The Oldest Fire Engine House in this City to be Removed in the Interest of Improvement and Progress.

REMINISCENCES OF THE PAST.

The Erection of the New City Hall Necessitates the Removal of the House of Engine Co. No. 1.

OUR FIRE BOYS 40 YEARS AGO.

It is hardly necessary, we trust, to enter into any explanation to our readers in connection with the present subject. We have been negligent as regards our city's industries, institutions, etc., for some weeks, not because we were so disposed or because Hoboken could not furnish a subject, but owing entirely to the press of other matter, particularly advertising. While such an excuse fully illustrates our success, and is, in a certain sense, undisputed evidence of the faith the business public have in the ADVERTISER as a medium, we none the less would prefer to carry out our original programme and furnish an illustration and sketch weekly.

We are, nevertheless, almost disposed to regret the necessity for the present article. To be more specific, one of Hoboken's oldest landmarks is to be "wiped out," as it were, or in other words in the course of a few days the present house of Hoboken Engine Company No. 1 and Washington Hook and Ladder Company No. 2, will be a thing of the past. While thoroughly appreciating how unavoidable is this move, it is nevertheless difficult to forget the many pleasant associations of the years gone by which cling about the old spot as ivy clings about ruins and seems to revive or appear greener as its support becomes more frail or even crumbles to decay. We are disposed, or rather cannot avoid being a little sentimental on this subject, for many reasons. Here was the home of our first fire company; that company was composed of gallant and thorough men, some of whom have long since passed away. Yet, among its living representatives are many of Hoboken's oldest and most respected citizens.

Again, the old building so soon to be demolished did service in various other lines, and the scenes and incidents enacted within its walls would fill volumes, and to-day furnishes the basis for many a good yarn.

We do not pretend to be in a position to do full justice to the past history of the old fire house, owing to a lack of space, etc. We are inclined, however, to be correct in such statements as we do make and write. Condensation becomes a necessity; truthfulness will be made a feature.

Many of the organizers of Engine Company No. 1 have long since passed away. The few remaining are recognized as the foremost members of the community, and either now do, or have, occupied honorable and responsible public positions. This fact naturally suggests that a full and correct list of the charter members should prove an interesting feature, and ought to receive due prominence. We will therefore give from records the first members of the original Hoboken Fire Company, and though in our power to give a brief synopsis of each one's career, they are so well and favorably known that any eulogy becomes unnecessary.

At a meeting of the then prominent citizens of Hoboken, held at the old Napoleon Hotel, corner of Washington and First streets, in the fore part of June, 1848, the first fire company of this city was organized and christened "Hoboken Engine Company No. 1." The organization was effected by the election of W. W. Shippen, Foreman; Gen. James Hatfield, First Assistant; Wm. Horsey, Second Assistant; M. B. Demarest, Third Assistant; J. W. Van Buskirk, Secretary and David I. Stagg, Treasurer. The membership composed besides the officers mentioned; Gen. Shaler, Jno. R. and James McCulloch, B. McCague, Sr., P. Powless, Charles Chamberlain, Isaac Shrieve, John Walker, John M. Board, F. McDonough and "Pop" Van Fassell. Several of the charter members of No. 1 have long since passed away, but sufficient of our pioneer firemen are still on deck and prove by their energy, industry and physique that the first fire laddies of Hoboken were no "chickens."

General Shaler, who has long been a resident of New York city, and who has filled many responsible and honorable positions both in that city and elsewhere, is probably the only one mentioned above whose history may not be familiar to our readers. Gen. Shaler discharged the duties of the different positions to which he had been called, and which were nearly always in connection with fire matters, such as commissioner, trustee, etc., in a most creditable manner. After the second great Chicago fire the confidence of Eastern underwriters in the Western metropolis was shaken to that extent that several of the heavier and more responsible agencies were withdrawn. The condition of Chicago dealers, manufacturers and capitalists was rather alarming, owing to this move. It continued so until after some months, when the New York and Boston insurance mandates began to miss the income from Chicago as much as they had felt their terrible loss and compromised on condition that Gen. Shaler should be sent from New York to take charge of the Chicago Fire Department. The authorities of the latter city never even recognized this insult to the ability of their Fire Marshal, but the ex-agents were delighted at the prospect of again securing agencies which had paid them several thousands per month, and accordingly agreed to accept the services of the General.

For the information of many who are not posted on this matter, we will explain that Gen. Shaler was never identified with or recognized by the Chicago Fire Department. He remained but three months in that city; made many suggestions which were also ignored, and the intention of Eastern underwriters having been accomplished, returned to New York with one year's salary in his pocket, paid by the agents of Eastern companies. We can hardly understand why he was selected for this task, unless his connection as an active fireman with No. 1 Engine Company of this city made his reputation.

