THE EFFECTS OF CULTURE.

How an East Lockport Young Lady Astonished her Parents.

A few months ago the daughter of an East Lockport man who has grown comfortably well off in a small grocery line, was sent away to a "female college," and recently she arrived home for the holiday vacation. The old man was in attendance at the depot when the train arrived, with the old horse in the delivery wagon to convey his daughter and her trunk to the house. When the train stopped, a bewitching array of dry goods and a wide-brimmed hat, dashed from the car and flung itself into the elderly party's arms.

"Why, you superlative pa!" she exclaimed, "I'm ever so utterly glad to see you."

The old man was somewhat unnerved by the greeting, but he recognized the sealskin cloak in his grip as the identical piece of property he had paid for with his bay mare and he sort of squat it up in his arms and planted a kiss where it would do the most good with a report that sounded above the noises at the depot. In a brief space of time the trunk and the attendant baggage were loaded into the wagon, which was soon bumping over the huddles toward home.

"Pa, dear," said the young Miss, surveying the team with a critical eye, "do you consider this quite excessively beyond?"

"Hey?" returned the old man, with a puzzled air; "quite excessively beyond what?"

"Oh, no, pa; you don't understand me," the daughter explained. "I mean this wagon and horse. Do you think they are soulful—do you think they could be studied apart in the light of a symphony, or even a simple poem, and appear as intensely utter to one on returning home as one could expect?"

The old man twisted uneasily in his seat and muttered something about he believed it used to be used as an express before he bought it to deliver pork in, but the conversation appeared to be traveling in such a lonesome direction that he pitched the horse a resounding crack on the rotunda, and the severe jolting over the frozen ground prevented further remarks.

"Oh, there is that lovely and consummate man!" screamed the returned collegiate, as they drew up at the door, and presently she was lost in the embrace of a motherly woman in spectacles.

"Well, Maria," said the old man at the supper table, as he nipped a piece of butter off the lump with his own knife, "an' how'd you like your school?"

"Well, there, pa, now you're shou—I mean, I consider it far too beyond," replied the daughter. "It is unquestionably ineffable. The girls are so sumptuously stunning—I mean grand—so intense. And then the parties, the balls, the rides—oh, the past weeks have been one sublime harmony."

"I s'pose so—I s'pose so," nervously asserted the old man, as he reached for his third cup, "half full"—"but how about your books—reading, writing, grammar, rule o' three—how about them?"

"Pa, don't!" exclaimed the daughter, reproachfully; "the rule of three grammar—it is French and music and painting and the divine art that have made my school life the best—I mean that have rendered it one unbroken flow of rhythmic bliss—incomparably and exquisitely all but."

The grocery man and his wife looked helplessly at each other across the table. After a lonesome pause the old lady said:

"How do you like the biscuits, Maria?"

"They are too utter for anything," gushed the accomplished young lady; "and this plum preserve is simply a poem in itself."

The old man rose abruptly from the table, and went out of the room, rubbing his head in a dazed and benumbed manner, and this mass convention was dissolved. That night he and his wife sat alone by the stove until a late hour, and at the breakfast table the next morning he rapped smartly on his plate with the handle of his knife and remarked:

"Maria, me and your mother have been talking the thing over, and we've come to the conclusion that this boarding school business is too utterly all but too much nonsense. Me and her consider that we haven't lived sixty odd consummate years for the purpose of raising a curiosity, and there's going to be a stop put to this unquenchable foolishness. Now, after you've finished eating that poem of fried sausage and that symphony of twisted doughnut, you take said dust up stairs in less than two seconds and peel off that fancy gown and put on a calico, and then come down here and help your mother wash dishes. I want it distinctly understood that there ain't going to be no more rhythmic fool-

Garfield's Guarded Tomb.

So long a time has elapsed since the obsequies that many strangers visiting Cleveland are surprised to learn that a detachment of United States Infantry are still detailed to watch the vault where lie the remains of our honored President. Night and day can be heard the measured tramp, tramp of the sentry on duty, and it is intended to continue this watchfulness until the body is deposited in the ground. Through the grated door of the vault can be seen the elegant casket given by the Masonic brethren. Covered with beautiful flowers, kept fresh by loving hands, it is still visited daily by hundreds of people, many of whom eagerly seek the cast-off blossoms as mementoes. Near the vault is the shelter-house, and on the other side of the lake the white tents of the soldiers are pitched. At the base of the hill upon which the monument is to be placed a glass-house is erected, inclosing the funeral car, still trimmed with immortelles and the trappings of woe.

An aged couple, who had been gazing with tear-dimmed eyes upon the casket, approached the guard and asked if they might not be permitted to have a few flowers from off the coffin. He told them that he could not open the vault. They were much disappointed, and said they were from the distant South, had always been rebels, but that the death of Garfield had changed their feelings, and that they had journeyed far for the privilege of standing by his tomb.—Cin. Enquirer.

Bill Herndon is a pauper at Springfield, Ill. He was once worth considerable property. His mind was the most augmentative of any of the old lawyers in the State and his memory extraordinary.

For several years before Lincoln was nominated for the Presidency, Herndon was in some respects the most active member of the firm, preparing the greatest number of cases for trial and making elaborate arguments in their behalf.

It is said he worked hard with Lincoln in preparing the memorable speeches delivered by the man who afterwards became President, during the debates between Lincoln and Douglas in 1858, and in constructing the Cooper Institute address delivered by Lincoln a short time before the war.

Herndon, with all his attainments, was a man who now and then went on a spree, and it was no uncommon thing for him to leave an important lawsuit, and spend several days in drinking and carousing. This habit became worse after Lincoln's death, and, like poor Dick Yates, Herndon went down step by step, till his friends and associates point to him as a common drunkard.

A representative of the Lynn, (Mass.) Item, in a late ramble throughout that city, gathered, among other scraps of interest and information, the following: The first place visited by the reporter was the fruit store of Mr. J. Levett, No. 67 Market street, in response to a rumor that the proprietor had been cured of the rheumatism by the great remedy, Mr. Levett not being in, the reporter had a talk with his son. Mr. Levett stated that his father had been cured of an exceedingly bad attack of rheumatism by his right arm and shoulder, which became perfectly helpless after being affected a few hours. His pain was so great that he could not rest in comfort or attend to business with any degree of satisfaction. After enduring this sort of thing for some time, he purchased a bottle of the Great German Remedy and began to apply it. He did not mince matters at all, but just used the Oil for all it was worth. After pursuing this mode of treatment for three days the pain was banished and his father was in a perfectly healthy condition. He has never since felt any rheumatic pain.

