A STARTLING PROPOSITION.

Condemned Criminals to be Turned Over to the Surgeons in the Interest of Science.

We are aware that a very large num ber of most important scientific questions have thus far successfully baffled the most determined research of the medical profession. No sure and effectual treatment has yet been discovered for cholera, yellow fever, cancer, consumption, hydrophobia, and many other diseases which annually decimate various portions of the globe. Can a drowned person be restored, the poisonous bite of various reptiles be cured, or an antidote be found for chemical poisons? These and other equally perplexing and important questions have not as yet been answered affirmatively by the most skillful physicians, although many have spent their lives in attempts to solve these problems. One of the greatest hindrances to a satisfactory solution of all such inquiries has been, and still is, the fact that the doctors have not had the legal right and the indispensable privilege of fully and freely experimenting upon living human beings. If every person that has been hanged, or otherwise executed, during the last hundred years could have been turned over to the medical fraternity with the free, full and legal right for them to experiment upon in the interest of medical science, many of the questions which still baffle the greatest research would have been satisfactorily settled beyond all peradventure or dispute. If all of the Bresnahams, Guiteaus and Greenfields of the next century could be devoted to science they would, in their deaths, compensate the world for the wrongs they had done, and instead of being malefactors who died useless and horrible deaths might become greater benefactors to the whole world than any and all of the truly good men who lived as good citizens and died natural deaths. We would suggest the passage of a law by the Legislature for the erection of a suitable medical institution and the appointment of a proper number of the most eminent physicians, both to be devoted to the discovery of new truths in medical science. And let the law further provide, under suitable restrictions, for the delivery to and treatment by such institution of all criminals who are The doctors condemned to death. should take the place of the present executioners and should be charged with the duty of continuing their experiments for the benefit of science until the death of the condemned or till one or more medical mysteries had been satisfactorily solved. Perhaps it might be both wise and humane to provide that under their very appearance bespoke the hardcertain specific circumstances the criminal should be fully pardoned and restored to all of the rights which he had forfeited by his wrong-doing. For example, a malefactor might be drowned until, in the ordinary sense of the term, he was pronounced dead by the experimenting physicians. Then, if he was resuscitated, he should gain his liberty. Let another be bitten by an unmistakably rabid dog, and if he was cured after a well-defined attack of hydrophobia, that should constitute his certificate of reprieve. Others should be poisoned, inoculated with various contagious diseases and be subjected to death by the British general, whose troops then various maladies which have defeated and defied the combined skill of the medical fraternity, and in the case of every one where a sure and definite remedy should be discovered such criminal should thereby expiate his crime, and by his contribution to science for the benefit of the world he should earn and receive a full pardon. As a means ten times more crime than the ordinary hanging, and would put the life of the the present and all future generations. To every condemned criminal whose life was thus put in jeopardy, the hope would be held out that his life might be saved provided he successfully run the desperate gauntlet of death. -- Governeur

THE SURRENDER OF YORKTOWN.

At noon of the 19th [October] we have the first act of surrender. Yorktown changed hands. Two redoubts on the left of the enemy's works were at that hour taken posession of by detachments the Marquis Laval the French party, prisoners of war, grounded their arms, and then marched back. Accounts agree in describing the display and ceremony on the occasion as quite imposing.

The British appeared in new uniforms, distributed among them a few days before, and it only required the flying of petitor to gas as an illuminant, and it is positively unbearable. I had often seen large to do for gas what gas did for oil ter to gie ane fash!"

The French troops presented a brilliant spectacle in their white uniforms, with plumed and decorated officers at their head and gorgeous standards of white silk, embroidered with golden fleur de lis, floating along the line. The Americans were less of an attraction in outward appearance, but not the less eagerly eyed by their late antagonists. Among the war-worn Continentals there was variety of dress, poor at the best, distinguishing the men of the different lines, but to compensate for lack of show, there was a soldierly pearing about them which commanded attention. The militia, formed in their rear, presented a less martial sight so far as clothing and order was concerned. But all these men were conquerors, and ships and privations they and their States had undergone to win in the struggle. At the head of the respective lines were the commanding generals, nobly mounted-Washington, Rochambeau, La Fayette, Lincoln, Steuben, Knox, and the rest. Leading the British came General O'Harra instead of Cornwallis. The latter pleaded illness, but he sent his sword by O'Harra to be given up to Washington. As O'Harra advanced to the chief, he was referred to Lincoln, who, upon receiving the sword as a token of the enemy's submission, immediately returned it to the marched betwen the two lines to a field on the right, where they grounded their

SOME PLAIN TRUTHS.

