German Evangelical Lutheran Church, who, it will be remembered, was requested to resign, owing to his partiality toward buxum servant girls, left for Germany last Saturday. The unfortunate preacher was heavily in debt and had a hard time settling up with his creditors. He has, probably, judging from his sad experience, decided to let strange women alone in the future.

—"Snow Flower" an adaptation from the French by Dion Boucicault, with Kate Claxton as the star, has been filling the Bijou Opera House the past week with a delighted throng. The piece is noted for brilliant scenery, and is mounted in a manner which leaves nothing to be desired. Miss Claxton, in the character of "Pauvrette," added to her already well-established reputation. She was ably assisted by Charles A. Stevenson and a select company.

—We regret to announce the death of the wife of officer John Murphy, which occurred at her residence on Garden street Monday morning. The deceased had been ailing for some time, and everything that medical skill could suggest was employed, but in vain. She was known as an affectionate wife and fond mother, and her death is regretted by a large number of friends, who extend their sympathies to her family. She was buried from St. Mary's Church, Wednesday morning.

—The Bazaar du Voyage, No. 1 Wall St., corner Broadway, New York, is so ably managed by our fellow-townsmen, Mr. John H. Prichard, that it has come to be recognized as the leading emporium in the great city for everything in the way of traveling outfits, either by land or water. The steamer chair furnished by this house at a trifling cost is one of the most comfortably arranged seats so far discovered, and must contribute greatly toward the comfort of ocean travel. The immense selection of trunks, satchels, portmanteaus, belts, umbrellas, etc., always on hand, cannot be equaled in New York either in variety, quality, or prices. Don't forget, No. 1 Wall street.

—The gathering of the Democratic clans in this city next Thursday evening promises to be a very imposing affair. Nearly all the prominent uniformed organizations of this county have signified their intentions to participate. The Dreadnaught and Logan uniformed clubs of the Fourth Ward will also fall in line. It is reported on good authority that Assistant City Clerk McDermott and M. Daab, two acknowledged equestrians, will be at the head of a corps of mounted stalwarts, and from the uniform already selected will, no doubt, present a grand appearance. Democrats residing on the principal streets are requested to illuminate their houses which will add considerably to the effect.

JERSEY CITY'S GRAND PARADE

No Hired Niggers or Enslaved Counter-Hoppers, but 10,000 Free Democrats in Line—Music, Fire-works, Etc.

Jersey City has reason to feel proud of the grand turn out arranged and brought to a successful issue by her representative Democrats on Thursday evening. Nearly 10,000 uniformed men were in line, who presented the appearance of a disciplined, well-drilled army, and who marched as if decidedly proud of their colors and individually anxious for the success of the grand parade. Plenty of good music, fire works, and illuminations along the route added to the enjoyment of the spectators as much as to the enthusiasm of the participants. The visiting clubs from New York, Brooklyn, Newark, Paterson, Elizabeth, Hoboken and other places made a fine showing, and were lustily cheered. Too much praise cannot be accorded Grand Marshal Fielder, who, on this occasion, certainly established a reputation which will make his services valuable in the future. He was ably aided by J. S. O'Donnell, W. H. Tuttle, Joseph Buckridge, W. F. Signa, James Boucher and Adjutant Startup. Colonels M. Mullone, McNamara, and Cumberston commanded divisions, and were in turn assisted by the following staff officers: J. W. Collins, P. S. Scabill, John Hewett, J. F. Gannon, J. F. Hickett, E. B. Cox, C. F. Staples and William Herbert. The parade was dismissed at the Five Corners owing to the lateness of the hour. The Dreadnaught and Logan clubs from the Fourth Ward, this city, loaded particularly attractive in their new suits.

TAKING MRS JONES' CENSUS.

BY MAX ADELER.

When the census enumerator knocked on Jones' door, it was opened by a fierce looking woman with red hair. When he had explained his errand she said, savagely:

"I shan't tell you a thing, you impudent vagabond!"

"But, the government—"

"It's none of the government's business who lives here."

"But the government, madam, wants the names so that it can send to each person a splendid chromo, which—"

"What kind of chromos?" she asked. "Those with a blue girl putting green sunflowers around a pink sheep's neck, while a yellow cow looks through a mud colored fence?"

"Yes," said the enumerator, "and with a glorious red sunset over behind the barn."