Some few months after the company was organized subscriptions were solicited to be used towards erecting suitable quarters for the new company. The response on the part of the few, though generous citizens, was all that could be expected, and the necessary funds being assured, ground was broken about September of the same year. In the meantime, however, an old fire carriage or "jumper," a small hand engine and some hose were purchased. This apparatus, for want of better quarters, was placed temporarily in the battery yard. The new house was progressing favorably, when an injunction was placed on the work by some property holders, who claimed the building would obstruct or detract from the view of property owned by them in the neighborhood. As a consequence it was nearly a year before the trouble was removed, and on the 4th day of September, 1849, the members of Hoboken Engine Company No. 1 took possession and duly celebrated the event.

This little feature proves conclusively that Hoboken could boast of "cranks" as far back as 1848. There were no sound reasons whatever for the objections, but a man named Logan, who was the prime mover, claimed the new house would obstruct the view of the Napoleon Hotel, an institution with which he was in some way connected.

How they celebrated in those days is a mere matter of conjecture, but we are assured that Bill Smith did not make the chowder on that occasion at least, owing, principally, to the fact that in those days the genial William was not much larger than a "clam" himself. The boys had been running, when occasion required, for about twelve months from the battery yard and were naturally proud of their new quarters, if they didn't sport fine furniture, etc., which, from all accounts, was very scarce in '48.

The new house was intended for public purposes generally, the upper portion being devoted regularly to the transaction of town affairs, Sunday School, and occasionally for religious services entertainments of all kinds. The lower floor was occupied entirely by the engine company, and we can hardly conceive how such a combination could harmonize, even though all parties were engaged in the most laudable undertakings, viz, saving souls up-stairs and ever ready to save life and property below. However inconsistent such relations may appear to-day, they were extremely pleasant thirty odd years ago, and continued so until the church people found more appropriate quarters.

During the dark and trying days of '62 and '63, this house was also used by the patriotic ladies of Hoboken, wherein to prepare clothing, pick lint and perform other noble services for the gallant boys at the front.

Things went on smoothly enough for the young firemen, and about four years after their organization some of the members succeeded and formed what is now known as Washington Hook and Ladder Company. There was no trouble or dissension whatever among the pioneers, but at the date whereof we write, all citizens had the interest of the general welfare at heart, and it was deemed essential to organize a truck company for the public good. Due deliberation had been given the subject, and only after, as already stated, it was decided that such an organization was, in certain emergencies, very necessary, was the project perfected.

The so-called truck company was obliged to figure closely, and for some time after their organization might more properly be termed a fire hand-cart company. It is an established fact that the only apparatus they owned at this time was a few very ordinary ladders and a painter's hand-cart, yet, when called upon, they responded with an alacrity that would not be creditable to their more youthful successors, fully verifying that lack of facilities only increased their energy.

The Hoboken Engine boys figured along, with the usual changes and few pretensions, for many years. About the year 1863 or 1864, the New York Volunteer Department was disbanded, and Gustavus Pierrez, who was about this date foreman of the company, purchased the carriage of No. 40 Hose, and, with his well-known generosity, presented it to our boys. This was an event in fire circles, and naturally the members of rival organizations looked with envy upon the recent valuable acquisition of No. 1. To increase this feeling many of the old

No. 1 Engine House for about six weeks, and left entirely to the care of Engineer Gilkyson. This is probably the only case of the kind occurring in this country, and certainly the only instance in this city, where a fire engine from another State was left for so long a time in charge of strangers. The members of the old company seem rather proud of this fact, and attached so much importance to it, that mention was deemed excusable. About July, 1879, just after Mayor Besson vetoed the resolution of the Council making provision for the annual fire parade, the members of No. 1 were the only ones who celebrated the event, or, in the words of one of the then officers, "showed Besson that they could enjoy themselves notwithstanding his opposition." A grand banquet was given in the reading room of the house at which many of our most prominent citizens assisted. After a sumptuous repast, speeches were delivered by Hon. John A. O'Neill, Hon. Rudolph F. Rabe, City Clerk Albert, and several others.

A recital of this event reminds us that this company has always been foremost in resenting an injustice, and, when the different companies declined to do duty some weeks since, No. 1 was prominent in the movement and not without good cause. They had been in want of supplies for some time, and the most violent opposition toward their proposed new location was made by our decidedly "fresh" Mayor. During this trouble, the Eagle Dock fire took place, and,

A Smile of Satisfaction.

This from the Cleveland (Ohio) Penny Press, carries its own suggestion: Recently meeting Mr. H. G. Keffler, treasurer of the Cleveland Herald, our representative inquired of that gentleman, after stating his mission, if he personally knew anything about the Great German Remedy, St. Jacobs Oil. A smile played across Mr. Keffler's expressive face and his eyes twinkled merrily as he replied in the affirmative. I will not refuse to state my experience with it, and you may use it as you think best. Four years ago I sprained one of my ankles, an accident which, as you are aware, entails much suffering and sometimes leaves the limb in a condition to remind one frequently of the old hurt. Unfortunately this result ensued. Whenever the weather became damp or my system absorbed the slightest cold my ankles pained me. This went on at intervals for over three years, and I could not obtain relief. Last winter I applied the St. Jacobs Oil and it completely cured me. I have not since felt a return of the pain.

attaches of No. 40 would visit Hoboken and sing the praises of their "pet," as they termed their old carriage. Among other expressions, when feeling good, they would announce that "No. 40 was never passed over the river and never would be here," etc.