[For the Hoboken Advertiser.] You eat my bread and you drink my tea,

It has been asserted, and not without reason, that the meddlesomeness and garrulity which from time immemorial tradition has ascribed to the "old maid," is a sort of universal slander; that while this questionable virtue is found among that much-abused class of the gentler sex, it is not so wipespread as to be distinctively characteristic. Now, while it is undoubtedly true that they are "not so black as they're painted," it is nevertheless equally true that the latter clause of the assertion is incorrect. This quality is so "distinctively characteristic" of the "old maid" that the latter cognomen and "busy-body" are inseparably connected with the same idea and have lmost come to be considered synon mous wherever the English language is spoken.

Not that we mean to say "old maids of other nations and tongues differ in this respect. This last-named member is the same the world over, no matter what language animates it. This opinion is traditional and therefore reasonable, for traditions are never without some foundation on fact. Of course they are not all thus. There are many noble exceptions. But as to which class predominates, as to the relative strength of the bitter and the sweet, must be left to more able statisticians. It is beyond

There being a dearth of news when the time came for my letter to be sent to the ADVERTISER, I had almost decided to telegraph my excuses to that effect, when a circumstance occurred which caused me to change my mind. It was such a man that an old writer called the funnel of society, or the channel through which all the good and evil that is spoken in the community is conveyed. He never takes in what he hears for his own use, but merely to pass it to another. THE RESIDENCE OF THE PERD.

Slowly, but surely, seems to grow the conviction upon us that the "beginning of the end" is at hand, that the Nation is about to lose its chosen President. The condition of the illustrious patient is pronounced critical by the physicians; and the latest dispatches from the bedside of the sufferer are such as to cause the stoutest heart to tremble, and almost banish the last gleam of hope. Hand in hand, the great Nation is walking with James A. Garfield, through the "Valley of the Shadow of Death," How long they would be of service. To be conit is to last, how long the man who is bearing his agony so nobly, is to continue on that bed of suffering, is beyond human knowledge. That the end is near, our reason almost forces us to believe; but our hearts tell us that "where there is life there is hope."

At a recent garden party at the Grand Union, Saratega, the value of the diamends worn was estimated at over $2,

The disgraceful conduct of the Jersey City Board of Aldermen, at their meeting this week, has done little towards strengthening the cause of the Anti-Monopolists. The people will not forget that caused all the "rumpul."

The Herald cannot have reference to a "journalistic" pen; for brother Bayer certainly never wielded one in his life.

In all his official actions there is the sad bitter fight and a speedy settlement is and unmistakable evidence of "a mind out of the question, diseased," strangely blended with a faint gleam of sanity. There is just enough of the "light of reason" left to show more clearly that the man is the victim of a hopeless monomania. The communication concerning the action of the Council in the matter of the meadow di inage is full of sound ommon sense. The Council's decision to turn the matter over to the decision of twenty-four freeholders he declares to be shirking the responsibility imposed apon the Mayor and Council by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, "The matter was left to the Mayor and Council," says Mr. Besson, "and not to twenty-four freeholders. It was made an official responsibility, and if the Legislature had thought that a number of property owners were better qualified to act, they undoubtedly, in such a very important measure, would have left it to them. We "We must go on with it or drop it." need no freeholders to settle this question," he concludes, " we must determine it ourselves, and the sooner the better.'

These do not sound like the words of lunatic, but rather like the arguments of a clear-headed thinker. Yet, with the evidence before us, it is plain that he has a little reason left, and that it controlled him in penning this communica-

Does it not seem strange, then, that this same man can be guilty of such senseless twaddle as is contained in the other veto-the one relating to the purchase of a site for an engine house. The small part of this communication which is taken up by his statement of the reasons why an engine house should not he located on Hudson street have been urged by others and been fully dis cussed in these columns. They are simply the objections of some of the residents in the neighborhood of the proposed site to having an engine hou located near their dwellings. These objections will be met with in any part of the city, and if allowed to influence the action of the Council, we should have no engine houses at all, at least where sistent, the Mayor should advocate the setting apart of a lot outside of the city limits, where all the fire apparatus could be placed in a sort of pest-house Thus they could annoy no one, and could also be useless in case of fire.