Had it been finished, it would be one of the largest in the World.

No doubt many of the people of Hoboken, in passing Sandy Hook, have noticed the irregular line of granite walls running in a zig-zag manner near the extreme point of the Hook; but to get a correct idea of the magnitude of this great fortification a person should go inside of the walls, which are of solid granite, 8 feet 1 thickness, 26 feet in height, while the foundations are imbedded 15 feet in the sand. The walls are pierced by 108 guns, although there are only 23 mounted, 13 of them being old-fashioned ten-inch smooth bore, while the other five are 100 pound rifled Parrott guns. There are fourteen guns lying in the fort unmounted, which could be mounted at short notice. The walls have a circumference of one mile, inclosing an area of about sixteen acres. Nearly the whole of this inclosed space is covered with huge blocks of granite, cut and uncut. A large blacksmith's shop, containing twenty forges and half-filled with rusty iron work, stands nearly in the centre of this space, while in close proximity is another large building, with the roof fallen in, filled with carts, stone trucks, wheelbarrows and all the apparatus needed to carry on the works, while rotten blank rods, fallen derricks and other scattered debris give it a rather desolate look; but on looking at the massive granite walls, ponderous arches and scattered stones, the spectator can easily imagine that he is gazing at the ruins of some ancient castle.

The corner-stone of this unfinished piece of work was laid with appropriate ceremony in 1856, under the supervision of Captain Benham, U. S. Engineer, and the work was carried on with a small force of men until July, 1861, when five hundred men were put to work, with orders to push the work forward with all possible speed. At the same time the fort was put under the command of Col. Stein, U. S. A., and the Fourteenth New York Heavy Artillery was sent down and encamped inside the walls. Barracks to accommodate a large number of men were built, a handsome parade ground was laid out, and soon the place began to take on a military aspect. The Ordnance Department commenced to arm the fort and put it in a defensible condition. Wooden gun carriages were hastily put together and guns mounted on them. Some of them are in the fort yet, but so decayed that the guns have crushed through them.

Large numbers of soldiers were sent down at different times and encamped, waiting orders to proceed to different parts of the country, and the small Government steamer which paid daily visits to the Hook was crowded with their families coming down to take a last farewell. Among the different regiments were the McChesney Zouaves, the Twenty-eighth Battery, both of New York, and numerous other regiments.

A New York regiment also returned here from North Carolina in broken health and sadly decimated in ranks. After recruiting their health and numbers they once more started for the seat of war. The officers of the different commands during their stay here gave some very handsome balls. A good hand was always to be had, and some of the affairs were very enjoyable. During the cruises of the Rebel privateer Alabama, she captured a New York pilot boat off the coast of Long Island, almost in sight of Sandy Hook. They burned the boat and set the pilots ashore on Long Island. When the news reached Sandy Hook everything was instantly bustle and activity. The cannon were all loaded, sentries were doubled and everything prepared to give the Alabama a warm reception; but she had more profitable business on hand, and the cannon that had been loaded in such haste were destined never to be fired, except as a salute.

At the close of the war the garrison, which consisted of the Fourteenth Heavy Artillery and the Twenty-eighth Battery New York Volunteers, were taken away and disbanded. The fort was then left in charge of the Engineer Department. The barracks were torn down and sold. Work continued on in a desultory manner for a few years longer and at last finally abandoned altogether. It is now in charge of three watchmen and an Ordnance Sergeant. Had it been finished it would have been one of the largest forts in the world. It was the intention to have called it Fort Constantine, but it was never formally invested with its title. Whether it will ever be finished or not is a rather hard question to answer. An appropriation was asked for last winter, but was not granted. Its present condition is certainly not very flattering to the United States.

The net reduction in the cost of the Star Route and steamboat postal service, under Postmaster-General James, from March 1 to December 31, 1881, amounted to $1,899,183. We only hope Howe will make as good a showing after ten months' service.

The Tammany Democrats are "raising Cain" in the New York Legislature. They have votes enough in each branch to hold the balance of power, and they will not permit the organization of either House. It's about time for Kelly's shillalah to be broken over his own head.

Here's a New York State Senator who should be canonized as soon as he "bluffs off." He writes this letter to the Hudson Canal Company: "Please accept my thanks for the compliment in sending me the enclosed pass. I beg to return the same, however, as I do not think that, as a Senator, I ought to accept such favors from those who may be interested in matters of legislation upon which I may be required to vote. I am, sir, very respectfully yours, JOHN G. BOYD."

TUESDAY AT TRENTON.

The 100th session of the New Jersey Legislature will convene at Trenton on the afternoon of Tuesday next. At no time in the history of our State politics have the office seekers been so puzzled at the political complexion as they have this winter. The first official announcement of the result of the election last November gave the Republicans a majority of one, counting Anti-Monopolist Cator as a Republican. Then a recount in Mercer county unseated one of these and put a Democrat in his place. Both parties claimed Cator. He had been a Republican, turned Anti-Monopolist, and was helped to his election by Democrats.

Then the Republican ranks were further reduced by the death of Assemblyman-elect Bremmer, from Essex county. With each new aspect of affairs some fresh speculation as to the organization of the House was indulged in. When Bremmer died one of the most partisan Democrats hoped that Governor Ludlow would take advantage of the situation by not calling a special election to fill the vacancy until it would be too late for the election to have any effect on the organization, or even by delaying the call until the Legislature should have convened. It was argued that such a course would be perfectly fair and that a Republican Governor, in a similar situation, would take this advantage.

Governor Ludlow, however, showed his contempt for such a measure by immediately ordering a special election for the first Tuesday in January. The election was held, and the result, which seems to have surprised the Republicans immensely, was the election of Mayor Fiedler, a Democrat, to fill the vacancy, with a majority of 688 votes.