A sort of good-natured rivalry existed to some extent, and challenges were a natural result. It is related by a veteran that the foreman and several members of an up-town company were so jealous of the reputation of No. 1, that on one occasion they brought their carriage in front of the latter's house and dared them to turn out.

In this connection, we remember that our lamented friend, Mr. Dennis Coppers, had been an active member of No. 40 in New York, during volunteer fire days, and was a prominent member of No. 1 Engine at the time that that company came into possession of the "old timer."

It was 1873 before the present engine was purchased from the Amoskeg Manufacturing Company, of New Hampshire. She has been in active service ever since, and probably during this career of nearly nine years has traveled further than any other engine in Hudson County. In September of the same year of her purchase, she was taken by her own members, assisted by several volunteers, to Newton, N. J., a distance of seventy-three miles, and was mainly instrumental in extinguishing what promised to be a most disastrous conflagration. As it was, a whole block was nearly destroyed before the arrival of the gallant Hoboken boys. After the most strenuous exertions, however, they succeeded in confining the fire to that section.

though the other rebellious companies were notified, no order or even request was issued to its members. The engine was there, however, in charge of Engineer Gilkyson.

The company at present musters sixty-nine members, all staunch, able and willing firemen. The officers are: Ivan D. Applegate, foreman; Andrew Cullen, Assistant Foreman; Robert Russ, Secretary; Charles A. Hicks, Treasurer; E. Gilkyson, Engineer, and ex-Chief Kenny and T. J. Rogers, Trustees.

The present financial condition of the company is very flattering, proving decidedly that economy and care has been practiced on the part of the Board of Managers.

The old building will be torn down in the course of a few days, and pending the preparation of a new location for the furniture, etc., will be stored at the engineer's house. The engine and hose carriage will remain at Hartell's stables, on First street.

The result of Mayor Besson's stubborn action all through this matter compels such a result, and forces men who are giving their time and attention to the city's welfare to temporarily put up in a stable. The only grounds for objection at all worthy of notice are that property holders on Hudson street object to a fire house in their midst. For what reason, pray? The finest resident streets in New York and other cities are not considered too good for such a purpose, and would these same people object to fire engines and firemen in their vicinity if their lives and property were endangered? We think not. However, it is only a question of a little time when No. 1 Engine House will be located on Hudson street, and though the style, etc., of architecture may be enhanced, the past reputation of No. 1 will ever occupy the same place in the hearts of Hoboken's oldest and best citizens.

There will be a special "matinee" of the fair this afternoon.

It has been many long years since he was plain Mr. Blaine, of Maine.

The letters purporting to be a confession by John Braun, of the murder of Mina Muller, are now thought to have been written by Kankowski himself.

It looks very much like a case of "Green Christmas," but we hope that the consequences prophesied in the old adage, will not be fulfilled in our midst.

The clerical journals of Paris say that the Pope has consulted his bishops who came to Rome to attend the canonization, with reference to his quitting the "Holy City."

The oystermen of Staten Island are complaining that the waste petroleum from the factories on the New Jersey shore is ruining their business, by reason of the oil rendering the oysters unfit for use.

A drove of forty-five sheep were stolen from a farm near Eastontown, this State, Tuesday, and driven to Red Bank, and the sheep shipped to New York by the Sea Bird. The thieves have not been discovered.

If Besson had accepted his defeat gracefully, and not insisted on a recount, the majority by which he was defeated would have been three votes less; for that was the number of votes gained by McCague by Besson's action.

The nomination and confirmation of ex-Senator Frelinghuysen, of this State, as Secretary of State, in the place of James G. Blaine, was to New Jersey Republicans a welcome and interesting item of political news from Washington, Monday.

A destructive hurricane visited the neighborhood of Memphis, Tenn., on Wednesday last, and destroyed several houses, burying a man and five children under the ruins of one of them. They were all extricated, but were badly wounded and nearly dead.

For once we have a thieving bank officer who is not eminent for piety; Hallock, the Poughkeepsie bank teller, who stole $40,000, kept fast horses, fast women, a fast boat and a fast stream of rum running down his throat. We are glad that he was not like the rest of them.

The frigate Constitution, "Old Ironsides," was put out of commission Thursday. Her "tattered ensign" has been torn down, and she will now take her place in "Rotten Row" at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. She was built in Boston in 1794, and cost $300,000. She assisted in recapturing 300 American sailors made prisoners in Tripoli in 1804, beat the British frigate Guerriere in 1812, and captured, during that war, the Java, the Pietou, the Cyane, and the Levant.

