A Practical Joke.

One of Boisrobert's practical jokes, which amused Cardinal Richelieu was, if not very brilliant in conception, at least very effective in execution. Mile. when I was visiting Monte Carlo a terde Gournay, the adopted daughter of Montaigne, and an old maid, had produced a book, on the success of which the poet Racan intended to congratulate her. His intention being known, two gentlemen about the Court resolved to that of a gentleman, of good family call on her, one after the other, in the character of Racan. Both were pleasant young family. He lived in the neighand courteous, and when the second announced himself, on taking his leave, to the tables with much regularity. He upon our eyes the sensation of light. be Racan, the old lady only said that lived in one place after another, shifting young men would have their jokes, and his quarters from Nice to Mentone, and that she was in any case "glad to have thence to some other locality. He ran particles of the paint, which start into met two such handsome and agreeable up long bills; but as his name and famiyoung gentlemen." No sooner had the econd of these agreeable gentlemen left Mile. de Gournay than the true Racan appeared. Mr. Besant writes: "He was neither handsome nor agreeable. Moreover, he was asthmatic, and was out of breath with the effort of getting up the stairs, so that he came in puffing and panting. 'Mademoiselle,' he said, 'excuse my taking a chair, I will tell you in to book. He begged the officers to rea quarter of an hour or so why I came to tire, and call again in a hour, as he had see you-when I get my breath. Why the deuce do you live so high up? Phew those stairs. Mademoiselle, I am in writing letters to his wife and family, disturbed by the waves of ether, yield obliged to you for the copy of your book.' obliged to you for the copy of your book.' explaining the errors into which he had light for a time, which decreases in bril-fallen. When the officers returned they liancy as the particles grow less and less reference to her poverty, and turning to her companion—a daughter, as she himself behind his bedroom door. The quire periodical renewals of the force proudly said of Amadis Jamyn, page to Ronsard—she said, 'Disabuse this gentleman, Jamyn. I have given no copies except to M. Malherbe and M. Racan.'
'Racan!—Iam Racan.' 'Jamyn, be good enough to attend. This is a very pretty story, is it not? At least the other two were gentlemen. This fellow is a mere buffoon.' 'Mademoiselle, I am Racan himself,' 'I don't care who you are,' she cried in a rage; 'you are the greatest fool of the three.' " Then he took his own poems and offered to recite them. but she raged and cried, "Thieves!' until he ran away as fast as he could.

> ENGINEER'S OFFICE, 13 Newark street, Hoboken, N. J., June 27, 1881.

To the Honorable the Mayor and Council of the City of Hoboken :

GENTLEMEN:—In acco dance with you resolution of May 23d, 1881, we herewith sub mit our report, accompanied by plans, estimates and specifications for the building of sewer or sewers and such other works as may be necessary to drain the district described in the petition presented to the Board of Health and Vital Statistics, May 4th, 1881.

Hoboken contains in all about 720 acres which 270 acres are upland and 450 acres are marsh lands. About 90 acres of uplands and 14) acres of marsh lands are built upon.

The drainage of our uplands is a compartively simple problem, because it can be easily effected by tidal sewers, that is, b ewers built on such a grade and at such e sewers built on such a grade and at such elevations above mean low water that they will freely discharge their contents directly into the Hudson river. At some future time, no doubt, a large intercepting sewer will have to be built along our water front collecting the sewerage at their present outlets and carrying the same to the southerly end of the county and depositing it by a tunnel far out into the waters of the Bay. This will propably not be necessary for some time to come ably not be necessary for some time to com and therefore need not be considered at pres ent, although it is well to remember that Bo ton has already been obliged to resort to such procedure and New York is even now buildng these intercepting sewers with a similar

The drainage of the marsh lands of Hobo-The drainage of the marsh lands of Hobo-ken being principally on what is known as the Coster es'ate, is a much more intricate problem. These marsh lands are a formation of blue clav or silt, the depth in places being over 100 feet with a crust of matted stems and roots about five feet thick still in the pro-cess of accumulation; they lie east of the Palisade ridge and are separated for the most part by a knoll comprising the uplands of part by a knoll comprising the uplands of Hoboken; they extend north and south about one mile and one-half and are about one-half

The original tidal flow over these marsh lands has been obstructed by the filling in for railroads and streets, until now there are only two natural outlets to the river, one on the south, a basin constructed by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, 100 feet wide and 2,300 feet long, and the other on the north, a sluice-way at Efficient between the constructions of the construction of

The average difference between mean high and mean low water in the Hudson river at Hoboken, is 4 feet and 6 Inches. The average level of the meadow lands is 1 foot and 6 inches below mean high water or 3 feet above mean low water. The established grade of the streets on the Coster estate is 2 feet above mean high water. During long easterly or northerly storms, especially at times of high spring tides, the level of the water in the Hudson river at low tide is several feet higher than mean low water; the greatest difference that has been noted, being 3 feet 91-2 inches; that is to say, there have been times when even at low tide the water in the river was 91-2 inches higher than the surface of the meadows. On several occasions the water in the river has risen more than 3 feet higher than mean high water and of course, at such times the water in the river was 41-2 mean low water in the Hudson river at nigher than mean high water and of course, it such times the water in the river was 4 1-2 and 1 foot higher than the established grade of the streets.