The House of Assembly now stands - Democrats 31; Republicans 28; Anti-Monopoly, 1. It is now altogether likely that Cator will cast his vote with the Democrats, though they can act independently of him in view of their majority.

In the Senate the Republicans have a majority of five, which gives them a majority on joint ballot. The organization of the House will be in the hands of the Democrats, but of course the Republicans have their candidates for all the offices.

For the Speakership, the Democratic aspirants are John T. Dunn, of Union; James H. Van Cleef, of Middlesex; David A. Bell, of Monmouth; Eckford Moore, of Mercer, and Wm. A. Schomp, of Somerset. The Republican candidates are Henry C. Herr, of Burlington, and David W. Lawrence, of Hudson. For the Clerkship the leading Democratic candidates are Samuel E. Perry, of Hunterdon; John A. Demarest, of Bergen; Thomas F. Fitzgerald, of Mercer, and Arthur Wilson, of Monmouth. The Republican aspirants are Cummins O. Cooper, of Morris, and Edward T. Crane, of Essex. For Sergeant-at-Arms there are about a dozen candidates on the Democratic side. The leading ones are Wm. H. Brown, of Essex; C. J. Donovan and T. J. McDonald, of Hudson, and Andrew Stegman, of Cumberland. There is no opposition to John A. Brown, of Gloucester, on the Republican side. There is a small army of candidates for the other offices.

Of course there are plenty of aspirants for the various offices in the gift of the Governor and the Senate. With the advice and consent of the Senate, he is supposed to dispose of the following patronage: Secretary of State, Clerk of the Supreme Court, State Prison Keeper, Attorney General, three Justices of the Supreme Court, a Lay Judge of the Court of Errors and Appeals, District Attorneys for Essex, Middlesex, Monmouth, Ocean and Somerset counties, Law Judges for Camden, Passaic and Warren counties, Judges of the Courts of Common Pleas in all the counties except Hunterdon, Warren, Sussex and Camden, two Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, three Commissioners of Pilotage and several minor offices.

Kelsey will probably be re-nominated as Secretary of State, and Laverty as State Prison Keeper. For Clerk of the Supreme Court the candidates are J. B. Cleveland, of this county, B. F. Lee (present incumbent), and Judge John Hopper, of Paterson. For Attorney General the candidates are John B. Stockton (present incumbent), ex-Gov. Bedle, ex-Congressman Bird and ex-Senator Leon Abbott. A State Treasurer and three State Prison Inspectors will be chosen by joint ballot.

In 1875, when the Democrats had a majority on joint ballot, the Republicans refused to go into joint meeting, and it is said that the Democrats intend to "pay them in their own coin" this year, thereby postponing the election of these offices until the next Legislature.

THE MARKET SQUARE CASE.

The Market Square suits came up for trial in the Circuit Court on Tuesday last. The plaintiffs were George W. Wright & Co., Diedrich Paust, Henry Wright and Ernest Behm, and by agreement of counsel the cases were tried together, the jurors being sworn four times. The suits have been on the calendar for about eighteen months. The history of the case dates back to 1865, when Colonel John Stevens, who owned the whole island of Hoboken, as it then was, mapped out the plan of the present city. The plot of ground on which the City Hall now stands was dedicated to the future city of Hoboken to be used for market purposes. It is marked on the original map as "Market Square." The property laid idle until March, 1869, when the City Treasurer was directed to lease plots of this square solely for market purposes, the leases to run for three months, notice, the rent charged being almost a nominal sum. In December, 1872, an ordinance was passed by the Council, to the effect that Market Square should be used solely for market purposes, doing away with the leasing system and fixing certain license fees.

In 1880, the City Hall bill passed the Legislature, and early that year the Council decided, by resolution, to build a City Hall on Market Square. The Mayor, who was the Great E. V. S. Besson, then serving his second term, vetoed the resolution, saying that he could not revoke the licenses. In March of that year the heirs of Colonel Stevens gave a quit claim for the property, and the Mayor then revoked the licenses. In July the Council passed a resolution to remove all the buildings from the square. Mayor O'Neill had then come into office and taken a decided stand in favor of the city. He had already vetoed a resolution of the Council which appointed a committee to confer with the occupants of the stands and fix a value to their property, and he promptly endorsed this resolution directing the Street Commissioner to remove the buildings. The very next day Street Commissioner Stock appeared with a large force of men and proceeded to demolish the sheds. It is alleged that he destroyed the fixtures, and that his men carried off an immense amount of stock. The lumber forming the structures was carted away for fire wood by the crowd.

In the trial the witnesses for the city and those for the plaintiffs naturally differed very widely in their estimates of the value of the property destroyed. Nearly all the city officials were examined, and the trial lasted until Thursday noon. Judge Knapp refused to charge the jury on the questions of law involved in the case, and they rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiffs, assessing the damages at $3,105.

The case will now be certified into the Supreme Court for a decision on the points of law, unless the respective counsel should effect a compromise. It is not at all likely, however, that any compromise will be effected, as the plaintiffs are not satisfied with what seems to them small damages. They claim that one of the buildings alone was worth almost the entire amount for which they obtained a verdict.

Some time ago a larger amount was offered by the city to settle the suits, and the Mayor and Council had better "let well enough alone." They are getting out of an ugly scrape very cheaply, and any further litigation that they are not forced into will only increase the bill of costs they will have to pay.

FAIRCHILD'S DAMAGES.

The suit of Douglass Fairchild against the Mayor and Council of the City of Hoboken and Sanders & Carroll, contractors on the new City Hall, for $35,000 damages, came up in the Circuit Court last week. While the new City Hall was being built in March last, the plaintiff fell over a piece of timber thrown across the sidewalk on First street, sustaining injuries which resulted in partial paralysis of the lower limbs. He is now barely able to walk, and has in consequence lost a position worth, he claims, $1,800 a year. The defense claimed that the sidewalk was closed at the time of the accident, as strips had been fastened across it by the contractors at each end of the block. Algernon Sullivan, of New York, and E. S. Mann represented the plaintiff, and John C. Besson and Corporation Attorney Niven the city.