"To locate that engine house in Hud son street." says the considerate Besson would inflict a blow upon the pride of many a citizen-(poor citizen!)-which would certainly react to the detriment of Hoboken," though how, our sympathetic Mayor neglects to show.

The rest of the document is taken up with a pet grievance of his Honor—the Hoboken Land and Improvement Company. He cannot understand why the Campany should be willing to sell a lot for this purpose "unless to injure and annoy the property owners and residents and our people generally." We are left move into the new building whether it in the dark as to what the Company is ready or not. The lease of the old would gain by accomplishing such an Morton Mansion expires on Wednesday end; for, according to Besson, their hopes that in a few days be will once the few days be will once the few days be will not be w motives are altogether "selfish," and they would therefore do nothing that Some of the Councilmen are getting did not directly benefit themselves. We of the new City Hall. They are frequently seen anxiously passing from room to room and watching the progress of the city wants to buy. We have an idea cannot conceive why the Mayer should says: Perspiration, unknown; Temperance that it is none of his business. The city wants to buy and the Company is willing to sell. As long as the city gets what it wants at a fair price, why should the Company's motive in selling be questioned? And how can it affect the transaction? He characterizes the Comthat it was the leaders of this faction pany's action in this matter as "dishonorable," and indulges in other wild language in running down the corporation. He mentions the site as "where that notorious old swindle, the Stevens Battery, was imbedded." We are going to "get a day off" and ascertain, if possible, who the Stevens Battery swindled. What it has to do with the Mayor's objections to locating an engine house on Hudson street, is "another one of those things no fellow can find out."

The whole amount of this veto is that the Mayor will go out of his way to get in a side blow at the Hoboken Land & Improvement Company, because such a proceeding is popular among a certain class of votes, But E. V. S. B. is dead politically, and it is useless for him to do any more canvassing.

THE PIRST SHOT.

The trouble predicted by the ADVER risen last week, in relation to the street lighting contract, has commenced. Four 'citizens" opened the ball and fired the from the Supreme Court, restraining the Mayor and Council from entering into the proposed contract with the Brush Electric Illuminating Company. The injunction was obtained by Romeo F. Chabert, William Hersee, Theophilus Butts and Jacob Geayer, who are interested in the Gas Company. The effect that this will have on the question a issue is not hard to determine. No matter who wins eventually, the gas men have "scored one" at the start. Before the Mayor and Council can have the inunation set aside, it will, withoutdoubt be necessary to enter into another con-tract with the Gas Company to light the street and park lamps. The company thus gains at least a year; for it is unreasonable to suppose that with the advantage they obtain by this latest move, its officers will make a contract for any shorter period of time. Meanwhile, the Electric Illuminating Company, who Of have so much at stake in the matter, can course they are vetoes at least they are only stand aside and look on, while the intended to be. It took me a day or two to ascertain his whereabouts, and the first tidings I had of him were of such a nature as to cause my immediate return. The great and distinguished linguist had, at a ball, very rashly appeared in a costume that was "cut" too low, and after overheating himself in the giddy mazes of one of Strauss' most heavenly waitzes, had strolled out with the Princess Shuffleoff into the conservatory, where he exposed himself to the night air. Perhaps it was the ess, and not "Polly," whose costum was out too low-I don't exactly remember which but at any rate he caught a violent cold, which settled on his lungs, and he now lies in bed at the residence on his aunt, very ill with inflammation of the lunes.

OBITUARY.

MAJOR CHRISTIAN WOERNER.