We will now glance at the attempts made to accomplish the drainage of these low lands, and since much has been learned, the review will be of great service to us in the presen

It has been claimed by many that thes meadow lands could be drained by tidal sew ers without altering the present grades of the streets, and during the last fifteen years nany attempts have been made and $100,000 have been spent in the endeavor to carry out

The first drainage map of these marsh lands was made by Bacot & Post, on Feb. 1st, 1866; they proposed to have main sewers run-ning east and west in Ferry, First, Third, Tenth and Fifteenth streets, and discharging at low tide into the Hudson river.

By an act of the Legislature of the Sta e of New Jersey, approved April 4th, 1866, pam-phlet laws, page 941, a commission of three gentlemen from Heboken and two from Wee-hawken, were appointed to take charge of the drainage of these low lands. Supplements to this act were passed in 1867, 1868 and 1869.

In April, 1869, Wm. Hexamer, as Secretary of this Commission, reported that about three miles of ditches ha I been dug, about one mile niles of ditches ha i been dug, about one mile of box sewers built, principally in Ferry and first streets, two main sluices, one gate on Ferry street, various sewer connections and repairs, and 4,369 cubic yards of filling on the

The next important map in relation to the The next important map in relation to the drainage of these low lands was made by William Hexamer in 1869. Mr. Hexamer proposed to divide the whole city into three districts, with main sewers in Ferry, Third and Thurteenth streets, running from the westerly boundary of the city to the Hudson river. Except that he reduced the number of mains from tive to three, Mr. Hexamer's plan in 1860.

Only one of the main sewers proposed by posed by Mr. Hexamer has been built, namely, that in Third street, which extends from the Hudson river to Adams street, and receives the drainage of the sewers in Garden ter. street. Park avenue, Willow street, Clinton nary street, Park avenue, Willow street, Clinton street, and some box drains in Grand and street, and some box drains in Grand an i Adams streets. The present condition of this Third street sewer is not satisfactory. The bottom of the sewer at Clinton street is 2 feet lower than the bottom of the sewer at Willow street, and the general fall of the sewer west of Willow street is towards the meadows, in-stead of being towards the river. If the three main sewers were actually built as proposed by Mr. Hexamer, to the westerly boundary of the city the top of the sewers at that noin! he city the top of the sewers at that poi would be 2 feet above the level of the men lows and one and one-half feet below the stablished grade of the streets.

On November 22, 1870, the Council directed On November 22, 1870, the Council directed Arthur Spielmann to prepare a plan for a sewer in Ferry street from the Hudson river to the westerly boundary of the city and to submit a report and estimates in regard to the same. On February 14, 1871, this plan and report was submitted. The estimated cost of the sewer was $130,000. Mr. Spielmann in his report most emphatically a lyised the would fail to answer the purpose for which i would be constructed. He called the atten tion of the Council to the utter inefficiency of these tidal sewers and claimed that there were only two ways of properly draining these low lands.

First-By raising the grade sufficient to give good drainage. Second-By making reservoirs and forcing leans of steam pumps. The first method he found impracticable on account of the expense that would be in-curred from the arrount of filling required and also of the cost of raising most of the houses already built. The second method he recommended as being much cheaper and en-tirely practicable.

In accordance with this report the Ferry street sewer was not built, but from that time until now, a period of ten years, the two propositions that were advanced by him have been most earnestly discussed.

The following engineers have been engaged on the investigation of this culestion from

The following engineers have been engaged on the investigation of this question from time to time during this period and have made reports thereon, which, although they differ in detail, agree on the general principle that the only practical means of draining these meadows is by pumping, to-wit: Arthur Spielmann, William W. Shippen, Levi W. Post, James P. Kirkwood, L. B. Ward. Edlow W. Harrison and Charles B. Brush. Seven acts have been passed by the New Jersey Legislature since 1870 in relation to the drainage of these lands.

Seventh-An act approved March 25, 1881, enti led a supplement to an act for the im-provement of the sanitary condition of cities, approved March 14, 1879.