In the progress of the suit counsel for the city showed that by the terms of the building contract Sanders & Carroll had bound themselves to indemnify the city from all losses that might occur from accidents, etc. The city, therefore, claimed a non-suit, which was granted. The plaintiff's case was exceedingly well managed by Mr. Sullivan, and although, when the jury retired Tuesday, it was confidently expected by disinterested people in the court room that a verdict against Sanders & Carroll for only a few hundred dollars would be rendered, the damages awarded were assessed at $7,500. The amount seemed to astonish the audience, and it was remarked on all sides, when the news became known in the city Tuesday night, that it was excessive. Seven thousand five hundred dollars was certainly more than people here who were acquainted with the case expected Fairchild to recover, but if he was injured as badly as he claimed, and in consequence lost a position worth $1,800 per year, he did not get enough. Mr. John C. Besson, counsel for Sanders & Carroll, has filed several objections to the verdict, and the case will probably be appealed. But whether it is or not, the city is well out of the fight.

MISPLACED CHARITY.

What is intended for kindness is often real unkindness. Temporary relief of people who are in need is often, in fact, usually, a permanent injury, for it tempts them to linger in a needy condition instead of struggling out of it. Promiscuous charity on the streets generally damages those whom it is meant to serve. It requires some moral firmness to decline to yield to any of the solicitations of beggars, for to the unthinking it seems hard-hearted and cruel; but he who says "no" is the real philanthropist and the best friend of the poor. Charles Dickens did much to demoralize people on this subject, and his laudation of street-charity, and his scoffing at public institutions of refuge for the needy, were very mischievous in every way. The fact is, of course, that those who suffer most from want do not display their distress in public; and street-beggars are usually professionals whose sensibilities are quite callous. The time will certainly come when street vagrancy will be forbidden and punished as an offence against society, and when there will be abundant provision at the public expense, both temporary and permanent, for all who cannot support themselves. Perhaps there will also be pauperism, but the needs of the wretched will be met out of the revenues of the State instead of the doles of the harassed individual, and the man who is regarded as the most benevolent will not be he whose maudlin sensibilities are touched by the appeal of street beggary, but he who pays his taxes most honestly and promptly. - American Queen.

Vaccination vs. Small-Pox.

Dr. Elder's vaccination corps has been diligently pursuing the work which it was organized to do, and is fighting the small-pox determinedly with the lancet and the bovine virus as the principal weapons. The work of these gentlemen, with that of the Jersey City authorities, is beginning to tell. The progress of the small-pox is being stayed and, according to County Physician Conner, the dreaded disease is on the decrease. Over 10,000 people have been vaccinated in the County since October. In spite of the disadvantages under which the health authorities have to labor, the death rate of small-pox patients has been unusually small. Out of 110 cases sent to the pest-house at Snake Hill only eleven deaths have been reported.

The Jersey City authorities are considering the advisability of establishing a pest-house within the city limits, where cases may be isolated without removing them to Snake Hill, but the plan does not meet with much favor at present. It is considered that such an establishment in the city would be dangerous instead of beneficial to the public health.

In Hoboken there is no increase noted. On Thursday Dr. Elder's corps visited McCullough's, North Bergen, and vaccinated about 200 persons, and on Wednesday next some of them will be in attendance at the school house on Franklin street, Guttenburg, for the purpose of performing the same operation on all applicants free of charge. Dr. Elder intends next week to establish a permanent place in this city, where between two and three P. M., one member of the corps will be in attendance every day, and vaccine all who wish to be insured against smallpox. School No. 3 will probably be selected for this purpose.

Herman Segelken's Death.

On Tuesday the police were notified that Herman Segelken, aged forty-five, of 239 Bloomfield street, had been missing from his home since Saturday last, and his family were alarmed for his safety. He was traced to several saloons in this city and it was finally ascertained that he had crossed the ferry to New York late Saturday night, but nothing further was ascertained at the time. Segelken for many years kept a saloon at the corner of Washington and Eighth streets, and made considerable money there. He sold out and invested about $8,000 in a saloon at West and Laight streets, New York. Here he prospered for a while, but took to drinking heavily. Of course his business was ruined and he was finally compelled to give up the New York saloon.

He then commenced selling paper bags on commission in New York. During the holidays he sold a large order, but when it was too late, found that he had sold them so low that he would get no commission on the bill. It is asserted that he was in low spirits after this and did not return to his work.

On Monday night the watchman in the yard of the Standard Oil Works at Hunters Point, Long Island, found a man lying on the ground stiff with cold. He was removed to the police station where he remained in a cell all night. Tuesday morning a physician was summoned who pronounced the man as dying, and said that nothing could be done to save him. In the afternoon he died and the body was identified as that of Segelken. His death is thought to be due to the combined effect of excessive drinking and exposure. He leaves a wife and several children.

Firemen's Taxes.

We frequently hear it asserted, and it appears to be the general opinion, that firemen, and more particularly members of a volunteer department, are exempt from all taxation. The following extract from a letter credited by an exchange to Attorney-General Stockton, explains the State law governing the matter: "The members of the fire department are not exempted from the payment of taxes, but they are exempted from the payment of taxes to the town, city, borough or township of this State where they may be respectively organized, and when the department is under the control respectively of any town committee, common council or municipal corporation. In other words, if a department is under the control of a town committee, its members are exempt from township tax; if under the control of a common council or municipal corporation, they are exempt from municipal taxes."

Garfield Memorial Hospital.

The long talked of scheme of establishing a hospital in Washington, D. C., in memory of the late President Garfield, to be known as the "National Garfield Memorial Hospital," has now reached a practical form, and active preparations are being made to raise the necessary money for founding the institution. The Hon. James Gillilan, Treasurer of the United States, has consented to act as treasurer of the fund, and such men as Gen. W. T. Sherman, Hon. James G. Blaine, Gen. U. S. Grant, Hon. Wm. Windom, Gen. Swain, and others are on the executive committee. Postmasters throughout the country have been asked to assist in giving publicity to the matter and aid in organizing committees to raise the necessary funds.

KANKOWSKI EXECUTED.

The Murderer of Philomena Muller Launched into the "Inimitable" "Therapeutic of the Beyond."

Martin Kankowski, alias Joseph Kottler, was hanged at the County Jail yesterday morning, for the murder of Miss Muller. There was no undue excitement at the jail, and little or no delay in the execution of the criminal. He bore himself with great fortitude at the last, and even passed Thursday night, after he had said farewell to his wife and children, in sound and partially comfortable sleep.