The Governor has issued a proclamation for a special election for member of Assembly in the Eighth District, Essex County, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Brummer. The election will be held on January 3d. The member elected will be a Republican without doubt, and for this reason, Governor Ludlow has shown great impartiality, as he could easily have taken advantage of the situation by calling the election for a week later, thus securing the organization of the House for the Democrats.

BESSON'S GREAT CONTEST.

Besson's great contest of the Assembly election, which was to seal him in triumph to represent the Ninth Assembly District in the Legislature, has "panned out" rather poorly for our Mayor. The examination was held before Master in Chancery Sam'l A. Besson, Monday, in the Mayor's office; Besson acting as his own counsel, and Assemblyman McCague represented by Hon. Allan L. McDermott. Notwithstanding the objection of the latter to the examination being held before a relative of the contestant, and also to the right of a Master to open, or cause to be opened, the ballot boxes without an order of the Court, the examination and re-count went on.

Probably no other disappointed candidate ever had the "cheek" to sit down and count the ballots in his own hand, one by one, as the Mayor did on Monday last. Such a proceeding was without warrant or authority either in law or otherwise. The whole affair from beginning to end was illegal.

Mr. McDermott claimed that the notice of the ground of contest served on Mr. McCague did not contain any proposition which, admitted to be true, entitled the contestant to a seat in the Assembly—this objection to apply to the grounds of the contest singly and collectively; that the act under which notice of contest was given is repealed by chapter 59, general public laws of 1880, and that the Master is wholly without power to take action in this case. The contestant having failed to apply to the Supreme Court Justice holding circuit in this county for a recount and a settlement of the matters upon which he founds his claim, is barred from any step except a petition to the House of Assembly direct. These objections were merely noted by the Master.

It will be remembered that Besson claimed in his protest last month, that there were enough votes cast for "Robert McCague, Jr.," together with some marked "Seventh Assembly District," to reduce the actual vote for the latter enough to wipe out his claimed majority and elect him (Besson).

As a matter of fact there were exactly two votes cast for Robert McCague, the name in both instances having been written on the ticket in lead pencil. Nine ballots were printed "Robert McCague, Jr., Seventh District," instead of the Ninth, and one ballot had his name mis-spelled.

The official count gave McCague 225 votes; the recount showed this to be correct. On the tally sheet, filed with the County Clerk, Besson is credited with 873 votes; the recount shows makes the vote 870. This included nine votes cast for "E. V. S. Besson," "E. V. Besson," "E. W. S. Besson," etc. The name of the candidate is officially returned as "Elbridge V. S. Besson," so that for precisely the same reason that he objected to the "Robert McCague" votes being counted for Robert McCague, Jr., these nine votes should not be counted for Elbridge V. S. Besson.

In one of the ballot boxes two tickets were marked "rejected." They were for Besson and were folded together so as to look like one ticket. They may have been deposited by the candidate himself—by mistake. The result of the illegal recount will be submitted to the Legislature, but nothing will come of it. Assemblyman McCague will take his seat, precisely as he would have done without all this fuss. His Honor the Mayor, the would-be Assemblyman, has over-reached himself entirely in this contest, and increased his opponents majority to fifty-five instead of taking his place in the Lower House.

RAISING THE LICENSE FEE.

An ordinance to increase the license fee for selling liquors from $25 to $50 passed its second reading at the Council meeting, Tuesday, without a single dissenting voice, though Chairman Curtin expressed a wish that it might be amended to read "$75," instead of $50. He was recon-neded to "go slow" by Councilman Miller, and let the matter drop for this time. It is altogether likely however, that the license fee will be increased still more before very long, as the Councilmen seem to be under the impression the liquor stores, or "houses of public entertainment," as they call them here, need weeding. The city could certainly dispense with some of them, though they all rake money enough to easily afford the payment of $50 for the privilege of carrying on their business.

THE LANNIGAN VETOS.

The trouble to which James Lannigan has been put about obtaining a license for a house of public entertainment is familiar to all our readers. It will be remembered that on the 9th of August last, the Council passed a resolution granting him such a license, which was vetoed by his Honor the Mayor. The absurd reason given by the Mayor for objecting this veto was remembered.

When this veto was received there were not enough votes in the Council to pass the resolution over the veto. After more than three months the matter was brought up again, and Besson was sat on in the orthodox manner.

Now he comes out, however, in a rather lengthy and, it must be confessed, sound document, in which he shows that the Council had no power to thus tardily pass the resolution over his veto. His construction of the section of the charter relating to such an action, which he quotes, is that by not taking this action on the veto at the first regular meeting after its reception by the City Clerk, the Council virtually concurred in the Mayor's objections. While it may not be absolutely necessary for the Council to take immediate action, it should do so within a reasonable length of time.