"Well, we have twenty-two of those chromos in the house now. Got 'em as prizes at the tea store, and we don't want any more. So you can quit!"

"Very well, madam; then I shall have to get the facts as well as I can. I will put you down as having eighteen children, nine boys and nine girls, and six of them twins, with red hair. How will that do?" asked the enumerator, making a memorandum with his pencil.

"Put down what you please. Only the twins and the red hair are lies, and if you put them into the census report, Mr. Jones will sue you for libel."

"Ah! Jones is the name, is it? Let me see, I'll put you down as a Presbyterian, and Mr. Jones as a Baptist. How will that do?"

"My folks have been Methodists for centuries. As for the Joneses, you can class them among the sinners; put 'em under the head of Total Depravity, even if they are Episcopalians."

"May I ask what is Mr. Jones' occupation?"

"He is mostly occupied going to pic-nics and to horse races just now, spending the money that ought to buy me clothes."

"Has he no regular business?"

"No; 'tis irregular. He hasn't made a whole boot for a month."

"Shoemaker," said the enumerator to himself. "I am getting along. And now, madam, how old are you?"

"Who told you to ask?"

"President Hayes gave special orders. Said on no account was I to quit until I got your exact age."

"Well, he'll find it out, drat his impudence, when I choose to tell him, and that's not yet."

"Suppose I say sixty seven," suggested the enumerator, thoughtfully.

"You call me sixty-seven if you dare! I'm not an hour over forty-two, and I can prove it out of the family Bible. But it's nobody's business but mine how old I am. Jones is fifty-two, but nobody would believe it who knew him. A child has more sense."

"The next question is, 'What color are the various members of your family—white, black, mulatto, Chinese, or Indian?'"

"That," said Mrs. Jones, "is just clear insolence. We are all just as white as you are."

"No Chinese!"

"Certainly not."

"No Indians!"

"You daren't ask such a question if I had the kitchen poker with me."

"No colored people about me?"

"Jimmy!" shouted Mrs. Jones; "bring me a kettle of hot water!"

"We will pass that, then," said the enumerator. "Now let me know how many of the family are blind, deaf, dumb, idiotic, insane, crippled, bed-ridden, paralyzed, feeble minded, one legged dyspeptic, suffering from torpid livers, or hydro-cephalus, or otherwise disabled?"

"Is that on the paper there?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Well, it's outrageous! But there is nothing the matter with any of us, excepting that Jones is a little deaf in the right ear, and Tommy squints, and I always have lumbago in the fall, when Jones' chills come on. And Lucy has warts. Does the paper ask about warts?"

"I think not. The government seems to be indifferent about the number of warts in the country."

"I wonder it don't want to know about 'em. I wonder it don't want to know how often I give Johnny paregoric and sugar for the stomach-ache. That'd be no worse than some of the things it does ask. Whas business is it of President Hayes whether Mr. Jones has one leg or eleven? The number of Mr. Jones' legs has nothing to do with the prosperity of the country, has it? Well, then, it is scandalous to send you here to ask about 'em."

"Let me see," said the enumerator, running over his paper with the point of his lead pencil; "how many times have you been married? And mention, if you please, why it was that your husband, or husbands, expressed a preference for a homely woman with warm hair?"

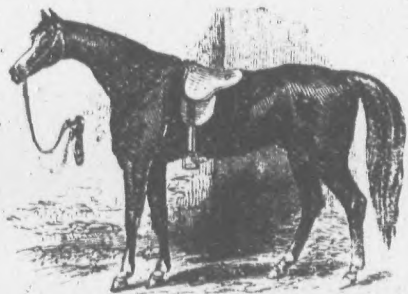

The enumerator was a brave man, but he was small. Mrs. Jones, on the contrary, was large and muscular. When she let go of his collar, and he had collected his senses, he found himself lying in the geranium bed, covered with mud, and with his memorandum book on the other side of the fence.

Mrs. Jones had retreated to the house and double locked the door, while she went to the stable-yard to unchain the dog.

The enumerator picked himself up and emerged from the front gate just in time to miss the dog. Then he went over to Smiley's, across the way, and after obtaining a description of the Smiley family, Mrs. Smiley gave him a full account of Mrs. Jones' household, with a variety of picturesque but not very flattering information respecting Mrs. Jones' personal peculiarities.

When the enumerator hands in his description of the Joneses he is going to make it mighty interesting for the general reader.