At about 10 o'clock the condemned man was led to the gallows, which was erected in the west corridor, and at exactly 10:16 the drop fell, and he died instantly, with scarcely a struggle.

As far as is known to any one but his spiritual adviser, Kankowski made no confession. The only persons who were allowed to witness the hanging were the deputies appointed by Sheriff Cronan and the Judge's jury. The following were the Sheriff's deputies: Henry K. Van Horn, County Clerk; Albert Hoffman, Court Interpreter; Charles F. Benson, reporter; William German, reporter; Joseph N. Noonan, reporter; F. P. Budden, Director-at-Large of the Freeholders; William J. Wings, ex-Freeholder; Sheriff Wright, of Newark; Doctor McGill; James Mileman; Edward Kelly, Superintendent of Public Buildings, Jersey City; Frank Krause; John Allen, Jr.

The Judge's Jury was composed of the following gentlemen: Charles B. Converse, County Physician; John Q. Bird, M. D.; John B. Burdette, M. D.; Aaron S. Baldwin, Freeholder; William W. Vartic, M. D.; Edward F. McDonald, ex-Director-at-Large of the Freeholders; John J. Toffey, ex-Sheriff; Ferdinand Helntz; Ex-Judge Stephen Quaff; Colonel E. P. C. Lewis; Ruetsen Van Benesseele Schuyler; Patrick Nugent, Court Stenographer; Martin Kankowski was born in Habsheim, Alsace, in 1847, and as his name would indicate, was of Polish extraction, his grandfather having emigrated to Alsace from Poland during the wars of Napoleon. The murderer served in the French army during the Franco-Prussian war.

He married the wife who is now his widow in 1871, and shortly afterward came to this country. He was a mason, and worked at his trade in New York. They did not live happily together, and he frequently deserted his wife and lived with other women. Mina Muller, the murdered woman, was one of these. She was the legal wife of Simon Muller, a cigar dealer in New York, and had left her husband, it is alleged, because of ill treatment. She lived with Kankowski off and on for some months and, knowing that he had a wife and children living, she went to Guttenburg with him to get married, after which they intended to go to France to live. A few hours after the marriage she was found murdered.

The evidence on which he was convicted was purely circumstantial, but pointed unmistakably to him as the murderer, and the details of the crime reveal a cold-blooded determination to rid himself of the unfortunate woman at all hazards. The feeling among the best informed authorities is that the sentence of the court and Kankowski's execution was just. He leaves a wife and three children in very poor circumstances.

Obituary.

GEORGE W. SHERMAN. Mr. George W. Sherman, for many years a resident of this city, died at his late home, Fourteenth street, New York, on Thursday evening, in the fifty-sixth year of his age. On the 25th of November last, he met with an accident in New York, from the effects of which he never fully recovered, and which finally caused his death. While attempting to cross Church street, at Chambers street, at a time when it was crowded with vehicles, his leg was crushed between a car and a loaded truck. When well enough to go about on crutches he went out and caught a violent cold which resulted in a severe attack of pleurisy. From this he recovered, but the wounded limb troubled him, and a short time before his death blood-poisoning set in which proved fatal.

Mr. Sherman came to Hoboken about twenty-seven years ago and opened the first crockery store in the city, at 136 Washington street, continuing in the business up to about eight years ago, when he was succeeded by his nephews, the Condit Bros. About this time he took up his residence in New York. Mr. Sherman amassed a considerable fortune and married a wealthy wife. He was an influential member of the First Presbyterian Church, serving on the Board of Trustees and filling the office of Treasurer for some years. He was also a Director of the First National Bank. In 1874, when the Savings Bank was reopened, he was made one of its Directors, and for the past five years has been its President. He has done much to make the bank the success it has been since its reformation, and devoted almost the whole of his time to its interests while at its head. He was a shrewd business man, and both in his public and private life his character was irreproachable. He has been identified with the city's interests during the best years of its growth, and his loss will be sincerely mourned by all who knew him well. His only son died within the past year, and he leaves a wife and one child, a little girl about four years of age.

Sergeant-at-Arms of the Assembly.

Hon. T. H. McDonald is one of the proposed candidates for Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Assembly. Of those who aspire to the position, none is more worthy of the office than Mr. McDonald. He has rendered efficient service to his party and the public. During the three years of his membership of the House he was known as a faithful worker and leaves an honorable record. He was also a Union soldier from the beginning to the close of the war, entering as a private and obtaining an honorable discharge with the rank of captain. During his service he was so severely wounded as to be incapacitated from doing ordinary work.

Society and Lodge Notes.

Henry A. Hodges, of this city, is now a D. D. in the Knights of Honor of New York. Assessor No. 38, K. of H. dated January 3, has been levied upon all subordinate lodges and the time to pay said assessment will expire February 3. The Royal Arcanum of this State will soon have a sufficient number of members to entitle them to a Grand Lodge. Protection Lodge, No. 634, K. of H., will hold a regular meeting in their new rooms in Odd Fellows' Hall, on Monday evening, Jan. 8. A full attendance is requested, as business of much importance will come up for action thereon. The regular meeting of Hoboken Lodge, No. 106, K. of P., was held last week, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: C. C. - Francis McDonough; V. C. - G. H. Mues; Pres. - John Logan; K. R. and S. - John Witt; M. of E. - J. M. Borthwick; M. of F. - Simon J. Weinthal. Rep. to Grand Lodge - Joseph Weinthal. Trustees - Wm. N. Parslow; I. G. - Wm. Bathia; O. G. - J. Devitt. At the last meeting of Protection Lodge, No. 634, K. of H., held on December 30, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Dictator - John Stansfield; Vice Dictator - T. C. Cough; Assistant Dictator - W. J. Livingston; Chaplain - W. Moffatt; Guide - James Coltart; Treasurer - Wm. C. Morris; Reporter - Carsten Pope; Financial Reporter - H. Borries; Guardian - A. V. H. Cook; Sentinel - O. E. Scharrf. Trustees - Lewis R. McCulloch, James Winstanley and W. Werkenstein. At a meeting of the New Jersey Schuetzen Corps, held at Busch's Hotel, Thursday night, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Captain - H. D. Busch; Adjutant - Frederick Harenburg; Recording Secretary - T. W. Mertens; Financial Secretary - H. D. Gardis; Corresponding Secretary - H. Rottger; Treasurer - Andrew Steffens; Armorer - H. Ranken; First Shootingmaster - Phillip Klein; Second Shootingmaster - H. Brumerhop; Captain Busch was the first Captain the Schuetzen Corps ever had, having been elected twenty-five ago at the organization of the society. On Tuesday night, District Deputy Grand Dictator Carsten Pope visited Hudson Lodge, No. 808, K. of H., at Batavia Hall, West Hoboken, and, assisted by Past Grand Dictator Wm. C. Morris and Past Dictators F. P. Clifford, Gustav Melners, James Collins and A. L. Moyer, all of Protection Lodge, of this city, installed the following officers: Past Dictator - Louis Schlemm; Dictator - Otto Ortel; Vice Dictator - A. B. Guilford; Assistant Dictator - Simon Joest; Reporter - Fred. H. Pepper; Financial Reporter - Peter Baker; Treasurer - P. B. Lawton; Chaplain - Alfred De Boevis; Guide - George W. Small; Guardian - Sebastian Loehner; Sentinel - John Hofstetter.