The Council was undoubtedly at fault in not acting in the veto sooner. That the Board should pass the resolution over such a veto, no one but the Mayor himself doubts. The proper thing for Lannigan to do now is to renew his application and have the matter settled immediately.

We have stated that this last veto was sound and in its main part it is; but, as is usual with any writing of Besson's, any sense that it may contain is spoiled by his real character cropping out in some part of it. At the bottom of all this law that he quotes, the fact still remains that his objection to the Council granting a license to Lannigan was founded on personal spite. He closes his veto with the remark: "I am informed that the man Lannigan was arrested two or three weeks ago for selling liquor without a license, etc." He was truthfully "informed," for there exists not a shadow of doubt that he was instrumental in causing that arrest.

THE PENSION ARREARS ACT.

It is so seldom that the New York Herald gets so much common sense in so small a space, that we hasten to print and endorse the following from its editorial columns:

"The bill which has been introduced in Congress, repealing the outrageous job called the Pension Arrears Act, should be passed. We are in favor of paying the veterans, widows and orphans of the war every penny to which they are entitled; but the scandalous statute which was sanctioned by the administration of Mr. Hayes opens the door to so many thousands of fraudulent claimants that the only way to prevent them from robbing the Treasury is to repeal this iniquitous measure. If the bill is allowed to stand, a large percentage of the millions of money it calls for will go into the pockets of the lobbying lawyers and claim agents who secured its passage. When it is repealed, as we hope it will be, Congress can easily agree on a bill which will meet the case of the honest, worthy claimants and exclude the imposters in whose interest the late scheme was devised."

THE DIRECTORS' PLAN.

The Directors of the broken Mechanics' Bank of Newark, have raised $750,000, and they offer to pay the assessments on the stock provided the stockholders will transfer their stock to them. They will pay in full those depositors whose claims do not exceed $200, and seventy-five per cent of all other depositors, excepting banks, insurance companies, and public or private corporations. Corporate depositors and all other creditors other than depositors, must be satisfied with such percentages on their claims as may be realized from the assets, including the assessment on the stock, but not the claims against Nugent & Co. Whatever may be obtained from this firm, they propose to distribute pro rata among all creditors and depositors, excepting those depositors who are to be paid in full, in addition to what is otherwise paid them. Secretary of State Frelinghuysen, the receiver, says that by this plan the creditors can get more than he can hope to pay them.

EXCLUDING CRANKS.

Access to the President by every Tom, Dick and Harry on the look-out for office will not be so easy hereafter as it used to be. To his credit be it recorded that President Arthur has changed the old custom which allowed everyone, whether out of idle curiosity or for the purpose of begging some appointment, to interrupt the President at any time of day and take up his time. There is no reason why he should be compelled to receive and shake hands with every fool or crank who wants to see him. President Arthur requires his visitors to state their business before they are admitted to a personal interview, and in this way he may attend to his duties without wasting much time in talking to or listening to the talk of senseless borbos. It is a very sensible rule, and by its adoption the President has established a precedent that his successors will be sure to profit by.

A New Democratic Paper.

The American Register is the title of a new weekly Democratic newspaper published in Washington, D. C., the eighth number of which is issued this week. It comes highly recommended not only by its contents and fine typographical appearance, but through the endorsement of the Democratic Senators and members of Congress. The editorial staff is composed of Hon. T. W. Bradley, late Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Ohio; Col. Wm. McArdle, of Mississippi, an old, able and experienced editor, and W. A. Adolphe, Esq., a well-known Philadelphia journalist. The want of a sound and reliable Democratic paper at the National Capitol has been felt for some years, and the American Register seems to fully fill the demand. It is published in convenient form for filing; price $3 a year; office 1,343 F street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

The Police Board.

At the meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners, Monday night, Sergeant Ringo made a complaint against Officer Kelly for being drunk on duty and for disobeying orders. He was notified to appear for trial at the next meeting. He was also called up for trial on a charge of committing an unprovoked assault and battery upon Thomas McCague, at Old Fellows' Hall, on November 24, but the complainant failing to put in an appearance, the case was adjourned till next meeting. The charge of neglect of duty, preferred against Officer Barnitt by Peter Kerrihan, was also laid over on account of the complainant being absent. An examination of the facts in the case of the robbery recently committed in Nicholsburg's second-hand clothing store failed to show any negligence on the part of the police, and the case was dismissed. Some minor business was transacted and the Board adjourned. Commissioners Utz and Lally were absent.

WORKING FOR THE SOLDIER BOYS.

Fair Women of Hoboken Airing the Gallant Ninth—The New Army of the "Boys in Blue" the Scene of Much Mosy Making.