Under the authority of these various acts large amount of valuable information a large amount of valuable information has been obtained, though an expense has been incurred of nearly $29,000. The report in 1874 of Mr. James P. Kirkwood, a hydraulic engineer of high reputation (the engineer of the Brooklyn Water and Sewerage Works, and consulting engineer in nearly all similar works that have been projected in this country), is one of the most valuable records in many respects, in the possession of the city. He decided that the drainage of these lands must be done by pumping, and after giving must be done by pumping, and after giving his reasons, (which though concisely stated are too voluminous to be included in this reare too voluminous to be included in this report), he arrived at the conclusion that when the low lands are all graded and built upon it will be necessary to provide the following pumping capacity:—For the heaviest storms, which, it is true, only occur a few times in a year, but which, nevertheless, must be provided for, 78,856,000 gallons in 24 hours for the district south of Eighth street, and 54,634,000 gallons in twenty-four hours north of Eighth gallons in twenty-four hours north of Eighth street, a total of 134,590,000 gallons per day— and for the maximum flow of sewerage proper, exclusive of storm waters in each twenty-four hours, he estimated 4,000,000 gallons per day in the district south of Eighth street and 2,550,000 gallons per day in the dis-trict north of Eighth street, a total of 6,650,-000 gallons per day.

Mr. Kirkwood considered, however, that it would not be necessary to make provision for this flow at the present time, because the ungraded condition of the lots and streets; and the fact of their being only partially occupied, would greatly diminish the amout of water and sewerage which would have to be provided for within a given time. He believed that if provision was made south of Eighth street for 26,000,000 gallons per day of storm waters and north of Eighth street for 18,000,000 gallons per day or a total for storm storm waters and north of Eighth street for 18,000,000 gallons per day or a total for storm waters, at present, of 54,000,000 gallons per day, it would be sufficient, while for sewerage, 2,000,000 gallons per day for the district south of Eighth street and 1,325,000 gallons per day for the district north of Eighth street, or a total of 3,395 (00 gallons per day of sower. or a total of 3,325,000 gallons per day of sewer age flow, would be ample.

All the investigations that have been made on this subject to date corroborate these esti-mates, and after carefully going over the calculations we have no hesitation in presenting/them to your onorable Body as perfect

The first practical application of the pump-The first practical application of the pumping system on these meadows was under the acts of 1873-4; a small nine-inch pump was set at work in Meadow street, between Ferry and First street. It was found that all the water south of Third street could easily be controlled by the pump except during the time of storms. A number of bids were also received for building the sewers and for furnishing the pumps and pumping stations. Again under the law of 1876 the Council received other bids for furnishing pumps and pumping stations. During the last six months the practicability of the pumping system has again been tested, a number of property owners have erected, at their own expense, a six-inch pump in the southwestern property owners have erected, at their own-expense, a six-inch pump in the southwestern portion of the city on one of the worst por-tions of these marsh lands. By pumping about twenty minutes every two hours all the water from an area of about twenty-five acres was removed except during storms. Such in brief is a history of the efforts made up to this time towards the drainage of our marsh lands.

It would be folly to ignore the fact that our tidal sewers have been as nearly a complete failure as it is possible for any system to be. These low lands are to-day, merely a sink hole for all the refuse that is thrown upon them. The sewers and drains already built are almost entirely useless in times of heavy storms, sometimes they are tide-locked for days together and there is no escape for the water except by evaporation. There is the water except by evaporation. There is the water except by evaporation are almost entirely useless in times of heavy storms, sometimes they are tide-locked for days together and there is no escape for the water except by evaporation. There is school No. 1, male department. It would be folly to ignore the fact that our tidal sewers have been as nearly a complete

As an instance of the failure of these tidal-sewers the Third street sewer might be men-tioned; the outlet of this sewer at the Hud-son river is 1½ feet below low water, the western extremity of the sewer is at low wa-ter. While it is true that in times of ordi-nary low tide, the water will flow through the sewer towards the Huden river, yet the hary low the the water will now through the sewer towards the Hudson river, yet the sewer can never be entirely emptied, and at flood tide a horrible and sickening mass of corruption is thrown upon the meadows. The fact is, there are only two methods of effectual draining the meadows to-wit: those suggested in 1871 First-By a proper system of tidal sewers

Second-By the pumping sytem.

Whichever system is adopted it should comprehend the complete drainage of these low ian is in their entirety and whatever constructions are becaute to be made, should be in accordance with the plan selected. Under other states are selected that are selected. der either system the cost of the construc-tion of the sewers will be about the same.

When all the low lands are built upon and sewered the cost of the sewers will have been, according to our estimate, $700,000. This outlay however will only be gradual and will only be required as the growth of the city in-creases. Under either system an immediate outlay of $110,000 would be required in the construction of sewers to provide for the construction of sewers to provide for the drainage of low lands south of Eight street, requiring immediate attention. A proper tidal system of sewers will neces

Total extra cost of raising grade ... $3,000,000 While the cost of the pumping stations and pumps, including land, buildings, reservoirs and machinery with power and capacity sufficient to remove all the storm water and sewerage, that will eventually accumulate when this whole area is built up, we estimate as follows: as follows:

Land Engine and pumps of 425 horse power Cinterns Buildings The annual running expenses, including interest on $150,000, will not exceed $30,000.