GENERAL NEWS.

Extensive veins of coal have been discovered in Green county, Iowa. The Khedive of Egypt has subscribed $400 to the Garfield Memorial Hospital Fund. The Seabright Sentinel and Westfield Monitor are new weekly papers recently started. Edison, the inventor, now holds 250 patents, 25 of which were issued to him in one day last week. Judge Advocate General Swalm recommends that the finding in the Whitaker court martial be disapproved. That part of Monmouth county covered by Ocean Grove, Asbury Park and adjoining hamlets was a wilderness in 1869. Some idea of the magnitude of the railroad interest in this country can be had from the fact that 860,000 people are employed in its service. James Gordon Bennett has left Paris for St. Petersburg to confer with the Russian Government relative to the organization of a new Polar expedition. Nana, the Apache war chief, who, together with about forty of his followers was captured by the Mexicans, has, according to late Mexican dispatches, been shot. Some of the Star Route cases will be brought before the Grand Jury in Washington next week. The Dorsey routes will be the first taken up by the Government. Chill has forwarded to her minister at Washington a manifesto giving her reasons for going to war with Peru and defining her policy in reference to existing difficulties. Over 7,000 miles of new railroads were constructed last year, and Paterson alone turned out 500 locomotives, valued at $5,000,000. This is the largest business ever done there, but this year they will build more still. Another Newark man was arrested last Saturday, Theodore Hall, a former clerk in the Comptroller's Office, who is accused of stealing $1,000 of the city's money two years ago. He is no relation to W. A. Hall who is still at large. Oystermen have become alarmed at the curious and inexplicable color of the water in the South Shrewsbury river. It is a dark green, changing to a clayey tint near the oyster beds. It is feared that the oysters will be injured. The seventh annual meeting of the New Jersey Sanitary Association was held in New Brunswick last week. A resolution was passed condemning the use of human virus for vaccination and requesting physicians to use none but bovine virus. Calvary Cemetery, Long Island, was laid out in 1848. The ground covers an area of over 300 acres. Over 400,000 bodies have been interred there since it was opened, mostly from New York and Brooklyn. Last year alone there were over 16,000 burials. Fitzgerald, who won the Ennis long distance walking match last Saturday, in New York, made the marvelous score of 582 miles and 35 yards by 10 o'clock Saturday night, beating the best previous long-distance six days' record of the world by nearly four miles. It is claimed that the first iron works established in the United States, was at High Bridge, Hunterdon county, this State, in the year 1790. During the Revolutionary war cannon balls were cast there for the American army and shipped to Trenton, New Brunswick and Philadelphia.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

HOBOKEN. "Humpty-Dumpty," with the new scenery, costumes, music, etc., has been a happy holiday hit at Warnings' Theatre, the house being packed every night, and with the following bill, makes a grand bill: Kane and McDonald, comic buff acts; Copper Bros., song and dance; Mr. Harry Malvooy, songs; Miss Maggie Willet, musical songs; Motta Bros., comic acts, and Dan Nash, Irish vocalist. NEW YORK. "The Passing Regiment" is still drawing large and fashionable audiences at Daly's Theatre. Matinee Wednesday and Saturday. Emmet comes to-night at Haverly's Niblo's Garden Theatre, and will be followed next week by Barry and Fay in "Muldoo's Picnic." This evening is the last of "Humpty-Dumpty" at the Windsor Theatre, and will be followed next week by the great comedian, J. K. Emmet. The Metropolitan Theatre is still keeping up its reputation as the leading variety house, and under the present management will continue to do so during the year. Hague's British Operatic Minstrels in a complete revelation in minstrelsy, have been a big card at The Casino the past week. Fifty performers. Matinee this afternoon at 2. This is the last week of the Chautraus at Haverly's Fourteenth Street Theatre, in "Kit, The Arkansas Traveller." Next week "The Tourists in the Pullman Palace Car." Look out for him. The San Francisco Minstrel's Opera House is the Mecca of laughter seekers. The reigning sensation, "Patience," or, Bunton Salve's "Bride," is as popular as ever. Matinee this afternoon at 2. Haverly's Comedy Company in the funniest play ever written, "The Strategists," have been very successful the past week at the Bijou Opera House. Corinne matinee Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 2. This is the last week of Miss Fanny Davenport at Haverly's Fifth Avenue Theatre, after a very successful engagement, and will be followed next week by the Comely-Bartou Opera Company, with Catherine Lewis and John Hovson and original cast, in "Mrs. Fawcett," in which over two hundred persons are employed in the production.

Editor's wives will never need such an album. The daughter of ex-President Zachary Taylor, who now lives in Virginia, recently received from the United States Treasury the sum of $18,000, being the balance of salary due to General Taylor had he lived until the expiration of his term of office. Mr. R. J. Burdette is lecturing in Pennsylvania; Mr. John B. Gough will, after a few days, start on a three months' tour in the Middle and Western States; Josh Billings will lecture in New England this month; Gen. N. P. Banks is lecturing in Massachusetts and Mr. James Redpath is lecturing in Pennsylvania. Edward Jay Morris, who died in Philadelphia last Saturday, was a member of the Pennsylvania State Legislature from 1841 to 1848, served two terms in Congress, and from 1861 to 1870 was U. S. Minister to Turkey. He was author of a book of travels in the Levant (1862) and of several valuable translations from the German.