Hoboken's oldest and most respected citizens Several weeks ago, the Major while superin tending some repairs at Odd Fellows' Hall, of which he was the proprietor, fell and broke his leg. He received the best of care at the the hospital, and when a representative of the ADVERTISER visited him shortly after his accident, he spoke very confidently of his recovery. Last Friday it was found sary to amputate the injured limb. He sank rapidly after the operation and breathed his last on Sunday night. Deceased was born in Germany, about fifty-one years ago, and came to Hoboken when a young man. At the outbreak of the late rebellion he went to the war as Captain of Hexamer's Battery from this county, and early won a reputation as a brave and skillful artilleryman. For gallant conduct at Gettysburg he was brevetted Major, by Major General Meade, on the field of battle. The funeral on Wednesday was one of the largest and most imposing that has ever taken place in this city. The ceremony took place in Masonic Hall and was attended by over 1,000 people. Colonel Charles Stahl, of Trenton, delivered the funeral oration. There were delegations present from all the civil and military organi zations of which Major Woerner had been a member. The Veteran Corps, Columbia Lodge of Odd Fellows; the Masonic Lodge, Hexamer's Battery, a detachment of the Ninth Regiment, N. G. S. N. J., the Schuetzen Lyra, and other societies followed the remains to their last resting place in Hoboker Cemetery, where they were interred with military honors.

Sounding a Palse Fire Alarm

On Monday night two men, who gave their ames as Frank Madden and John Connoly were caught sounding a false alarm of fire They were brought before Recorder McDon ough, who administered a severe rebuke to therr and fined them $10 apiece. The Arguin reporting the circumstance, referred to a aragraph in "a Hoboken weekly," (meaning the ADVERTISES), denying the report con tained in the Argus that previous to this, some one had been sounding false alarms sold for taxes, and if some such law were ing" that malice prompted the writing of the enacted by our next Legislature, it would first report. The accusation is unjust. No such hint was conveyed or intended in the paragraph referred to. We herewith repro duce the note from last week's ADVERTISER that our readers may judge of its "libellous" nature themselves:

"The members of the Fire Department con sider that there is no foundation for the hint ontained in the Jersey City papers to the effect that somebody had been sounding false alarms lately. They say that they have not been called out without cause. The fact of the fires being slight and having been extinguished without their services, does not make the sounding of the bell a false alarm.

A Promenade Concert.

The Valencia Amateur Orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. Julius Boehm, gave a promenade concert at Library Hall, in the German Club House, on Wednesday evening. The concert was a private affair tendered to the members of the German Club. Among the selections performed by this thoroughly trained and excellent orchestra were "Leich Cavallerie," and a "Medley," which elicited rounds of applause from the select and critical audience. The performance of Mr. E ost, the cornetist, was remarkably fine and deserving of special mention. Mr. Post ren-dered the "Electrone Polka" and "Non e Ver," two very difficult solos on the cornet, in a thoroughly professional manner, and proved himself a musician as well as a skillful performer on the cornet. The concer was a perfect success, and all who had th good fortune to hear the delightful music of the Valencia Amateur Orchestra were enthu-siastic in their praises of the performance.

Railroad Station Indicator.

The Pennsylvania Railroad is beginning to make use of a station indicator, an arrangement for notifying the passengers as to what station they are approaching. At either end of the car is a neat case containing a piece of muslin or canvass on rollers, upon which is printed in legible letters the name of all the stations on the road. By a lever on the locomotive, the engineer on leaving a station changes the indicator so as to show the next stopping place. With this device in use assengers need no longer puzzle over the cry of the brakeman, and wonder what the next station will be, they can read for themselves. It has been in use on some of the cessful, and it is to be hoped that other rail-roads will follow the mitiative taken by the Pennsylvania road. The station indicator is complete and convenient affair.

Becker was severely burned on the face and arms. Becker was removed to his home, 253 Court street, between Seventh and Eighth streets, where he is slowly recovering under the care of Dr. Brownstein. Advice to the Police.

There is nothing a police officer should nore studiously avoid than argument; it rarely convinces any one and much irritate ersons smarting under some real or imagipary grievance. A civil question will fre quently elicit a courteous answer and valu ble information. A constable must spea the truth at all times and under all circum stances. A police officer who keeps his own counsel, and does not gossip or divulge conidences, will have plenty of informers. Ever minute spent in education is a sound inves ment, one certain to bear fruit, sooner or later, besides giving constant personal satis faction. Foreigners should be invariably treated by the police with the utmost consid eration and respect .- Police Code, Vincent.