In a word, a proper tidal system of draine of the surface water south of Eighth street for the marsh lands when all built upon (exclusive miles the total and the surface which are callsize of the cost of the sewers, which we esti-mate at $700,000) will require a preliminary ex-penditure of at least $3,000,000 or $180,000 per annum: while a complete pumping system will require a preliminary expenditure of $150,000 or $30,000 per annum

When we consider that in addition to the When we consider that in addition to the enormous increase of cost—it will require several years to regrade the streets and adjoining lots in order to prepare for the construction of the tidal systems, and that when completed the flat grades and low levels will cause the sewers to be often tide-locked, we reiterate our opinion and advice to the Council as expressed in 1871, and declare any tidal system of sewers for our low lands entirely impractionle.

The Council has passed the resolution deciding to purchase a lot on Hudson street, upon which to erect an engine house. There seems to be a great deal of opposition to the scheme. Mayor Besson has vetoed the resolution of the Council giving ten days' vacation to the Engineers of the Fire Department. He has approved this action before; it is customary in this and other cities to grant such a vacation, and no new reasons have been assigned for its refusal this year. To be sure, these men are paid a salary by the city, and it is not their fault that there are not enough fires to keep them busy all the year round. There are some citizens in Hoboken that are rather glad that such is the case, if Besson is not, and they have not hitherto complained at a vacation being allowed the men, as they are pretty closely confined to their engine houses all the time. The opinion of the most prominent citizens, is that it was a very small piece of business on the part of the Mayor.

To the Council:

I return without approval the petition of A m Bonner for a liceuse as night scavenger, as granted at your session of the 21st instant.

Under the ordinance relating thereto, this is made a Mayor's license.

By an ordinance, approved February 27th, 1878, this particular kind of license is rendered virtually nugatory. The Mayor and Council, under said ordinance, on April 28d, 1878, entered into an agreement with Charles F. Bowers, of the city of Newark, giving him the exclusive right of night-scavenging in this city for the term of five years, then ensuing. In order further to secure the said Bowers from any possible intrusion on the part of other night scavengers, the former license fee of five dollars was increased by the said ordinance to one hundred dollars. vas increases and the second s

Mr. Bowers for a long time back has failed to perform any condition of his agreement, and we see him no more. His sureties are John O'Donnell and Denis Eagan, of this city, in the sum of five hundred dollars, for the faithful performance of said agreement in all things. Privies are overflowing. Tenants know not whom to go to for relief. No one is empowered to act in such cases. The license fee is too exorbitant to warrant anyone undertaking the business, and we are really in a bad plight.

plight. I would advise that the agreement with Mr. Bowers be annulied forthwith, that suit be instituted against him and his bondsmen, that the ordinance of 1878 be repealed, and that we then proceed to act in accordance with the old ordinances relating to night scavengers. Then I can grant this liceuse to Mr. Bonner.

E. V S. BESSON

Plain walking suits have invariably the "Dorsay" jacket, which is either of blue, brown, or black cloth, or of Eng-

be described as simple, comfortable and easy. It is based on the idea of dispensing with petticoats and all the etceteras, and substituting for the various garments which hang from the waist just one roomy, go-anywhere, do-anything article of underclothing. There is nothing in the slightest degree unfeminine or unsuited to the sex in this peculiarly-devised garment. The pants reach to the foot, or thereabouts-the length of the ordinary jupon. Over the pants is a robe, from the throat to the boots. The estume is altogether elegant and lady like. A further recommendation is the fact that there is nothing about the dress to prevent any amount of money being pent in decorating it. To pater-familias, to the economical mother of a large family of daughters, and to careful girls the dress will approve itself, because it can be made for about half the price of the present costume, if desired, without sacrificing a single outward emblem of Good Teas, 30, 35, & 40c. per lb. It will pay you well to call and examine our New Crop Teas before purchasing elsewhere. Our coffees are the linest imported. We purchase only naturally ripened coffees, and that is one of the principal reasons which causes our coffees to be preferred to all others, and gives ours the rich deficious flavors which others lack. This the saying of many, that our system of giving away presents is simply a fraud, and that we are only humbugging the people. If we were a small concern, this argument might be considered true. But taking into consideration the magnitude of our business, thaving now over ONE HUN-PRED BRANCH RETAIL, HOUSES in the U.S.), you will easily see that a small percentage of pofit on our enormous sales amply pays us, and enables us to deal more liberally with our customers than any other concern in the U.S. NOTICE OF SETTLEMENT.—Notice is hereby given, that the account of the subscriber, administratrix of the estate of Joachim J.