At a meeting of the New Jersey Schuetzen Corps, held at Busch's Hotel, Thursday night, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Dictator - John Stansfield; Vice Dictator - T. C. PERSONAL INTELLIGENCE.

A smile on the face is worth two in a tumbler. Dim-lighted stores are those that don't advertise. The poet, Whittier, recently celebrated his seventy-fourth birthday. Ex-United States Senator Clement C. Clay, of Alabama, died on Tuesday. "Mother Shipton" says it was a typographical error. She wrote it "1891." The Republic of Liberia has appointed Hon. Joseph F. Yates Consul for New York. Some girls, like shot-guns, would attract no attention if it were not for their bangs. The report that Mrs. Langtry is to appear at Wallack's Theatre next autumn is denied by Lester Wallack. President Grey has sent to foreign Governments a New Year's greeting on behalf of the French Republic. Ex-Sheriff Toffey is talked of by the Republicans as the next State Treasurer. The appointment is made by the Legislature. Mr. J. H. Haverly has rented the Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, for a term of years, adding another to his already long list.

HOBOKEN, JANUARY 7, 1882.

CITY ITEMS.

Kankowski died game. The Hudson County Gas Company has declared a dividend of four per cent, payable on January 10th. Collector McMahon has turned over about $300,000, collected for taxes and assessments, to the City Treasurer.

A SAD CASE.

The Rise and Fall of Literary Reform in Hoboken.

It may interest those of a literary turn of mind to know that in this city, not long ago, there was organized a literary and debating society, under the euphonious, but rather paradoxical title of "The Wise and Yelping Wranglers." The charter members of this society were young men of a philanthropic cast of character, who were anxious to bring about a reform among those whose literary tastes had been perverted and depraved by reading the Democrat (Rep.) and such publications, and so well was their plan received and approved, that at the first meeting of the organization there was an encouraging attendance of four persons.

Penalty of Paper-Bag Hustler.

There is a woman in the West End who has learned a lesson that will last her a life time. She has for years been wearing those paper bags, such as the grocers use, for bustles. The paper is stiff, and sticks out splendidly, and makes the dress look well. Last Sunday morning while she was dressing, her young son got into the room and blew the paper bag full of wind and tied it in the chair. The good lady took it and tied it on, and dressed herself for church. She bridled her husband to go with her, though he is a sort of Bob Ingersoll Christian. As they went up the aisle the minister was reading a hymn about "Sounding the Loud Hosanna," and the lady went into the pew first, and sat down while her husband was putting his hat on the floor. There was a report like distant thunder. You have heard how those confounded paper bags explode when boys blow them up and crush them between their hands. Well, it was worse than that, and everybody looked at the innocent husband who was standing there a perfect picture of astonishment. He looked at his wife as much as to say, "Now this is the last time you will ever catch me in a church if you are going to play any of your tricks on me. You think you are going to scare me into getting religion." The minister stopped reading the hymn and looked over his spectacles at the new-comer, as though it would not surprise him if that bad man should blow the church up. The poor lady looked around as much as to say, "I didn't know it was loaded," and she looked the hymn book through for the hymn, and as the choir rose to sing she offered one side of the book to her husband, but he looked mad and pious, and stood at the other end of the pew and looked out of the stained glass window. After the service they went home together. He didn't know what it was that made that noise until they got home, and after a little skirmishing around, his wife held up a bursted paper bag, and asked the boy if he blew that bag up. He said he did. The boy and his mother and a press board paid a visit to the kitchen, and there was "a sound of revelry." Boys will be boys.—Washington Capital.

Punishment For Election Fraud.

Philadelphia is doing a good work through her courts for the punishment and suppression of the crime of cheating at elections. In Sessions Court last week, Judge Biddle presiding, Wm. Tully, Jr., who is under indictment with Jacob Albright and John Keating, election officers, for making a fraudulent return at the last election for Mayor, and who has been a fugitive from justice, was placed in the dock. He withdrew his plea of not guilty and entered that of guilty. Judge Biddle then said: "As I have here already said, there has been heretofore such immunity from punishment for offenses of this character that it has become the practice of violating the law to such an extent that many persons regard it as no offense at all. Indeed, a distinguished lawyer argued before me in one case that because it was the custom to violate the election laws therefore his client was not guilty. The Court has never gone that far, and is determined to show these people that such violations of the law must be stopped and punished. I will take into consideration the appeal for mercy, but I cannot impose a nominal sentence. The sentence of the Court is that you pay a fine of $100, that you undergo an imprisonment of six months and be debarred from holding any office of honor, profit or trust under or of casting your vote at any general or special election in this Commonwealth for the period of seven years."

New States.

Bills were offered in the United States House for the admission to the Union as States of the Territories of Dakota, New Mexico and Washington. The southern part of Dakota to be erected into a State and the northern part made a new Territory. This is provided for by the bill of Delegate Pettigrew, who represents the present Territory. New Mexico, with 118,000 inhabitants, has also a claim for admission. She would have got in long ago had not the large Spanish element of the population opposed the change because of the increased expense of a State government. Washington Territory has 75,000 people, but will rapidly fill up when the Northern Railroad is built.

A REMARKABLE STATEMENT.

The Unusual Experience of a Prominent Man Made Public.

The following article from the Democrat and Chronicle, of Rochester, N. Y., is of so striking a nature, and emanates from so reliable a source, that it is herewith re-published entire. In addition to the valuable matter it contains, it will be found exceedingly interesting.