The founders of this city designed Hoboken as place of residences and in their way carried outheir idea, but this has changed, the aphorism of the head steward of their estate, that, "Hoboken in only a landing for ships," appears now to have become the settled policy of their successors and their cupidity may lead them to any extreme.

Let us act for the best interests of the city and our citizens. Let us not contribute one particle towards such selfshness. Let us, taking a deep interest in the welfare of our city, aim to continue it a place of residences as well as "a landing place for sings," and let us show that she can be both, and that we mean to reside here.

I return without approval your resolution of the 18th instant, authorizing the selection of six free-holders from each Ward, "to be squally divided as to the pumping and filling processes," to consider, and by their decision, as I infer, to determine our action as to the drainage of the low lands of this

The Acts of 1879 and 1881 empower us, by ordinate, after the preliminaries, as stated, to "authories the construction of a sewer or sewers, and the erection of pumps, dykes, dams, tide-banks, and such other works as may be necessary to secure sufficient and proper drainage of the place or district to be drained." A very general power is granted us to proceed in accordance therewith. Nothing is said about filling.

Amp acts say we may do these things, as speci-fied therein; not, that we shall do them. It was not contemplated by these enactments that the "Meadows" should be filled thereunder. That would have been an impracticable idea. It was in-tended as an immediate measure to afford speedy relief. We must proceed according to these Acts or not at all.

Communication from Herring & Co., offering to uy old safe in vault of City Hall.

to the Committee on Sewers: Communication from James F. Minturn, attorney representing property owners on Jackson, near Second street, relative to the blocking up of Jackson street sewer, &c.

Why the Hoboles, Land & Improvement Company are so willing to sell a lot there for such purpose I cannot understand, unless to injure and annoy the property owners and residents across the way and on Hudson street, and our people generally. Remonstrances from many of our best citizens have also been made known to the Company personally, but with no effect. The Company will sell. It is a queer proceeding on their part, where, having bound up parties to whom they have sold lots to creet certain kinds and character of buildings, and with a purely selfah view—the enhancement in value of their remaining property—to turn around and lease or sell adjoining lots for stables and engine houses. That they have a legal right so to do is undoubted, but morally they have not, and we do wrong to ourselves and our fellow-citizens should we aid in such dishonorable practice. With all the sidvantages to be derived from a close proximity of fire supparstuses, having their houses immediately opposite or alongiste or valuable residences does not appreciate their pecuniary value, but has the contrary effect. We all know the character of the buildings on the west side of Hudson street, between Second and Third streets. The residences there to a man, to a woman, are opposed to having the engine house opposite them and that alone should be sufficient. an arrest sewer, &c.

This is shirking a responsibility imposed upon usby the Seaate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey.

"Freeholders" have performed all that the Legislature has required of them in the matter; for, twenty-five of them, residents of this city, have petitioned the County Board of Health to imspect the sanitary condition of the low lands of this city. The Board of Health has inspected and has certified to us that these low lands are detrimental to the public health by reason of finaminician drainage, and that it is advisable and proper that the same should be drained. We have appointed "competent civil engineers to make plans and specifications for the building of a sewer or sewers, the srection and construction of pumps, dykes, dams, tide-banks and such other works as may be necessary to necure a sufficient and proper drainage of the place or district required to be drained. We have received the report of the eigineers, their plans and specifications, and we have paid them for them. All in accordance with law. Since receiving the report, you have awarded a fair opportunity for all interested to be heard, Great publicity has been given the matter, that it might attract gen, "al attention. The law did not require this, but it was eminerally proper to do so and conflicting opinions clashed marvelously. Your resolution now before me is the sequel of all these proceedings.