The great fair of the Ninth Regiment, N. G. N. J., which has for its object the furnishing of the new Army in which it is being held, and for which so much preparation had been made, opened on Tuesday evening. Governor Ludlow was expected to deliver an address on the opening night, but could not be present. It was then arranged that General Stryker, the next in command of the State militia, should take his place, but unfortunately the General was unable to speak, owing to a severe cold, and the duty of formally opening the fair devolved upon Colonel Hart, the commander of the Ninth The Colonel made a brief speech, in which he explained the object of the fair, and took occasion to thank every one appropriately for his or her encouragement, assistance and donations.

The new army, one of the finest in the State, presents a very handsome appearance in its holiday "full-dress uniform." There are five company booths, one "Field and Staff" both, and a flower booth, the latter a very handsome, summer-house sort of a structure in the centre of the large room. The booths of Companies C and E are the finest specimens of decorative art, but all of them are pretty and attractive, loaded down with every variety of useful and ornamental article.

The committees of ladies in charge of the several booths, to whom too much credit cannot be given for the admirable arrangements and the successful carrying on of the fair, and to whose efforts the Regiment is indebted for a large share of the generous donations, are as follows:

Field and Staff booth: Mrs. Col. B. F. Hart, Mrs. Lieut. Col. J. Green, Mrs. J. R. Stevens, Mrs. F. D. Jackson, Mrs. E. W. Danforth, Mrs. W. J. Stuart, Mrs. J. H. Wheeler, and Misses L. Romena and Annie Chabert, Belle Craig, L. Miller, Margard and Eva and S. Lull.

Flower booth: Mrs. Capt. Wm. C. Morris, Mrs. Clifford, and Misses L. and L. Morris, A. Jacob, A. Holmes and M. Lopper.

Company B: Mrs. T. W. Spencer, Mrs. H. V. Meeks, Mrs. J. D. McCookery, and Misses Lizzie Spencer, Jennie and Annie Curry, Ella, Mary and Anna Landy, Lolla, Lolla and Lizzie Gardner, Anais Allen, Annie and Ella Danielson, Louise, Sarah and Tillie Frambach, Mary A. Brown, Carrie Hoffman, Carrie Leleider and Clara Saft.

Company C: Mrs. Robert King, Mrs. King, Mrs. Alberts, Mrs. Capt. Marion Cook, Mrs. Wiggins, Mrs. Dalton, Mrs. W. Pierrez, Mrs. Schieb, and Misses Havens, Ritter, M. and U. Pierrez, Mount, Dalton, Stein, Lung, Woods, J. Chabert, Cook, Daniels, Grube, Higgins, Miller, Robinson, Crover, Pollock, Pfeiffer, Clara and Juliette Montague, Lancaster, Vanderwick, Apell, Parsons and Standish.

Company D: Mrs. Adolph, Mrs. Frey, Mrs. Capt. Erlenkroter, Mrs. Fleming, Mrs. Paset, Mrs. Deger, Mrs. Dohraan, and Misses Eicke, Duhrkock, Iachino, Bundenberger, Hapke, Reese, Sturm, Engel, Allen, Ramsey, Schlich, Keim, Muenel, Russell, Daab, Ranges Lehman, and Mrs. A. Bellmer.

Company E: Mrs. Captain James, Mrs. Correa, and Misses Golda and Nellie Gorman, Green and Ella Child, Mabel, Hattie and Julio DeVries, Varrick, Gubelman, J. and M. Bollenhagen, Hawk, McBride, Hogan, Motora, Lovelidge, Contessa, Kittell, Leazerat and Feinabend.

Company F: Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Peck, Mrs. Griffith, Mrs. Boyce, Mrs. Walsh, Mrs. Reynolds, and Misses Stewart, Ward, Murphy, Appel, the Misses Kingsland and the Misses Lawler.

There are the usual number of attractive side-shows, such as the "Gypsy Encampment," art gallery, shooting gallery, restaurant, etc. Even on the opening night the attendance was so large as to crowd the room, and the storm on Wednesday did not seem to lessen the number of visitors. On Thursday night the number increased, and the crowd was so great that it was extremely difficult to move from one booth to another. Many people who wished to examine the articles on sale could hardly get near enough to see them. It is estimated that from 2,000 to 4,000 people attended nightly. The Regiment is making a great deal of money, and partly owing to this success and partly because the excessive crowds somewhat interfere with the business of the fair, it has been decided to continue it during part of next week so that all the articles on sale may be disposed of.

Last night additional crowds gathered, attracted by the expectation of seeing General Hancock. He arrived at 9 o'clock in company with Mr. John Stevens, Colonel Edwin A. Stevens, of the Governor's staff, and Chaplain Houghton, of the Ninth, and, after a short visit to the officer's reception room, where the "big guns" were presented to him, he went up stairs and visited the different booths. The distinguished soldier was attired in the ordinary dress of a private citizen and was the object of all observers. After a visit of several hours he returned to Castle Point, where he remained the guest of Mr. John Stevens over night.