To the Editor of the Democrat and Chronicle:

Sir:—My motives for the publication of the most unusual statement which follows are, first, gratitude for the fact that I have been saved from a most horrible death, and, secondly, a desire to warn all who read this statement against some of the most deceptive influences by which they have ever been surrounded. It is a fact that to-day thousands of people are within a foot of the grave and they do not know it. To tell how I was caught away from just this position and to warn others against hearing it, are my objects in this communication. On the first day of June, 1881, I lay at my residence in this city surrounded by my friends and waiting for death. Heaven only knows the agony I then endured, for words can never describe it. And yet if a few years previous, any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have scoffed at the idea. I had always been uncommonly strong and healthy, had weighed over 250 pounds and hardly knew, in my own experience, what pain or sickness were. Very many people who will read this statement realize at times that they are unusually tired and cannot account for it. They feel dull and indefinite pains at the feet, and of the body, and do not understand it. Or they are exceedingly hungry one day and entirely without appetite the next. This was just the way I felt when the relentless malady which had fastened itself upon me first began. Still I thought it was nothing; that probably I had taken a cold which would soon pass away. Shortly after this I noticed a dull, and at times neutral, pain in my head, but as it would not come on every day, and as it would be paid but little attention to it. However, my stomach was out of order and my food often failed to digest, causing at times great inconvenience. Yet I had no idea, even as a physician, that these things meant anything serious or that a monstrous disease was becoming fixed upon me. Cautiously, I thought I was suffering from malaria, and so doctored myself accordingly. But I got no better. I next noticed a peculiar color and odor about the fluids I was passing—also that there were large quantities one day and very little the next, and that a persistent froth and scum appeared upon the surface, and a sediment settled in the bottom. And yet I did not realize my danger, for, indeed, seeing these symptoms continually, I finally became accustomed to them, and my suspicion was wholly un-armed by the fact that the pain which had affected my organs, and in their vicinity. Why I should have been so blind I cannot understand. There is a terrible future for all physical neglect, and impending danger usually brings a person to his senses even though it may then be too late. I realized, at last, my critical condition and aroused myself to overcome it. And, Oh! how hard I tried! I consulted the best medical skill in the land, I visited all the prominent ministers from Maine to California. Still I grew worse. No two physicians agreed as to my malady. One said I was troubled with spinal irritation; another, nervous prostration; another, malaria; another, dyspepsia; another, heart disease; another, general debility; another, congestion of the base of the brain; and so on through a long list of common diseases, the symptoms of all of which I really had in this way passed during all of which time I was steadily growing worse. My condition had really become puerile. The slight symptoms I at first experienced were developed into terrible and constant disorders—the little twigs of pain had grown to oaks of agony. My weight had been reduced from 207 to 130 pounds. My life was a torture to myself and friends. I could retain no food upon my stomach, and lived wholly by injections. I was a living martyr to the public, and was uncontrol- lable. In my agony I frequently fell upon the floor, convulsively clutched the carpet, and prayed for death. Morphine had little or no effect in deadening the pain. For six days and nights I had the death-premonitory hiccoughs constantly. My urine was filled with tube casts and albumen. I was struggling with Bright's Disease of the Kidneys in its last stages. While suffering thus I received a call from my pastor, the Rev. Dr. Foote, rector of St. Paul's Church, of this city. I felt that it was our last interview, but in the course of conversation he mentioned a remedy of which I had heard much but had never used. Dr. Foote detailed to me the many remarkable cures which had come under his observation, by means of this remedy, and urged me to try it. As a practicing physician and a graduate of the schools, I cherished the prejudice both nat- ural as common with all regular practitioners, and derided the idea of any medicine outside the regular channels being the least beneficial. So solicitous, however, was Dr. Foote, that I finally promised I would waive my prejudice and try the remedy he so highly recommended. I began its use on the first day of June and took it according to directions. At first it sickened me; but this I thought was a good sign for, once my debility had passed, I ought to be able to take it; the sickening sensation departed and I was able to retain food upon my stomach. In a few days I noticed a decided change for the better as also did my wife and friends. My hiccoughs ceased and I experienced less pain than formerly. I was so rejoiced at this improved condition that upon what I had believed but a few days before was my dying bed, I vowed, in the presence of my family and friends, should I recover, I would both publicly and privately, make known this remedy for the good of humanity, wherever and whenever I had an opportunity. I also determined that I would give a course of lectures in the Corinthian Academy of Music of this city, stating in full the symptoms and almost hopeless nature of my disease and the remarkable means by which I have been saved. My improvement was constant from that time, and in less than three months I had gained 25 pounds in weight, and was entirely free from pain, and I believe I owe my life and present condition wholly to Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the remedy which I used. Since my recovery I have thoroughly re-investigated the subject of kidney difficulties and Bright's disease, and the truths developed are astounding. I therefore state, deliberately, and as a physician, that I believe more than one half the deaths which occur in America are caused by BRIGHT'S DISEASE OF THE KIDNEYS. This may sound like a rash statement, but I am prepared to fully verify it. Bright's Disease has no distinctive symptoms of its own, (indeed, it often develops without any pain whatever in the kidneys or their vicinity,) but has the symptoms of nearly every other known complaint. Hundreds of people die daily, whose burials are authorized by a physician's certificate of "Heart Disease," "A Palsy," "Paralysis," "Spinal Complaint," "Rheumatism," "Pneumonia," and other common complaints, when in reality it was Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Few physicians, and fewer people, realize the extent of this disease or its dangerous and insidious nature. It steals into the system like a thief, manifests its presence by the commonest symptoms, and fastens itself upon the victim before the victim is aware. It is nearly as hereditary as consumption, quite as common and fully as fatal. Entire families, inheriting it from their ancestors, have died, and yet none of the number knew or realized the mysterious power which was removing them. Instead of common symptoms it often shows none whatever, but brings death suddenly, and as such is usually supposed to be heart disease. As one who has suffered, and knows by bitter experience what he says, I implore every one who reads these words not to neglect the slightest symptoms of kidney difficulty. Certain agony and possible death will be the sure result of such neglect, and no one can afford to hazard such chances. I am aware that such an unqualified statement as this, coming from me, known as I am throughout the entire land as a practitioner and lecturer, will arouse the surprise and possible animosity of the medical profession and astonish all with whom I am acquainted, but I make the foregoing statements, based upon facts, which I am prepared to produce and truths which I can substantiate to the letter. The welfare of those who may possibly be sufferers such as I was, is an ample inducement for me to take the step I have, and if I can successfully warn others from the dangerous path in which I once walked, I am willing to endure all professional and personal consequences. J. B. HENION, M. D. ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 30, 1881.