whether the plans and specifications, for which we have paid four hundred dollars, are the best that can be devised. I do not know. My knowledge of drainage is not scientifical. They appear to me practicable, reasonable and economical. The Legislature did not contemplate that the Mayor and Council possessed scientific attainments sufficient to defermine this question personally, but evidently considered that as men of sense they would avail themselves of proper professional advantages and determine it einstilly. The matter was left to the Mayor and Council and not to twenty-four free-holders. It was made an official responsibility, and if the Legislature had thought that a number of property owners was better qualified to act they undoubtedly, in such a very important measure, would have left it to them. We all know that something should be done. There are sanitary reasons for it. There are economical reasons for it. There are absolute reasons for it. Our city is not alone concerned; our neighbors are asso interested. They were more urgenthan ourselves for the passage of these enactments. Should we neglect to do that which we should do they have ulterior resort which might prove vexing to the second of the Now, that our citizens have been heard upon the Now, that our citizens have been neard upon the question, I would suggest that we submit our plans and specifications, together with all the petitions, remonstrances and papers that we have received in relation to this subject, to a competent consulting engineer, one experienced in low land drainage, for an opinion, and if avorable that we proceed in accordance therewith, and if opposed that we recommence and continue until the proper plan be obtained.

What a Large Farm it Would Bequire to Feed its Million Hungry Inhabitants.

It was with considerable pride that we exhibited our big mastiff to a country friend the other day. We are very fond of that dog, and we naturally expected that a sight of the noble animal would elicit some expression of admiration. Have we not just cause of complaint, then, at our disappointment? What did our practical-minded friend say? Just this: "It would take a large farm to support that dog! Them fellers is great eaters." In spite of our wounded pride, we smothered a sigh as our hand involuntarily slipped into our empty trouser's pocket, and we were obliged to at 10 o'cl admit that the statement was not without foundation in fact. We were plunged into a profound thinking spell, and what is still more remarkable, because infrequent, our meditations took a practical turn. What a large farm it must take to feed a great city like New York! In our youth we were great with a slate and pencil-simply immense at figuring-so when we got back to our sanctum (a sky-parlor-back) we went to work. Now take for a start a family of six (figuratively speaking, of course) and, as this is all on paper, allow them the following articles and quantities for a square ing boys will eat more than the onesixth allowed them, but the smaller ones will be satisfied with less. Now, without being too liberal, we will say that each family may have three of these meals a day; so multiply those figures by three and again by 210,000, the number of families in this big city, each family to average six members; and if the figures do not astonish you, we will immediately go out of journalism. "The game is not worth the candle;" if such an array of units, tens, hundreds, thousands, etc., etc., fail to scare the average newspaper reader, he's past praying for and had better take to some work of pure fiction-the Democrat (Rep.) for instance. Well, to recur, to go back these figures are simply astounding, and the size of the farm that is to produce the food would tax the abilities of a pounds of meat, equivalent to a drove of 2,000 head of "Texan steers." These would require 10,000 acres of pastureland to keep them. Then we must have 4,500 barrels of flour, good, bad or in different, and it would take 15,000 acres more to grow the requisite amount of wheat. We will want 1,500,000 lbs.of vegetables of various kinds. We give the land question up here; our pencil and paper almost "gave out" in the calculation. To make these vegetables agreeable we want about 100,000 gallons of milkand 200,000 pounds of butter. This would give 300,000 cows all they could do (even making a liberal allowance for the milkman's pump and chalk), and it would require nearly a million acres of

and about half as much tea. If every and all this these staggering figures, we were modest enough to think we had made a blunder or two. They were so enormous that we could hardly believe them. Being extremely conscientious, in order to verify the figures, we got into our clothes and, carefully descending from our "room in the uppermost story," made our way to the market of the city over

We found that there were slaughtered weekly in the metropolis 15,000 " neat" cattle, 30,000 to 40,000 sheep, and 12,000 to 16,000 hogs. We could get no accurate estimate of the other articles, but they were pouring in in endless streams by every approach and every manner of conveyance, from the basket of fresh eggs on the arm of the market woman, to the car load of flour or cargo of southern vegetables. A day's stoppage from any cause run the prices up immediately, for fear of a famine, and we realized that a blockade of a week would be a

And then when we came to think of the luxuries that a very small minority of us can afford, the size of this farm we were speculating upon, grew and waxed great before our mind's eye, stretched out across continents and zones, became really awful in the grandeur of its dimensions. There is game from the foothills of the Rocky Mountains, salmon from the icy rivers of Canada, trout from the Adirondack's noisy brooks, wines from the vine-elad hills of sunny France and Spain, fruit from the tropics-does not its boundless magnitude inspire you with awe? "Art not surprised to learn?" Do you not involuntarily exclaim as we