Among the visiting officers on Thursday evening, which was "National Guard Night," were Col. Edwin A. Stevens, of the Governor's staff; Col. Bernard, of the Fifth Veterans, of Newark, and all his officers; Captain Flehler, Company C, Fourth Regiment; Captain Campbell, of Company A, Fifth Regiment, and a number of officers of New Jersey's Yorktown Central Brigade. The trophy won by this Brigade is on exhibition at the fair. There were also a number of visitors from the Seventh, Ninth, Eleventh and Seventy-first Regiments, N. G. N. Y.

As the fair is to continue next week, we will omit the list of articles to be voted for and chance off, and give it completely, together with the names of the lucky winners, in our next issue.

Drunken Visitors.

Andrew Burt and John J. Fox, of Oakland, Bergen County, came to this city in a light wagon the other day, both in a state of boozing intoxication. We believe they were not members of the Board of Freeholders. Fox was driving in the streets in a reckless manner and they were both arrested. It took them several hours to sober up, and cost them a fine of five dollars for reckless driving before they were released. They went home, and it is believed that they will omit Hoboken when they go on drunken visiting tours hereafter.

Weehawken's Defunct Weekly.

In the Circuit Court, Wednesday, a suit was brought up in connection with the Hudson County Weehawken, a weekly paper lately published in Weehawken. The suit was that of E. B. Cole vs. Millin Paul, to recover $5,000 damages. The plaintiff started the paper some time ago and induced Paul to invest in the enterprise. The paper failed to return an immediate fortune, and Paul leveled on the establishment, causing a smash-up. Cole believes that the paper would have been a success had it not been for the unwarrantable action of the grasping defendant, and brings suit to recover the above-claimed damages.

The Vaccinating Corps.

Dr. Elder's vaccinating corps, an account of whose work was given in last week's ADVERTISER, has not been idle, but continues to fight against the threatened epidemic approach of the small-pox. From the 1st to the 8th of December they vaccinated in the public schools of this city 1,742 children; in Weehawken, 109 children and adults; St. Mary's School, this city, 567 children and adults; Township of Union, 307, and have performed about 1,500 private vaccinations during the last fifteen days, making a grand total of 4,425. Let the good work go on till there is not an unvaccinated human being in Hudson county. There and then will the spread of the dreaded disease be impossible.

The Life Saving Service.

The captains of the life-saving stations on the Jersey coast, extending from Sandy Hook to Barnegat Bay, held a meeting, last week, at Long Branch, and passed a resolution requesting Congress to increase the pay of themselves and their crews. They represent that they are employed eight months in the year, and get but $400 a year. The men get $40 a month, out of which they must furnish their food at the stations and must pay for a substitute when sick. These men claim that their employment is more dangerous to life and health than that of soldiers; that special skill is required; that they have no prospect of pensions and that they are more poorly paid than any other class of public servants. It is said that an increase of fifty per cent over the present salary will be asked for. Some time ago four captains resigned, alleging that they could not afford to remain in the service for $400 per year.

Boxwood in Court.

The first case of the Court of Sessions called on Monday, was that of the State vs. Edward Langheinken, of this city, who is charged with stealing a quantity of boxwood from the factory of Renfel & Essex. The evidence of the State was to the effect that Langheinken had gone to the factory and asked Edward Thompson, the engineer, if there was any boxwood for sale. Thompson sent him to the superintendent, Mr. Herman. When he came back he said that Mr. Herman told him he could have all he wanted. The defendant testified that he used boxwood for making cigar holders, etc., and went to the factory to get some. He saw Thompson and gave him two pipes, when Thompson told him to help himself to all the boxwood he wanted. Thompson was re-called and denied this statement. The jury returned with a verdict of guilty of petty larceny. He was sentenced to three months' imprisonment.

Boy Sneak Thieves.

On Monday afternoon, the residence of Mr. Willard, No. 264 Hudson street, was entered by sneak thieves and robbed of considerable jewelry. A servant noticed two boys running away from the house, and suspecting something wrong, went up-stairs and searched the rooms, and discovered that a gold watch, a silver watch, a pair of gold bracelets, a gold chain and locket, some finger rings and other small articles had been stolen. The police are working up the case. On Tuesday morning, Detective Gallagher arrested two suspicious-looking young men who could give no satisfactory account of themselves. They gave their names as Wm. Douglas, aged seventeen, of No. 24 Railroad avenue, and Michael Morgan, aged fifteen, of No. 189 Bay street, Jersey City. They turned out to be bad characters and were committed for ninety days under the disorderly act. Nothing was proven against them in connection with the robbery, and as yet the police have obtained no clue to the identity of the thieves.

A Sneak Thief Caught.

On Monday a white-haired innocent-looking German, who had been regaling himself at the bar of Meyer's restaurant, Hudson and First streets, disappeared from that place contemporaneously with a pair of new overcoats belonging to Mr. Meyer. On Wednesday afternoon a servant girl employed in the restaurant noticed the man on the street and called Mr. Meyer's attention to the fact. The proprietor came down upon the thief, arrested him and kept him in the station while a servant went to the station house and brought Detective Gallagher around. The man was taken before Aid Edmundson and cried like a baby when his pockets were searched. He had on one of the coats stolen from Mr. Meyer. He gave his name as Schmidt, and in his possession were found seven pawn tickets, all for articles of wearing apparel, some made out with the name of Schmidt and some in that of "Miller." In his examination before the Recorder the next day he admitted his guilt and was committed to the county jail for trial. He will make application for trial himself on Monday next.

Two Michigan Sufferers.

A weary-looking man, accompanied by a little nine-year-old girl, entered Police Headquarters, Monday evening, and asked for a night's lodging. The man said his name was Wilson Reinoff, and told a pitiful and evidently truthful story of his sufferings by the late Michigan forest fires, and his traveling here in company with his little daughter, Grace. He said that he had been a prosperous farmer in Gratiot County, Michigan, and that his home was destroyed by the fire in the latter part of August, and he lost everything in the flames. His wife and two small children, twins, had been burned to death. Reinoff himself had been terribly burned in his efforts to save his family. He had received help from benevolent people which enabled him to reach Albany with his little daughter. From there he went to Rondout and had walked from that place down through the woods on the Palisades to Hoboken. He wanted to reach Paterson, near which place his mother lives. The two wayfarers were given food and comfortable lodging over night, and in the morning Chief Donovan, Postmaster Miller and Roundsman Jacobus made up a purse for them and put them on board of a train bound for Paterson.

The Kamens Case.

The bondsmen of ex-City Treasurer John Kamens, who was a defaulter to the amount of $65,000, met in the office of Corporation Attorney Niven, on Monday last. They were accompanied by their respective counsel, many of the latter being prominent members of the bar. The object of this meeting was to endeavor to effect a compromise and avoid further delay by legal complications. The different bondsmen for the several years have agreed to pay the entire amount of the deficit in proportion to their individual legal responsibility, as follows: Mr. Reiche, $20,000; Mr. Leonard, $10,000; Mr. Wheeler, $7,500; Mr. Schriber, $5,000; Mr. Muller, $3,000; Mr. Tag, $2,000; Mr. Clark, $1,500, and other bondsmen from $1,000 to $500 each, the money to be paid into the city treasury in thirty days from the date of the agreement. Corporation Attorney Niven deserves great credit for the manner in which he has conducted the case. The city, by this arrangement, gets more than she could reasonably expect, though only what she is justly entitled to.

The County's Lunatic.

Last week Director-at-Large Budd, and the Snake Hill Committee of the Board of Freeholders paid the regular annual visit to the State Lunatic Asylum, at Morris Plains, to look after the welfare of the county's patients confined in that institution. There are ninety-seven patients from Hudson county in the State Asylum, for the care of whom the county pays a specified sum to the State each year. The Freeholders found these unfortunate patients in excellent condition and well cared for.

The Lewis Will Conspirators.

The terms of Frank Allison and Marcus T. Sacla, who were sentenced to State Prison for complicity in the plot to deprive the United States Government of the money bequeathed to it by Lewis, the millionaire miser of this city, expired a month ago, but they were both held for the payment of the fine of $5,000 imposed upon each in addition to their terms of imprisonment. Last week they made affidavit they were insolvent and Allison was discharged.

From our last issue the following item was inadvertently omitted: "Miss J. Huncke, of this city, was among the most successful workers at the recent St. Mary's Catholic Church Fair, held at Old Fellows' Hall, and by very diligent service secured the lady's gold watch. There was no less than seven aspirants. Miss Huncke, however, turned in over 350 votes as the result of a few days' labor." The omission was an oversight, as the ADVERTISER is always inclined to give credit where credit is due.

On Monday, Dec. 5, the Constitutional Commission met at Trenton, and instructed the various Committees to draft amendments to the Constitution as follows: Limiting the rate of taxation in cities and the amount of bonded indebtedness, the rate and amount to be fixed at a future meeting; two sets to be whether there shall be special laws for certain classes of cities or general laws for all cities; to prevent the making of irrevocable contracts; prohibiting the construction of railroads, excepting surface horse railroads, through cities without just compensation to property owners; prohibiting any judge of the higher courts from being a director, officer or counsel of any railroad corporation, and providing for biennial sessions of the Legislature. An attempt to provide for the taxation of church property and for the collection of taxes by suit, the same as individual debts, failed.

The Constitutional Commission met again in Trenton Tuesday, when reports were received from the committees, putting in proper shape the various amendments which have already been considered. Among them is one providing for biennial sessions of the Legislature. A petition was received from Andrew Lesters of New York, advocating an amendment providing for a reduction of the rate of interest on unpaid taxes and assessments upon real estate. The Commission adjourned to December 23, when final action will be taken on all amendments.
